The series, which promises to be one of the most entertaining features of the National Farm and Home Hour during the winter months, will contain much home-interest information and will endeavor to touch upon and country business.

• • •

Carmen Wells, advertiser, explorer and many years a writer of a series of programs over an NBC network, were heavily hit by the "Crimson Avalanche," says that if all the boys in Texas were rolled into one ball, that it would roll on a Passing Detail with cows and the ponds.

• • •

A man's room in the studios of the National Broadcasting Company is preserved, not by a lion's vocal cords, but with the aid of the blue drawn across a length of fence covered with cotton.

• • •

Harvey Hays, well known to radio listeners for his interpretations of outdoor tales, will play the part of the forest ranger, also in the ways of forest men and protection through long experience in the fields, the character gift aiding and himself in avoiding situations with his usual instant whims suggested sometimes overzealous his better judgment.

In presenting Peter Meredith, Irma Glen has the three-fold job of speaking the verse while she plays the organ with feet and hands, and watches the music, score and stop switch.

Alfred Corn, who wears the part of Sammy in The Goldbergs, NBC daily feature, is nearing his fifteenth birthday, and is a student in high standing at the Art Students' League.

Yes! Please

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the lecturer, "I understand the language of wild animals."

From the back of the hall came a voice: "Well, the next time you see a skunk, ask him what's the big idea."

La Salle, Magnificent Adventurer

La Salle

Building of the Griffin

La Salle at the Mouth of the Mississippi

Map of La Salle's Explorations

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE came to Pennsylvania in the year 1666, the fellow in the illiterate letter in what is now the state of the same name, the actors in this epic drama, which is now about to begin are some 18 Indians and 20 French soldiers and voyageurs.

Not a very impressive company, it is true, but the leader of it is what makes it great. For this leader is René-Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle, "magnificent adventurer" and one of the world's greatest explorers.

La Salle . . . announced that they would take their canoes. They filled the light white birch-barks from the stocks, and started them into the icy water. The engineer and fifteen were aboard, given by grace, three men after them soldier, and voyageur, and not leaving engaged gingerly in his canoe, sank to a kneeling position, and took up his long-handled paddle. First one light canoe, then another, pushed off from shore and the thick current bore them down.

"To right and left their new craft leaped from forked and hard river rims under a silver and leaden forests, from whose rigid mountains that rose desperately toward an opaque gray sky. On the ninth of February, they emerged from the Illinois and their fleet glinted on upon the seething current of the Mississippi. La Salle's dreams were near success. His refuge of last resignation.

Thus began the historic voyage down the length of the "Father of Waters" which was to give to France control of the interior of North America, which was to open to the cities of the Indians of a new empire before the greedy eyes of the white race, which was to embroil England and France in an almost unending war for the next three-quarters of a century and which was to result finally in the foundation of a new nation greater than either. It is this voyage which has been characterized as "one of the greatest epics of all history."

To most Americans the name of La Salle is just another in a dusty remembered list from dull school-book histories. But now, 250 years after the beginning and the toil of his great achievements, his name is brought to life before us again through the publication of two biographies of him. One of them is "La Salle," written by L. J. Jacks and published by Longmans Green's Bases (from which the foregoing quotation is taken) and the other is "The French Adventurer—The Life and Exploits of La Salle," written by M. Maurice Constantin-Weyer and published by the Macmillan company. Mr. Jacks is an American, and M. Constantin-Weyer is a Frenchman. So it is interesting to read both these two books together and get the two points of view on the life of this great Frenchman whose name is written high in the annals of America.

Of the voyage down the river Mr. Constantin-Weyer writes in vivid accent—how "spring was breaking on every side. A sky of cloudy rose by the wind was rendered in blue and white. The forest was powdered with tender green. Flowers were profusion field petals. The coming of migratory birds filled the numerous valleys, Mosquitoes swarmed. An oldest canoes behind the Illinois. In the mornings bison descended in friendly packs to the giant drinking troughs."

They passed the mouths of great rivers—the Missouri, the Ohio, the Arkansas. "La Salle christened," said the Arkansas. There were settlements with Indians, both pleasant and good, for their both friendly and hostile red men. There were innumerable new wonders of scenery which unfolded before their eyes and a variety of experiences such as few explorers had ever had. Just two months from the time they had floated out upon the broad bosome of the Mississippi, "all at once spray struck their faces like a shower; the water they found it already breakfish. A great joy painfully welled up in their breasts; a thrill ran down their spines. And suddenly, sonorous under the shock of a thousand waves, luminous and without a call, there was the sea! April the seventh, 1682."

Then M. Constantin-Weyer, on and now to turn to Mr. Jacks for the next scene.

"The end of the herculean voyage had arrived.

"The sweatstruck French and Indians coasted quietly along, and presently they saw Henry de Tonty emerge from the nibble passage, and many a long weary month for and four years the seeming gulf as the lonely seas or Canadian trails met far from home in the wilderness. Details of a semi-tragic meeting on the face of an unknown sea. D'Autray came out of the eastern channel, and all ears—aloof at a pronounce of icy ground, and hatched their tried and were raised.

"Many hands that trembled from eagerness and emotion, the Canadians carried a cedar post, and on it were fleurs de lis graved, for its France et de Navarre, reglus. La Salvienne April, 1682." La Salle told his men to take up their arms. Attentive and quiet, the Mohicans and Abenakis scattered in a group. Led by Father Zenobe Membre, the Frenchman chanted the Te Deum, the Exaudiat, and Domine salvum fac Regem.

"Then, to a volley from French rifles, and a shout from the red warriors, La Salle set to the column, and announced to the silent shores that King Louis ruled these regions. Jacques de la Metairie, gravely public read—Fort Frontenac, standing beside La Salle, helped to draw his sail to stamp the legal document by which La Salle claimed these to be French possessions.

"Next they wrote on a wooden plate: 'Ludovicus Magnus regnat' and buried the plate at the foot of the column. This done, they send some further records, then the whole battered group about some surprise, and sang in a chorus, both from oneness of their own feeling, the swelling hymnal of the family Vexilla Regis.

"The Frenchmen must have been as glad to see the Gulf as Xenophon's hardy soldiers once were glad to see the blue of the Euxine. When at last, out on a great sea-tinted rainy the sun had dropped to rest in the melancholy wooden and savannas to westward, and the night wind brought over the glitter of the phosphorescent sea the faint hooded noises of breaking waters, the voyagers lay down keenly their canoes, aware that they had seen, in all probability, the greatest day of their remembrance from how weary to the end. As the shore and shattered an adieu refrain, the occasional clangor of distant sea-birds dreamed in the night, and now to see the blue terminal stars burst over in very splendor.

"La Salle had attained his goal."

It had been a long trail which he had followed since that first day when on a gloomy bay in Ontario, he had rent or other explorers and adventurers had dreamed of the tales or their exploits in the places which had previously been marked on the rude maps of the time. Two decades and more of years his life had been one of many hardships, of many high hopes, of many disappointments. But in his make-up was the tough fiber of mind which had carried him through all of them. He had justified the title given him by an early Admiring biographer—"The Unforgetting Norman."

Educated for priesthood in the Jesuit order, La Salle soon found that the restrictions of his life would never allow him to be known in that role. The result was a journey in the early months to Canada, where his brother was a priest in the Seminary of St. Sulpice. Through the influence of this brother, he received a grant of land near Montreal, a seigneury which he named La Salle. The name was significant—already he was dreaming of finding the undiscovered northwest passage to China, the goal of many an explorer before him.

So when the Indians told him of a great southwestern river which flowed into the "Vermilion sea," his quick mind grasped this as the route of the long-sought passage to the Orient, and he determined to follow the river. So he sold his seigneury to obtain funds for an expedition and in July, 1669, the first of his long wanderings through the interior of the North American continent began. That trip carried him up the St. Lawrence, along the south shore of Lake Ontario, among the villages of the Iroquois, on to Niagara, along the rocky shore of Lake Erie and then south through what is now the state of Ohio until he, in all probability, reached the Ohio river. The dauntless young explorer turned La Salle or go back to Canada so his first expedition was simmering of a failure.

His reception were now substantial but he found an unexpected friend in Count Frontenac, the new Governor" of Canada, who gave him the exclusive trading privileges at Fort Frontenac (now Kingston). Kingston on the outskirts the he would rebuild the defenses and gather the post. In the meantime Father Membre and Louis Jolliet had reached the Mississippi. "Deep-rent Manitoumie river" and upon down it for a considerable distance through them did not follow it to its mouth. So that honor still remained La Salle.

However, he wanted more control, so in 1677 he made a trip to France with letters from Frontenac to the king and his ministers. In Paris La Salle found admirers influence in his plans and when he returned to Canada he did he brought with him a royal decree authorizing him to make discoveries and build forts in the interior of North America. He also brought back with him the men who was destined to be his chief lieutenant and greatest friend, Henri de Tonti, an Italian, "the Man with the Iron Hand."

That winter La Salle and Tonti were busy constructing a fort at Niagara and building a ship. Before spring had come a count of about all into the bargain no built for service on the Great Lakes, was completed. On its prow was a carved griffin from the armorial bearings of La Salle's patron. Under the command of Tonti with ordering from under the name of the griffin. Incidentally, it was more challenging than the last year the sinners from a wretched ship were forged in Lake Huron and were in addition to support the latter that them into their new one—one of the first—and after a long time made its way down the Illinois to the present site of Peoria, Ill., where he built Fort Crevecoeur.

Leaving Tonti in charge La Salle started back to Canada. When he reached Niagara in October in 1680 it was on bad news of disaster. The Griffin with all of her rich cargo of furs had been lost. La Salle learned on to Montreal and there made the trip all of Frontenac and were more angels the all of Frontenac Antin he was provided with the necessary equipment for carrying on his projects and within a few months he was again at Fort Frontenac and ready to join Tonti at Crevecoeur. Just as he was ready to start, however, there came the news that the garrison at the fort on the Illinois had mutinied and destroyed the fort.

La Salle's one hope now was that the faithful Tonti had held on and had saved something from the wreckage of his plans. When he reached the Crevecoeur, he found Tonti gone to Green Bay and the place deserted. Undaunted by this setback to his misfortunes, the "Undeserving Norman" pushed on down the Illinois until he reached the Mississippi. But his party was too small to attempt an expedition down this great river. So La Salle once more returned to Canada and spent northward. He spent the winter at Fort Miami, and in the spring he learned that Tonti was at Michilimackinac and there he hastened to hear from his trusted lieutenant the long lost of disaster. Of this interview an eye-witness writes: "Anyone who could have thrown up his hands and abandoned the enterprise, but not from this, with a firmness and composure that was his equal I saw him more surprised than ever to confirm his woes and pass forward his discovery."

La Salle was now determined to continue with his plans for exploring the Mississippi. Before leaving men more to Fort Frontenac he reinstated his supplies and by the autumn of 1681 he set out once more, with Tonti, for the Illinois river. They followed his journey down the Illinois river to the Mississippi and the beginning of the great journey which took place just 250 years ago.

(By arrangement with Newspaper Union.)

How Old?

He doesn't look a day over fifty. And looks like forty.

At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and joy a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulation!

When your system is sluggish and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-sick—don't waste money on "tonics" or "vegetators" or similar patent medicines. Simply give the liver and bowels, Use a tonic physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh mandrel herbs, senna and pepsin. Just those will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation. But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. It will regain every few days. It will get better, always, and feel better in every way. You will never need to take another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and sleep like howdie from sluggish food upset tongue from ill mates sick stomach and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poisons every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand, take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. How if you don't feel such vigor in every way. Syrup pepsin 35¢ everywhere.

Soil Not Needed as Bed for Crops

The plant physiology department of the University of Washington has found it possible to flourish well and a bed for raising crops. Water may be used instead of soil, the plants are fed mere sustenance, and remarks, says bumper crops the rule.

The new many elements of plant food are dissolved in shallow tanks of water wherein the plants are suspended. Through them between a mixture of air, as a result each will supply water for ten acres of clean, concrete roads.

The plants, with roots in the water, are placed in a substance which is inert, neither adding to nor taking from the solution. Sand is the cheapest substance found, but gravel, cinders, excelsior, even sawdust, will answer the purpose.

The whole process, which has the crudest production, through the Council harvest and feed one is apparent upon its application, Hoagland Answer in Law North American Review.

A man may have a good opinion of himself and deserve it.

RELIEVES HEAD, CHEST and BACK COLDS

ALBATUM 35¢

Stainless "Rub In" and inhalant unsurpassed in preventing and relieving cold congestions

QUALITY SINCE 1833 — McKESSON & ROBBINS — SOLD AT ALL DRUG STORES

Cobra Worshipers Hold Deadly Reptile Sacred

Every year the Snake Indians of responsible for the death of many thousands of persons in India, but are revered in the same connection that it is difficult to get them killed in order to keep cobras.

In many Hindu temples these deadly reptiles have regular homes and are daily fed with milk and delicacies by worshiped morning and evening.

At a check known as Subramanian Swami, cobras are so tame that they actually come when called and eat from the hands of their keepers. Even with cobras in the same room, Swami is not afraid to sleep.

Every spring there is a festival at which cobras gather in great numbers from all parts of India. Fortunately for the many snakes, one man has been appointed to catch the cobras and take them to the temple.

Took Name From Castle

The name "Hindenburg" is derived from castle Zehden, the ancestral home of the family. The castle was destroyed by the Russians, during World Tellers.

If you have smoking a mixture you would make it Monday you would wonder of the household by chewing when you are not thinking of tobacco.

It's common sense

Winter finishes all agree that your body needs Vitamins, it's common sense to take cod liver oil. Scott's Emulsion contains Cod Liver Oil concentrated 5 times and rich in Vitamins A and D. Over 20 years of scientific testing by independent laboratories has proved that Scott's Emulsion helps growing children in the development of bones and teeth, helps build resistance against colds, helps build up thin, underweight children and helps them put on healthy flesh in a pleasing, palatable way. If lacking any of these benefits, why not try Scott's Emulsion? Scott & Bowne, Inc., Manufacturing Pharmaceutical Chemists, 5-15 Washington Street, Bloomfield, N. J. Send for a free sample. Address Dept. 34-A, Scott & Bowne, Inc., 5-15 Washington Street, Bloomfield, N. J.

Scott's Emulsion

OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

Old Water Main

Laborers unearthed part of a wood en water main, at least a century old, in Springfield, Mass. The colonial pipe was fashioned from hollowed pine logs, almost ten inches in diameter. The ends of the logs were tapered at appearance to keep the ends of pipe ay from the water.

The Truth at Last

"The weather out our way lately formed a secret society."

"What's it's name? Does have an secret?"

"But this society isn't to keep secrets. It is to tell them."—Exchange.

Question—Not the Rule

Willie—Pa, where is tobacco found?

Pa—In the southern states and in some cigars.

CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

Quickly Heal Rashes, Eczema and All Forms of Itching, Burning Skin Irritations.

Bathe with the Soap, assist with the Ointment. Relief comes at once and healing soon follows.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Malden, Mass.

Wrong About Sports

The American actually valued sport is crazy. We are the only people in the world who make sport a business.—American Magazine.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 6:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Tuesday, 7:30.

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:00.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

"Dare to be a Daniel,
Dare to stand alone;
Dare to have a purpose true;
Dare to make it known"

The subject for the sermon next Sunday morning at Charlevoix and Ironton is "Thou Shalt Not Kill" or the Sixth Commandment. Someone has asked "how can one find enough to make a sermon out of that commandment?" There may in fact be a lot to say in the minds of some when they have regarded the command but when one looks out into the world he wonders at the premeditation of one who would undertake to discuss the subject in the space of fifteen to thirty minutes.

The former minister, John Alexander Hayes says "Many agree with Henry Ward Caffin to the feeling that there is an element of humor in speaking at any commandment to the average congregation. Few murderers are found in the pews of the average church. We are prone today to look upon murder as something rarely met and regard it with horror. It would be a hard thing for the average murderer to be accepted as an easy church upon confession of faith, but there are many churches today in Africa and elsewhere where the very pillars of the organization are reformed murderers.

"The Commandment is still needed today. Violation of it seems to be on the increase. Its need is seen in that it prohibits not only the act but the tendencies that lead to the acts; tendencies that need restraint."

When one takes this Commandment to cannist nidester three great questions of today. Reverence for human life, racial misunderstanding and war. Have you opinions? Are they based upon facts or just feelings?

The Junior church will be led next Sunday afternoon by Robert Bergeman. The subject will be "Stories That Jesus Told."

The monthly church night service will be held Thursday night, February 4th. The luncheon session will be preceded by a congregation supper.

The Little Traverse Bay Ministerial Association will hold its next meeting in East Jordan, Monday, February 1. The program will be on "Easter and Pre-Easter Activities." Each minister is asked to bring a book from his library to loan for a month.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 7:30 o'clock.

Choir Practice Thursday evening 8:30 o'clock.

B. Y. P. U. Topic—"Our Church's Service to Christ." Miss Erma Carey leader.

A group from Eastport will be guests at this service.

Subject for evening service—"Horseback riding in the Revelations."

Thursday evening, February 4th, the monthly business meeting of the church.

The W. W. G. will meet with Marie Dahlquist Monday evening, February 1. The Week of Prayer meeting will be in charge of Virtan Pike.

The Grand Traverse Midwest association meeting will be held in Traverse City Baptist Church, February 9. Morning, afternoon and evening services.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

January 31—"The One Sin Not Under the Atonement.

At Mission—"Reserved Seat in Hell."

Feb. 7—"Can We Have Our Diseases Healed? Or, Where Will Heaven be ? ? " Town folks invited to the Mission.

In the Mission contest, in the League, Group No. 2 made the highest number of points, fifty-one, last Sunday, and is now ahead on the totals. There were fifty-five in the High School department of the Sunday School and thirty-four used the new financial system in the church worship. The Sunday School secretary reported the largest regular attendance since March 20, 1927. There were more boys than girls in the Intermediate and Adult Departments, which seems unusual.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. Nova Shapton, and next week Monday, February 1, at 7:30 will be a very important official meeting. The official board of the church and the Sunday School board with annual election of officers.

The older young men of the church have invited the pastor to teach a class for them. This is being taken into consideration.

We still want to know who has church envelope number thirty-four. Please report to pastor, or Mrs. Simmons.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, January 31—"Love."

Service First Wednesday of month, at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Charlevoix Michigan.
January 26, 1932.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeman presiding.

Alderman present, Fessenden, Kibbe, Smith and Webster.

Absent—Alderman Foster and Hooker.

Minutes of meeting held January 11, 1932 were read and approved.

Enter Alderman Hooker.

The finance committee having examined the following bills aggregating $1,092.55 find them correct and recommend they be allowed.

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, Salary	31.25
B. E. Sife, Salary	52.08
D. H. Meade, Salary	50.00
Wilma Nowotny, Salary	27.00
Deputy City Clerk, Sup.	13.97
City Band, concerts	100.00
Billing Bros, Everard Co. Sup.	2.71
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rental	7.26

Police Fund

Charles Jefferies, Salary	80.00
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rental	2.00

Police Fund

Charles Marshall, Salary	50.00
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rent.	4.80
Fred Tyler, Salary	80.00
Mich. Bell Tel Co., Re. 71	9.96

Cemetery Fund

Ben Nowland, Salary	25.00
Frank Noble, Drayage	15.00

Highway Fund

Art Alcock, Labor	57.50
Leo Allard, Labor	50.00
Harry Elzinga, Labor	14.00
Phillip Lamore, Labor	5.25
Lou Sanfel, Labor	3.50
Edgar Smith, Labor	7.00
Peter Smith, Labor	7.00
M. R. Hookey & Son, Team	30.00
C. F. Kuhler, Supplies for Th.	2.28
Chas. Pfeil Co., Sig. Pt.	16.00
Charlevoix Gar., Sup. for th.	1.00
Charlevoix Co-Op. Ass. Sup.	23.16

Park Fund

Will Cowan, Labor	12.00

Electric Fund

Dan W. Beebe, Salary	90.00
Allen Ulrich, Salary	62.50
Morris Ackert, Salary	65.00
Merlin Plum, Salary	55.00
Archie McPherson, Salary	50.00
Robert Alspaugh, Salary	50.00
Floyd Rice, Labor	28.64
John A. McPherson, Labor	12.00
H. D. Marshall, Labor	18.90
Postmaster, Sup. Rev.	50.00
Billing Bros. Everard Co. Sup	18.72
Mich. Bell Tel Co., Sup.	19.00
J. E. Richards, Sup.	10.25
Clarence J. Withers, Assigned	50.00

Water Fund

Mrs. M. L. Plum, Salary	2.50
James Dora, Salary	52.50
H. D. Marshall, Labor	103.34
Thomas Mahan, 4th Pmt on contract	1,000.00
Detroit Trust Co., Int. on
Waterworks Ext Bdr 17-40	600.00
Billing Bros. Everard Co. Sup.	18.60
Hersey Mfg. Co., Sup.	37.34
Traverse City Iron Wks. Sup.	10.66
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Sup.	4.50

Moved by Ald. Hooker, seconded by Ald. Webster that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts.

Motion carried by the following yes and nay vote:

Yeas—Ald. Fessenden, Hooker, Kibbe, Smith, and Webster. Nays—None.

The council appointed the following as election commissioners. Lisle Sheahan, Darwin F. Meech and Ira A. Adams.

On motion duly made the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, Clerk.

SCHOOL NOTES

(Continued from first page.)

Vivian Fike, Jean Graves, Robert Kinney and Billie Smith contributed to the first part of the program. During the last term Miss Lola McMillan of the Senior High presented an account based on her trip to Washington, D. C.

Boys Athletics

The local Junior High team now has three victories to its credit having won again from Harbor Springs, 12 to 6.

Girls Athletics

Last Friday night the 8A volley ball team captained by Dorothy Smith played Esther Lee Fochtman's 7A team and lost, the score being 4 to 5 Captain Fochtman said: "They could have done better though they did win."

This Friday Magie Novak's 8B team played Pauline Chew's 8B. The score was 22 to 13 in favor of the Pessimon who will next play the 7B team to determine the Junior High championship.

Music

The seventh, eighth and ninth grades are preparing with much interest the cantata, "The Childhood of Hiawatha." The words are by Henry W. Longfellow and the music by Ira B. Wilson.

Honor Roll For January

All "B's" or better—

Seventh Grade—Jean Campbell, Esther L. Fochtman, Anna Higman, Robert Wood.

Eighth Grade—Adaline Bellinger, Gloria Dicks, Ernestine Nirkerson.

Ninth grade—Robert Emrey, Esther O'Neill, Jack Withers.

Grades

The following people belong to the first grade Honor Roll, having been neither absent nor tardy during the December school month.

Elizabeth Ann Hinkins, Emer Jean Hull, Sylvia Stinson, Clair Webster, and Marilyn Withers.

CLEVER CAMERA STUNT IN "FIVE STAR FINAL" WAS DONE THIS WAY

"Five Star Final," the First National melodrama of newspaper life coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, contains a swooping camera manoeuvre like the flight of a hawk, which reveals details of an underwhelmed speakeasy—and catches two of the patrons in a clinch on tremulous light which suggests amusingly the state of their minds. The shot required much ingenuity on the part of Mervyn LeRoy, the director, and Sol Polito, camera expert.

A three-hundred pound camera, equipped with a lens capable of focusing clearly at high speed, was mounted on an elevating crane. The crane, a haphazard looking machine built for LeRoy from specifications he drew in the air with his finger, takes the camera from a level of one foot to a heighth of thirty in nine seconds.

First National executives were so impressed (!) by the results of the machine that they ordered the mechanical department to sort out a real machine that could use a camera around even more unusually.

Mr. Robinson is supported by Mae an March, H. B. Warner, Anthony Bushell, George Stone, Frances Starr, Ona Munson, Boris Karloff, Robert Elliott, Aline MacMahon, Purnell Pratt, David Torrence, Oscar Apfel, Gladys Lloyd, Evelyn Hall and Harold Waldridge. "Five Star Final" was written by Louis Weitzenkorn. Mervyn Le Roy directed.

SILVER MEDAL CONTEST PLANNED FOR NEAR FUTURE

Announcement is made by the contest dir...ctor of the W. C. T. U. that Silver Medal declamatory contests will be held Sunday, February seventh as follows:

Congregational S. S. at noon.
Baptist Church at 6:30 p. m.
Church of God at 6:30 p. m.
February 14, at M. E. church S. S. at noon.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

Local Items

Special attention of Methodist people is directed to the church notes this week, because of certain very important special notices.

Mr. O. H. Sisson and son Ronald of Central Lake were Charlevoix visitors Friday calling on friends and also attending to business matters.

Mrs. and Mrs. Bert Clark of Gloucester, Mass., arrived here last week Thursday for a visit of about ten days with the former's mother, Mrs. Joe Clark, 204 Nicholls street.

Mrs. Henry O'Brien, daughter Mrs. George Cook, and son Clark (O'Brien of Mackinac Island, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Kenyon Friday and Saturday.

Members of the Republican State Central Committee will meet at Lansing Thursday, February 18, according to a call sent out by Chairman Howard C. Lawrence early this week.

Mrs. Theodore Erickson of Richland spent the week end with Charlevoix friends, returning to Holland Monday.

A meeting of the Lady Maccabees is scheduled for Tuesday evening, February 2nd.

John Porter of East Jordan, was a business visitor here early this week.

E. E. Stroud, for some time past connected with the state highway department, returned home Thursday. His stay here is an indefinite proposition as he is moderately indisposed, but getting on well, but just "off color" physically.

Herman Meyer of Huyne Falls is making regular and frequent visits to Charlevoix this week and probably will for some time to come. His son, a lad of fourteen years was seriously injured while engaged in athletic exercises some weeks ago, is now being treated by Charlevoix doctors, hence the visits.

LADIES' AID TO MEET

The Methodist Ladies' Aid meet with Mrs. Ailah Heeman Tuesday, February 2nd, at 1 o'clock p. m. Part of the program consists of a pot-luck lunch while other features will be the usual order of business.

JOSEPH HOWARD FINDS LOOT UNDER WAREHOUSE

Jo seh Howard, in charge of Captain C. E. Willour's office and warehouse, found a quantity of merchandise buried in the earth under the warehouse early this week, where it had been hidden, probably last night when the warehouse was feloniously entered and a variety of goods in general stolen.

The goods found by Mr. Howard consisted of bath towels, binding tape, underwear, shoes, silk dresses and other articles missing from a Chicago to Boyne City shipment.

No clue was found connecting the depredators with the thieving act by officers and others interested in the case.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HEARS FINE SPEAKER

(Continued from first page.)

ker Kirby, Otto Smith.

Roads—C. E. Gunn, chairman; G. D. Hathaway, R. T. Davis, Dr. R. S. Armstrong, Charles Heise, E. J. Hilner, Dr. Carleton Dean.

Rel igious Activities—Rev. W. W. Hurd, chairman; Rev. W. H. Rauch, Rev. G. R. Parker, Rev. I. T. Marks, Fr. Neubecker.

Advisory—Hr. R. B. Armstrong, chairman; H. A. Craig, Linle Shantz, Jr., Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Frank Taylor, John H. Koch, R. Vernon Clark.

Charity and Welfare—Lee Allaire, chairman; E. J. Kibbe, Ray Faulkner, Harry Hooker, L. E. Benton, F. H. Bohler.

Scenic Beauty and Photography—Harold Jones, chairman; Harker Kinsey, E. A. Young, Lloyd Curtis, K. A. Baker, Bob Miles.

Fish and Game—Taken over by Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club.

Parks and Buildings—W. H. Wallace, chairman; H. C. Hammett, John Curtis, A. T. Jeffery, D. S. Payton, P. J. Moran, Charles Novak, Dr. F. H. Hinsdale, Dr. F. F. McMillan, O. J. Hammond, E. A. Young.

Tourist and Welfare—F. V. Tyler, chairman; Henry Stephan, E. E. Finney.

Yachting—F. D. Campbell, chairman, George Beeman, G. W. Smith, Hamilton Moses, R. P. Johnson, Jr., Ray Hamilton, Jack King, William Fessenden.

REGISTRATION NOTICE!

To the Qualified Electors of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the Michigan Election Law, I the undersigned City Clerk, will, upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of primary election, receive for registration the name of any elector in the city who is not already registered, who may apply to me personally for such registration.

Provided, however, that I can receive no name for registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before the day of election, or the day of primary election.

You are further notified, that I will be in my office February 15th, 1932 from 8 o'clock A. M. until 8 o'clock P. M. Eastern Standard Time that day for the purpose of registering such of you as shall properly apply therefor.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk
By Wilma Novotny, Deputy

4012

NOTICE

Annual meeting of the Masonic Building Association meeting at the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening, Jan. 19th, 1932, 7:30 p. m., all members requested to be present.

Reports, auits and social time at close of meeting.

H. R. Fowler, Secretary.

3713

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal land contract of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, one good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description W½ of SW¼ Section 28, Marion Township. Has 1 acre occupied as school house.

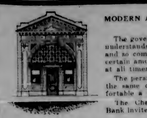
Address for further information,

E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich.

1tf

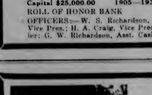
For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at sentinel office. 12tf



MODERN AND COMPLETE BANK
The Reserve
The government and also the state understands the value of a reserve and so compels Banks to maintain a certain amount of reserve or surplus at all times.
The person who is wise will follow the same course and keep as comfortable a balance as possible.
The Charlevoix State Savings Bank invites your checking account.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1931 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.



IMPORTANT
Friendliness springs from a true desire to cooperate; friendship is born of mutual confidence.
Both are important here.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1931
Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. Shaw John J. Rose
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre
This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.
ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

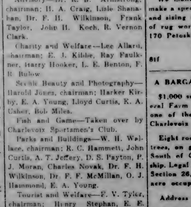
SATURDAY, SUNDAY, JANUARY 30, 31
Extra Special
New York now knows what the greatest motion picture ever made really is! Edw. G. Robinson, America's greatest dramatic star in Louis Weitzenkorn's bombshell drama

"FIVE STAR FINAL"

crashes through to the loftiest heights ever reached by most immortal genius of screen stage . . . Here is a motion picture that will hold you vise-like in your seat. Here you will see drama that for all time to come will be the measure of genuine greatness. Here is drama that will go thundering down the ages as the apex of mortal achievement. Lovely Marion Marsh, the screen's newest star, also in the cast. H. B. Warner, Frances Starr, Anthony Bushell, Geo. Stone.
Extra—Comedy, "Shove Off"
Coming—"CISCO KID."

NOTE:—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.



58 OUT OF 78
ADVERTISEMENTS* OF HOUSES, ROOMS AND GARAGES FOR RENT LISTED TELEPHONE NUMBERS TO CALL . . .

FREQUENT advertisers in newspaper "Want Ad" sections know that prospects usually will not trouble to look up an advertised house or product when they cannot telephone first for information or for an appointment.

Whether or not you have a house, a room, or a garage for rent, the telephone will prove useful daily in many social and business ways. And, in emergencies, it will summon doctor, firemen or police immediately, any hour of the day or night.

Of all the things you buy, probably none gives so much for so little as your telephone.

*In a recent single edition of a leading Michigan newspaper

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing

104 W. Garfield

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1932 Number 41

TREASURE HUNT IS ENJOYED

PARTICIPANTS SPEND VERY ENJOYABLE EVENING.

Chase For Treasure Led Hunters All Over Town; H. Withers and C. H. Sternberg winners

The American Legion treasure hunt, held last Thursday evening, was voted a great success by all who participated in it and many requests have been made of Charles Hamlin, chairman of the committee in charge to repeat the affair at an early date.

As the nature of the hunt was perhaps not as well known to the public as it might have been, and as large a number turned out as had been expected, however, instructions tickets were sold and the treasure split two ways, went to Harold Withers and C. H. Sternberg who were the first to return to the Legion Home with all the clues found in their proper order.

There were no clues in all, very cleverly constructed by Arthur Rainey, who had direct charge of the hunt, and his assistants. The first clue was found at the South Fisherius warehouse, the second at the Charlevoix Lumber Company and from there the hunters were successively to the Colonial Club, Beach Hotel, the water tower, the Martha Ayres house (nurtsar State and Hurlbut), the high school, the court house, the creamery and finally John Knight's summer home on the Belvedere terrace, from whence they were directed back to the Legion hall.

The night was frosty, with the following unseasonably cold and every one thoroughly engaged the exercise and the excitement.

Tuesday evening, thirty-four members were present at the regular weekly meeting of Leslie T. Shantz Post. Considerable business was transacted and names of the members were drawn from the hook by lucky tenth number drawn fell to E. J. Kibbe who received the twodollar "gut" accumulated from the previous two meetings. Mr. Kibbe promptly turned his prize over to apply on the expense fund. Next on followed the meeting Comrade Sam King was appointed Child Welfare tuftee of the Legion by the Commander, at this meeting.

The post has received permission from the school board to remodel the Legion House to some extent. High archways will be cut to either side of the chimney that is centered in the partition between the two main rooms of the building, thus throwing the two into one room, which will be very advantageous for the holding of banquets, dances and other affairs where a large space for dancing or ple are to be accommodated. The present kitchen will also be remodeled. A coal and electric stove for the kitchen will be installed. This was the gift of E. E. Cross and the post wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation.

It was announced at Tuesday evening meeting that the coming annual Firemen's Ball will be held under the joint auspices of the firemen and the Legion bugle and drum corps. A part of the proceeds will be decided to the purchase of uniforms for the corps, who must make a good showing at Kalamazoo next August.

Four new bugles will be purchased for the use of the buglemers class recently formed by Leslie T. Shantz post. Instructor. If more want to join this section of the corps they will be very welcome.

The post, through its executive committee, took a unique step recently, in petitioning the Legion State Commander of the Legion at Detroit to urge upon the members of every Michigan post and county unit of the auxiliary to interest themselves and as organizations to their respective senators and congressmen in opposing the efforts to keep the United States out of the present fracas in the far east and to take steps to avoid the depression generally throughout the United States, among the citizenry—W. Wallace, chairman; H. C. Hammett, John Curtis, A. T. Jeffery, D. S. Payton, P. J. Moran, Charles Novak, Dr. F. H. Hinsdale, Dr. F. F. McMillan, O. J. Hammond, E. A. Young.

Tourist and Welfare—F. V. Tyler, chairman; Henry Stephan, E. E.

EVELINE FARMER DIES BY SUICIDE

ROBERT WILSON USES SHOTGUN BRINGING INSTANT DEATH

Was Despondent Over Death of Wife And Illness of Daughter; 28 Years of Age

Despondency over the death of his wife two years ago and the illness of his daughter, now in a sanatorium for tuberculinic patients, coupled with his own physical condition is given as reasons why Robert Wilson, a farmer 28 years of age and long time resident of Evelin township took his life Wednesday afternoon.

That the unfortunate young man has been despondent for some time past has been known by family members and that he had some time ago declared his intention to finish it all has been understood, though possibly not taken seriously by friends, was a current neighborhood rumor.

Wednesday afternoon the young man stated that he was going out hunting and immediately thereafter took his shot gun and left the house ostensibly to take a game shooting trip in nearby territory.

An hour or two later family members were alarmed when they discovered that Roberts hunting dog was out with him Search was immediately made and shortly afterward the lifeless body was found in a barn on the MacPherson farm nearby, known as Craig Dho place, a summer home property located on the south side of Lake Charlevoix. By his side was the shotgun used in committing the rash act.

Prosecuting Attorney Rollie L. Lewis, Coroners McMillan and Stackus were notified of the tragedy, a jury summoned, the body examined and evidence taken relative to the circumstances surrounding the case.

Up to a late hour last night the findings of the jury had not been announced.

REGULAR COMMUNICATION

Officers and members are scheduled to hold a regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M. at the Masonic Temple Friday evening, February 9th. Local members requested to be in attendance. Visitors always welcome.

CHARLEVOIX CO. CLUB BOY WINS STATE AWARD

Word has been recently received that Robert Tainter, Boyn City, was awarded second place in the entire state in the 1931 Farm Bureau 4-H Club project. The contest is sponsored by The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wis. Fellow Pen Knicker-bocker Pen Co. and Parker Duofold Fountain Pen.

In competing for these prizes it was necessary to send a complete account of the business of the farm in a regular farm account book for a period of not less than eight months. Robert has been keeping farm records for three years in our regular farm account project and is a real veteran.

Congratulations Robert. Keep up the good work.

'STEPPING SISTERS' HAS NEW SONG HITS

"Look, Here Comes a Rainbow," a fox trot composed by James Hanley is a feature of the musical numbers introduced in "Stepping Sisters" the Fox comedy, coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. It has already reached the proportions of a nation-wide hit. Several other catchy numbers are introduced during the action of this laughsome and lovesome scenic comedy. The cast includes such well known stars as Louise Dresser, Minna Gombell, Sally Eilers, Howland, William Collier, Sr., Howard Phillips, Ferdinand Munier, Stanley Smith and Barbara Weeks.

The picture was directed by Seymour Felix.

Something of a blizzard of small proportions, made up weather conditions for Saturday and Sunday. This was accompanied by a slight drop of temperature and a light fall of snow. West and southwest winds prevailed at the time, all of which made for a small change in local weather conditions.

Captain Frank Partridge was called to Whitehall Saturday to attend the funeral service of his brother William Partridge.

MEN'S CLUB TO RECONVENE SOON

FOR PURPOSE OF ENJOYING SOCIAL HOUR TOGETHER

For over five years, during the mid-winter months, a group of the men of the city have met in one of the public dining rooms of the city, had a hot supper and social hour, and some smoke making. Then, and other "problems" were not taken up, there was no opposition and the Association of Commerce, but a purely social—and gastronomic affair, which "man and wife" with "not a woman in sight."

At the suggestion of Mr. North, a member of the former officers met recently at the home of Mr. Frank Bird and arranged for a "try-out" meeting This would give opportunity for the men to express themselves as to desire to continue, and also arrange for the Father and Son Banquet on Washington's birthday. All seemed to think that this year, if all goes the Washington Banquet should be held up to youth, and the banquet not omitted. For the landlady Mrs. Pellow from the Standard restaurant. He is a very strong speaker, from the younger set.

The next regular meeting will be held in the dining room of the Methodist church, Monday evening, Feb. 8th. Monday night supper at 6:30 thirty. The pastor of the church will give the opening speech, and Rev. G. R. Parker has been secured to speak from the topic, "Pounding the Gold."

Both of these gentlemen are prominent in the Lions Club. There are fifty members, let all men take notice, and turnout. The meeting will not be held late.

MARION CENTER NOTES

Mr. Vern McGhan, who has been confined to his bed for several days with flu and tonsilitis is still unable to be about his usual work.

Mrs. Drake and daughter of Eastport called on Mrs. Drake's brother, Mr. Charlie Herrington, Sunday.

There were very few of the members of Marion Center Grange attended Pansonia at Barnard Saturday night. Reports say the storm. Those who did enjoyed the program in the evening very much. There were one hundred and fifteen present, Trenton, Maple Grove, and Marion Center were represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison spent Thursday and Friday with Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Meggison.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd attended the funeral last Thursday at Alba of Mrs. Blake's sister who died in Detroit after an illness of over six months.

Miss Vira Casey, commercial teacher at Mancelona, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Seule from Friday over the week end.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

RECENT CALICO TEA FINE SOCIAL EVENT

A fine social event was the recent Calico Tea, at the Methodist church, given by the missionary society in commemoration of the sixtieth anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, started at that time by eight women in Boston, and now the largest woman's organization in the world.

Mrs. Wm. Poole was honorary hostess, and the tea was poured by Mesdames Edwards, Arnold, Meggison and Beeman. Miss French sang two beautiful solos. There also was music by Miss Belding, and a poem by Miss Bodish. A very clever play, "A Behalf Missionary Woman", was acted by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, as sixgeon, Mrs. Hansen, as nurse, and Mrs. James Simmons as patient. After sawing and hacking an amazing amount of very irreligious matter was removed from the patient, all very funny and clever.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. ZONA NYMAN

Funeral services was held Wednesday forenoon at St. Mary's Church for Mrs. Zona Maud Nyman, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams, with whom she has made her home in recent years, with Fr. Neubecker officiating at the service.

The subject of this sketch was born at Vanderbilt, September 30, 1890 and soon thereafter came to Charlevoix with her parents, and where she was educated, her higher education being from the Charlevoix High School.

Her last illness covered a considerable period of time. For the past seven weeks her condition was critical. At times there was a perceptible improvement, each of which was of short duration and each followed by lower vitality until the end came Monday forenoon.

Besides the serious condition of her daughter, Mrs. Adams who was in Florida for the winter, returned to Charlevoix six weeks ago and Mr. Adams returned a few days later both of whom were with her constantly from their arrival until her passing She is survived by one daughter, Mary June Nyman, 13 years old, Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams, two sisters, Mrs. Ethel and Mary and one brother, Prescott Adams.

A large number of Petoskey friends attended the last service as also did the Misses Mary and Lena O'Leary of Detroit and many local friends.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS ARE QUESTIONED HERE

Due to alleged irregularities in official work Frank Schutz, highway commissioner and Charles Schrader, Justice of the Peace, in Wilson township were brought to Charlevoix on Tuesday by the sheriff on examination of the two men and delving into their activities by Prosecuting Attorney Lewis, the two were perfmitted to return to their homes released on their own recognizance, after they agreed to resign their official positions and make good any financial loss to the township due to their activities, this to be determined by an examination of their work by an accountant who will make a complete checkup of the township books and activities of the two officials.

The financial discrepancy is of minor importance while the charge is made that some of the acts of the offending officers are of a serious nature.

NEW MANAGER FOR CO-OPERATIVE ASS'N

Richard W. Paddock according to present arrangements will succeed Clarence Meggison as manager of the Charlevoix Cooperative Association upon the retirement of the latter from the managerial position to assume his new duties as Charlevoix's postmaster in the near future.

The selection of Mr. Paddock as manager assures the association and patrons that the business will be conducted in a most satisfactory manner along lines already established and in the interest of agriculturists generally. Mr. Paddock is a practical agriculturist, thoroughly informed on the needs and desires of his co-workers in the farming industry which combined with his business ability and knowledge of cooperative dealings therefore makes for a superior helper in the local organization.

Mr. Al Wards of East Jordan was a business visitor here Tuesday.

Mrs. B. K. Wood leaves for Duluth today, where she will visit friends and relatives for a short time.

FORMER JUDGE CORRELL DIES

NEWS COMES TO FRIENDS WEDNESDAY FORENOON

Dies In Norfolk, Virginia, Where He Was Living With His Daughter, Mrs. A. Belding

The passing of former probate judge of this county at Norfolk, Virginia, where he was living with his daughter, Mrs Ashley Belding was announced in Charlevoix Wednesday forenoon when a message came to friends here carrying the news of his death.

Mr. Correll was born in Ohio, July 17th, 1840. He received his early education in rural schools, later in a high school, finally entering Oberlin College, from which he graduated. Following which he pursued the study of law and was admitted to general practice in his native state.

In the early eighties he located in Charlevoix County, Melrose township where he engaged in farming and timber inquiry and at the same time engaged in some local practice. He was actively engaged in personal business affairs for a long term of years, always finding time to interest himself in public civic affairs and for some years represented his township as a member of the Board of Supervisors and later for eighteen years the Honorable Judge of Probate of Charlevoix County during which he gave the office conscientious service, conducting the affairs with exceptional precision in which his legal mind performed and made for unusual success and a high degree of satisfaction to parties transacting business with his court.

In failing health he resigned his position about two years ago and retired, the vacancy being filled by the appointment of Attorney Erwan A. Rouggeggter, the present Judge of Probate.

He is survived by the daughter above mentioned, Mrs. Belding at whose home he passed away also by Mrs. Herman Burns of Oxford and a son Lee F. Correll of Long Island.

The body will be taken to Petoskey for interment following a funeral service at Norfolk. A short service will also be held in the Petoskey Saturday when interment is made.

STATE DECIDES ON CONTINUED USE OF STEEL PLATES

Because of the difference in the cost between copper and steel, the department does not feel justified in using copper for the 1932 license plates, therefore making it necessary to continue with the 24 gauge steel material. Plates for 1931 and 1932 cost the department the per set but the department is in hopes to collect this cost from 1932 plates to the per set.

Estimated from various copper companies show that copper plates would cost from 17c to 19c per set. The additional cost of copper for the 1,350,000 sets which will be needed for 1932 is too great to be disregarded, even though the department desires to aid Michigan copper mines.

While the department has shown a decided preference for a 1932 plate with a white background and black numerals, final decision is not to be made until after ranking police officials in several Michigan cities have been consulted. The order for the 1932 plates will be placed in about 90 days.

NIGHT SCHOOL SEEMS TO BE VERY POPULAR

Judging from the attendance and the comment prevalent the evening school classes conducted by the faculty of the public schools are considered very interesting.

Rumor has it that there are some interesting sessions and the attendance in some of the classes far exceeded the fondest expectations of the sponsors.

These classes continue on Monday and Tuesday night of next week, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church will meet with Mrs. Louise Eiston on Wednesday afternoon, February 17. Mrs. Rife will conduct the devotional service. This will be followed by a historical review of China by Mrs. P. D. Campbell.

Because of International Conditions at this time, this subject will be very interesting.

D. D. TIBBITS HONORED AT POTATO ASS'N MEET

At the recent 7th O'Michigan Potato Show Association Annual Meeting held at Gaylord, Charlevoix was again highly recognized by having one of its leading fruit growers elected to the office of Vice-President for the 1932 Show.

D. D. Tibbits has been one of the leading apple exhibitors of the Show the last four years. He has to his credit many sweepstakes awards in plates and tests, as well as having won the best single apple award twice.

J. H. Bivins, County Agent of Alpena County was elected Secretary, succeeding H. C. McClumpha who had served two years in this capacity. A. E. Schubert of Petoskey is the new transport manager and Dale Nichols of Pellston the new Frost director.

From the above list voters can select their candidates for the office mentioned. Mr. Hamilton for City Clerk, Mrs. Rife for City Treasurer, Mr. Zeitler for Park Commissioner, and the two constables are additional opportune to all other positions except that of Supervisor Craig in the First Ward, a position will be waged for supremacy.

Mayor Bergeon is opposed by Mr. Cowan.

Alderman Webster by Mr. Bergeon

Alderman Fessenden by Mr. Sessions.

Alderman Hooker by Mr. O'Neill.

Supervisor Partridge by Mr. Hinsdale.

Supervisor Alcock by Mr. Parmelee.

Each of the candidates is a well known citizen, long time residents and hold the respect of Charlevoix citizens generally hence there is a friendly feeling between opposing candidates, which let us hope will continue.

I. O. O. F. TAKE LEAD IN CRIBBAGE CONTEST

I. O. O. F. 1 defeated the A. F. & A. M. cribbage players were defeated by I. O. O. F. players in their session held Monday night, finishing the game with 570 points as their lead in the session of play and 20 points ahead in the series of games to date.

The total score for the evening's play was I. O. O. F., 21,768 points, F. & A. M. 21,498. High point man for the four games also was captured by an I. O. O. F. player, Bob Mitchell who scored 964 points

The Vale of Aragon

By Fred McLaughlin

Author of "The Blade of Picardy"

Copyright by Bobbs Merrill Co. WNU Service

CHAPTER X—Continued

—15—

"I haven't forgot it, and the general shall know. Channel before shall hear how he received that letter!"

I found arthur the first, in the pavilion of command, and given me his position then looking of that author remain affair of Marwan myself each the case of the Liberator. Was he took could he hope to gain anything in this bombing for work? would Imperial Egypt's rule for that city and of Dominion? that end with or Morocco? I did not think so. For the Liberator was a symbol of England's power and prestige in a number of countries.

"It means a mistake," said Napoleon to a general, "and a mistake should have been made and not this other or one from settlement from Toulon."

"Oui, mon, mon, mon

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter

OH, YEAH?

According to Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, as quoted in the New York Times recently, if the Senate were to vote unanimously to the near future to place the United States in the World Court it would create a "splendid atmosphere" for the forthcoming disarmament conference at Geneva.

"As long as we are not a member of the court," he is quoted as saying, "other nations are suspicious of how serious the United States is in its world peace program."

All of which, of course, is use the language of the streets, comes pretty near being a lot of bunk. What the nations of Europe are suspicious of is not of the United States but of each other. They well realize that 3,000 miles of Atlantic Ocean separate the United States from Europe and they know too that the American people have decisively decided in their minds that they want no more mixing in European affairs and especially in European wars.

The suspicion of the European nations which will assemble at Geneva will be directed not against us but against each other. Italy is suspicious of France and of Jugo-Slavia. France is suspicious of Germany. Germany is suspicious of France, Poland is suspicious of Germany and the Bohemians are suspicious of Hungary. All of them together are suspicious of Russia and rightfully so.

The entry of the United States into the picture would change it not at all. The only possible effect would be to embroil us to the suspicions and the jealousies of European politics. At present France and her satellites control the League and the League court. Our entrance would not change the picture, unless we were willing to take a definite stand politically and to pledge our resources and our army and navy if need be either to perpetuate the Parisian hegemony in Europe or to try to help overturn it.

The statement that the nations of Europe are suspicious of our sincerity for peace because we do not join their family quarrels is too silly to require answer.

Ten years ago Uncle Sam abundantly proved his desire for peace by voluntarily relinquishing an assured naval supremacy in the interests of disarmament. Other nations showed their appreciation by hastening to outstrip us in the matter of naval building, and they have been at it ever since.

Every step the United States had taken since the signing of the armistice has been in the interest of world peace. How many such steps have been taken by any European nation? The United States sincerely believes in peace, and the people are every day coming to believe more and more that the way for Uncle Sam to keep the peace is to stay at home and attend to his own business.

STILL SAVING THE OIL INDUSTRY

Congress is busier than Alfalfa Bill in efforts to prevent the closing of American oil wells. The Petroleum Institute of New York and Wall Street has furnished considerable free advice to the country about the conservation of our oil resources. When Charles Evans Hughes was practicing law they engaged him as their attorney to tell Federal officials and special boards what to do about the tremendous waste of petroleum.

The Department of the Interior has been especially concerned about all production and waste and that branch of the Government has done a great deal in past years to prevent overproduction.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America is asking Congress to place a tax of two cents a gallon on imported oil and crude oil, and four cents a gallon on imported gasoline and lubricating oil. The independents declare that the situation is quite hopeless unless something is done to equalize the cost of imported and domestic products.

The House Committee on Ways and Means was informed by President Wirt Franklin of the independents, that the suggested tax would yield $102,000,000 of revenue and at the same time save the great domestic industry.

Increasing imports of oil and gasoline have largely nullified the effects of curtailment of domestic production, Mr. Franklin declared. The three great importing concerns, the Standard Oil group, the Gulf Oil Company, and the Shell Oil Company, he said, are taking advantage of the demoralization created by their imports to buy up at "sheriff's sales" and otherwise, at bargain prices, the independent oil properties and are building up a great monopoly.

WILL CONGRESS MEASURE UP

It is doubtful if any United States Congress, in a generation, has faced a greater responsibility than the present one.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

PATHFINDER OF THE SEAS

From Fredericksburg, Virginia, there also went out to the ends of the earth a Pathfinder of the Seas to chart the winds and the waves, to establish the first weather bureau in the world, to become the first superintendent of the US Naval Observatory and to whom navigation owes a debt beyond computation - Matthew Fontaine Maury. Espousing the Southern Cause, this home was his haven of safety during Civil War Days.

It has assembled at a time when every country in the world is puzzled and despairing. Pressing economic and social issues abound on every side. Unemployment, various plans for stabilizing industry with governmental aid, farm relief, taxation—these and other issues are engaging the public mind and we must look to Congress for action.

The last issue, taxation, is possibly the greatest of all. It is intimately related to others. Employment can only result from industrial activity and expansion—and nothing can do more to frighten industry and prevent the investment of capital, than excessive taxation.

Those who propose plans for helping the distressed at the expense of the taxpayer may have sentiment on their side. But many of the relief plans they propose would do the unemployed more harm than good, in the long run. There is a limit even to the spending power of government—a point beyond which the taxpayer can no longer produce revenue. When this point is reached, industrial stagnation inevitably results—and severe unemployment, instead of being a temporary evil, becomes a permanent one.

The Congress should do everything possible to reduce the cost of government. It should scrutinize with the utmost care any project whatever that requires public funds. It should observe the condition of such countries as England with its dole and Germany with its vast paternalism, and not be caught in the same net.

THE ROAD TO ACCIDENT PREVENTION

At the end of 1931 we look backward on an automobile accident record of 35,000 fatalities and resolve to do better in 1932.

No problem is more within the control of the individual than that of traffic fatalities and injuries. It is within the power of each of us to become a competent, responsible, and careful driver. Nine out of ten drivers merit that classification now. It is the one out of ten who causes the accidents—and he is the one who refuses to heed accident prevention messages.

It is a tragic thing that carelessly driven automobiles can cause more deaths than a great war. Tremendous advances have been made in automobile construction, from the standpoint of speed, of power and of mechanical safety. But advances in the standard of driving have lagged behind. We have built better cars—but we have not developed better drivers to operate them.

Highway safety is made up of many little factors—none of which cost anything. If we resolve to abide by the laws, to lose a minute rather than gain one at the risk of our lives and others', to remember the unwritten rules of courtesy and carefulness, there will not be 35,000 automobile deaths annually—and perhaps there will not be even 3500. Such progress may be too much to hope for in a single year—but every operator of an automobile should remember that it is possible and act accordingly.

500 PER CENT JUMP IN FEDERAL TAXES

In a recent address, United States Senator Felix Herbert of Rhode Island, pointed out that a few years ago a tremendous hue and cry was heard because the cost of the federal government had reached $1,000,000,000 a year. Yet, at the last session of Congress, appropriations made totaled more than four billion dollars. In the 31 years between 1900 and the present, the per capita cost of the federal government increased from $6.81 to $32.96—about 500 per cent.

"With a never ending extension of the activities of government into other fields than those originally contemplated by the founders," said Senator Herbert, "these increased costs are inevitable. Through the efforts of organized minorities, we are constantly broadening the scope of our operations, and naturally increasing our costs."

In other words, those groups and cliques which campaigned so strenuously and successfully for government operation of this and government supervision of that, are now paying the piper along with the rest of us who were willing to let well enough alone in the beginning. The band of the bureaucrat is said to throttle initiative—and it likewise picks the public pocket-book with neatness and dispatch. Nothing is more expensive, or more detrimental to progress than bureaucracy. Let us remember that when we go to the polls.

FARM COOPERATIVES VITAL

In a recent address Charles S. Wilson, a member of the Federal Farm Board, emphasized the fact that to get benefits from farm relief, the individual producer must first belong to a cooperative association of some kind. The overwhelming surpluses of farm products that have flooded the market and knocked the bottom out of price levels, must be overcome by unified action in all phases of production and sales. Mr. Wilson commented favorably on several cooperative organizations, such as the pioneer Dairymen's League Association of New York, which have done good work for their members.

Those farmers who believe that the government, by passing a bill, can immediately bring unprecedented prosperity to agriculture, should pay attention to what Mr. Wilson—in company with many other authorities, public and private —has said. No artificial cure can permanently raise farm prices and establish the industry on a sound foundation. No politician can repeal the law of supply and demand. Government may help, it is true—but the fundamental need is for cooperation among farmers themselves.

When January winds are blowing cold just remember that baseball and green onion season are just around the corner.

It is gratifying to note that automobile manufacturers are paying considerable attention to safety in their new models. At the New York

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

It has been a favorite method of attack by the professional pacifist, who would disarm the United States in what he claims is the interest of world peace, to charge that those sound Americans who do not agree with him are favorable to war and are seeking to make the United States a militaristic nation. Nothing could be further from the truth, and it is coming to be pretty generally recognized that the real sound, constructive pacifist, who would keep Uncle Sam at peace with the world is the man or woman who believes in adequate preparedness for defense. The assertion of George Washington that the best way to assure peace is to be prepared for attack was never truer than today.

An illustration of the soundness of the statement that the real agent of peace is the citizen who believes in adequate defense is found in a recent stirring address delivered before a notable audience under the auspices of the Cameron Club at Alexandria, Virginia, by Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, one of the statesmen of our upper national legislative body who can always be found on the side of sound, constructive nationalism.

Senator Robinson presented his audience with some striking statistics on the terrible losses which came to America because of the World War. In addition to the loss of life in battle and the expenditure of billions of dollars the Senator stated that at this time, thirteen years after the signing of the armistice, we have not yet reached the peak of disability, so terrific is war in the modern sense. Sixty thousand Americans he declared, die today, awaiting the Judgment Day on foreign soil, and there are sixty-three veterans' hospitals, in nearly every state in the Union, with 150,000 beds all occupied, and with huge waiting lists in addition. This, he added, does not begin to tell the story of human sacrifice and suffering, while on the material side there is depression and a money loss which will finally mount to a hundred billion dollars.

All of which ought to indicate that Senator Robinson, himself an ex-service man, is not a militarist in any sense of the word. Yet, he declared in the same address, while we do not want war, and recognize it as a terrible thing, the way to avoid such suffering in the future is to be prepared to defend our land against it, so that other nations will hesitate to attack us. International agreements, when the crisis comes, are futile things as the recent events in Manchuria well prove to us.

No sane person in the United States wants war or desires that our country engage in war. Yet every sane person who studies the world situation realizes that, as the richest nation in the world, if we destroy our defensive armament, and depend on international agreements entirely, we will only invite attack, attack, at the first opportunity, from some nation which does not place its faith in scraps of paper. Equitable reduction of armament by world-wide accord, is of course much to be desired, although not to be confidently expected at any time in the near future. But to advocate that Uncle Sam sink his navy, abandon his army and abolish military training as a pacific example to the rest of the world is, charitably speaking, but to show one's asininity, especially in the present state of world feeling.

We were not prepared to defend ourselves at the beginning of the World War. Had we been adequately prepared it is possible that some of the scenes declared, the loss which Senator Robinson so graphically described, might have been avoided. And there is today, as Senator Robinson recognized, no sane argument against adequate preparedness for defense. The men and women who advocate such preparedness are the real constructive pacifists of America.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By George B. Lockwood

Members of the House of Representatives went gunning at a recent session for Representative Sol Bloom's plan of "advertising Washington," as director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. They declared that Washington was so well known that he did not need advertising. Every school child in America, they declared, knew all about Washington.

Then Representative Huddleston, of Alabama, while denying the need of advertising Washington, proceeded to demonstrate that there is still need of such publicity and that it might well start with the member from Alabama.

The Revolutionary War would have been won, Congressman Huddleston said, "Washington or no Washington." If Mr. Huddleston knew his Washington he would not with confidence make such an assertion. The evidence is all the other way. The cause more than once hung by a thread, and only the great weight of Washington's leadership prevented the collapse of the struggle.

Washington was called to the command of the American armies by the Continental Congress only because he seemed to be the one man for the hour. Early in the trouble between England and the colonies, he had offered to raise a Virginia regiment at his own expense and march it to the defense of Boston. From a military standpoint he was the chief man of the colonies: he was the one man in whose abilities both the northern and southern colonies had confidence. He had displayed his generalship at Braddock's defeat, during French and Indian war, saving the army of British regulars and colonials from destruction. Indeed it was at that time that the colonists first gained confidence that they could meet the red-coats in battle. They saw them try European tactics on the frontier, and knew that Americans were a match for the Britons on their home territory.

Washington alone could have commanded the confidence of the army and of the Continental Congress during years of defeat and discouragement. The fact that he persisted in the face of such obstacles gave confidence to the colonists in dark periods like those of Valley Forge. His policy of striking blows and then retreating alone kept an American army in the field. When he descended on Trenton, captured the Hessian army and then got away through his brilliant coup at Princeton, the world marveled at the genius of this man who could fight the greatest military power in Christendom "on a shoestring." It was after Princeton that Frederick the Great sent Washington a sword inscribed: "From the oldest general of the Old World to the greatest general of the new."

And even the prestige of

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

L. D. Dee has leased the new Chisholm building and will move to that place with his grocery business March 1st!

Old settlers agree on the proposition that our winters have grown more moderate in temperature with less snow in the years of their knowledge of northern Michigan. Many winters in the early days we could not see into the show windows on the opposite side of the street, for the accumulation of snow from the sidewalks, and the mercury many times went to 35 below zero. These days if we get ten below zero, we consider it pretty cold, and thus far this winter four below zero is the coldest on record, while the snow is not over two feet deep on the level.

You Charlevoix fellows down in Florida, sitting under the magnolias or catching sea-bass and watching the swell of the gulf stream at your feet, need not consider that you have all the pleasures of life. We who remain at home love to hear the wintry blasts from old Lake Michigan, we love to watch the goose feathers fill the air and pile up on the sidewalk; we love the crisp morning zero air, we love to hear the sleigh bells and the merry howl of the coasters, we love the exhilarating exercise that hovers around a snow-shovel. Oh, yes, we love all these (in your mind.) But we have this to consider in favor of this winter at least the big end of it began about Feb 1st. We are "on the peak of Mount Pisgah, looking down the other side.

The Charlevoix County Masonic Benefit Association was practically organized at the office of W. H. McCartney last evening. The election of officers will occur at the same place next Wednesday evening, and the details of further procedure arranged. The Association will be in no sense an insurance company per se, and the unofficial talk is to limit the death benefit to $100. In other words, it is designed to assure to the widow the funeral expenses of the deceased member. Of course, the membership will be confined to Masons, and it is hoped that other lodges in this county will join in the movement. The project is one that appeals to not only the fraternal sentiment of every Mason, but also to his good business sense. The membership fee will be $1.50 and death assessments $1.00 with probably annual dues of 50 cents. We hope that the fraternity will respond next Wednesday evening.

About everybody knows that Captain Pete Campbell holds unlimited master's papers, but very few know that he holds chief engineer's papers for vessels of 750 tons. Capt. Pete knows both ends of a steamboat.

The logging operation of the Charlevoix Lumber Co., this winter includes what is a surprise even to a hatliter. The company owns a tract of pine up in Marion which has been preserved for many years as good timber in the bank. This winter they are making a hole in it, and some very fine loads come down every day. One load Saturday constituted an "event". It was announced by foremongers, and when it reached Bridge street about five o'clock a crowd was waiting for it much as the small boy greets a circus. It was composed of ten logs, with Ed. O'Neill as driver. The load contained 5,127 feet of absolutely faultless lumber. It is unnecessary to state that none of this pine cut will leave Charlevoix. It will be cut and kiln-dried for factory purposes.

Forty Years Ago

J. W. Kirby had 25,000 fall to him yesterday—cut was a 11 1-2 pound boy.

We have it from reliable authority that train service will be put on the Charlevoix-Petoskey line at the road as soon in the spring as possible.

Messrs. Burns and Cameron of this place, have been awarded the contract for the construction of the Charlevoix freight depot. The structure will be 24x80, with a six foot platform on the track side, and a sixteen foot platform on the other three sides. It is probable that the building will be used for the passenger depot for a short time in the spring, for service on the Petoskey end.

F. P. Myers of Boyne Falls, says that he believes he is the only man living who has suffered with la grippe three weeks and gained in flesh every day.

Fifty Years Ago

The schooner Fleetwing, which took a cargo of lime to Harbor Springs last week found herself frozen in, and was compelled to lay up.

Brother Smith, of the Charlevoix Sentinel, made the Record a friendly call on Friday last. The Sentinel is the oldest newspaper, outside of Traverse City, published in northern Michigan, and it is growing better and better every issue.—Petoskey Record.

A party of Charlevoix ladies took a sleigh-ride excursion to Petoskey Saturday, returning in the evening. The party embraced the Misses Buttars, Misses Lizzie Bell, Lizzie Aldrich, Mary Cooper, Etta Edwards, Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. E. H. Green, Mrs. Little and Mrs. Daniels.

Sixty Years Ago

RIVER IMPROVEMENT

The Mass Meeting on the 27th, in attendance, enthusiasm, unity, good feeling and determination of purpose, far surpassed the expectation of all! The school house was crowded to overflowing and everything present evidently came with a firm determination to do all in his power to carry out the scheme which is to bring us nearer to the active world. As we predicted the people have become wide awake to the object in view, and from experience have learned that dissention will not answer—that unity, energy and determination are essential to success! The people's united soul is in the work and it must and will be carried to its consummation! Our faith in the public spirit of the people of this county has gone up one hundred per cent. We are now as confident of our immediate success as we are of our existance. The all-powerful arm of the people is bared for work, and what can follow but success? Nothing can impede the work but unfaithfulness to our obligations; but the covenant is one of honor, and we have no fears but that at least seven-eighths, if not all of the sum subscribed will be realized.

After the formal organization of the meeting by the appointment of Robert Miller as Chairman and Willard A. Smith as secretary, Hon. John S. Dixon took the floor. He had a plan and accompanying estimate was submitted by Mr. Morgan. He proposed to project a pier 240 feet into the lake on the north side of the channel, the same to be composed of six cribs each 40 feet in length and 16 feet in width. As but very little drift is experienced from the south side, a pier of sufficient length to keep the channel straight is all that is deemed necessary. His estimate, which only includes one pier, sums up as follows:

Total cost of timber	$370.56
Framing and assembling	370.56
Cost of stone	$414.00
Total	$1,155.12

Dredging was not considered. Mr. Riser presented a plan of the direction which the piers should take. He claimed that the prevailing heavy winds were from the northwest, and, inasmuch as the channel was naturally protected from the west and south-

(Continued on last page.)

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

Washington did not prevent plotting against him which although successful, A weaker man would have been easily unhorsed. The fact that he was serving without pay helped protect him from the suspicion of self interest. There grew on the colonists the comprehension of Washington's character as the war wore on. There was no surprise in the end of the war when in view of the chaotic conditions of the country his army associates urged him to accept a crown he indignantly repelled the suggestion, or when, peace concluded, he returned his sword to Congress at Annapolis with the declaration that he was retiring forever from public life to return to the tranquility of Mount Vernon.

It is possible, but improbable, that without Washington the Revolutionary War could have been won. Confidence in Washington made possible the diplomatic achievements of Franklin in Europe, which encouraged aid to the colonists. Even during his lifetime Washington became in Europe a legendary figure.

George Washington cannot be too much "advertised." The facts about his achievements cannot be too well known; his ideals and principals, still essential to the perpetuity of the nation, cannot become too familiar; his example cannot be too widely commended to Americans young and old. Here was a military genius who never put the character of the soldier above that of the citizen; a leader who did not esteem the power which came to him, for power's sake, but only as a means of serving his country faithfully; a statesman whose broad vision embraced not merely the present, but the far future of his country, and left to generations yet unborn the priceless legacy of his still sage counsel. Washington was the symbol of the most heroic, the most romantic, the most unselfish fight for human liberty ever waged.

A CENTURY AGO

One hundred years ago, on February 22, 1932, to be exact, at a dinner given in Washington to celebrate the centenial birthday of the First President, the principal address was delivered by the eloquent Daniel Webster. In the current issue the National Republic points out the fact that in this address Mr. Webster touched on phases of Washington's policy which are as sound today as they were in 1832 and in the closing part of the previous century when President Washington developed them. The magazine quotes Mr. Webster's remarks on President Washington's foreign policy in part as follows:

"The maxims upon which Washington conducted our foreign relations were few and simple. The first was an entire and indisputable impartiality towards foreign states. He adhered to this rule of public conduct, against very strong inducements to depart from it, and when the popularity of the moment seemed to favor such a departure. In the next place, he maintained true dignity and unsullied honor in all communications with foreign states. It was among the high duties devolved upon him, to introduce our new government into the circle of civilized states and a greater degree of respect and veneration.

"He regarded other nations only as they stood in political relations to us. With their internal affairs, their political parties and dissentions, he scrupulously abstained from all interference; and, on the other hand, he repelled with spirit all such interference by others with us or our concerns. His sternest rebuke, the most indignant measure of his whole administration, was aimed against such an attempted interference. He felt it as an attempt to wound the national honor, and resented it accordingly.

"The reiterated admonitions in his Farewell Address show his deep fears that foreign influence would insinuate itself into our councils through the channels of domestic dissention, and obtain a sympathy with our own temporary parties. Against all such dangers, he most earnestly entreats the country to guard itself. He appeals to its patriotism, to its self-respect, to its own honor, to every consideration connected with its welfare and happiness, to resist, at the very beginning, all tendencies towards such connection of foreign interests with our own affairs. With a tone of earnestness nowhere else found, even in his last affectionate farewell advice to his countrymen, he says, 'Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence (I conjure you to believe me, fellow-citizens) the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove, that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government.'

"Lastly, on the subject of foreign relations, Washington never forgot that we had interests peculiar to ourselves. The primary political concerns of Europe, he saw, did not affect us. We had nothing to do with her balance of power, her family compacts, or her successions to thrones. We were naturally placed in a condition favorable to neutrality during European wars, and to the enjoyment of all the great advantages of that relation. 'Why then,' he asks us, 'why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, be interweaving our destiny with that of any art of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, or caprice?'"

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

INSURANCE

Gerald W. Richardson

CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION — Probate of Will.
State of Michigan.
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.
At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 29th day of January, A. D. 1932.
Present, Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.
In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased.
Harriet Mary Block, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.
It is ordered, That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.
It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.
Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.
4113.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE
Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Soulliu to the undersigned, under date of August 18th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 86 of Mortgage on page 254 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Tax thereon having been paid as appears by enforcement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.
Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mi. Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County) on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $35.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70
Dated December 19th, 1931.
H. W. Widdifield, Mortgagee.
Charlevoix, Mich.
E. A. Ruegsegger,
Atty. for Mortgagee,
Address Charlevoix, Mich 3812

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE—
State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.
Seth C. Gerken, Plaintiff vs.
Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.
In pursuance and by virtue of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, said suit having been filed to foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of said decree for principal and interest the sum of $812.67 and a further sum of $75.00 costs by plaintiff, making a total of $887.67 with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.
Notice is hereby given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court house being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th, March, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the land and premises hereinafter described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree, together with principal interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale.
The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One (1) and Lot Number Two (2) of Upright and Harbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix county, Michigan.
Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.
DAVID VAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale. Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.
LISLE SHANAHAN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Business address, 108 Clinton St.
Charlevoix, Mich. 4017

DR. JOSEF E. WITTERS
Physician - Surgeon
OFFICES OVER LEVINSONS
9-12 A. M. 2-6 P. M.
Phone 653

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOCART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

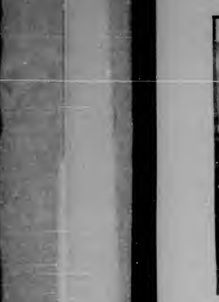
DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 784
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

From Elevator Job to Baronetcy



Sir Reginald Wagner, until recently an elevator operator in a hotel at Watertown, Conn., has been created a baronet. He will go to London from New York, but take their places among the titled ones of Great Britain. He succeeds his brother in the baronetcy, who died in 1931. Speaking tours arranged for Lady Wagner, formerly prominent in Little Women, will enable her now to accompany her husband to England and assume the title.

POTPOURRI

Catching Enemy

Because his memory may soon be called upon to locate for the enemy a dead flyer, Lieut. Ralph Hall is equipped and trained in the use of "dog tags" by the same method as pets. Instead of a collar, the tongue of the dog bears in its dental work instead of the usual name and address plate. Hall, captured by Germans in an air battle, is now in the Western Germany Camp.

Color Contrasts

Paris Leads World in Missing Persons

Paris.—Paris holds the world's record for being the city with the greatest number of missing people, according to statistics.

The Society for the Protection of the Family, which aids the French police in tracing missing individuals, announces that 27,000 people have disappeared from Paris during the last year. This is an increase of 7,000 over 1930.

It is emphasized, however, that many of these so-called missing have not fallen victims to crime or accident, but have merely suddenly left home for reasons of their own.

Report Reveals Whale Supply Is Decreasing

Washington.—The study of whalebone A and D and the abundance of phytoplankton and zooplankton (beds of fish life) receive considerable attention in the annual report of the commissioner of fisheries for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931.

Increased scarcity of whales and oysters are predicted, unless economic conservation methods are adopted. Seal herds continue to increase and conservation allowed a total of 1,035,000 fur seals in the Pribilof Islands herd on August 10, 1930—an increase of 70,194 animals, or 7.27 per cent, over the corresponding figure of 1929.

The world catch of whales has increased from about 12,000 in the calendar year 1920 to more than 25,000 in 1929, and the production of whale oil increased from nearly 20,000,000 gallons to 35,000,000 gallons in this ten-year period.

Whale fishing has been intensified in all seas by the development of floating factory ships with a displacement up to 30,000 tons.

—Offset

"Gloom is contagious."
"Well, we have the infectious laugh."

FEDERAL AGENTS ARE EYEING 'LOVE CLUBS'

Powers Case Starts Government Probe of Matrimonial Agencies.

Washington.—While Harry F. Powers prepares to go to the gallows to atone for the fiendish penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., federal authorities are making a nation-wide investigation of matrimonial agencies and love clubs such as the one through which Powers met the women he married.

There are more than 200 such agencies in the United States, it is asserted, and they have more than a million members, including both men and women.

The government charges that many of women are still only being swindled by these organizations but also that through them are also being plotted in the course of confidence men, blackmail and even crimes.

Powers, who was condemned to die for killing a Chicago woman after he had made him his heir and obtained her money after meeting her through a matrimonial agency, is not the first to take life under such circumstances.

Note remembered in the case of Dr. Mae Linders called "Bluebeard" of Frenchtown, who remembered the ladies of 11 women to whom he had made love before settling and then killing them. Linders lured his victims to their deaths by means of insurance policies, it was charged.

He came into the office without announcement or ceremony, like a wind full raging, and I love a man the desk before me an official looking letter which he seized to have the figures at once. He was angry, there was no mistaking that, and the diamond shook with the violence of his movements.

"Why, I got a letter like this!" he exclaimed.

It was a notice that under our organization, because of the grades, no hall loans should be granted, and that income tax work in the future—personal, he would be extraordinary dropped from service.

"Tut and sot exclaimed," he went on. "You put me in bad with the folks at home, and the whole thing ended up with my having to borrow the money I have in my office afterward. I should think you'd have more sense than to send out such letters."

"Why, I didn't," he explained. "Did I? It is two hours and half since I dictated the last of the mail. The letter took me moderately.—Cappell Weekly.

Women undertook to outmeet men in business, and rarely carry it home in a meek spirit.

TWO WAYS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

Premier of China

In the new government of the Nanking republic, the successor of the executive council or premier, is Sun Fo, son of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, famous revolutionary leader.

TWO WAYS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

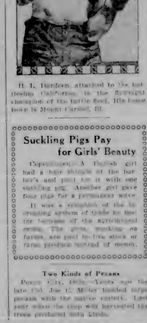
"I got the book you recommended me to," he said, "and I want to thank you for it. You don't know how much it means to me to get a little help and advice from folks at home since I met their little hearts and legs don't help me any more than they used to. I'm quite comfy though, you know, and I've had to give up golf and bridge when I have had a half mile to walk. It is rather discouraging to have pals you used to play with say, 'Come on over this morning when I perhaps and we'll have a game,' and then to find you realize it costs me 'bus fare and that I simply can't afford it.

"But you must get all your work done by yourself, I suppose?"

"Why, I don't," he explained. "Did I tell you that I'm in bed with the folks at home, and the whole thing ended up with my having to borrow the money I have in my office afterward. I should think you'd have more sense than to send out such letters."

"Why, I didn't," he explained. "Did I? It is two hours and half since I dictated the last of the mail. The letter took me moderately.—Cappell Weekly.

Champion of Fleet



H. L. Hardison, attached to the battleship California, is the fleetweight champion of the entire fleet. His home town is Mount Carmel, Ill.

Suckling Pigs Pay for Girls' Beauty

Copenhagen.—A Danish girl had a hair shampoo for her 21st birthday and a bath with one sizzling pig. Another girl gave four pigs for a permanent wave.

It was a complaint of the indignant owners of these pigs to the secretary of the agricultural union. The pigs, squealing as they were taken from their mothers, farm produce instead of money.

Two Kinds of Prizes

Peoria City, Ill.—Verna Sue Ott, late girl, Jan. 17. Miller finished strips peanuts with the narrow crowbar. Last year she took the prize with harvested big cross produced into blends.

GABBY GERTIE

"The girl who wore hoops was probably also criticized for appearing in public barrelly clad."

LIKE THE THOUGHT OF BEING MARTYRS

Some Deliberately Seem to Cultivate the Habit.

Sometimes are all right, but it's your failures that make life really worth while—if you are really interested in the art of Martyrdom. All that's necessary, to make you a martyr is to convince yourself (a) that ye have been wronged, and (b) that you have great Spiritual Qualities.

Take business, for instance. You are anxious to put that transaction across, and you go to business and glow into your eyes talk the best guys in giving you a super sales talk in which the obstacles clearly with your schemes are all wet. If you are foolish you put that down as a rough break and sink about it. If you are wise you become a Martyr on the Altar of Your Business, and have loads of fun. You convince yourself that you are a Noble Soul—not interested in material things, a Soul too good for the crass mercenary world in which you have been plated. Pretty don't appreciate your Spiritual Side. Cultivate the habit of not being appreciated, and in no time you'll be so happy you could sing.

Or take sport. You go into it most earnest and take a beating from some duffer who shortens his no-account Spalding Dunlop from a side corner of his mouth. If you follow the instinctive reaction you'll be a better man for your opponent. If you have the true Martyr Spirit you'll go home and say:

"Well, I've been trimmed to the limit, but I'm glad I'm not built like that. I'm glad I'm not a man who can't control his temper and play decent golf. I'm glad I'm not a man who can't keep his mind on the game. I'm glad I'm not a man who can't keep his mind on the game. I'm glad I'm not a man who can't keep his mind on the game

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 4:30.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

The "Seventh Commandment" will be the subject for discussion next Sunday morning. Without a doubt there is no subject more difficult to deal with frankly and yet there is none demanding more sane and fruitful handling. We wish to do farm the public that they will do nothing else will undo the final disappointment.

Last Sunday we declared the necessity of honest work and we said with that words subjected to his realm certainly unchallenge and needs plans to accomplish it. Surely the sale of the products of the fruit-field of life God's first order of society is that of the family, and the purpose for which the second order of men and women.

We challenge the people of Charlevoix to join this sermon next Sunday morning.

The Junior Church will hold its monthly social gathering next Monday evening. The will be in the nature of a miscellaneous supper under the direction of the Board of Deaconesses composed of Martha Craig, Stella Livingston and Betty Wilkins. Next Sunday afternoon Marcel VanAmburg will lead the meeting.

The Junior Ladies Aid Society will hold an all-day meeting at the church Friday. A dinner will be served at noon to which the husbands are invited. In connection with that gathering a meeting of the board of trustees of the church has been called. This meeting will be held after the dinner.

Mr. Hiram Hobbs and Miss Alice Marie Smith, young people from Boyne City, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the manse. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Janack of Boyne City. Mrs. Janack was a sister of the bride.

Rev. G. R. Parker spoke before the Rotary Club of Boyne City Monday night.

The pastor flew to E. Parker, attended the monthly meeting of the Little Traverse Bay Ministerial Association Monday at the Russell House in East Jordan. The program was one of the best and provoked more discussion than any previous meeting. As a direct outgrowth of the program a memorial service will be held Ash Wednesday at Petoskey. All ministers are invited to attend the Ash Wednesday service with the Episcopal Church of Petoskey as part of the program. The next Association meeting will be held in Petoskey March 7th.

The Congregational Churches will hold several communions through-out the state this week. For the ministers and churches in this section the meeting will be held in Traverse City Thursday. The pastor and his wife are planning to attend.

Word has been received by Hugh Parker that he has been accepted as a member of the National High School Orchestra. This orchestra is composed of the best High School musicians of the United States and will hold its meeting this year at Cleveland in April.

This national organization meets only once in two years and it is considered a high mark of honor and ability to be chosen as a member.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS

Have Been Made By the

ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE

for showing the moving pictures of the

MICHIGAN TOURIST ASSOCIATION

At The

GYMNASIUM, TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 9

The pictures cover important events and scenes of interest to the tourist and will be accompanied by Edward Drier.

No admission charge will be made and the public is cordially invited.

For four years Hugh has been a member of the All State Orchestra that meets in Ann Arbor each spring, and he was a member of the North Central Orchestra that met in Des Moines last April and he carried away second honors in the national contest for solo Clarinets in 1930. He was also a member of the Woodwind Quartett that took distinct and state honors and was given a place near the top in the national contest in 1930. For two years he was a member of the Waterville H. S. Band that took first and fourth place in the state contests.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

Feb. 7—"Where will Heaven Be" is the we have the Disease Healed?" (Expository).

Feb. 14—"The Desire of the Greatest American. Note dates.

In the bulletin, Group No. 2 made 75 points last Sunday evening, one of the highest grade, with 100 as total.

"Pirates a Night" will be observed in the Junior next Sunday, the pastor having the invitation, served and Miss Dorr the pirates, study. The class will meet this Thursday with Mrs. Ben Brown.

The children of Charlevoix County will meet here February 16, for an all-day meeting. Ladies Aid Society luncheon at noon, providing for the guests by the Sunday School, the usual entertainment, the new ideas and Sunday, of the older young men, will be the pastor, was quite a success and the children worked splendidly. Remember the date, Monday evening, we sing, in co-electing all the officers.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 8 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening 9 o'clock.

Topic for B.Y.P.U.—"Discovery Versus Drifting in Life Work." Miss Irene Bliss will be the leader. A play will be given.

For the evening service a continuation of the Revelation. Sixth chapter will be given. Thursday evening will be our Bible Study and Monthly business meeting. Every member should be out for this service.

Friday the mid-year associational meeting will convene at Traverse City. Morning afternoon and evening services.

The W. W. G. Girls held their monthly meeting Monday evening with Marie Dahlquem. A very enjoyable and profitable evening was spent preparing a missionary box.

Next Wednesday the Ladies will meet with Iola Bone, on Norwood Rd for their meeting.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, February 7—"Spirit."

Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:30 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

For next Sunday, February 7, the hour of the Young People's service will be 6:00 P. M. instead of 6:30 We are to have a W. C. T. U. Silver Medal contest at that hour. These social contests are always good. All are invited, and it will be well worth your while to attend. The Pastor will also invite the judges make their decision.

The evening preaching service will follow the contest. Come and bring your friends.

JORDAN VALLEY CREAMERY

The co-operative creamery
Has its critics and its friends,
But it's meeting obligations
And it's paying dividends.
Of course not all the dividends
Are returned in cash today,
But are in real estate invested
That will lead to increased pay

And without depending on the whims
Of big dealers from outside,
The first class butter market price
Of the State will be your guide.
They may juggle with the cream test,
Or there may a way be found
To short up the local prices
When your paydays roll around.

That don't change the butter market,
Nor its selling price insure,
And the last by New York quoted
Will be just the same as yours.
For there's one thing to remember
In the markets final test—
Cream will make just so much butter,
And our butter is the best.

If we hold our loyal patrons
We will be safe by out of debts,
Overhead expenses lighter
And the prizes will be net.
Then we'll gather in the struggle
Of this band who fought alone,
We will have a real home market,
And a creamery all our own.

When that time comes they all will rejoice
In a price of little cost,
That's what cooperation means
Like the unions of the past,
A little self-denial now
Brings security at last.

If you step out and buy a cow
And pay just nothing down,
And agree one-half your cream check
Will be paid each trip to town.
When you go home with half the cash
Would it make you snarly and fret,
Would you consider that part lost
That is wiping out your debt?

It's not your debt—you have a cow,
She pays it when you use her.
Whole paid you'll own the cow and cream.

How could you be a loser?
Your Creamery stands the self-same way.
An investment that endures,
When times are still and markets fail
The Creamery will be yours.

When others carry mortgages
And they fail to make the grade,
Your doors will not be closed
Or for interest left unpaid
The loyal ones now standing by
Can not all be named by me,
But the Jordan Valley treasury
By their faith will soon be free.

—Elmer Murray, President.

LIBRARY NOTES

New books recently placed in circulation:

"Best Plays of 1930-1931," Burns Mantle.

"Best Short Stories for 1931," by Edward J. O'Brien.

"New Voices," by Margarite Wilkinson. Anthology of modern poetry.

"C-d in the Slums", by Hugh Redwood.

"The Wet Parade," by Upton Sinclair, author of "Oil and the Jungle" and considered the greatest work on prohibition ever written.

"Arizona Ames," by Zane Grey.

"Westward Passage," by Margaret Ayer Barnes. Author of "Years of Grace."

"Sparks Fly Upward," by Oliver La Farge. Those who enjoyed his "Laughing Boy", winner of the Pulitzer Prize for 1929 will enjoy this beautiful Indian story.

"Belle-Mere," by Kathleen Norris.

Juvenile Books—

"Wild Life in the Blue Mountain Forest," by Ernest Harold Baynes. A story of wild life in the Corbin Game Preserve of New Hampshire.

"Old Man Coyote," by Frank B. Linderman. A famous warrior who helped to make the history of the northwest exciting. Lore and legends of Montana.

"South of Zero," by M. I. Ross, who takes his readers across the icy wilderness of the Antarctic. A thrilling account of the Clark-Jamison expedition.

Found in the library—Pair of glasses with silver engraved frame, and two pairs of mittens. Owners please call for them.

Mr. John B. Kendall of Kaubauna, Wis., presented the library with an album of Charlevoix views taken some forty years ago. This is a most acceptable gift, and valuable addition to the library. We think Mr. Kendall for remembering his home city in this splendid way.

Mr. Kendall, who lived in Charlevoix as a boy visited the library not long ago and was pleasantly surprised at the improvement of the city. He says he often wondered what became of the planks that were placed across Bridge street and which often disappeared in the mud. Perhaps some of our senior Sentinel readers can furnish Mr. Kendall with the desired information.

TREASURE HUNT ENJOYED
(Continued from first page.)

running within the area occupied by the armed forces of the combatants, might conceivably be construed by such a faction as an act of war, and

WHEREAS, the United States and its citizens at large, in our belief, have nothing of great material or spiritual value to gain and much to lose by risking a declaration of war against the United States by either or both of the aforesaid combatants or their allies, and

WHEREAS, we know full well that the financial burden and the actual personal participation in such warfare would fall heavily upon those classes of our citizens least able to withstand such burden or to leave their homes and families,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that we, the members of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 276, American Legion, Department of Michigan, for God and our country, respectfully and earnestly petition our Department Commander at Detroit, Michigan, to give his consideration to the following principles and, to urge their adoption by every Legion post and Auxiliary under his jurisdiction and his backing of, power and action, as hereinafter outlined, to make them effect:

FIRST. The United States Government shall avoid by every means in its power any participation or interference whatsoever in the so-called Sino-Japanese dispute.

SECOND. The United States Government shall maintain and provide for, as far as may be possible, the immediate evacuation by its nationals of the disputed territory and shall withdraw its armed forces and naval units now stationed in said territory as rapidly as may be consistent with the removal of its nationals to a place of safety.

THIRD. The United States Government shall make no effort to protect or salvage material property located in the disputed territory and owned by private individuals or corporations at the ultimate expense of the United States citizens at large or at peril of their lives.

AND FURTHER PETITION our Department Commander that he immediately transmit a copy of the within resolution to the commander of each and every Legion post and each Auxiliary president in his jurisdiction with the request that it be read to the members of such post or Auxiliary and urged for adoption thereby and that, in accordance with said resolution, each post and auxiliary as an organization and the individuals thereof as individuals be urged to write a letter to their respective congressman and United States Senators petitioning their consideration of the principles above set forth and their favorable action thereon looking to their incorporation in the policy of the United States Government as respects the Sino-Japanese dispute. Also, to urge upon the citizens of their respective communities similar action and to use newspapers, moving pictures, radio and such other means as are at the command of the individual posts to give the proper publicity possible thereto.

WE FURTHER PETITION our Department Commander that consistently with the transmission of the within resolution to the various Legion posts and Auxiliaries of Michigan, a copy thereof be sent to the National Commander and to the National President of the Auxiliary urging upon them that they transmit the same to the various other Department chiefs of the United States for action similar to that taken by the Michigan Department.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have caused to be affixed hereto the official signature of our Commander and Adjutant, this second day of February, in the Year of our Lord Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Two, at Charlevoix, Michigan.

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 276, American Legion, Dept. of Mich.
By Albert F. Bridge, Post Commander
Frederick V. Tyler, Post Adjutant.

CHECK UP ON YOURSELF

Erastus Alexander had the right idea. Although ideas were not his specialty. The ponderosities of up-to-date business efficiency and the profundities of modern psychology were Chinese puzzles to him, even if he ever knew such things were in existence. Nevertheless Erastus Alexander was wise.

Going to a telephone paystation, he called his employer, asking him if no needed a messenger boy.

He did not, he already had one. "Is he satisfactory?" inquired Erastus. "He is very satisfactory, and have no reason for making a change." Erastus hung up the receiver and heaved a deep sigh of satisfaction.

"Thought you had a job," said the A.'s pal. "I have said the colored messenger boy, but I'm checking up on myself."

Checking up on the security of one's job is one thing, and checking up on one's self is another.

Of the many secrets of success, self-inventory looks to me like num-

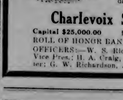
DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing.
104 W. Garfield

THAT "LIFESAVER"

In most cases when a man is able to meet an emergency involving the prompt outlay of a sizable sum of money, it could be shown that the source of the cash that proved the "lifesaver" was a Savings Account—a Savings Account that was created, dollar by dollar, to serve as AN EMERGENCY FUND.

What is YOUR Savings balance today?

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1931 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS:—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. B. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.



IMPORTANT

Friendliness springs from a true desire to cooperate; friendship is born of mutual confidence

Both are important here.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1931

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge, Robert Bridge, L. S. See, John J. Roen
Ernest J. Hitter, Joseph M. Foster, Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 7

"STEPPING SISTERS"

with Louise Dresser, Minna Gombell, Josyna Howland, William Collier, Jr. Retired chorus girls, . . . but not without their follies. One pursuivel high society—the other two panicked fro—you'll laugh from the hips up, while those thundering, blundering ex-chorines kick the props and stupidity out from under the [illegible]

Extra—Comedy, "Out of Bounds."

Coming—"DELICIOUS," "OVER THE HILL"

NOTE:—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Your telephone is PRICELESS PROTECTION in times of emergency

WHEN the dread spectre of fire casts its shadow over your home, threatening loved ones and property . . .

When sudden sickness or accident makes immediate medical attention imperative . . .

When any emergency suddenly endangers your family or home, your telephone becomes PRICELESS PROTECTION, enabling you to summon aid immediately.

The telephone provides more useful daily service and convenience at less cost than almost anything else one can buy.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1932 Number 42

CONSOLIDATED HEALTH REPORT

FOR COUNTIES OF CHARLEVOIX, ANTRIM, EMMET, OTSEGO

The following is the monthly report of services for January, 1932

This report includes the services of Dr. Dean, Dr. Quinlan, Miss Johnson, Miss McCoy, Miss Warner and Mr. Nehaling.

Administrative—
88 official interviews
8 birth certificates checked.
12 meetings attended.
159 hours in office work.
5,848 miles traveled.

Communicable Disease—
8 official interviews.
14 home visits.
2 consultations with physicians.
1 case reported to staff.
22 school children given rapid inspection for major diseases.
2 school children given careful inspection for minor diseases.
146 school children given rapid inspection for skin diseases.
4 pupils excluded from school.

Immunization—
8 official interviews.
27 preschool children vaccinated against smallpox.
445 school children vaccinated against smallpox.
50 children found previously vaccinated against smallpox.

Venereal Disease—
10 official visits.
11 home visits.
5 cases placed under supervision.

Tuberculosis—
2 official interviews.
25 home visits.
3 examinations made.
6 cases taken under supervision.
1 suspect taken under supervision.

Maternal Hygiene—
2 official interviews.
6 home visits to prenatal cases.
1 home visit to postnatal case.

Infant Hygiene—
27 home visits.
1 office visit.
16 infants taken under supervision.

School Hygiene—
8 clinic visits.
12 physical exams at clinics.
3 official visits.

Preschool Hygiene—
8 home visits.
1 office visit.
5 preschool children taken under supervision.

School Hygiene—
150 official interviews.
118 home visits.
5 office visits.
294 pupils given partial inspection for specific defects.
104 pupils having parents present at examination or inspection.
969 pupils given physical examinations.
657 pupils given physical inspections.
360 pupils with defects needing correction.
81 defects needing correction.
81 defects corrected.
123 school visits made.
29 sanitary inspections of school buildings.
5 buildings approved.
17 buildings improved.

Milk Supply—
14 dairy interviews.
94 inspections of milk producing farms.
6 milk producing farms improved.
9 inspections of pasteurizing plants.
1 pasteurizing plant approved.
17 sediment tests made.

Water Supply—
27 inspections of premises for water supply.
26 inspections of wells or springs.
1 well or spring improved.

Excreta Disposal—
28 inspections of premises for excreta disposal.
16 premises connected to approved systems.
24 inspections of privies.
1 sanitary inspection not elsewhere listed.

Medical and Surgical Service—
2 persons put under care of local physician.
23 persons put under care of local dentist.
1 person hospitalized.

Crippled Children—
7 official interviews.
12 home visits.
1 crippled child examined.
2 crippled children hospitalized.

Health Education—
2 official interviews.
12 newspaper articles prepared.
82 bulletins distributed.
1 demonstration of local washing drill.

(Continued on last page.)

ONE BUCK LAW IS FAVORED BY HUNTERS

If the reports received from over 2,000 deer hunters is a fair sample, the majority of Michigan deer hunters favor a continuation of the one buck law.

Of 2,000 hunters returning reports to the Game Division of the Department of Conservation following the close of the 1931 deer season, 56 per cent favored a continuation of the one buck law. The rest were divided in their opinions as to what changes might be more satisfactory. About 24 percent wanted a shorter law, nearly seven percent desired a closed season, and less than three percent favored a three open season.

More than half of the 2,000 hunters reported getting their buck and a slightly higher percentage of those hunting in the upper peninsula got more than did those in the lower peninsula. Of the 1,400 hunters who went north of the Straits, 56 persons reported killing a deer, while 44 percent of those hunting south of the straits filled their licenses.

Those 2,000 hunters reported killing 1,600 deer and 400 bear. Most of the bears in the upper peninsula and 23 in the lower peninsula.

Over half of the hunters reported that deer were about the same or increasing in number where they hunted. The average number of deer seen per hunter during the season was 21 and the average number of tracks seen per hunter ran between two and three.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET FEB. 22ND

ARRANGED FOR BY MEN'S CLUB. LIMITED TICKET SALE

The plan of dining favor with the committee to strictly limit the sale of tickets, for the Father and Son banquet, to just the easy and comfortable seating capacity of the dining room, that avoiding the terrible crush and great inconvenience and dissatisfaction at former banquets.

The Club had a very successful bowling Monday evening, in the dining room of the Methodist Church. There was a unanimous vote to continue the meetings for a while, at least, to bowl the banquet, and next year on Washington's birthday. All the officers of last year were re-elected and a regular bowling meeting appointed for next Monday night, when some final arrangements can be made for the banquet.

The "feed" was especially good, and abundant in quantity. The Methodist pastor gave the customary short scripture interpretation, and Rev. G. R. Parker gave a very interesting address on the methods of gold leaf laying, and the use of gold leaf in art and advertising work. The remark that the average gold in a gold dollar shimmer was mixed—one three thousand three hundredths of an inch.

Everything from next Monday night, another big supper, and some programme, in the hands of the committee.

The Baptist church was also represented, by the pastor, and all agreed a advertising night in the language as much as possible. The boys of today can well study the Washington character.

LEGAL PERMISSION FOR SPEARS A TEMPTATION

Legal permission to possess spears in Michigan's inland waters during the months of January and February is proving a temptation to many to take spoiler on which the season is closed, according to the Department of Conservation in reporting the conviction of five Benzie County men on spearing rainbow trout.

Last winter a large number of convictions were obtained for this violation. It is expected that during the winter spearing season this year the figure will be as high or higher than it was in 1930.

The five men convicted in Benzie County all had their catches treat on the Platte River. They were each sentenced to serve 10 days in the county jail. They were Roy Thorne, Joseph Lawrence, George Lawrence, William Moby and John Moby.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy. FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

The Hi-Y club of Charlevoix high school sponsored a dancing party in the local gym, immediately following the Boyne City Charlevoix basketball game, Friday evening.

"Bud" Hammond, pilot of the Charlevoix-Beaver Island air mail transport, spent the week end in St. Ignace on business.

School News

The school halls were filled with the noisy scattering of students, soon stopped at the classroom and some at the best; everywhere was the bustle of busy activity. Then quiet; at least comparative quiet. Classroom doors were closed and after the sound had died away, the halls regained their normalcy.

Just another school; teacher at the desk in front; students facing him in well-marked seats. But wait; there is a difference; there is a certain something about the students that makes them look as old — even older—than their teachers. Why, yes, of course, it is our parents. I see my mother and father, my aunt and uncle; I should be home doing the housework. There is another difference, too. Mother leans over and speaks to her near neighbor and the teacher corrects her, scolds. Maybe he feels like making her stay two hours after school but he controls this ignoble sentiment and simply nods and smiles. There! One of father's business associates is coming in late, tip toes down the aisle across the front of his class. Ah! He'll have to present a good excuse for his tardiness! But no! The teacher goes to meet him, nods cordially and indicates a vacant seat well toward the back of the room that has been overlooked. What is this? Mrs. Blank fidgets; she's dirrty. She talks all about and makes no fountain Mrs. Smith, leader, tells her that there is a fountain in the hall. Mrs. Blank picks up her coat, leaves her seat and walks quietly, unconcernedly, into the hall. She drops her purse and it makes the teacher jump, he hurries to her side, picks it up and with a smile, holds it upon the door for her to pass out.

Well, well! What kind of a school is this? We ask. Night school, they say.

We're glad for our parents, and we add that we would as soon postpone our education until we become parents.

The Hi-Y dance given Friday evening in the gymnasium after the game was one of the most successful—both from the standpoint of the participants, who enjoyed the music and the dancing greatly, and from the Hi-Y boys, whose finances are now considered in a flourishing condition.

A County Teachers' Institute will be held at Boyne City, February 12, 1932. It is to be an all-day session and is very important. The speakers are to be President Spencer of Hillsdale College; C. C. Barnes, Registrar of the Central State Teachers' College; and Supt. Bush of Charlevoix High School.

Several Charlevoix entries were in the Petoskey races held last Saturday in that city. The racers Arthur Hayden, Lawrence Bell, David Livingston took first place in his own class and second place in the class above him. His brother took second place in his class.

Friday, February 12, during the second hour in the afternoon, Mrs. Howd has charge of a program to be given in the assembly in honor of Lincoln.

Mrs. Logan's Latin II class is now studying the history of Gaul.

The American history classes of the first and third periods have been in competition writing monologues of George and Martha Washington. The monologue written by the third hour class has been chosen to be presented on the Washington Birthday Program.

Miss Perreau (a American History Student) "What great General was buried in Grant's tomb?"

Homer Struthers—"Napoleon."

Music

Unusual sounds are issuing from Mrs. Atkinson's music room this week, for the 5th and 6th graders have started a harmonica band. The fever for playing a harmonica seems to be catching, and not only are old mouth-organs coming out of their hiding places but many new ones have been themselves as well.

Rodney Helding and Albert Gill are the most professional players in the group and with great patience they are teaching the new members how to play. With a few more lessons the group promises to be an organization of which we should be proud.

A few weeks ago short six of our local band players went to Traverse

(Continued on last page.)

OUR LINCOLN
By Margaret Murray

He sits alone, the noisy throng apart
And gazes down the coming ages far;
He feels the throbbing of mankind's firm heart
And weirs upon his face deep scars of war.

A shining shaft, across the silver lake
Uplifts the epee to Heaven's dazzling light,
And thoughts of greatness to the sight awake,
While man shrinks small below its towering height.

That lofty shaft, bright shining in the sun,
To times remote shall speak a glorious name,
The deathless name of stately Washington.

No age can dull the lustre of his fame.

From shining shaft we turn, as children leave
Their play to gather at the knee of one
Who shares their little sorrows, when they grieve,
And soothes their spirits when the day is done.

Within the shadow of this quiet place
Once more we come to mutely stand and wait,
And, looking on the gentle, rugged face,
Our spirits low as in a presence great.

Beloved of ages, still we sing above,
The feverish striving of the crowd apart,
The simple majesty of Truth his throne,
Our own dear Lincoln of the kindly heart.

LEGION HOLDS SOCIAL MEET

SHORT BUSINESS SESSION FOLLOWED BY BOXING, CARDS

The regular social meeting of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 276, American Legion, held last Tuesday night, brought out thirty-four members who happily enjoyed the exhibition boxing matches which constituted the entertainment that the committee had prepared for them.

The amateur "bruisers" who entered the squared circle were Kenneth Heine paired off with Clinton Howe, Bob Hesse with Harrison Barnhart, Alexk Farmer with Roy Myers, and Clinton Howe again with Carleton Agee. Each bout was of three rounds duration—one minute each. Clarence Ferguson also boxed a few rounds with Roy Myers. William Wood was scheduled to meet Dean Havemeyer, but the latter was unable to be present.

Following the bouts, coffee and doughnuts were served and cards and conservation filled out the balance of the evening until a late hour—so late that anyone who began calling up

During the meeting that preceded the bouts, George Lusk, Jr., drew the lucky number from the "kitty", lost as he was not present the money went back in the box to await drawing at the next meeting, when the amount will be two dollars to the lucky member who is present. Outside of the reading of the previous meeting's minutes, reports of committees, and reading of communications, the only business transacted was a motion to repair the basement stairs, carried over the dissenting vote of the two gentlemen upon whom the work will devolve, by an overwhelming majority.

Next Tuesday evening, February 16, will be the meeting date of the Tri-Post Association, at the local Legion Home. Word has been received that about thirty will be present from East Jordan, and a like number can be expected from Boyne City, so it is up to the local members to turn out and make a showing, so as not to be outdone by East Jordan at the last Tri-post meeting when over 100 were in attendance.

County News

MARION CENTER NOTES

Mr. William Withers has so far recovered from injuries received when his car turned over near the Ingalls farm, as to leave the hospital. He is staying in town with his son Harold but spent Sunday with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Meehan visited Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick of Central Lake Sunday.

The Home Furnishing Project meets next Wednesday February 17, with Mrs. James Cook. Pot luck dinner at noon. The ladies will work on their rugs in the afternoon.

Regular meeting of Marion Center Grange was held at their Hall last Friday evening with an attendance of over sixty members. Three names were presented for membership. Lunch was served to over one hundred. The ladies put on the program.

Mr. U. B. Meggison and family had dinner and spent the afternoon with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison.

BEAVER ISLAND NOTES

The freighter Rambler made trips to Charlevoix Thursday and Saturday. Saturday she carried the mail as the mailplane is temporarily out of working order.

Gus Mathe returned home Thursday after a ten days visit in Charlevoix, Muskegon and other points.

Mrs. Ed. Loggerman and son Clifford arrived here Thursday to spend the rest of the winter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Left.

Gerald Left made a trip to Charlevoix last week.

Archie and Vernon Laforeuere were Charlevoix visitors last week.

Mrs. H. R. Fischer returned home last week, after visiting in Charlevoix and South Haven for several days.

Edwin McCann made a business visit to Charlevoix and Petoskey, Thursday.

Robert Gordon returned to his home in Charlevoix after spending a few weeks here fishing.

Willard Fischer was here from Garden Island Saturday and Sunday, making the trip in a skiff.

The High Island Indians were here from Petoskey Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs Patrick Bonner went to Charlevoix Saturday to have dental work done.

Mrs. M. J. McCann returned home last week after visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Fischer, for several days

The "Rambler" made a round trip Tuesday to Charlevoix and back with the mail.

The "Rambler" has made several trips recently over the Charlevoix-St. James route, taking the mail contract off the hands temporarily of the winter contractors. Some repairs are being made to the airplane in this service and when these are finished the air service will be reinstated on the route. The "Rambler" cleared this port Wednesday forenoon with mail and freight for St. James.

ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON OF CHARLES DICKENS CLUB

The home of Mrs. Minnie Fessenden on Mason street was the scene of a delightful reunion Monday afternoon when the Charles Dickens club gathered for their annual anniversary luncheon in remembrance of Dickens' birthday.

The executive committee, Mesdames Minnie Fessenden, Isabelle Sloan, Stella Rutkauskas, and Miss Minnie Payton, served a delightful three course luncheon including in the last course a birthday cake beautifully decorated with lighted candles in significance of the occasion.

Cleverly designed, hand painted place cards which were the work of Mrs. Minnie Fessenden, held likeness of Wakefield Squeers, a character from one of Dickens' writings, which the club is studying this winter. The place cards were in the form of a mask making it possible for the guests to retain them as useful mementos of the occasion. Talks appropriate to the occasion were given by several members.

Following the luncheon the remainder of the afternoon was given to oral reading of Nicholas Nickelby by Dickens. Upon adjourning the members unanimously expressed their appreciation for an extremely pleasant afternoon.

Miss Lila Howe of Lansing is making an indefinite visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heise, on Antrim street.

P. T. A. MEETING DRAWS BIG CROWD

MEDAL CONTEST MUCH ENJOYED BY THOSE PRESENT.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held in the High School Wednesday evening was an inspirational event and was attended by an unusually large number.

After the meeting was called to order and the minutes of the previous meeting read, a musical number of the Junior High School entertained with singing.

The next number on the program was an instrumental event and was also enjoyed by an unusually large audience.

After the musical numbers the meeting was turned over to Miss Mary Louise Bennett, Peggy Shannon, Charles Bingham Preston Ilse and Francis Starr, in the feature at the Palace theatre for Saturday and Sunday.

Rogers addressed the organization and their appreciation for an extremely pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. Ella Howe of Lansing is making an indefinite visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heise, on Antrim street.

P. T. A. MEETING DRAWS BIG CROWD

MEDAL CONTEST MUCH ENJOYED BY THOSE PRESENT.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held in the High School Wednesday evening was an inspirational event and was attended by an unusually large number.

After the meeting was called to order and the minutes of the previous meeting read, a musical number of the Junior High School entertained with singing.

The next number on the program was an instrumental event and was also enjoyed by an unusually large audience.

The musical quartett composed of Mrs. Stebbey, Mrs. Soule, Miss Lila McMillan and Albert McMillan gave a most enjoyable entertainment.

The medal contest sponsored by the W. C. T. U. was won by Russell Rogers. Jr. who rendered an interesting selection in a manner creditable to one of more mature years. Second place was awarded to Irene Tidmore. The presentation was made by Dr. McMillan following a few remarks relative to the educational value of these contests.

The reading of the report of the Parent-Teachers Association by the president was inspiring and instructive.

Mr. North, Mr. Bingham and Miss French, made some interesting remarks as to the place of home work by students in their respective departments of the public school.

At the next regular meeting of the Association the annual election of officers will be held and all members are requested to make special effort to be present.

ROSE O'NEIL AWARDED MEDAL IN CONTEST

Rose O'Neil was awarded the silver medal in the declamatory contest held at the Congregational S. S. last Sunday morning under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Other contestants were Marguerite Young, Charlie Scott, Esther Lou Fischman and Marjorie Radke.

A similar contest was held at the Church of God at 8 p. m. and Mildred Mitchell received the medal. Other contestants were Dorothy Howell, Gertrude and Catherine Gould, Floyd Mark and Beatrice Struthers.

Winners of silver medals are eligible to compete for gold, gold medal winners for pearl, pearl medal winners for diamond. The National W. C. T. U. has set a goal of 60 diamond medal contests by 1934, when the 50th anniversary of the Woman's Crusade will be celebrated.

COUNTY OFFICERS ATTEND JUDGE CORRELL- FUNERAL

The Charlevoix County officers went to Petoskey last Saturday afternoon to meet the 3:20 train from the south and to act as pall bearers for their ex friend, Judge Correll. The son and two daughters of the deceased accompanied the remains.

Rev. C. E. Taggart joined them at Boyne City and officiated at the funeral service at the grave in the Petoskey cemetery.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB MEETS

MEMBERS ENJOY ANOTHER OF INTERESTING GATHERINGS

Members of the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club met last Monday evening in another one of their interesting and constructive meetings.

The recent activities of this club was discussed and various plans laid for the near future and sufficient interest has been shown to warrant the belief that the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club will become one of the mainstays of this community.

A large list of new members was accepted by the club in accordance with the by-laws and the large membership of the club is indicative of the interest in the activities sponsored by the organization.

Communications from state officials relative to the various activities of the club were read.

Rogers states that his plan for excavating an original Indian mound and resin immediately, delayed on account of his recent work in pictures. In the last few months he has been busy with the filming of "The Road to Reno", "Working Girls" and "This Reckless Age." This last picture featuring Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Rich and Bennett, Peggy Shannon, Charles Bingham, Preston Ilse and Francis Starr, is the feature at the Palace theatre for Saturday and Sunday.

Rogers exhibited negatives and their appreciation for an extremely pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. Ella Howe of Lansing is making an indefinite visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heise, on Antrim street.

P. T. A. MEETING DRAWS BIG CROWD

MEDAL CONTEST MUCH ENJOYED BY THOSE PRESENT.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held in the High School Wednesday evening was an inspirational event and was attended by an unusually large number.

After the meeting was called to order and the minutes of the previous meeting read, a musical number of the Junior High School entertained with singing.

The next number on the program was an instrumental event and was also enjoyed by an unusually large audience.

The musical quartett composed of Mrs. Stebbey, Mrs. Soule, Miss Lila McMillan and Albert McMillan gave a most enjoyable entertainment.

The medal contest sponsored by the W. C. T. U. was won by Russell Rogers. Jr. who rendered an interesting selection in a manner creditable to one of more mature years. Second place was awarded to Irene Tidmore. The presentation was made by Dr. McMillan following a few remarks relative to the educational value of these contests.

The reading of the report of the Parent-Teachers Association by the president was inspiring and instructive.

Mr. North, Mr. Bingham and Miss French, made some interesting remarks as to the place of home work by students in their respective departments of the public school.

At the next regular meeting of the Association the annual election of officers will be held and all members are requested to make special effort to be present.

ROSE O'NEIL AWARDED MEDAL IN CONTEST

Rose O'Neil was awarded the silver medal in the declamatory contest held at the Congregational S. S. last Sunday morning under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Other contestants were Marguerite Young, Charlie Scott, Esther Lou Fischman and Marjorie Radke.

A similar contest was held at the Church of God at 8 p. m. and Mildred Mitchell received the medal. Other contestants were Dorothy Howell, Gertrude and Catherine Gould, Floyd Mark and Beatrice Struthers.

Winners of silver medals are eligible to compete for gold, gold medal winners for pearl, pearl medal winners for diamond. The National W. C. T. U. has set a goal of 60 diamond medal contests by 1934, when the 50th anniversary of the Woman's Crusade will be celebrated.

**

Miss Butler to Wed

Pretty Miss Ethel Peters Butler, daughter of Mrs. Cora Wood and Mrs. Isaac D. Butler, whose engagement to Lieut. John Wallace Butler has no fine crept, was announced last week in Philadelphia society journal Town and Country.

Airplanes Carry Gold From Africa

Many Days Are Now Saved in Transportation.

Planes—Gold from the mines to the Belgian Congo, in the heart of Africa, which once required four weeks to reach the coffers of the Belgian banks, is now being rushed by air to Brussels in four days.

The new regular weekly air service of the Imperial Airways from London via Paris to Cape Town, has recently initiated the system of precious metal transportation. Gold carried from Leopoldville in Egypt with the planes from London and provide a fast save for down to Montreal on the southern shores of Lake Victoria.

The new lanes in the eastern flight carry gold bullion. Kenya coffee planters lost his main harvest, who were weeks on the journey consigned with other items when they had to depend by rails from the east African coast into the jungle lands.

Gold from the mines is brought down from the interior by motor transport to the railway to the lake navigating a fair day of roadways. The precious metals is stored at Kisumu close to the lakeshore and then journeys. Here the gold is loaded on the waiting planes and sped inland filling some on lines after

Ether Sage Says:

When a man gets up in the night there is always somebody ready with a shoe or some bedclothes in his arms.

Clergyman in Motor Car Beats Moose on Foot

Saint Stephen, New Brunswick.—Rev. Herb A. Cargeman of a country parish, while attending a meeting in Fredericton, here covered with a race with a moose.

On overtaking the moose which was running down the road, the minister drove his car ahead of the animal, then stopped, took a camera and waited for the moose to come. The unfortunate animal, however, on seeing the car blocking the road, turned and ran back at a terrific rate, and was soon lost to sight.

Cherry Growers Unite to Boost Sale of Fruit

Traverse City, Mich.—A farm relief movement for concerted with drive for special legislation, curtailment of acreage, or other extra expense is being undertaken by the cherry growers of the country, according to an announcement here.

The growers have determined that the outlined and shortest route to economic recovery lies in the sale of cherries. They've started out to sell them by staging, first of all, a national cherry week, during the Washington birthday period. The dates are February 15-22. They are building their sales efforts around the legend of Washington and the cherry tree. Cherry pie contests, raffle schemes, and appearances by the national cherry queen, Maxine Weaver of Traverse City, form part of their program.

Eastern handout growers of Michigan and Wisconsin took the lead in this movement, heard by 11 W. Hi Simpson, of the Fruit Growers' Union, Shipmen, Bay. They were soon followed by representatives of the cherry industry from the states of Oregon, Colorado, Montana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. Growers, including Howard Morgan, president of the Michigan Canners' association, have given their support to the growers.

Not Cowardice to Seek Cover, Ranger Asserts

Austin, Texas.—He is not afraid of bullets to take to cover. The testimony for this is W. W. (Bill) Sterling, ex-ranger, against the attempted libel suit was brought by Sterling against the Houston Chronicle.

The charge, however, inside a newspaper never said or did the first crime, he took the badge of the ranger and resigned in favor. The movie took to the hook.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

I have just read the life of Sir Walter McMillan, an English woman who

Great Wall Again Is Frontier Line

Washington—China's latest Wall phenomena to all who have studied geography, but usually considered the greatest only as a work of the ancient past, has become a mirror in recent news dispatches. With the fall of Chinchow to Japanese forces, the Chinese have moved south of the wall, and that ancient barrier now forms the frontier between Chinese and enemy territory as it did for centuries past in construction. A pattern from the National Geographic society tells of this great engineering wonder of the world:

"In a world of airplanes, bombs, heavy artillery and high explosives, the Great Wall of China is of no value as an obstacle to an enemy army," says the Bulletin. "Begun more than 2,000 years ago, and has been for a long time, the Great Wall has come to be looked upon by many as a prodigious folly. Yet to this day it very considerable value to the peasants of China who were able for incalculable periods to keep the Northern Barbarians out of their country.

Once Effective System

"The wall was effective because in times of that northern nomad found himself confronted by an unbroken system of sturdy walls, many times higher than a man, and protected by well-placed towers. There were now rents in the wall.

Marks Boundary of Chinese and Enemy Territory.

"Even today the wall is a real line of demarcation between China and Japan. Where the Great Wall crosses the Jehol-Chinchow railway, the Japanese have established a customs house, and the Japanese flag flies over the wall. Here, too, the Japanese have established a military post, and the Japanese soldiers are on guard.

Crosses Mountains

"The Great Wall is at its best in its eastern section. There its sheer faces, from 20 to 30 feet high, are constructed of carefully built masonry. In places the entire wall is of masonry, 26 feet wide, and in other places, where construction difficulties. Starting at sea level at Shanhaikwan on the Gulf of Chihli, it reaches an altitude of 5,000 feet among the mountains of northern China. In the intervening area it crosses several mountain ranges quite as nearly a mile high.

Made Great Wall Great

"The Great Wall is not a single structure but a system with sections built at different times. Its magnitude can best be understood if it is imagined that it were taken bodily up and set down in the United States, with its eastern end at Philadelphia. This transplanted wall would extend half way across the North American continent!

"The Great Wall is at its best in its eastern section. There its sheer faces, from 20 to 30 feet high, are constructed of carefully built masonry. In places the entire wall is of masonry, 26 feet wide, and in other places, where construction difficulties. Starting at sea level at Shanhaikwan on the Gulf of Chihli, it reaches an altitude of 5,000 feet among the mountains of northern China. In the intervening area it

"Even outside the four hundred it 'simply isn't done' if it's a rare steak."

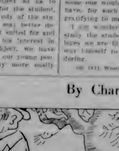
Time to Duck

"Henry, that fellow written a book."

"Yes, and if you don't control he'll give you a story."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rheumatic Pains

Relieved this Quick Way



If stabbing pains shoot across your back and cripple you, rub on good old St. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes before you can count to ten. Relief without burning or blistering. This famous all family doses and inflammation and pain. It is wonderful healing. For the aches and pains of rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Neuralgia or Backache this soothing oil is quick or sure to bring relief. Get a small bottle of St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist.

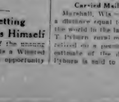
Ane On and On!

"Do you ever read in bed?"

"No now. I often lie awake and listen to the radio."—Philadelphia Magazine.

It has to be pretty important when a doctor gets a telephone people get mad about it at the same time and time did.—Kansas City Star.

FOR EXPECTANT MOTHERS



Hebron, Ill.—"I have expectancy I was so all run down I could hardly keep my housework up. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in a week's time I was feeling fine. I finally was delivered of a son, weighing 9 pounds. All friends say 'Favorite Prescription' is a wonderful tonic."—Mrs. H. R. ZAEGEL & CO. 821 New York Ave. SHEBOYGAN, WIS.

Fine Business

"Spain is getting warm this year."

"Now if 'can with a war, and have as can for it."

Head stuffed with Catarrh

Put this cream up nostrils —brings instant relief

If your head is stuffed up and you're fighting for breath just put a little ELY'S CREAM BALM in each nostril and relief comes almost instantly—right through the mucous membranes. This pleasant ointment is so remarkable, so quick, so certain in its action that it clears out every air passage in the head, soothes the inflamed membranes and immediately one feels like a new person. Try it for yourself now. Costs only a few cents. ELY'S CREAM BALM. All druggists sell it.

Forecast of Spring

Printed satin adds a new fillip of interest to a subject that seemed to be exhausted. The scarf is cut on the with the frock and may be used as a scarf or skirt drapery.

POTPOURRI

Equal Days and Nights

The equinox or that time when the sun passes across the equator at one of the equinoctial points, occurs twice a year, in spring or vernal equinox occurs March 21, and the autumnal equinox occurs September 22. At those times day and night are equal all over the world. Sometimes often supposed these days are of 12 hours' duration.

Decrease in "TB" of Cattle Shown

Efforts Made to Cut Down Losses Due to Malady Effective.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU service.)

The activities of the nation-wide campaign to eradicate bovine tuberculosis has been the largest in the history of the government on the part of the public and to relieve the presence of such a dangerous, but stock malady. This is the opinion expressed by Dr. A. E. Wight, in charge of tuberculin eradication for the United States Department of Agriculture, at a recent annual meeting of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association, at Chicago.

Following to the results obtained by the campaign Doctor Wight gave the following comparisons. In the year ended ended in 1909, 4,501,661 tuberculin tests were applied which disclosed an infection of 10 per cent. In the year 1932 there were over 15 million tuberculin tests applied and 3.5 per cent found. This was at the rate of more than a million tests a month and in all indications the end of the year 1933 will put forth to complete eradication among cattle.

"Tuberculin eradication work under the state plan continues to be a most effective method of systematically the disease." Doctor Wight says. "Since the first of November, 1932 six counties have been added to the list of those that have been declared free of bovine tuberculosis, making a total of 20 counties in which all cattle have been given the tuberculin test and found free from the disease. More than 25,000 cattle have been found free in the three months of the year considered of 10 per cent of the cattle tested. Tuberculin cure was applied which disclosed an infection of 10 per cent. In the year 1917 there were over 15 million tuberculin tests applied and 3.5 per cent found. This was at the rate of more than a million tests a month and in all indications the end of the year 1933 will put forth to complete eradication among cattle.

"Tuberculin eradication work under the state plan continues to be a most effective method of systematically the disease." Doctor Wight says. "Since the first of November, 1932 six counties have been added to the list of those that have been declared free of bovine tuberculosis, making a total of 20 counties in which all cattle have been given the tuberculin test and found free from the disease. More than 25,000 cattle have been found free in the three months of the year considered of 10 per cent of the cattle tested.

"The first demonstrational walls about the northern frontier of China were probably constructed as early as 400 B. C., when Nevada was invading Chinese. But the wall as we know it today was built in the Ming dynasty, which ruled from 1368 to 1644. It was then that the Great Wall gained some size and solidity. Chinese generals, who tried to break through the Chinese frontiers and who battled on by the walled Tien Chinese, found the wall a strong wall and erecting new ones. This created the first extensive system of defensive ramparts. Probably a thousand miles of wall was built in fifteen years under this Ming Dynasty and its immediate successor. The system of walls was extended and repaired at intervals during the past 20 years, having the past 300 years no extensive repairs have been made, and many of the less exposed built sections of the long rampart are falling into decay."

Walls of Jericho That Didn't Fall

Not all of Jericho's walls fell down when the Israelites marched around the city blowing horns. It has been discovered by the archeological party working there under the auspices of the Liverpool museum, the University of Illinois and the Palestine Exploration fund, that the northern wall shows the double line of fortifications just surveyed there. The stonework of the Middle Bronze age, 1800 to 1600 B. C.

school work. I am not at all sure that I am not in favor of the idea of the prosecution of a subject so as to demonstrate out the real for the student, and with all of the aids of the day. Deal in every way we may better the education of the child. Every effort we can find to awaken his interest in his most valuable subject, we have succeeded in educating our young people and better or any more easily than we did before these problems were artificially complicated. I wish some one would produce the proof for such proof would be very interesting to me.

I am wondering if in this town to start the student in schools and colleges we are failing him in any better way instead by study. I'm just now thinking.

(By 1933, Western Newspaper Union.)

Cattle Ticks Waning

The cattle tick eradication campaign which met with so much opposition from the part of growers in the infested area has progressed to the point where in 85 per cent of the tural fee has been removed completely. The perseverances of the acreage in this district which brings about equalization to every enforced step toward betterment, such as the cattle dipping, tuberculin test for dairy cattle and various plans quarantines has done all the complete success of the tick eradication campaign, but so encouraging has the progress so far been that officials look forward with hope to the time in the near future when the tick will be a thing of the past.

Stretching the Fodder

Grinding corn roughness with cuts the supply of corn fodder long enough to feed the cattle, the College of Experiments at the Nebraska experiment station says that calves not only eat coarsely ground corn fodder with less waste, but they gain much better and faster. The progress so far been that officials look forward with hope to the time in the near future when the tick will be a thing of the past.

Poultryman's Profit in Fall and Winter Eggs

Hens only poultry don't return a good profit during the fall and winter for the year? It has been found that hens that are given a warm place to live with some vegetables and grain to eat, will produce from 50 to 60 pounds of grain a year. Professor Hyde, Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte hens are the best for laying eggs, although Leghorn hens are the best for laying eggs, although Leghorn hens are the best for laying eggs, although Leghorn

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street. Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

AMERICAN LEGION PROMOTES SAFETY

The American legion, with its 11,000 posts throughout the country, is making the safety activities of the nation. It has made safety one of its major activities, not national safety, but individual safety in the home, in the school and particularly on the highways and streets of our land. Recent estimates show that 100,000 persons were killed in the United States by all accidents in 1931, of which approximately 35,000 were victims of the automobile.

This new Legion activity has received the warm endorsement of all agencies devoted to accident prevention and safety education. Substantial evidence of this is supplied by the fact that the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters in New York, in full acceptance of its conservation campaign, has furnished the Legion with a comprehensive text book and guide. Under the title of "Community Safety Activities for American Legion Posts" the Bureau has not only outlined what the Legion might do in attacking the serious problem, but suggests how it may be done.

Every phase of the subject is clearly and definitely covered in this attractive pamphlet of 38 pages, which is now going to every post in the United States. The situation in industry, the home, the school and the street are all explained with suggestions for programs looking to improvement. Principal emphasis is laid upon street and highway accidents. Legionnaires are advised to get back of constructive legislation of all kinds, to cooperate with the authorities and other civic associations in working out definite, scientific traffic enforcement, to back the schools in safety education and to labor for improved conditions in homes. The Legion has undertaken a great work and its efforts will make life a little safer for us all.

RETURN TO FIRST PRINCIPLES

"New forces and strange tendencies have steered us far from safe moorings. The time has come in the nation's life for a return to fundamentals and first principles. In no other way can you find a starting point again for sound thinking and constructive planning," says Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

"We began with a simple and unique system of State and Federal sovereignties. We devised a well-thought-out and workable division of powers between them. We embodied our philosophy of liberty in an all-efficient Bill of Rights. And now by sheer Federal usurpation and supine indifference we have seen powers and responsibilities of the States surrendered, rights and privileges of the individual destroyed and the functions of local self-government steadily and progressively weakened. . . .

"I believe the collective wisdom of the American people is against our appalling extension of government into almost every field of private enterprise . . . . The cost of government has grown fifteen times faster than the population, imposing a burden of taxation which is intolerable.

"I believe the collective wisdom is for a minimum of government and a maximum of freedom, and that it is against public ownership, whether of power, of railroads or other utilities, and is in fact against every unnecessary form of governmental control, because these things tend to put the control in behalf of wealth on the creative and competitive impulses of the American people . . . ."

HOW TO REDUCE WAGES

"The surest way to force wages lower would be to increase the tax on industries."

This is not a statement by a representative of a business interest. It was made recently by Senator Borah of Idaho, who is not generally regarded as a hero-worshipper of our industrial system. And the truth in it is self-evident. Those Senators and Congressmen who are now campaigning for greatly increased corporate taxes, on the old theory that the rich should be taxed to support the poor, are unknowingly enemies of the worker.

In the operation of any business, taxes must come first. They are a definite and inescapable levy. Wages and dividends follow. There is no way a business can either maintain high wages or pay its investors good dividends without making money. If an exorbitant part of that money goes to government, the other interested parties will be the losers and business and jobs will decrease.

In brief, keeping the cost of government at reasonable levels would be the strongest possible influence in favor of industrial revival, a high standard of employment, and maintenance of wage scales.

ROAD BUILDING HELPS EVERYBODY

We have heard much of the value of road building as a means of alleviating unemployment. Now it is interesting to see the actual results. During 1931, the building of rural roads and streets kept something like a million men busy in actual construction work—and, in the words of Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, "for each individual so employed the total highway expenditure provides additional indirect employment equivalent to two other persons."

Consequently, the 1931 road and street construction program was of benefit to about 3,000,000 men—which means that it helped some 10 or 12 million persons. Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the money spent went to labor.

The best part of all is that road building, even when advocated principally to help the unemployed, is not a "relief" measure of the kind that costs taxpayers millions of dollars which pay no return. Every time a rural or farm to market road is built another town or area is given a chance to progress, to develop—and its inhabitants, particularly farmers, have a chance for greater prosperity, for a fuller social life, and for more advantageous marketing of products. It is worth repeating that the road dollar is a genuine, gilt-edge investment which returns a high rate of interest—not only in actual cash, but in benefits which cannot be measured in money.

A GOOD PROGRAM FOR 1932

Here's a good program for the United States for 1932:

Keep the nation, at a time when there are more war-dogs growling than at any time since the World War, in what Washington called "a respectable posture of defense."

Put the unemployed to work by erecting such economic defenses as will insure the American market for American competitive products as against foreign products made cheap by cheapening workers, and increase our foreign trade by the greater purchasing power for non-competive imports that will thus be created.

Drop the job of saving Europe from itself, and tackle the task of saving America for ourselves.

Keep our nose out of foreign quarrels, thus keeping out of wars with the causes and purposes of which we have nothing to do.

Stick to a sound currency, even if the rest of the world goes to using wampum for money.

Let our foreign debtors pay or repudiate just as they wish, and take the consequences, since we cannot do anything about it anyway.

Take a breathing spell in paying of the national debt until we get the money with which to do it.

Use the axe on public expenditures until we are able to pay the bills past extravagance has created.

Stir up a revival of old-fashioned patriotism and religion and get away from some of the fads and follies that have mussed up our national thinking.

Impress our statesmen and financiers that looking after the United States is a bigger job than they have been able to handle and that hereafter they will be expected to look after the people from whom they got their power and their money.

Get back to common honesty and common sense in private and public affairs.

HOPE FOR THE FARMER

In a recent radio address, David Lawrence, the well-known political journalist and editor of the United States Daily, said that the present transition of agriculture from an unorganized to an organized basis, constitutes the most hopeful feature of the present agricultural situation.

The cooperative movement is growing to a remarkable degree, not only in scope but also in strength. There are now about 12,000 cooperative associations in the country, with a total membership of about 2,000,000 farmers. They did a business totaling $2,400,000,000 last year —an increase of $100,000,000 over 1930.

Thus, in spite of present depressed conditions, agriculture should be optimistic for the future. The day the first cooperative started was a red letter day in the history of farming. And the day the last group of unorganized farmers join together for mutual benefit, the farmer will have reached the goal for which the more progressive members of his industry are working. The time when a man could stand alone in his business dealings is past. He must join with his fellows in the same endeavor, so that all may prosper and find a sound market for what they have to sell.

THE MAN—NOT HIS CAR

According to a brief article in The Safe Driver, a publication of the National Safety Council, about 90 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents can be charged to three things: Bad judgment, carelessness and stupidity. In a recent study of over a million motor accidents, it was found that the entire share of fatal accidents attributable to defects in the car amounted to only about 11 per cent, while for non-fatal accidents the car was defective in but 5 per cent of fault of the man who drives the car, and not the cases.

In other words, 9 accidents out of 10 are the the car itself. As Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard, has phrased it, the remedy is to convince man that he must live up to his car. When he reaches as high a degree of perfection in his driving as the modern automobile represents, deaths on streets and highways will be due for a 90 per cent drop.

The modern highway is often congested. Traffic moves fast. There is no time for absentmindedness, for a single instant of distraction from the job at hand. Everyone who drives an automobile should keep in the front of his mind the trinity of destruction: Bad judgment, carelessness, stupidity.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

LAW OFFICE OF JAMES MONROE
FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA

In this quaint building James Monroe planned a quiet career in the practice of law. But Fate, or what you will, lifted the knocker on the door and the rest is history—three governor of Virginia, special envoy to the courts of Great Britain, France and Spain, negotiator of the Louisiana Purchase, Secretary of State, Secretary of War and fifth President of the United States, a matchless range of public service covering fifty years.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

There has been a great deal of comment in the newspapers concerning the recent statement of Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the cabinet of President Wilson, to the effect that he did not believe the time was ripe for the United States to enter the League of Nations. Mr. Baker has been one of the most consistent supporters of the theory of Uncle Sam's adherence to the League. Several weeks ago, at a Democratic banquet in Winchester, Ind., he reaffirmed his faith in the League and it was widely stated at the time that this reaffirmation eliminated him as a presidential possibility in the campaign of 1932. Now many of the political depsters are declaring that his latest statement to the effect that the League is not now an issue in American politics, puts him back in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mr. Baker in his statement says among other things that he thinks it would be a great mistake to make the League issue a partisan matter. There is not much chance unless Mr. Baker is nominated for president, that it will be a partisan matter again in the near future for the reason that Democratic leaders generally are as much opposed to the entrance of the United States into the League as are Republican leaders and the rank and file of the Democratic party is as much opposed as is the rank and file of the Republican party. At the time the League fight was hot in the Senate many pro-Leaguers made the charge that Republican leaders were opposing Uncle Sam's joining the League because it was a Wilson measure. This was not true, and it must not be forgotten that several Democratic leaders, whose partisanship was never been questioned, were opposed to the League, too.

As a matter of fact, when President Wilson first brought the League idea back from Europe the general unorganized sentiment of the country was favorable to the idea. We had heard so much during the war about universal brotherly love, and making the world safe for democracy, that it seemed only logical to the unthinking that, with the war over, and everybody loving everybody else, some sort of organization to prevent war was the next step.

The easiest thing for the leaders in the Senate to have done would have been to recognize this sentiment, put the League over and look somewhere else for an issue. But fortunately for the country, there were in the United States Senate many students of international politics who were not looking for the easy way. They recognized the fact that the world had not been changed by the war and there was just as much factionalism, as much selfishness and as much crooked international politics in Europe as there had been before 1914. They foresaw the dangers that would come from a political League of Nations, especially to a country like the United States which had already become isolated which had economic standards different from those of Europe. As a result there came the historic Senate fight against the League of Nations which was intelligently and convincingly successful.

Since that time sentiment against Uncle Sam's joining the League of Nations has been growing steadily in the United States, and it has been growing in spite of the tremendous propaganda for internationalism which has been unloosed in successive floods in the United States. The reason why this internationalist propaganda has failed is that the people of the country have been studying international politics and are better informed on European affairs than they were when the League idea was first considered. And again, this propaganda has failed because happenings in the world have steadily tended to refute the claims of the internationalists. The latest refutation has been the League fizzle in Manchuria.

The League will not be a political issue again soon unless the Democrats nominate Newton D. Baker for President. If they do, no power on earth can make the League from becoming an issue, not even a declaration against it in both party platforms. From a political standpoint the Democrats can not do the Republicans a greater favor than to nominate Mr. Baker for President. They at once would present the Republicans with an issue on which they have won two sweeping national victories, and on which the chances of winning are better at this time than ever before.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

IF "OLD HICKORY" HAD BEEN THERE

By George B. Lockwood

In the ten years ending with 1929, our total exports to all the world amounted in value to $49,609,677,114. During the same period the amount of money Americans sent and spent abroad was over $60,000,000. This included foreign investments and loans, debt funding settlements, tourist expenses, gifts, ocean freight bills and remittances.

Exports during the World War were more than covered by our direct expenditures, a great deal of them spent in other countries, all a contribution to foreign interests.

America paid for much of our exports to Europe by loans which we are now told will not be paid.

The European nations which tell us they cannot pay the cut-in-two debts owed our government and people, have already collected nine billion dollars from Germany. The allies are trying to collect ten billions more.

Besides, the allies received from Germany vast areas in Europe, Asia, Africa and the islands of the seas. We asked and got nothing. What is the value of Alsace-Lorraine to France? At the price of how many billions would France cede these "lost provinces" to Germany or any other nation?

Having driven a big and boasted trade with Europe on our own money and developed up prosperity on that basis, settlement day has now arrived for our foreign adventures beginning in 1917. That is all our depression and unemployment means. American prosperity has not been destroyed from within. It has been wrecked from without, with help from within.

Yet national leaders no less distinguished than John W. Davis and Governor James M. Day dinner at Washington that the trouble with us is that we did not get far enough into what Premier MacDonald so well described as "the European mess!"

Their prescription for national prosperity is for the United States to keep right on keeping on in European economic and political involvement, and as for what Europe owes us, the thing to do they say, is to displace more American production, which means more American employment, by more cheap foreign production, to enable Europe to pay

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Fred S. Sirrip, of this place, enlisted in the U. S. Infantry at Traverse City last week and will go to the Philippines.

L. S. Rupert of Bloomington, Ill., will next spring erect a cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Home resort. The cottage will be built of split field stone and the plans are said to show a beautiful and unique structure.

F. W. Lewis of Indianapolis is here inspecting his new cottage on the south side resort grounds.

Invitations are out for the opening of the new Hotel Bartlett dining room, Friday evening, Feb. 14th. The new dining room is the lower story of the large addition recently built to the hotel. The room is in every respect a model one, large, light and tastefully finished.

At the meeting of the Charlevoix Masonic Benefit Association held at the office of W. H. McCartney, the following officers were elected: H. L. McMillan, Pres.; W. H. McCartney, vice pres.; F. A. Butler, Sec'y; F. E. Wood, Treas.; H. C. Cooper, 1st director; J. N. Harris, 2nd director, E. M. Cuard, 3rd director.

SCHOOL NOTES—filled were the hearts and happy the faces of those students, teachers and visitors who assembled Monday morning to enjoy the first opening exercises of the high school in their new building. Seats were easily and rapidly assigned to those who are the first to study within the new walls. Upon being called to order Rev. Mr. Hughes read from the Scripture, followed by Rev. Nagler, who offered prayer. Rev. Hyslop, then, in suitable and graceful words presented the school with a gift which for years will add grace, dignity and inspiration to the walls of the assembly room — a large picture of our martyr presidents. The portraits are clear and true likenesses of those whose faces told of the patience, perseverance, courage, purity and faith. With sincere gratitude we thank Rev. Hyslop for his kind thoughtfulness and interest in us.

The Licensed Tugmen's Protective Association hall at the opera house Thursday night was a stupendous success. The most elaborate and striking features of the event were the decorations. The first thing that met the eye of the participant, as he ascended the stairway were the regular red and green lights of a vessel flanking the entrance, as that the chances of a collision under the most unfavorable circumstances, was reduced to a minimum. In the hall itself, the appropriateness of the decorations at once pleased the beholder. An enormous American flag filled the proscenium arch; the international signal code flags hung from the gallery railing, a banner was festooned upon those and all about were life preservers ready for the ones who fell overboard. The attendance was large and nothing occurred to mar the smallyed pleasure of the night. Capt. Sam Rose and wife led the grand march and Capt. Tim Smith danced every number from the grand march until the final quadrille at 4 o'clock in the morning. The L. T. P. A. are entitled to great credit for the success that crowned its efforts.

Forty Years Ago

At the council meeting held last Friday evening, a resolution was offered, submitting to the electors at the next annual charter election, the question of issuing $25,000 for water works. The resolution was laid on the table until the next meeting.

A majority of the council favor the resolution and it will unquestionably pass, leaving it with the people to decide the matter. Meanwhile it will be well to remember that every town of any importance in Northern Michigan, except Charlevoix, already have water works.

Shall old fogyism prevail here?

Nick Shores has been hunting foxes the past four weeks. He got one Monday, however. We think he shot it, but if the dog could talk there might be a doubt about it.—Norwood Notes.

Fifty Years Ago

The Intermediate Valley is the name of a new paper published at Central Lake. G. L. Thurston is the editor.

L. E. Allen of Saginaw, writes us that he will take up his permanent residence here about the last of this month.

J. T. Kirkpatrick has taken the contract to build four cottages on the Chicago Resort and is preparing plans for others.

Cross Village is 250 years old, has two hotels, five stores and one hundred families, but no school of any description.

The Orangemen are to have a grand ball at T. D. Smith's hall on the night of February 22nd. Blakeley's Eastport Band has been engaged to furnish the music.

The Historical Society talk of securing Col. E. H. Thompson, of Flint, to lecture here on Shakespeare. Col. Thompson is the best authority on Shakespeare in Michigan and one of the best in the Union.

Nat Burns, a son of Bernard Burns who has been in one of Meech's lumber camps, was seriously injured one day last week by several logs rolling over him. His hip was put out of joint, one leg and two or more ribs broken, and otherwise injured. He lies in a critical condition at Ironton.

Very little thought is taken of the perils that attend the transportations of the mails from the main land to Beaver Island during the winter. Of course no schedule of time can be observed, but trips are made by water and on ice whenever an opportunity is offered. Dangers are encountered which nothing but brave men would face—the terrible winter storms, the drifting ice, the blinding snowstorms, and in the spring the breaking up of ice, which hazards the lives of the plucky fleet travelers, C. Moore and C. Gallagher of St. James, are performing the service this winter. On Friday, the 26th, they arrived at Harbor Springs with the mail, and started out with the return pouch in an open small boat for the Island. During Friday night and Saturday a fierce snow storm accompanied by a gale made Lake Michigan a scene to strike terror to the bravest. Yet the brave mail messengers were out in it. The people at Harbor Springs expected to hear of their loss, and telegrams were sent along this shore, to watch for them as the wind was northwest. Word came from their own mouths, for they reached their destination safely, and on Tuesday arrived back at this port, where they remained over night and proceeded to Harbor Springs, exchanging their mail and arriving back here Thursday, where they were weather bound until Friday morning, when they left for the island, with a fair wind and moderate weather. Mr. Gallagher, the contractor gets $950 per annum for the service, but considering the perils of life and health, he earns twice that amount.

Sixty Years Ago

The stages between Clam Lake and Traverse now make the run in seven hours.

Another Charlevoix—It may be interesting to know that there exists a village in France, near Versailles, called Charlevoix.

Self-made men are apt to worship their maker.

Mr. Kiser informs us that he will put a full force of hands on the piers as soon as he returns from outside, weather permitting.

Home Education

IMAGINATION NEEDS THE RIGHT OUTLET

By Edith Lochridge Reid

Bobbie Brown's mother was out in the garage polishing the glass on the car when voices of the neighbors in the rear attracted her attention. The mention of her son's name made her alert, and as she listened she was seized with dismay.

"Bobbie tells so many lies lately that I'm not going to allow Stanley to play with him when I can help it," one mother was saying, and the other added, "It's terrible; I think he gets worse all the time. Yesterday he told Betty that she could take her big balloon and jump off the foot-bridge and she would come down like a parachute, because he had tried it. Betty asked me if I thought this was true and I told her she oughtn't believe anything that Bobbie says."

"He's a dangerous child to have around," answered the first mother, and after a pause continued, "he told Stanley that there was a pure white pony with a gold saddle out in the city park and that he went out there one evening and rode it in the moonlight."

By this time Mrs. Brown was burning with humiliation and trembling with the shock of the situation. She must do something about this, and as she stood rigid for a moment in silent thought as to what she could do, a ray of hope broke as she listened to the final remark.

"The worst of it is," the mother was saying, "the other children seem to be fascinated by his yarns. They just hover about him when he is talking, and admit in every word he utters."

This suggested a possible solution of the problem. Bobbie was not deserving to gain selfish ends, he was simply skilled in painting fantastic pictures to delight the imagination natural to his age, and he loved the excitement they aroused. Yet to the adult these creations of fancy seemed like lies. Mrs. Brown cringed at the words of condemnation which she had heard directed against her little son, but she was not one to dodge an issue of such vital importance.

That afternoon without betraying the fact that she had overheard the backyard discussion, Mrs. Brown invited half a dozen mothers of the neighborhood in to tea, informally. As she planned what to say in introducing the subject to her coming guests, Mrs. Brown recalled how many times Bobbie had recited some vivid story of the modern fairy tale type. But these tendencies had not alarmed her since she understood Bobbie's nature and his love of the imaginative. She had never caught him in a direct lie where a moral point was involved.

Over the teacups Mrs. Brown led the subject around to the habit of make-believe, at the same time suggesting that perhaps children should have regular outlets for these imaginative bursts. To her surprise and delight she found some of the other mothers had felt the same way, and even the two who had talked about Bobbie admitted that their own children indulged in some fanciful expressions at times.

"I think they dream these dreams and wish for these magical things to happen until they just have to talk about them, and they lose all sense of proportion and of truth in their relation to real life," one mother commented, and she received the approving nods of others.

"Why not encourage the children to meet and have make-believe sessions in which they could weave these wild fabrications to their hearts content?" asked another.

"And let them understand that at no other time are they to tell such stories—only at these meetings, under this open banner of Make-believe," suggested Mrs. Brown, who had hoped for just this thing.

"Of course we might allow these bedtime sessions at home by themselves, occasionally, with Mother or Dad as audience," someone added, and the point was admitted as feasible.

But the main result of this conference was the decision to have the children hold one meeting each week for half an hour or so, after school, or on Saturday, alternating at the various homes.

There was always a good turnout. Sometimes the children ate wafers and drank chocolate and told stories in a room all by themselves, but everything had to be centered around the make-believe, the bigger the better, and other mothers lingered within listening distance.

It has now become an established principle in that neighborhood to reprove any child who indulges in imagination unduly outside of these private meetings. "No fair telling make-believe now," is frequently heard on the playground, for a sort of voluntary code has developed that denies the right of fantastic tales except on regular permits, and then they are enjoyed with great applause, while Mrs. Brown and all the other mothers are glad of this happy idea which has brought them so much peace of mind.

LICENSED AUTO DRIVER 15 1/2 YEARS OLD

Probably the oldest licensed automobile driver in the United States lives in Michigan.

The Department of State recently issued a driver's license to Thomas Gordon of Grand Rapids, 102 years old. When the application giving Mr. Gordon's age was received, at first it was thought a mistake had been made. Then because of his advanced age, he was asked to demonstrate to state police that he could control an automobile. They reported that he was as adept a driver as the "average man of 60."

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

what it owes us.

Europe vastly increased her production during the fifteen years beginning in 1914, by the introduction of mass and machine production. During that period wages and standards of living were lowered in Europe, rather than increased. Without lifting her consuming power, Europe vastly inflated her producing power. The result Karl Marx predicted is at hand. With one-fourth America's per capita consuming power, Europe is smothered in a glut of goods for which she has no outlet at home. This is the result of attempting to raise prosperity on foreign trade, in which the effective weapon is a constantly growing cheapness of wages and living standards and consequent destruction of consuming power.

Because we doubled wages while Europe was lowering wages, between 1914 and 1927, and did from 92 to 94 per cent of our business at home, we increased mass consuming power until the rapidly widening gap between American and European labor costs began to operate to the injury of our independent industries and the destruction of employment more than five years ago. The battle put up by the international bankers and industrialists and by demagogues, prevented our Congress from enacting a tariff sufficiently high to bridge this change in living levels. By intensive propaganda, highly organized and heavily financed, the people have been led to believe that a tariff lower in protective value than any we have had since we became a great industrial nation, is the highest tariff in our history, and is responsible for the depression and unemployment directly due to the effort to bring American living standards to the level of those of Europe by lowering our price levels as a result of European and Asiatic competition. With international financiers and bankers having billions at stake in the attempt to save their European investments at the sacrifice of Americans, it was natural that they should undertake to fool the people about this, and it is not surprising they have been able to do so.

But in view of the fact that the people of this country are waking up, it is surprising that seasoned political veterans like Mr. Davis and Mr. Cox, both of whom as presidential candidates went down under an avalanche of disapproval of further European involvements, should again be preaching their America-sacrificing gospel. While Messrs. Davis and Cox were proposing this sacrificial program, another presidential aspirant, Senator James A. Reed, was demanding at Kansas City the further razing of our national economic defenses, thought standing on the edge of a vast area of the country now prostrated by free trade in oil, with a million Americans deprived of income and employment in eleven nearby states through the unprofitable price levels fixed by the inrush of an ocean of foreign oil and oil products.

Governor Al Smith has no longer head. He did not plead for either political or economic internationalism or anti-nationalism. He has recently shown some leanings in that direction, but he kept still about it on Jackson Day. Perhaps he recalled the famous letter of Andrew Jackson to Doctor Coleman, a Virginia Democrat, who wrote demanding to know if he was for a protective tariff; it was one he and his friends could not be for him. The always courageous "Old Hickory" replied that he was for a protective tariff, and if his Virginia supporters didn't like it they could support somebody else. "Let us be careful," he said in effect "that in patronizing the paupers hereinafter destined to raise the amount due to each plaintiff by the terms of said decree, together with principal, interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale."

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One (1) of Block and subdivision of Upright and Hurlbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointee on page 284 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee has thereon having been paid on account by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 23 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wildermuth, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38613

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE

State of Michigan, In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Cora C. Gelber, Plaintiff vs. Elizabeth Milloy Siefendanz.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, said court having been found to be foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of decree Jackson in Doctor Leland the sum of $842.66 and a further sum of $75.00 costs of plaintiff, making a total of $887.66 with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per centum per annum from date of said decree, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 23 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wildermuth, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38613

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE

State of Michigan, In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Cora C. Gelber, Plaintiff vs. Elizabeth Milloy Siefendanz.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, said court having been found to be foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of decree Jackson in Doctor Leland the sum of $842.66 and a further sum of $75.00 costs of plaintiff, making a total of $887.66 with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per centum per annum from date of said decree, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that I shall sell at public vendue to the highest bidder at the East Front door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court house being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th, March, 1932, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said amount due on said decree, together with principal, interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One (1) of Block and subdivision of Upright and Hurlbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointee on page 284 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee has thereon having been paid on account by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 23 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wildermuth, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38613

The SENTINEL For PRINTING

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of William Francis Jr., deceased.

L. E. Adams, having filed in said court his final administration account and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 14th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4283

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Probate of Will.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix, in said County, on the 29th day of January, A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased. Harriet Mary Block, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4153

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Seullin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 56 of Mortgages on page 284 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee has thereon having been paid on account by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 23 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wildermuth, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38613

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE

State of Michigan, In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Cora C. Gelber, Plaintiff vs. Elizabeth Milloy Siefendanz.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, said court having been found to be foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of decree Jackson in Doctor Leland the sum of $842.66 and a further sum of $75.00 costs of plaintiff, making a total of $887.66 with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per centum per annum from date of said decree, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that I shall sell at public vendue to the highest bidder at the East Front door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court house being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th, March, 1932, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said amount due on said decree, together with principal, interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One (1) of Block and subdivision of Upright and Hurlbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointee on page 284 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee has thereon having been paid on account by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 23 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wildermuth, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38613

DR. JOSEF E. WITTERS
Physician - Surgeon
OFFICES OVER LEVINSONS
9-12 A. M. 2-6 P. M.
Phone 553

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 109 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 724
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 126 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

AMERICAN LEGION PROMOTES SAFETY

The American Legion, with its 11,000 posts throughout the country, is aiding in the welfare activities of the nation. It has made safety one of its major activities; not national safety, but individual safety in the home, in the school and particularly on the highways and streets of our land. Recent estimates show that 100,000 persons were killed in the United States by all accidents in 1931, of which approximately 35,000 were victims of the automobile.

This new Legion activity has received the warm endorsement of all agencies devoted to accident prevention and safety education. Substantial evidence of this is supplied by the fact that the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters in New York, in furtherance of its conservation campaign, has furnished the Legion with a comprehensive test book and guide. Under the title of "Community Safety Activities for American Legion Posts," the Bureau has not only outlined what the Legion might do in attacking the serious problem, but suggests how it may be done.

Every phase of the subject is clearly and definitely covered in this attractive pamphlet of 38 pages, which is now going to press for use in the United States. The situation in industry, the home, the school and the street are all explained with suggestions for programs looking to improvement. Principal emphasis is laid upon street and highway accidents. Legionnaires are advised to get back of constructive legislation of all kinds, to cooperate with the authorities and other civic associations in working out effective, scientific traffic enforcement, to back the schools in safety education and to labor for improved conditions in homes. The Legion has undertaken a great work and its efforts will make life a little safer for us all.

RETURN TO FIRST PRINCIPLES

"New forces and strange tendencies have steered us far from safe moorings. The time has come in the nation's life for a return to fundamentals and first principles. In no other way can you find a starting point again for sound thinking and constructive planning," says Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

"We began with a simple and unique system of State and Federal sovereignties. We devised a well-thought-out and workable division of powers between them. We embodied our philosophy of liberty in an all-efficient Bill of Rights. And now by sheer Federal usurpation and supine indifference we have seen powers and responsibilities of the States surrendered, rights and privileges of the individual destroyed and the functions of local self-government steadily and progressively weakened. . . .

"I believe the collective wisdom of the American people is against our appalling extension of government into almost every field of private enterprise . . . The cost of government has grown fifteen times faster than the population, imposing a burden of taxation which is intolerable.

"I believe the collective wisdom is for a minimum of government and a maximum of freedom, and that it is against public ownership, whether of power, of railroads or other utilities, and is in fact against every unnecessary form of governmental control, because these things tend to put the cold hand of death on the creative and competitive impulses of the American people . . . "

HOW TO REDUCE WAGES

"The surest way to force wages lower would be to increase the tax on industries."

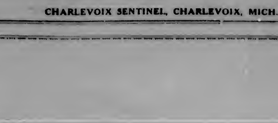
This is not a statement by a representative of a business interest. It was made recently by Senator Borah of Idaho, who is not generally regarded as a hero-worshipper of our industrial system. And the truth in it is self-evident. Those Senators and Congressmen who are now campaigning for greatly increased corporate taxes, on the old theory that the rich should be taxed to support the poor, are unknowingly enemies of the worker.

In the operation of any business, taxes must come first. They are a definite and inescapable levy. Wages and dividends follow. There is no way a business can either maintain high wages or pay its investors good dividends without making money. If an exorbitant part of that money goes to government, the other interested parties will be the losers and business and jobs will decrease.

In brief, keeping the cost of government at reasonable levels would be the strongest possible influence in favor of industrial revival, a high standard of employment, and maintenance of wage scales.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS



LAW OFFICE OF JAMES MONROE
FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA

In this quaint building James Monroe planned a quiet career in the practice of law. But Fate, or what you will, lifted the knocker on the door and the rest is history—three governor of Virginia, special envoy to the courts of Great Britain, France and Spain, negotiator of the Louisiana Purchase, Secretary of State, Secretary of War and fifth President of the United States, a matchless range of public service covering fifty years.

ROAD BUILDING HELPS EVERYBODY

We have heard much of the value of road building as a means of alleviating unemployment. Now it is interesting to see the actual results. During 1931, the building of rural roads and streets kept something like a million men busy in actual construction work—and, in the words of Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, "for each individual so employed the total highway expenditure provides additional indirect employment equivalent to two other persons."

Consequently, the 1931 road and street construction program was of benefit to about 3,000,000 men—which means that it helped some 10 or 12 million persons. Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the money spent went to labor.

The best part of all is that road building, even when advocated principally to help the unemployed, is not a "relief" measure of the kind that costs taxpayers millions of dollars which pay no return. Every time a rural or farm to-market road is built another town or area is given a chance to progress, to develop—and its inhabitants, particularly farmers, have a chance for greater prosperity, for a fuller social life, and for more advantageous marketing of products. It is worth repeating that the road dollar is a genuine, gilt-edge investment which returns a high rate of interest—not only in actual cash, but in benefits which cannot be measured in money.

A GOOD PROGRAM FOR 1932

Here's a good program for the United States for 1932:

Keep the nation, at a time when there are more war-dogs growling than at any time since the World War, in what Washington called "a respectable posture of defense."

Put the unemployed to work by erecting such economic defenses as will insure the American market for American competitive products as against foreign products made cheap by cheapening workers, and increase our foreign trade by the greater purchasing power for non-competitive imports that will thus be created.

Drop the job of saving Europe from itself, and tackle the task of saving America for ourselves.

Keep our nose out of foreign quarrels, thus keeping out of wars with the causes and purposes of which we have nothing to do.

Stick to a sound currency, even if the rest of the world goes to using wampum for money.

Let our foreign debtors pay or repudiate just as they wish, and take the consequences, since we cannot do anything about it anyway.

Take a breathing spell in paying off the national debt until we get the money with which to do it.

Use the axe on public expenditures until we are able to pay the bills past extravagance has created.

Stir up a revival of old-fashioned patriotism and religion and get away from some of the fads and follies that have mussed up our national thinking.

Impress our statesmen and financiers that looking after the United States is a bigger job than they have been able to handle and that hereafter they will be expected to look after the people from whom they get their power and their money.

Get back to common honesty and common sense in private and public affairs.

HOPE FOR THE FARMER

In a recent radio address, David Lawrence, the well-known political journalist and editor of the United States Daily, said that the great transition of agriculture from an unorganized to an organized basis, constitutes the most hopeful feature of the present agricultural situation.

The organization movement is occurring to a remarkable degree, not only in scope but also in strength. There are now about 12,000 cooperative associations in the country, with a total membership of about 2,000,000 farmers. They did a business totaling $2,400,000,000 last year —an increase of $100,000,000 over 1930.

Thus, in spite of present depressed conditions, agriculture should be optimistic for the future. The day the first cooperative started was a red letter day in the history of farming. And the day the last group of unorganized farmers join together for mutual benefit, the farmer will have reached the goal for which the more progressive members of his industry are working. The time when a man could stand alone in his business dealings is past. He must join with his fellows in the same endeavor, so that all may prosper and find a sound market for what they have to sell.

THE MAN—NOT HIS CAR

According to a brief article in The Safe Driver, a publication of the National Safety Council, about 90 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents can be charged to three things: Bad judgment, carelessness and stupidity. In a recent study of over a million motor accidents, it was found that the entire share of fatal accidents attributable to defects in the car amounted to only about 11 per cent, while for non-fatal accidents the car was defective in but 5 per cent of fault of the man who drives the car, and not the cases.

In other words, 9 accidents out of 10 are the the car itself. As Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard, has phrased it, the remedy is to convince man that he must live up to his car. When he reaches as high a degree of perfection in his driving as the modern automobile represents, deaths on streets and highways will be due for a 90 per cent drop.

The modern highway is often congested. Traffic moves fast. There is no time for absent-mindedness, for a single instant of distraction from the job at hand. Everyone who drives an automobile should keep in the front of his mind the trinity of destruction: Bad judgment, carelessness, stupidity.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

There has been a great deal of comment in the newspapers concerning the recent statement of Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the cabinet of President Wilson, to the effect that he did not believe the time was ripe for the United States to enter the League of Nations. Mr. Baker has been one of the most consistent supporters of the theory of Uncle Sam's adherence to the League. Several weeks ago, at a Democratic banquet in Winchester, Ind., he reaffirmed his faith in the League and it was widely stated at the time that this reaffirmation eliminated him as a presidential possibility in the campaign of 1932. Now many of the political dopsters are declaring that his latest statement to the effect that the League is not now an issue in American politics, puts him back in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mr. Baker in his statement says among other things that he thinks it would be a great mistake to make the League issue a partisan matter. There is not much chance unless Mr. Baker is nominated for president, that it will be a partisan matter again in the near future for the reason that Democratic leaders generally are as much opposed to the entrance of the United States into the League as are Republican leaders and the rank and file of the Democratic party is as much opposed as is the rank and file of the Republican party. At the time the League fight was hot in the Senate many pro-Leaguers made the charge that Republican leaders were opposing Uncle Sam's joining the League because it was a Wilson measure. This was not true, and it must not be forgotten that several Democratic leaders, whose partisanship has never been questioned, were opposed to the League, too.

As a matter of fact, when President Wilson first brought the League idea back from Europe the general unorganized sentiment of the country was favorable to the idea. We had heard so much during the war about universal brotherly love, and making the world safe for democracy, that it seemed only logical to live rethinking that, with the war over, and everybody loving everybody else, some sort of organization to prevent war was the next step.

The easiest thing for the leaders in the Senate to have done would have been to recognize this sentiment, put the League over and look somewhere else for an issue. But fortunately for the country, there were in the United States Senate many students of international politics who were not looking for the easy way. They recognized the fact that the world had not been changed by the war and there was just as much factionalism, as much selfishness and as much crooked international politics in Europe as there had been before 1914. They foresaw the dangers that would come from a political League of Nations, especially to a country like the United States which had always been isolated and which had economic standards different from those of Europe. As a result there came the historic Senate fight against the League of Nations which was ultimately and convincingly successful.

Since that time sentiment against Uncle Sam's joining the League of Nations has been growing steadily in the United States, and it has been growing in spite of the tremendous propaganda for internationalism which has been unloosed in successive floods in the United States. The reason why this internationalist propaganda has failed is that the people of the country have been studying international politics and are better informed on European affairs than they were when the League idea was first considered. And again, this propaganda has failed because happy-Leaguers made the charge that Republican leaders were opposing Uncle Sam's joining the League because it was a Wilson measure. This was not true, and it must not be forgotten that several Democratic leaders, whose partisanship has never been questioned, were opposed to the League, too.

The League will not be a political issue again soon unless the Democrats nominate Newton D. Baker for President. If they do, no power on earth can keep the League from becoming an issue, not even a declaration against it in both party platforms. From a political standpoint the Democrats can not do the Republicans a greater favor than to nominate Mr. Baker for President. They at once would present the Republicans with an issue on which they have been fighting among themselves, and on which the chances of winning are better at this time than ever before.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

IF "OLD HICKORY" HAD BEEN THERE

By George B. Lockwood

In the ten years ending with 1929, our total exports to all the world amounted in value to $49,600,677,114. During the same period the amount of money Americans sent and spent abroad was over $60,000,000. This included foreign investments and loans, debt funding settlements, tourist expenses, gifts, ocean freight bills and remittances.

Exports during the World War were more than covered by our direct expenditures, a great deal of them spent in other countries,all a contribution to foreign interests.

America paid for much of our exports to Europe by loans which we are now told will not be paid.

The European nations which tell us they cannot pay the cut-in-two debts owed our government and people, have already collected nine billion dollars from Germany. The allies are trying to collect ten billions more.

Besides, the allies received from Germany vast areas in Europe, Asia, Africa and the islands of the sea. We asked and got nothing. What is the value of Alsace-Lorraine to France? At the price of how many billions would France cede these "lost provinces" to Germany or any other nation?

Having driven a big and boasted trade with Europe on our own money, and dropped up prosperity on that basis, settlement day has now arrived for our foreign adventures beginning in 1917. That is all our depression and unemployment means. American prosperity has not been destroyed from within. It has been wrecked from without, with help from within.

Yet national leaders no less distinguished than John W. Davis and Governor James M. Day dinner at Washington that the trouble with us is that we did not get far enough into what Premier MacDonald so well described as "the European mess!"

Their prescription for national prosperity is for the United States to keep right on keeping on in European economic and political involvement, and as for what Europe owes us, the thing to do they say, is to displace more American production, which means more American employment, by more cheap foreign production, to enable Europe to pay

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Fred S. Stripp, of this place, was listed in the U. S. Infantry at Traverse City last week and will go to the Philippines.

L. S. Rupert of Bloomington, Ill., will next spring erect a cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Home resort. The cottage will be built of split field stone and the plans are said to show a beautiful and unique structure.

F. W. Lewis of Indianapolis is here inspecting his new cottage on the south side resort grounds.

Invitations are out for the opening of the new Hotel Bartlett dining room, Friday evening, Feb. 14th. The new dining room is the lower story of the large addition recently built to the hotel. The room is in every respect a model one, large, light and tastefully finished.

At the meeting of the Charlevoix Masonic Benefit Association held at the office of W. H. McCartney, the following officers were elected: H. L. McMillan, Pres.; W. H. McCartney, vice pres.; F. A. Butler, Sec'y; F. E. Wood, Treas.; H. C. Cooper, 1st director. J. W. Harris, 2nd director. E. M. Guard, 3rd director.

SCHOOL NOTES—Glad were the hearts and happy the faces of those students, teachers and visitors who assembled Monday morning to enjoy the first opening exercises of the high school in their new building. Seats were easily and rapidly assigned to those who are the first to study within the new walls. Upon being called to order Rev. Mr. Hughes will be well to remember that every town of any importance in Northern Michigan, except Charlevoix, already have water works.

Shall old fogyism prevail here?

Nick Sherman has been hunting foxes the past four weeks. He got one Monday, however. We think he shot it, but if the dog could talk there might be a doubt about it.—Norwood Notes.

Forty Years Ago

At the council meeting held last Friday evening a resolution was offered, submitting to the electors at the next annual charter election, the question of issuing $25,000 for water works. The resolution was laid on the table until the next meeting.

A majority of the council favor the resolution and it will unquestionably pass, leaving it with the people to decide the matter. Meanwhile it

Fifty Years Ago

The Intermediate Valley is the name of a new paper published at Central Lake. G. L. Thurston is the editor.

L. E. Allen of Saginaw, writes us that he will take up his permanent residence here about the last of this month.

J. T. Kirkpatrick has taken the contract to build four cottages on the Chicago Resort and is preparing plans for others.

Cross Village is 286 years old, has two hotels, five stores and one hundred families, but no school of any description.

The Orangemen are to have a grand ball at T. D. Smith's hall on the night of February 22nd. Blakeley's Eastport Band has been engaged to furnish the music.

The Historical Society talk of securing Col. E. H. Thompson, of Flint, to lecture here on Shakespeare. Col. Thompson is the best authority on Shakespeare in Michigan and one of the best in the Union.

Nat Burns, a son of Bernard Burns who has been in one of Meech's lumber camps, was seriously injured one day last week by several logs rolling over him. His hip was put out of joint, one leg and two or more ribs broken, and otherwise injured. He lies in a critical condition at Ironton.

Very little thought is taken of the perils that attend the transportations of the mails from the main land to Beaver Island during the winter. Of course no schedule of time can be observed, but trips are made by water and on ice whenever an opportunity is offered. Dangers are encountered which nothing but brave men would face—before the terrible winter storms, the drifting ice, the blinding snowstorms, and in the spring the breaking up of ice, which hazards the lives of the plucky foot travelers. C. Moore and C. Gallagher of St. James, are performing the service this winter. On Friday, the 20th, they arrived at Harbor Springs with the mail, and started out with the return pouch on an open small boat for the Island. During Friday night and Saturday a fierce snow storm accompanied by a gale made Lake Michigan a scene to strike terror to the bravest. Yet the brave mail messengers were out in it. The people at Harbor Springs expected to hear of their loss, and telegrams were sent along this shore, to watch for them as the wind was northwest. Word came from their own mouths, for they reached their destination safely, and on Tuesday started back at this port, where they remained over night and proceeded to Harbor Springs, exchanging their mail and arriving back here Thursday, where they were weather bound until Friday morning, when they left for the island, with a fair wind and moderate weather. Mr. Gallagher, the contractor gets $960 per annum for the service, but considering the perils of life and health, he earns twice that amount.

Sixty Years Ago

The stages between Clam Lake and Traverse now make the run in seven hours.

Another Charlevoix—It may be interesting to know that there exists a village in France, near Versailles, called Charlevoix.

Self-made men are apt to worship their maker.

Mr. Kloer informs us that he will put a full force of hands on the piers as soon as he returns from outside, weather permitting.

Home Education

IMAGINATION NEEDS THE RIGHT OUTLET

By Edith Lochridge Reid

Bobbie Brown's mother was out in the garage polishing the glass on the car when voices of the neighbors in the rear attracted her attention. The mention of her son's name made her alert, and as she listened she was seized with dismay.

"Bobbie tells so many lies lately that I'm not going to allow Stanley to play with him when I can help it," one mother was saying, and the other added, "It's terrible! I think he gets worse all the time. Yesterday he told Betty that she could take her big balloon and jump off the foot-bridge and she would come down like a parachute, because he had tried it. Betty asked me if I thought this was true and I told her she mustn't believe anything that Bobbie says."

"He's a dangerous child to have around," answered the first mother, and after a pause continued, "he told Stanley that there was a pure white pony with a gold saddle out in the city park and that he went out there one evening and rode it in the moonlight."

By this time Mrs. Brown was burning with humiliation and trembling with the shock of the situation. She must do something about this, and as she stood rigid for a moment in silent thought as to what she could do, a ray of hope broke as she listened to the final remark.

"The worst of it is," the mother was saying, "the other children seem to be fascinated by his yarns. They just hover about him when he is talking and drink in every word he utters."

This suggested a possible solution of the problem. Bobbie was not deserving to gain selfish ends, he was simply skilled in painting fantastic pictures to delight the imagination natural at his age, and he loved the excitement they aroused. Yet to the adult these creations of fancy seemed like lies. Mrs. Brown cringed at the words of condemnation which she had heard directed against her little son, but she was but one to dodge an issue of such vital importance.

That afternoon without betraying the fact that she had overheard the backyard discussion, Mrs. Brown invited half a dozen mothers of the neighborhood in to tea, informally. As she planned what to say in introducing the subject to her coming guests, Mrs. Brown recalled how many times Bobbie had reeled off some vivid story of the tenders fairy tale type. But these tendencies had not alarmed her since she understood Bobbie's nature and his love of the imaginative. She had never caught him in a direct lie where a moral point was involved.

Over the tearcups Mrs. Brown led the subject around to the habit of make-believe, at the same time suggesting that perhaps children should have regular outlets for these imaginative bursts. To her surprise and delight she found some of the other mothers had felt the same way, and even the two who had talked about Bobbie admitted that their own children indulged in some fanciful expressions at times.

"I think they dream these dreams and wish for these magical things to happen until they just have to talk about them, and they lose all sense of proportion and of truth in their relation to real life," one mother commented, and she received the approving nods of others.

"Why not encourage the children to meet and have make-believe sessions in which they could weave these wild fabrications to their hearts content?" asked another.

"And let them understand that at no other time are they to tell such stories—only at these meetings, under this open banner of Make-believe," suggested Mrs. Brown, who had hoped for just this thing.

"Of course we might allow them bedtime sessions at home by themselves, occasionally, with Mother or Dad as audience," someone added, and the point was admitted as feasible.

But the main result of this conference was the decision to have the children hold one meeting each week for half an hour or so, after school or on Saturday, alternating at the various homes.

There was always a good turnout. Sometimes the children ate wafers and drank chocolate and told stories in a room all by themselves, but everything had to be centered around the make-believe, the bigger the better, and often mothers lingered without listening distance.

It has now become an established principle in that neighborhood to reprove any child who indulges his imagination unduly outside of these private meetings. "No fair telling make-believe now," is frequently heard on the playground, for a sort of voluntary code has developed that denies the right of fantastic tales except on regular permit, and then they are enjoyed with great applause, while Mrs. Brown and all the other mothers are glad of this happy idea which has brought them so much peace of mind.

LICENSED AUTO DRIVER 13 102 YEARS OLD

Probably the oldest licensed automobile driver in the United States lives in Michigan.

The Department of State recently issued a driver's license to Thomas Gordon of Grand Rapids, 102 years old. When the application giving Mr. Gordon's age was received, at first it was thought a mistake had been made. Then because of his advanced age, he was asked to demonstrate to state police that he could control an automobile. They reported that he was an adept a driver as the "average man of 60."

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

what it owes us.

Europe vastly increased her production during the fifteen years beginning in 1914, by the introduction of mass and machine production. During that period wages and standards of living were lowered in Europe, rather than increased. Without lifting her consuming power, Europe vastly inflated her producing power. The result Karl Marx predicted is at hand. With one-fourth America's per capita consuming power, Europe is smothered in a glut of goods for which she has no outlet at home. This is the result of attempting to base prosperity on foreign trade, in which the effective weapon is a constantly growing cheapness of wages and living standards and consequent destruction of consuming power.

Because we doubled wages while Europe was lowering wages, between 1914 and 1927, and did from 92 to 94 per cent of our business at home, we increased mass consuming power until the rapidly widening gap between American and European labor costs began to operate to the injury of our independent industries and the destruction of employment more than five years ago. The battle put up by the international bankers and industrialists and by demagogues, prevented our Congress from enacting a tariff sufficiently high to bridge this change in living levels. By intensive propaganda, highly organized and heavily financed, the people have been led to believe that a tariff lower in protective value than any we have had since we became a great industrial nation, is the highest tariff in our history, and is responsible for the depression and unemployment directly due to the effort to bring American living standards to the level of those of Europe by lowering our price levels as a result of European and Asiatic competition. With international financiers and bankers having billions at stake in the attempt to save their European investments at the sacrifice of America, it was natural that they should undertake to fool the people about this, and it is not surprising they have been able to do so.

But in view of the fact that the people of this country are waking up, it is surprising that seasoned political veterans like Mr. Davis and Mr. Cox, both of whom as presidential candidates went down under an avalanche of disapproval of further European involvements, should again be preaching their America-sacrificing gospel. While Messrs. Davis and Cox were proposing this sacrificial program, another presidential aspirant, Senator James A. Reed, was demanding at Kansas City the further raising of our national economic defenses, though standing on the edge of a vast area of the country now prostrated by free trade in oil, with a million American deprived of income and employment on eleven months wages, between 1914 and 1927, and did from 92 to 94 per cent of our business at home, was increased mass consuming power until the rapidly widening gap between American and European labor costs began to operate to the injury of our independent industries and the destruction of employment more than five years ago. The battle put up by the international bankers and industrialists and by demagogues, prevented our Congress from enacting a tariff sufficiently high to bridge this change in living levels. By intensive propaganda, highly organized and heavily financed, the people have been led to believe that a tariff lower in protective value than any we have had since we became a great industrial nation, is the highest tariff in our history, and is responsible for the depression and unemployment directly due to the effort to bring American living standards to the level of those of Europe by lowering our price levels as a result of European and Asiatic competition. With international financiers and bankers having billions at stake in the attempt to save their European investments at the sacrifice of America, it was natural that they should undertake to fool the people about this, and it is not surprising they have been able to do so.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of William Finucan, Jr., deceased.

L. P. Adams, having filed in said court his final administration account and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 4th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate

4213

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Probate of Will.

State of Michigan,
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 29th day of January, A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased.

Harriet Mary Black, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4113

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Scullin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 86 of Mortgages on page 234 in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Tax thereon having been paid as appears by assessment, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby;

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co. nty, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1347.70 Dated December 16th, 1931.

H. W. Waldstedt, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger,
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 20513

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE—

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Grit C. Lofdon, Plaintiff vs.
Elizabeth Miller Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, and duly entered, I am directed to foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of said decree for principle and interest the sum of $812.85 and a further sum of $75.00 solicitor's fee, making a total of $887.85 with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from date of said decree.

Notice is hereby given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court house being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 17th, March, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the land and premises hereinafter described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree, together with principal, interest and costs due and plaintiff at the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One (1) Block Two (2) Subdivision of Dwight and Hurlbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale. Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Business Address, 108 Clinton St.
Charlevoix, Mich 4017

DR. JOSEF E. WITTERS
Physician - Surgeon
OFFICES OVER LEVINSONS
9-12 A. M. 2-6 P. M.
Phone 553

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 784
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

Just a Bag of Wind

THE FEATHERHEADS By Osborne

Bogus Royalty Practices Its Part

Bill of Fare

Along the Concrete

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL. By Charles Sughroe

Doc Feels Complimented

O. Henry's Short Stories

Jimmy Hayes and his frog. "Muriel" became favorite in the ranger camp. He was an endearing mixture of good nature and was never without his frog. But not once did Jimmy attain full brotherhood with his cursa.... He had not been tested.

Jimmy Hayes and Muriel—II

To make merry in camp is not all of a ranger's life. There are horse thieves to run down, bandits to rout out—at the mouth of a six-shooter. For time months the border was quiet and then Lieutenant Baldar and his gang crossed the Rio Grande.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

Drawn by John Hix

One evening about sundown the rangers halted for supper after a long ride. Their horses stood panting. Suddenly out of the brush Baldar and his gang burst upon them, blazing away with six-shooters and high-octane yells.

"The renegades swore and cut their Winchesters busy but the rangers pulled away, yelling. The rangers mounted and pursued but their ponies were fagged and they returned to camp. Then it was discovered that Jimmy Hayes was missing.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby frowns, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say, Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a generous dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring relaxed comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Noise Absorber

Dr. S. Burton Sklar, who was born in Lithuania, but served in the World war as a signals with the United States signal corps, has invented and patented an instrument designed to abolish unwarranted noises in an automotive or music hall. Also sounds are made visible by its vibrating diaphragm which controls a point of light shown on the screen part of the apparatus. The intensity of the tone can be seen by the wide, or narrow range of fluctuations.

Now easy to get rid of Gray

Keep Hair Naturally Dark

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair naturally, quickly restore its original shade by the world's finest, safe way which is now keeping millions of heads young looking. Besides the hair as it darkens it the shade you want. As simple as brushing. Try it. Per Grogins 75c for a large bottle of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and just follow easy directions.

Relic of Old Days

A striking relic of the old Commodore days was unearthed at Virginia Beach, Va., during the recent celebration in that city by Albert Ivemeier, of Berkeley, a souvenir hunter, when he found an imitation glass cigar five feet long that was used to advertise a famous cigar store 30 years ago. The device, forerunner of electric signs, was lighted with gas and is constructed of 15,000 to 20,000 glass prisms.

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

"Mummy, I've had a ribs-ribs-"tickle" in my throat and chest where they say is most dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle jab on Children's Musterole and every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known for years, in milder form.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief generally. Musterole gets action deeper in a scientific manner—irritant—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. Rubs in draw out infectious soreness.

Keep full strength Musterole in hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

CHILDREN'S
MUSTEROLE
LESS SKIN & MUSCLE PAIN

Absolutely Voluntary

"Are you Mrs. Hilting?"

"Miss Hilting."

"Oh, pardon me! My fault."

"Nothing at all, sir. I want you to know it's nobody's fault but my own."

Hold on, hold in, hold out.

KILL COLD GERMS
NAVAP
NASAL VAPOR
Clears head instantly. Stops cold spreading. Sprinkle your handkerchief during the day or your pillow at night.
PACKED 50¢ AT DRUG STORES

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 6-1932

"HE WAS BORN LEGENDARY"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON FEBRUARY 22 America will begin a nation-wide celebration honoring the memory of the first great American. For February 22 is the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington and as a result of plans which have been in preparation for several years, the observance of this bicentennial will be the most extensive ever held in this country. For the ceremonies on February 22 are only the beginning of a series of patriotic pilgrimages, pageants, dedications of memorials and other forms of celebration which will be held until Thanksgiving day, all having as their purpose a "reawakening in the hearts of all Americans of an appreciation for the character and the life of America's greatest citizen."

In addition to those celebrations the name of George Washington will be kept daily before his countrymen in other ways. Every time they mail a letter or a parcel they will see his face, for a series of 12 commemorative postage stamps, ranging in denomination from one-half cent to ten cents have been issued, each one bearing a likeness of Washington. In their pockets will jingle a new 25-cent piece which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" but will be one of the permanent coins of the government which also bears Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington on the cent, Washington on the quarter and Washington on the dollar. Also the Washington bicentennial will be marked by the issuance of a new $1 bill, replacing the present one which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" but will be one of the permanent coins of the government which also bears Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington on the cent, Washington on the quarter and Washington on the dollar. Also the Washington bicentennial will be marked by the issuance of a new $1 bill, replacing the present one which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" but will be one of the permanent coins of the government which also bears Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington on the cent, Washington on the quarter and Washington on the dollar. Also the Washington bicentennial will be marked by the issuance of a new $1 bill, replacing the present one which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" but will be one of the permanent coins of the government which also bears Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington on the cent, Washington on the quarter and Washington on the dollar. Also the Washington bicentennial will be marked by the issuance of a new $1 bill, replacing the present one which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse.

1—Portrait painted by W. Williams in Philadelphia in 1794 for the Masonic lodge at Alexandria, Va. The portrait will be on the one-cent stamp.

2—Portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which will be on the new three-cent stamp.

3—Miniature portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which was presented by Washington to his niece, Harriet. This portrait will be on the new one-cent stamp.

4—Another portrait by Charles Wilson Peale made in 1795. It will be reproduced on the new five-cent stamp.

5—Photographic reproduction of the famous Houdon bust of Washington which has been chosen as the official portrait for the Washington bicentennial.

6—The Washington bicentennial medal.

classes more than any other attitude would have done. And throughout the entire world the conservative classes, the middle classes, the solid, sensible nobility, and the people who, even though poor themselves, were desirous of change, believed the sensible, great man with an administration which would turned to contemplate Washington accomplished, by the legend which so immediately surrounded him, more than anyone else had done. By his personality he prepared the extravagance and the irrelligiousness to accept democratic ideas."

"There was a feeling of the revolutionary about him." So it is of the more remarkable that this Virginia gentleman, this land-holding aristocrat, should engage in a struggle in behalf of the common people in which he had everything to lose and but little to gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have enacted it.

For, like all great men—even more so than most—he was a lonely man—a lonely man, both in private life and in public affairs. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax. Even when he married Mrs. Martha Custis he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fax, "He seized in his diary moments during a winter's night that he had remained at home alone—although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house."

But this was as nothing to the loneliness that was to come to him during the dark years of the Revolution when he was trying to keep together one, wretched little army, which congress had given him for winning the independence of the new nation—and was given next to nothing more, certainly not enough supplies or even moral support for carrying on his almost impossible task. Even when he had been appointed, when the new nation had rewarded him with the highest honor in its power to confer, when he was free President, he was alone the free to discover what every President knew that was necessary—the friendship in a lonely job which only a colleague can give. There was no one whom he could trust. For he soon saw he made President there no friend himself friend of a young party—two opposing parties—which divide the conventional conclusions of the Federalists and the democratic-republicans of the Revolutionary.

So he followed his lonely course to the end. "On Saturday, December 14, 1799, at 10 o'clock in the night, he died. And suddenly the people of America, who had not quite made allowance to the bitter attacks made against him during the lifetime, acclaimed him as the father of his country.

He was buried in the ground of Virginia which he had loved so dearly. And the American school children now make pilgrimages to his post on the Potomac. They are told that he was a great Soldier, a great President, a great Sage. They are told that he was good, gentle and generous, disinterested, sublime. And no doubt it is all true.

But the children are not told that he was the last of the great land lords—that because of his love of land he directed the United States to the West—that he made great efforts to keep Americans from conquering their strength in fighting themselves; that with all his energy he had worked to give them a strong central government in order to destroy their tendency to quarrel among themselves; and that he had to scream with all his might to prevent them from tearing other.

The children are not told that he was the first of the great modern politicians who lied on the common people in order to get everything in time and but little in gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have enacted it.

For, like all great men—even more so than most—he was a lonely man—a lonely man, both in private life and in public affairs. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax. Even when he married Mrs. Martha Custis he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fax, "He seized in his diary moments during a winter's night that he had remained at home alone—although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house."

But this was as nothing to the loneliness that was to come to him during the dark years of the Revolution when he was trying to keep together one, wretched little army, which congress had given him for winning the independence of the new nation—and was given next to nothing more, certainly not enough supplies or even moral support for carrying on his almost impossible task. Even when he had been appointed, when the new nation had rewarded him with the highest honor in its power to confer, when he was free President, he was alone the free to discover what every President knew that was necessary—the friendship in a lonely job which only a colleague can give. There was no one whom he could trust. For he soon saw he made President there no friend himself friend of a young party—two opposing parties—which divide the conventional conclusions of the Federalists and the democratic-republicans of the Revolutionary.

So he followed his lonely course to the end. "On Saturday, December 14, 1799, at 10 o'clock in the night, he died. And suddenly the people of America, who had not quite made allowance to the bitter attacks made against him during the lifetime, acclaimed him as the father of his country.

He was buried in the ground of Virginia which he had loved so dearly. And the American school children now make pilgrimages to his post on the Potomac. They are told that he was a great Soldier, a great President, a great Sage. They are told that he was good, gentle and generous, disinterested, sublime. And no doubt it is all true.

But the children are not told that he was the last of the great land lords—that because of his love of land he directed the United States to the West—that he made great efforts to keep Americans from conquering their strength in fighting themselves; that with all his energy he had worked to give them a strong central government in order to destroy their tendency to quarrel among themselves; and that he had to scream with all his might to prevent them from tearing other.

The children are not told that he was the first of the great modern politicians who lied on the common people in order to get everything in time and but little in gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have enacted it.

For, like all great men—even more so than most—he was a lonely man—a lonely man, both in private life and in public affairs. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax. Even when he married Mrs. Martha Custis he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fax, "He seized in his diary moments during a winter's night that he had remained at home alone—although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house."

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Cornstock

THE PRISONER OF CHILLON

OVER 500,000 visitors per year go to the castle will tell you, now stand gently the very dungeon in which lived Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon" some ineffable, some ruefully at its scenic attractions, and part on out into the scenic beauty of Lake Leman at Montreux, Switzerland, admiring perhaps that the gruesome scenes prison they have read will was to that on the dark gray coast.

Francois de Bonivard, who lived between 1496 and 1570, was a Swiss patriot. In 1530 he was seven years of his life in the castle of Chillon, where he remained from 1530 to 1536 when he was liberated by the Bernese, who overthrew the Savoyards with a passion for freedom just equal to their own.

The fact is government had failed to attend and recommended the Council of Chillon concerning the business and revenues made by the captives of the noblemen's who also lived Byron, but the dungeon itself remains damp and dark and the very "secret" picture of Gaulin used in which Bonivard was chained still stands, carved with the names of Byron, and also of Victor Hugo, Dumas, Dickens, Murphy's and Stanley!

• • •

D'ARTAGNAN

D'ARTAGNAN, swashbuckling hero of Alexandre Dumas' "Three Musketeers," actually lived at one time, remarkable as its scenes are, in the seventeenth century a quite unromantic and highly respectable career, with just enough swashbuckling thrown in to attract the attention of a contemporary chronicler with an eye for the picturesque and also to attain immortality. His real name was Charles de Batz-Castelmore, but he used his mother's name D'Artagnan, and described it as the actual maternal owner of the place (which made and by selling down as middle ages as a favorite contemporary fiction does). He took left in the service of the French monarchy, came into himself distinction, enough that he drew service and rose to the rank of lieutenant.

Besides the Chevalier de Bonivard is of the famous castle, but it was naturally a popular household subject and was written about by many poets and writers. Byron's poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon," is the most famous.

1—Portrait painted by W. Williams in Philadelphia in 1794 for the Masonic lodge at Alexandria, Va. The portrait will be on the one-cent stamp.

2—Portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which will be on the new three-cent stamp.

3—Miniature portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which was presented by Washington to his niece, Harriet. This portrait will be on the new one-cent stamp.

4—Another portrait by Charles Wilson Peale made in 1795. It will be reproduced on the new five-cent stamp.

5—Photographic reproduction of the famous Houdon bust of Washington which has been chosen as the official portrait for the Washington bicentennial.

6—The Washington bicentennial medal.

RELIEVES HEAD, CHEST and BACK COLDS
ALBATUM 35¢
Stainless "Rub in" and inhalant unsurpassed in preventing and relieving cold congestions
QUALITY SINCE 1833 — McKESSON & ROBBINS — SOLD AT ALL DRUG STORES

Sudden Change of Plan

We wish to gratefully announce that we have given up the idea of buying a dirigible. It isn't the initial expense that discourages us, but the fact that the Akron (Ohio) hangar for the dirigible Akron cannot help scores of people. This shortage is said to have us business causing a disaster. We hangar at Akron is the largest building in the world without one

Is Repose

Another thing, your part time for you has your own name attached!

Penn Yan (N.Y.) Ledger-Sentinel.

BUILD RESISTANCE to Illness

You can help your body resist the attacks of many illnesses by taking Scott's Emulsion regularly. It contains a concentrated amount of Vitamins A and D which control the body's use of calcium and phosphorus, two vital elements in keeping bones and teeth strong. Scott & Bowne, Inc., 45 Hamilton Street, Bloomfield, N. J. Send for free booklet.

Scott's Emulsion
OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

Sentimental Song Made Official Royal Melody

"Home, Sweet Home," long one of the most favorite songs in the English language, has been given the official seal of royal approval. It was sung at a recent command performance at Buckingham palace when Queen Mary requested it be rendered by Miss Florence Austral, Australian soprano. Miss Austral was singing in concert in a provincial city when Queen Mary, who was also present, sent word to the singer that she would like to hear "Home, Sweet Home." Miss Austral complied and the queen was so pleased that she commanded the singer to appear at the palace. Miss Austral was accompanied by Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor of the London Symphony orchestra.

Just Being Himself

Mildred—Which gentleman would you marry, Jack or Fred?

Evelyn—Neither; I'm perfectly happy single.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Lonny Young, 1135 Arroyo St., has this trouble. He is in his sixteenth year and is in the eighth grade. Lonny has been going to school for some time now, and found that the work was getting harder all the time. He was unable to keep up with his classmates. Nothing he did seemed to help him. He was treated for eyes and ears, but nothing helped. Finally he was taken to a physician who found that the boy's tonsils were infected. He was operated on and now Lonny is getting along fine. He has been promoted to the ninth grade and is making good progress in his studies. Nothing to do with eyes, ears and nose—but everything to do with health.

Sentimental Song Made Official Royal Melody

"Home, Sweet Home," long one of the most favorite songs in the English language, has been given the official seal of royal approval. It was sung at a recent command performance at Buckingham palace when Queen Mary requested it be rendered by Miss Florence Austral, Australian soprano. Miss Austral was singing in concert in a provincial city when Queen Mary, who was also present, sent word to the singer that she would like to hear "Home, Sweet Home." Miss Austral complied and the queen was so pleased that she commanded the singer to appear at the palace. Miss Austral was accompanied by Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor of the London Symphony orchestra.

Figuratively

"That woman, Mrs. Wilbur, has a fine figure."

"I'm not surprised. Mrs. Wilbur has a fine figure."

"Yes, sir, figure! Why the only thing she ever runs merely ends in an underwear advertising scheme."

Don't Be Hodgepodge

Keep clothes in order. Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It's pure and makes linens whiter and keeps colors without streak. At all good grocers. Large package only 5c.—Adv.

Query

"A bachelor defends to share his troubles."

"Why should a bachelor have any troubles?" asked the married benedict.—Detroit Free Press.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are true to their name. They are small, easy to take. A laxative—free for a cathartic.—Adv.

Learning without thought is of little value; but thought without learning is perilous.—Confucius.

Good-natured criticism is the kind a man always finds out for himself.

"Chimes" and "Carillon."

Chimes are technically a set of six tunable bells three to twelve in number, tuned to major scale intervals. If there are more bells and they are tuned to chromatic intervals, it is a carillon. Bells may be played by hand-directed mechanism or automatic units.

Symbol of Freedom

The seventh bill bronze statue on the dome of the United States Capitol represents the Goddess of Freedom as she wears the famous helmet with an eagle's head and a long sheath of feathers on the crest. The helmet has closely over her long curls, which fall to the waist.

Coffee is the Lead

Coffee is the greatest single item on the foreign trade list of Lee Latin Nations.

STOP RHEUMATIC PAINS WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPERS

Relieves Almost Instantly

Good old Nature has put red peppers a marvelous therapeutic heat that goes right down to the source of trouble and stimulates muscles, relieves the pain and aches of rheumatism, aid joints, bandages and ointments. Thousands have found it the one safe guard against local colds, too. Now this great pain and penetrating heat is concentrated in an ointment that you rub on. In less than 3 minutes you feel its full power. It is called Rowles Red Pepper Rub Tonic. Will not burn or stain. Get a small jar from your druggist.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray Hair. Promotes a Growth. Prevents Hair Falling. Keeps Scalp Free from Dandruff. Restores the Hair. Try it. 60c and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N.Y.

Take Your Time

Remember the meeting for which you are late.

Taking Her Literally

Mother—Are you writing?

Daughter—No, mother, I'm writing.

Mother—Same thing.

MENTHOLATUM

Opens nose—soothes, soothes irritation in use of Mentholatum is sure. Rub briskly on chest to improve blood circulation and prevent congestion. Jars and tubes, 30c and 60c.

CHECKS COLDS

Taking Her Literally

Mother—Are you writing?

Daughter—No, mother, I'm writing.

Mother—Same thing.

Don't Neglect Your Kidneys

Heed Promptly Kidney and Bladder Irregularities

If bothered with bladder irregularities; nagging backache and a tired, worn-out, depressed feeling due to disordered kidney action or bladder irritation, don't delay. Users every where rely on Doan's Pills. Doan's has been more than 35 years. Recommended the country over. Sold everywhere.

Doan's Pills
A DIURETIC
FOR THE KIDNEYS

A man may avoid a slippery slope by keeping away from sweets.

Cuticura Soap

People of every country, who realize the importance of clear skin, should use Cuticura Soap for the daily toilet. It is pure and contains the medicinal and antiseptic properties of Cuticura which soothe and heal, as well as cleanse, the skin.

Sample Each Free by return mail. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 20, Malden, Mass. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Try Cuticura Shaving Cream.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 3:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Services, Thursday, 7:00
Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:00.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:00.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

The subject for the Sunday morning discussion will be the "Eighth Commandment." Thou Shalt Not Steal." We will try and see forth in a true light the Scriptural solution of our present day economic situation. One cannot fully but see by reason, otherwise. Again we challenge your presence.

The Junior Church Supper Monday night was a delightful success. The attendance was almost 100 per cent. Much of the success of the affair is due to the assistance of Mrs. Zaneta Miller, Craig and Vaughn Isaman.

The leader for the Junior Church service next Sunday is Master James Miller. The subject is "Jesus Bringing Happiness to Others."

The Ironton Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Thursday, February 18th with Mrs. Hammond of East Jordan.

A group of Scouts under the leadership of Mr. Chas. Emery went to Petoskey Monday upon invitation from troop No. 5 of Petoskey. Troops from other cities were present to help Troop Five celebrate an anniversary. The Charlevoix boys took third place in the contests.

Rev. G. R. Parker attended the "Ministerial Retreat" of Little Traverse Bay Ministerial Association Wednesday in Petoskey.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Resch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Tuesday evening 7:30 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening 8:30 o'clock.

The topic for the evening service, "Evil Spirits Abroad." Much interest is being shown in the messages from the Book of the Revelation.

The Book of the Hebrews will be finished at this service.

The Ladies' Aid will be held Wednesday afternoon.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject February 14—"Soul."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

February 14—"The Desire of the Greatest Ancients."
February 21—"The Skeptical Lawyer and the law, or who owned Bill Jones' Mule?"
"Reserved Seat in Hell" the topic not given at the Mission two weeks ago, because of storm, has been asked for, and is recommended for next Sunday afternoon.

Our Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. Partridge, on Park Avenue. The Aid Society luncheon next Tuesday will be in the church with addresses by Rev. Gratton and Rev. Resuch, of Traverse City, the Rev. Rustagh, of Boyne City and Rev. Leitch, of East Jordan, with some laymen from the churches.

In the League, Group No. 7 made the highest number of points, with Number 3 only two points behind.

The collection in Sunday School last Sunday was the largest in some years, according to the records, and the new class of young men, led by the pastor had an increased attendance. The Silver Medal Contest will occur during the Sunday School hour next Sunday. The Men's Club meets again next Monday night, and the Father and Son Banquet is set for Washington's birthday. Thirty-six used the new financial system last Sunday. The Receipt Chart, to each member, with all totals paid by each, will be coming out in March.

The call to prayer, in all churches, on Friday of this week, is sponsored by the various missionary societies. In the Methodist Church the bell will ring at one o'clock, as a call to prayer for usual conditions—in all of the homes of the church for at least five minutes. Such a home service is planned, instead of a general meeting in the church.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS
Charlevoix, Michigan.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding.

Alderman present: Fessenden, Fox, Hunkey, Kibbe, Smith and Webster.

Minutes of meeting held January 20, 1932 were read and approved.

The finance committee having examined the following bills aggregating $2,001.09 find them correct and recommend they be allowed.

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, Salary	21.25
R. E. Bartlett, Salary	62.50
H. F. Mauch, Salary	50.00
Wilbur Novotny, Salary	27.00
Grove Mayer & Thew Co., Supplies	8.85
Charlevoix Courier, Pig.	6.72
Dunham's City Clerk, Postage	.45
National Pig. Co., Pig.	29.50
Thomas Mahan, Dredging at Ohio Dock	18.75

Police Fund

Chariel Jefferies, Salary	60.00
Ford E. Motor, Supplies	5.80

Fire Fund

Charles Marshall, Salary	50.00

Cemetery Fund

Rose Nowland, Salary	25.00

Park Fund

Wood Bros., Supplies	1.20
Will Gowan, Labor	12.00

Highway Fund

Art Adams, Salary	57.50
Lee Allard, Labor	30.00
Dudley Lamoreux, Labor	14.00
Lou Santai, Labor	12.25
Harry Elkings, Labor	14.00
M. H. Hunkey & Son, Team	31.50
Dr. R. B. Armstrong, Serv.	12.00
Wood Bros., Supplies	1.50
Chas. Abel & Eng. Co., Surv. for C&G on lake front at at Antrim Street	7.68
Chas. Abel. & Eng. Co., Surv. and Rechecking plans US31 Helicoid	13.50

Advertising Fund

Archie Livingston, Expenses to W. Mich. Tennis Ass'n	24.76

Electric Fund

Dan W. Sonle, Salary	90.00
Milly Plume, Salary	65.00
Allen Ulrich, Salary	62.50
Archie McPherson, Salary	50.00
Robert Alspaugh, Salary	50.00
Frank McPherson, Labor	13.50
Claud Rose, Labor	1.50
Northern Auto Co., Supplies	8.60
Chas. State Savs. Bank, Int. on Bonds 17, 18, 19, 20, 21; Elec. Li. Ext. & Alt. Bds	250.00
Ben Brown, Supplies	2.90
Staley Bros., Supplies	1.87
Graybar Electric Co., Sup.	68.34
White Star Refining Co., Supplies	43.72
Ideal Electric Co., Supplies	9.36
Wood Bros., Supplies	41.06
Sentinel Pig. Co., Supplies	10.25
Charlevoix Oil Co., Supplies	2.62
H. E. Byers, Supplies	2.50
General Electric Co., Sup.	18.40

Water Fund

Morris Ackert, Salary	65.00
Mrs. M. L. Plum, Salary	2.50
James Hyde, Salary	52.50
Edgar Smith, Labor	13.13
Thomas Mahan, Water main at Bridge—Bal on Con.	400.00
Deposit City Clerk, Pd. Life	20.85
Argo Milling Co., Supplies	10.27
Charlevoix Lmbr Co., Sup.	10.15
Wood Bros., Supplies	5.80
Staley Bros., Supplies	.98
W. E. Byers, Supplies	2.27
Chas. Abel, & Eng. Co., Plans for water main	12.65
Robt. Russell, Supplies	6.32
C. D. Hammond, Supplies	8.60

Moved by Alderman Hooker, seconded by Ald. Webster that the Supt. be instructed to make necessary repairs on boiler of electric light plant.

On motion duly made the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

Miss Arbutus West, a former student in Charlevoix high school, was one of the attendants of Queen Jane Edwards, at the Governor's Ball, held in the high school auditorium in Petoskey, Friday evening. Miss West was escorted by Ralph Ranger of Charlevoix.

Local News

W. C. T. U. MEETS

The W. C. T. U. meets at 2:30 p. m. Friday in the Community room. The Frances Willard group will act as hostesses and Mrs. C. Hansen will present the topic.

There will be a Silver Medal Declamatory contest in the Methodist S. S. at 12 o'clock next Sunday.

Mrs. James Dalziel McNeal will contest the nomination for Mayor with W. P. Vought, the present mayor, at the primary election at Boyne City, and hopes to succeed in winning the nomination and later the office to which she aspires.

Edward Dyer of Grand Rapids and I. J. Smith of Ludington, representatives of the Michigan Tourist Association, spent Tuesday in Charlevoix and in the evening, under an arrangement with the Association of Commerce exhibited some moving pictures of interesting places and scenes of interest easily accessible to motorcar travelers who are making trips in western Michigan at various seasons of the year.

Mr. G. A. Shanks, engineer for the state highway department spent the week end here with his family at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Emma Bogart on East Hurlbut Avenue.

Mrs. G. A. Shanks and little son accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Emma Bogart, sister Marguerite and brother James motored to Mackinaw City Saturday when they were guests for the day at the home of Irving Sands.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams, after spending several weeks at their home here, returned to their winter home in Miami, Florida, accompanied by their granddaughter Mary Jane Nyman, last Thursday.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

Mr. E. E. Stroud, after spending some weeks at his home, left for southern Michigan Sunday. After visiting his son in Grand Rapids, he continues to Tecumseh where he resumes his work with the state highway department.

Rev. C. E. Taggart, former pastor of the Charlevoix Congregational society in this city, but for some years past in charge of the Congregational society at Reed City, was a guest of Charlevoix friends over the week end. Rev. Taggart was called to Petoskey Saturday to officiate at the last service for Service A. Correll. Rev. Taggart is always a most welcome visitor in Charlevoix where he has a host of friends and where every resident acquaintance extends to him the glad hand.

Members of Baxter W. R. C. will serve a He tea at the home of Fred Christensen on May Street Thursday February 18th at 3:30 o'clock. An invitation is extended to the public to attend.

"Bill" Fessenden spent the week-end with friends in Big Rapids.

Captain Thomas Mahon, who recently completed his contract with the city for the installing of a watermain through the channel entrance to Lake Charlevoix, accompanied by his son Lee, were in Charlevoix several days last week, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenfield of Bellaire are Charlevoix visitors today.

"Bob" Miles and "Red" McCann have returned from a short business trip to Detroit.

Miss Alice Edna Lockwood, R. N. assumed her duties as Charlevoix County nurse Friday, February 5. Miss Lockwood comes highly recommended for the work that comes under her charge. Prior to coming to Charlevoix she was school nurse in Detroit and member of the Visiting Nurses Association. In tuberculosis cases she has had a wide range with extensive experience in care and the treatment of patients.

Mrs. Nels Palmer came up from Ludington Friday and spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Clark, returning to Ludington Sunday.

Representative Louis E. Anderson of Northport spent Tuesday with friends in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Cram, recent visitors in Flint for some days with relatives and friends, returned home early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, for the past three weeks guests of their mother, Mrs. J. M. Clark, went to Ludington Sunday where they make a visit with their brother-in-law and sister, Captain and Mrs. Nels Palmer for a short time before continuing their trip to their home in Gloucester, Mass.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

DAIRYMEN USE STEAMED BONE MEAL TO BALANCE RATION

Everyone who attended Farmers Week and who was especially interested in carrying heard with considerable interest of the latest experiments on the use of phosphorus.

In this experiment quite a large number of animals were used and divided up into several different groups, each group being fed a different ration, One group was fed a ration that was considered a low phosphorous ration, while another group was fed a normal phosphorous ration, and by transferring the animals from one ration to the other the following facts were brought out.

First, the higher quality roughage fed such as alfalfa and sweet clover (as the more necessary it is to incorporate steamed bone meal in the ration to offset the low phosphorus that these two roughages contain. And, secondly, apparently there is something about phosphorus that is closely tied up with efficient milk production. This is explained by the fact that if one feeds high protein roughage such as alfalfa and sweet clover one usually does not feed a very high protein grain ration. Then, it is noted that the phosphorus content is too low to maintain the proper milk production, as the common grains raised on the farm and fed in large quantities such as corn, oats, and barley are relatively low in phosphorus, and this plus the low content in the roughage fed brings the above result. If feed an average roughage such as mixed hays, bean straw, corn stalks, etc., it is found that they are much higher in phosphorus content. Then, feeding a low protein roughage like the above mentioned, one normally feeds larger quantities of high protein feeds in the grain rations, thus unconsciously having a higher phosphorus content.

I would recommend feeding at least two pounds of steamed bone meal per hundred pounds of grain when pure hundred pounds of grain if feeding normal amounts of grain, and three pounds per hundred pounds of grain if feeding a very light grain ration. Steamed bone meal is the best source of dietary phosphorus and calcium. You will be able to obtain higher production and the cows will be in the best physical condition if this suggestion is followed.

In conclusion, merely remember that the use of steamed bone meal is more necessary when you are using high quality; alfalfa and sweet clover hay as a roughage than if you are using the lower protein hays.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agl. Agt.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

CLUB LEADERS TO HOLD BANQUET

All club leaders, rural school teachers, club officers are cordially invited and urged to attend a Leaders Training Meeting to be held in Charlevoix on Friday night, February 19. It will be in the form of a banquet to be served at six o'clock Eastern Standard Time in Mann's Cafe.

This is the first opportunity that the club folks have had to become acquainted and to receive suggestions and advise on problems pertaining to the carrying out of a high type agricultural program. Mr. A. G. Kettunen, State Club Leader, and Miss Sylva Wixson, Assistant State Club Leader, will be present to discuss in detail the many features of club work and how to most effectively carry out the program.

When one stops to consider that at the present time there are some 29 different clubs in the County, having approximately 200 boys and girls enrolled, then one begins to realize the wonderful results of this program and the many advantages that it affords those who join the movement. These clubs consist of clothing projects for the girls, and handicraft projects for the boys, with a hot lunch project thrown in which is made up of both boys and girls.

It is hoped that a large attendance will greet Mr. Kettunen and Miss Wixson and enjoy the banquet and other features connected with it. Reservation for the banquet will be served at six o'clock Eastern Standard Time.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agl. Agt.

I. O. O. F. CRIBBAGE PLAYERS WIN OVER F. & A. M. TEAM

Once again the I. O. O. F. cribbage players won over the F. & A. M. contestants in the games played last Monday night and at the same time increased their former lead by fifteen points at the conclusion of the evenings play. Prior to the play Monday night I. O. O. F. players were leading in the series by twenty points. This with the fifteen points places the Odd Fellows thirty-five points ahead of their competitors.

The Monday night game netted the I. O. O. F. players 20,578 points and F. & A. M. 20,563 points.

The I. O. O. F. teams also took the high score for a single player, this honor going to Floyd Ikens with 962 points to his credit, while Elisha Gee held a like position for the F. & A. M. team his score card showing 958 points.

According to a prearranged plan there will be no game next week. The series will next be in session Tuesday evening, February 23 at the I. O. O. F. hall.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

SCHOOL NOTES
(Continued from fifth page)

City to listen to the Traverse High School Band give a concert. Again last week they went to East Jordan High School Band gave a concert. They heard how the other bands play, their mistakes, etc. and thus are able to correct their own mistakes and are able to tell how the rate with other bands in the District.

Junior High School

The seventh grade sewing classes have been picking out the goods and patterns that their dresses which will be made in the second semester.

Geography

Since the seventh grade geography classes have finished the semester examination they have begun to study Europe. This takes up the study of Russia which they find very interesting.

English

The seventh grade English classes have been writing interesting paragraphs. They have been very careful to make topic sentences that hold one's attention.

Physical Training

The ninth grade physical training class of girls has been learning how to play basketball.

A most complete line of Valentines and Valentine Boxed Candy.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

JANUARY HEALTH REPORT
(Continued from first page.)

1 hot lunch demonstration
25 classroom health talks given.
7 addresses given, 398 attendance.
1 health show or exhibit.
75 attendance at health show or exhibit.
Laboratory Specimens sent to state—
26 samples of water.
Biologicals Furnished—
128 thousands of units diphtheria antitoxin.
Program for Correction of Visual Defects—
8 official interviews.
5 home visits.
Dental Program—
617 children given first examination.
193 children given subsequent examinations.
1,356 children requiring work other than prophylaxis.
54 children O. K. except for prophylaxis.
15 children given prophylaxis.
644 children referred to family dentist.
231 children having treatment completed by family dentist.
81 freq. visits, office patients.
16 freq. visits, clinic patients.
19 deciduous teeth extracted.
17 permanent teeth extracted.
58 children receiving local anaesthetics.
2 pulp cappings.
13 cement fillings.
2 silver nitrate treatments.
61 silver amalgam fillings.
2 cement fillings.
5 synthetic filling.
7 gingivitis treatments.
17 miscellaneous operations.
1 cases completed in clinic.
35 classroom health talks given.
1,101 total attendance.
1 talk given to 6th grade.
25 total attendance.

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fast all type of work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.
S. T. Gahos, Prop.
Btf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,000 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: WN of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information,
E. L. J. Mills, Manchaug, Mich.
1tf

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1931 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres., A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

THEY ADVISED SAVING

Washington and Lincoln, whose birthdays we celebrate this month, saw that thrift would protect and prosper the saver as well as the nation. Profit by their counsel. Build a savings account with this strong institution.

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert E. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Boon
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Lavinson

OUT OF THE DARK

Our country's darkest hours came during the Civil War, when the republic's very existence seemed doubtful. Yet Lincoln never faltered, with steadfast belief in the future. Peace at last came, and Lincoln's faith was gloriously justified.

Today, also, it is true that out of the dark comes the dawn.

1861 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1931

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert E. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Boon
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Lavinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 14

Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Charlie Ruggles, Peggy Shannon, Richard Bennett and Frances Dee in

"This Reckless Age"

Must youth have its fling? Every dad and mother, in hallowed, glowing hours at the hearthside, can see in memories, the things they did that parents called foolish. They too, once made up this "Reckless Age."

ADDED ATTRACTIONS
Screen Song and Talkartoon.

COMING — "CISCO KID".

NOTE:—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Turn to Your Telephone

—For shopping . . . for keeping in touch with out-of-town relatives and friends . . . for making social engagements and to assemble dinner guests or your bridge group, quickly.

Few things give so much useful service and protection at such low cost as your telephone.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1932 Number 43

TRI-POST MEET OF THE LEGION

FOURTH SESSION BIGGER AND BETTER IN EVERY WAY

The fourth Tri-Post meeting of the American Legion of Charlevoix County was held at the Legion Home on East Garfield Avenue, Tuesday evening, with an excellent attendance from the three posts of the county and from Petoskey. Judge Joseph Murphy, Commander Leo Holmberg of Carl D. Weaver Post No. 124, and Comrades Bellaire and Pat Murphy. A very satisfying supper was served at seven p. m. the newly remodeled kitchen proving its efficiency to the complete satisfaction of the mess detail.

The meeting opened in charge of Commander Leo Olson of Belvedere Swan Post No. 227, East Jordan, and the full ceremony was used, including the singing of "America" and the impressive thirty second silence in memory of departed comrades during which taps were played on a bugle. Judge Murphy spoke on various matters, notably that of the adjusted compensation and gave the assembly the benefit of his experience in forming and conducting a fragle and drum corps.

Comrade Henry, editor of "Forward March", the tri-post publication, received finances in good shape and promised another fine issue for the next number.

Comrade Bunker of East Jordan outlined a very beautifully conceived and ambitious project of his own for bringing home to the public in graphic fashion the part played by the veterans of America's three last wars culminating in the formation of the American Legion in the form of a four act play in which members of all three posts should participate. A committee of one from each post, including Dr. Bunker, was appointed by their respective commanders to consider the project at length.

Following the meeting, there staged an exhibition boxing bouts were put on by Kenneth Hayes of Boyne City, Carleton Ager vs. Archie Swartout The host Petoskey boxer and Ager was a blindfold affair and provoked much hilarity.

At the drawing that followed the supper, Commander Allard won the two dollar "kitty"; His surprise at drawing his own number out of the hat was equalled only by the good-natured raillery to which he was subjected to by the apparently indignant members.

Comrade Bulow, Clerk of Antrim County, urges all Legionnaires and ex-service men who have not already registered their discharges at his office to do so at once definitely, as the time limit for clinic patients.

Next Friday we play Harbor Springs at Harbor and line half of all of its best players through graduation as bas Charlevoix. As an example to show how efficient the two teams are let's mention the games against Petoskey. Petoskey went to Harbor and beat them by two points. Their team came here and beat us by 1 point. Although our 12-point win over Harbor was a victory for us both teams will have to fight. When the competition is strong is motive environment and fast playing so let's all go!"

Assembly Program

Friday afternoon the sophomore English class assisted by the Boys and Girls Glee Clubs presented a program in the High School Auditorium. Miss Livingston, Marjorie Partridge, Marguerite Chew, Jerrine Smith, Wilma Bellinger and Dora Young gave readings. Interesting discussions of different phases of poetry, the glee clubs singing several of the selections rendered and impromptu speeches Albert McMillan announced the members.

Jottings

If you are looking for Joe Smith you'll find him at Bellingers.

Ruth Bennett is the "heroine" of "heroine" her hair. She thinks she didn't read the directions on the bottle right.

Frail little Lawrence Korth eats yeast in school to build up his constitution. He wants to get big like Steve Young.

We wonder if the war between the Jones and Dionne has brought on a little "Chink" back to school. We are glad you're not sick any more Yestal.

Marquis Rose and Emerald Chew were in Boyne City Saturday. Emerald's basketball heroism seems to have found a girl friend for him.

Another young basketball hero has found a girl friend. We hear "Bud" Potter walked home with a certain young lady from the Hi-Y dance last Friday.

If you want to know how to kill two birds with one shot—get full instructions from Hugh Parker.

(Continued on last page.)

School News

P. T. A.

Last Wednesday evening's Parent-Teachers Association program of unusual interest was held. A Junior High School quartette composed of Grace Bolling, Barbara Withers, Charles Carey and John Block sang "Old King Cole" much to the pleasure of the grownups. A string trio, Lila McMillan, Albert McMillan and Miss Stubin, accompanied by Mrs. Hammond, rendered two delightful selections. Seven young contestants then presented declamations which showed much talent. The W. C. T. U. Mum Frenah, Mrs. Bingham and Mrs. North then spoke concerning homework in the grades, Junior High and Senior High.

Basketball Tournament

The annual basketball tournament which will be held here March 3, 4, 5, has eight class B entrants and five class A. Quite a few games of the eliminaries are in and final preparations are being made.

Public invited

A Washington Birthday program will be held in the High School Gym at 7:30 o'clock Monday. This program is being presented by the fifth and sixth grades and Junior and Senior High.

Class Work

Mary Margaret Orlowski, Beverly Lamoreux and Judy Superneau have just received certificates for excellency in typing. These were won according to the National Rules. Congratulations girls!

The Senior Civics Class is planning a meeting of the United States Senate. Norman Ance has been chosen as the Speaker of the Senate and Vice President of the United States. Political parties have been formed with Mr. Bill Schwan the head of the Democrats and Lila McMillan Leader of the Republicans. Who can tell but that perhaps some future statesman is in our midst.

The Dramatic Science Class are making much progress of their night and taught. As a result of these grades probably about one-third of the class will be cutting out during the last semester.

The Latin II classes are constructing large maps of Italy for the purpose of understanding the campaigns of Caesar in Italy.

Athletics

Last Friday, February 13, our basketball team played at East Jordan. At the half our boys lead by a score of 9 to 1. The first quarter after the half still found Charlevoix in the lead The last quarter revealed a fighting spirit in East Jordan. They began shooting from the center of the floor and raised their score six points making the final points. Our boys already registered their discharges at his office to do so at once definitely, as the time limit for clinic patients.

The next meeting of the Legion

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

SUGAR CROP STARTS FOR DINING PAWN

Every Strata of Labor Used in Production.

Washington.—Cuba's sugar crop is on its way to the dining table. Going on many tables now are sugar bowls made by dozens of the prettiest of this sex genius.

The progress of sugar from mouth-ing cane on the vast plantations where Cuba's fertile acres grow it to the sugar bowl on the dinner table, in a more typical, big money every stratum of labor from experts to agriculturists, sugar chemists and distributors, in the many labored of intermediate hands, is traced today from bookkeepers of the National Geographic society.

"Some cane must be undone in give the enormous quantity of sugar. When the stalk is in one hundred days old, it can't, it is, actually survived a moist operation up to which it has lost 75 per cent—its blades and the upper part of its stem have contributed to its nourishment.

"When the cane is ripe, the stalks are cut through the undergrowth, where a portion of the upper part must be removed, the sharp knife is pruned with one stroke. Then white sugar refiner tells now Cleopatra for the first time in the sugar making process. A man in charge of a vessel, which is called a sugar mother, as his work when slow and steady, he must watch the temperature for acids from juice from cane to final, for the sugar grains from juice grains to the crystals gummy treacle. The vacuum pans finally become thick with sugar crystals and the mixture is ready to be removed to a machine that separates the crystals from the molasses. A man in charge of a vacuum pan is called a strike master. As his work grow

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.

IRA A. ADAMS, Editor

Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS

One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

TAXES! TAXES! TAXES!

On January 18, Senator Watson broke a thirty-year rule of the Senate by asking that a petition be read. The petition, presented by the Federation of American Business, said: "Today combined American governments are spending one-quarter or more of our national income. No nation can stand that drain and continue to function. . . . The business men of the country, regardless of party, demand that government cease its policy of muddling and expression and perform the political functions for which it was created."

On January 15, Senator Borah said that a reasonable reduction of salaries of Government officials would save the taxpayers some $200,000,000 or $250,000,000 a year. He also introduced a bill to reduce salaries of $5,000 or more by 5 to 20 per cent with the exception of the judiciary.

On January 19, Governor Moore of New Jersey presented a plan for reorganization of the State government, the abolition of 42 commissions and other measures designed to reduce governmental expenditures by millions of dollars. He said that the taxpayer needs aid and must be helped.

On January 19, J. A. Emery, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, in testimony before a House committee, said total expenditure of the States and Federal Government and local units was $15,000,000,000 to $14,000,000,000 in 1930, of which $10,250,000,000 was raised by taxes and the rest borrowed, representing deferred taxes. He urged broadening of the tax base and advocated that Government abandon all unnecessary expenditures, adjust compensation in the Government service and eliminate unnecessary new projects.

On January 19, the New York Times, in a long lead editorial, said: "If the lavish measures proposed and backed with so much passionate and demagogic appeal were allowed to go through, they would ruin our public finance, and bring on disaster greater than any which the depression has led in its train . . . Americans may as well make up their minds that they have no Great Father at Washington to relieve them from all their distresses."

Thus, taxation is becoming our foremost national issue. Excessive taxes threaten industrial development, home building employment, the investment of capital, progress of all kinds. Those who are fighting against it are fighting in the interest of every citizen, no matter what his station in life may be.

PILING ON THE TAXES

New York is at present in the tax limelight, due to legislative efforts to increase the gasoline tax from two to four cents a gallon.

New York state might well profit by the experience of other states that have boosted the gas tax exorbitantly.

A tax as high as four cents a gallon is a dangerous attraction to the crook. Excessive gasoline taxes have proven to be subsidies to graft and corruption.

In all parts of the country high gas taxes have resulted in the bootlegging of gasoline on a tremendous scale—a scale far greater than is generally realized, inasmuch as the purchaser does not come in contact with the bootlegger.

With only a three-cent tax, it is claimed Pennsylvania lost $18,000,000 a year, and the legislature smothered a proposal to raise it to four cents.

States with high taxes are losing car registrations and, consequently, revenue. In states where the tax is reasonable the opposite tendency prevails.

Too many legislators have taken the attitude that, a reasonable gas tax being a good thing, a high tax would be still better. It is to be hoped that New York will set an example and refuse to take a step that makes the motorist dig still deeper into his purse, and strikes another blow at law enforcement and sound business practices.

PAYING THE FIDDLER

Agriculture is being hailed as showing some of the most definite signs of returning health displayed by any industry in a long while. Perhaps agriculture is recovering sooner from the depression because it has had it longer.

Agriculture is literally the business bread and butter of our country. If the farmer isn't getting enough for his products to pay for the feed he must use, the machinery he must buy, to have anything left over to replace these things and a surplus to provide comforts and clothing for his family, who is going to support the local merchant—to say nothing of the banker, the baker, and candlestick maker?

A newer and more dangerous development of the economic situation in which we find ourselves is evidenced by such outbreaks as milk price wars which have been raging around large city markets. It is in times like these that the consumer is able to appreciate the value of a great stabilizing force, such as the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association organizations. The lower drops the price of a commodity like milk—the more imperative quality control methods, as practiced by organized dairymen, become.

No one benefits, in the long run, from profitless prices for farm products—and organized effort through strong, loyally supported cooperatives has proven to be the farmer's best economic ally.

INDIVIDUAL FIRE PREVENTION YEAR

Each year we observe a Fire Prevention Week during which fire departments and public and private organizations work to instruct and interest the public in the menace of fire and ways of preventing it. During the week and the period directly following, fire loss customarily goes down, only to rise again when the lessons learned are no longer fresh in the public mind and the first enthusiasm has passed.

It would be a good idea for every person to observe a Fire Prevention Year. No proclamations are necessary, no meetings or exhibits need be held. All that is necessary is that each of us learn, from the vast literature on the subject or from talks with fire departments and similar groups, how to go about making sure that our property is as safe as possible from fire.

During the year we should, at regular intervals, make inspections to see that no waste has been left lying about in corners, that wiring and chimneys and flues are in good order, that care is taken in the storage and use of inflammable liquids and so on. If we are doing any building during the year, we should take care that it is up to the highest practical standard, as laid down by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. We should join with other citizens in advocating and obtaining, if needed, adequate fire fighting equipment for the community.

Let us do this—and then watch the fire loss record dwindle!

FOR THE FARMER TO DECIDE

It's up to the farmer to decide what the national agricultural policy shall be for the next decade. He has had a taste of almost every type of economic cure-all. The period of experimentation is about over. A stabilized farm policy would seem to be about due.

Secretary Hyde sums up the whole situation in a document which is regarded in Washington as the final word in clearing up muddled thinking on farm problems,—a carefully phrased article published recently under the Secretary's signature. Interpreted, the main thing about Mr. Hyde's article is that the Administration has decided to stop retreating and squirming, and to defend its agricultural policy forthrightly, largely by means of a headlong attack upon detractors.

Hyde, the orator of the Cabinet, strikes the keynote of this aggressive defense policy, addressing the farmers of the nation in a vehement resume of the Hoover administration's agricultural achievements and policies. The article of course is the first gun in the year's political campaign, and is an indication that farm questions will rank among the first two or three throughout the electoral fight.

The administration stand, in essence, is that of championing the farmer "not alone on the safe and comfortable side of reduced costs of production, but on the tempestuous side of price." Secretary Hyde says proudly: "This is the first administration to have done this, and it amounts basically to getting agriculture recognized as a partner, not a servant, in the house of civilization. The administration has turned from sentimental double standards of progress, has sought to stop overproduction rather than to doctor merely the symptoms of the trouble, and has moved to organize American agriculture powerfully so that it can meet economic problems on economic grounds."

The aim of the Farm Board activities is stated as "not to put the Government in business, but to put the farmer in business,—to set up great cooperative institutions which shall serve agriculture in the same way as the United States Steel Corporation has served for steel, Standard Oil for oil, and the Federal Reserve for finance."

Taxes, Mr. Hyde suggests, "should be raised from wider units, with a readjustment of burdens away from farm property. On the tariff, Mr. Hyde insists on protection for farmers in a significant paragraph which makes a partial admission as to the shifting popularity of a protective tariff among Republicans: "Now that industry, well established, is beginning to call for free trade," he remarks, "agriculture should doubly insist upon relief from invasion. Advocates of lower tariffs would make the American farmer manage to live on the same basis as the cheapest producer on the cheapest land of any country in the world."

WHERE GOOD ROADS ARE NEEDED

The farmer who is able to take his goods to market, at any time of year and over weather-proof highways, will always be far ahead of the farmer who is cut off from communication with the outside world by unimproved, often-impassable roads. Modern use of asphalt and road oil has made the low cost farm-to-farm road dream possible.

The lack of roads, of course, is not alone responsible for bad farm conditions. But it is an important contributory cause, as is demonstrated by increasing agitation for good farm-to-market roads in all parts of the country since economical construction methods have been developed.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The principle of the adherence of the United States to the League of Nations has lost another staunch adherent in this country, in no less a personage than Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, who is now out in front, for the time being at least, for the Democratic presidential nomination in the coming election. There is small consolation either for the internationalists in Governor Roosevelt's flat statement that he is not in favor of cancellation of the debts owed by European countries to the United States.

In his statement regarding American entry into the League of Nations, Governor Roosevelt is quoted as saying:

"The League of Nations today is not the League conceived by Woodrow Wilson.

"Too often through these years its major function has not been the broad, overwhelming function of world peace but, rather, a mere meeting place for the political discussion of strictly European national difficulties. In these the United States should have no part.

"In common with millions of my fellow countrymen, I work and spoke, in 1920, in behalf of American participation in a League of Nations, conceived in the highest spirit of world friendship for the great object of preventing a return of world war.

"If today I believed that the same or even similar factors entered into the argument, I would still favor America's entry into the League, and I would go so far as to seek to win over the overwhelming opposition which exists in this country today.

"The fact remains that we did not join the League. The League has not developed through these years along the course contemplated by its founder, nor have the principal members shown a disposition to divert the huge sums spent on armament into the channels of legitimate trade, balanced budgets and payment of obligations.

"American participation in the League would not serve the highest purpose of the prevention of war and a settlement of international difficulties in accordance with fundamental American ideals. Because of these facts, therefore, I do not favor American participation."

It is true, as Governor Roosevelt states, that the League has spent a great deal of its time in political discussions of strictly European affairs. That is what American opponents to the League predicted in the historic Senate fight on our adherence to the League twelve years ago. At that time the nationalists point out that there was grave danger of our getting involved in purely political questions. The real purpose of the League has not changed since then. No matter what President Wilson's ideals may have been, and it is conceded that they were high, European diplomats and politicians from the first intended to use the League of Nations for their own selfish purpose.

But if it is true that the League is being used for European political purposes, what of the League Court, a subject on which Governor Roosevelt is silent? In the first big test, that on the question of the Austro-German Customs Pact, the League Court split just as definitely on political lines as it would be possible for the League to do. France with her allies voted on one side, and those opposed to French dominance on the other. The real merits of the case were lost sight of. Governor Roosevelt might yet inform us what he thinks about this.

As one by one former pro-League leaders in the United States continue to sidestep or repudiate the issue, one fact must be brought home by this time to the densest internationalist, and that is the fact that the United States will have no hand in the political quarrels of Europe but is becoming more and more inclined to follow the advice of George Washington and avoid entangling commitments. And events as they occur over the world, day by day, are only adding to the proof of the statement that Washington was right.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The argument is made, as the result of revelations before the Johnson committee, that since some foolish loans, tinged with graft, have been made in South America, that our government should cease approving or disapproving foreign loans.

Because of the relationship of such loans of American money to foreign countries to the welfare of all Americans, there should be some form of governmental scrutiny of all foreign loans, not to the extent of approving them but of disapproving them and preventing their flotation to innocent investors throughout the country when it appears that these loans are not for legitimate productive purposes, or tainted with graft or usury.

The future of foreign trade for the United States chiefly lies in this hemisphere, and also in the Orient, unless conditions in the East become chaotic. Europe suffers from overproduction of most of the things we produce, and wants to sell in our market about what American producers need to sell, and on a basis of cheap production against which our standards of life cannot stand up.

But in Central and South America are fields for American investment and development of a kind for which our own experience as creators of values from virgin resources peculiarly fits Americans. Central and South America chiefly produce what we cannot produce at home, and there a natural demand exists for what we produce and which these countries do not. Here is a basis of fair and mutually profitable exchange, which will contribute in the long run to the raising of standards of living in Latin America without degradation of our standards in the United States.

An example of this is found in the Argentine Republic, where American loans aggregate about a billion dollars. These debts are good. The money has been used for development in the Argentine. European nations, especially Germany and England, had cornered most of the trade in the Argentine when American began this policy of extending legitimate credits. Now the United States leads in trade there.

South America has the area and resources to maintain a population many times that now living there. It is almost as undeveloped as our country west of the Mississippi prior to the Civil War. There are railroads to be built, mines to be developed and many other resources to be utilized. We have treated this situation only casually; it has not been a matter of national concern. But it should be. Americans should be in these countries, not as exploiters to the detriment of these nations, but in helpful co-

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Cadillac has bought a tract of land for a public park, paying $10,000 therefor. Charlevoix did this thing twenty years ago, paying $900 for property that now is worth $20,000.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Albert Brown of Marion Township by the members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. on last Wednesday evening.

If you want to have a good time just take your best girl for a moonlight out to Rosert Trimble's on Friday evening, 21st, to an oyster supper given by the Harnard Grange.

A caller at the Sentinel office today was E. H. Holben of South Arm. Mr. Holben is the oldest settler on the south arm of Pine Lake, having located there in 1860 -42 years ago. He has been a Sentinel subscriber for 33 years this spring.

In this issue will be found the advertisement of J. W. Harris real estate agent. The fact that Mr. Harris has decided to settle down in Charlevoix again will be exceedingly gratifying to his many friends. "Jim" was formerly one of us, and served two years on the common council. The real estate agency of Mr. Harris will be of a broader character than most agencies of that kind Mr. Harris being a lover of Charlevoix and having a profound confidence in its future, proposes to make the name of Charlevoix synonymous everywhere with the object in view of attracting people to the place. An important and very useful branch of the agency will be the caring for cottage construction contracts, and the inspection of new cottages for owners. Mr. Harris being a civil engineer of large experience, will be at home to do this line of work. In brief, Mr. Harris has superior ability for all phases of real estate and expert work. Added to this is his well known reputation for integrity and reliability. Mr. Harris proposes to "hustle" and that means a benefit to the place. Success to "Jim."

Fifty Years Ago

The furnace will go into blast again about the 25th.

The carpenters will soon begin work on the Chicago Club House Bowling Alley.

L. M. Kanazy and B. F. Wilkinson will erect frame barns in the spring.

Mrs. A. Fox and her two children will leave Thursday for a lengthy visit among relatives at Coldwater and Port Huron.

The Chicago Resort Association have expended $400 in improvements on their grounds here since October last.

Round Lake is nearly clear of ice, but Pine Lake and South Arm are frozen sufficiently to bear up the heaviest loads.

The Orangemen are to have a grand ball at the Dr. Bosch's hall on the night of February 22nd. Blakeley's Eastport Band has been engaged to furnish the music

Rumor has it that Col. Metcalfe

Sixty Years Ago

The longest state road in Michigan, the Midland, Houghton Lake Traverse Bay, is nearly completed.

The little folks of Charlevoix had a grand sugar party at the residence of A. G. Aldrich, Esq., on Wednesday evening and twenty pounds of Maple sugar was ruthlessly destroyed.

On the 11th inst., at the residence of the bride's father, Hon. John S. Dixon, of Charlevoix, by Rev. C. S. Coulter, Mr. David C. Nettleton to Miss Francis P. Dixon, both of Charlevoix County. The printer was kindly remembered.

River Improvement—Superintendent Nettleton requests us to state that work on the piers will be commenced on Monday, the 26th of February and owing to circumstances which compel him to be absent at the same time, Henry Morgan will give all necessary information and instruction. It becomes necessary for those persons who expect to pay the amount of their subscriptions in labor to be prompt, as the sugar season is approaching, which will be followed by the spring work, when it will be extremely inconvenient, if not impossible to leave the farm. Mr. Nettleton informs us that he will proceed to construct the cribs in accordance with the plan adopted, and build the piers in a north-northwesterly direction. We all have faith in the skill and integrity of Mr. Nettleton, and we hope he may receive all the assistance that has been pledged.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

operation with them. We need better shipping facilities, closer friendly relations, and much less of the disposition which has been shown by financial adventurers to engage for profit in the political machinations which have cost these countries so much in disturbance of their stability.

It is essential to this purpose however, that we should cease weakening on the Monroe Doctrine and in toleration of the revolutionary movements that not only endanger foreign, but domestic life and property. We have had much agitation looking forward to the decline of American and the growth of foreign influence in this hemisphere. We have had too much talk about our unwillingness to take a firm stand when militarists and politicos in these countries ride rough shod over constitutional forms. We have had too much imputation of American motives in this hemisphere right here at home among that class of political crisis which always assumes that whatever this country does, is wrong.

The United States has always maintained through its greater wealth and naval power, a certain position of friendly guardianship in this hemisphere. The oft repeated statement that this has been for the purpose of working our own will and ends, is refuted by the well known fact that with the power to do so, we have not seized a foot of land in this hemisphere by military means from any one of the many independent nations of the New World since the Mexican War.

Of course this country was accused by our domestic maligners of inciting the Panama revolution. When corrupt officials of Colombia, partly through foreign connivance, undertook to repudiate a solemn treaty with the United States and prevent the carrying out of this great waterway project, of more importance to Colombia and to Latin-America generally than to the United States, the Panamanians had plenty of reason for revolting, since they stood to be heavily damaged, and Panama exists as a free republic where we exercise rights only by treaty. In Cuba we did a thing unexampled in history in liberating that republic and then giving it independence. The attitude of the United States toward its many weaker neighbors has been a policy that would be utterly inconceivable in Europe, and it has been only the Monroe Doctrine that has prevented the absorption of these weak nations into the European hegemany.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Charlevoix, Michigan
February 15, 1932.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeson presiding.

Aldermen present: Fisher, Porter, Hooker, Kibbe, Smith and Webster.

Minutes of meeting held Feb. 8, 1932 were read and approved.

Alderman Smith offered resolution number (1) seconded by Ald. Fessenden.

Resolution No. 1

Whereas, the State of Michigan has determined to change the routing of State Highway M-31, whereby said highway enters Bridge Street at Cedar Street and extends north on Bridge Street, and whereas the said State of Michigan proposes to build a concrete highway twenty feet in width and whereas the City of Charlevoix has agreed with the said State of Michigan to increase the width of said concrete pavement to forty feet, including a storm water sewer disposal system, the cost of the said increase of said pavement including said storm water sewer disposal system to be born equally by the State of Michigan and the City of Charlevoix; Therefore be it

Resolved by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix that the grading and paving of Bridge Street with concrete pavement from the south line of Belvedere Avenue south to a point thirty-three feet south of the north line of Carpenter Avenue forty feet in width including the necessary curbing, gutters, man holes cross-walks, storm water sewerage and approaches to a necessary public improvement.

Resolved further that the plats, plans, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost be deposited with the City Clerk for public examination, and that notice thereof, and of the proposed improvement and of the district to be assessed, as above described and designated, and that the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix will meet in the Council Room in said City on Thursday, the Third day of March, 1932, at seven-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, Central Standard Time, to consider any objections thereto, be given by publication for two successive weeks in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper, published and circulated in said City of Charlevoix.

Adopted this 15th day of February in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Fessenden, Porter, Hooker, Kibbe Smith and Webster. Nays—None.

Arthur Bergeson, Mayor

(Countersigned)

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

Alderman Webster offered resolution No. 2, seconded by Alderman Foster.

Resolution No. 2

Resolved by the common council of the city of Charlevoix that the establishing and constructing of a sewer, including the construction of all the necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins, flush-tanks and all necessary attachments including lot laterals in said street in said City of Charlevoix, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue on both sides of Bridge Street from south on Bridge Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

Resolved that the said plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost be deposited with the City Clerk for public examination and that notice thereof of the said public improvement and of the district to be assessed as above described and designated and that the common council of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room on Thursday the third day of March, A. D. 1932, at seven-thirty o'clock, Central Standard Time, in the afternoon to consider any objections thereto to be given for publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper published and circulated in the City of Charlevoix.

This resolution was passed and adopted by a two-thirds majority vote of all the aldermen elect the 15th day of February A. D. 1932 by the following yea and nay vote, to wit:

Yeas All. Fessenden, Foster, Kibbe, Hooker, Smith and Webster.

Nays—None.

Absent: None.

Absent: None.

Arthur Bergeson, Mayor.

Attest: Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

Resolved by the common council that whereas Monday, February 22, is a legal holiday that the council meet on Tuesday, February 23 and audit all bills.

Alderman Smith offered resolution as read above, seconded by Alderman Webster.

On motion the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

OPPORTUNITY

John J. Ingalls

Master of human destinies am I—
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and Seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate!
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore—
I answer not, and I return no more.

ABNORMALITIES IN FISH

Probably no other living species produce more abnormalities than fish, according to the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation. Two headed fish are not uncommonly hatched in the various stations operated by the Division and instances have been cited when fish have been born with five perfect heads to a single body and tail. These fish, do not generally live past the stage when artificial feeding becomes necessary. However, some of them do live to the adult stage. A few years ago a legal sized perch having two heads was caught in a lake near Cadillac.

Mrs. F. J. Fessenden was called to Olivet last week by the illness of her daughter Lola, but found it unnecessary to remain.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CONSTRUCT A SEWER.

Notice is hereby given that the common council of the City of Charlevoix intends to construct a sewer in Bridge Street in the City of Charlevoix, including the construction of all necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins and flush-tanks and all necessary attachments including lot laterals connecting on Bridge Street sixteen feet south of the center of West Green Avenue thence south on Bridge Street and thirty feet, connecting with the sewer already established in West Grace Avenue.

And the following territory is designated and established as a special assessment district therefor, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue on both sides of Bridge Street thence south on Bridge Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

Resolved that the said plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost be deposited with the City Clerk for public examination and that notice thereof of the said public improvement and of the district to be assessed as above described and designated and that the common council of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room on Thursday the third day of March, A. D. 1932, at seven-thirty o'clock, Central Standard Time, in the afternoon to consider any objections thereto to be given for publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper published and circulated in the City of Charlevoix.

This resolution was passed and adopted by a two-thirds majority vote of all the aldermen elect the 15th day of February A. D. 1932 by the following yea and nay vote, to wit:

Yeas All. Fessenden, Foster, Kibbe, Hooker, Smith and Webster.

Nays—None.

Absent: None.

Absent: None.

Arthur Bergeson, Mayor.

Attest: Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

Resolved by the common council that whereas Monday, February 22, is a legal holiday that the council meet on Tuesday, February 23 and audit all bills.

Alderman Smith offered resolution as read above, seconded by Alderman Webster.

On motion the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

OPPORTUNITY

John J. Ingalls

Master of human destinies am I—
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and Seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate!
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore—
I answer not, and I return no more.

ABNORMALITIES IN FISH

Probably no other living species produce more abnormalities than fish, according to the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation. Two headed fish are not uncommonly hatched in the various stations operated by the Division and instances have been cited when fish have been born with five perfect heads to a single body and tail. These fish, do not generally live past the stage when artificial feeding becomes necessary. However, some of them do live to the adult stage. A few years ago a legal sized perch having two heads was caught in a lake near Cadillac.

Mrs. F. J. Fessenden was called to Olivet last week by the illness of her daughter Lola, but found it unnecessary to remain.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CONSTRUCT A SEWER.

Notice is hereby given that the common council of the City of Charlevoix intends to construct a sewer in Bridge Street in the City of Charlevoix, including the construction of all necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins and flush-tanks and all necessary attachments including lot laterals connecting on Bridge Street sixteen feet south of the center of West Green Avenue thence south on Bridge Street and thirty feet, connecting with the sewer already established in West Grace Avenue.

And the following territory is designated and established as a special assessment district therefor, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue on both sides of Bridge Street thence south on Bridge Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

Resolved that the said plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost be deposited with the City Clerk for public examination and that notice thereof of the said public improvement and of the district to be assessed as above described and designated and that the common council of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room on Thursday the third day of March, A. D. 1932, at seven-thirty o'clock, Central Standard Time, in the afternoon to consider any objections thereto to be given for publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper published and circulated in the City of Charlevoix.

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee Tax thereon having been paid as appears by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz. Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1547.79

Dated December 15th, 1931.

H. W. Widdifield Mortgagee

Widdifield & Widdifield, Mich.

E. A. Rosenberger

Attg. for Mortgagee.

Address Charlevoix, Mich. 3843

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE.

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Geik C. Geiken, Plaintiff vs.

Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in cause above, said cause being then & there to foreclose certain mortgages on the premises therein and the date of said decree for principal and interest being the sum of $812.40 and a further sum of $25.00 costs of plaintiff, making a total of $837.65 with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.

Notice is hereby given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th March, 1932, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the land and premises hereinafter described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree together with principal interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One Hundred and ninetyvais of Upright and Hurlbutt's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale. Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,

Attorney for Plaintiff.

Business address, 104 Clinton St. Charlevoix, Mich. 4047

DR. JOSEF E. WITTERS

Physician - Surgeon

OFFICES OVER LEVINSONS

9-12 A. M. 2-6 P. M.

Phone 553

LISLE SHANAHAN

ATTORNEY AT LAW

Office 108 Clinton Street

CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART

GENERAL CONTRACTOR

No Job Too Large

No Job Too Small

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER

DENTIST

318 Bridge Street

Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE

Funeral Director

AMBULANCE SERVICE

Day 1 Phone Night 724

Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS

ATTORNEY AT LAW

Office—Court House

Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM

CHIROPRACTOR

Bartholomew Block

Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.

Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE

Gerald W. Richardson

CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION.—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the Estate of William Hansen, Jr., deceased.

L. P. Adams, having filed in said court his final administration account and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 4th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for examining said following said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That publication thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,

4213 Judge of Probate.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION.—Probate of Will.

State of Michigan

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County on the 20th day of January A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased

Harriet Mary Block, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4215

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Soulin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 19th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 56 of Mortgages on page 284 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgagee Tax thereon having been paid as appears by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz. Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1547.79

Dated December 15th, 1931.

H. W. Widdifield Mortgagee

Widdifield & Widdifield, Mich.

E. A. Rosenberger

Attg. for Mortgagee.

Address Charlevoix, Mich. 3843

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE.—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Geik C. Geiken, Plaintiff vs.

Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in cause above, said cause being then & there to foreclose certain mortgages on the premises therein and the date of said decree for principal and interest being the sum of $812.40 and a further sum of $25.00 costs of plaintiff, making a total of $837.65 with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.

Notice is hereby given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th March, 1932, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the land and premises hereinafter described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree together with principal interest and costs due said plaintiff at the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One Hundred and ninetyvais of Upright and Hurlbutt's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale. Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,

Attorney for Plaintiff.

Business address, 104 Clinton St. Charlevoix, Mich. 4047

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

A Dumb-Bell Suggestion

THE FEATHERHEADS By Osborne

The Joke Takes Another Turn

Needed, a Laundress

WRONG GRAMMAR

She—Grace has a very pretty niece. Her—Dunk grandest! You should say she has pretty knees.

HAULED OVER COALS

WHY BOYS LEAVE HOME By JOE ARCHIBALD

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL By Charles Sughroe

This Guy Could Lose Anything!

O. Henry's Short Stories

Jimmy Hayes and Muriel—III

The Mexican bandit gang had got away, but Steve Hayes was missing, along with Muriel, his frog. Jimmy had never been in a skirmish before, and its rigors suspected that Jimmy had turned coward at the sight of bullets. Never before had a ranger—shown the white feather. The company was gloomy. Months passed by and still that cloud of cowardice hung above the name. A year later the troop was in the same country looking for smugglers. One day they came across the skeletons of three Mexicans.

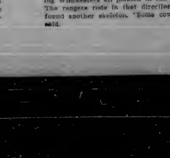
Their clothing identified them. The largest had once been Estanislao Soldat, the bandit. Their pursuing Winchesters all pointed in the same direction. The rangers rode in that direction 50 yards and found another skeleton. "Some cowpuncher," they said.

And then, from beneath the rags of the dead man there wriggled a horned toad, a faded red ribbon around his neck. Merely it told the story of how Jimmy had pursued the bandits, how he had gone down in triumph, upholding the honor of the rangers.

Drawn by John Hix



STOP YOUR COLD IN 6 HOURS WITH DAROL
25c Breaks a cold in 6 hours. Relieves it away in 12 hours. Relieves Headache—Neuralgia—Pains
McKESSON & ROBBINS Quality Since 1833

States' Bear Populations

Continents had the biggest number of bears in national forests in 1936, having 4,004 black bears and a number of grizzly bears reported. This is as near as a definite census of bears can be reached in this country. Alaska had 5,500 black bears and 2,500 grizzly and Alaskan brown bears.

BAYER ASPIRIN is always SAFE
Demand this package
Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

Beware of Imitations

GENUINE Bayer Aspirin, the kind doctors prescribe and millions of users have proven safe for more than thirty years, can easily be identified by the name Bayer and the word genuine as above.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin is safe and sure; always the same. It has the unqualified endorsement of physicians and druggists everywhere. It doesn't depress the heart. No harmful after-effects follow its use.

Bayer Aspirin is the universal antidote for pains of all kinds:

Headaches	Neuritis
Colds	Neuralgia
Sore Throat	Lumbago
Rheumatism	Toothache

Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer manufacture of monoaceticacidester of salicylicacid.

Brain Model in Neon Tubes

An accomplished replica of the human brain and central nerve system has been made by two physicians of Vienna, Austria. One hundred pieces of neon tube were used. The glass construction enables the showing of both exterior and interior parts, each particular section being illuminated as desired during lectures.

RHEUMATIC PAINS relieved this quick way
If the stubborn pains of rheumatism are relieving you, don't go good and St. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes in a minute. This famous, speedy cleans out pain and inflammation. It's the quick, safe way to stop aches and pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago or Backache. Nonnarcotic—no habit forming. No blistering. No burning. Get a small bottle at any drug store.

Conservationist!

"That man prefers horses to motors as being a conservationist."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "He's never so happy as when he makes a string of people mose over trails that he conscientiously the bureau of conservation."

Fa Route to Niagara Falls

Slim—What's the value of a kiss?

Jim—Well, with some girls it will get through most examinations and it was worth it.

Not So Fresh

Landlady—So Mr. Newlywed has been complaining about this morning.

Mail—No, mum. It's the eggs.

BREATHE FREELY in 30 seconds
Apply soothing cream—keeps nostrils open—Catarrh disappears
What magical relief! Soothed, open nostrils open right up, the head passages clear and you breathe freely the very moment you apply a little fragrant, ointment. EL-EX CREAM HALM is each nostril. Relief and comfort are yours all night and all day. There's nothing better for clearing air passages, soothing inflamed, sore tissue and it even relieves Catarrh and head colds. Get a little HUYI'S CREAM BALM from your druggist today.

Mere Matter of Money

Millionaire—You say I can help you financially? Bowling bee?

Young man—Yes, sir, by subscribing to the magazine for 500 years.

It never kills a law to execute it.

ADVISES HEAT OF RED PEPPERS FOR RHEUMATISM
Brings Almost Instant Relief
When the intolerable pains of rheumatism crashes on sensitive nerves and you nearly scream with agony, then is the marvelous heat Nature puts into red peppers. Use it in this penetrating form that relieves all pain as it soothes and gets down under the skin, and starts to clear up inflammation instantly. It is this genuine red pepper heat that is now contained in an ointment called Heet-Pain Red Pepper Rub Argoo rub it in you can feel relief come. There's no mistaking the fine tingling warmth—no other ointment has it. Merely it told the story of how Jimmy had pursued the bandits, how he had gone down in triumph, upholding the honor of the rangers.

HOW I MAKE A DIME BUY 30 TO 40 PERFECT CIGARETTES!!!!

IT'S a fact, men. With this new Target Tobacco I roll from 30 to 40 cigarettes for a dime. And they're some cigarettes! They taste and look like ready-mades. It's real cigarette tobacco and it's so darned easy to roll. I never thought I'd have the patience to roll my own, but now you couldn't change me. I'm havin' the best smokin' I ever had and I'm savin' 4 'dits a week. Whether you're interested in savin' or not, I advise you to step right into a store and slap down a dime for this real cigarette tobacco.

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
Try 10 ready made cigarettes you pay 10 Federal tax (plus a state tax in some states). With Target you pay only 1¢. And your choice often you a refund if you don't say Target is better than any other cigarette tobacco you have ever rolled.

WRAPPED IN MOISTUREPROOF CELLOPHANE

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky

What Started It All!

Wifey—How my new shawl does? How do you like them?

Hubby—They're tiresome!

MENTHOLATUM Keeps hands in good condition for outdoor work by using Mentholatum regularly. It is indispensable for cracked, sore skin, face or lips. 30c. CHAPPED SKIN

Pessimist

"Here's an article that says we'll be"

"No, just a pessimist the darned lazy to type."—Boston Transcript.

Feeling Stale? You are free from the occasional attacks of constipation when you drink GARFIELD TEA. Get a package today. Directions in each package. A Natural Laxative Drink
GARFIELD TEA
A Herbal Laxative Drink
A former can still enjoy a good 15 minute in his own home—no matter what it would cost him in town.

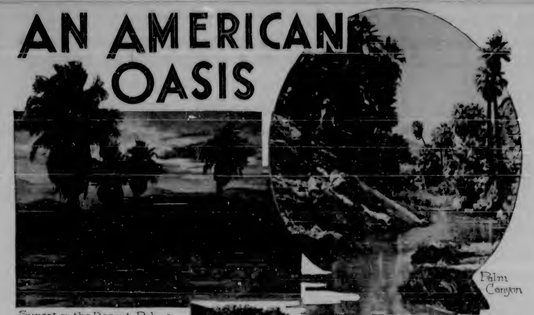
USE GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP
Combines Sulphur Soap
Soft, Clear Skin
Richmond & Drysdale Sulphur Co., Inc.

Quite Archaic

"Poor George has been kicked by a horse." "How dreadfully obsolete!"—Stray Stories.

SORE THROAT
FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should show us feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.
This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.
To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.
MUSTEROLE

AN AMERICAN OASIS



Sunset on the Desert Palms

Palm Canyon

MENTION the word "sunset" and it conjures up in the mind thoughts of the Sahara Desert in Africa, thoughts of a cluster of palms shadowing a bubbling oasis, a place of coolness in a region of blinding heat, an exotic and romantic spot. Such a picture is painted over by a picturesque sheik. Its beauty is enhanced if a surprise is in store for them in a caravan farther in the United States a similar spot in our land of forty million women does not in settings on the New waters and that season for isolated escape in the cold.

That is the oasis at Palm Springs on the edge of the Colorado Desert, native to Southern California. Around it are clustered the Palm Springs desert with its ever-shifting sand dunes, exciting mirages, distance with flowers, and sublime plains like Throughout the year the sun drenches the land with its warm rays. Clouds in back of the village rise the protecting arms of the mighty San Jacinto mountains, reaching skyward at a height of almost two miles, and here to winds the serenity prizes. The peaks of the San Jacinto are covered with snow almost the year round. The air, even in the village and gives an enchanting phenomenon of desert scenery, but the volcanic rays of the sun temper the cold to a just-about-right, and then you appeared to see a monument covered with snow, something which seems enough to relax in the sheer desert air.

The desert is a material attraction-like place, dominated by vivid purple hues. When sunset creeps over the scene, and there is no more beautiful sight in all the world, the naked hills turn various hues which blend gracefully into the lengthening shadows.

One of the wonder spots of Palm Springs is Palm Canyon, whose towering tropical fronds a beautiful "back door" for the village. Palm canyon is a winding gorge through the rocky gray soil, generally dry. There palms, natives of the foothills, are of the Washingtonian Filifera variety, and are the only palms indigenous to the United States. The Mexican fan palm, which grows all over Palm Springs, is also to surprise, up heights and extend many miles up the canyon.

Through this grove of stately palms flows a beautiful mountain stream, dashing and tinkling over pebbles, a "palm stand grow with the trees in which and bend to the fury forces of heaven." It is expected that the attractive, but this canyon, together with portions of Murray and Andreas canyons, will be made into a national monument, preserving for posterity the virgin splendor of the sub-tropical wonderland. This is but one of the picturesque streams in this vicinity. The place abounds in beautiful back-country retreats, each with its different scenic attractions and many others have come down through the ages from the ancestors of the Cahuilla Indians.

Andreas canyon, named after a chieftain of the tribe that inhabited this region in earliest days, still contains relics of Indian occupancy. In the Palm canyon, in the home of many gorgeous palms.

One would not expect to find a coral reef in this desert land, but such is the home of a fantastic wall on the southwestern side of the valley. There is no real coast desert here, of course, but with the vanishing water of an ancient sea left a quantity of calcium carbonate stone, of remarkable coral, and so the queer appellation was bestowed on the place.

The Coral Reef Mountain is quite a distance from the village. There is to be found a concentrated growth of all varieties of cacti, including the prized barrel cactus, whose water-lined the sinners of the deserts, whose thirst the government has set a $25 per cactus.

Thanksgivers, the world over, have thrilled to the sight of a romantic desert elephants charging over a dune on his trusty-dusty mesh. As depicted in the films these dunes look for all the world like the mounds of the Sahara which they represent. The excavating sand dunes near Palm Springs have been the background for many a desert cinema production. The great masses of sand ebb like wind-ruffled furrows are a memorable sight to see.

Tahquitz canyon, named for the evil spirit of the Cahuilla Indians, has many interesting geological formations. A short distance up the canyon a beautiful waterfall tumbles down. To the weary traveler just off the desert this cool spray of water appears like a heavenly gift.

Other notable spots of interest around Palm Springs are Whitewater canyon, the Vanderventer trail, Two-Bunch Palms, Thousand Palms canyon, Snow Creek canyon, Seven Palms, Painted canyon, Murray canyon, Mission Creek canyon, Magnesia Spring canyon, the Garnet Hills and Hidden Spring canyon.

The Salton sea, one of the quaverest of nature's freaks, is located at the south end of the Coachella valley. A great inland sea, it is the lowest body of water in the United States, and is 287 feet below sea level. It was formed by overflow of the Colorado river and is now a fisherman's and bird hunter's paradise. Its buoyant surface permits many unusual aquatic feats.

• • •

But the unique location of Palm Springs does not begin to tell the story of this fascinating land of rare attainment, this enchanting village, which, in the past decade, has been aroused from the doldrums of a sleepy watering place to the position of America's foremost desert resort.

The history of Palm Springs does not go back to antiquity. In fact the village is comparatively new. It is believed that the Indians of the Southwest thronged around the warm springs for the then before the era of the white man.

To Capt. John Hunters is more positively given the honor of being the first white man to visit Palm Springs. This was in the days of Gadsden's dire land for extension from Sonora, Mexico, to the coast of California in 1774. Hunter, who was one of the members of the first land expedition ever to traverse the then-Indian the site of the white man.

Palm Springs, however, was not made known to the world until 1853, when Lieut. Williamson, of the United States army, made a survey of the Coachella valley and Palm Springs.

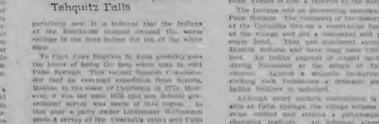
Actual settlements were not made until during the early '80s, coincidental with the opening of regular traffic on the Southern Pacific road. To Twenty Mirrors, one of the early settlers, goes the credit of obtaining the first laundry in Palm Springs. Situated opposite the ground site of the Desert Inn it attracted many visitors, though it is now vanished.

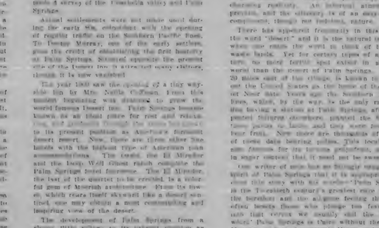
The year 1909 was the opening of a big way-also life in Mrs. Sally Hoffman, Elsie Hoffman publicizing was distance to grow the. Southern Pacific road. Palm Springs after established themselves, secured the first of time points to locate and they were found to their fruit. Now there are thousands of acres of these date-bearing palms. They usually in late months for the various peculiarities, or size in sugar content that it must not be ascertained.

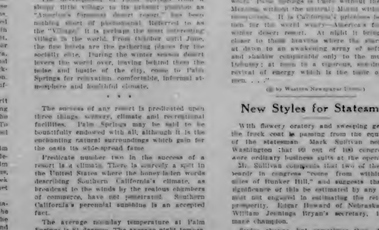
The writer of these lines no stranger to the splurs of Palm Springs that it is unpleasant to close this story with the mention Palm Springs in the Twentieth century's greatest spas for all the luxurious and the ailment feeling that this effect brings. Those who plunge into Tuesday's cafe that serves we usually add the "usual drink." Palm Springs is there without the fizz! Morning, without the mineral. Mixed without the concoctions. It is California's priceless benefits that the world want—America's formula for winter health resorts. At night it brings you closer to those scenes where the stars are at dawn to an awakening array of soft calm and slumber comparable only to the music of Debussy; at noon to a vigorous, sun-drenched revival of energy which is the basis of wise men. . . .

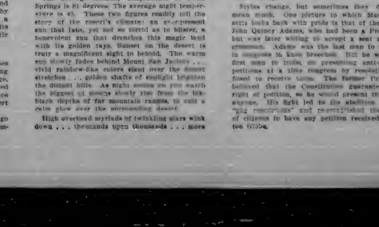
Wild Verbina's on Desert, Palm Springs, California

Tahquitz Falls









then you have ever seen. Palm have never been known to visit the southwest valley and the average season's rainfall is only 5.37 inches.

Entertainment facilities in the city run which centers into the running of a resort. All life at Palm Springs is, of course, lived out-of-doors. There is long such a wealth of scenery in the vicinity of the spots. It is the natural thing for the visitor to "take in" as many as possible. Horseback riding is one of the favorite means of recreation although there are good motor trips to the principal points of interest. Strange to say, there are two expositions now running in the desert spot, entirely unconnected with each other in any manner. Assuming to the open air fresh winter sports in another thought to Palm Springs visitors. Wrestling, boxing, line between some one of the country's most famous wrestlers. Dean Tarbox is also a favorite of the sports.

The Indians add an interesting attendance to Palm Springs. The remnants of the desert tribe of the Cahuilla Indians are a constant part of the village and are a convenient and picturesque feature. They are scattered among the Mission Indians and have long been Christians. The Indian pageant is staged each year during November at the people of Tahquitz canyon. Accompanied by a beautiful background of striking rock formations, a dramatic story of Indian romance is unfolded.

Although every modern convenience is available at Palm Springs, the village welcomes to its midst those still not certain of a picturesque and charming reality. An informal atmosphere prevails, and the solicitude is of an easy-going, contentment, though not lackadaisical.

There has sophisticated frequently in this story the word "desert" and it is the natural impulse when one reads the word to think of barren, waste lands. Yet for centuries men of agricultural turn, no more fertile spot existed in all the world than the desert of Indio buildings. Indeed, 20 miles east of the village is known throughout the United States as the home of the Imperial Valley. Years ago Mr. Southern Pacific Exes, which, by the way, is the only railroad that has ever a station at Palm Springs after experimental failures elsewhere, pierced the heat of time points to locate and they were found to their fruit. Now there are thousands of acres of these date-bearing palms. They usually in late months for the various peculiarities, or size in sugar content that it must not be ascertained.

The writer of these lines no stranger to the splurs of Palm Springs that it is unpleasant to close this story with the mention Palm Springs in the Twentieth century's greatest spas for all the luxurious and the ailment feeling that this effect brings. Those who plunge into Tuesday's cafe that serves we usually add the "usual drink." Palm Springs is there without the fizz! Morning, without the mineral. Mixed without the concoctions. It is California's priceless benefits that the world want—America's formula for winter health resorts. At night it brings you closer to those scenes where the stars are at dawn to an awakening array of soft calm and slumber comparable only to the music of Debussy; at noon to a vigorous, sun-drenched revival of energy which is the basis of wise men. . . .

Wild Verbina's on Desert, Palm Springs, California

New Styles for Statesmen

With flowery oratory and sweeping gestures the frock coat is passing from the equipment of the statesman. Mark Sullivan noted in Washington that 90 out of 100 congressmen wore ordinary business suits at the opening.

Mr. Sullivan comments that two of the three seemly to congress "come from within five miles of Hooker Hill," and suggests that the significance of this be estimated by any census man not engaged in estimating the return of prosperity. Rome Howard of Nebraska, once William Jennings Bryan's secretary, is the most changeon.

Styles change, but sometimes they do not seem much. One picture in which Hamilton sets looks back with pride to that of the aging John Quincy Adams, who had been a President but was later willing to accept a seat as congressman. Adams was the last man to appear in congress in knee breeches. Not he was the first man to trouble on presenting anti-slavery petitions at a time congress by resolution refused to receive same. The former President believed that the Constitution guarantees the right of petition, as he would extend those for anyone. His fight led to the abolition of the "gag resolution" and re-established the right of citizens to have any petition received.—Boston Globe.

Voices From the Past

Phonographic preservation has not been altogether successful. Not all records have stood the test of time. At a recent hearing, a message recorded by Chesterton Manning could be heard entirely a speech by H. M. Bradley and a rendering by Lord Fessenger of the "Charge of the Light Brigade" more painfully reproduced. The lady was recorded Chesterton Manning's message is still active and well now, after she had completed the working of the instrument, the guests and to her: "Ah, pobre lady, it too has lived a century but you would love been buried for a while."

Useful Hobby

"How has retired the long home from college, "I took up horseback riding, too."

"How?" replied the father. "Now you can get a job as assistant professor if you don't like the office."

Why Safety Pins

From a recent issue of the Chester, Penn., Daily Times: "Lost—Boy's coat, with safety pin on lapel. Left in Woolworth's. Otto, Broadway."—Exchange.

Snappy Game

"Mother, doesn't throwing ink always at you?"

"Why, often, now mixed if we could play one too."

Dr. Dowe's Thousand Pellets are thought that kind have pain put up 40 years ago. They regulate liver and stomach.—Ads.

Query

"Has this to your new building?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much did it set you back?"

Self-control is the highest charm in man.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her children this right kind of help needs not worry about growing old.

Her smiles doesn't elongate, her face doesn't sag, her body doesn't get "spare" that come from a lowly liver and sluggish intestines.

When you're sluggish and the poisons work lazily, instead of "getting" intestinal medicine, Dr. Pierre's famous Golden Medical Discovery. Just get such a one, and every druggist has it in stock now, and every druggist will tell you that "Golden Medical" is the best blood purifier you could take. Take a little every day or so, and every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all hounded, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all those symptoms when you find you haven't weakened the tonsils. You'll have a better appetite and better digestion every way. The constant use of "Golden Medical" in the home of many families has proved its value in the treatment of sick, nervous children.

Would you like to keep yourself at this comfortable habit? At first you'll promise you home of proper diet, exercise, rest and sleep. Get a big bottle of "Golden Medical" today. Then you will find you will need no other medicine. Dr. Pierre's Pellets are a good laxative to keep bowels good vigor that you've got. Write Dr. Pierre's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

She Should Worry

"I hear she has a speech pain." "Um, well; she has a pretty good excuse."

A Sure Sign

Mother—But what makes you think he loves you?

Daughter—Dad's wanting him out.

RELIEVES HEAD, CHEST and BACK COLDS
ALBATUM 35¢
Stainless "Rub In" and inhalant unsurpassed in preventing and relieving cold congestions
QUALITY TASTE 1833 McKESSON & ROBBINS SOLD AT ALL DRUG STORES

In annual conventions almost pace plans flexible, every gun is likely to be loaded. Be careful.

After meals and good books have you ever noticed that they are irritable and cross, grumpy and sullen? Constipation may look unfavorable cold sores, sometimes even pimples.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of a Disordered Kidney or Bladder Condition
NEED prompt by a nagging backache, with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling. Then may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition.
Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your druggist has Doan's.
Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

Did you ever see a free snake that didn't have some kind of collection attached to it?

Many personalities are riveting, but they're not the kind of conversation you'd like to be seen with.

"INDISPENSABLE" for children
"Cod Liver Oil is not a luxury, but an indispensable food for growing children . . . Cod liver oil should be included in the diet of all children under a year of age, and it may well be given to all young children . . ." This quotation is from the Government's pamphlet, Emergency Food Relief and Child Nutrition, by Dr. Lydia J. Roberts, Director of Nutrition, Children's Bureau. We have just found such references to cod liver oil in the official literature of the Government's relief agencies. Isn't it time you began to give your children the benefits of this time-tested source of vitamins A and D? Remember, Scott's Emulsion is a delicious cod liver oil preparation that has been helping healthy growth for more than 60 years. Why not start today? Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 36-39
Scott's Emulsion

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 9:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young Peoples Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

We are going to close the series on the "Ten commandments." But we have one left that should arouse the interest of everyone. It is the ninth, on perjury. Every community has to take measures to insure the truthfulness of witnesses before the courts and perjury is everywhere punished among civilized men. One of Ireton's codes contains the following enactment: "If the witness be a false witness and have testified falsely against his brother, then shall ye do unto him as he had thought to do unto his brother: and thou shalt put away evil from the midst of thee. And those that remain shall hear, and fear, and shall hereafter commit no more any such evil in the midst of thee. And thine eye shall not pity: life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot." Don't miss this sermon. If one has been guilty and feels like he said, it will set him to thinking. The time is 14:45.

The leader for the Junior church Sunday at Beilly Beach She has promised us some special music.

We will have with us, Wednesday, March 2nd, for our monthly Church Night gathering Rev. Paul Hoodagh, pastor of the Methodist Church at Boyne City.

Rev. G. B. Parker will deliver the address at the annual Father and Son banquet at the Presbyterian Church at Petoskey next Wednesday evening.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 7:30 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening 8:30 o'clock.

Young People's Week is being observed in all our churches over the state during the months of Feb. 14 to 21.

We will have the privilege of seeing our Young People in action at our church next Sunday morning. They will have charge of the entire morning services. A member of the Young People Society will bring the message. Sunday School will follow this service.

Miss Gladys Meggison will be the leader for the B. Y. P. U.

Topic for evening worship—"The Mystery of the Mighty Angel and the Little Book."

Monday evening we will meet for the first lesson in the Correspondence Course. See announcement elsewhere.

Thursday after school the C. W. C. will meet at the Church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, February 14—"Soul."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

February 21—"The Skeptical Lawyer and the Law, or Who Owns Bill Jones' Mule?"

February 28—"God blames no man or Two Late to Mend." Note dates.

The interesting contest in the League has continued with Group No. 2 as winners, with 298 total points, and will be the guest at a banquet given them by the two other groups. However, the winners will probably furnish the program.

The Father and Son Banquet, of the Men's Club is next Monday night, with Dr. Fellows, of Petoskey, as speaker and a limited ticket sale.

The Sunday School had eight more in attendance, last Sunday, than the high water mark, for four years, reported a few weeks ago, with fifty-one in the High School Department.

The Epworth League again had a record attendance, and are asking for another contest study, probably a Bible Study Class this time.

The Women's Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. O. D. Hammond, with business for the banquet.

ANNOUNCEMENT
(Political Advertisement).

To the voters of the City of Charlevoix:

As a candidate at the primary election for nomination to the office of mayor, I wish to state that my active business experience has covered a period of 35 years, during a part of his time holding prominent positions with one of the largest organizations in the state of Michigan. As to executive experience I have served two years as supervisor of Boyne county and six years as alderman for the city of Petoskey.

My fourteen years residence in the city of Charlevoix has given me ample time to consider the requirements necessary to properly conduct the honorable duties of mayor of our city and I feel in justice to all and special privilege to none. To claim that we have a big city and a big city's problems capable of administering the duties of the office of mayor is pleading guilty of movements that are strictly citizenly, and should we continue to elect our mayors from the business men, only nine citizens may have the privilege of holding this respective office in nearly 100 years.

If elected mayor, I shall stand for a progressive government, a continuation of the sound financial program which was inaugurated in 1918 under Simon M. Dow, and which has been continued to date with a view of securing an ever bonded indebtedness.

"It Stood Still May Be to Lean Backward."

I further pledge my support to the various civic organizations, consistent with good business judgment, with the city's betterment as my chief objective. I shall not involve the city in contract, great or small, without the full approval of the city council, its members being elected as delivery to the mayor and should function as such. I shall insist on one hundred cents worth of labor or material goods being received for every dollar expended, that the taxpayer money may purchase the same values as I would expect in the expenditure of my private funds.

If nominated and elected mayor, I shall favor lowering the cost of electric current to the consumer, both for light and power, at the earliest possible date, consistent with necessary protection for present emergency and extension needs. We, of course, should do nothing to impair the efficiency of our plant, neither should we build an excessively large surplus out of the pockets of our citizens. The many and varied electrical appliances which have come into use the past few years has greatly enlarged the income of our electric plant and should tend to lower our rates materially.

I come before the voters of our city, without political alignment and without promise of favor to any individual or group of individuals believing I have a fair understanding of the needs of our city, many of which are peculiarly different than any other, and my determination will be the greatest good for the greatest number and consideration for the individual whether approached at various hours of the day or during sessions of the council.

With these thoughts in mind and with deep regard for your valuable and courteous judgment, I solicit your consideration.

Respectfully submitted,
Edward E. Cross

SCHOOL NOTES
(Continued from fifth page.)

Junior High

A Lincoln program was put on in the Junior High school, Friday afternoon. It was opened by Mr. Rider leading the assembly in "America" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." A salute was given to the flag Herman Meyers repeated "The Gettysburg Address." Some boy Scouts gave a short demonstration. Ira Howe read "The House By The Side of the Road." After which the program was ended by Mr. Rider leading the assembly in the first verse of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Geography

The seventh grade geography classes have been very much interested in the Olympic Games ever since they studied Greece. The seventh graders have been giving many reports on the ancient Olympic Games which started in Greece and on the Olympic games that are being held in the United States this year.

Boys Basketball

After an excellent start with three wins in basketball the Junior High team has lost two games, one to the Boyne City seconds by East Jordan. The Jordan game, lost by a score of 16 to 9, was real close up to the last three minutes when three field goals carried the Juniors beyond the Charlevoix team's reach.

Home Economics

This week after having started their first problem in home economics, the ninth grade girls cut costumes which will be used by 5th and 6th grades in a Washington program at a later date.

Music

We are now adding finishing touches to our contest, which will be given the latter part of March.

All the 7th grade students are singing soprano and all 8th are singing alto while the 9th grade is singing both.

English

The 8th grade has added sound Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

Resolved that the said plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost be deposited with the City Clerk for public examination and that notice thereof of the said public improvement and of the district to be assessed as above described and designated and that the common council of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room on Thursday the third day of March, A. D. 1932, at seven-thirty o'clock, Central Standard Time, in the afternoon to consider any objections thereto to be given for publication in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper published and circulated in the City of Charlevoix.

This resolution was passed and adopted by a two-thirds majority vote of all the aldermen elect the 15th day of February A. D. 1932 by the following yea and nay vote, to-wit:

Yeas: All. Fessenden, Foster, Kilbie, Hooker, Smith and Webster.

Nays: None.

Absent: None.

Arthur Bergeon, Mayor.

Attest: Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

Resolved by the common council is a legal holiday that the council meet on Tuesday, February 23 and audit all bills.

Alderman Smith offered resolution as read above, seconded by Alderman Webster.

On motion the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

CITY PRIMARY ELECTION

To the qualified electors of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan

Notice is hereby given, that a City Primary Election will be held on

MONDAY, MARCH 7, A. D. 1932

In the several Wards of said City at the places indicated below, viz.:

First Ward—Central Polling Place.
Second Ward—Central Polling Place.
Third Ward—Central Polling Place.

For the purpose of nominating by direct vote candidates for the following offices, viz.:

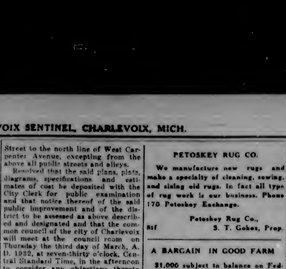
CITY—1 Mayor; 1 City Clerk; 1 City Treasurer; 1 Park Commissioner.

WARD—1 Supervisor; 1 Alderman; 1 Constable for each of the Wards of the City.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 8:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

Dated Feb. 13, A. D. 1932. 4313



A Bachellor story of the "North Country" based on a trial famous in the legal annals of New York state. A typically human American story. The woodsy setting, the quaint customs and the highly humorous sayings of the countryside, the unconscious nobility of its steadfast people, all blend to make the distinctive flavor of a true Bachelor story.

It will appear serially in these columns

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop.

Bf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

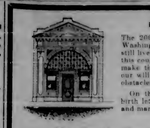
Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description. W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information.

E. L. J Mills, Muscatawa, Mich. 1tf

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire a Sentinel office. 12tf



FEBRUARY 22, 1932

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00

ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision

OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

FOR OUR GUIDANCE

Individually and as a nation, Washington has left us with this observation: "Economy makes happy homes and strong nations. And seven days his words had greater significance than today.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION

Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. B. Sec John J. Rose
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 21

Warner Baxter, Edmund Lowe, Conchita Montenegro, Nora Lane in

"The Cisco Kid"

Stirring adventures of Sergeant Mickey Dunn and his "pal" The Cisco Kid"—the one a relentless soldier, resistless lover—the other a stealer of gold and of hearts—leaving all pretty women—trusting none—in a mad struggle for Carmencita—ardent, dark-eyed senorita, traitress in love to all but one.

Added attractions— "Hush House Blues" and "In Reno."

COMING—"Her Majesty Love."

NOTE—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only, until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

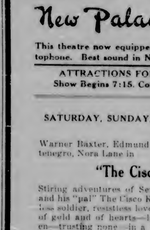


Photo Courtesy of The Detroit News

Enjoy Winter Sports in MICHIGAN

ENJOY the outdoor sports that Michigan offers. Tobogganing . . . skating . . . ice-boating . . . fishing . . . hunting . . . skiing . . . whatever your favorite winter pastime, there are unexcelled facilities for it in Michigan. No other section offers more.

Get up a party for a week or a week-end. Telephone ahead to assure accommodations. And while you're away, keep in touch with family and office by telephone. Knowing that all is well at home will add to the pleasure of your outing.

Long Distance rates are surprisingly low.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1932 Number 44

F. A. WESTERMAN TO SPEAK AT BANQUET

IN PLACE OF COL. HOGARTH WHO WAS TAKEN ILL IN TRAVERSE CITY

News was received here Wednesday of the sudden illness of Colonel George Hogarth, who was to speak here this evening at a Chamber of Commerce banquet, which made it impossible for him to be present.

Going to the appearance of the planned affair in connection with the activities of the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club, action was immediately taken to obtain a speaker to fill the vacancy caused by the unfortunate illness of Col. Hogarth.

Through the combined cooperation and influence of the Chamber of Commerce, the Sportsmen's Club and the American Legion and after direct communication with Governor Brucker at Lansing, word was received by Ira Wonder, President of the Chamber of Commerce, to the effect that Mr. F. A. Westerman would make the trip to Charlevoix for the purpose of addressing the combined membership, of the above named organizations on matters of important interest to this community and especially as to members of the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club and their planned activities.

It is to be hoped that all who can possibly do so will come out for this occasion which is to be held at I. O. O. F. Hall commencing with the banquet at seven o'clock followed with the program at eight.

FARM ACCOUNT RECORDS CLOSE NEXT WEEK

March 31st, 4th, and 5th are the dates selected for the farm account books being kept by some forty-five Charlevoix County farmers to be brought in for official closing. This represents the year of 1931, ending February 29th. This record covers the expenses and receipts from the farm itself and when properly summarized indicates very conclusively to the farmer his labor and management wage, his interest on investment, per cent of interest earned and what the various departments of his farm have made. Before the labor and management wage can be determined, 5 per cent interest on his total investment is charged off, his labor bill paid, as well as labor donated by members of the family.

Charlevoix County ranks third high in the number of farms keeping records in the entire state and if forty-five books are completed, it is highly possible that no county will exceed this number.

Mr. H. A. Berg and another representative of the Farm Management Department will be present to carefully check each item and will point out any inaccuracies in location for two successive weeks in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper, published and circulated in said City of Charlevoix.

Adopted this 15th day of February in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two by the following yea and nay vote: Yeas: All. Fessenden, Foster, Hooker, Kilbie, Smith and Webster. Nays—None. Absent: None.

Arthur Bergeon, Mayor.
(Countersigned)
Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

Alderman Webster offered resolution No. 2, seconded by Alderman Foster.

Resolution No. 2

Resolved by the common council of the city of Charlevoix that the establishing and constructing of a sewer, including the construction of all the necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins, flush tanks and all necessary attachments including lot laterals commencing at a point thirteen feet south of the center of West Green Avenue, connecting with the sewer there established, thence south on Bridge Street two hundred and thirty feet in a concrete public improvement.

Resolved further that the plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost of the Committee on Sewers of the Common Council together with the city surveyor and engineer for the establishing and constructing of a sewer, including the necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch basins, flush tanks and all the necessary attachments including lot laterals in Bridge Street as above described, be received and that the following territory be designated and established as a special assessment district to be assessed for the establishing and constructing of said sewer including the construction, of the necessary ventilation, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins, flush-tanks and all the necessary attachments including lot laterals in said street in said City of Charlevoix, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue on both sides of Bridge Street thence south on Bridge

STATE POLICE MEETING AT TRAVERSE CITY FRIDAY

Prosecutor R. L. Lewis of Charlevoix was among the guests introduced at a dinner at the Park Place hotel in Traverse City Friday evening dedicating the new Northern Michigan district headquarters of the state police. The dinner, arranged by the Traverse City Chamber of Commerce, was attended by law enforcement officials of many Northern Michigan counties. Speakers included Rev. Fr. Patrick Dunnigan of Flint, famous World War chaplain and chaplain of the state police, and Karl W. Dreier, Michigan author who was a captain in the army in intelligence service in the war. They lauded the efficiency of the state police under Commissioner Oscar Olander.

CHARLES DICKENS CLUB MEETING

HOLD DEDICATORY MEETING FOR TREES PLANTED

The Charles Dickens Club of Charlevoix, Michigan, held their regular weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. S. Richardson on Clinton street Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. This meeting was of especial interest to club members as they assembled to dedicate the two blue spruce trees purchased by the club and planted on the State street boulevard, in accordance with the tree planting program sponsored by the American Tree Association in commemoration of the George Washington bicentennial anniversary.

After a short business session presided over by the president Mrs. F. J. Fessenden, the dedicatory address was delivered by Mrs. Clair Webster who said, in part:

We are met today to pay tribute to the Father of our country and as we revere more than any other American citizen. He took keen delight in securing selected varieties of trees for his extensive plantation and it is altogether fitting that we honor him in this way.

Statues and busts of marble are excellent, and wonderful likenesses grace men of the past are in this way preserved for us and our children but how wonderful is this thought of planting a tree to further honor such a noble man by dedicating something living rather than cold stone.

In planting a living statue, may we strive to keep alive the finer things of the life of George Washington. May we, at this time, each one, endeavor to set an example of finer living for the coming generation, and, as our "cathedrals of trees" grow in stature and loveliness, may we too grow in graciousness, wisdom, and strength of character.

To have formed a nation has fallen to the happy lot of but few men. To have, in addition left from his own example the legacy of a character so noble as to form a model for which every citizen could strive but fallen to the lot of none but Washington. His was a "character to be ranked with the noblest of any age."

Of the two legacies he left us, his character and his policies, we have gradually in a century and a half, had to outgrow some of the latter. But we can never outgrow the former. He would never have wished that century after century, fixed by conditions which he could not see, his words should be implicitly followed. He was a man of policy. But what he might have hoped would have been that the citizens of future days might try to follow in his footsteps in unselfish devotion to the nation which he did so much to found.

Two beautiful vocal selections "Trees" by Kilmer-Rasbach, and "The Pine Tree" by Salter, were rendered by Mrs. Archie Livingston who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Carleton Dean. Another very enjoyable number on the program was a musical recitation "The Green Cathedrals" given by Mrs. Clinton Conger with Mrs. F. J. Fessenden at the piano.

The club adjourned at 2:30 and assembled in a body, the Washington program presented by the school students at the High School Gymnasium.

Harry Plachner and Carl Left were Charlevoix visitors for a few days.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

County News

MARION CENTER

The pupils of Black's school are having a week's vacation. Our teacher Miss McDonald is having the measles.

Theo. Gravelin of Charlevoix has been hauling ice with his truck for Mr. William Withers.

Mr. C. B. Meggison and family of Charlevoix visited his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Vern McMinn, Sunday.

Marion Center Granges No. 866 met last Friday evening at their Hall. One reinstatement and two new names were presented for membership. A very interesting Washington program was put on by the Lecturer. The committee served cherry pie, wafers and coffee for lunch. Several members attended Pomona Saturday at Rock Elm Grange Hall.

Mr. Will Straw who has been confined in the house for a few days is out again.

The cow tester Mr. Ed. Omland is in the neighborhood testing for the month of February.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blackwood, and Mrs. Serran called on Mr. and Mrs. Will Straw on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Floyd Black is having an attack of tonsilitis. Clayton Trimble is on Route 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Straw Sunday.

BEAVER ISLAND

Art Larson, with his gas boat "Estonia" went to Charlevoix Thursday with fish, bringing back twine for the fishermen and freight for the merchants.

Zene Golden of Garden Isle was here Saturday for mail and supplies.

The ice harvest is beginning, although the ice is not very heavy. We have had no lighter ice in the harbor that has ever been known for this time of year.

The passage between here and Garden Island is frozen over enough now, so as to make walking possible for the first time this season.

Capt. Roland McCann is leaving this week for Manistique with the tug "Venus". He will lay the tug up there so as to be ready for the early spring fishing.

Mrs. Harry W. Whitfield left for Detroit on Monday where she will visit her sons and families for an indefinite period.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jones, visitors in the south, mainly in Florida, for the winter months, returned home a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. King Saunders who accompanied the remains of the former's mother, Mrs. James Saunders, from Lansing to Charlevoix early this week spent several days with local friends and relatives before returning to their home in Lansing.

DR. JOSEF E. WITTERS LEAVES LOCAL FIELD

Dr. Josef E. Witters, for less than a year past with offices in the Van Pelt block, retired from the local field last Thursday night after quietly removing his personal effects, which he loaded into an automobile, to serve in a service station, took on a supply of gas, and at 10 p. m. hit the trail, some say for California, others for South Dakota, and still others say for different places.

A set of 6lk antlers on display in the window at the store of Staley Brothers attract more than ordinary attention. The antlers are in the velvet, magnificent in appearance and size, making for an attractive exhibit. Fred Coon is the owner of the set, he having secured the set through the conservation department.

The Elk from which the antlers were taken was killed illegally last summer near Vanderbilt an account of which was published at the time of the arrest and prosecution of the illegal killers.

WORK ON ROAD TO START SOON

MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT TO ARRIVE HERE SHORTLY

Construction work under a contract held by the Rennie Construction Company, according to Superintendent M. Bajonah, who was in Charlevoix Tuesday, will soon commence on the established new US-31 in the northern part of Charlevoix.

Machinery and road working equipment to be used on the new project, now at Norton, will be moved here within the next few days, possibly during the present week.

No definite time has been named for opening the work, but Mr. Bajonah states that there will be no unnecessary delay before actual operations will be under way, weather conditions permitting.

About forty local men will be placed on the construction company's payroll when the work is underway—these not to be employed at the same time but employed on "staggered time," one-half of the number on alternate weeks according to present plans.

MRS. M. L. SAUNDERS BURIED HERE MONDAY

END COMES AT THE HOME OF HER SON LAST FRIDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary L. Saunders, 65, former Charlevoix resident, were held from the Methodist Episcopal church here Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by Charlevoix Chapter, O. E. S. No. 72 with Rev. W. W. Hurd, Methodist pastor, officiating.

Mrs. Saunders died Friday from a heart attack at her home of her son, King, in Lansing, where she has resided for the past two years.

Burial was in Brookside cemetery. Those surviving besides the son, are: J. M. Saunders, of Los Angeles, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Harry Adsit, of Wilmington, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Stephen Pratt, of Kalamazoo and Miss Frances King, of Chicago; and one brother, John King, of Plainwell.

Mrs. Saunders was for many years a permanent Charlevoix resident. More recent years she has spent some of the summer seasons here, but for two years past was made her home with her son King Saunders at Lansing.

MRS. GEO. W. LUSK DIES IN E. JORDAN

BURIED IN BROOKSIDE CEMETERY TUESDAY

Mrs. George W. Lusk for twenty-five years, and until a few weeks ago a resident of Charlevoix, died at East Jordan Sunday forenoon at the age of seventy-three years.

Her maiden name was Ella Davis, a native of the state of Indiana, where she was born at New Haven, May 14, 1858. She was united in marriage with George W. Lusk, at Howard City, May 14, 1881. More than half a century ago. Later they moved to Kalkaska, where the family lived for sixteen years, coming from Kalkaska to Charlevoix twenty-five years ago, in 1907, where they continued until they moved their business to East Jordan in recent weeks.

She is survived, by her husband herein mentioned, George W. Lusk, of three sons, Edmund of Boyne, Edgar of Boyne City and George, Jr., of Charlevoix, all of whom were present at the funeral service held Tuesday afternoon at the local church of God, with the pastor, Rev. I. T. Mark officiating at the service.

MARILYN MILLER QUITS THE BAR FOR A BARON

Marilyn Miller quits whatever your way from the position of barmaid to that of temporary wife to a manyear-old nobleman in the sparkling sequences of "Her Majesty, Love" her latest First National starring vehicle, which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday next. Ben Lyon plays the part of the Prince Charming who finally rescues the mischievous Cinderella from her pot-bellied partner.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ripley made the trip from Lansing to be present at the funeral service held for Mrs. J. M. Saunders Monday and see some of their Charlevoix friends.

School News

Tournament, March 3, 4, 5

The entries for five class C schools are in already and seven class D schools are expected. The drawing to determine which schools will meet on the basketball court, will take place Saturday at two o'clock in the gymnasium.

This year it has been decided that all teams, living within 30 miles of Charlevoix shall return home at night unless driving conditions are such as to forbid, in the opinion of the management.

The trophies this year will be engraved certificates and will be sent to the winning teams after the tournament instead of being presented here.

Charlevoix school band will play each afternoon of the tournament, and the bands from East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Boyne City are being invited to play in the evenings.

Tickets good for the entire tournament will be sold at a reasonable price and the gymnasium will be arranged similar to three years ago for adequate seating capacity.

Hi-Y Meet Thursday

There is to be a Hi-Y meeting next Thursday at which there will be in attendance of men and boys from Charlevoix, Plaza for northern Michigan's older Boys Conference will be made at this meeting.

Washington Program

Students, teachers and guests enjoyed the Washington Birthday Program presented by the fifth and sixth grades and Junior and Senior High Schools on Monday afternoon. The opening number was given by the American Legion Bugle Corps after which there was group singing and several patriotic songs. A play "Young George Washington" was then given by the fifth and sixth grades. The musical selections were by the Junior High School Quartet and chorus were much enjoyed. Marjorie Carey and Wayne Bulling representing Martha and George Washington gave a dialogue which had been written by members of the Junior American History Class and the program was concluded by three members by the High School Band.

County Institute

Last Wednesday the teachers of Charlevoix County enjoyed an unusually interesting and inspirational day at Boyne City where the County Institute was held. Dr. Spencer, President of Hillsdale College was the speaker and several excellent musical numbers were given by members of glee clubs from Charlevoix.

Drama Club

Tuesday evening the second open meeting of the Drama Club was held. Three very clever one act plays were presented to an appreciative audience.

In The Class Rooms

The first year Latin students, after making a thorough study of the Roman house and customs of the people, are now completing their drawings of the Roman house plan.

The second year Latin students are completing their large colored maps of Italy. These maps are being made in connection with the study of Caesar and his wars.

Home Economics

The eighth grade home economic girls are spending a very interesting time preparing for their luncheon until.

Geography

The seventh grade geography classes have started the study of Asia. They find this interesting especially because they take up the study of Japan and China which they hear so much about now.

First Grade Attendance Honor Roll

Emajean Hall, Herald Hall, Anita Lalonde, Donald Louiselle, Jessie Russell, Sylvia Stimson, Clair Webster, and Barbara White.

Third Grade

Peggy Crain, Eleanor Herrington, Cappy Hooker, Arthur Howe, Maria Jones, Buddy Kohler, Donald Meggison, Claude Mitchell, Helen Morley, Ruth Ohlsen, Anna Pedersen, Gordon Shearer, Robert Sterritt, and Billy Woods.

Recently Sophomore English students have been writing essays. Here is an informal essay by Helen Meyers which appears to have been inspired by personal experience.

On Answering Advertisements

As far as I am concerned any advertisement which promises a marvelous reward or prize is an absolute fraud. You probably can tell from that first statement that I have answered one quite recently and was very disappointed. It wouldn't be so discouraging if only I hadn't planned all the things that I was going to do with the award.

First I had resolved to put it in
(Continued on last page.)

POTATO SHOW DIRECTORS DECIDE ON BUDGET

The officers and directors of the Top of Michigan Potato Show Association are slated to meet at Gaylord on Tuesday, March 1st for the purpose of making definite plans for the 1932 show. From very reliable sources, it has been learned that the budget will be somewhat reduced to meet the present situation and needs. While it is necessary to reduce the premiums somewhat, there will be no drastic cut as this money is returned to the farmers and it should be maintained as high as possible.

Last year saw a total of 665 acres in exhibits on display, which was the largest of any year, also $1,250.00 in premium money was awarded to some two hundred different exhibitors. Any suggestions or recommendations that will no doubt be present at, will be discussed with the idea of building up the show and we trust it down in any single particular.

There is an exhibit in Michigan that exceeds our Northern Michigan Show in excellence of quality and benefit to the state.

B. C. Mellenamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

LEGION HOLDS REGULAR MEET

BUGLE AND DRUM CORPS ADD NEW EQUIPMENT

At a regular meeting of Lonie T. Shapiro Post No. 238, American Legion, held Tuesday evening at the Legion Home on East Garfield Avenue, it was voted to conduct another of the post's popular stag card parties on Saturday evening, February 27th. Quite a number have already reserved to fill tables and the evening is expected to be a "large" one.

On Wednesday evening of this week will occur a series of amateur boxing bouts combined with other sports for fun-fans which should prove very attractive.

A roving vote of thanks was tendered by the members to A. T. Jeffery, proprietor of the Moonlight Gardens, for his many acts of kindness and helpfulness on behalf of the Legion and Comrade William Ripley, former resident of this city, now a member of the Legion's Bugle and Drum Corps at Lansing was unanimously granted.

The bugle and drum corps have added five new bugles and a set of drums and the legionnaires' class are practicing faithfully with Commander Allard, former bandmaster of the 126th Infantry, first division, as instructor. A parade drum will be purchased shortly and interest with the post-mums and numerals on both heads so that hereafter spectators on both sides of the line of parade will know who the outfit belongs to when they march by. Cymbals will also be a part of the entire equipment and, later, other appropriate instruments will be added.

Arthur Edwards was the lucky man at the drawing, but did not get the "kitty," as he was not present.

DAIRY CONFERENCE PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Everything is in readiness for the Second Annual Charlevoix County Dairy Conference to be held at the Bayne City Library on Wednesday, March 2nd, beginning at 10:00 Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. McMillan, president of the Men's Club started the program and conducted his official part with ability and clerat approach. The Rev. Bradford of the local Baptist church, gave a thoughtful and reverent invocation. The Melodic Four rendered the toastmaster, the Rev. Parker, of the Congregational church who was well chosen for the duties and introduced each speaker, with much of wit and wisdom. Mr. Rider conducted general singing by the entire assembled, very cleverly arranged with a quartet of young men from the High School, who were much appreciated.

The Rev. A. H. Fellows, of Petoskey, gave the main address. He gave a brief resume of the ancestry and the career of Washington, showing him as a successful warrior, a statesman, an organizer, and a loyal churchman. Although replete with facts and full of humor the address in the main was of a very high and serious nature, with few detailed explanations for the boys, and very practical and timely advices for the fathers.

This address had been preceded by a toast to the fathers, by Dr. Wisler, of this city, who pressed the sacrifices and sacrifices of the true father. To his boys, and by the town for the town, given by Dewey Bechtel, who in very creditable manner, voiced the appreciation of the sons for the work of the fathers and the elder sons of the community, in providing so much for the youth of today.

The dining room was crowded, but not over crowded, and the serving was excellent. Many of the men's messes of high appreciation of the programme, and the whole affair.

A number seeking tickets at the last moment had to be turned down.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEET

The Women's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church will meet with Mrs. Wm. E. Byers on 108 W. Hall Street Avenue, Wednesday afternoon, March 2, at 2 o'clock.

The tug Venus, Captain McCann, entered the Charlevoix harbor, from St. James Tuesday afternoon, remaining in the port until Thursday morning when the return trip to St. James was made.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET SUCCESS

ONE HUNDRED EIGHTY THREE WERE IN ATTENDANCE

The Men's Community Club feels highly satisfied with the very generous patronage given the Father and Son Banquet, sponsored by it, held in the dining room of the Methodist Church Monday evening, in celebration of Washington's birthday. The Women's Club, of the Methodist Church had been requested to serve the banquet, and the dining room had been quite elaborately, and very tastefully decorated, in the colors which crowded the large room presented a very festive appearance, all of the patriotic colors, with a large portrait of Washington, placed behind the speaker's table, draped in flags, and illuminated with colored lights.

Miss Carey played the opening march, which one hundred and eighty-three fathers and sons, who had assembled in the auditorium above, marched in the dining room and were served a delicious and ample banquet, by the ladies.

Dr. McMillan, as president of the Men's Club started the program and conducted his official part with ability and clerat approach. The Rev. Bradford of the local Baptist church, gave a thoughtful and reverent invocation. The Melodic Four rendered the toastmaster, the Rev. Parker, of the Congregational church who was well chosen for the duties and introduced each speaker, with much of wit and wisdom. Mr. Rider conducted general singing by the entire assembled, very cleverly arranged with a quartet of young men from the High School, who were much appreciated.

The Rev. A. H. Fellows, of Petoskey, gave the main address. He gave a brief resume of the ancestry and the career of Washington, showing him as a successful warrior, a statesman, an organizer, and a loyal churchman. Although replete with facts and full of humor the address in the main was of a very high and serious nature, with few detailed explanations for the boys, and very practical and timely advices for the fathers.

This address had been preceded by a toast to the fathers, by Dr. Wisler, of this city, who pressed the sacrifices and sacrifices of the true father. To his boys, and by the town for the town, given by Dewey Bechtel, who in very creditable manner, voiced the appreciation of the sons for the work of the fathers and the elder sons of the community, in providing so much for the youth of today.

The dining room was crowded, but not over crowded, and the serving was excellent. Many of the men's messes of high appreciation of the programme, and the whole affair.

A number seeking tickets at the last moment had to be turned down.

A regular meeting of Lady Maccabees is slated for this Friday evening, March 1st. Initiatory work will be conducted and this followed by an entertainment program by the new officers. Please be present in response to request made by officers.

TO SPEAK BEFORE THE MEN'S COMMUNITY CLUB

Rev. Paul Hoodagh of Boyne City has been secured to deliver the principal address before the Men's Community meeting to be held Monday evening, March 1st at the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In this he takes the following for his theme. "A Comparison of American and Oriental Ideals of Manhood" on which he can speak authoritively, by Rev. Hoodagh is a Persian. He is familiar with Oriental customs and audience speaks from personal knowledge and contact with both American and Orientals.

A banquet will be served at the church at 6:15 o'clock and this followed by the regular club meeting.

A regular meeting of Lady Maccabees is slated for this Friday evening, March 1st. Initiatory work will be conducted and this followed by an entertainment program by the new officers. Please be present in response to request made by officers.

Leap Year—A Time for Great Events

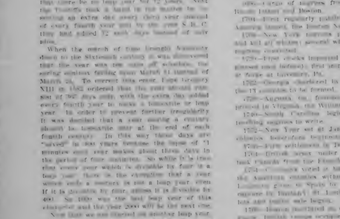
By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

[illegible] 1932 is supposed to be an ordinary year, but [illegible] of the years of this days husband of Mrs. Roosevelt, the first President of the nation. This custom for the extra day in the month and the extra month in the year dates back to ancient Rome. The first month was that of Mars, the Roman god of war, and March continued to be the first month of the year [illegible] Julius Caesar [illegible] to 46 B. C. establishing a calendar on the basis of each month of 30 days and the months of [illegible] the months of [illegible] the months of [illegible]

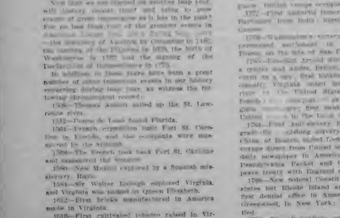
Leap Year—A Time for Great Events

Birth of Washington—1732

Declaration of Independence—1776



Landing of the Pilgrims—1620



Landing of Columbus—1492

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

LEAP YEAR IS A NUISANCE to be sure, but that is only when a year of 365 days instead of 366, leaves February 29 days behind it. Leaves February 29 days behind it. Then it is a nuisance, for the extra day in the month and the extra day in the year is combined with some tinkering with the calendar by which every year back in ancient times. The first one to do it was the Roman emperor Julius Caesar who in 46 B. C. established a calendar on the basis of each solar year consisting of 365 and one-fourth days rather than before with the accidents of a odd sixth year, the six hours being carried up and a whole day added to every fourth year which was to be known as a "long year" when pronounced, then longed about one day.

This calendar was adopted, for the solar year actually consists of 365 days, four hours and 48 minutes, therefore, Caesar's scientist was getting it simpler in all further time every year. So Augustus Caesar, Julius' successor, tried his hand at straightening out the matter and made the change so as long one day for 32 years. Next the Twelfth took a hand in the matter by decreeing that every year which could be divided evenly by four should be a leap year, and since it is assumed that the earth goes around the sun in exactly 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds, this would make an eighteen minute error in every century. This error was corrected by the Pope Gregory XIII in 1582, when ten days were dropped out of the month of October, and the year 1600 will be the next one.

Now that is all very well, but what to do with slippery month that and bring to your attention a very important act in the life of a man or boy. Such time of the greatest events in the history of the world. Take the case of the discovery of America by Columbus in 1492, the landing of the Pilgrims in 1620, the birth of Washington in 1732, and the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

In addition to these events, both a great number of minor momentous events in our history occurred in February, so we wished to have a leaping thermometer reared.

1528—Ponce de Leon sailed from Florida.

1561—Francis of Guise, leader of the Catholic party in France, and the commons were massacred by Calvinists.

1788—The French took Fort St. Christian and massacred the garrison.

1788—New Mexico explored by a Spanish missionary, Hayo.

1793—Gov. Walter Hough explored Virginia, and Virginia was named in honor of Elizabeth.

1812—Fisher's Island, New York, America made in Virginia.

1816—First cultivated tobacco raised in Virginia.

1826—Misery young women sold in Virginia at auction; about at 120 pounds of tobacco each; first cargo of negro slaves sold at Jamestown.

1824—Death landed eight men to take possession of New York.

1828—Salem, Mass., founded by John Endicott, and founded the Massachusetts Bay Colony. King Charles grew Maryland to Lord Baltimore.

1630—Hartford, Conn., and Providence, R. I., founded as colonies; Hartford founded.

1635—First book printed in America at Cambridge, Mass., the Bay Psalms Book.

1644—Three hundred Virginia settlers massacred by Indians.

1648—First instance of capital punishment for witchcraft in Massachusetts colonies.

1675—Second rank holocaust from the Union.

1676—First Quakers came to America and were expelled from New England.

1684—King Charles gave his brother, the Duke of York, all the great island, which is now Jersey; British took New Amsterdam from the Dutch and changed its name to New York.

1693—Mine was organized under jurisdiction of Massachusetts; first permanent settlement made in Michigan by Pere Sanzenite at Sault Ste. Marie.

1672—Parliament imposed first customs duties in America; first American whale fishery started from Nantucket.

1676—Nathaniel Bacon rebellion in Virginia.

1680—Colony of New Hampshire separated from Massachusetts; Charleston, S. C., founded; the negro Stoneston river explored by Father Hennepin.

1699—The French built a fort at Niagara Falls.

1702—Seventy persons killed in Massachusetts piece of smallpox-made fiercest in world manufactured in Massachusetts.

1826—Primitive tariff raised as big issue first time in United States; first anthracite kept stove in United States opened on Susquehanna river at Wilkesbarre; Lindsay's first exhibition of Webster's Dictionary; first exhibition woman's emigration in United States, the Ladies' Magdalene Boston; first trip in United states by a locomotive on a railroad; Baltimore & Ohio railroad commenced and at Baltimore.

1832—First relations of a state against the United States and first declaration of secession in South Carolina over the tariff; source of the Mississippi river discovered; first cargo of ice from Boston to Calcutta; first steam railway passenger railroad between city hall and Fourteenth street in New York city.

1836—Texas declared itself free Mexico and the massacre of the Alamo takes place; first successful electric motor in United States at Williamstown Mass.; anthracite coal first used to reduce iron ore in the United States; first steam fire engines to pull trains over steep grades instead of stationary engines.

1845—Adams Express company founded.

1846—Agassiz, on founded; first newspaper printed in Virginia, the Virginia Gazette.

1849—South Carolina legislature prohibited teaching negroes to write.

1852—New York set at January 1 in English, Catholic celebration beginning on March 25, "saved" in one hundred by December.

1754—British seize under General Amherst and Charles Fort Duquesne.

1775—Washington vowed in and the order to the French and Indian war; Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Gen. Gates to pursue to prevent capture by Burgoyne's St. Louis did not to own and open city begun.

1780—Boston instituted an embargo in British ships and Great Britain declared.

1777—First naturalized immortal to America, at Parliament from both; opening of British ship-ment.

1778—Treaties with France; Count d'Estaing sailed from Toulon for United States.

1779—Gen. Clark captured Kaskaskia and Vincennes from Hamilton; Spain declared war on Great Britain.

1780—Washington ordered Gen. Greene to Carolina; Spain declared war on Great Britain.

1781—Articles of Confederation adopted by Congress; Gen. Greene defeated Cornwallis at Guilford Court House.

1782—Peace negotiations opened at Paris.

1783—Definitive treaty of peace signed at Paris; Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States.

1784—Congress declared, determining circumstances of the war; Spain and the United States legislature convened just before the election and passed a constitution which provided a secession in November 20, five still appreciation caused by discovery of a Mississippi river; first express, completing journey from Missouri to San Francisco in nine days.

1861—Secession movement from Atlanta to the sea; Admiral Farragut bombards Mobile; Early's raid to within seven miles of Washington; money order system put into effect; sorting of mail in trains at railway mail service first put into effect; Lincoln re-elected.

1865—President Johnson charged for impeachment and tried, but was saved by casting him guilty by 35 to 19, but the action failing for lack of constitutional majority.

1867—Population, then 6,000,000.

1868—Johnson acquitted of impeachment at Philadelphia at cost of $15,000,000; Custer battle in Dakotas.

1869—Transcontinental postage rate of 5 cents an ounce adopted; discovery of gold at Juneau, Alaska.

1884—Grover Cleveland elected President; Chinese exclusion bill; Mississippi river flood.

1885—Cleveland inaugurated; Geronimo attacked Mexico by American troops, federal reserve set inaugurated, Woodrow Wilson re-elected.

1916—Warren G. Harding elected President; Nineteenth amendment to the Constitution proclaimed.

1924—Calvin Coolidge elected President; Rankin adopted 100 pounds to the sack.

1928—Herbert Hoover elected President; Reading and war treaty signed in Paris.

1929—

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

One Way to Cut Cost of Farming

Unnecessary Manure Losses May Be Eliminated With Due Care.

Low cost production rather than quantity production can do much to put agriculture on a more stable and prosperous basis says it. It, itself, extension specialist in soils and crops at the Ohio State university.

One factor that costs nothing and usually pays very largely in low cost production, he points out, is farm manure. Crop yields of 50 bushels of corn, 25 bushels of wheat, and two tons of hay per acre, obtained from a number of corn, wheat, and hay. If fed on the farm or used as bedding, will produce sufficient manure. If saved, to make an eighteen applications each year on one-third of the cropland.

Some long-time Ohio experiments show such treatment to give a production value of 25 bushels of corn ten bushels of wheat, and 1,000 pounds of hay for each application. It is very common experience to find that corn not left in the manure spreader it is available at the time it is to be applied in the land. Unmanured and manured plots ranging from a few tons to ten or two tons per acre to be found in every case.

Figured in terms of crops the owners from 20 to 100 bushels of corn, from ten to 120 bushels of wheat, and from 1,000 pounds to 4,000 pounds of hay from the same area without additional cash outlay. The operation of supplementing the soil with manure is acceptable alone on additional acres has the possibility.

When used in this manner, 20 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate has proved to on the acreage over a period of over 30 years, ten bushels of corn, six bushels of wheat, and 80 pounds of hay. If corn and wheat be figured at 40 cents per bushel and hay at $5 per ton the increased crop yields are sufficient to pay for the superphosphate and leave 100 per cent gain on the investment.

Right Kind of Roughage Must Be Given Heifers

The saving of six feeding months between the time of birth and first calving without bogging has this winter much non-income dry cows on range and on farms in Missouri to make it wise dairymen a "counter-irritant" fortune is pre-action and is not just a rules.

To preserves and maintains blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Mustarole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Mustarole.

MUSTEROLE

ASSOC. SALES CO., MUSTEROLE BUILDING

Triumph for Age

Beauty competitions seldom end the years, but Mrs. Ida Cook, 72, is finding the loveliest pair of eyes. The eyes-specialists called alike, in widespread remarks that covered all the country from the Pacific coast. Her pair were so outstanding the judges immediately decided. The process of growing old is a strange one; a manner of surprise through the audience. Gladness, sorrow, and happiness belonged to no old woman of seventy!

Nervous Breakdown During Expectancy

Terre Haute, Ind. — "I suffered with nervous breakdown during expectancy of my baby. I was so nervous I could not sleep. I was under the doctor's care and he told me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I did and it helped me. I recommend it to all suffering women." Mrs. Thos. Hall, 1220 Sego St.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong. No alcohol. Sold by druggists in liquid or tablets.

POULTRY

WILL PAY RAISER TO GRADE PULLETS

Weaker Should Be Given a Fair "Break."

One of the easiest mistakes a poultryman can make is to grow a lot of good pullets and then spoil their usefulness for some else by wrong handling when putting them into permanent laying quarters, says the Rural New Yorker. The Vermont station gives some excellent and timely advice by emphasizing careful selection in making up pens about equal in development. The slower maturing pullets left on the range will then grow faster because they are not hindered by the more mature ones. Under the shed-roof system pullets prefer those smaller birds from getting an equal chance at the food and apparently even begrudge their spirit, as that they take for granted that they are beneath them and never fully recover. Another point of great importance is that the permanent quarters should be as nearly like the range conditions as practicable, so that the pullets will not feel "strange" come about, crop the grass and spend more time outdoors. Under such conditions the pullets will not lose their appetites when moved into permanent quarters. Give the pullets a chance to grow and feed well during the fall and winter months.

Cause of Rainfall

The weather bureau says that condensation centers, or nuclei, are essential to the formation of clouds, and, therefore, of rainfall. These nuclei may be dust particles, especially of certain kinds, such as sea salt or even. It is believed, molecules of water that have great affinity, as we say, for water. The air always contains an abundance of all.

Stop the Pain.

The first application of Cuticura will stop most skin troubles. It is applied to the affected parts without rubbing, as much as is necessary, as need be 75c. Adv.—H.—Adv.

An Official Prescription

She—I wish you I'm looking against the factory orders.

He—Hush, sex pot sick?

She—No, but the doctor is my husband.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong. No alcohol. Sold by druggists in liquid or tablets.

Should you jump a stranger saying for what you believe, you can't keep still if his adversaries get him to a rapids.

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—then watch how promptly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub at least once an hour for four hours—what a glorious relief!

These good old-fashioned cold remedies—of mustard, menthol, camphor and other time-tested valuable ingredients in Musterole—do make it what druggists call a "counter-irritant" fortune is pre-action and is not just a rules.

To preserves and maintains blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Mustarole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Mustarole.

MUSTEROLE

ASSOC. SALES CO., MUSTEROLE BUILDING

Inspection May Help

In looking over some poultry houses recently, I noticed that the worst conditions were in the barns of the houses that were the roosts. Filled with dampness and a great deal of dust is lost from the house. Also consider the large amount of filth that is carried in from the yards. That much need spaces and cleaning, that will be of benefit to the source of small roosting later. Chickens need sound, that will of a dry, clean roosting quarters as a result of the presence of cracks and openings in the partitions. Also, it is very apt to pay us to look to the chicken feed as to some other things, where the cracks are small. Putting up plaster is very helpful, but the cracks between the studding sometimes seem to encloseed. The metal is to 10 cents per square.—Hendrix Dalrymen.

Seed Treatment Paid

Treatment of seed oats resulted in an average increase in yield of four bushels per acre in 1928 tests brought under the supervision of extension workers conducted on cafe and redding, starting variously on hybrids and each of the dusts were used on early varieties. The gain of four bushels per acre was secured at a cost of forty cents per acre.

The early varieties gained 2.6 bushels an acre over the untreated plots, the medium varieties gained 3.9 bushels and the hybrids 5.4 bushels. Gains in individual tests ranged from none to 12 bushels per acre, according to reports of S. H. Porter, extension field agronomist.

Bright Spot

The market for butter averages out for the same period of preceding butterfat and the selling price of butter fat in New York, November 1, 1931, than November of 1930. Records of the Dairy Herd Improvement association show that the average butterfat price for Nebraska for November was 26 cents. The average herd cost was 15 cents, leaving a margin of 11 cents per pound. The margin was 6 cents in November, 1929, according to an article in the Nebraska Farmer.

Potatoes as Dairy Feed

Potatoes are fed to cows in usually large amount of starch and because of that have gain feeding value. When raw potatoes are fed to cows it is usually best to limit the quantities fed to about 30 or 35 pounds per day. The potatoes should be sliced otherwise they may cause the cows to choke. Sometimes bad results occur when quantities of soft or decayed potatoes are fed to cows. Potatoes contain a poisonous component.—H. P. Davis, University of Nebraska.

Holstein's Good Record

The first Merrylind Holstein to exceed twenty pounds butterfat and to produce more than 20,000 pounds milk in one year is Dora Segis Merrylind Pontiac Lassie, a mature cow owned by C. H. Anderson. According to the historical records compiled by the Holstein-Friesian association, this cow produced 20,412.1 pounds milk, 1011.1 pounds butterfat in 365 days. She is the first and sixty-fourth Holstein to exceed the 1000-pound butterfat mark and the first to exceed 20,000 pounds of milk. She ranks one-hundred in Holstein history for milk production and twenty-ninth for butterfat.

"Lincoln" was first Sr. T. F. Dolan of Wisconsin and is the twenty-fifth Holstein to produce more than 1,000 pounds butterfat in a year.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Turkey Raisers

The plan now is to raise the fat keys in confinement. The turkey has always been considered a bird. It is well adapted to be raised on range where there is plenty of room. Where the land is limited ground cover which the turkeys have been allowed in former years is not to be had, and without would be a good place for them to be raised. A small quantity of meal, bran and middlings with about 10 per cent of tankage should be added to make a good feed. Milk to drink would be all right. Do not feed corn as this is a fattening feed. Turkeys are old enough to fatten you can begin to fatten them. Give the poults in the turkey hen, rear them in an inclosed run or some ground and feed them little if any corn.

Hens Need Lime for Eggs

For a hen to produce economically she must be supplied with all the different materials that go to make eggs and grow, slowly of good balanced food that will produce them. The poultry raiser also be supplied at all times with a plentiful supply of calcium (lime). This lime is needed not only for shell formation but also the body of the hen. Normal functioning of all will supply this lime efficiently and properly and at the same time aid in grinding the food.

Handy Fowl Catcher

Take an old rake handle or an old broken fishing pole and a piece of wire. Bend the wire into the shape of a hook, then twist the rest of the wire firmly into the end of the handle about the first, then bend the rest of the wire into a ring and bend and bend the free end. Bare out a little. With this device, you can reach into a flock and catch individual birds by the leg without hurting them or frightening the others.—Paul J. Dehler, in Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Creosote Kills Mites

Chicken mites cannot stand the fumes of creosote. A Hagerman, Tippecanoe county, Indiana has found. "I creosoted the floors in my brood or houses to make them easier to clean and to prevent decay," said Mr. Hagerman, "I didn't know there was a chicken mite in the brooder house. After it was creosoted I closed it up tight and let it stand a few days. When I opened it I found dead mites on the floor of the brooder and the floor. It pays to use creosote."

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Use this wonderful, inexpensive way to gradually remove the aged cuticle and reveal the young skin beneath. Just before retiring, spread a thin coating of Mercolized Wax over the face, neck and arms. Wash off in the morning with warm water. Your skin will then have a beautiful clear complexion. Full directions in each package. Ask for Mercolized Wax at your drug store.

Free Enlargement With Every Roll of Films

Send 25c for Films developing, printing, enlarging, mailing. Guaranteed. Lasting pictures. Artistic borders. Send roll today. Specify size wanted. Mail Service Studio, Dept. 1, Los Angeles, Calif.

Free Entertainment

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous Publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

HOW ABOUT THAT "WE"

In an address delivered on a recent Sunday in New York, Frederick J. Libbey, executive secretary for the National Council for the Prevention of War, is quoted as saying: "On the Geneva conference hangs the fate of civilization. A race in armaments means the end of our civilization, and we are now in that race."

While there may be grave question as to the soundness of the opinion that the fate of civilization hangs on the Geneva conference, the latter part of this statement interests us. When Mr. Libbey declares that "we" are in a race for armaments, he ought to tell us where he gets that "we."

Since Mr. Libbey is an American as well as an internationalist it may be presumed by the "we" that he is referring to Uncle Sam. If so, he is doing the American people a grave injustice. As Americans "we" are not engaging in any race of armaments in fact we are not even keeping up with the procession.

Uncle Sam is the only nation, who since the World War, has made any concerted effort to slow down the armament activity of the world. In 1921 he gave up an assured naval superiority in the interest of naval limitation, and when the nations of Europe, with Japan, refused to follow his example, he again initiated a conference which in London further limited the construction of warships. And now he has even shown a disposition not to build up to the London agreement, a disposition which is little short of folly in the present state of unrest throughout the world.

On the side of land armament the picture is even more impressive. Our army is the smallest in the world for any nation which claims to be a first class power. It is even smaller than the armies of most of the third class powers in Europe and, taking into consideration our population, and wealth, it is pitifully small.

So there is no evidence that "we" meaning the United States are engaged in any race of armaments. Mr. Libbey should make that clear but he will not do so.

As a good internationalist Mr. Libbey will continue to cast reflections on Uncle Sam and overlook the real seat of trouble in Europe and Asia. We would suggest that Mr. Libbey make a few stump speeches in France and Japan where they are needed, to say nothing of Soviet Russia which has the most powerful military machine in the world. But of course he won't do it because he knows what would happen to a pacifist making a disarmament speech in any of those nations. So he will continue to give advice where it is not needed and throw out a smoke screen to protect Europe at the expense of Uncle Sam's reputation.

THE ISSUE OF INTOLERANCE

We cannot afford to temporize with paternalism.

The only way to keep the Federal government from unjustified interference with the rights of the states and of individuals is to fight every move, of whatever kind, that would extend the power of a centralized bureaucracy.

It is true beyond question that many of the so-called "reforms" of recent times have come about, not because of the popular will but because organized minorities have seized political power and have frightened elected officials into actions that are against their better judgment.

Intolerance is a great issue. Those who wish to regulate their neighbors have had a day of triumph. Since the turn of the century the trend has been away from State and individual rights, toward centralization of power at Washington. The Federal government has taken on police functions never intended for it by the founders.

There is hope that now, at last, the trend is the other way. We have learned that if we try to mind other people's business, other people will mind ours. And there is a strong and growing percentage of good American citizens who are convinced that we need less law, not more, and that it is time for a return to fundamental principles of human liberty.

THE TAX CRISIS

We have heard much, in the last year, of the industrial crisis and of the obligations business owes to its employes, its investors and the general public.

Business is doing its best to bring light out of darkness, and to live up completely to those obligations. It is now time for government to do what it can to prevent another kind of crisis—that of confiscatory taxation.

This does not mean that the operation of any legitimate department of government must be hampered. But it does mean that public officials should do away with waste and unnecessary expense. It means that statesmanship, not politics, should dictate the action taken on so-called "relief" proposals which would cost the taxpayers millions or billions of dollars and produce nothing of permanent value. It means that bureaucracy should be pruned so that the tree of real government may be seen again. It means that the public's money should be conserved and not thrown away.

The public realizes the tremendous problems now confronting government, and sympathizes with the difficulties in the way of solving them. But it will not long continue to countenance waste, extravagance and inefficiency, which find their reflection in the tax bill.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

A HAVEN FROM AGES PAST

The work of devoted hands in ages past; San Xavier Mission near Tucson, Arizona will not fail to bring the traveler to a full stop in reverent awe for the spirit of sacrifice shown by the padres in the erection of this still beautiful mission. It was founded almost a hundred years before the Declaration of Independence was signed at Philadelphia.

STILL WORSE THAN WAR!

About a year ago the fact that more persons were killed in automobile accidents during an 18-month period than were killed in the A. E. F. in the World War, was extensively commented upon. Now, according to a booklet issued by the Travelers Insurance Company, automobile accidents are still more than war. During 18 months of the World War, 50,510 American soldiers were killed in action or died of wounds, and 182,764 were wounded, not mortally. In the 18 months ending December 31, 1931, 53,650 people were killed in automobile accidents and 1,576,840 were injured.

The Traveler's booklet emphasizes some information that every motorist and pedestrian should know. During 1931 deaths increased 3.3 per cent over 1930, in spite of a reduction in the total number of accidents. Severe injuries likewise increased, despite a reduction in the total number of persons injured. This apparent contradiction is laid to the increasing speed with which we drive. Cutting in, violation of the right of way laws, driving on the wrong side of the road, skidding and driving off the roadway were likewise responsible for many deaths.

More than 42 per cent of deaths were caused when a car struck a pedestrian. Collisions with fixed objects accounted for 12.1 per cent and collisions with other cars, 24.9 per cent. In the case of injuries, 53.1 per cent occurred when cars struck each other and 29.8 per cent when they struck pedestrians.

These facts are of immense value to the thoughtful motorist. They show the primary causes of accidents and, consequently, suggest means of eliminating them. Drastic steps must be taken if we are to lower the horrible and steadily increasing toll of traffic deaths and injuries.

ECONOMY THAT TAKES HUMAN LIVES

According to a report, 6,000 persons are burned to death in American homes every year. Eighteen hundred of these are children under ten years of age.

Failure to keep a home in proper repair, thus making it an easy prey to the fire demon, is the most dangerous kind of "economy." When electrical work is needed, it should be done by a licensed electrician, not by an amateur.

A common unwise practice is to attempt home dry-cleaning. Not only is this a doubtful economy, as it is difficult for untrained hands to obtain satisfactory results, but the danger involved is extreme since the cleaning fluids usually are highly inflammable, requiring but a tiny spark to ignite the fumes which they give off. Many people lose their lives every year as a result.

Home owners should likewise bear in mind that heating plants and chimneys require continual attention. It is false economy as well as dangerous to neglect them at any time.

Putting hot ashes in combustible containers, permitting rubbish to accumulate or leaving paint or oil-soaked rags in homes invite loss and tragedy from fire.

Real economy is a good thing—but it must go hand in hand with common sense and nowhere does this apply more forcefully than in dealing with fire hazards.

COOPERATION MUST HAVE SUPPORT

In a recent radio address, featured on a program of the Dairymen's League, Governor Pinchot advocated stronger and greater cooperative organizations of producers and more virile and militant support for them.

Perhaps the most definite single fact educed by the agricultural depression, is that the farmer can no longer pursue a lone course. He must associate himself with those who have the same interests at heart if he is to progress and prosper.

It is worthy of mention that the large cooperatives have done remarkably well during the present period of stress. They have had their troubles—such as the milk wars in the East—and prices for produce have been low. But it is unquestionably true that their work has saved their members from far worse conditions.

Even so, the development of cooperatives has been sadly hampered by lack of support. Too many farmers have refused to join, in the belief that they will receive the beneficial results without paying the cost. No attitude could be more mistaken. Not only the progress of the cooperative movement, but its very existence, depends on whole-hearted support by ALL farmers.

PLUCK THE TAXEATERS

The financial branches of government are seeking ways and means to increase taxes and develop news forms of taxation. Scant attention is given ways to cut costs.

It is unquestionably true that the cost of government could be pruned by millions of dollars a year, without in any way lowering its efficiency or preventing it meeting its obligations. It might be a good idea to demand that our public servants do this before further burdening the taxpayer.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litchert

We have now come to the celebration of the bicentennial birthday of George Washington, America's greatest patriot. As we approach this event, it would seem that practically everything has been said that can be, concerning the patriotism, the sacrifices and the various achievements of this renomn man. America's gratitude toward this greatest of patriots is perhaps now keener than it has ever been before. As the years roll by the greatness of his wisdom becomes more manifest.

We might wish that the year 1932, marking the bicentennial of Washington's birth, could have brought us happier times than now seem probable. But despite the troubles which beset us we shall go fearlessly ahead, throwing off the gloom which at times envelopes us, struggling forward the more bravely as we pause to consider the tremendous handicaps through which George Washington struggled to victory. When we recall the terrible winter at Valley Forge and the equally terrible one at Morristown, when we remember that the thirteen struggling colonies were beset by enemies from within and without, had little wealth and no credit, and few developed resources, and when we consider that despite the tremendous handicaps, Washington and the other patriots of his day, relying on the justness of their cause, and trusting in Providence, fought on to victory, surely America's difficulties of the present day seem small and unimportant by comparison.

Now we have great wealth, boundless natural resources, a great population of intelligent men and women, and a standard of living that is the admiration and the envy of the rest of the world. Surely, unless he has lost the moral fiber of the forefathers, America will come back to even greater heights of prosperity and achievement.

The wisdom of Washington becomes even more manifest to us today when we read his Farewell Address and consider the perils against which he warned us, perils which seem to be as real now as in the time when the First President was retiring to private life. The advice to beware of foreign entanglements has been followed, with little variation ever since it was given, and it is only when we have strayed that we have suffered. Surely no one today will have the hardihood to say that the advice was not well given.

One hundred years ago, on February 22nd, in the city of Washington, the eloquent Daniel Webster delivered an address commemorating the centennial of Washington's birth. Speaking of Washington's farewell address, he said:

"I hardly know how a greater service of that kind could now be done the community, than by a renewed and wide diffusion of that admirable paper, and an earnest invitation to every man in the country to repurse and consider it. Its political maxims are invaluable; its exhortation to love of country and to brotherly affection among citizens, touching; and the solemnity with which it urges the observance of moral duties, and impresses the power of religious obligation gives to it the highest character of truly disinterested, sincere parental advice.

"The domestic policy of Geo. Washington found its polestar in the avowed objects of the constitution itself. He endeavored so to administer that Constitution, as to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty. Those were objects interesting in the highest degree, to the whole country, and his policy embraced the whole country."

There is little more to be said concerning George Washington. Little has been left unsaid. May his spirit continue to hover over us through every peril which may beset these United States.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Coalition To The Rescue!

By George B. Lockwood

The anti-tariff coalition that has controlled the United States Senate since the beginning of the Hoover administration, did a significant thing the other day.

The Senate, with some members absent, had passed a resolution empowering the Tariff Commission to investigate the effect of the action of certain nations in going off the gold standard, upon the protective value of existing tariff rates.

The coalition rallied later, and voted down the resolution. It required no inquiry to understand that when England, for instance, goes off the gold standard, reducing thereby the value of her currency in which wages are paid, wages are correspondingly reduced. In the case of England, this reduction is thirty per cent, of canada 24.9 per cent.

Tariff protection is based upon the difference in production costs, chiefly labor costs, at home and abroad. Consequently when a great industrial nation reduces its labor costs thirty per cent, whatever protection exists in our markets for American industry paying high wages, is thereby impaired, or destroyed.

But the senate coalition has expressed its opposition to having these facts officially ascertained and given to the country. Why? Clearly for the reason that this coalition objects to the application of the principle of protecting American enterprise and labor against that destructive competition which is a procured pauperizing cheapness through the cheapening of workers.

Yet the platform of both of the major political parties in the last campaign declaring in favor of giving that measure of protection which refuses unfair advantage in our markets to those foreign producers who cheapen goods by cheapening people.

There is, of course, just one reasonable explanation of this opposition of the Senate coalition to taking action, which would halt the continued lowering of our price levels, already disastrous, to love American production costs, based on higher wage levels.

This is the fact that internationalized industry and finance has invested and loaned so many billions of American dollars in foreign cheap labor markets, that it fears inability to make these foreign investments profitable except by the sales of foreign commodities in our markets, although this can only be done through the displacement of our production and the lowering of our price levels to an unprofitable point.

The purpose of England in going off the gold standard is clear. It was to cheapen production by lowering wages, and thus forge a lower-price weapon for use in our own and the other markets. The duty of American statesmen is to see to it that this destructive, contain of its purpose in injury of

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

We concede that it is a delicate and precarious business for the press to criticise the pulpit. The fealty of a Christian to his church and pastor is a sacred relation and one that is closely related to family consanguinity.

But the pulpit, like the press, deals with public questions. The press is not above criticism, neither is the pulpit. When the preacher unjustly criticizes a man or a set of men individually or collectively, there should be some means of defense, and there is.

At the last Sunday evening services at the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. A. F. Nagler, took for his text, "Come ye out from among them; separate yourselves from the world."

Most pastors when we have heard preach from this text, used it as an exhortation to those who were absorbed in the frivolities and vices of the carnal world, to come forth into the effulgent light of salvation through Jesus Christ, the Savior.

But Mr. Nagler applied it unequivocally to secret societies and especially Masonry. Now, one of the chief things taught a Masonic novitiate is "never to enter into argument with those who, through ignorance, may ridicule Masonry." Masonry needs no champions—no defenders.

But in the discourse Mr. Nagler made three statements concerning the Masonic obligation, and was promptly corrected by a Methodist Mason who was present, proving that the pastor had misrepresented, a thing which a Christian minister should never do.

Now as to the Charlevoix Methodist Church and Masonry. The first pastor ever appointed to this charge was a Master Mason—Rev. J. Gulick; the second was not, the third was a zealous Mason and the fourth. Along through the "middle ages" of this church there were more Masons than non-Masons, and they were all Christian gentlemen.

Going back from this pastorate, Mr. Nagler's predecessor, Dr. Hatchard, was a Royal Arch Mason; his predecessor, Mr. Barnes, was a Mason; Mr. Barnes' predecessor, Mr. Iddings, was a Royal Arch Mason, and the predecessor of Mr. Iddings was a Knight Templar, sent to the charge by a Bishop who was a Knight Templar, and all were Christian gentlemen.

Masonry teaches reverence for the name of Deity; it inculcates doctrines of purity of life, rectitude of conduct, and devotion to country and family. In no way does it run a contrawise with doctrines taught by the orthodox church.

Now, why should the pulpit be made a tribunal for passing judgment upon men? Why should the rostrum of an orthodox Christian church be made to do what a papal bull did centuries ago? "The greatest and best of men in all ages have been Masons, and have not deemed derogatory to their dignity to partonize its assemblies, or practice its arts. Washington, Garfield, McKinley, and a host of others great in their country's history have been high in Masonic councils and have been proud of it.

Masonry has always taught that we should "neveed mention the name of God but with that reverential awe that is due from the creature to the Creator."

The higher degrees of Masonry—the orders of Christian Knighthood—makes "the birth, life, death, the resurrection and ascension of our divine saviour "the chief element in its work, and the Lord's prayer is as essential to a Templar's conclave as it is in a Methodist Church.

Yet the pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church condemns Masonry and calls its votaries hypocrites. We try to be charitable to those whom God hath not endowed with some mental faculties which, when combined, constitute what is known as common sense. Among the ills to always to be found the critics and enemies of Masonry. A few—only a few—of these are presents of the people of Jesus Christ, and for the sake of that sacred calling, we are sorry it is so.

But Mr. Nagler's "sermon" was an insult to many of the best citizens of Charlevoix, and we are much mistaken if they do not resent it.

Forty Years Ago

Will See started home from Oregon yesterday morning.

Henry Barth is at work repairing the boiler of the Minnie Warren. He will also do considerable work on the Avery and Martin this spring.

A lot of our young people went up to Engineer Dodgson's railroad camp Thursday night, and played pedro. There is big talk among them about rustic hospitality, etc. Anyhow all report a great time.

The annual charter election for this village will occur on Monday, March 7th. The following officers are to be elected: A president, four trustees, in place of Trustees Ackert, Burns, Smith and Lobdell; a clerk, treasurer, assessor and constable. The question of bonding the village for $25,000 for waterworks will also be voted upon.

A Letter From One of General Russel A. Alger's Captains.

To the editor of the Sentinel:

I have noticed with considerable indignation the charge made by the New York Sun against Gen. R. A. Alger, and would like to tell what I know about that brave officer and his war record.

I had the honor to command a company in his regiment, the 5th Michigan Cavalry, and participated in nearly every battle in which that regiment engaged. During a portion of the time I was prisoner of war. I was with Alger at Winchester, Cedar Creek, at the fight at Shepardstown, in which the 5th covered the retreat and my company was the last one across the river of the Cavalry bridge across. Gen. Alger following us. We dismounted five times to fight before crossing. Gen. Alger exhibiting the same daring courage that characterized him in every battle in which he was engaged. Every officer of the regiment now alive will remember that Alger was sick at that time, and I remember distinctly when he went to the hospital.

Alger came to our regiment under trying circumstances. He had been Major of the 7th Cavalry and was promoted to Colonel and transferred to the 5th. There was a good deal of growling among the officers of our regiment at this appointment as it chorked promotion among our line officers. But inside of a month Col. Alger won the heart of every officer and man in the regiment. They learned to love him as a commander, and admire his skill and bravery. No braver man ever drew a saber.

The New York Sun, nor any coterie of candidate-killers, can never make believe there is a spot on the military record of Russel A. Alger. He was a knightly and daring soldier, and would die rather than dishonor himself or his flag.

Yours, Harrison Berdan.

Late Capt. Co. I, 5th Mich. Cav.
Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 23, 1932.

Fifty Years Ago

E. M. Clark arrived home last Thursday from Detroit.

It is said there is a probability that Fort Mackinac will be abandoned in the spring.

The Historic Society expects to have Col. E. H. Thompson lecture here on Shakespeare in about three weeks and Wheat's Orchestra have advocated this step and heartily commends the action of the council in bringing the matter before the people. During the summer months the land in question is used as an afternoon and evening resort by not only our resorters, but by village people and being in a state of nature, and overlooking the broad lake, possessing beautiful undulations and interspersed with shapely evergreens, it is indeed a beautiful spot in summer, and should remain as it is in nature, and be devoted to future pleasure to our people and summer guests.

Sixty Years Ago

Owing to the scarcity of wood and coal in Butler county, Iowa, the people are burning corn.

South Arm will have a photograph gallery next summer.

The ball at Fox and Rose's Hall, on the 22nd was a success.

The Barnard school closed last evening with a public exhibition.

A live, yelling panther is said to be inhabiting the woods in Marion and vicinity.

Mr. Cooper has the timber on the ground for his hotel addition, which will be commenced early in the spring.

Deer are more plentiful in this county than during any previous winter. More than twenty have been killed so far this winter. They were undoubtedly driven north by the forest fires.

Work on the piers will commence on Monday in earnest. A survey was made on Thursday and timber is being rapidly hauled to the bank of the river.

H. W. Beach, Esq., of Antrim, proposes, the coming spring, to concentrate the resources of about 700 maple trees in the manufacture of syrup, which he will seal up in air-tight cans, and transport west, where he is confident he will realize fully $2.50 per gallon. Mr. Beach has, previous springs, made large quantities of sugar, which has been disposed of in the same way, bringing a high price. This shows that sugar making, when conducted in a business like manner, is the most profitable resource of the farm.

A petition to the legislature is in circulation, asking that the Act approved April 18, 1871, appropriating 16 sections of swamp land, for the reclamation and drainage of our internal coast-line, to be selected from the counties of Charlevoix and Antrim, and which was subsequently "vetoed" by the State Board of Control, be amended by appropriating the said 16 sections of swamp land, to be selected from any portion of the state. As we understand it, this again brings the matter before this Supreme Board of Control for another "veto." We are to earthly use for any legislature. Why not transfer the lawmaking power to this August Assembly and disband those two expensive bodies, the State Senate and House of Representatives? Multum in parvo, E pluribus unum: Sic transt—bel canto!

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

our competitive production, already demoralized through excessive cheap labor competition. But here we have a Senate majority so anxious to make this aggressive foreign has produced bankruptcy by destruction of mass consuming power in keeping wages stationary, or reducing wages since before the World War. Thus these nations have not only killed their own outlets for production, but now attack our own. Here, between 1914 and 1927, we doubled wages, thus taking care of the increased output of the machine age through giving workers a larger share of industrial output, instead of keeping all the profits of machine and mass production for the owners of machines.

All the depression and unemployment in this country is due to the unequal struggle between these two systems, in which, as in the case of money, the cheaper drives out the dearer. That is what is going on in the United States today: our price levels are being fixed through the insufficiently handicapped competition of the product of vastly lower wage and price levels.

The big and short-sighted interests which seek, in the interest of the international exploiters and pawn brokers, to bring European and American wages and living standards to a common level, saw that when the American people were officially informed as to the effect of European currency inflation and wage reduction would be, in the creation of further American unemployment and depression, it would stir a popular demand for defensive action. It was not long until the Senate coalition took steps to prevent the facts from getting to the people from official sources.

The Indian Chorus and Illuminated pictures on the Chinese situation will prove interesting. Chorus conducted by Mr. Kuhnes of Petoskey. See Methodist Church Notes.

The Men's Community Club meets next Monday evening at 6:30. The plan is for an address by the State Tax Commissioner.

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 19th day of February, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Francis J. McCullough, Margaret Gallagher, as Executor of the Estate of William J. Gallagher, Deceased, having filed in said court her final administration account, and petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4413

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 2nd day of February, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased.

Harriet Mary Black, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4413.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Seullin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 66 of Mortgages on page 354 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Tax thereon having been paid on account by attachment, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 21 and the East 1 foot of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now City) of Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, Charlevoix City, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, by and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, to pay the amount due on said mortgage at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, to be the sum of $1547.70 Dated December 10th, 1931.

H. W. Midland Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

B. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38113

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE.

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Cora C. Decker, Plaintiff vs. Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th, October 1931 in said cause, said suit having been filed in the office of the undersigned on the 28th day of January, A. D. 1932.

And the following territory is designated and established as a special assessment district therefor, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue at both sides of Bridge Street thence south on Bridge Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

That the plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost of said sewer may be found for examination at the office of the City Clerk in said City of Charlevoix, and that the common council and city engineer and city clerk will meet and consider any suggestions and objections that may be made by parties interested with reference to said sewer, at a meeting to be held on Thursday the 3rd day of March A. D. 1932 at seven thirty in the afternoon, Central Standard Time at the Council Room in the City of Charlevoix.

Dated February 16th, 1932.

Arthur Bergeron, Mayor.
Attest: Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk
4312

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CONSTRUCT A SEWER.

Notice is hereby given that the common council of the City of Charlevoix intends to construct a sewer in Bridge Street in the City of Charlevoix, including the construction of all necessary ventilators, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins and flush-tanks and all necessary attachments including lot laterals commencing on Bridge Street sixteen feet south of the center of West Green Avenue thence south on Bridge Street two hundred and thirty feet, connecting with the sewer already established in West Green Avenue.

And the following territory is designated and established as a special assessment district therefor, to wit: Commencing at the south line of West Green Avenue at both sides of Bridge Street thence south on Bridge Street to the north line of West Carpenter Avenue, excepting from the above all public streets and alleys.

That the plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost of said sewer may be found for examination at the office of the City Clerk in said City of Charlevoix, and that the common council and city engineer and city clerk will meet and consider any suggestions and objections that may be made by parties interested with reference to said sewer, at a meeting to be held on Thursday the 3rd day of March A. D. 1932 at seven thirty in the afternoon, Central Standard Time at the Council Room in the City of Charlevoix.

Dated February 16th, 1932.

Arthur Bergeron, Mayor.
Attest: Ray S. Hamilton, Clerk
4312

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Probate of Will.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 29th day of January, A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased.

Harriet Mary Black, having filed her petition, praying that an instrument filed in said court be admitted to Probate as the last will and testament of said deceased and that administration of said estate be granted to herself, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That the 26th day of February A. D. 1932, at 10 A. M., at said Probate Office is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That Public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4313.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Seullin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 66 of Mortgages on page 354 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Tax thereon having been paid on account by attachment, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz.: Lot 21 and the East 1 foot of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now City) of Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, Charlevoix City, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, by and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, to pay the amount due on said mortgage at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, to be the sum of $1547.70 Dated December 10th, 1931.

H. W. Midland Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

B. A. Ruegsegger
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 38113

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 42tf

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

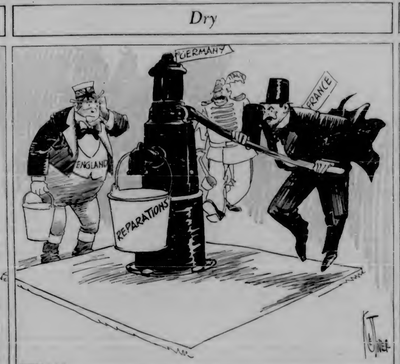
CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By F. O. Alexander

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

Along the Concrete

Dry



MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

Print Shop Talk

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks

AT THIS PLACE

stood the quiet, untroubled scene of two hundred years ago, began a life that was to ride high in history. It is Wakefield, Virginia, the birth-place of George Washington. Fire and the destroying hand of Time long since laid waste to the hearth-stone, and for conscribused years the stark chimney and the slab marking the place of his birth were all that remained. Even these vanished as the years went by.

Silver bowl used at the christening of George Washington

KILL COLD GERMS
NAVAP
NASAL VAPOR
Clears head instantly. Stops cold spreading. Sprinkle your handkerchief during the day — your pillow at night.
50¢ AT ALL DRUG STORES
NARKISON PRODUCT

Hogs Eat Grasshoppers

Lois to the summer some sections of the state of Nebraska were reported to be badly overrun with grasshoppers. Many methods were tried to hold them in check but it remained for a pig breeder to discover our simple plan to destroy them. This pig man discovered that his stomach would eat the grasshoppers and it left in a badly infested area would profitably devour or drive away the pests. And quick good genius is wanted at the same time.—Montreal Herald.

COMFORT
for COLICKY BABIES
... THROUGH CASTORIA'S GENTLE REGULATION

CASTORIA
CHARLES H. FLETCHER

Windmills Fight Frost

Don Quixot fought windmills but as in his dreams wants only those now using windmills to fight frost. An experiment circle of orchardist of the type used in lower sunshine in southern as on a good citrus. It starts through terror to save the fruit of all known kind of citrus. The machines have been in service for some time.

World's Tallest Hotel
46 Stories High
CHICAGO'S MORRISON HOTEL
Madison and Clark Streets
Every room in the Morrison Hotel is outside with bath, circulating ice water, bed-lined reading lamp and Servidor. Garage facilities.
LEONARD HICKS
Operating Director
2500 ROOMS
$3.00 UP

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Restores Color and Vitality to Hair
Imparts Color and Fullness
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c and $1.00 at Druggists
Hisp. Chem. Works, Patchogue, N.Y.
FLORESTON SHAMPOO — Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes the hair soft and fluffy. At stores by mail or at drug-stores. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N.Y.

Borrowing Unnecessary

"There's no use borrowing trouble," said the philosophic citizen.

"You don't have to borrow it," replied the cynic. "Somebody is at ways willing to come along and hand it to you gratis."

Indigestion is an office, due to too much eaten, as to what one eats.

MENTHOLATUM soothing ointment does not rub cold like a magnet when rubbed on chest and throat. Same breathing when inserted in stuffy nostrils. Jars and tubes.
FOR COLDS

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 5—1932

Rhine Fortress Is Weakening

Washington, D. C.—Rheinfelsstein, frowning fortress on the east bank of the Rhine opposite Koblenz, is weakening. Enemy guns have often shaken the lofty fortress but this time nature is making the attack. Recently huge boulders have loosened from its foundations, leaving chasms in their path to the highway which they blocked below.

"It is nearly 200 feet to the crest of the rock on which Rheinfelsstein fortress is perched," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"The north, east and west sides of the rocks are cliffs so precipitous that the fortress is almost unapproachable from those directions. The south side, though it has a winding roadway, also is not easily accessible.

"The central fort of Rheinfelsstein threats castle-like above the double line of works surrounding it. The fortress is the successor to a Roman fort that crowned the rock's summit ages ago. Koblenz was a little settlement on the Confluentes. A portion of the central fortress now standing has dominated the Rhine valley since the thirteenth century. In 1688 the French occupied the fort for six years. The most recent fortress to adorn the summit was that the Stars and Stripes which fluttered over the fort from December to January 1923, while it was occupied by the American forces in Germany.

"Perhaps few spots in the Rhine valley offer more magnificent panoramas. Almost east below Koblenz the Rhine shore line is dotted with quaint villages that resemble pearls strung on a silver string. Thirty-story hackwards are well-kept vineyards, while from the river banks the upward sale of having recently been climbed by a coarse instrument. Terrific many climbs above the vineyards are castles—some occupied and some in ruins—which once found the voices of the great and most proud of Europe in celebration of historic events.

"Although the Rhine flows between Koblenz and Oberlahnstein, the traveler seems the town from such height that it appears almost at the immediate base. Three villages one of which is of the quaint type seen on the Rhine at Koblenz.

"The city is empire built between the Moselle and Rhine rivers with a national statue of William I amassed on a massive stone foundation, dividing the point where the two rivers meet. From the statue to the end of the city along the Rhine shore, there is a continuous promenade crowned with shade trees and here and there studded with small flower-filled parks. The land side of the promenade is flanked with villas set in gardens, and quaint eating places, bristling sentinel-like from each doorway. Here also the finest of Rhine wines be may worth. Koblenz, sacred as his ethics and the commercial parade on the river beyond.

"What does Koblenz do for a living and What happened to the town that was here 2,000 years ago are questions visitors ask. One observes few old buildings. There are no forty thousand-ton to ship the skyline punctuated by graceful spires of churches. The quay on the House is clean and devoid of cargo, and warehouses are conspicuously absent from view.

"These questions are not answered until one penetrates the modern city and finds oneself in a small district on the shoulder of the Moselle beyond the arm of the Rhine. Here commercial Koblenz is situate. Barges come and go from the ocean. Immense arrays rumble under the pounding steel rims of heavy cart wheels drowning out the feeble emanating from glass, paper and dye factories and chemical laboratories. This is commercial Koblenz and ancient Koblenz. Its modern hotels and office buildings, though not 2,000 years old, have watched the progress of empires and countries."

Spring Ensemble

This modish spring ensemble is composed of a gown of bright blue wool with brassiere and skirt of white stripes. The scarf, looped in front, is stitched tightly to the bodice and the deep cuffs reveal the flare that is now in such popular favor. The hat is a matching felt. Flaked leather pumps set off the chic costume.

Execution in 1825 Is Recalled by Old Arms

Sword and Rifle Are Treasured by Ohio Man.

New Philadelphia, Ohio.—Destruction and retribution frequently go hand in hand, just as do cause and effect, supply and demand, or, but not often do you see their actual forms lying side by side.

At Schoenbrunn Memorial park, just southeast of here, are the two weapons, a rifle and a sword.

Behind the two inscriptions of elaborate is the story of the only legal hanging in Tuscarawas county, which was executed in grand style by the escorts and 5,000 citizens of this village. What turned out the event.

In 1825 a young mail carrier named Christell was shot while traveling a lonely wooded road, found from Westchester to Cadiz.

A hunter named Johnson heard the rifle crack, and, hurrying through the brush, found Cartwell dead and the mail bag rifled.

He immediately gave the alarm, and was surprised most unpleasantly when he found himself arrested on circumstantial evidence and brought in. Two Delaware runners left in New Philadelphia. Here he was charged with the murder.

Footprints of a man on the scene, however, did not coincide with John son's tracks, and, in accordance with a suggestion from the accused man, the entire male population was ordered to assemble on a certain day arter shirts to have their feet examined.

Johnson hoped by this method to identify the man whom he remembered having seen emerging stealthily out of the woods the day of the murder and sworn he then had taken for another hunter.

After assuming many faces Johnson suddenly pointed to John Fleming, exclaiming, "Find in the suit!"

"You are a liar!" Fleming answered, but even as he spoke some gathered on his brow, his lips trembled and his face paled. Johnson was released.

Later, after Fleming was tried and convicted, he broke down and admitted the fowling piece found near the mail carrier's body was his.

A gallows immediately was erected along the intersection of Wade High and Tuscarawas streets. Fleming, a station on the Cleveland-Marietta railroad between Newcomerstown and Cambridge, now marks the site.

Father Sage Says:

There is the same difference between a politician and a statesman that there is between a bleating and a goat staghorn.

Uses Plate 32 Years

West Stockbridge, Mass.—Ever since he was married in 1900 George H. Root has eaten from the same plate. During the 32 years, he estimated, he has enjoyed more than 35,000 meals from his favorite brown-bordered plate.

Evil events from evil causes spring

Foreign Made Chairs Irk Mrs. Kahn

When Congressman Florence Kahn of California discovered that her gold plated living room chairs were made in Czechoslovakia, she was much angered. So much so, that one immediately introduced a bill providing that all government supplies shall be products of American labor.

Why waste your strength? Get whiter washes easily

WHY scrub? Why boil? Use the soap that makes your own duds! You'll get the whitest, brightest wash you ever saw. And you'll like the way the washable colored things stay so fresh and new. Safely.

Never mind how hard your water is. Forget about soft-water? Rinso is all you need. Cup for cup, it gives as much suds as lightweights, puffed-up soaps. Creamy, lasting suds.

Wonderful in washers, too; the makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. And nothing like its lively suds for dishwashing! Get the BIG package.

A PRODUCT OF LEVER BROTHERS CO., CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Rinso
The granulated soap for tub, washer and dishpan

Writer Would Go Limit in State Abbreviations

The abbreviation used for Ohio is "O." Apparently Oklahoma and Iowa can do not affect. But there are six states whose names begin with letters which are not the first letters of the names of any of the other states. Those states are: Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maine and Utah. Why not use U. T. P and U. for the admonitions? Why is spelling wrong if the men concerned in the spell are willing to take the consequences of their wa-gers?

Well, for one reason, there is seldom an unprejudiced being around to witness correct only himself. Decision for instance, who could with difference keep himself from the notion, was a young married man with a child as well as his wife to support, who was not making his own payments when he bet upon games or men's bouts at poker or played the stock market. He was making their living and doing it too, without their consent. It isn't quite popular the game apparently to be so.

McMasters was referring to a young friend of mine not long ago upon this subject. McMasters is not a young man any more. He has come to good days of his world. In his time he got sorts of people, and his experiences have been varied. He has seen gambling from the amusement of the unthinking and time the handlers of a rather shifting manipulator of the cards.

"I wouldn't gamble, son," he said. "For the wonder, if you lose, you usually feel suffered it, and if you win you have mental fits which you have no right to enjoy, and money of that sort, gives you little pleasure, and what's worth it. It is only the things that you pay full value for that really gives you any real pleasure."

—O. K., All But

"Is that a real diamond?"

"Yeah, every penny."—The Humorist.

A Protective Food

The importance of cod liver oil as a protective food was established by a Government Medical Food Board and Child Health. Its outstanding food for young children, for expectant mothers, and for convalescents. A safe to build a foundation of cod liver oil is a protective way of taking this great protective food. It is combined with a dose of extract-building and tissue-building hypophosphites. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. Factory: Orange, Conn. Scott & Bowne (Canada) Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

Scott's Emulsion
OF NORWEGIAN COD'S LIVER OIL

Fish Without Eyes

Blind fish swim in subterranean streams in the limestone caves of Kentucky. Tennessee, southern Ohio, northern Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Missouri and Arkansas. Some fishes which go through gestation years are born of the Asia Antiquus Fluvius Carolinus. The species itself are light years as color which wears above the ground, probably due to the formation of the cell composition. Water pressure in their underwater haunts is about 100 pounds to the square inch.

Just Girls

Instructor—Jim, name in a very short sentence. If he was very anxious to get married.

Nonsense—Any boy would actually dream of it he didn't first ask!

WELL BALANCED SKIN TREATMENT
For Daily Care of the Skin
The Soap thoroughly cleanses and at the same time protects the skin. The Ointment heals that unexpected pimple, rash or skin irritation.
Soap 25c. Ointment 25c and 50c. Cuticura Laboratories, Malden, Mass.
Try Cuticura Shaving Cream.

Odd Forms of "Exercise"

Dr. Harrison Gray Dyar, Washington (D. C.) biologist who died three years ago, had a unique solution of the exercise problem. Instead work-ing engaged in rearing bees his favorite hours found an extensive laboratory of measure and exercises engaged some of the passages were easily measured and fitted with figures, Dyar's widow explained that her husband, ordered by his physician to get more exercise and, being unable to get out into the country, arose at five o'clock each morning for four hours and put in several hours of figuring daily.

RELIEVES HEAD, CHEST and BACK COLDS
ALBATUM 35¢
Stainless "Rub In" and inhalant unsurpassed in preventing and relieving cold congestions
QUALITY SINCE 1833 — McKESSON & ROBBINS — SOLD AT ALL DRUG STORES

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

SUCH IS LIFE—A Slight Change Necessary — By Charles Sughroe

Painless Way to Study History Quite Popular

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Dr. William H. Hesseltine has developed a "painless" method of teaching American history.

For three years now the youthful head of the University of Chattanooga history department has offered a biography course as introductory to the study of the history of these United States. He calls it "Representative Americans." The class is filled to capacity each semester.

Members of the "report-dreaded Americans" class read biographies and listen to lectures on the lives of typical Americans instead of forcing themselves through the usual abstruseness in dusty study of a textbook, with its confusion of dates, wars and facts.

The lives of 18 men, from Franklin to Wilson, are studied during the college year. Through the mid-times of these men, each one selected as typical of his period, the students absorb a background knowledge of the various phases of their nation's history—its political, economic and social development.

This biographical approach serves to make history something alive and understandable, rather than a farrago of facts to memorize, Doctor Hesseltine finds.

Old Indian Territory Landmark Is Bankrupt

Muskogee, Okla.—A landmark of the old Indian territory days has passed under the auctioneer's hammer. Ruffles that have invented pioneer business establishments formed the Bell Trading company of Eufaula into federal court receivership. The company's seven departments comprising drug store, undertaking parlor, groceries, and hardware stocks, occupied six buildings that lined one block here.

Two days after the furniture around the moved to another part of Eden.

JACKSON V. SCHOLTZ

Jackson V. Scholtz, track luminary in the 1930, 1924 and 1928 Olympics, has stepped out of the athletic observatory into which he had retired, in an endeavor to win a berth on this year's United States Olympic team. Scholtz, who has been acclaimed the greatest all-around runner in the history of the track, is now practicing daily at Franklin field, Philadelphia.

Shorthand in Use by Romans 200 Years B. C.

Rome, Italy.—The ciba little symbols which American shorthand writers scribble on their pads are of ancient Roman and not American origin, a recent archeological study has revealed.

As a matter of fact, Romans were widely using a uniform system of shorthand writing 200 years before Christ. After the fall of the empire the use of abbreviated writing fell into disuse until modern American business methods revived its need.

Such are the declarations in a recent scholarly investigation of Cius Manneno. His studies have brought to

GAMBLING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is wrong to gamble, most people earnestly, even those zealous people who indulge in the pastime themselves. Reasser, who has been caught in a dazzling succession, asks me to explain. To find that the practice is contrary to law. There are many things, he points out to me, for the law finds that are not in themselves wrong, but are to be made illegal for other considerations.

Answer is quite familiar with the considerations—the abuse, in fact—and he cannot see that gambling is any way violates the commands laid down in these.

WINS HIGH HONOR

In recognition of outstanding service rendered to his community during the last year, Harwood Howes, former president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and past president of the Los Angeles branch of that organization, has been awarded the first annual distinguished service medal of the national body.

GABBY GERTIE

"It isn't necessary to speak French in Paris—one just points at the label."

POTPOURRI

The Eskimos

While no one knows positive to their origin, many of their practices, legends and language indicate the Eskimos are a primitive American race related to the Indian. The name "Eskimo" means eaters of raw flesh, but they now themselves "Innuit," meaning "people." Although scattered over Alaska, Labrador, Greenland and Arctic Siberia, all speak the same fundamental.

Oh, yes, without Shakespeare Bacon I would have written those plays.

Light the first alphabet of modern Roman shorthand writers, and, turning enough the c. [illegible] Caesar. In these ancient days, West Virginia is the only "State" alone, but with [illegible] 3 to 6 inches long, figuratively the on rounding the workers.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 6:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

The last commandment, "Thou shalt not covet" will be the subject for the morning service at 10:45. This is the last of the "Ten Commandments," but March 6th we will take the New Testament viewpoint of the Decalogue.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Roach, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 7:30 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening 8:30 o'clock.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject—Fri. 12—"Christ Jesus"
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

CHURCH OF GOD
L. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30

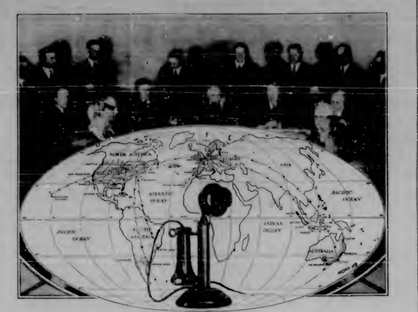
METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor

Feb 28—God Damns No Man, or Two Into Tw Mend."
Mission—50 — "Wooden Nutmegs"

Evenings—10—Illuminated Pictures, Indian stories, led by Mr. Kahgee of Petoskey. This charge will furnish some fine music, and the pictures will be of Chinese—a Farm of 400,000,000." These pictures are very interesting and instructive at this time, with horror in China.

Mar. 6.—The Fellow You Can't Kill.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. Ed. Heinz, on Antrim St., and the Aid Society has a noon luncheon next week Thursday with Mrs. George Brown. The Men's Club meets next Monday evening. The plan now is to have the State Tax Commissioner present the meeting, with special stunt. There was a record church attendance last Sunday, about the largest since conference. In Sunday School the High School Department had Fifty-Three.



TRANSOCEANIC TELEPHONE SERVICE FIVE YEARS OLD

The first Michigan telephone call to a transatlantic point was made February 12, 1927, by Burch Forker, president Michigan Bell Telephone Company. Map shows present extent of transoceanic service by means of which 92 per cent of the world's telephones can be interconnected.

FIVE YEARS AGO
MICHIGAN LINKED TO LONDON JOINED BY TELEPHONE

Five years ago this month, Michigan newspapers chronicled the first telephone conversation between this state and England. It marked an epoch in communication —conversation between people on opposite sides of the Atlantic had been made possible, and this service had been extended to Michigan less than a month after its practical demonstration by Bell System engineers. The telephone had bridged an ocean and made the world a smaller place.

February 12, 1927, marked the opening of transatlantic telephone service for Michigan telephone users. But so rapid has been the development of vocal communication over great distances that already the word "transatlantic" has been replaced by "transoceanic". Voices of Michigan people have crossed not only the Atlantic, but also the Pacific and Indian oceans. And the science of telephone engineering continues to push back the horizon still farther.

Prior to 1927 there was no practical means of conversation between our shores and points in the old world. Bell Systems engineers, however, were experimenting and developing the service. Today, 32,829,000 or approximately 92 per cent of all the telephones in the world, can be interconnected over the transoceanic circuits.

Calls can be placed from Michigan to almost any point in North America, much of South America, all of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, practically all of Europe from Britany to the Black Sea, Australia, the city of Cairo in Northern Africa, the islands of Java and Sumatra in the East Indies, Spain, the Canary Islands, Bermuda and the Hawaiian archipelago. Seven large passenger liners, while at sea, maintain telephone contact with this great network through "ship-to-short" telephone service. And the limit has by no means been reached.

In 1927, one of the transatlantic service approved a half-dozen calls a day. Now and from this country. Michigan people averaged only two or three a month. In the space of several weeks after the service was open, only one call was received in Michigan from abroad, and none was placed by Michigan people for the

CITY PRIMARY ELECTION

To the qualified electors of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan

Notice is hereby given, that a City Primary Election will be held on

MONDAY, MARCH 7. A. D. 1932

In the several Wards of said City at the places indicated below, viz.:

First Ward—Central Polling Place.
Second Ward—Central Polling Place.
Third Ward—Central Polling Place.

For the purpose of nominating by direct vote candidates for the following offices, viz.:

CITY—1 Mayor; 1 City Clerk: 1 City Treasurer: 1 Park Commissioner.

WARD—1 Supervisor; 1 Alderman; 1 Constable for each of the Wards of the City.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 8:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

Dated Feb. 13, A. D. 1932. 4343

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,800 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W ½ of SW ¼ Section 30, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Macatawa, Mich. 4[illegible]

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Appointment of Administrator.

State of Michigan.
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 24th day of February A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Rungeager, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Nathan P. Munyon, Deceased.

Charles S. Munyon having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to A. L. Fitch, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That the 14th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Rungeager,
Judge of Probate

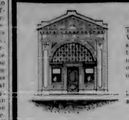
4[illegible]

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,800 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W ½ of SW ¼ Section 30, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Macatawa, Mich. 4[illegible]



FEBRUARY 22, 1932

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us lend hands, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00

ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision

OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. B. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; B. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

Upon conservative estimate there are 2 billion dollars still being hoarded in America today—in the hardcap of finance, industry and agriculture, to the detriment of all of us. Yours to restore prosperity.

Now, however, that our government's reconstruction measures are actually under way, isn't it time to release this drag—let up on the brakes —and give prosperity a fair chance to return?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert E. Bridge Robert Bridge T. E. Sec John Z. Ross
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, FEB. 27, 28

MARILYN MILLER
in
"Her Majesty Love"
with
Ben Lyon, W. C. Fields, Leon Errol, Ford Sterling, Chester Conklin.

Prepare yourself for your greatest sensation. Tunes you can whistle! Wisecracks you'll remember! Mad! Delirious! Enchanting! Six big stars! Lavlegt of all heroines. Biggest entertainment ever offered at any price.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS
Two Cartoons—"Barnyard Broadcast" and "Curiosity 277"

Coming—"AMBASSADOR BILL".

NOTE—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

MICHIGAN as a Winter Resort

Michigan, widely known as a summer vacationland, is becoming recognized as an unrivalled winter playground.

It offers abundant opportunities for the enjoyment of exhilarating winter sports . . . incomparable hills for skiing and tobogganing . . . thousands of lakes for skating and ice-boating . . . forests and rivers for hunting and fishing . . . all easily accessible over fine roads and railways, and by air.

It is to the interest of all who reside in Michigan to contemplate the winter attractions of our state, and to call them to the attention of others.

Michigan is a great state to live in and a great state to visit. Wherever you go in Michigan—at work or play—Long Distance telephone service will keep you in constant touch with home and office.

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing
104 W. Garfield

SCHOOL NOTES
(Continued from fifth page.)

the bank; but down in my heart I knew I really wouldn't. So I built many dreams around that hard work of for prize. I thought that I would buy a darling little roadster, a yellow one, probably a Ford, because they are the sportiest looking for a small amount of money. And even though the award was large and I could afford a better car I wanted to make my money go as far as possible. Then after purchasing the roadster, I went as far as to make several itineraries as to the best route to New York City for that was the place where I wished most to visit. I wanted to travel across the United States with my motto "See the U. S. A. before going to Europe." Now I have changed to "Never answer advertisements."

But my castles certainly did tumble because two weeks later a letter arrived saying that I was in the lead but that I requested me to sell magazines. Then I knew it was all a fraud, just a plan for a certain company to advertise their contests and I was so angry and disappointed that I didn't recover for a week from a severe case of "Contest Let-down-itus."

If you are contemplating answering an advertisement with a glamorous lure, don't answer, for it is sure to cause you as much grief as the one I answered did me.

There was but one advantage in answering that advertisement, and that was the fun of anticipating and dreaming. The more entertaining the advertisement is the less true it will prove to be. Usually the simplest appeals and requirements offer the largest reward. Therefore I say, "of advertisements beware."

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS
Charlevoix, Mich.
February 23, 1932.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeen presiding.

Alderman present: Fessenden, Foster, Hooker, Smith and Webster.

Minutes of meeting held Feb. 15, 1932 were read and approved.

Ald. Fessenden offered resolution number (1), seconded by Alderman Foster.

Resolved by the common council of the City of Charlevoix that the Mayor and City Clerk be and they are hereby authorized to execute on behalf of the City of Charlevoix the proposed contract between the Michigan State Highway Department and the City of Charlevoix in reference to the proposed grading and paving of Bridge Street from the south line of Belvedere Avenue south on Bridge Street to a point thirty-three feet south of the north line of Carpenter Avenue with concrete pavement forty feet in width including the curb and gutters, manholes, storm water sewerage and appurtenant, and be it further resolved that in furtherance of said proposed public improvement the said Mayor and City Clerk, be and they are hereby directed to issue the proper orders warrants and orders for the sum of Ten thousand two hundred thirty-one and 27-100 Dollars, which said sum of money shall be deposited in the two Banks Places that five years ago were only as far away as the nearest telephone, and the work goes on. The ideal of the telephone engineer is to make it possible for anyone, anywhere, to talk with anyone else anywhere else in the world.

SCHOOL NOTES
(Continued from fifth page.)

in said City Charlevoix as follows, to wit: Five thousand one hundred fifteen and 27-100 Dollars in the Charlevoix County Bank and Five thousand one hundred and sixteen Dollars in the Charlevoix State Savings Bank said deposits to be subject to the order or check of the Michigan State Highway Department for the purpose of paying that part of the expense of said public improvement which has been determined to be the share that the City of Charlevoix shall pay. Said withdrawals by the Michigan State Highway Department shall be made only as the work and construction on said public improvement shall progress.

And it is further understood that the said Michigan State Highway Department shall advance and pay out for said public improvement as amount equal to that withdrawn from said banks by the said Michigan State Highway Department.

And it is further resolved that when the said public improvement shall have been completed and accepted and the cost thereof fully paid, that any money then remaining in said banks shall be subject to the order of the City of Charlevoix.

And be it further resolved that the depositing of said money in said Banks shall in no way release the City of Charlevoix from its liability on said contract with the Michigan State Highway Department.

This resolution was adopted at a regular meeting of the common council for the City of Charlevoix held the 23rd day of February, A. D. 1932 the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas—Fessenden, Foster, Hooker, Kibbe, Smith and Webster.

Nays—None.

Moved by Ald. Kibbe, seconded by Ald. Fessenden, that the matter of booklets be left to the advertising committee with power to act and report of conference. Carried.

The finance committee having examined the following bills aggregating $12,919.11 find them correct and recommend same be allowed.

Contingent Fund

Arthur Bergeon, Salary	21.25
E. E. Bills, Salary	52.08
D. F. Meech, Salary	50.00
Chas. Novotny, Salary	41.66
City Band, Concerts	100.00
Deputy City Clerk, General	1.00
Mich. Bell Tele. Co., Rental	8.81
Sentinel Printing Co., Sup.	.95
Sentinel Printing Co., Sup.	52.90

Police Fund

Charles Jefferies, Salary	50.00
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rental	2.00

Cemetery Fund

Ben Nowland, Salary	25.00

Fire Fund

Charles Marshall, Salary	50.00
Chas. Ford, Salary	45.00

Advertising Fund

F. V. Tuttle, Salary	25.00
Argo Milling Co., Supplies	17.95
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rental	3.94

Park Fund

Will Cowan, Labor	12.00
Milton Bisek, Supplies	1.25

Highway Fund

Art Alcock, Labor	28.75
Leo. Allard, Labor	56.00
Alvin Smith, Labor	3.50
Harry Elsinga, Labor	72.75
Edgar Smith, Labor	14.00
M. R. Hooker & Son, Team	86.00
M. R. Guild, Supplies	7.23
C. F. Kohler, Labor	3.15
H. E. Roberts, Gas for Tck	10.00
Sentinel Ptg. Co., Supplies	29.00
Sentinel Ptg. Co., Supplies	5,115.27
Chas. State Bank	5,116.00

Local Improvement Sinking Fund

Lisle Shanahan, Resolutions and notices—Bridge St. Pav.	2.50
Lisle Shanahan, Resolutions—Bridge St. Sewer	1.00
Bridge St. Paving	5.00
Sentinel Printing Co., Pig. Bridge St. Paving	6.00

Water Fund

Dan W. Sales, Salary	90.00
Murray Plum. Salary	55.00
Art Alcock, Labor	46.55
Robert Ampaugh, Salary	50.00
Orsha McPherson, Salary	50.00
John A. McPherson, Labor	12.00
Floyd Rice, Labor	52.38
Ray Shanahan, Labor	10.50
P. M. Ry. Co., Car No. 37884	208.26
Deputy City Clerk, Supplies	1.30
Deputy City Clerk, Sup. Ex.	.62
Standard Oil Co., Supplies	20.13
Standard Oil Co., Supplies	451.56
Standard Oil Co., Supplies	5.64
General Electric Co., Sup.	64.40
Mich. Machinery Mfg. Co., Supplies	2.93
C. E. Gilmore, Supplies	14.20
Sentinel Ptg. Co., Supplies	10.25
Dep. City Clerk, Exp and pd. C. Bros. exp. on line	4.97
Chas. Hosp, Exec. Cur. 1931	546.44

Sewer Fund

Morris Askert, Salary	65.00
Jas. M. Plum, Salary	55.00
James Divis, Salary	52.50
Mich. Bell Tel. Co., Rental	3.36
W. H. Guild Supplies	8.80
C. E. Kohler, Supplies	5.05
John W. Kurby, Supplies	2.00
C. E. Gilmore, Supplies	8.45
Chas. Hosp, Water 1931	112.88
Sentinel Printing Co., Sup.	12.00

Moved by Ald. Hooker, seconded by Ald. Webster, that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts.

Carried by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas—Fessenden, Foster, Hooker, Kibbe, Smith and Webster. Nays—None.

Moved by Ald. Webster, seconded by Ald. Fessenden that the council adjourn until 7:30 p. m. Thursday, March 3, 1932. Motion carried.

On motion the council adjourned.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1932 Number 45

TOURNAMENT STARTS TODAY

FIVE CLASS C TEAMS AND SEVEN CLASS D TEAMS TO PLAY HERE

Basketball players in Class C and Class D open a district tournament here today with a three day session which closes with the finals Saturday evening.

In Class C five teams will be represented, viz: Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Mancelona.

In Class D seven teams will contest for honors, viz: Alba, Bellaire, Boyne Falls, Central Lake, Ellsworth, Mackinaw City and Pellston.

Class C games will be opened at 8:00 o'clock tonight with Charlevoix meeting Harbor Springs, working for the only Class C game on today's schedule.

Class D players are scheduled for three games today: Mackinaw City vs. Bellaire at 7:00 o'clock, Alba vs. Pellston at 7:30 o'clock, Boyne Falls vs. Central Lake at 7:00 o'clock.

Semi-finals will be played Friday and finals Saturday.

REMOVE AND BURN MUTILATED CANES FROM RASPBERRY BEDS NOW

There are four raspberry pests that cause constant loss to Michigan growers. The losses occasioned by these insects many times are small but may on the other hand assume heavy losses at a minute's notice. Observation during the last year indicates four infestations which if not cared for will result in a heavy loss during 1932. The species in mind are the raspberry cane borer, the red-necked cane borer, the raspberry cane maggot, and the cane crickets.

Now then, to largely eliminate losses from the above named insects remove and burn all damaged canes as well as all dead canes before growth takes place in the spring. The reason why is that if we do not bypass the winter in these canes. Therefore, this treatment recommended will destroy most of the insects.

The raspberry cane borer injury is indicated from the two girdled places usually about an inch apart on the canes. This will weaken the canes and ordinarily results in the breaking off at the point of injury. The red-necked cane borer injury is noted from the girdly galls found in the boring of the larval form of this beetle just below the bark. The raspberry cane maggot is usually indicated in summer by many wilted canes here and there in the planting. The cane cricket injury shows largely by their habit of laying their eggs closely packed in longitudinal slits, which causes weakening and death of the canes above the injury.

Even if you feel that you have not suffered any loss from the above named insects, still it would be a good habit to get in the practice of removing all dead canes, and badly damaged canes in the winter time, and then most important of all burn them.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

F. & A. M. NOW LEAD IN CRIBBAGE CONTEST

Monday night, as shown by the final score in the seventh game of the series of plays between Masonic and Odd Fellow cribbage players, placed the Masons in the lead by 692 points, and not only this the Masons wiped out a lead of 213 points held at the opening of the game Monday night, thus leading the Odd Fellows in the game by 1,005 points.

Two F. & A. M. players are credited with a perfect score, 964 points each in the 12 games played Monday night at the I. O. O. F. hall with Elijah Geer and John Kling holding the honor position, while Geer has a total 926 points to his credit held a like position with the I. O. O. F. teams.

Nine games remain to be played during the play of eight games for the season.

The next and last game of the winter season is scheduled for Monday night, March 7 at the Masonic temple.

ICE DEALERS CONTINUE CUTTING ICE SUPPLY

Ice dealers continue their work of cutting and storing their supply for use during the summer season. Thus far the ice formation is light, far more so than in past winter months. Some few days of snappy winter weather at this time would be beneficial to dealers in this congenial product of nature.

FERTILIZER DEALERS TO MEET NEXT WEEK

Plans have been definitely made for a Fertilizer Dealers Meeting to be held on Tuesday, March 8. It will be held in the Charlevoix County Courthouse, and will begin promptly at 1:00 p. m. Eastern Standard Time. The object of this meeting is to thoroughly inform each of the plant food dealers in the county as to the latest information upon the use of fertilizers.

When one stops to consider that this county used approximately 350 tons of commercial fertilizer during the year of 1929, one begins to realize a big percentage of our farmers are sold to the value of additional plant food.

Now, then is it not proper that each dealer of commercial fertilizer should have the latest information on hand relative to the analysis to be used, the manner of application, and the amount of application, so that we may be assured of getting in full of service to his customers. Mr. Paul Reed, Extension Soils Specialist, will be in charge of the meeting to give the dealers the very latest results in the use of fertilizers and what dozens of experiments have been carried throughout the state indicate. All dealers, whether big or small, are cordially invited to attend this meeting and have the opportunity of discussing with Mr. Reed and among themselves all the latest information on fertilization.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

DRAMA CLUB TO PRESENT PLAY

"QUALITY STREET" TO BE AT PALACE THEATRE, MAR. 17

The High School Drama Club rehearsed of almost twenty young people from the Junior and Senior classes in working out a three act play for presentation of the presentation of "Quality Street."

First of all, this play stands high in the realm of literature. Sir James Barrie and George Bernard Shaw are keeping for a little Theatre and the club has in mind to offer Shaw's "Pymalian" as next year's play. Barrie's "Quality Street" finds favor with Charlevoix people.

Secondly this drama is entertaining. It takes its audience back to the days of the Napoleanic wars—when men wore dashing clothes and women wore delightful gowns. Romance and mentioned their gallant admirers with flushing whispers and then one's heart beats the faster when he hears his name. Some of the most serious times contain a hidden humor which is brought out by the skill of other times spontaneous bursts of laughter are heard from any audience.

A third reason why this offering of the Drama Club is indeed a little Theater project is the fact that the play needs but few characters to carry all the work for the production, including the making of scenery and costumes. The youthful wedding of Hammer, bath and paint brushes the stage will be transformed into the "Quality and somewhat fragile ship and white room of Susan and Phoebe Throssel, and from there the audience will be taken to a sylvan scene with dimly flickering lights where were held the stately balls in honor of the soldiers returned from the Napoleanic Wars.

The easy, intimate nature of the "Quality Street" together with the splendid accoustic equipment of the house makes it an ideal place in which to stage a play of this type.

Charlevoix has had no Lyceum Course this year and it is hoped that "Quality Street" may prove a pleasing substitute for the play which is usually one of the members of a Lyceum program.

PARTY AT LEGION HALL ENJOYED WEDNESDAY EVE.

An entertainment party open to the public was held at the Legion home on Garfield Street Wednesday evening at which various forms of entertainment was given.

A nominal charge for light refreshments was made and during the evening a few amateur hosters entertained the crowd with an exhibition of their skill.

This is the first of a series of parties to be held on Wednesday evenings for the entertainment of the public sport fans. At future meetings it is planned to arrange for the bugle and drum corps to get in a little music for approval of those present.

Mrs. J. C. Durpin of Petoskey was a guest of Charlevoix friends Tuesday.

County News

BEAVER ISLAND NOTES

A surprise party was given in honor of Miss Rosamond Martin at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harney Martin Monday, February 22nd.

Captain Vandenberg is the champion perch catcher of Beaver Island.

Capt. Roland McDonough is gone to Sand Bay for the week end. He is trapping fox there.

Beaver Island Harbor is frozen over this last week and it is covered with fish shanties, about 50 of them.

The fishtouts of Beaver Island are getting ready to start fishing the first day of March.

Harry H. Gordon caught 87 pounds of perch in one day his book and line. They averaged from 1 1-2 to 2 lbs.

The ice in St. James Harbor is about 9 or 10 inches thick.

Archie Lafreniere and his pal, Ben Ross of Charlevoix, were out fishing one day this week and caught 4 lbs. of fish.

The steam tug "Venus" left for Charlevoix Tuesday.

All fish tugs left Beaver Island Harbor Tuesday and are laying at the Coast Guard Station at the point for early fishing.

MARION CENTER

Miss Nita Shearer of Charlevoix visited at Mrs. Charles Withers, Sunday.

Mr. George Krahek and family took dinner and spent the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Pokorny and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Meighan and son Clare spent Sunday on Central Lake with Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Charles Stevens went to Central Lake Monday with Sam Straw's ice cutting machine to cut ice for Harry Craig of Charlevoix who has an ice house there, but the sun and heavily cutting of the ice there is ten and twelve inches thick.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Gravelin and infant son spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Gravelin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggeson.

Floyd Black is back on mail route after an attack of tonsilitis.

Bobby Straw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Straw broke his left arm. The boy says while on the ice visiting or getting along fine. He goes around the house with his knee or a chair and wants to go to school.

School began again Monday morning after a week's vacation while the teacher, Miss Mellendal had the measles.

TOURIST CONVENTION AT TRAVERSE CITY FRIDAY

Next summer's tourist business will be the important subject of a one-day convention at Traverse City Friday which Charlevoix business men are urged to attend.

It will be a regional meeting of the Michigan Tourist Association, beginning with a group meeting at 10:00 in the morning and ending at 6:30 banquet. The morning discussion will be for rooming house proprietors. Real estate men will have a meeting at 2:00, hotel and resort proprietors at 3:00 and a general round table discussion will be held at 4:00. All of the meetings will be at the Park Place hotel.

E. J. Thompson of Grand Rapids, president of the Tourist Association; J. J. Smith of Ludington, vice president; Hugh Gray, the association's secretary, and Ed. Drier, its publicity director, will be among the speakers.

Mrs. Ray Hamlin went to the hospital in Petoskey the later part of last week for an operation which had been contemplated for some time.

The operation was successfully performed and according to last reports Mrs. Hamlin was on the road to recovery.

Charles W. Linklater, and son "Bud", for some months past in Chicago, returned to Charlevoix a few days ago and resumed their positions with the Robbins Incorporated, the same as in past seasons.

EXTRA SESSION MARCH 29TH

GOVERNOR CALLS SOLONS FOR TAX RELIEF MEASURES

Tuesday, March 29th, has been the date set for calling the state legislature in special session, according to the special call of Governor Wilbur M. Brucker, which follows:

"By virtue of the authority vested in me as governor of the State of Michigan, I hereby call the legislature of the state to meet in extraordinary session on March 29th, 1932 at 1 o'clock in the afternoon for the consideration of such matters as may be submitted by special message."

A message to the members prepared and read by Governor Brucker will be placed before the members of the Legislature when it convenes, but knowledge of the governor's plan of action and propositions to be placed before the legislature have not been announced nor is it likely that the program will be made public until the legislature is in session.

FUNERAL AT MISSION FOR INDIAN YOUTH

Funeral service was held at Greensky Mission church Tuesday afternoon for Albert Joe an Indian boy, 18 years old, who died at Horton Bay Sunday of tuberculosis.

The boys father died about one year ago. Grief over the death of his patient it is reported hastened in no small measure the death of the son.

The service was in charge of Rev. William Petoskey. The youth is survived by his mother Mrs. Margaret Joe, two sisters, Josie and Lena and one brother, Henry Joe.

FRANK FOCHTMAN DIES IN PETOSKEY TUESDAY

Frank Fochtman for more than fifty years a resident of Petoskey, died at his home in that city Tuesday forenoon. His last illness continued over a period of many months during which he was a patient at the University hospital on two different occasions and once at Mayo Brothers. He was a cousin of Angus Fochtman of Charlevoix, and was well known in Northern Michigan.

INDIAN MUSICAL CHORUS AND PICTURES ENJOYED

The music last Sunday evening, at the Methodist Church, by the Indian Chorus, was greatly enjoyed by the large audience that filled every bit of the entire church.

The work done reflected much credit on the musical director, Mr. Kahgee, of Petoskey.

The illuminated pictures on China were both entertaining and instructive.

Mr. and Mrs. Miley Lee Hiss of Brownland, West Virginia, arrived here recently and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aranes Murray, 308 Antrim street, for a short time. The ladies are sisters. Mr. and Mrs. Hiss are newly weds, the ceremony uniting the couple was performed Dec. 30, 1931 at Ironton, Ohio. They contemplate making their future home at Boyne City, the former home of Mrs. Hiss.

School News

Tournament

On Thursday morning the high school will start the day with a big mass meeting. Some new stunts will be on the program and many of the alumni yell masters will be back. C. H. S. has had no opportunity for long pep meetings this year so this one will be unusually good.

The Junior and Senior High Schools will close both days at 2:30 the games beginning at 3:00

Since C. H. S. is entertaining the tournament this year the school and community as well as the players should take the right attitude toward the games and show the Charlevoix High School is a school which understands to make it a successful event. No prejudice should be shown and the spectators as well as the players should show that C. H. S. is a school that enjoys good sportsmanship.

This year the ticket office will be placed outside of the gymnasium. It has been loaned up on by the Parmelee Lumber Company.

The bleachers on the stage have been secured from the Petoskey High School.

The bands from East Jordan, Harbor Springs, and Boyne City have been invited to furnish music in the evenings. The Charlevoix band will play in the afternoons.

The seniors have the concession of the tournament.

Personnel of Tournament

Treasurer's Assistants—Miss Anderson, Miss M. Smith, Carl Beattie.

Score Keeper—Mr. Bingham.

Time Keepers—Victor Smith, Mr. Weisenburger's manual training boys are fixing up the score board.

Ticket Takers—Dan Genett, Jack Foster, George LaBlanc, Grover Genett, Bernard Foster, Warren Shapton, Joe Brannukey, Harold Mayne, Marcus Rosen, John Pesek, Charles Novotny.

Ticket Sellers—Robert Schwab, David Dick, Bevere Bird.

In the Class "C" group East Jordan drew a bye and Charlevoix will play Harbor Springs 8:30 Thursday evening. Mancelona will play Boyne City at 4:00 Friday p. m. and East Jordan will play the winner of the Charlevoix—Harbor Springs tilt of the previous evening. The finals in this class will be held at 8:00 p. m. Saturday evening.

In Class "D" Boyne Falls plays Central Lake at 7:00 o'clock Thursday evening with the winner playing Ellsworth at 7:00 p. m. Friday evening. Mackinaw City plays Bellaire at 7:00 p. m. Thursday and is followed by Alba versus Pellston. The winners of these two contests will be decided who is to enter the finals at 3:00 p. m. Friday.

The finals in this class will be at 7:00 p. m. Saturday evening.

Tuesday evening February 23, Mr. Bush addressed the Progressive Club Banquet at Boyne City. Friday afternoon, February 26, he delivered an address on Patron's Day at the Advanced School. Tuesday, March 8, he will talk at the P. T. A. meeting at Kmag School. Mr. Bush has been a steward at W. W. Vompson, State Director of Physical Education, to serve on a committee of Superintendents and Physical Education Directors to draw up an intramural athletic program for use in High Schools of the state.

Teachers Party

Last Thursday the teachers enjoyed the evening in the gayly decorated sewing room in the Junior High building. The time was spent in playing bridge and hearts. Though Mr. Bush was one of the most fluent conversationalists he was also the winner of the bridge prize, Miss Bodish carried off the prize at hearts. It is well known that Miss Bodish is especially accomplished at that game.

Refreshments were served by the committee, Miss Anderson, Mr. Colwell and Mr. Bingham. It is believed the gentlemen of the committee must have had previous experience in the line of work for none but the initiated could have acted with such a degree of dexterity and skill.

Forensic Contests

Next Tuesday morning at 9:30 the annual oratory and declamation contest will be held in the Senior High School session room. At the present time eliminations are being held in the various English class rooms to determine those who will compete Tuesday, for the honor of representing Charlevoix High School in the sub-district contest which will be held early in April, probably at Cheboygan.

The cast of "Quality Street" have completed the task of learning lines and are now going into diligent rehearsals for the payer of presentation. The following people take part in the play.

Miss Phebe, Marjorie McCann.
Miss Henrietta, Marian Tyler.
Miss Willoughby, Gladys Magnuson.
Miss Susan, Ada McMillan.
Miss Phoebe, Ethel Powers.
Patty, Esther Brady.
Sergeant, Dan Genett.
Valentine Brown, John Winder
Ensign Blades, Lloyd Arnold.
Recruits, Mary Helen Fitchman, Harriett, Dorothy Pederson.
Lieutenant Spicer, Stanley Cattler.

Junior High Girl Athletics

The 7th, 8th, and 9th grade girls are all out for volley ball again, for there will be eight of the best players sent to Harbor Springs the 19th of next month to participate in the Play Day to be held there.

The basketball game held Friday night between the Freshmen and the Sophomores gave the winning score to the Sophs—2 to 15.

WILL ROGERS ROYALLY GREETED AS AMBASSADOR

Will Rogers, the best loved and most famous "unofficial diplomat" in the world, has made a smashing success of "Ambassador Bill," his latest Fox Picture, which opened at the Palace Theatre Saturday. Showing the philosophical cowboy-comedian as a world-where ambassador to a typical Hindu-land European resort, it is simply made to order for his particular brand of wit.

Seeming to realize this, the fans are flocking to the theatre to see him in the guise of a diplomat, with the result that "Ambassador Bill" is packed full of the most screamingly funny scenes ever seen on the screen. Any one of a number of them would have been sufficient to make the success of the ordinary film. This picture marks the latest and highest point in Rogers' screen career.

The star's enthusiasm seems also to have imbued the other members of the brilliant cast. Lovely Marguerite Churchill gives what is easily one of the finest performances of her career. Greta Nissen reaches her well-nigh perfection in this film, which also brings us a new and exceptional talent in the person of eight-year-old Dickie Moore. Dickie is one of those children who is a master of pathos as well as comedy. Others who contribute heavily include Gustav von Seyffertz, Ray Milland, Arnold Korff and Ferdinand Munier.

Sam Taylor, the director enhibits himself in his skillful blending of humor and pathos, and Guy Bolton, in the story, has added appreciably to his laurels as a writer.

INTERESTING TALK GIVEN C. OF C.

IMPORTANCE OF COMMERCIAL TRIP IS SHOWN

A very informative talk was given on the importance of commercial trips by the head in the 1 O. O. F. hall last Thursday evening by F. A. Westerman of the Fish Division of the State Department of Conservation.

A review was given of the activities of the fish division from the time of its inauguration up to the present, which was very interesting and gave those present some knowledge of the valuable work this department is answering on.

The figures given relative to the importance of the local summering fishing places Charlevoix in a class that every Charlevoix should be proud to preserve that status.

The comments on the activities of the local Sportsmen's club were encouraging and the cooperation of the conservation department was appreciated by the speaker.

The next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce is scheduled for Thursday evening, March 10, at which time a business meeting will occupy the program to formulate plans for the coming season.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

PUBLIC EASTER SUPPER

An Easter season supper will be served Thursday, March 17th in the dining room of the Methodist church by the Aid Society. Fine menu. Watch for further details.

The Macabees Circle meets Friday at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Olga Hendr

Campaign Slogans that Win and Lose!

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

NEXT TO the Presidential campaign in 1840 that "reckless, conniving politician," Thurlow Weed, was accused of having invented the first campaign slogan. Whether he did or not, it was a catchy, rollicking tune, by one of the same Weed, which helped roll Tippecanoe and Tyler Too into the White House. Here are the words:

Come, rally, boys, and join the throng,
And with a right good will
Let's sing the good old Harrison song
And shout the battle shrill.
Let's sing of Tippecanoe and Tyler too,
Of Tippecanoe and Tyler too,
And with our song we'll make them know
We're for the Hero of the West.

How potent a slogan may be in winning the Presidency—or losing it—is a question that can only be easily put by the connoisseurs of American political campaigns. Some of the most famous of the campaign songs and slogans were those used in 1860 when Abraham Lincoln was elected. "Honest Old Abe" and the Democratic rapid decline of "Rail Splitter" for all "general purposes for some" in reference to Lincoln's humble origin and early occupation as a rail splitter.

So when the Whigs nominated the type of man that Andrew Jackson had once been—a frontiersman, an Indian fighter and a military hero, the nation was ready to turn the whole thing inside-out literally from a Democrat who was an aristocrat to a Whig who was a democrat. Thaddeus Stevens, Pennsylvania newspaper gave the Whig candidate the greatest boost it could possibly have given him. Sneering at his intellectual caliber (which admittedly was small), it said, "Give him a barrel of cider in a log cabin the remainder of his life."

And what a godsend that was to the Whigs! Immediately the log cabin and the hard cider [illegible] became their banners and Harrison's [illegible] drinking record [illegible] that the English was shy of "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too." Just as good memories they threw in a few features of Harrison's career, such as his defeat of Tecumseh and the Prophet at Tippecanoe Creek and "Old Tip" as the Whig candidate for vice-president, Tyler, had been known to the soldiers.

The same general sense of the campaign that "Tippecanoe" a pack of cards went as follows:

Ace, hero, brave, whose hand gains, fame, color—
And the sachems,
Tippecanoe and Tyler too.
Two, Van is a used up man,
Who'll get no more votes than Paine,
Tippecanoe and Tyler too.

Four years later the nominated witnessed the climax of the procession of the type which began in 1824 with Jackson and the "hickory tree" campaign. The "dark horse" was John C. Polk of Tennessee, and the slogan was "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight"—at that time the United States was claiming all the territory up to the southern boundary of Alaska and the other way from British-over the Oregon country. The Democratic trend for "expansion" was the keynote of the country and reannexation of Texas. The Fifty-Four Forty or Fight" combination of the northern boundary line which the United States demanded—54 degrees, 40 minutes, latitude—and the war cry, if necessary, got Polk into fighting either, but no arbitration) was an 45 degrees, 54 minutes, 40 seconds, 1845 was the election, and it the year a vital part in defining the election in Polk's favor, as did the [illegible] Texas and California to the Texans question.

In the same year with Monroe, followed as soon after Polk's election one of our victorious generals, Zachary Taylor and from an incident in the battle of Buena Vista came a slogan which helped elect Taylor President in 1848. It was the famous "Old Rough and Ready" slogan. "Rough and Ready" which struck the popular fancy as being just what a great military commander would be under this circumstances. What he actually did say in that connection was, "Stick to your guns, boys!" But that didn't matter so much as the fact that the combination of the "Hero" slogan and his popular nickname of "Old Rough and Ready" ran reminiscent of "Old Hickory" and "Old Tippecanoe" and that was enough for the Jackson combination and the Harrison combination all over again.

In the same year was born a slogan that originated in pigeon phraseology the most familiar of them all, "Keep Cool with Coolidge." It was "Fire! Fire Spoils, Free Labor and Free Men," shouted the Republicans in 1856 as the first Republican party of fame, the forerunner of the modern party of that name, and elected Abraham Lincoln in 1860. The stirring campaign of 1860 was fought on slogans, as is most of the big campaigns of history. Not one cent for slavery," "Millions for Freedom, not one cent for slavery," "Free Soil, Free Labor and Free Men," "Free Speech, Free Men and Frémont," "Lincoln and Liberty" and "Lincoln and Freedom." "Free Homes for Free Men," "The Americanization and the Union, Now and Forever," "Let Liberty Be National and Slavery Sectional," and scores of others, on both sides of the slavery controversy, in similar appealing strains. Sometimes such phrases were strong enough to win the day. "Old Abe" and "The Rail Splitter" and Lincoln himself no current a number of political and personal nicknames that were adopted as slogans by the orators, such as "A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand" and "Slavery Is a Moral, Social," and Political Wrong."

Grant's famous "Let Us Have Peace" was used to good advantage as a slogan in electing the "Man from Appomattox" but the corruption which marked his two administrations provided the Democratic opponents of his successor, Hayes, with the best possible type of slogan. So "Tilden and Reform" echoed throughout the campaign in 1876 as a powerful rallying cry for the Democrats. By all the rules of slogan logic, the brevity and the force of that slogan should have won for Tilden but election hounds and an electoral commission decided otherwise.

In the campaign of 1884 there was a case of history repeating itself in that, just as in the case of Harrison and the Whigs in 1840, Clay, himself and the Democrats profited by a blunder made by the opposition. In that year Blaine was the Republican candidate and his Free-trend sentiments were favored by his own statement of the "Plumed Knight" and the "Prince of Darkness" as well as by the hateful epithets of the opposing press. "Burchard Blaine, Rum and Romanism" "Down with Blaine, the Infidel" and "Blaine Guiteau" "The Tattooed Man" and "Jim the Jesuit" the latter referring to the influence of Roman Catholic leaders.

Into the final throe of his candidacy was struck when the ambassador Blaine ambassador Bayard, Republican declared in a speech that all conscientious Americans should vote the Republican ticket because the Democratic party was "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion." Blaine was present at the time but did not hear this remark. Instead he was busy with other matters, one of which was a visit to Jay Gould, the New York railroad magnate, who was in his private car in the railroad yards at Jersey City. Gould was a Democrat and Blaine was trying to persuade him that he should support the Republican candidate. Gould refused to do so, and Blaine left the car. Then Gould's private secretary, Dan Lamont, who was also a Democrat, asked Gould if he knew that Blaine had been insulted by the remark about Rum, Romanism and Rebellion. Gould said he did not, and Lamont suggested that he write a letter of apology to Blaine. Gould did so, and Lamont carried the letter to Blaine. Blaine read it and said, "Tell Mr. Gould that I accept his apology, but I cannot support his candidates."

Blaine's defeat was due largely to the fact that the Democrats stole the Republican slogan of "Reform" and made it their own. Cleveland was the Democratic candidate and his record as governor of New York was one of reform. Hence the Democratic slogan, "Cleveland and Reform" was a natural one. Cleveland's first campaign contributed the "Man of Destiny" slogan to the campaign of 1888. Harrison was the candidate and "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" was revived. Cleveland's first campaign contributed the "Man of Destiny" slogan to the campaign of 1888. Harrison was the candidate and "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" was revived. Cleveland's first campaign contributed the "Man of Destiny" slogan to the campaign of 1888. Harrison was the candidate and "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" was revived.

POULTRY

FEWER BIRDS, BUT THEY LAY BETTER

Increased Egg Production Is Being Maintained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture—WNU Service.)

Hens and pullets are fewer, but egg production is being maintained because the fowls are laying more eggs per bird, on October 1, 1932, there were 6.2 per cent fewer hens and pullets for layers in farm flocks of the crop reporters as compared with October 1 a year ago, and there were 5.2 per cent fewer young chickens. An increase of 1 per cent is reported for young chickens other than pullets for layers.

Egg production has been maintained, says the department, despite the decrease in layers. The number of eggs laid per farm flock was reported as 18.6 eggs on October 1, compared with 18.2 eggs on October 1, 1930, and 18 eggs for the October 5-year average. The aggregate of 2,000,000 eggs layings on the farms of each month from January to October is 251.1 eggs per farm flock in 1931, compared with 250 eggs in 1930, and 250.2 eggs in the five years 1925-1929.

Converting the statistics into "eggs laid per hen," the department says that the October 1 average for 1931 was 20.2 eggs per 100 hens and pullets of 5.2 eggs, compared with 19.8 in 1930, with 20.7 in 1929, and a 5-year average of 20.2 for that date. Ten reported layings, January to October, amounted to 2,085.1 eggs per hundreds last year, against 2072.2 eggs in 1930, and 2091 for the 1925-1929 average.

Proper Regulation of Light in Laying House

Pullets that are fully matured, and in good condition should have lights at night as they are proved to be fast laying house. The increased feeding day will enable them to eat enough to maintain their condition and obtain the proper amount of nutrients for egg production. Pullets are immature when placed in the house, it is not advisable to give them more than a 12 to 13 hour day. This amount of light will enable them to get more feed, which in turn will enable them to complete their growth, and will not cause them to start laying too soon. If the birds are not fully grown before heavy production begins they will not have proper resistance against and likely lay smaller eggs.

During the latter part of the birds, the test is the amount of illumination required to get a satisfactory egg production of around 50 to 60 per cent. Some birds will eat enough feed to maintain their weight and production without any increase of light, but even with these birds a short supplementary period of light is used.

Don't Pasture Alfalfa

Experts think which have been received in late rains should not be pastured this fall unless there is a feed or more growth, because the roots have scarce reserves. Pasturing has a tendency to cause damage to the crowns of alfalfa plants. The plants should be allowed to go into the winter with a good top growth so as to store plant food in the roots for a vigorous growth next spring. In addition to the point food investigation, heavy growth holds more snow, thus giving ground temperature enough to prevent severe heaving and also increases moisture content of the soil.—Prairie Farmer.

Alfalfa for Hens

Most corn belt flock owners have learned that the best green feed substitute that has been found these years is alfalfa. Alfalfa is not only good, but it is fighting either, but its arbitration) was 46 degrees, 54 minutes, 40 seconds, 1845 was the election, and it the year a vital part in defining the election in Polk's favor, as did the [illegible] Texas and California to the Texans question.

In the same with Monroe, followed as soon after Polk's election one of our victorious generals, Zachary Taylor and from an incident in the battle of Buena Vista came a slogan which helped elect Taylor President in 1848. It was the famous "Old Rough and Ready" slogan. "Rough and Ready" which struck the popular fancy as being just what a great military commander would be under this circumstances. What he actually did say in that connection was, "Stick to your guns, boys!" But that didn't matter so much as the fact that the combination of the "Hero" slogan and his popular nickname of "Old Rough and Ready" ran reminiscent of "Old Hickory" and "Old Tippecanoe" and that was enough for the Jackson combination and the Harrison combination all over again.

In the same year was born a slogan that originated in pigeon phraseology the most familiar of them all, "Keep Cool with Coolidge." It was "Fire! Fire Spoils, Free Labor and Free Men," shouted the Republicans in 1856 as the first Republican party of fame, the forerunner of the modern party of that name, and elected Abraham Lincoln in 1860. The stirring campaign of 1860 was fought on slogans, as is most of the big campaigns of history. Not one cent for slavery," "Millions for Freedom, not one cent for slavery," "Free Soil, Free Labor and Free Men," "Free Speech, Free Men and Frémont," "Lincoln and Liberty" and "Lincoln and Freedom." "Free Homes for Free Men," "The Americanization and the Union, Now and Forever," "Let Liberty Be National and Slavery Sectional," and scores of others, on both sides of the slavery controversy, in similar appealing strains. Sometimes such phrases were strong enough to win the day. "Old Abe" and "The Rail Splitter" and Lincoln himself no current a number of political and personal nicknames that were adopted as slogans by the orators, such as "A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand" and "Slavery Is a Moral, Social," and Political Wrong."

Grant's famous "Let Us Have Peace" was used to good advantage as a slogan in electing the "Man from Appomattox" but the corruption which marked his two administrations provided the Democratic opponents of his successor, Hayes, with the best possible type of slogan. So "Tilden and Reform" echoed throughout the campaign in 1876 as a powerful rallying cry for the Democrats. By all the rules of slogan logic, the brevity and the force of that slogan should

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

BECKY THATCHER

WHEN that "red-headed chief of the Black Avengers of the Spanish Main," more commonly known to readers of Mark Twain as Tom Sawyer, indulged in moments of unpleasantness like tenderfoots, little Becky Thatcher, Tom's schoolmate and secret sweetheart, was the cause. Thus the great American humorist immortalized a love of his own youth when little Sam Clemens courted Laura Hawkins, who lived just down the street from him in Hannibal, Mo.

Out of their own school days came much of the similar material in "Tom Sawyer." The schoolmaster was a Mr. Orton, for whom Sam composed an elegant candidate.

Laura's name, and eyes to adore, "Cross her path and she'll be sorry," "Who touches a hair of you gray head, dies a slave," and "Roses are red."

Fame has dwelt less kindly, however, with the little Barbara Fritchie. Although Whittier believed and literature since has established that a brave old lady named Barbara Fritchie lived in Frederick at the time, we have her own testimony for it that Jane Barbara was ninety-six years old when she died, and that the house some distance from Jackson's line of march. There is even reason to suspect that Barbara Fritchie was in reality another woman, May Quantrell Quinn, who did live in the house pointed out by and gave a defiant Union flag to Gen. Nevertheless, the real hero Fritchie blazed lives on, the Whittier club only recently dedicated a memorial to Barbara at which Governor Sidney J. Catts and Simonds Rountree's operetta "Barbara Fritchie" was staged and what more was claimed to be the "original flag."

(C, 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Common Words

About 70 of the words most often used in the English language are "the, of, and, to, a, in, that, it, I, for, he, was, on, you, with, he, on, as, are, at, by, this, we, his, but, they, all, or, which, will, from, had, has, one, an, is, been, no, there, their, would, so, up, if, no, what, would and who.

Number Estimated

It is estimated that this year 20,000 cases, each containing 30 dozen eggs, will be exported to Great Britain from Canada.

Don't Pasture Alfalfa

Experts think which have been received in late rains should not be pastured this fall unless there is a feed or more growth, because the roots have scarce reserves. Pasturing has a tendency to cause damage to the crowns of alfalfa plants. The plants should be allowed to go into the winter with a good top growth so as to store plant food in the roots for a vigorous growth next spring. In addition to the point food investigation, heavy growth holds more snow, thus giving ground temperature enough to prevent severe heaving and also increases moisture content of the soil.—Prairie Farmer.

Alfalfa for Hens

Most corn belt flock owners have learned that the best green feed substitute that has been found these years is alfalfa. Alfalfa is not only good, but it is fighting either, but its arbitration) was 46 degrees, 54 minutes, 40 seconds, 1845 was the election, and it the year a vital part in defining the election in Polk's favor, as did the [illegible] Texas and California to the Texans question.

In the same with Monroe, followed as soon after Polk's election one of our victorious generals, Zachary Taylor and from an incident in the battle of Buena Vista came a slogan which helped elect Taylor President in 1848. It was the famous "Old Rough and Ready" slogan. "Rough and Ready" which struck the popular fancy as being just what a great military commander would be under this circumstances. What he actually did say in that connection was, "Stick to your guns, boys!" But that didn't matter so much as the fact that the combination of the "Hero" slogan and his popular nickname of "Old Rough and Ready" ran reminiscent of "Old Hickory" and "Old Tippecanoe" and that was enough for the Jackson combination and the Harrison combination all over again.

In the same year was born a slogan that originated in pigeon phraseology the most familiar of them all, "Keep Cool with Coolidge." It was "Fire! Fire Spoils, Free Labor and Free Men," shouted the Republicans in 1856 as the first Republican party of fame, the forerunner of the modern party of that name, and elected Abraham Lincoln in 1860. The stirring campaign of 1860 was fought on slogans, as is most of the big campaigns of history. Not one cent for slavery," "Millions for Freedom, not one cent for slavery," "Free Soil, Free Labor and Free Men," "Free Speech, Free Men and Frémont," "Lincoln and Liberty" and "Lincoln and Freedom." "Free Homes for Free Men," "The Americanization and the Union, Now and Forever," "Let Liberty Be National and Slavery Sectional," and scores of others, on both sides of the slavery controversy, in similar appealing strains. Sometimes such phrases were strong enough to win the day. "Old Abe" and "The Rail Splitter" and Lincoln himself no current a number of political and personal nicknames that were adopted as slogans by the orators, such as "A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand" and "Slavery Is a Moral, Social," and Political Wrong."

Grant's famous "Let Us Have Peace" was used to good advantage as a slogan in electing the "Man from Appomattox" but the corruption which marked his two administrations provided the Democratic opponents of his successor, Hayes, with the best possible type of slogan. So "Tilden and Reform" echoed throughout the campaign in 1876 as a powerful rallying cry for the Democrats. By all the rules of slogan logic, the brevity and the force of that slogan should

When TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little bowels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than Castoria, a pure vegetable preparation specially made for babies and children. Castoria acts so gently you can give it to newborn babies as early as necessities in absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with teething or a fool upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Be sure you get genuine Castoria with the name:

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN—GET FOR IT

Lucky, but Doesn't Know It

Wealth is okay in its way, but the wife whose husband saves a little out of life insurance is lucky if he be wise to bring a dollar bonus at Christmas. Saturday night because he loves her, smiles waste any time enjoying the woman whose husband gives her a flivver for real to assure himself for something he's been caught at.—Chattanooga Register.

A Scare for the Wolf

"Do you think I could keep the wolf from the door by my singing?" asked the musical young man.

"You could," replied Miss Cayenne, "if the wolf had any sort of an ear for music."

Bedridden with Rheumatism

Rubs on oil...gets up right away

Thomas Stirling like thousand others, Lumbago, Backache, Neuralgia or Sore Muscles. You rub it on. Without burning or blistering it quickly draws out pain and inflammation. Relief comes before you can count 50! Get a small bottle from your druggist.

Brain's Mentality

The Brain reaches its full size and weight at about the same time the rest of the body does, that is, between the ages of twenty-two and twenty-five years.

SEVERE COUGH . . . COULDN'T SLEEP

Logsdaper, Ind. writes that the first exposure would relieve her so much cold and it would stop the chills, wiring up to severe cough. She followed Mrs. Milton Weaver's example and got Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in tablet form. "I would have such severe coughing and choking spells that I could not sleep, and the chills would nearly sleep at night for coughing, but on taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I got relief from the first dose and used my bronchial tubes and I do not have a cold nearly so often."

Dr. Pierce's Discovery

Ready for the Plunge

"Is this the brute's" she asked. "No," he replied, as he adjusted his suit.

Cole's Calcinated Quickly Relieves and Heals Burning, Itching and Irritated Skin Troubles. Cole's Calcinated Oil is 25c and 50c. Ask your druggist or send 10c to Cole's Laboratory, Detroit, Mich., for a package.—Advertisement.

A little song can attract an audience as a big one when it comes to punching and punishing an automobile horn.

NIP CHEST COLDS, QUICK WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPERS

Relieves Almost Instantly

To break up congestion, to restore free circulation and stop chest colds . . . to alleviate the circulatory pains and relieve rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago . . . Nature has stored up in red peppers a marvelous therapeutic heat that penetrates deeply into the skin without blistering or burning and swiftly brings relief. Now this genuine red pepper heat is concealed in an ointment, in such a manner that you can easily apply it. Just rub it on you'll feel better. And in 3 minutes relief comes. Drug stores sell Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Try it.

"Life is a glorious thing, my little Pablo, and I hope you shall have as much of it as you desire. I hope you may view this beautiful world until your eyes are dim with the years, that you may listen to the sweet sounds of nature and to the sweeter sounds of the voices of those who love you until your ears—"

"Grandpa, Senores will hasten!"

He brushed his clothes and polished his boots while I ate the tortillas and beans and black coffee and cheese that he prepared, then I bathed, donned clean raiment, combed my hair and placed my cap upon my head with the greatest care. All the while he watched me—watched me with his withered stomach. "How vanity, Señor, is the curse of the human race. Ah, my Pablo, and beyond."

Briefly as best I worked with him along the narrow darkened hallway and out into the bright sunlight to a wide iron gate that swung open at our approach, where a sergeant and a squad of six soldiers took me in charge. I searched my pockets and passed into Tabasco's capped head all the silver that I found there and, with a word of thanks for his attentions, marched away beside the sergeant, with six soldiers flanking us right and left.

It was a beautiful morning, with air so clear that trees seemed the color of distant mountain ranges stood out with curious distinctness. A breeze from the lake tempered what might have been a hot day.

"Do you usually take a morning constitutional before so exercising?" I questioned the sergeant, after we had traversed a full third of the city.

"I am directed to bring you here," said he, as we turned into the arched gateway, and bind our steps toward the massive structure that has been the home of many governors, a guard at the great wooden door with its exquisite carving stood aside, and four more, as we marched through it into a spacious chamber which, at first, I took to be a throne room. Then I saw that I had filled our eyes somewhat a piece of furniture. The sergeant saluted a short command, the soldiers about faced and went out, leaving me standing in the center of the room.

"Then Kiss Me—and Hold Me to Your Heart Again, and I Will Go."

In front of me stood the straight back chair in which I had been seated, and behind it, with his head on his hand, sat the chief executive of the province. He turned his clothes and polished his boots while I ate the tortillas and beans and black coffee and cheese that he prepared, then I bathed, donned clean raiment, combed my hair and placed my cap upon my head with the greatest care. All the while he watched me—watched me with his withered stomach. "How vanity, Señor, is the curse of the human race. Ah, my Pablo, and beyond."

Briefly as best I worked with him along the narrow darkened hallway and out into the bright sunlight to a wide iron gate that swung open at our approach, where a sergeant and a squad of six soldiers took me in charge. I searched my pockets and passed into Tabasco's capped head all the silver that I found there and, with a word of thanks for his attentions, marched away beside the sergeant, with six soldiers flanking us right and left.

It was a beautiful morning, with air so clear that trees seemed the color of distant mountain ranges stood out with curious distinctness. A breeze from the lake tempered what might have been a hot day.

"Do you usually take a morning constitutional before so exercising?" I questioned the sergeant, after we had traversed a full third of the city.

"I am directed to bring you here," said he, as we turned into the arched gateway, and bind our steps toward the massive structure that has been the home of many governors. A guard at the great wooden door with its exquisite carving stood aside, and four more, as we marched through it into a spacious chamber which, at first, I took to be a throne room. Then I saw that I had filled our eyes somewhat a piece of furniture. The sergeant saluted a short command, the soldiers about faced and went out, leaving me standing in the center of the room.

"Then Kiss Me—and Hold Me to Your Heart Again, and I Will Go."

In front of me stood the straight back chair in which I had been seated, and behind it, with his head on his hand, sat the chief executive of the province. He turned his head and looked at me, and I knew that my life was in the incarnation of that spirit of progress and determination that would merely mean a few more years of life. No man may prevail against him, there is no one who can stay his hand. "Father" I cried, "I am here."

"Leave," he said gently "you may go."

I felt his strong arms around me, I felt his muscular body pressed close to mine, and hot tears of happiness blinded me, for I knew that I was saved, because my father never failed.

"When your letter came, Loren, we knew that you were again in search of trouble, for Venezuela—"

"Father," I interrupted my tears "All found it; more of it, my father, than I have dreamed might come to one man and lived to tell the tale."

Now another figure appeared—the slim tiny figure of a miss in brilliant uniform, with sparkling black eyes, nearly brown, and a pale brunette complexion, exquisitely formed. Whereupon I forbade a stiff salute for this was South America's greatest. "I have saved girlwards, my general."

He showed a little teeth in a smile of welcome, then he put one arm across my shoulders. "And you have striven greatly, major. I think Venezuela shall not forget."

"You are kind, my general."

He smiled again, further. "This young giant has helped us win no empire. He is an omen of good fortune for, since his arrival, we have not come to an."

"I fear," said my father soberly, "he will never lay down the sword."

"A city must be done," Bolivar said, "because he is a born soldier. With three hundred native troops to hold him against the entire fighting force of the Spanish west—"

"I am forgiven, then?" I asked.

Bolivar laughed. "When you presented the Spanish Dagotrand to us, once you committed a crime against us."

"I know it very well my general."

"The alliance written this year" the Liberator continued, "the wise Pran cises has brought to me the Senorita Isabella, who wants to think you are a greater lover than a soldier. From her I have learned many things which had been passed by. She has paid sadly for his misdemeanors."

"I, my general?"

"And your father, thirdly, is not to be denied. He rides when he wants. He is the incarnation of that spirit of progress and determination that will merely mean a few more years of life. No man may prevail against him, there is no one who can stay his hand. "Father" I cried, "I am here."

"Leave," he said gently "you may go."

I felt his strong arms around me, I felt his muscular body pressed close to mine, and hot tears of happiness blinded me, for I knew that I was saved, because my father never failed.

"When your letter came, Loren, we knew that you were again in search of trouble, for Venezuela—"

"Father," I interrupted my tears "All found it; more of it, my father, than

"Then Kiss Me—and Hold Me to Your Heart Again, and I Will Go."

quisite carving stood aside, and four more, as we marched through it into a spacious chamber which, at first, I took to be a throne room. Then I saw that I had filled our eyes somewhat a piece of furniture. The sergeant saluted a short command, the soldiers about faced and went out, leaving me standing in the center of the room.

In front of me stood the straight back chair in which I had been seated, and behind it, with his head on his hand, sat the chief executive of the province. He turned his clothes and polished his boots while I ate the tortillas and beans and black coffee and cheese that he prepared, then I bathed, donned clean raiment, combed my hair and placed my cap upon my head with the greatest care. All the while he watched me—watched me with his withered stomach. "How vanity, Señor, is the curse of the human race. Ah, my Pablo, and beyond."

Briefly as best I worked with him along the narrow darkened hallway and out into the bright sunlight to a wide iron gate that swung open at our approach, where a sergeant and a squad of six soldiers took me in charge. I searched my pockets and passed into Tabasco's capped head all the silver that I found there and, with a word of thanks for his attentions, marched away beside the sergeant, with six soldiers flanking us right and left.

It was a beautiful morning, with air so clear that trees seemed the color of distant mountain ranges stood out with curious distinctness. A breeze from the lake tempered what might have been a hot day.

"Do you usually take a morning constitutional before so exercising?" I questioned the sergeant, after we had traversed a full third of the city.

"I am directed to bring you here," said he, as we turned into the arched gateway, and bind our steps toward the massive structure that has been the home of many governors. A guard at the great wooden door with its ex-

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1865, who was co-Owners Publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

HOW JAPANESE AFFECTS PEACE PACTS

The disturbing effect which the Japanese invasion of China has had on international peace agreements and international organizations for the settlement of world problems is vividly brought forth in the current issue of the National Republic in an article written by Prof. Verne Kaub, son, of the University of the Philippines, for the China Weekly Review. In part Professor Dyson says:

"The tragedy of war precedes the battle; the close soldier upon the field, the ruined church, and the general destruction of the landscape are objective indications of antecedent moral disasters. Blood and physical death are merely the outward symbols of tragedy. The real catastrophe is spiritual

"Manchuria, in advance of the war which threatens there has already become a world tragedy, an international misfortune more far-reaching in its consequences than any actual destruction of life and property which might occur. It will require some weeks yet for humanity to realize fully the extent of its loss.

"The truth is that all the fine ideas for world peace, all disarmament schedules, all the treaties and elaborate diplomatic structures which the nations patiently erected during the past ten years to prevent war have been swept away. As Shidehara Japan in Manchuria has ended a fair dream, a great delusion. The word Failure must now be written large upon these instruments by which humanity, exhausted by the greatest of all wars, had hoped to end war.

1 The Four-Power Pacific Treaty.
2 The Five-Power Treaty.
3 The Nine-Power Treaty.
4 The Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact.
5 The League of Nations.

"The Four-Power Pacific Treaty, signed on December 13, 1921, was the first of the hopeful agreements reached at the Washington Conference. By this treaty Great Britain, France, Japan and the United States agreed to respect each other's positions in the Pacific, to settle by a special conference any disputes which might arise between them, to confer and jointly determine upon the best means of settling any dispute which might arise between a party to the treaty and an outside nation. This treaty, although favorable to Japan, was the first step in the post-war program to establish world peace. It definitely covers the present Manchurian situation. Japan has violated the spirit and letter of the agreement, in not seeking the advice of Great Britain, France, and the United States in attempting to settle the misunderstanding with China. This treaty, therefore, may be regarded as a failure.

"The Four-Power Pacific Treaty which at the time was regarded as a definite achievement in favor of world peace and the abolition of war was followed on February 6, 1922, by the Five-Power Treaty, signed also at the Washington Conference. This agreement apparently was predicated upon the Four-Power treaty, which supposedly afforded a basis for a further advance toward international harmony. The second treaty provided for limitation of naval armaments in keeping with the proposals of Secretary Hughes of the United States Department of State, and for the maintenance of the status quo in respect for the fortifications in certain parts of the Pacific. The great delusion began with these two treaties. Next came the supposedly still more powerful Nine-Power Treaty signed also on February 6, 1922, and in turn predicated upon the two previous compacts. In this agreement China was included and became a party to the Open Door Policy. The powers, including Japan, bound themselves to respect China's sovereignty, independence, and territorial and administrative integrity. These are high sounding phrases which meant much more to the world at that time than they do at the present moment.

KEEP TO THE LEFT!

Custom has ordained that the pedestrian on the rural highway, like the vehicles, shall "Keep to the Right." That is proper for the vehicle, but for the pedestrian the right side is the wrong side, according to Maxwell N. Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Two thousand persons are killed annually in the United States and many thousands injured because they cling to the ancient custom. They are struck at curves, over the crest of hills and in narrow passes by automobiles coming from behind. Dusk before the headlight is turned on, is very dangerous, but later in the night, when the silhouette of the pedestrian blends into the background even under the strongest of headlights, is the most dangerous time of all.

"Until the states provide sidewalks for the country road, the pedestrian should always keep on the left side," Mr. Halsey declares; "then at least he can see the cars coming and move to safety if the occasion demands it. It may feel awkward at first, but it will pay.

MORE "RETALIATION TALK

The free traders have swung into action again. Their latest inspiration and encouragement is the announcement of a proposed ten per cent tariff in Great Britain. Nothing gives them greater glee than the news of a tariff law or set of schedules enacted by some nation other than the United States. For this gives them the opportunity of blaming Uncle Sam and characterizing the foreign tariff as "retaliation" for the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill enacted in this country a year and a half ago.

The free trader as usual fails to look facts in the face. Everything bad which has happened anywhere since the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley bill is the fault of that bill and anything good which may have happened has occurred in spite of the bill. The fact that the Conservatives in England have been advocating a protective tariff for years as a means to cure Great Britain's rapidly mounting deficit means nothing at all to our free traders. They are sure that in passing a tariff bill the British are only making faces at us.

The Conservatives in Great Britain are now in power and are seeking to carry out the political principles which they have so long advocated. They do not think their new tariff will "punish" Uncle Sam for anything. As a matter of fact they have long pointed to our tariff as an example for their own country to follow. Nor is it true that the new British tariff will injure American commerce. On the other hand if British protection starts the mills and factories of our country and stimulates the home market Great Britain will need more of our raw materials than before, and our producers will benefit in that amount.

But to claim, as our internationalists do, that the British tariff is "retaliation" for our tariff is silly. Any British Conservative will tell you that he thinks protection a good thing for Uncle Sam and the proper route for Great Britain to travel. Retaliation has nothing to do with it. The British tariff is born of a desire to help the British producer, to protect him from the more cheaply made products of continental Europe, and to provide additional revenue for the British government.

RELAXING RAILROAD REGULATION

"To what extent," said Elisha Lee, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, recently, "should regulation of the railroads be relaxed? That, of course, is a very difficult question. I wish to suggest, however, that . . . regulation could be relaxed and lessened until it returned to the point where it was exercised only for the purpose of accomplishing the true objects of regulation, viz., that there shall be no unjust discrimination in rates or service, and that rates shall be stable and publicly known."

The sole reason for public regulation of the railroads or any other service industry is to protect the public's interest. But it has been found that when regulation is carried too far exactly the opposite result is obtained—the public's interest is damaged rather than protected. That is very apparent now with the railroad industry on the verge of ruin.

The public, if only for selfish reasons, must demand either that railroad regulation be relaxed, or that competing types of transport be regulated and taxed on the same basis. The present railroad situation is a threat to the entire economic order.

THE "MORNING AFTER"

Anyone who has indulged in strenuous exertion knows what "getting the second wind" means. There are a lot of people and a lot of industries getting their "second wind" in a business and financial way today.

Those industries and individuals with constitutions strong enough to stand the "reducing process" of the past two years have exacted off their overload of fat, secured "their second wind" and are ready for real work.

There is nothing unusual about the experience we have been through. It was a whole lot like a great national banquet. Most of the guests not only gorged themselves on healthful food, but ate all the indigestable viands they could swallow.

Their "morning after" was inevitable. But it was so severe that many of them are still afraid of all nourishment—good as well as bad.

Retrenchment, economy and starvation diets, now being practiced in the extreme, do as much harm as the reign of gluttony and extravagance that preceded them.

The nation now depends on the men and industries that have their "second wind" and are ready to proceed on a normal diet of production and earnings.

DON'T HAMSTRING RADIO

Failing for a propaganda which has been carried on assiduously for months, the Senate ordered a new "survey" of the feasibility of governmental ownership and operation of radio broadcasting . . .

An organization calling itself the National Committee on Education by Radio . . . wants fifteen per cent of the air turned over to educational agencies . . .

It may be we shall be sentimental enough to permit the educational lobby to get away with this grab. But anyone who thinks that it will increase the pleasure of listening to the radio is a sap.—The Baltimore Sun.

The old fashioned boy who was tickled to death with a second hand bicycle now has a son who isn't satisfied unless there are at least two cars in the family.

Shrines In Americon History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

LINCOLN SPEECH MEMORIAL
GETTYSBURG, PA.

A tall gaunt man from out of the West came to this place with a Nations travail weighing heavily upon his soul. With tongue made vibrant by the anguish in his heart and with eyes of hope lifted toward the blue vaulted heavens above he broke into prayerlike speech which the world knows as Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg. That prayer has been answered and the new Nation for which he prayed has become the crowning achievement in self government among nations of the earth. The fireplace who passes here now will reflect upon this memorial as a shrine among shrines in American history.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The situation in the Orient, clouded and uncertain as it is, has done quite a little to clarify the atmosphere in America from the nationalist standpoint. The inability of the League of Nations or any of the many so-called peace agreements to stop the invasion of China by the Japanese, in spite of the urgent calls of the Chinese for help and arbitration, has done a great deal in the United States to discredit international agreements and super-governing bodies as war preventatives, and has caused a crystalizing of sentiment, inside Congress and out, against getting the United States into any foreign entanglements, or inducing Uncle Sam to depend too much on promises and not sufficiently on defensive armament.

There is no militarism in the United States. In fact, peace sentiment is well nigh universal, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. But the people are more and more becoming convinced that the world cannot depend so much on the League of Nations and its Court, the Kellogg-Briand and such peace pacts, as it can on defensive armament and a disposition to mind its own business and let the other nations of the world so far as possible, settle their own problems without foreign interference.

As a result, there never was less sentiment for getting Uncle Sam into the League of Nations than at present. All of the predictions made by the anti-League Senators a decade ago, seemed to have turned out to be true, while the claims of the pro-Leaguers have been refuted by world events. Even former League leaders 11ke Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Newton D. Baker, have so far deviated from their earlier paths, so far as the League is concerned, that Joseph Tumulty, who was Secretary to President Wilson, has seen fit publicly to chide them for their change of faith, or perhaps lack of faith.

All of this, it is expected, will furnish ammunition for the anti-League Court Senators, when the question of getting Uncle Sam into the Court through the Root protocol comes up in the Senate. The anti-Court Senators are much encouraged by recent international developments which, they claim, have substantiated their views that Uncle Sam should stay out of the League and the League Court and devote his time to building up his own nation. In fact they believe that if the World Court resolution were to come to a vote now they could defeat it, along with the Root modification. One anti-internationalist Senator told the writer recently that he would like to get the World Court resolution voted out now, because he felt assured that the result would be overwhelming defeat for the resolution, and when it will be reported out cannot be stated, but it is evident that the pro-League Court Senators are just as much depressed at present as their opponents are elated.

The Sino-Japanese situation, also has confounded the pacifists as well as the internationalists. In view of the late Japanese action sentiment for the strengthening our national defense, instead of weakening it, has grown rapidly. The threat to cut the Army for economy's sake may not materialize in Congress and it is now much more likely that the Vinson ten-year naval program to give us a navy up to treaty strength, will be passed by Congress.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Painful Penalties Of Ultra-Pacifism

Col. Theodore Roosevelt used to say that those who sought to render the United States defenseless from possible armed attack were trying to "China, fy" the United States.

China is the world's horrible example of the effects of a long tradition of pacifism. The philosophy of Confucius taught non-resistance. His teaching that it was better to endure than to resist became ingrained for centuries in the thought of the Chinese people.

And so the Chinese have endured. They have been trampled under the heels of tyrants, extortioners, bandits, corruptionists and invaders. Death itself became to them a useless end of small concern; suffering, especially the suffering of others, a matter of indifference.

The inventors of gunpowder their preparations for defense became comic. When invaded the Chinese army marched gaily forth to death, armed with stinkpots and paper dragons intended to frighten the enemy out of its wits.

In this land of non-resistance more people, even in proportion to the vast population, have been robbed and murdered through organized and unorganized violence than in any other country of the world.

For twenty years the Chinese have been paying the penalty of their long acceptance of the Confucian philosophy. They have been trying to set their republic on the pathway of progress. They have been trying to unify and animate their country. They have been called upon to resist aggressions by other nations. Only the intervention of the United States saved China from partition after the Boxer rebellion; only the opposition of the United States prevented the seizure by Japan of China's richest province, containing the very tomb of Confucius, after the World War.

China has had to crush a conspiracy by Soviet Russia to make the republic an appendage of the Moscow dictatorship, after having been compelled to ask the military help of the bolsheviets to keep the republic on its feet. China is now facing an effort by Japan to further entrench herself; the Chinese have not forgotten what happened to Korea, swallowed up by Japan after that nation had been put to sleep and be run over. The destiny of Charlevoix is in our own hands; it must hustle and keep up with the procession, or be thrust aside into the perpetual obscurity of old forgotten. Charlevoix can head the line or bring up the rear. Which shall it be?

General Passenger Agent De Haven, of the C. & W. M. Railroad, and his corps of assistants are at work on a pamphlet, to be issued early in the summer, descriptive of the country along the extension, and Mr. DeHaven writes the Sentinel that in all references to this place they shall term it "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

The International "Police" Nonsense

Just after the end of the war the spirit of internationalism was widespread and strong. A number of nations had been fighting a common enemy in what was regarded as a common cause. It was presumed that this spirit might be carried over into peace time, the common cause being the prevention of war.

And so with the League of Nations there arose the idea of an international police force

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Henry Bishop, of Kalamazoo, a pioneer of the Charlevoix Sunset Home association is dead.

Just to think of it! Prince Henry is a Mason, too, and was presented a $10,000 jeweled badge in Boston.

The Beaver Island mail carriers, Paul LaBlanc and John Lightning, arrived here yesterday from Cross village, having been unable to get back to the island. They will probably remain here until navigation opens.

John O'Neill has 15 people engaged in making new nets and repairing old ones. He is making this year 1400 pounds of new stuff, mak 544 nets, or 85 miles when set in the water. In all Mr. O'Neill's fishing nets this season, will stretch 125 miles and three tugs will be employed to handle them.

Charlevoix has a string quartette that is receiving many compliments. It is composed of Forrest Bartholomew, George Hamlin, Ralph Smith, Harker Kirby and Meyer Lavimon. The organization is under the leadership of Forrest Bartholomew, and is a "peach".

Andrew B. Dougherty is the Republican nominee for Precident of Elk Rapids. Charlevoix is always glad when honors come to Andrew. He is a Charlevoix boy, and has always, in his personal and official conduct, honored the home of his boyhood days. Of course Andrew will be elected and for what we here say, we expect same day the coming summer, to receive the keys to Elk Rapids and a freedom of the town. The writer of this was a printer in Elk Rapids 34 years ago, about the time the next president of the town wore short dresses.

MASONIC RECEPTION AND BANQUET

The Free and Accepted Masons of Charlevoix will give a reception and banquet at one of the hotels on the night of April 1st, that will be the social event of the year. The following committees have been appointed:

Arrangements—J. M. Ackert, H. S. Hersha, Fred Butler, Ray Faulkner, F. E. Wood.

Invitations—F. G. Hines, J. D. Markham, E. E. Brooks, J. L. Price, E. M. Guard.

Entertainment—H. L. Iddings, S. M. Rose, Ray Faulkner, J. M. Ackert, H. S. Hersha, Art Alcock, J. D. Markham, F. G. Hines, E. M. Guard, C. H. Green, Chas. See, F. P. Gelken.

Reception—Willard A. Smith, S. M. Rose, H. C. Cooper, Maurice Cram W. H. Miller, S. Shergerson, W. H. Scott, J. W. Herrie, Geo. Eggleston, Chas. See, A. Butters, A. McNeill, H. L. Iddings.

The various committees propose to make the event one long to be remembered in the local Masonic annals.

BASKETBALL NEW HERE

The Charlevoix Athletic Association will given an entertainment at the Opera House next Friday evening, March 7, the main feature of which will be a basketball game. Music, recitations and speeches will also be given.

The object of the association is to raise enough money to send a crack team to Ann Arbor about the 14th of May. We have excellent material along the line of athletics and we feel that we can make a creditable showing among the high schools of this state. If we can accept the invitation of the Inter-Scholastic League of Ann Arbor and send a number of our best students there it will be a great advertisement for our high school.

The members of the Association do not want to ask the business men of town, who have so generously helped us on our football to help us in this. The boys are going to give a high and will have an attractive front. It will be supplied with an office and waiting room near the street and in all respects will be a first class building of its kind. The buggy and harness room will be 24x46 entirely separate from the stable, which will extend the entire length of the building and across the back end. The stable will contain 24 stalls. Twenty horses will be kept, among which will be several fine riding ponies. Wheat and Carr have the contract of building the barn.

Sixty Years Ago

Flint has a Grand Traverse Street.

Leap Year—The following from the old Saxon code may be of interest to the ladies of this village, and for their benefit we reproduce it: "At best, as often as leap-years dothe occurre, the woman holdeth prerogative over the menne in matters of courthshipe, love and matrimonie; so that when the ladye proposeth it shall not be lawful for the manne to say to her nae, but shall entertaine her proposal with all gude courtesies."

James G. Gunton, of Traverse City, brought up a load of passengers and freight on Wednesday. Mr. Gunton intends on the completion of the railroad to Traverse City, to run a daily line of through stages between the latter place and Charlevoix.

Elk Rapids Iron Works—From the Eagle we take the following: "Messrs. Dexter and Noble and F. H. Head the latter gentleman of Chicago, have formed a co-partnership under the above title for the purpose of erecting and running blast furnaces at Elk Rapids. The furnace is to be located on the east side of Elk River, above Messrs. D. & N.'s saw mills. The excavating is to be commenced early in the spring, and the work pushed forward during the summer so as to be ready to go into blast in the fall or early winter. The furnace proper is to be of iron, resting on iron columns, while the eating house and all other buildings connected therewith are to be of brick with iron roof, and to be made absolutely fire-proof. The furnace is to be of large size and first-class in every respect. A portion of the machinery is now under contract. This company will now purchase wood of all grades on Elk, Round, and Torch Lakes, and continue to do so during the coming winter. Vernon can now have a market for all the hardwood timber that grows on their land, and thus make the timber itself more than pay for the expense of clearing it. We hope the Furnace next season at Elk Rapids is a fixed fact. This, with the facilities of communication on the inland lakes of Antrim, insures an amount of development during the coming season unprecedented in the history of the county.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

which would keep order in the world and punish violators of treaties. In those uncritical days the scheme seemed desirable and feasible. Sober second thought showed it for what it was—merely fantastic.

Nevertheless, the French immediately seized upon the idea for their own special purposes and have used it time and again to draw as a red herring across the path of disarmament. The delegates at the Geneva Disarmament Conference had no reason to be surprised when M. Tardieu presented this same proposal there. It should be an old story to them by this time.

Citizens are willing to fight in the quarrels of their own country, but fighting merely to end fighting in a cause which holds no interest or concern for them will strike most persons as little less than ludicrous. How many even of our most zealous internationalists would care to send their sons to fight and freeze, perhaps to die, on the blizzard-swept plains of Manchuria in order to keep the Japanese from having their way there?—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mr. Leon Chichester, 69 years of age and a prominent business man and public spirited citizen for the past forty-one years at Petoskey, died Monday forenoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. L. Robinson, in Battle Creek, his death following an illness that has been persistent and continuous for more than one year.

Forty Years Ago

Charlevoix Minstrels tonight.

March comes in like a sheep.

Mrs. Paddock arrived from Ohio Saturday and is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholls.

Will See, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. See, arrived here from his home in Oregon Monday, on a visit, and everybody is glad to see him.

For nearly the entire year past, Mr. John Burns, has been acting President of Charlevoix, and has discharged his duties well. His nomination for President was a very proper thing to do.

The Democrat last week gave expression to the essence of truth in its remarks on the apathy of our citizens in the matter of pushing Charlevoix to the front. The Sentinel has almost worn out the subject. Our advantages are only of value to us as they are made so. Nature produces it but does not develop; it must be assisted. A railroad may be made a medium of progress or it may be made a detriment. Which shall it be here? Platitudes on this thread-bare tradition of salubrious climate, picturesque scenery, broad expanse of lake, and "meandering sinuosities" of beach and river, read nicely in railroad literature but they only furnish winter day-dreams for the summer tourist and hay-fever habitue. It is time to consign these "putrid reminiscences" to the graveyard of dead hopes, and begin to propagate a new and vigorous gospel of push! The time is ripe to give this matter serious thought and decide our own destiny—further entrench herself; the Chinese have not forgotten what happened to Korea, swallowed up by Japan after that nation had been put to sleep and be run over. The destiny of Charlevoix is in our own hands; it must hustle and keep up with the procession, or be thrust aside into the perpetual obscurity of old forgotten. Charlevoix can head the line or bring up the rear. Which shall it be?

Fifty Years Ago

The propeller Cleopatra is advertised to leave Chicago for Cheboygan and intermediate points March first. "Navigation is open."

Hannah Lay & Co., have the stakes set for their proposed new store at Traverse City. It will be the finest building in Northern Michigan, will be completed in the spring of 1883 and will cost about $75,000.

In about three weeks will occur the Historic Society entertainment. It will consist largely of instrumental and vocal music. The Charlevoix orchestra have volunteered their services and have special music in rehearsal. It is also expected that Miss Alice Carpenter will be home from the Conservatory of Music and appear before the Charlevoix public on that occasion, in vocal solos and recitations. A rare treat may be expected.

There were many sorts of displays at the recent masquerade ball, including the grotesque, the horrible, the fancy and many really "aesthetic", but one in particular attracted much attention. The wearer was Miss Allie Fuller, and the suit was made entirely of copies of the Charlevoix Sentinel. It was a skirt and "pollonaise" got up in latest style. The skirt was plaited and the pollonaise fitted the wearer with as much grace as if the material had been the finest silk and in fact, at some distance it closely resembled silk. About the head and waist appeared the Sentinel heading. The suit was really artistic and demonstrated good taste.

We were shown the plans yesterday of a new livery stable to be erected on Bridge street this spring. J. Milo Eaton has leased of N. Almdie the site just south of T. H. Smith's store, and will soon commence the erection of the stable. It will be 28x72 on the ground, two stories high and will have an attractive front. It will be supplied with an office and waiting room near the street and in all respects will be a first class building of its kind. The buggy and harness room will be 24x46 entirely separate from the stable, which will extend the entire length of the building and across the back end. The stable will contain 24 stalls. Twenty horses will be kept, among which will be several fine riding ponies. Wheat and Carr have the contract of building the barn.

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

Irving Bacheller

For a quarter of a century the name of Irving Bacheller has been familiar to millions of readers as their own —and as beloved by all. His strong and beautiful stories reflect all the sturdiness of our pioneer life, with its homely endeavor, its inchoate courage, and its incorrigible Yankee humor.

Irving Bacheller is a product of the "North Country" of which he writes. He was born in the village of Pompey, N. Y., September 26, 1870. As a boy he roamed the woods around the town and streams and enjoyed the game that is to be found on the mountain slopes.

"For a time he taught in a 'North Country' school, but his ambition was to write, and to the world stamps he went to New York where he secured a reporter's job on a Brooklyn paper. After a time he organized a newspaper syndicate. Then he became Sunday editor of the New York World. It was while he was on the World that the inspiration for 'Truxton Holbert' came to him. He went back to the 'North Country' to settle it, and has since devoted his time exclusively to literature.

The countless readers who have followed Bacheller through the years and the new readers who are turning to him today will find that his pen has lost none of its old magic. In "The House of the Three Graziers" we see again the qualities that have made him the master-chronicler and interpreter of unspoiled America.

It will appear as a serial in these columns.

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.
Cherryvale Hatchery, F. Jordan
Phone 116 F-2 — 4916

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF TOWNSHIP CAUCUS

A township caucus for the Township of Marion, Charlevoix County, Michigan, will be held at the Township Hall of said Township on Monday, March 14th at 2 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time, for the purpose of nominating of Township officers for the ensuing year or for the transaction of such other business as may legally come before it.

Jay Adams,
Township Clerk of Marion Township.
4512

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 19th day of February, A. D. 1932

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Francis J. Mercilliott, Margaret Gallagher, as Executrix of the Estate of William J. Gallagher, Deceased, having filed in said court her final administration account, and petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 19th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate
4512

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Appointment of Administrator.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 24th day of February A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Nathan P. Munyon, Deceased.

Charles R. Munyon having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to A. L. Fitch, or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate
4413

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Scullin to the undersigned, under date of August 15th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 56 of Mortgages on page 254 in the office of the Register of Deeds to and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Tax thereon having been paid as appears by endorsement, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amount secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said Mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Supervisor Plat of the Village (now City) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Courthouse being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 28th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which is at the date hereof, including a $25.00 attorney fee to be paid as a part of said mortgage, the sum of $1547.70.

Dated December 19th, 1931.

H. W. Wetmore, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger,
Attys. for Mortgagee
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 3911g

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE—

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Clerk C. Gerken, Plaintiff vs.
Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 25th, December 1931 in said cause, said suit having been filed to foreclose certain mortgages on which there was due on the date of said decree the principal and interest the sum of $815.65 and a further sum of $75.00 costs of attorney, making a total of $887.65 with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.

Notice is hereby given that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East Front Door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, said court house being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county), on 12th, March, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said decree and premises hereinafter described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree, together with principal interest and costs due and payable to the time of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One Hundred and ninety-six of Upson's and Barbour's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID KAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale, Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Business address 108 Clinton St., Charlevoix, Mich. 4097

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large or small parcels of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 1246

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 11 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

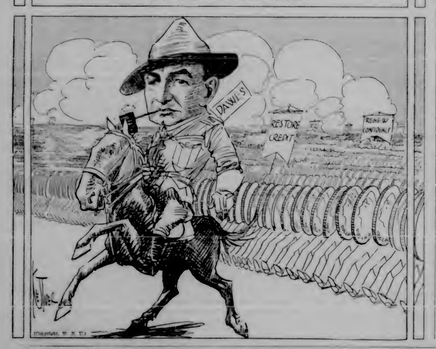
FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By F. O. Alexander

A Killing Situation

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

The Shock

Two Billion Iron Men

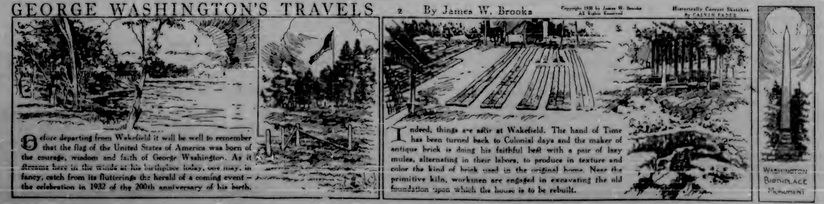


Along the Concrete

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

The Boy Abates a Pest

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks



Before departing from Wakefield it will be well to remember that the flag of the United States of America was born of the courage, wisdom and faith of George Washington. As it flutters here in the fields at his birthplace today, out may, in fancy, catch from its fluttering the herald of a coming event — the celebration in 1932 of the 200th anniversary of his birth.

Indeed, things are afoot at Wakefield. The hand of Time has been turned back to Colonial days and the maker of antique brick is doing his faithful best with a pair of lazy mules, alternating in their labors, to produce in texture and color the kind of brick used in the original house. Near the primitive kiln, workmen are employed in excavating the old foundation upon which the house is to be rebuilt.

"BY SWITCHING TO TARGET MY HUSBAND SAVES 50 CENTS A WEEK"

When I had to cut down expenses, so my husband did his share by switching to Target and rolling his own cigarettes. I felt kind of sorry for him at first, but I notice he's more cheerful than ever.

"He tells me that Target rolls up into cigarettes that look and taste like ready-makes. Target is the same mixture of foreign and domestic tobaccos that the ready-makes use. You get 40 special gummed papers free. No wonder my husband tells me he's glad he changed. He's getting a whole extra cigarette a day, which belonged to her motherwise, and saving about enough to pay for the family's bread and butter each month."

HUSBANDS, PLEASE NOTE! You pay less than one cent the government tax on forty cents when you roll your own from TARGET. Buy a pack of TARGET Handy-Packed cigarettes or tobacco. If you don't say they are the best cigarette you have ever smoked, return the half empty package to your dealer's and you'll get your money back.

Wrapped in Mellotone Cellophane

10¢ TARGET CIGARETTE TOBACCO

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky © 1929

Sunshine ★★★★ —All Winter Long

At the Foremost Hotel Resort of the West—marvelous climate—warm sunny days—clear starlit nights—dry invigorating air—splendid roads—gorgeous mountain scenery—finest tennis—the year's active home, winter sports playtime

PALM SPRINGS California

America's Oldest Radio School

Television, aviation radio, broadcasting, sound picture, commercial, servicing, operating.

Day and evening classes at Chicago, Illinois. Catalog.

RCA INSTITUTES, INC. Affiliated with Radio Corporation of America Dept. VC-1154 Examination Rate Chicago, Ill.

Untouched by Modernism

Conscience is about the most old-fashioned thing, says the Fullerton Farmer. It is still using the still, small voice instead of employing the modern loud speaker.

Yeh. And we notice that opportunity still knocks; it doesn't sit out in a car and honk.—Boston Transcript.

Tree Surgery in Capital

Because some of the valuable trees in Washington, D. C., became undernourished following the drought, they have been artificially fed by drilling holes near the base of each tree and filling the holes with food and pouring in water.

Scolds neighbor for using lifeless suds

"I'M surprised at you—trying to get a clean wash with such fat suds! Just try Rinso and see the difference. It gives the richest, sagest suds you ever saw! Clothes come so white, you'll be amazed. I never use any soap but Rinso."

For tub washing, too

Makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Great for tub washing, too —suds are dirt—saves scrubbing and boiling—saves the clothes.

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Lasting suds, even in hardest water. Also velous for dishwashing, and for all cleaning. Get the BIG package today.

Rinso

MILLIONS USE RINSO in tub, washer and dishpan

OLD LEE HOMESTEAD IS BEING RESTORED

Will Revive Life and Culture of Old South.

Richmond, Va. — Stratford Hall, homestead of the Lee family in Virginia, a center of historical interest and a symbol of the life and culture of the Old South, has been saved for posterity. Through the efforts of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Lee Memorial foundation the mortgage on the eleven-hundred-acre estate in Westmoreland county has been paid off and the last obstacle to the preservation of the mansion as a national shrine has been removed, says the New York Times.

There remains now the work of restoring the fine old house and restoring the extensive grounds which formerly made it one of the show places of the state, and this work will proceed as funds for the purpose are made available. Within a remarkably short time a spacious life of the Eighteenth century will be reassured there in all its picturesque plainness.

Completion of the purchase fund marked the climax of another chapter in a dramatic story which began with its first owner, Thomas Lee, early in 1730. Mrs. Charles H. Lanier of Gainesville, head of the Virginia Antiquarian, Jr., chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, while visiting there through a door which belonged to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Hubert Lanier, widow of the poet, came upon a pencilled manuscript by Lanier, until then not known to exist.

A Speech on Lee's Death.

The lyrist had planned to be present at the last rites in Staunton, Va., in 1870, on the death of General Lee, to which he urged the establishment of a memorial "by contributions as small for within the reach of the humblest citizen as for who loved him and who deserve the grateful privilege of paying some tribute on his tomb."

On the following day Mrs. Lanier received a letter from a friend describing a visit to Stratford and asking why it could not be preserved. On the same morning she called a meeting of her organization, which resulted in the adoption of resolutions looking to the acquisition of the homestead.

After months of negotiations arrangements were made with Charles E. Stuart, the owner, for his purchase, and the Robert E. Lee Memorial foundation was formed to acquire the property and conduct a campaign for contributions to all parts of the country. The price was fixed at $150,000. The mortgage was cleared away by an unconditional advance of $135,000 by a prominent Delaware woman.

Stratford hall is more than two hundred years old and bears the distinction of having been the birthplace of two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, as well as the home of "Light Horse Harry" Lee and other generations of the distinguished family.

It stands on a hillock not far removed from the Potomac in a section of the Northern Neck within the oldest generation of Virginians especially looks upon as hallowed ground. The estate fronts for two miles on the river, and within a few miles are the birthplaces of three presidents—Washington, Madison and Monroe.

The house itself, built in the shape of the letter H, is two stories in height, with a tall mansion forming the main floor, and is topped by massive quadruple chimneys on each wing. It was started in 1729 by Francis Caroline, wife of George II of England, with a gift of £300 toward the cost of its erection following a fire which destroyed the original home built on the site of which grew in legend the time-honored pecan.

The House Well Preserved.

The mansion is a fine study of proportions. Its bricks are laid in English bonds by English methods still used in the Tidewater area, and it is said to be the seamless home of its type in colonial Virginia.

In restoring the plantation with its Colonial atmosphere and its acts and industries as pursued two centuries ago, the old trees and new will now be razed, will be rebuilt or placed in quarantine. Spinning, weaving and woodcraft—the "crafts" will be preserved for the enlightenment of visitors and students. The tobacco warehouse will be reconstructed. And

A Speech on Lee's Death.

The lyrist had planned to be present at the last rites in Staunton, Va., in 1870, on the death of General Lee, to which he urged the establishment of a memorial "by contributions as small for within the reach of the humblest citizen as for who loved him and who deserve the grateful privilege of paying some tribute on his tomb."

On the following day Mrs. Lanier received a letter from a friend describing a visit to Stratford and asking why it could not be preserved. On the same morning she called a meeting of her organization, which resulted in the adoption of resolutions looking to the acquisition of the homestead.

After months of negotiations arrangements were made with Charles E. Stuart, the owner, for his purchase, and the Robert E. Lee Memorial foundation was formed to acquire the property and conduct a campaign for contributions to all parts of the country. The price was fixed at $150,000. The mortgage was cleared away by an unconditional advance of $135,000 by a prominent Delaware woman.

Stratford hall is more than two hundred years old and bears the distinction of having been the birthplace of

Honored for Valor

The Cheney award, consisting of a plaque, a certificate of award and a $1,000 cash contribution, has been awarded to Private John W. Busby of the United States army air corps. The award made annually to the officer or enlisted man of the branch of service performing the outstanding act of valor during the year was made to Private Busby who, when a plane crashed into the building to which he was assigned, dived head over into the blazing cockpit and liberated the pilot's face which was fatally wedged in the rudder bar. Busby, though injured by the crash, then removed the engine, setting fire to a plane of rubber.

Goalie of Hawks

Chuck Gardner, goalie of the Chicago Black Hawks, has made an enviable record during the ice hockey season.

AFRICAN CANNIBALS CRAVE EPSOM SALTS

Will Spend Week's Wages for a Single Dose.

New York—Mrs. William R. Sennett, who shares the exploration of her noted husband, says that a white man can prosper by retailing epsom salts to the natives on the ivory coast.

"Epsom salts," she says in the Americas Druggist, "are white magic to the people who deal in black magic, people who will work for a week to buy a single dose of salts and consider themselves lucky to get it.

"Our charming cannibal to whom my husband and I were indebted made a single request when asked how he could repay him for his many favors. He required quickly and naively: 'You send me epsom salts, and my fortune is made.'

"His idea was to go into the curative business and sell epsom salts for his fellow men.

"Natives of the ivory coast suffer terribly from constipation. Here you have a primitive people struggling with pellagra in a dense jungle, afflicted with a confusion which we have been told results from a civilized and sedentary life. They live mainly on nuts and fruits. They eat occasionally on game and even human cannibals marry food-predecessors.

"With doctors and sorcerers their magic views and maybe a lot of assistants, but the black men have discovered that the efficiency of the white man's drugs, so they buy to borrow or loot them, whenever possible. They now

Paris Thinks of Spring

Lanvin still features metal pastilettes, but floss is very much in the picture in the form of colorful cuffs on the abbreviated straight flannel of a pleated crepe evening ensemble.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

All Around the House

To keep rubber bats in good condition rub them with a piece of velvet the way of the grain.

* * *

Apples will not brown when sliced if they have been pricked with a fork before they are put into the oven.

* * *

If you sprinkle salt over the coal in frozen quantities it will make it burn more evenly and prevent "clinkers."

* * *

If shoes do not squeak rinsing glue two coats blacking. Do not remove polishing cloth until coat has polished and you will get a good soften.

POTPOURRI

Lard and Perfumes

Cheese perfumes not made to it is prevent known as cold cream rape. A thermometer of cold lard is placed on glass slabs in sunshine frames. Flowers are placed on this bed. Every day fresh flowers replace the old ones until the lard becomes saturated with their perfume. The lard is then removed with cold alcohol which evaporates, leaving the extract.

(© 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Father Sage Says—

A monk man's idea of a roaring good time is just alone in his little to roar like a lion and make his wife jump.

SUCH IS LIFE— Not Up on Strange Words

By Charles Sughroe

Home-Making Advice Is Given in U. S. Schools

Washington.—How to decorate the walls of a home so that they will be cheerful at the same time easy to clean; how to repair the upholstering of the furniture so it will not speak, how to prevent an electric shock from your washer when the floor all about it is wet, and many other such bits of advice for the homemaker are now being offered in vocational schools, the federal board for vocational education has announced.

The science of home making and all its component parts, such as economy and efficiency in child care, food and nutrition, house furnishings and equipment, sanitation and health, and in textiles and clothing, is now being taught. And there is no longer any reason, says the board, for ignorance of scientific principles essential to the homemaker.

In the broad educational scope the instructors teach bacteriology, chemistry and physics with respect to their application to household activities. The methods of sterilizing are such that a fourteen-year-old child can understand them.

Hoover Loses 27 Pounds Since He Took Office

Washington.—President Hoover has lost 27 pounds since he entered the White House. His associates attribute his drop in weight from 210 pounds to 183 to physical exercising and a regulated diet. In refusing his customary steak a noticeable embonpoint, the President followed the advice of Commander Joel Boone, his personal physician. His exercise consisted of volley ball in the morning and long walks in the afternoon. In the matter of diet the lost was against his customary consumption of fat making foods.

The President has also bothered to adopt a regular schedule in the matter of meals.

Oklahoma's Quail Fail to Show Rapid Increase

Oklahoma City.—Increase of the quail supply in Oklahoma has not kept pace with the 50 per cent decrease in the number of licensed hunters, Albert Ramsey, state game warden, declares. Licenses decreased from 127,000 in 1928 to 80,000 in 1931. There has been but a slight increase in the number of quail. An extensive restoration program is in operation. Agricultural expansion, forcing all wild life into small restricted areas, where the quail are at the mercy of predatory animals, has taken a heavier toll than the hunter, Ramsey says, state game commissioner, said.

Show Larger Enrollment in Vocational Schools

Washington.—Increases in enrollment in practically every type of vocational education schools and classes and expansion of the field of service covered by these schools have been announced by the federal board for vocational education.

Schools of agriculture, home economics and those giving courses in trade and industrial subjects showed the greatest gain with an increase of approximately 33,000 in enrollment.

Effects of depression are not evident in this change, according to the board which says that the "home" students are mainly those who are training for available jobs, or are returning for other jobs, having been deprived of employment due to changing processes or the introduction of machinery.

Chinese Influence.

A sculpture that shows a decided Chinese influence has a three-tiered panel of exquisite pink and gold brocade, cut on the simple cocktail coat lines. The very wide trousers are of gold silk pleated for a full-dimensional effect.

Sweater Sets Seen in All Types and Shades

Sweaters of all types and shades are appearing in collective sets, including hats, mufflers and gloves. Likewise given vivid black, navy blue with red and yellow make striking combinations to wear with the basic navy blue suit. Big oversize sweaters which will undoubtedly retain the favoritism in spite of big attempts to popularize the knitted jacket, greens and reds which, by the way, are not so pretty in the mass, very smart for skating or adding in a high-necked effect shapes in hand-knit or crocheted effect.

In Wool

One of the most wearable of the new frocks is cut on the famous Viennese dress, and marks the latest word precisely. This dress is in light weight wool and is unlimmed.

Winter Colony on Catalina Island

This unusual close-up of the "winter colony" on the rocky shores of Catalina island near Avalon bay, shows Admiral Smif and his sailors and his engines and his seals basking in the sun. In spite of their fur coats the whole family likes the late William Wrigley's warm island playground as a winters rendezvous.

THEY DON'T CHANGE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

We change very little after we are beyond the high-school age. I say we will admit any beneficial change.

Habits are hard to change. Trying to reduce or getting married, or taking up a profession or teacher, or farming, would work surprise on the subsequent of the modification of a man's character. I can now face the fact of these things unless very much different.

I hadn't seen Maguire for more than thirty-five years until he dropped down on a Des Moines train. He was the same old Maguire, careless in his dress, cheerful, happy, ready for a row and ready to laugh at a good joke even if it were on himself. He did not work much any more, he had a farm tucked away where he went in the delightful days between summer and winter. When he described it to me it was a delightful place. He was comfortable, he was happy, his preferences are all changed, he had chosen WHERE and WHY having to do about how to accustom ourselves to the the groundwork of the human church. I haven't met him to this day, but the qualities he had years ago were the same young fellow I've pleasantly remember for a number of the years.

He had not been in his office but a few days in a new city, perhaps had to go to the 5th, 10th and succeeding days, before he had formed acquaintances and had perfected when one wants to go golfing. He might have for lunch and took quite into the local scene of human wealth in an unconventional way. Then he

Hallyhock Native of Syria

The hollyhock which graces nearly a fine plant in the garden whilst at the footgate of by flower, but which a considerable of a part the rest of the year, is a native of Syria. A member of the mallow family, it has through subsequent home changed to a double, flowering and highly beautiful flower white in shades.

Girl at the Top in Health Tests

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West, are being conducted to health and strength by the use of Syrup of Figs and Castoria. Fig Syrup, known as California Fig Syrup, and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compare with it as a gentle but thorough laxative, and it soon builds them firm, healthy flesh and strength to the stomach and bowels so close organs necessary to put on quality of their age required. It relieves the apparent, habit digestion.

A Famous mother, Mrs. Flora Gibbs, 410 Monroe St., Topeka, Kans., "Syrup of Figs and Castoria are the greatest of health you and gaining full strength in every healthy way.

Mrs. Gibbs, wife of the pastor for eastern counties in the to California Fig Syrup. We have used it after having colds or any children's diseases and it always relieves them promptly with their fine absence responds to its gentle purging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the name "California" on the carton so you'll always get genuine.

America's Oldest "Daily"

The first daily newspaper published in the United States was the Pennsylvania Packet and Daily Advertiser, published at Philadelphia, September, 1784.

How to breathe freely all night

Use this cream—keeps nostrils open—Citarh goes away

Now you can breathe freely all day and sleep comfortably! With nostrils cleared all night, no hacking, no choking, no fighting for breath. Just get a little ELY'S CREAM-BALM on each nostril and you get instant relief that lasts for 10 hours. Head colds and Catarrhal troubles vanish. This fragrant antiseptic is held by the membranes and clears out every air passage in the head and soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane. Try it. WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

Lark

"I now your boy for his school this morning. Up with the lark."

"Probably not higher than."

If YOU have PIMPLES or SKIN BLEMISHES

Cut Out This Ad and Mail to CENTURY NATIONAL CHEMICAL CO. Wash. & Cross Sts., Paterson, N. J.

For a FREE Cake of GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP

33¢ A Sulphur

Agreement Basis

Finish—the iron and iron with always agree?

Wrigley—by second thought yes.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

At fifty, you can be as your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying the vigor you formerly felt the years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how much better they've grown until they've tried it. The attention of millions has been called to this system to new life in Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

The famous doctor's prescription is a laxative action made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to know about it. Just take it at bedtime and a little more, and let nature do the rest. Results will astonish you in a few days. It's better than any kind of pill, harsh purging or habit-forming laxative you can take. Don't let it go another day. Get it and start.

Get some syrup pepsin today and take a little tonight. Don't wait another day to feel fit. Don't miss the wonderful help. You can send those sour stomachs, gassy spells, constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than a dose of salts to correct the conditions of your bowels, in fact if such conditions exist as you grow older Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin is invaluable to system. All druggists keep the preparation.

Strange but True.

Pete—Do you feel you kill the boys you go out with, Sweet?

Sue—No, some of them just haven't any ingenuity whatever.

All Is

"She likes old, but I don't."

"Yes."

"What does the V stand for?"

"Vanity."—Florida Times-Union.

Can you RESIST COLDS?

A cold in the head is a nuisance, and is sometimes your friend. Doctors have found that a good dose of Scott's Emulsion will help nature throw off a cold. That's when a cold is about to develop. Scott's Emulsion is a strengthening, growth-promoting food-tonic that helps to build resistance against colds. Why not try Scott's Emulsion this winter? Get a bottle today. Let Scott's help you. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 54-30

Scott's Emulsion OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

Tired, Nervous and Depressed?

Health Suffers When Kidneys Do Not Act Right

If you're suffering backaches with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling, they may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition.

Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your doctor has Doan's.

Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

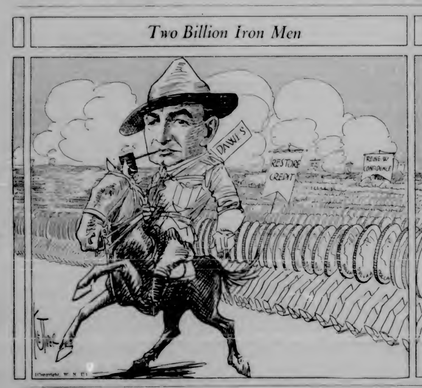
FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By F. O. Alexander

A Killing Situation

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osbourne

The Shock

Two Billion Iron Men

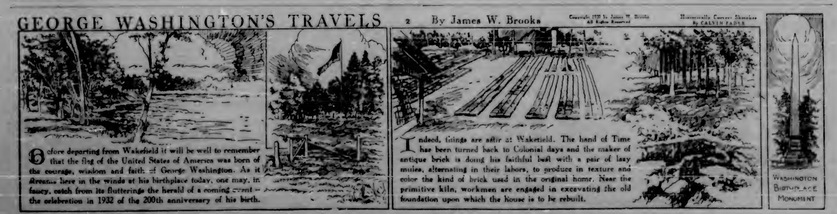


Along the Concrete

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

The Boy Abates a Pest

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — 2 — By James W. Brooks



Before departing from Wakefield it will be well to remember that the flag of the United States of America was born of the courage, wisdom and faith of George Washington. As it flutters here in the winds at his birthplace today, one may, in fancy, catch from its fluttering the herald of a coming event — the celebration in 1932 of the 200th anniversary of his birth.

Indeed, things are afoot at Wakefield. The hand of Time has been turned back to Colonial days and the maker of antique brick is doing his faithful best with a pair of lazy mules, alternating in their labors, to produce in texture and color the kind of brick used in the original home. Near the primitive kiln, workmen are engaged in excavating the old foundation upon which the house is to be rebuilt.

WASHINGTON BIRTHPLACE MONUMENT

"BY SWITCHING TO TARGET MY HUSBAND SAVES 50 CENTS A WEEK"

We had to cut down expenses, so my husband did his share by switching to Target and telling his own cigarettes. I felt kind of sorry for him at first, but I notice he's more cheerful than ever.

"He tells me that Target rolls up into cigarettes that look and taste like ready-mades. Target is the same mixture of foreign and domestic tobaccos that the ready-mades are. You get 40 special cigarettes per pack free. No wonder my husband tells me he's glad he changed. He's getting more cigarette pleasure than ever, and we've saving about enough to pay for the family's bread and butter each month."

HUSBANDS, PLEASE NOTE! You pay less than one-sixth the grocery item for an entire smoke when you roll your own from TARGET. Buy a pack of TARGET Ready-rolled Tobacco or ready-smokes. If you don't say they are the best cigarettes you have ever smoked, return the half empty pack to your dealer's and you'll get your money back.

Wrapped in waterproof Cellophane

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky ©1930

Sunshine ★★★★ —All Winter Long

At the Tamarisk Desert Resort of the West—marvelous climate—warm sunny days—clear starlit nights—dry invigorating air—splendid roads—gorgeous mountain scenery—finest hotels—the year's new home. Write Dept. A CHAFFEY

PALM SPRINGS California

America's Oldest Radio School

RCA INSTITUTES

Television, amateur radio, broadcasting, sound picture equipment, servicing. Day and evening classes at Home study Courses. RCA INSTITUTES, INC. Dept. CH 75 Varick Street, New York City

Unleashed by Modernism

Conscience is about the most old-fashioned thing, says the Gilmore Farmer. It is still using the still, small voice instead of exploiting the modern loud speaker.

Yeh. And we assure that Opportunity still knocks; it doesn't let out in a car and honk.—Boston Transcript.

Tree Surgery In Capitol

Perhaps some of the valuable trees in Washington, D. C., became endangered following the drought, they have been artificially fed by drilling holes into the bole of each tree and filling the holes with meal and pouring in water.

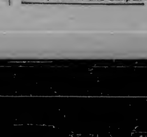
Scolds neighbor for using lifeless suds

TM surprised at you—trying to get a clean wash with such flat suds! Just try Rinso and see the difference in the richness, copious suds you ever saw! Clothes come out whiter, you'll be amazed. I never use any soap but Rinso."

For tub washing, too

Makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Great for tub-washing, too —suds use dirt—saves scrubbing, and boiling—leaves the clothes!

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lukewarm, pudding-type soaps. Lasting suds, even in hardest water. Markedly less for dishwashing and for all cleaning. Get the Rinso pack-age today.



MILLIONS USE RINSO in tub, washer and dishpan

OLD LEE HOMESTEAD IS BEING RESTORED

Will Revive Life and Culture of Old South.

Richmond, Va. — Stratford Hall homestead of the Lee family in Virginia, a center of historical interest and a symbol of the life and culture of the old South, has been saved for posterity. Through the efforts of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Lee Memorial Association the mortgage on the eleven hundred-acre estate in Westmoreland county has been paid off and the last obstacle to the preservation of the mansion as a national shrine has been removed, says the New York Times.

There remains now the work of restoring the fine old house and making the extensive grounds which formerly made it one of the show places of the state, and this work will go on as funds for the purpose are made available. Within a reasonably short time plantation life of the Eighteenth century will be resumed there in all its picturesque phases.

Completion of the purchase fund marked the close of spirited charges in a dramatic story which has spread to Greenwich Town, early in December. Mrs. Charles D. Lanier of Greenwich, a member of the William Avery Jr., Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was encouraging through a desk which belonged to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Rufus Lanier, widow of the poet, some spots a pencilled manuscript by Lanier, until then not known to exist.

A Speech on Lee's Death.

The discovery was by a speech he had made in Macon, Ga., in 1870, on the fourth of October Lee, in which he urged the establishment of a memorial "to contribute as shall be within the compass of the humblest citizen who loved him and who desires the cherished privilege of laying some tribute on his tomb."

On the following day Mrs Lanier received a letter from a friend describing a visit to Stratford and telling why it could not be preserved. On this same meeting she visited a meeting of her organization, which resulted in the adoption of resolutions looking to the acquisition of the homestead.

After months of negotiations arrangements were made with Charles E. Stuart, the owner, for the purchase, and the Robert E. Lee Memorial Association was formed to acquire the property and conduct a campaign for contributions in all parts of the country. The price was fixed at $50,000. The mortgage was cleared away by an unconditional advance of $15,000 by a prominent Delaware woman.

Stratford has a place there in American years and bears the distinction of having been the birthplace of two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, as well as the home of "Light Horse Harry" Lee and other generations of the distinguished family.

It stands on a hilltop not far removed from the Potomac in a section of the Northern Neck which the oldest generation of Virginians especially looks upon as hallowed ground. The estate fronts for two miles on the river, and within a few miles are the birthplaces of three Presidents—Washington, Madison and Monroe.

The house itself, built in the shape of the letter H, is two stories in height, with a tall monument forming the front face, and is topped by several quaint roofed chimneys an odd thing. It was started in 1725 by Thomas Christopher of George II of England, with a gift of 4,000 toward the cost of its erection, following a fire which destroyed the original manor house on the site, and which now is forming the line from its burial plot.

The House Well Preserved.

The mansion is a fine style of proportion, in spite of many changes in fashion characteristic with the passing of various occupants, and was known in the wonderful stone of its time in Northern Virginia.

In restoring the plantation with its colonial atmosphere glad to note that industries are centered two centuries ago, the old brick and tile mill, now in ruins, will be rebuilt, and others in operation. Spinning weaving and wrought-iron craftsmanship will be practiced for the requirements of visitors and tourists. The tobacco warehouse will be reconstructed, and

Goalie of Hawks

Chuck Gardiner, goalie of the Chicago Black Hawks, has made his entire record among the best hockey season.

Honored for Valor

The Citation award consisting of a plaque, a certificate of award and a substantial cash consideration, was awarded to Private John E. Smith of the United States army on Corps. The award, made annually to the officer or enlisted man of the branch of service performing the outstanding act of valor during the year, was made to Private Smith who, when a grenade rendered him fighting in which he was wounded, threw himself over into the blazing cockpit and liberated the pilot's face which was finally wedged in the rudder bar. Smith, though injured by the crash, then rendered the unconscious pilot to a place of safety.

series of the old planting season revived. The old kitchen, with its 12 fire-places, will be kept going, and the tall brick well opens will have the culinary operations from about eight.

The Garden Clubs of Virginia will complete the restoration program with landscaping, terraces, flowers and rare shrubs such as once were the pride of the Lees and the delight of their many distinguished guests.

All Around the House

To keep veneer tops in good condition rub them with a piece of velvet the way of the grain.

• • •

Apples will not break when baking if they have been pierced with a fork before they are put into the oven.

• • •

If you sprinkle salt over the coal in liberal quantities it will make it burn more evenly and prevent "clinkers."

• • •

If stains do not prove readily give two coats blacking. If dry rotten plaster on ceiling crack, clear, polish and paint will put a good article.

POTPOURRI

Lard and Perfumes

Chinese perfumes are made by a process known as cold extraction. A thousand or more odors are placed on glass plates in wooden frames. Flowers are placed on this bed and lard and fresh flowers replace the old ones until all the lard becomes saturated with their perfume. The lard is then dissolved with cold alcohol which evaporates, leaving the perfume.

© 1930, Western Newspaper Union.

Father Sage Says:

A man's man's idea of a roaring good time is just snow in his life to start the ball rolling.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

SUCH IS LIFE— Not Up on Strange Words — By Charles Sughroe

Home-Making Advice Is Given in U. S. Schools

Washington.—How to decorate the walls of a home so that they will be restful to the eyes, how to use fruit so as to will not spoil, how to prevent an electric shock from your sewing when the floor all about it is wet, and many other such bits of advice for the housewife are now being offered in vocational schools, the federal board for vocational education has announced.

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lukewarm, pudding-type soaps. Lasting suds, even in hardest water. Markedly less for dishwashing and for all cleaning. Get the Rinso pack-age today.

Courses in home making and all its component parts, such as economy and efficiency in child care, food and nutrition, home furnishings and equipment, sanitation and health and in textiles and clothing, is now being taught. And there is no longer any reason, says the board, for ignorance of scientific principles essential to the housewife.

In the broad educational scope the instructors teach bacteriology, chemistry and physics with respect to their application to household activities. The methods of canning are such that a fourteen year old child can successfully do them.

Hoover Loses 27 Pounds Since He Took Office

Washington.—President Hoover has lost 27 pounds since he entered the White House. His administration attributes his drop in weight from 210 pounds to 183 to physical exercising and a regulated diet. In reducing his weight toward a noticeable endomorphic, the President followed the advice of Commander Joel Boone, his personal physician. His exercise consisted of volley ball in the morning and long walks in the afternoon. In the matter of diet the trim was against the certain assumption of fat making foods.

The President was also induced to adopt a regular schedule in the matter of meals.

Oklahoma's Quail Fail to Show Rapid Increase

Oklahoma City.—Increase of the quail supply in Oklahoma has not kept pace with the 50 per cent decline in the number of licensed hunters, although the number of licensed hunters decreased from 127,000 in 1929 to 63,000 in 1931, there has been but a slight increase in the number of quail. An extensive restoration program is in force. Agricultural expansion, fencing all weed life and small restricted areas, where the quail are at the mercy of predatory animals, has taken a heavier toll than the hunter, Dr. Mobley, state game commissioner, said.

Show Larger Enrollment in Vocational Schools

Washington.—Increases in enrollment in practically every type of vocational education schools and classes and expansion of the field of service covered by those schools have been announced by the federal board for vocational education.

Most of agri culture, home economics and those giving courses in trade and industrial subjects showed the greatest gain with an increase of approximately fifteen in enrollment.

Effects of unemployment are visible in this change, according to the board, which says that the "slow" students are mainly those who are training for definite jobs who are retreating for other jobs having been deprived of employment due to changing processes or the introduction of machinery.

Chinese Influence

A heritage that shows a decided Chinese influence has a knee length coat of exquisite pink and gold brocade, and on the elastic cords coin trims. The very wide trousers are of gold with pleated into fashionably small pleats.

AFRICAN CANNIBALS CRAVE EPSOM SALTS

Will Spend Week's Wages for a Single Dose.

New York.—Mrs. William S. Seabrook, who shares the explorations of her lecturer husband, says that a white man can prosper by retailing epsom salts to the natives on the Ivory coast.

"Epsom salts," she says in the Atlantic Irregular, "are white magic to the people that dwell in black magic; people who will work for a week to buy a single dose of salts and consider themselves lucky to get it.

"One charming cannibal to whom my husband and I were invited made a single request when asked how we could repay him for his many favors. He replied quickly and naively: 'You send me epsom salts, and my fortune is made.'

"His idea was to go into the retail business and sell epsom salts for his fetish.

"Natives of the Ivory coast suffer terribly from stomach ailments. Now you have a primitive people struggling with nature in a desperate attempt with a condition which we have been told needs from a constant and sedentary life. The difficulty is with they live. They are practically in good health among cannibals anxiety free conditions.

"With doctors and sorcerers brew snake stews and make a list of incantations, but the black men have discovered the efficiency of the white man's drug. Epsom salts are cheap and they are obtainable."

Paris Thinks of Spring

Lastic suit features metal pull tether, but does it very nearly for spring in the form of circular cuffs on the abbreviated straight jacket of a pastel crepe evening ensemble.

Winter Colony on Catalina Island

This unusual close-up of the "winter colony" on the rocky shores of Catalina Island near Avalon bay, shows Admiral Beal and his sisters and his wife in the center of their flock of pets. In spite of their fur coats the white family likes the late William Wrigley's warm island playground as a winter rendezvous.

THEY DON'T CHANGE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I must not to think so. Going to college or getting married or taking up a business of some sort, I think, would work wonders in the development or the metamorphose of a man's character. I see men who, at three things seems very much of freedom.

I haven't seen Magaley for more than thirty-five years and he wasn't more than a few weeks ago. He was the original, chestnut man in my class, cheerful, funny, ready for a lark and ready to larrup at a good joke even if it were on himself. He did his work easily and well; he had a keen delight into human nature and a remarkable judgment in certain matters. He was clean-minded and manful. When he decided to enter the legal profession we all thought he had chosen wisely and then having finished his studies decided to go for the presidency of the United States instead. I hadn't cast him in that role, but the qualities he had seemed to me were better fitted for a statesman's position than for a lawyer's.

He had not been in my office ten minutes until I saw that, power that he is, he has not changed according to newspapers. On five questions which we have recently when we were boys together. He still has the longer side, look upon the main issues of the hour, which is an characteristic of a big brain.

He even wanders a cigarette into a first sacrilege. That's all you need to divine away the emotions and memories of a lifetime. Magaley had the courage of years and neither cost him any vital strength. He has kept his boyish, and manly enthusiasm, his kindness, his ability to laugh at himself and his own foibles.

And I don't envy him a bit.

Let some average person, today, and tomorrow, and the next day, and the next until you've got to give your opinion on this wonderful boy. You'll find a blase spoiler of humorousness or cynicism. A scientific cynic who would think it better that mankind worry about the sanitation of the Dog Star, so fair of mankind can sleep on even more quietly. He cannot see a person possessing the certain, All struggling away, the preparation for

Hollyhock Native of Syria

The hollyhock, which throws such a fine show in the garden when at the height of its bloom, not which is considerable of a spot, the case of the year, is a native of Syria. A member of the mallow family, it has through developments been changed to a double flowering and highly beautiful flower stalk in bloom.

Girl at the Top in Health Tests

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in this vicinity, are now using concentrated vegetable juice and laxative known as California fig syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They like its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compare with it as a gentle but certain corrector, and it does further than that. It gives them real strength to the stomach and bowels so those organs continue to act regularly, of their own accord, in exactly the opposite to harsh physics.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Lizzie Alderice Meeker of Topeka, says: "Besides it is astonishing the pattern of health it gives children. Their cheeks are rosier, their eyes brighter, their appetite better. Little Lady and the Master is at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since baby hood to keep our bowels active. Before we used it we had a time with constipation and she has always had an easy time with them. She responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the bottle so you'll always get the genuine.

America's Oldest "Daily"

The first daily newspaper published in the United States was the Pennsylvania Packet and General Advertiser, published at Philadelphia, September, 1784.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as he urges.

At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't had for years?

There's a simple little thing you can do to keep the vital forces stimulated, and that is all the time. Doctor don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will tide your system to vim-vigor-vitality is Nature's own tonic. It will make a most amazing difference in your energy.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active roots, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the sluggishness and tiredness of a lowered vitality. Get the famous Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from your druggist today. It will make a most amazing difference in your energy.

Now you can breathe freely all day and sleep comfortably with nostrils clear all night, no hawking, no clucking, no struggling for breath. Just put a little ELY'S CREAM BALM up each nostril and you get instant relief that lasts for 10 hours. Head colds and catarrhal troubles vanish. This fragrant antiseptic ointment is penetrating, it clears one every germ in the head and soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane. IT'S WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

Ely's Cream Balm

"I now your boy is five years old and married. Do you like him?"

"Probably as much as he does me."

Sweater Sets Seen in All Types and Shades

Sweaters of all types and shades are especially in style this year, including the scarf and glance. Lifesaving and black, navy-blue with red and yellow color striking combinations, in sets, with the black or navy-blue skirt ing combines which still undoubtedly remain the favorites in spite of big attempts to popularize the brighter yellows, greens and reds worn. In the way, are not as pretty in the main. Very smart for wearing or sailing in a sage-colored yellow accents in headbands or contrasting effect.

In Wool

One of the most wearable of the new frocks is cut on the famous Vionnet lines, and molds the figure most discreetly. This dress is in light weight wool and is untrimmed.

How to breathe freely all night

Use this cream—keeps nostrils open—Catarrh goes away

Now you can breathe freely all day and sleep comfortably with nostrils clear all night, no hawking, no clucking, no struggling for breath. Just put a little ELY'S CREAM BALM up each nostril and you get instant relief that lasts for 10 hours. Head colds and catarrhal troubles vanish. This fragrant antiseptic ointment is penetrating, it clears one every germ in the head and soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane. IT'S WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

It Is Time to Prepare for Strawberry Season

Mammoth Jackson Fruit Within While Water Lasts

If YOU have PIMPLES or SKIN BLEMISHES

Cut Out This Ad and Mail to

CENTURY NATIONAL CHEMICAL CO. Ward & Crest Sts., Paterson, N. J.

For a FREE Cake of GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP

33rd Sulphur

Agreement Basis

Frank—Do you and your wife always agree?

Wigglesby—Up and till thought yes.

Can you

RESIST COLDS?

A virus in the head is a nuisance, and it unobtrusive most for even two. Doctors have found that a good store of Vitamin A helps you fight germs in the nasal cells. This vitamin is found in abundance in Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil — a pleasant, delicious, palatable way of taking this valuable vitamin. And as well as the preventive — and most extraordinary help in rapid recuperation, and what it's easy to take. Scott & Bowne, Inc., Bloomfield, N. J. Sales Representative, Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc., New York.

Listen to the Scott & Bowne radio program. * Advertising with Quality * Broadcasting from Coast to Coast NBC network

Scott's Emulsion

OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

The largest room in the world is the room for improvement.

Shame is the dying embers of virtue.—H. W. Shaw

Necessity is the only successful advocate.—Charles Buxton

The more cheese a mouse has in the house to eat the more it wants.

Tired, Nervous and Depressed?

Health Suffers When Kidneys Do Not Act Right.

NEED prompting a nagging backache, with blackhead irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder conditions.

Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your dealer has Doan's.

Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Services—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00
Junior Church, 6:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00

Services—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 6:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 7:30 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening (after prayer).

During the Sunday School hour the Vogt will conduct a Junior choir under the direction of the W. C. T. U.

Monday evening at 7:00 the third lesson in Bible prophecy will be conducted at the church.

Tuesday evening at 7 p. m. the W. C. T. U. will hold their monthly meeting with Mrs. Jennie Edwards.

The Ladies Aid will meet Wednesday with Mrs. James O'Brien.

Prayer and testimony meeting at 7:30 Thursday evening with choir practice following.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject March 6—"Mind."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, February 28.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (John 14:6): "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 216): "The real man, living Jesus, known to God as Maker, mortals need only turn from sin and loss sight of mortal selfhood to find Christ, the real man and his relation to God, and to recognize the divine sonship."

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's Meeting, 6:30
Preaching Service, 7:00 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

Morning Theme—"The Fellow You Can't Kill, or The Most Efficient Man In Charlevoix."

March 13—"What is Jesus? God-like Man or Manlike God? or Riding the Waves Without Ships. Note Order.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. Milton Block. Pot Luck refreshments.

The regular meeting of Official Board is next week Monday, March 7, in the church.

The Sunday School offering last Sunday was the largest since May 29, 1927, according to the secretary.

The High School Department numbered forty-eight.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of reversible sewed and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Coker, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 28, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 1tf

HIGH TEMPERATURES DO NOT ASSURE COMFORT

CONDITIONED AIR KEY TO COMFORT

Modern Warm Air System Recreates Balmy Days of June in December.

AMERICAN homes are eternally half-frozen during the winter heating season. An ambient proclamation characterized them as being human dry-kilns, due to the fact that during winter the indoors of most homes is ascertained by temperatures both in the 70's, often higher than 80 degrees F., width is too warm from the standpoint of both comfort and health.

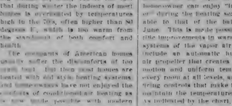
The occupants of American homes quickly suffer the discomforts of too much heat, but then most homes are heated with stoves or heating systems, and homeowners have not enjoyed the comforts of conditioned heating as now made available through modern warm air heating plants of the vapor air type.

High temperatures are not necessary for comfort. Just the reverse, they are detrimental to comfort and to health. High temperatures as generally used by old style systems increase the dryness of the air. In addition to the lack of a reasonable amount of moisture (relative humidity), the air is still enough for the slight movement of heated air as it flows to ceiling rooms and slowly drifts through walls and roof. The result is overheated stagnant dry air which saps vitality among householders and general discomfort, and often serious illness due to respiratory infections.

Homeowners will enjoy greater comfort in moderate temperatures of 68 to 72 degrees, provided the air is kept properly moistened, and in motion. In fact, with modern warm air systems of the vapor air type, every homeowner can enjoy "indoor weather" during the heating season compared to that of the balmy days of June. This is made possible by scientific improvements in warm air heating systems of the vapor air type which include an automatic humidifier, an air propeller that creates desirable air motion and uniform temperatures in every room at all levels, and automatic controls that make it possible to maintain the temperatures as desired as outlined by the thrift. A room temperature of 70 degrees accompanied by a relative humidity of 45 per cent constitutes effective protection against respiratory diseases and produces a genuine indoor comfort heretofore unknown in American homes.

DO YOU KEEP SUFFICIENT WATER IN "YOUR AQUARIUM"?

ALL ANIMALS, EVEN FISH, REQUIRE A PROPER MIXTURE OF AIR AND WATER IN WHICH TO LIVE



Fish cannot live in water that does not contain its proper air supply

Man cannot live in air that does not contain the proper water supply

HOME AIR IS UNHEALTHFUL IN WINTER WHEN IT DOES NOT CONTAIN SUFFICIENT MOISTURE

Courtesy American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers

MAN LIVES IN AIR AS FISH IN WATER

Holland Institute of Thermology Traces Respiratory Diseases to Dry, Dusty Stagnant Air in Homes.

Fish cannot live in water that does not contain air. Neither can man live in air that is entirely free from water. In fact, all normal life requires for existence a proper mixture of both air and water. Says the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Mich., whose research engineers have made many recent startling changes in the composition of life environments are necessary.

The most desirable mixture of these elements for man to live in is just one air and one per cent water. When the percentage of water is less than 1 per cent, fish are likely to suffocate.

In the home, every pound of air heated to a temperature of 70 degrees should contain thirty grains of water to be most comfortable and healthful. This equals a proportion of 90.4 per cent air and 1.6 per cent water. Yet in many homes during the winter season the amount of air moisture drops to one-third and even less of this amount. Such air is the result of old style methods of heating which provide no means for inducting water vapor into the air to maintain a healthful and comfortable humidity. Common colds, influenza, and other respiratory infections are generally the result of insufficient moisture in home air.

The cold air of winter has only a fraction of the capacity of summer air for moisture. The great outdoors is the only source of our indoor air supply, and when winter air is heated to temperatures of 70 degrees of comfort, its moisture capacity is correspondingly increased. Hence, there is a shortage of water vapor in the air. The most satisfactory means of overcoming this moisture deficiency is by means of heating systems of the vapor air type. These are equipped with humidifiers which evaporate and automatically inject into the home air the water vapor from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily, as required. In modest homes of 5 or 6 rooms, from 6 to 8 gallons of water should be evaporated daily to maintain healthful humidity, the home air-conditioning plant supplies it safely to create and produce healthful temperatures. Moderate temperatures of 68 to 72 degrees will be found to be far more comfortable than the high temperatures and super-dry air that characterize homes heated with old style heating systems.

CITY PRIMARY ELECTION

To the qualified electors of the City of Charlevoix, State of Michigan

Notice is hereby given, that a City Primary Election will be held on

MONDAY, MARCH 7, A. D. 1932

In the several Wards of said City at the places indicated below, viz.:

First Ward—Central Polling Place.
Second Ward—Central Polling Place.
Third Ward—Central Polling Place.

For the purpose of nominating by direct vote candidates for the following offices, viz.:

CITY—1 Mayor; 1 City Clerk; 1 City Treasurer; 1 Park Commissioner.

WARD—1 Supervisor; 1 Alderman; 1 Constable for each of the Wards of the City.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 8:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk

Dated Feb. 13, A. D. 1932. 4343

REV. BOODAGH'S ADDRESS ENJOYED BY MEN'S CLUB

The address before the Men's Community Club last Monday evening by the Rev. Boodagh of Boyne City, was so much enjoyed by all present, that the committee has asked the same speaker to appear on "Ladies' Night" which will probably be held Monday evening March 14.

MRS. H. K. Allen is a guest at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Oakley J. Hammond.

Mrs. Allen a former Charlevoix resident has been living more recently at Benton Harbor, from which place she came to Charlevoix last week.

Four automobiles have been more or less damaged within the past week at the intersection of Park Avenue with Bridge Street, due to colliding when drivers were making a U turn and were caught by another machine going north or south on Bridge St. The damage was confined to the cars as Qivers and occupants of the several machines escaped injury.

(Political Advertisement)

VOTE

Monday, March 7

AND ELECT

William P. Hicken

SUPERVISOR FROM THE SECOND WARD

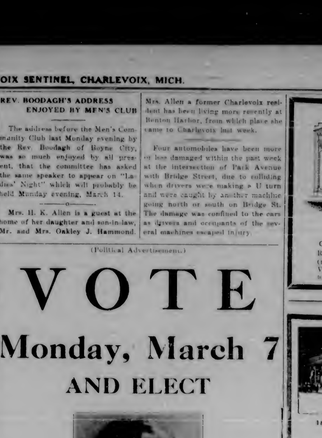
MEN NEED WORK

I AM OF THE OPINION THAT CERTAIN COUNTY WORK COULD BE DONE AT THIS TIME TO HELP RELIEVE THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION.

IF ELECTED SUPERVISOR I WILL WORK FOR THE BEST INTEREST OF THE WORKING MAN AS WELL AS THE TAXPAYER.

I WILL APPRECIATE YOUR VOTE.

WILLIAM P. HICKEN



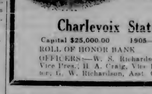
A Bacheller story of the "North Country" based on a trial famous in the legal annals of New York state. A typically human American story. The woodsy setting, the quaint customs and the highly humorous sayings of the countryside, the unconscious nobility of its steadfast people, all blend to make the distinctive flavor of a true Bacheller story.

It will appear serially in these columns

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; L. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.



Waiting for an "opportunity" to bob up with a grin and say Savings Account with this institution.

Why not come in and open one today?

1854 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. Sea John J. Hoen
Zerwin J. Hiller Joseph M. Porter Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Beat sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 6
WILL ROGERS
in
"AMBASSADOR BILL"
with
Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill, Ted Alexander.

It's a laugh knockout! Fifty thousand Sylvanians laid down their guns in hysterics — Diplomats were dizzy — Senators roared with rage at his homespun humor and diplomatic etiquette—A queen got back her king, and a prince returned to play.

Screen Souvenir and Talkartoon.

COMING—"THE HATCHET MAN."

NOTE—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

"THANK YOU, MR. JONES, I'LL REPORT FOR WORK MONDAY MORNING"

IN many instances, the fact that an applicant for work has a telephone is the deciding factor in obtaining a job. Other things being equal, an employer is quite likely to hire the applicant whom he can reach most easily and quickly. The telephone in your home is an important business and social asset. And, in case of fire, sickness, accident or other emergencies, your telephone is Priceless Protection.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1932 Number 46

CIRCUIT COURT TO CONVENE MAR. 21

CALENDAR NOT CROWDED FOR CURRENT SESSION

The March term of Circuit Court for the Thirteenth judicial circuit, County of Charlevoix, will convene Monday, March 21.

Following the list of jurors for this session of court.

Raymond Boyden, Boyne City, 1st ward.

Edward Henry, Boyne City, 2nd ward.

James Smith, Boyne City, 3rd ward.

O. H. Burlew, Boyne City, 4th ward.

Morris Ackert, Charlevoix, 3rd ward.
Joe Carroll, Charlevoix, 2nd ward.
P. Bollett Boss, Charlevoix, 1st ward.
Charles Shepard, Wilson Twp.
Louis Zoulek, South Arm Twp.
Frank Gillespie, St. James Twp.
Clyde Warner, Norwood Twp.
Reinhard Kachlerski, Melrose Twp.
L. E. McGlynn, Marion Twp.
Walter Stanhope, Hudson Twp.
Platt Webster, Hayes Twp.
N. B. McDonald, Eveline Twp.
Alvah Nulph, Evangeline Twp.
George Arnold, Charlevoix Twp.
R. S. Hugos, Chandler Twp.
John Baker, Boyne Valley Twp.
Robert Weir, Bay Twp.
Isaac Bowen, East Jordan, 3rd ward.
James Myers, East Jordan, 2nd ward.
Archie Quick, East Jordan, 1st ward.

Probation Cases—

The following probation cases are to come up for report and sentence:
Kenneth Christiansen, Breaking and entering.
Peter Block, Violation of Prohibition Law.
Francis Theodore, Breaking and entering.
Margaret Bellant, Accessory to Rape.
Hugh Kemp, Perjury.
Following is a complete list of the cases on the court calendar.

Criminal Cases—

The People vs Perry King, non support and desertion.

The People vs Peter Germaine, felonious assault.

The People vs Anna McLafferty, forgery.

The People vs Lennie Simmons, violation of prohibition law.

The People vs Charles Lake, violation of prohibition law.

The People vs Joe Konopnicki.

Issues of Fact and Law—

Duluth South Shore and Atlantic Railway Co., plaintiff, vs W. H. White Co., defendant, Trespass.

Gaylord State Savings Bank, a corporation vs J. H. Gallagher and F. J. McDonald, defendants, First National Bank of Gladstone and First National Bank of Boyne City, Garnishee defendants, Garnishment.

Charles Sweet, Assignee of Logan and Bryan, a partnership, plaintiff, vs. Alexander Heller, defendant, trespass.

Holcomb and Hoke, Mfg. Co., a corporation vs. Wolverine Steamship Co. and J. H. Gallagher, defendants, assumpsit.

H. S. Bastian Properties Co., a Florida corporation, plaintiff, vs. Katherine Fitch and Pauline Kolar, assumpsit.

First National Bank of Boyne City by F. C. Sattler its receiver, plaintiff, vs. Frank Kaden, defendant, trespass.

First National Bank of Boyne City, by F. C. Sattler its receiver, plaintiff, vs. J. N. Hale and A. M. Chipman, defendants, assumpsit.

William J. Pearson as administrator of the estate of James Mosely, deceased, vs George McAfee, priv. def.; Guy C. Conkle, garnishee defendant, Garnishment after judgment.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank, plaintiff, vs. Margret H. Zirbis and W. L. McManus Jr. defendants; John Liegel, doing business as Petoskey Auto Sales, Garnishee defendant, garnishment.

Bessie Harmon, plaintiff vs Peter Germaine, et al, defendant, appeal from Justice Court.

James Zitka, plaintiff vs Mark Saunders and Oakley Saunders, defendants, appeal from Justice court.

Chancery Cases—

Auditor General, state of Michigan, plaintiff, vs delinquent taxpayers of 1929 and previous years, petitions.

Mark Carney, John Carney, and Myrtle Danforth, heirs of John H. and Anna Carney, plaintiff, vs Michigan Central Railroad Co., and W. Asa Loveday, defendant, Quiet title.

Thomas White, plaintiff, vs Thomas Lake, defendant, Divorce.

Boyne City, Gaylord and Alpena Railroad Co., a railroad corporation, defendants, Petition for receivership.

Chancery Cases—Divorce—

Jane Norray Nier, plaintiff, vs Thomas William Nier, Divorce.

Anna Send, plaintiff, vs Lawrence Send, defendant, Divorce.

Elmer LaDuke, plaintiff vs Helen LaDuke, defendant, Desertion.

Sarah Wyers Prier, plaintiff, vs John (Jack) Prier, defendant, Divorce.

Agnes Lorenz Nier, plaintiff, vs Joseph Nier, defendant, Divorce.

Capitola Lucia, plaintiff, vs John Lucia, defendant, Divorce.

County News

MARION CENTER

Mr. Sam Straw and Charles Stevens finished their job of ice cutting at Central Lake, last Friday.

Mrs. Gus Celmer and Mrs. Hunt called on Mrs. Blackwood last week Thursday.

Mrs. Scrase and aunt, Mrs. Miller of Petoskey, visited Mrs. Will Straw, Thursday.

Several Marion Center farmers, among whom are Mr. Chas Wilbers, the Eckland Brothers, Mr. Will Straw and Mr. Geo. Meggison, met at the court house Thursday for the closing of their farm account books for 1931.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eckland and Mr. and Mrs. Fabian Eckland entertained Mr. and Mrs. Vern McGhan and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison at dinner last Friday, it being a birthday of one of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Black spent Sunday with C. B. Meggison and family in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern McGhan and son Clare visited Mr. McGhan's brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. Harlin McGhan of Charlevoix, Sunday.

Mr. Scrase is building an addition to his house on what used to be the Blackwood place.

Mrs. Joe Stover, Mrs. Frank Sullivan, and Mrs. Will Straw visited at Mrs. Blackwoods' Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. James Cook spent a few days last week in Charlevoix with her son Albert and wife.

ROBINSON PORTRAYS CHINAMAN IS NEWEST TALKING PICTURE

Edward G. Robinson, one of the screen's greatest character actors, soon variously as gangster, gambler and editor adds another characterization to his long list of "parts" as Wong Low Gat, Chinese tong member, in "The Hatchet Man," a First National and Vitaphone production which will open at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

In "The Hatchet Man", adapted by J. Grubb Alexander from the play "The Honorable Mr. Wong" by the late David Belasco and Achmed Abdullah, Robinson portrays a feared member of a tong, whose vowed duty is to carry out the edicts of the secret society by way of the hatchet, even when it is his boyhood friend on the block. Some of the best of New York critics have stated that Robinson's fulfillment of this oath of death to tong enemies furnishes a high spot in film drama, as well as a moment of "horror" unusual in film annals.

The story is essentially dramatic and is played against an authentic oriental background, the scenes being set in San Francisco Chinatown of today and fifteen years ago, and in China. It reveals the similarities between the emotions and instincts of Orientals and Occidental, telling a love story which holds interest to the very end, via the dramatically alive characterizations by Robinson and the supporting cast.

Loretta Young, as Toya San, ward and wife of "The Hatchet Man," becomes a beautiful Chinese girl for the picture and adds more laurels to those already accumulated in "Taxi", in which she was featured with James Cagney. Others in the large cast are Leslie Fenton, who plays the part of the Eurasian Harry En Hai with all requisite charm and ease, Dudley Digges, Edmund Breese, Tully Marshall, Noel Madison, J. Carrol Naish, Dan Mc'l. Otto Yamaoka, Willie Fung and Gladys Lloyd. Robinson's wife, who has appeared with him in all his pictures and is herself an established "stage name."

The direction of "The Hatchet Man" by William A. Wellman, famous megaphoner of "Wings", "Public Enemy", "Night Nurse" and "The Star Witness," represents the best work of this practical artist of the movies. All the leading players he discovered are actors and actresses portraying Chinese men and women, the most notable example of unusual make-up being that which turns Loretta Young into a Chinese "lotus-flower." Her portrayal of the part of Toya San has earned for her the title of "the girl Lon Chaney."

Mrs Moon, manager of the Palace theatre is confident that "The Hatchet Man" will receive a high place in the selections for the "best pictures of the year" and is certain that this city's audiences will enjoy what is characterized as "bigger and better type of picture."

LEGION HOLDS SOCIAL MEET

GOOD CROWD TURNS OUT TO ENJOY ENTERTAINMENT

Tuesday evening was social night for the members of Leslie T. Shapton Post.

Reading of minutes and other routine business was dispensed with, either entirely or abbreviated, and the Legionnaires settled down with pipe and cigarette to enjoy the entertainment afforded by D. K. Spayd and Leo Allard, well known local music makers, and Olaf Fraasa and Max Overvog, members of the crew of the Str. Fred W. Green. Mr. Spayd's performance on the violin and Mr. Allard's proficient handling of the castinets was matched by Messrs. Fraasa and Overvog, on the accordion, guitar and violin. A clog by Mr. Allard and Charley Hamlin's famous "cow step" rounded out the performance in nice shape. Then followed a sing square dance and a "feed" that put the finishing touches on the evening.

At the drawing which preceded the entertainment, Franklin Sears, clerk, sentee, won the "kitty," which was accordingly turned back into the treasury to accumulate until next meeting. The adjutant drew second prize—a pack of "Camels."

Next Friday evening, March 11th, members of the Auxiliary and Legion will hold a get-together-party at the Legion Home, lunching, followed by a light collation, is on the program.

Members of the Legion are urged to remember that next Tuesday evening, March 15th, is the date of the fifth tri-post meeting at Boyne City.

EFFORTS TO LEASE INN BEING MADE

NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY AT THIS TIME.

We learn from an authentic source that a man high in the hotel world with a complete knowledge of the needs and desires of summer visitors in this region, as well as having had years of experience in the management of large hotels at which he has been very successful is negotiating with the owners for a term lease on the Inn.

Whether or not an arrangement of this nature will be entered into at this time, is uncertain. Be this as it may, negotiations are under way and if satisfactory conclusions are reached, which we think is probable, we can report more fully on the proposition.

Edward S. Dunn of Petoskey, will speak at the Episcopal Church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock on present conditions throughout the country in relation to the Eighteenth Amendment. The public is cordially invited to attend.

School News

"Quality Street"

A part of the basement of the Senior High has been converted into a work shop for the production staff of "Quality Street." Hammering and whistling may be heard there before and after school as scenery takes shape. The workers are sure you will like their blue and white room.

The cast is busy too. Nearly any morning at 8 o'clock you can hear Ethel Powers reprimanding Lila Mae Millan for talking about "V. B." Can you imagine Ethel as a quiet, dignified girl who blushes at the mention of an admirer?

And John Winder is acquiring great skill in the gentle art of "declaiming." Neither will you want to miss Staci Carter and Lloyd Arnold quarreling over the mysterious "Miss Livy."

Don't forget the date, March 17th; the place, the Palace Theater, the time, 8:15. The admission charge is only 35 cents for adults, 25c for students and 10 cents for children under Junior High.

Basketball

The excitement caused by the basketball tournament held at the gym last week has practically died away and the students are once more trying to engage themselves seriously in their studies.

The regional tournament will be held at Petoskey, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Individuals as runner-up will go to this tournament to compete for high honors. Our boys have already distinguished themselves in class C and we surely will be behind them cheering for them this week at Petoskey.

The tournament was financially successful. There was only about three-fourths of the attendance of Boyne City last year. However, due to the fine weather, the cost of the visiting teams was also reduced.

The management was much surprised to find that Frye's season ticket is used. It was not known before that any of that type of person lived in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

The Harbor Band attended the game with Charlevoix Thursday night and rendered the music for that evening. Friday night the Charlevoix band furnished the music. Saturday night both the Boyne City and Charlevoix bands were in attendance. The red and white boys played from the middle of the basketball floor movement to the final game. Charlevoix was certainly proud of them. They also played Thursday and Friday afternoon.

Senior High

The Senior High is daily growing smaller. One row of seats has been taken out in front and still there are a few vacant seats. During the last month several of our students have moved away from Charlevoix. This week Staci Carter and Lloyd Arnold are quarreling over the mysterious "Miss Livy."

Don't forget the date, March 17th; the place, the Palace Theater, the time, 8:15. The admission charge is only 35 cents for adults, 25c for students and 10 cents for children under Junior High.

Basketball

The excitement caused by the basketball tournament held at the gym last week has practically died away and the students are once more trying to engage themselves seriously in their studies.

The regional tournament will be held at Petoskey, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Individuals as runner-up will go to this tournament to compete for high honors. Our boys have already distinguished themselves in class C and we surely will be behind them cheering for them this week at Petoskey.

The tournament was financially successful. There was only about three-fourths of the attendance of Boyne City last year. However, due to the fine weather, the cost of the visiting teams was also reduced.

The management was much surprised to find that Frye's season ticket is used. It was not known before that any of that type of person lived in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

The Harbor Band attended the game with Charlevoix Thursday night and rendered the music for that evening. Friday night the Charlevoix band furnished the music. Saturday night both the Boyne City and Charlevoix bands were in attendance. The red and white boys played from the middle of the basketball floor movement to the final game. Charlevoix was certainly proud of them. They also played Thursday and Friday afternoon.

Senior High

The Senior High is daily growing smaller. One row of seats has been taken out in front and still there are a few vacant seats. During the last month several of our students have moved away from Charlevoix. This week Albert and Mary Schwab return to Petoskey.

Civics Class

Miss Fernwald's civics class went over to see the voting Monday morning. Mr. Shanahan, the chairman, showed and explained to them the process of voting. Mr. Shanahan said you have to be twentyone to vote. Did Miss Fernwald vote?

Junior High

Monday only the girls went to notice class for purpose of practicing sections of the Cantata. Wednesday only the boys went for the same purpose.

During the music class period Friday Miss Atkinson awarded us for our "faithful" attendance while practicing for this wonderful and beautiful cantata, which is to be given March 17th. She took us for a walk over to the shores of Lake Michigan and through the Park where we somewhat surprisingly saw that practically all signs of winter had vanished. The weather was easily called Spring weather and we all enjoyed every step of the walk.

Upon our return we sang many cheerful songs which fitted our moods and the weather perfectly.

The cantata which was to be given March 10th, has been postponed until March 23rd on account of the tournament held at Petoskey this week end.

Eighth Home Economics

The eighth grade Home Economics class is now engaged in the problem of cooking meats which they are enjoying immensely.

The first grade is preparing for next assembly program—"Land of Dutch" in about three weeks.

The Kindergarten children have constructed a lovely house, very artistically made from graham crackers for shingles; other parts of the house consisting of cut meat, prunes, raisins, orange peelings. It is very interesting to see. They are now making the furniture.

The Halloween band, from the 5th and 6th grades gave several numbers at the P. T. A. meeting this week.

LARGE VOTE POLLED IN PRIMARY ELECTION

CHANGE OF DATE FOR AID SOCIETY EASTER SUPPER

The Methodist Aid Society have changes the date for their Easter supper. When first announced the date was given as Thursday, March 17th. This has been changed to Wednesday, March 16th.

WINS SILVER MEDAL

Wilma Kelley was awarded the silver medal in the declamatory contest held at the Baptist church last Sunday and Bernice Edwards took second place. The medal was donated by the W. C. T. U.

Dan W. Soule and Ira A. Adams motored to Bellaire, Friday afternoon, where they spent the evening as guests of Bellaire Lodge No. 329, F. & A. M.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harrington a son, Wednesday, March 2.

AUXILIARY HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

MEMBER TALENT PLAY ENJOYED BY THOSE PRESENT

The Auxiliary of the American Legion held their monthly meeting Monday evening at the Legion home. A good attendance was present considering the weather.

The welfare work seems to have picked up the last two or three weeks and the Auxiliary is doing their bit to relieve the needy. Several pairs of shoes being furnished and suits and dresses made for different ones.

After the business session was over the members were permitted to enjoy a play given by member talent. The play was about a young man who was looking for a wife. The young man was impersonated by Elizabeth Canton. The first to answer the advertisement was a young society girl (Opal Allard) but the wash tub and mop stick were not to her liking. Then the merry girl (Nadie Meggison) rapped on the door but with her merry dancing and humming she kept the young man busy.

The giggle girl (Sarah Sternberg) came in next but one did not suit either and she soon could giggle.

Last of all the right one came along (Eva McGhan) but the spectators could see what she looked like as she wore a veil. She went to work with vim and vigor and soon the young man was won. Then the young man bowed beside her and put his arm around her to tell his sho was the one he had been looking for when in walked Edward O'Neill defeated for representative by eighty votes.

Following is a summary of the results of the election:

First Ward

Mayor—Arthur Bergeron 71. Edward E. Cross 109.

City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton 170.

City Treas.—Mary A. Rifle, 181.

Park Com.—John Zeitler, 178.

Supervisor—Harry A. Craig, 135. Alderman—Arthur Bergeron 148. Clair S. Webster, 64.

Constable—Joseph Howard, 124.

Second Ward

Mayor—Arthur Bergeron 248. Edward E. Cross, 171.

City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton, 378. City Treas.—Mary A. Rifle, 351.

Park Com.—John Zeitler, 378.

Supervisor—Frank Partridge, 414. William P. Hicken 187.

Alderman—Floyd J Fessenden 349 Sam O Sorenson, 154.

Constable—Hurt J. Brady, 181.

Third Ward

Mayor—Arthur Bergeron 238. Edward E. Cross 167.

City Clerk—Ray S. Hamilton 222. City Treas.—Mary A. Rifle, 208.

Park Com.—John Zeitler, 238.

Supervisor—William E. Parmelee 212. Archie Allard 163.

Alderman—Edward O'Neill 341. Harry P. Hosker 136.

Constable—Charles J. Jeffcries 223.

Mrs. Dorothy Hosker, student at Ypsilanti State Normal spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hosker, returning to her student work early this week.

The Mothers and Daughters Banquet will be served at the Congregational Church on Wednesday, March 30th. 4tnf

REAL WINTER WEATHER ARRIVES HERE AT LAST

Something like winter weather has prevailed in this region for the past few days. However we have seen weather much more severe as well as plenty more agreeable.

Tuesday was one Saturday night. A drop of several degrees in temperature, some snow and an increase in the velocity of the prevailing conditions. Sunday was not pleasant nor did the succeeding days up until last Saturday when we did show any perceptible improvement. The air was sharp and penetrating. So great was the change that we fell but the air was full of small flakes whirling from place to place unable evidently to find a permanent lodging.

Taken all in all it has been the most severe storm experienced in this region during the 1931-1932 winter season. Following as it does several weeks of splendid weather appears wholly out of place.

FOR SALE—Pipes in first class condition. Mrs. James Gaskin, Charlevoix Mich. Phone 162.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

HONAN-FU NEWEST CAPITAL OF CHINA

Was Seat of Government When Paper Was Invented.

Washington.—News dispatches that are beginning to reach the world with the date line "Honan-fu" are coming from a city that has been a famous capital of China and but wisps came served as the seat of Chinese government long before telegraphy was dreamed of or cooking as a means of heating from the National Geographic society.

"The city with three names is most conveniently known as Honan-fu, meaning 'Honan City,'" says the bulletin. "It has in the past been called Loyang, about twenty miles south of the Yellow river, and Tungking, names for such a site rather than location differently on the great river. Three separate dynasties have established a seat of government here, and from this point the Emperor's Avenue, an arcadian river that is famous changing the Yellow river was built with its 10 tributaries roads.

Trotsky Old City.

"Honan-fu has a population of only about 20,000. It is a typical old city of the interior with a wall enclosing a couple of square miles and dusty streets, a few fine buildings to provide homes in a congestion of miscellaneous, hollow hovels and vendors of food and textiles in the form of booths. The remote palace of Chinese functionaries, the famous Yellow River temples are on the site, it is said, was moved the white horses that are the symbol of Buddhism from India 19 hundred centuries ago.

"Honan-fu's supervision as a 'city

Texan Has Made Fortune Raising Frogs and Fish

Houston, Texas.—Frog raising, for which a culinary connoisseur's palate, has a lucrative existing buildings and ponds in Texas.

He has been in businesses for seven years and except for one season, the average of any buildings, has profited and expanded steadily. A two-year old bullfrog weighs five to seven pounds and sells for a dollar.

The demand of more than two acres and includes 11 different commercial ponds. He claims there how many frogs there are and estimates a number of goodfish in the various ponds at 150,000,000.

Cattle raisers stocks as a sideline and his stock numbers five varieties.

THE PRACTICAL JOKER

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Some foreign confusion, as tightly outlined as our own perhaps, since hallowed as our own perhaps, since hallowed is the unlimited custom of masquerading as of the country citizens whose precedence was established by age and in accordance with those principles which seemed to tend to the development of the best sort of society. Thieves and murderers paid small penalties and those whose moral precepts were subnormalities were tried into the proper sort of intervention of guilty deposited upon whose heads stones from which escape him citizen or opponents. Thus isolated enemy of them grew as time went on home with prejudiced acuteness and built virtue into temples filled with sacrifices.

I am not at all sure but that it was an admirable way to get rid of objectionable characters for many logical punishments would seem too severe or too unusual. I should at least recommend it for the man who persists in the habit cigar gum at your hand and for the perennial joker. I have my own reason why the practical joker should not be allowed.

He has an sense of humor for humor is only a kind, sensationally personal appetite. A humorous man has no conscience, of giving anyone pain or discomfort. He seems to delight in it. He is the cat to the mouse, the schoolboy at the victim of his joke not with him.

A freshman last Christmas, a thousand miles from home and too poor to make the journey, across country was desperately homesick. All his classmates were gone. His boarding house was closed, and he was quite alone. Way, from home at Christmas for the first time in his life. A call came over the telephone and a voice with spoke inviting the boy to dinner at the home of one of his professors. His gloom vanished, some one had thought of him. When he called at the professor's house no one was there. It was a practical joke which some keen minded acquaintance had played upon him and he had no resource.

Dinner, wasn't it?

It is not humorous when a practical joker disturbs the ordinary course of events. Deaths are attributable indirectly to improper and foolish "dieting." Situations simply to produce a nice figure lowers the subject's resistance and leaves her a prey to disease.

"Official reports for the year just closed show happily that the general health of the nation is improving. The tuberculosis curve, thanks largely to the vigorous fight conducted against the white plague, is dropping. And

Spring Fashion Tip

Printed and plain linen in an effective snapshot from Birke and Birke. The hat from Howard Hodges.

Cleveland's Novel Relief Plan

Employment of a "chain-block" is the goal of Cleveland in an effort to help. Cleveland's initiative was inaugurated by a group of Cleveland citizens and reports reveal that efforts of the first week in the campaign resulted in the placing of 11,500 jobs of work in scattered neighborhoods. In the illustration G. E. Lansing, secretary of the movement, is seen asking applications for jobs.

IMPROPER DIETING MENACE TO HEALTH

Leaves Victim Prey to Disease, Says Surgeon General.

Washington.—"There is one wholesale practice which is undermining health throughout the country, particularly among women, which, unfortunately, the public health service cannot secure statistics," said Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general, United States public health service. "It is what is commonly known as 'dieting.'

"It is not done on the advice of physicians but almost invariably on the initiative of the individual who practices it. Neither is it done for health, but for looks.

"It cannot be recorded that people die directly from dieting but thousands of deaths are attributable indirectly to improper and foolish 'dieting.' Situations simply to produce a slim figure lowers the subject's resistance and leaves her a prey to disease.

"Official reports for the year just closed show happily that the general health of the nation is improving. The tuberculosis curve, thanks largely to the vigorous fight conducted against the white plague, is dropping. And

California Mayor Holds Job for Three Minutes

Pasadena, Calif.—Some kind of a record has been established in Pasadena by Mayor Frank L. Shaw, business man here who was mayor of Pasadena recently for exactly three hours and fifteen minutes, seconds. After a recall of public officials, Shaw was elected mayor and chairman by a new board of city officials. He assumed the chairmanship and presided over the board meeting at which his term of office ended and the motion picture unanimously—and Nay voted his approval.

Suggests Women Pensioners

Scattered, Ind.—Miss Ida M. Kenyon told the conference of the National Union of Women Teachers here that women should be enough private pensions, and suggested this to be rather there should be the same old age pension for the spy with tie, bib and bib.

Likes Peerhouse

Tiffin, Ohio.—The peerhouse is a real "home" for Bennett F. Smith, fifty years old, who has been there $27,000 in the bank. He pays rent like any boarder, rather than living in himself. He has been an inmate twelve years.

Refused Gold Braid Bill

Hingham, Mass.—Herbert Master Bill Mather, in charge of the gold braid with gold braid apparently remained in full control of 86. When the salesman had a bill for the trimmings, town officials refused to pay it.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

CASEY JONES

"Come, all you rounders, if you want to hear
The story told about a brave engineer;
Casey Jones was the hogger's name,
On a straight wheeler he won his fame."

AS CASEY JONES, whose heroic death in a fatal-end collision near Vaughan, Miss., in 1900 has been celebrated in a long ballad haunting some score of eight-fifties and variously upgraded versions, John Luther Jones, hailing from Cayce (pronounced Casey), Tenn., was given a unique send in immortality. He is a popular hero of the day when railroading knew a pioneer hair in the modern transcontinental system, a giant of a man, smartly black, handsome, amiable as a gentleman and a fashionist and medalwas either.

In 1863 Jones was engineer on the old Illinois Central "Yellowdog" running south from Jackson, Miss., into Big Lou Lou, one of Dixie's best cities, was too ill to answer the call from the roundhouse to take out his train, and Casey, just in from a long run, offered to "double out" for him. The train was pulling out of Memphis as fast as a passenger train. What went wrong on the line, Casey's fireman was sudden and complete and Casey, though he set all the life of his train, was himself killed. A negro wiper named Wallace Saunders penned out his grief for a fallen hero in the original version of the song. A professional singer, Wallace Saunders, shook-boss-in Jackson, picked it up in the railroad yards, polished it off and sold it for the world in its present form.

CALIFORNIA JOE

HERO of more than one dime novel and thriller, entertainers there once was a California Joe. Some say his name was George A. Custer, for whom he once was an aide-de-camp, others say it was Hickok. In "My Life on the Plains or Personal Experiences with Indians," Custer tells of California Joe; on the other hand, no other writer ever mentioned Hickok. But Custer was wrong, for Joe's civil—and real—name was Moses E. Milner.

He was born in Kentucky in 1825, ran away from home at the age of fourteen to seek adventure in the West and soon became a trapper. Later years found plenty of it as a prospector and miner in Colorado, Montana and in the Black Hills of South Dakota, as an Indian fighter and as a scout and guide in the army, where he served in the Ute wars in the sixties and seventies.

Milner died in Oakland, Calif., in 1904, and took the tenderest out of his trousers pocket as he spoke, with a faint look at them.

"The man laughed," saying: "No, we only want to get better acquainted with you. You must come to our camp with us. Perhaps we can help you."

That night he met with the fishermen to their camp at High Falls. There days later the party moved to Lost lake where they put up to the log cabin camp of the famous guide, Philo Scott, familiarly known as Phildo.

Now, one of these sportsmen was slim and a bit undersized. He gave the boy a respectable suit of clothes and shoes and stockings, a cap, a flannel shirt, with collar attached, and a necktie. All these filled fairly well and came out of the camp in which his benefactor was lodging a low tonsil being his face dimin. his hair trimmed and combed and brushed. Those days saw him were astonished.

Jihad was well put up, as they used to say in the north country, in spite of his baseness and lankness he was now good in look on. The shapely outlines of his head and face were plain

MORE "I Guess I Must Be Dead," He Wildpaved.

ing. The expression of his face was cheerful. He was like a schemer, fill had cult of a promising size and justified.

He lay back the glass eye from his pocket and held it to the light of the fire and looked at it.

"My uncle was an awful good man," said Jihad. "The only one that ever would help me to remember that time I was a wanderin' on me. . . . I wasn't much to see a thing when I was a kid, but I was a smart one. It can see a long ways ahead an' it can tell when good luck is a comin'."

Phildo Scott blew his whistle. Supper was ready. There was a big venison in with a platter of fried bacon and a big pan of potatoes steaming over the fire. Jihad, this at a box and leaned always on the shore of the river." said Phildo, "I was almost scared you was drowned."

The old guide shook the boy's head and asked:

"Was the Hat Merrymen a boy didn't run away?"

Jihad was freshened by this home good-humor. His nose changed color. He shook his head and answered:

"Him went from home, but he wanted to fish yet."

"His boy has sure stole some money an' run away," the guide went on. "It was over in Hawkeye Indiry an' he was only a little boy. He was a smart one, too. Hat Merrymen, you ever for nothing but that greedy, dirty, logfisher."

Hat Merrymen sat leaning forward on his elbows, looking at the fire. He took abbreviated bite, his brow deeply wrinkled with thought. For a time he gave not ready to spring. He knew that he was in deep trouble, but he was not sure how much. And ever talked to him like that. No one had ever done so.

He rose from his chair with a sort of jerk and left the fire. He turned to the old guide, saying:

"Give me a little to eat an' I'll go to bed."

"Not here," said Grandma. "Not on the floor. This is my room. I don't want you sat where near me. You pile of old junk your mother put in the box has done. There's a room at High Falls."

"That's fifteen mile from here an' it looks like rain!" the ruffian muttered.

"Shall I walk it was a mile an' that it would rain hard enough to wash some dirty smell off you. I'm sure the junks going to do some work."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Definite Price Put on Native Wife in Africa

When an Inhabitant native of Fertit, Upper East Africa, wants to buy a wife he goes to the village of Schimmidsiong to work in the gold mines for the price of a wife, Miss Tina Thorne, a D. C. Lone missionary recently returned from Africa, says. The price of a native wife is $75, which must be paid to her father.

The primitive aborigines nevertheless hate the house of the father." Miss Thorne reports, "and hate it with a bold hook. On the cattle old fires!" Miss Thorne reports, "and hate it with a bold hook. On the cattle old fires!" It's a wife, it was bought for the husband. Quite contrary to this advice, it was the father of a certain native who had an unusual talent with white House burned. But not many natives are so harrowing-minded. The father advances that the young man must obtain the consent of his daughter.

"If the daughter is obstinate it may require a good deal of arguing on the part of the groom to change her view. Seldom, however, does a prospective father-in-law show his step away from him.

"When an agreement has been reached the man must betroth the fa-

Ugly Pimples

Prepare's warning—help unscrupulous poor blood and skin eruptions. Don't delay. Don't suffer. Don't be embarrassed. Don't be ashamed. Don't be afraid. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Don't be afraid to ask questions

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

DEFENSE SENTIMENT GROWS

The celebration of the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington is serving once more to rally the attention of the people of the United States to the advice of the first President against entangling alliances and in favor of preparation for national defense. Vice President Curtis made this clear at the dedication of the Administration School Building at Philadelphia a few days ago when he said:

"Today when we read of the conditions in the Far East we recall that history tells us of the first formal document of its kind in the world's history— it was the first neutrality proclamation: it was issued by George Washington.

"As Washington advised, it was never more necessary than now that the country be kept free from all entanglements. If it would be wonderful if the strong nations of the earth would agree upon a plan of disarmament which would reduce their armies and navies to the smallest strength needed for defense, but the fear of offense keeps them from doing so.

"Unless all will disarm, none will. So we must keep both our army and navy strong enough for complete national defense. So, too, must we keep up the strength of that new branch of the common defense, the air force.

"We hope for, have done, and are doing everything possible to bring about world peace, but it must be peace with honor; peace not involving us in the political quarrels of other nations. Washington's advice of 'no entangling alliances' might almost have been given with present conditions in mind.

"Now, as then we should chart and follow our own course, not that of any other nation. Now, as then, should we be indignant at every attempt of a foreign power to establish an influence in our councils.

"Today there are in our midst men of alien thought and race who would sow the seeds of discord and disunion among us; who would overthrow our cherished ideals and traditions. We must rid our beloved country of all such, and of all alien criminals, and of all alien racketeers. The sooner such aliens are deported the better it will be for all."

The words of the Vice President are well worth repeating. The American people are more and more each day becoming alive to the dangers which confront us. The action of Japan in Manchuria and Shanghai, thrusting aside all international agreements and treating the League of Nations as a schoolboy organization has opened our eyes to the dangers of trusting entirely in international agreements for the avoidance of war. The United States now as always, is willing to meet the other powers half way in the matter of disarmament. We are not going to Chimafy ourselves however and by following pacifist advice, render ourselves helpless as an example to a war-filled world which would not respect any such example and would only use it to coerce us in any way possible. Pacifists cry for disarmament to bring peace and then advocate the dangerous policy of entering into a commercial boycott of Japan, a step well calculated to plunge us into war. Sometimes we are led to believe that politically the international pacifists in the United States have not yet advanced beyond the dollcart stage.

FOR THE LOVE OF BOOKS

Many a man has given up his native land for the love of a lassie or the sake of fortune, but it is seldom that they change their hearthstones on account of books.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington says that Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr is giving up his residence in Germany to be with his beloved books in Washington, and that he will take out citizenship papers in the United States. Dr. Vollbehr enabled the United States to have in its Library of Congress the world-famous 42-line Gutenberg Bible.

This Bible, called the oldest and most valuable book in the world, is one of a collection of 3,000 items printed in the fifteenth century, which was brought by the Government for $1,-500,000. There are only three complete copies of the Bible on vellum surviving, one each in Washington, Paris and London.

Dr. Vollbehr waged a four-year battle to find a buyer for his tomes who would keep them intact and make them useful to scholars. But today he dismisses that story with a gesture and a phrase: "So proud I could do something for culture."

Then he will tell you: "Books are knowledge; knowledge is civilization. Without books—by Joe, what would we have?

"Years ago, when I was a young chemist on a tour of the world, a great German-American, Alfred Sutro, said to me: 'If you would adopt a hobby, my friend, don't bother to collect trouser buttons or stamps or coins—collect rare books.

"I followed his advice, finally building up the largest collection of incunabula ever assembled by one man, and today I am a living example of Sutro's motto—to preserve something always worthwhile for posterity.

"But people will say, why worry about posterity? We have ourselves to look out for. Well, that is simple. Books do look out for me—and for others. Instead of saving my money in real estate mortgages, or stocks, or bonds, I have saved it in books.

"Rare books are a stable value. They never go down. If the dollar would go off the gold standard tomorrow, I would still have my books with value intact. No better was that shown than during the post-war inflation period in Germany. Others lost heavily but when I became pressed for money I merely went to England and auctioned off some rare copies—for gold. When I returned, I was one of the richest men of my region."

Recently he returned from abroad with two particular prizes, one an original which he says was the first printed map of New York; the other the No. 1 copy of an illuminated facsimile edition of the 42-line Guttenberg Bible on parchment. Only three copies on parchment are extant and his is the only one in private hands.

ENLIST THE HOME FOR SAFETY

The Federal, State and municipal governments may legislate for accident prevention, the police may seek unremittingly to enforce it, schools may teach safety, and associations may advocate it, but really effective results can never be obtained until the American home is enlisted whole-heartedly in the cause.

The home is the keystone of the Nation's safety arch. It is the first line of offense against an enemy which annually kills 100,000 persons, injures 3,000,000 or more and produces an economic loss running into the millions.

"Nearly one-third of the 560,000 accident fatalities of the last decade actually happened in the homes," says Dr. Herbert J. Stack, Safety Supervisor of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "That in itself should awaken every household to the necessity of better housekeeping, better care of young children and better safeguards.

"There is an inescapable duty resting upon the heads of the nation's families. In the last analysis they have the responsibility of teaching safety habits and attitudes to the children. What the child absorbs in the home colors its after-life and if lessons there are lax, the child will be found deficient when it comes to safety problems of our modern civilization.

"Accidents are a serious menace to our national life and far reaching in their effects. Surely, something is wrong when in a single ten years, the lives of more than half a million persons, one-fifth of whom are children, can be snuffed out. As bad as wars are, if we add together all the deaths of American soldiers on the battlefields during the comiats of the last two hundred years of our history, the total will not be that of the loss through accidents during the period named."

THE COST OF GAS AND OIL

In Washington the controversy continues—shall our Government bound the tariff on petroleum imports? The question is debated pro and con as to whether motorists would be compelled to pay a new tax.

Into this discussion the engineers of Motor Improvements, incorporated, have introduced important facts concerning their tests, which demonstrate that car owners have the matter of reducing costs of gas and oil in their own hands, to a considerable extent. Their power to save their money and their motors is of far more importance than any tariff legislation regarding petroleum. These engineers speak with due authority concerning the value of filters for automobile engines, oil burners and gasoline lines, which their concern manufactures. They have determined that unfiltered crankcase oil changes rapidly from a lubricant to a fine grinding compound which wears down the moving parts of a motor with each revolution. These tests were conducted upon different motors, each equipped with a purolator, one of which was removed at the end of each thousand miles of operation. Even the filter which had undergone the least use was found to contain an accumulation of dirt, sand, chips or metal, etc., which was effectively used in the filter plant as a grinding compound in regular machine operation. The nature of this sludge was the same though the accumulation, of course, was greater in filters which had undergone longer service.

Evidently a good oil filter is more important than any act of Congress regarding petroleum costs to the consumer.

FARMERS' TAXES

Farmers are taxed out of all proportion to their earnings, according to figures gathered in Washington by Tom Catheart, editor of The Country Home. All over the country, he finds agricultural taxes rose steadily from 1924 and remained at their high level of 1930, although meanwhile the farmer's income has gone down enormously. It takes two to three times as many crops to pay a tax bill this year as it would have taken to pay the same tax bill a few years ago. A practical program for lower and more just taxes is the test which will be applied to every candidate up for election in farming areas this year.

A CRUCIAL OPERATION

In this matter of taxation the problem is no longer how to pluck the goose with the least squawk, but of perform a major operation on the poor bird without anesthetics and still leave him a bare chance of recovery.—Boston Transcript.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

An Execution Wall Under Spanish Rule

There were tragic moments in the old Cabildo in New Orleans along with its pomp and ceremony. This place, for example was the end of the road for many a prisoner and it is still known as the Execution Wall.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

We have been hearing more and more of late about our declining foreign markets, due to the efforts of our American free traders to make capital out of the depression by claiming it was a result of the passage of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill. Such efforts are of course little more than childish, as anyone who will take time to analyze the situation can soon see. In the first place our exports were declining before the Smoot-Hawley tariff was passed, and they have continued to decline, not because of the bill but because of the world-wide conditions. Part of the decline is due to the lower values of the commodities exported and part is due to the fact that the stagnation of world business has drastically cut into world trade because the producer has his eye on the foreign market and has no sympathy with the American ideal of a big market at home. He is always convinced that there is greener grass in the next pasture and he knows there is much greener grass in the United States, if he could only invade it with his cheap commodities produced at something a little more than starvation wages.

It is true that European nations have tariffs but these are political tariffs enacted principally in an effort to get the better of foreign trade. They have little or no conception of the American idea which because of our high standard of living is to equalize the cost of production at home and abroad.

Uncle Sam will recover from the present depression, not because Santa Claus brings him a miraculous fat foreign market but because he is tightening up his own belt and preparing to look after his own children first. And when Uncle Sam once gets on his feet things will begin to brighten for the rest of the world. Nothing would so help world confidence as definite indications that business was on the upgrade in the United States.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Suicidal Economy

The proposal of the House subcommittee on War Department appropriations to drop 2,000 officers and 8,000 enlisted men from the United States army, at this time, would be hard to duplicate for pure insanity in the long history of Congressional bedevilment of the national defense. Secretary Hurley's vigorous protest made against it, when the provocative madness of the proposal is realized, appears to have been surprisingly restrained.

The National Defense Act of 1916, as amended by the act of June 4, 1920, authorized a regular army of approximately 17,000 officers and 280,000 enlisted men. The enlisted force of the army on June 30, 1931, was 119,034. Yet in the name of a false economy a small-army element in the House led by Congressman Collins, a congenial foe to military preparedness, wants to reduce the army personnel by another 10,000 officers and men, virtually abolish the cavalry branch, abandon military training camps for a year and drastically curtail reserve officers' activities! And it wants to do it at a time when the country does not know from one day to another when an accident of diplomacy or the arrogance of some other government may force a war upon it.

Among the dangers to which this nation is constantly exposed none is more appalling than the inability of its pacifists and "economists" to get out of the fool's paradise of thinking that the oceans that wash our shores are the bulwarks they were when they kept Europe six or eight weeks away. With big standing armies in both Europe and Asia, which can be transported to America by steam or air, if we are not going to take a back seat among the nations and take the back talk of any of them may be disposed to hand us, we cannot afford further to weaken our national defense. Ans if we are determined to preserve domestic tranquility and uphold our institutions against internal assaults, we must maintain an adequate army for national police duty.

The debevilment of the army by politicians has resulted in skeletonizing it in times of peace. Then, when danger appears, we are forced either to let war come upon us unprepared—or risk provoking war by suddenly preparing for it. The suspension of the House sub committee's bill, under administration pressure, shows, at least for the moment, a measure of sanity has returned to that body.—Detroit Free Press.

Trace Respiratory Diseases to Dust

According to prominent health authorities, at least 50% of the preventable diseases gain entrance to the body through the respiratory tract. Dr. K. Y. Hill, America's leading authority on air-conditioning, states: "While some of these infections may be from moisture droplets from the mouth and nose, still the great majority are caused by dust particles of some kind gaining entrance to the tract with their ever-present infecting organisms." Because of their efficiency as a means for washing indoor air, modern home air-conditioning systems make it possible to have cleaner and more healthful air indoor than is obtainable outdoors.

Hebrew Money

The monetary system of the Hebrews was based upon the Babylonian system of weights. The ratio of the value of gold to silver was 1:13.5/8 and prevailed over all western Asia, ample fire protection to every part of the corporation.

Very little remains to be said in support of the proposition, and certainly every argument against it has been exhausted. The question is whether or not we shall prove ourselves an enterprising and public spirited community. In view of what has been done and what is being done around us, a rejection of the proposition would do Charlevoix more harm than could accrue from the payment of five years interest on the bonds.

The change that water-works would make in the general appearance of Charlevoix would be worth all it costs. Green and thrifty door yards, well kept lawns, with growing shade trees and shrubbery enhance the value of property. Attractiveness attracts, but parched and lifeless surroundings are only indicative of the lack of public spirit. Charlevoix is already called "the beautiful"; it can still be made more beautiful.

A good system of water works will give Charlevoix a prestige that will return an equivalent for its cost in many ways, and settle the question of pure water.

Grand Traverse Herald: The Herald of Feb. 18th, noticed the fact that Capt. Miller, of the Point Betsey life saving station, had taken 402 perch in Crystal lake one day recently. The genial and veracious captain writes us that this is not the only time, but that 400 were caught with one hook and without change of bait. This adds greatly to the interest of the story, especially at a time of the year when fish stories are supposed to be out of season.

The bridge was swung for the first time this season this morning. The fishing tug Gelken went down to make an effort to get out, but as we go to press has not succeeded.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

President Harry Nichols will be the first man who filled that office in Charlevoix for three terms. A deserved compliment.

It may interest our readers to learn that the Scotch ticket was triumphantly elected in this village Monday.

We don't wish to offend the dignity of the new north side alderman, but we are informed that the first meeting of the new council will be opened with a song entitled "Drill, ye Terriers, Drill."

AN IMPORTANT MASONIC EVENT

The Masons had possession of Central Lake Wednesday night from the blowing of the six o'clock mill whistle until two o'clock Thursday morning.

The occasion was the fixing of the official seal of the Grand Lodge of Michigan to the "appurtenances and heriditaments" of the new lodge in that enterprising town.

Herbert Montagne of Traverse City, chairman of the finance committee of the Grand Lodge, represented the Most Worshipful Grand Master and his staff was composed of two Traverse City past masters—Brothers Pope and Insley, and other officers selected from neighboring lodges.

The official ceremonies embraced the consecration of the lodge, the installation of officers and the dedications of their elegant lodge room. The consecration embraced the full ritual will the use of the corn, wine and oil, as consecrating elements, and the services were solemn and impressive.

After these services to which were admitted the Eastern Star Chapter, a banquet was served at the opera house at which two hundred covers were laid. The post-prandial program was as follows with Bro. H. C. McFarlen as toastmaster:

Address of welcome—M. W. Newkirk, of Central Lake.

Response—Herbert Montague of Traverse City.

The New Lodge—U. J. Ackley of Central Lake.

Early Days of Masonry in Northern Michigan. Willard A. Smith, of Charlevoix.

Masonry from the Standpoint of the Outsider—Rev. J. D. Deets, of Central Lake.

Any Old Thing—Arch Cameron, of Central Lake.

The Masonic Goat—C. E. Desmore of Bellaire.

The ladies of the Star were the architects of the banquet, and they did their work grandly.

Pinkely's orchestra furnished excellent music. Not until two o'clock in the morning did the banqueters arise, as—if none were found under the table at daylight.

The event was one of the best managed and most successful functions we have ever attended in Northern Michigan.

SCHOOL NOTES

The basketball team played their first public game Friday evening. At the end of the first half the ball went through the window down into the channel and was carried out to the sea by the current, making it necessary for the boys to go for it in a boat. When they came back the game was finished, the result being the score of nine to three in favor of Mr. Smith's team.

Forty Years Ago

The talented Inwood correspondent of the Democrat, in a recent issue of that paper, announced the pathetic circumstance of the death of Moses Bowdish's mule. Mr. Hilton probably wrote his weekly contribution when he thought the mule was in articulo mortis. The correspondent in his eagerness to be "scoop" on the Sentinel, was too hasty. The mule, as if conscious of the presence of a newspaper writer, changed his mind, and determined to tarry yet a while in this world of trouble. That the mule was very sick there is little doubt and that evidences of final dissolution were plainly visible in the countenance of the sufferer, we do not question. We are even told that there was a marked change for the worse the instant the correspondent entered the barnyard. But yet, the scribe was hasty in his announcement. The mule rallied, and lives to laugh to scorn he who presumed to indict his obituary while yet he lived. That mule will yet pass the correspondent on the Norwood road many many times, and as our friend beholds the elastic step and well rounded figure of the noble animal, he will reflect upon the trying vicissitudes of a journalist's life, while the reclining aural apendages of the wronged beast will suggest care in approaching too near his business end. Long live the mule, and yet longer the correspondent.

WATER WORKS QUESTION

The opinion is held by some who have not investigated the matter, that the proposed water-works plant is intended to cover only a limited area of the village. This is a great mistake.

The plans upon which the estimates were based in submitting the proposition, contemplate water-mains on every street in the village, including both terraces and provide fire hydrants sufficiently frequent to afford

Fifty Years Ago

The O'Neill boys are still fishing and are rewarded by good hauls.

J. Reed Emrey has the lumber on the ground for his new residence on Clinton street.

Mrs. Dr. Sanderson of Boyne City, has been spending the past week in town as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McLeod.

A petition is before the council for the construction of a sidewalk from Bridge Street to Washburn's shipyard on Antrim Street.

The House Committee on Commerce have reported in favor of an appropriation of $18,000 for a lighthouse in little Traverse Bay.

It is enough to make a sympathetic nature weep to read the Record's abuse of the poor devil who swabs around in the capacity of editor of the Petoskey Democrat. Let him recuperate Mosher, and try your hand at some one of your size.

Bellaire contains at present a wooden ware manufactory, two saw mills (one in operation) planing mill, blacksmith shop, gunsmith, hotel, six stores, printing office, is between two and three years old, is surrounded by a fine farming region, and will double in population in the next two years.

The following officers were elected at the last meeting of the Charlevoix Orange Lodge:

W. M.—A. J. McLeod.
Dept. M.—Walter Manny.
Sec'y—Bernard Burns.
Treas.—A. R. Upright.
Chap.—G. W. Crozier.
Tyler—Harry Gregory.

Miss Alice Carpenter sang a solo at a recent concert at the Evanston Conservatory of Music, receiving many compliments from both the college faculty and the public. Miss Carpenter is to sing at a coming concert there, and also will appear in a cornet duet with one of the musical professors. Her friends here will be glad to learn of her success.

Take a walk up Main street to the proposed park when you have leisure between this and election day, and examine the grounds before you vote against the proposition to purchase them for a public park. The village could not make a wiser move than to purchase this plat, and expend a moderate sum annually for its improvement. It can be made a source of pride to us, and to those who come after us.

The following are the newly elected officers of the Charlevoix Good Templars Lodge:

W. C. T.—Robert O'Neill.
W. V. T.—Mrs. Nellie Hancock.
W. S.—Harry Nichols.
W. A. S.—Miss Allie Fuller.
Treas.—Miss Bessie Nicholls.
W. F. S.—Dan McNeil.
W. M.—A. E. Mason.
W. D. M.—Miss Hattie Boak.
Chap.—B. F. Bisbee.
W. I. G.—Miss Celia Nicholls.
W. O. G.—Montie Lewis.

Traverse City correspondent of the Detroit Free Press:—It may be of interest to give the matrimonial history of "King" Strang, the Mormon leader at Beaver Island, in connection with reminiscences which have lately appeared in print. Strang's first and eldest wife and her two children returned to her friends at Fon du Lac, Wis., after the break up at Beaver Island. The second wife died on the Island, where her child, a daughter, remained and is now the wife of a fisherman. The third wife lived for some years at Mackinac. Her son went to Albion College, and is now a Methodist minister in Wisconsin. Strang's fourth and favorite wife was very young and handsome. When the family was broken up she came to this country, and was soon after married to a very worthy farmer. They have lived here and prospered for many years, and have four sons and one daughter and are all of the highest respectability. The amiable mother is still good looking and comparatively few are aware of the fact that she was the childless wife of "King" Strang.

HAZINGS FROM HAYES

We were one of a pleasant party that assembled at I. S. Webster's on the 3rd of March, to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Webster's marriage. Nearly all their married life has been spent in this country; they having come here in the fall following their marriage. As we listened to the recitals of toil and adventures of the pioneers of those early days as related by Mr. Webster, Mr. Gregg and Mr. Webster, who were among the first to settle in the primeval fastness of our noble forest, we thought all honor is due to those sturdy men and women who formed the germ of what is destined to be one of the most prosperous portions of our commonwealth. The gathering will long be remembered by those present as an "oasis in the desert of life." Everyone was joyous as a marriage bell. The collation was just enormous, and an epicure could only exclaim "what more could I ask?" The presents of china and crystal were useful and ornamental and may many more anniversaries return to Mr. and Mrs. Webster.

Sixty Years Ago

Rev. Mark Browning of Norwood, will preach in the school house tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. Rev. C. N. Coulter of Banks, in the evening.

Complaints reach us from Norwood that the Sentinel does not reach them regularly. They are mailed promptly every week. "A nigger in the fence somewhere."

A contract has been let, at Cheboygan, for building a brick schoolhouse, to cost $8,000. And Charlevoix has nothing to show but a rickety, seven-by-nine shanty which is a disgrace to any backwood settlement.

A Republican Caucus will be held at the house of Warren D. Thompson in Marion on Friday, March 22nd, at 2 o'clock p. m. to nominate Township officers by order of Township committee.

A. D. Brady, Chairman.

Harrison Miller of Beaver Island, recently started from the island to come to this point with a horse and cutter, and when about six miles on his journey his horse fell into a crack in the ice and was drowned before he could be extracated. He returned home with frozen feet.

Work progresses rapidly on the piers. As we go to press two cribs are completed and a third commenced. Mr. Nettleton has proven himself worth of the confidence reposed in him. A better man for the place could not be found. He requests us to announce that work will be supplied for any or all subscribers at once. Arrangements have been made at the hotels to board all, or any who choose can board themselves. Every man is requested to bring an axe. Turn out before the ice breaks up, and let us see the work completed.

Elk Rapids and Pine Lake—Frank J. Lewis of Elk Rapids, is about making arrangements for a boat to run between the head of Pine Lake and Elk Rapids the coming season. He proposes to leave the head of Pine Lake every morning and return the same evening, touching at all intermediate points. The boat will connect at Elk Rapids with the Jennie Sutton, for Traverse City, enabling our people to make the trip to Traverse City and return the same day. The boat is a new side-wheeler of light draught, one hundred and twenty feet long, runs twelve miles an hour and cost $20,000. We learn these facts from a private letter to Mr. D. H. Norris, of this village. We hope Mr. Lewis will carry out his plans as the enterprise will prove by great benefit to the people of Pine Lake, and will benefit our village by the trade which it must necessarily bring into it and we doubt not it will pay Mr. Lewis well.

FROM BARNARD

Marion, Mich., March 7, 1872.

Editor, Sentinel:

Dear Sir—The winter term of School District No. 2, Township of Marion, closed at this place on Friday, Feb. 23, by a grand exhibition, given in the school house in the evening. The house was beautifully decorated with wreaths of evergreens and filled to its utmost capacity with attentive listeners. On the curtains being drawn the exhibition was opened by some choice music by some of the pupils, lead by Mr. Clark Shipman. Recitations and dialogues following which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber M of Mortgages on page 264 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the owner of said premises mentioned her interest therein and the Mortgage was thereupon having been paid as adjusted by undersigned, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amounts secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Court House being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1447.70

Dated December 22nd, 1931.

D. H. Norris Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger,
Atty for Mortgagee.
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 3561S

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 10th day of February, A. D 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Nathan P. Munyon, Deceased.

Charles B. Munyon having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to A. L. Pitch, or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That the 18th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate
4613

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Scullin to the undersigned, under date of August 16th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 10th, A. D. 1928, in Liber M of Mortgages on page 264 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the owner of said premises mentioned her interest therein and the Mortgage was thereupon having been paid as adjusted by undersigned, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amounts secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, in said County and State (said Court House being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which at the date hereof, including a $25.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1447.70

Dated December 22nd, 1931.

D. H. Norris Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger,
Atty for Mortgagee.
Address Charlevoix, Mich. 3561S

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE.

State of Michigan, In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Grik C. Carlson, Plaintiff vs.
Elizabeth Miller, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, made and entered in said cause, said court having been duly filed, the undersigned, Circuit Court Commissioner, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (said court house being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on the 25th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the land and premises described in said decree, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by the terms of said decree, together with principal, interest and costs due to said plaintiff as the date of said sale.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number Two Hundred and ninety-six of Upright and Hurlbut's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale. Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Business address, 108 Clinton St.,
Charlevoix, Mich. 4067

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Terms of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 1126

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:30 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

The SENTINEL
For PRINTING

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

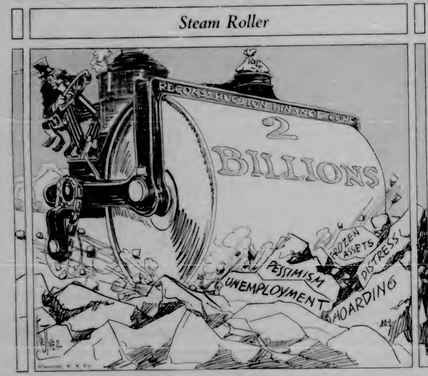
CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

THE FEATHERHEADS

By Osborne

Steam Roller



Along the Concrete

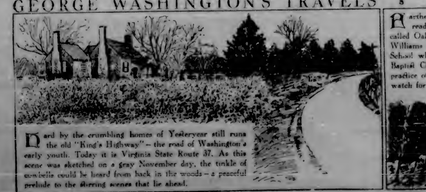
MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL

By Charles Sughroe

The Car was Too Slow for Pete

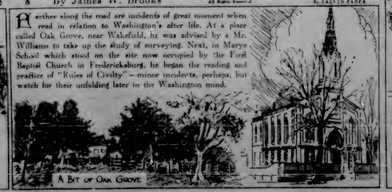
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks



Dard by the crumbling homes of Yesteryear still runs the old "King's Highway"—the road of Washington's early youth. Today it is Virginia State Route 97. As this scene was sketched on a gray November day, the tinkle of cowbells could be heard from back in the woods—a peaceful prelude to the storming scenes that lie ahead.

Archer along the road are incidents of great moment when read in relation to Washington's after life. At a place called Oak Grove, near Wakefield, he was advised by a Mr. Williams to take up the study of surveying. Next, in Maryer School which stood on the site now occupied by the First Baptist Church in Fredericksburg, he began the reading and practice of "Rules of Civility"—minor incidents, perhaps, but watch for their unfolding later in the Washington mind.



RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

—With Castoria's regulation

When your child loosens and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure, vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, hurtful drugs. Its agreeable, harmlessly the bowels of babies and children, are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup in growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for the enormously sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, straightens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the genuine bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

Harvard's Great Libraries

There is plenty of reading material in Harvard University. The library's collection of university subscriptions is that the shelves contain 1,731 feet of books, or a total of 3,816,350 volumes. Those 1 Widener library alone has 47,731 books, while the law library has 530,000 volumes.

Now easy to get rid of Gray

Keep Hair Naturally Dark

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair naturally, quickly and surely by the original recipe, the world's finest, safe way which is now known millions as the "Mary T." hair coloring. Benefits the hair as it darkens it to the shade you want. As simple as brushing it on. Just safeguard the job by following directions. Get of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and just follow easy directions.

Many a man has acquired a reputation for honesty by concealing the truth about his actions.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Gettysburg Relic

Mrs. Sarah H. Shriver of Algonon, Idaho, has an old relic in her back yard that was found from an ancient pocket up on the battlefield at Gettysburg by her husband, now dead, in 1913. Although Mr. Shriver brought several scores from the battlefield and distributed them among his friends, the relic seems that fascinated and grew into a type was the one planted in Mrs. Shriver's yard.

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. Their prophecy would naturally come true if every mother would use for herself less quickly, easily and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup in growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for the enormously sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, straightens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the genuine bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

Harvard's Great Libraries

There is plenty of reading material in Harvard University. The library's collection of university subscriptions is that the shelves contain 1,731 feet of books, or a total of 3,816,350 volumes. Those 1 Widener library alone has 47,731 books, while the law library has 530,000 volumes.

COLOR RESTORED

Aurora, Ill.—"I was sore, run down and nervous. Could not sleep, had several backaches and dizzy spells, and very pale and thin and was so weak I could hardly do anything, when I made up my mind I was going to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as I had heard it spoken very highly," said Mrs. Chas. Chapman of 115 Cross St. "I followed one of all the symptoms, renewed my nerves and made me well and strong. I gained 20 lbs., color came back to my cheeks and my whole physical makeup was in perfect condition." All druggists

Get free advice—write to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., stating the symptoms which you suffer and a helpful letter will be sent you.

Dr. Pierce's Prescription

Unsatisfactory

"Now, don't you think this is a pretty well-planned house?"

"But the breakfast room doesn't get the afternoon sun."

Quickest way to end head colds

Simple cream instantly opens up nostrils... Gives all-night relief

If your head's all stuffed up and you're fighting for breath just put a little BUY-CREAM BALM up each nostril and relief comes almost instantly—relief that lasts for 10 hours or more! This pleasant antiseptic is so remarkable good because it penetrates and actually treats out every air passage in the head, soothes the inflamed, swollen tissue and immediately enables you to breathe freely. Try it for cheapest form. Catarrh or head colds. WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

Something of a Paradox

"What became of his fortune?"

"He stopped away from home so much that she divorced him."

The writers of the farmers yield the driest an income.

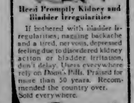
Rheumatic Pains Relieved this Quick Way

If stabbing pains shoot across your back and stiffness you, rub on good old St. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes before you can count 50!... Relief without burning or blistering. This famous oil simply draws out inflammation and pain. It is soothing, healing. For the aches and pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Neuralgia or Backache there's nothing so quick or sure to bring relief. Get a small bottle of St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist.

Don't Neglect Your Kidneys

Heed Promptly Kidney and Bladder Irregularities

If burdened with bladder irregularities, nagging backache and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling due to disordered kidney action or bladder irritation, don't delay! Use time-proved, scientific Doan's Pills. Praised for more than 50 years. Recommended the country over. Sold everywhere.



PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair

60c and $1.00 at Druggists

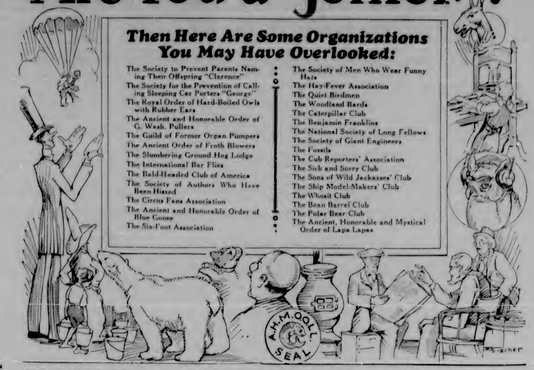
CHESTON CHEMICAL CO., Newark, N. J.

Old Age Pension Information

Justice Letterman

Hendersonville, Kan.

Are You a "Joiner"?



BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Some one has made the wise-crack that if two or more such men are where in the world and one of them is an Englishman, he will immediately get into and organize a club. The insinuation being, of course, that the Englishman is by nature a "joiner." Even if that were true, the fact remains that he has little, if anything, on his American cousin in this respect. Our reliable statistics show that there are in the United States more than 175,000 lodges or fraternal organizations which should reasonably satisfy the longing of the majority of Americans for "belonging." But that doesn't take into account the innumerable clubs, societies, associations and other organizations that have ludicrous in the American who doesn't belong to one or more of these.

All of these, of course, are organized for a "purpose"—social, political, civic, business, scientific, professional, patriotic and humorous—and these purposes are eminently honored by millions of serious Americans. And some of these earnest Americans are so interested in fostering these earnest purposes that they make an earnest effort to see how many of them they can join—and then take their seats in fame on the rosters of organizations to which they belong.

But if some aforesaid earnest American becomes just a bit tired of his membership in clubs, which have a "purpose" he still has an outlet for his "joining" proclivities in semi-organizations which are not so pompous. These are the ones which have sometimes been designated as "freak and fun clubs," and it is with this type of organization that this article deals. So if you are a "joiner" and are looking for a new club to organize, take a look at the list at this head of the article and decide which one you would like to join. Of course, the membership for some of them may be a bit difficult for you to meet, but if you aren't eligible for one, you may be for another.

For instance, if you aren't a white person six feet and more high (or more, too) if you almost instantly blackballed if you applied for membership in the National Society of Long Fellows or the Six-Foot Association. The National Society of Long Fellows was started several years ago by Phil E. Remenham of Topeka, Kan., who he was later commissioner of the Southwestern states. Every time the club has grown so rapidly that there are now several thousand members throughout the United States.

Some of the objectives of the club are to get longer bath tubs, shirts, sox and other clothing, higher awnings, signs and ceilings, longer seats in theaters and lag-room between the rows, restaurant tables that do not cramp the long legs. Fellow to hold them up with his knees and pull seats further in, which they can sleep without bending up on a backside.

Among members are John Aiken of Los Angeles, Calif., who holds the title with a height of eight feet, nine and one-quarter inches. Next tallest is Olif Thompson of Wisconsin, who is eight feet and six inches. Three seven-footers are in R. Williams of Oklahoma and Ruth Duncan and Forrest Gleen, of Illinois. Mr Williams is seven feet and five inches. Miss Dorsey is seven feet and one inch tall, and Mr. Gleen is half an inch taller than she. Ten-year-old Robert Waitow of Alton, Ill., is a member. Robert is six feet and eleven inches tall.

If your personal appearance doesn't qualify you for that one, perhaps an absence of hair on your head will make you a Knight of the Hoosegow Shall in the Bald Head Club of America. That club was started away back in 1920 when Paul Hesse, a lawyer of New York, took a photograph of six bald-headed men seated on the steps of John Belcher's store in Falls Village, Conn. By chance a copy of this photograph fell into the hands of John Hollenberry, a friend with Orion, newspaper man. And presto! John then and there formed a club. Now it has more than 1,000 members and at every annual banquet some member gives a stirring speech on "Hair Today While Bald-Headed Barbers Sell to Bald-Headed Boobs" or some such subject. (If, if you're addicted to covering your baldness with outlandish headgear, then there's a place for you in the Society of Men who Wear Funny Hats.

Ever go to the circus? "Sure!" you answer, "I've gone every year—since the kids found it, anyway. If, but I have to take the children." But just because you're a regular attendant, it doesn't mean that you're eligible for membership in the Circus Fans of America—but unless at some time in your childhood you earned you way to see the show by carrying water for the elephant. Karl Kae Knecht, an Indiana newspaper columnist, who founded the C. F. A. some five years ago, is authority for the statement that many successful men of today are proud of the fact that they once served the thirsty pachyderms and they're enthusiastic members of the club.

In a certain New York restaurant there's an annual booth for diners. Over the entrance of what appears to be a tent are the words "Side Show," and allowing the front are two large, gaudy circus banners, one loudly announces—"Nono—the Wild Girl—She Speaks No Language—Hungries are Deadly Bottoms." Another heralds "La Belle Rosa—Flower of the Orient—Queen of the Deserts—Favorite of Sultans." Inside the tent are painted banners, posters and glamorographs of circus performers and freaks.

This side show tent is the luncheon meeting place of the "I. T. Barnum Top-No. 1 of the Circus Fans of America." Each state and large city has its "Tent" or "Top" named for some famous circus man.

If you succeed out on the Provinle by the time you're famed, perhaps you need be going a play organ. If so, your name can be spread on the roll of the Guild of Former Organ Pumpers, an association composed of those who, by their alleged statements, pumped a pipe organ in a church or elsewhere at some time in their youth. Its principal aim is serious—to perpetuate the memories of our ancestors and honorable predecessors and to—here for posterity some permanent evidence of the important part the pumper played in the musical and sacrosanctial progress of the ages. It has other aims—to encourage the pumping of the old hymns at Sunday night gatherings" and "to prove that every successful man has not eaten his first dollar selling newspapers"—but its primary purpose is to achieve a belated recognition.

The guild was launched in 1926 under the favorable auspices of a national distinguished Senator, the Grand Sachem and Keeper of the Wampum—and with the slogan, "Tramp, for the Wind Is Fleeting." The first meeting was held in New York city in 1926. Officers, named after the stops on the organ, were elected. And the roster of its members now holds the names of some of America's foremost citizens.

Will Hays, the czar of the movies, did his pumping on a pipe organ in Sullivan, Ind., his birthplace. He received by vote for his efforts, and the dinge was paid him as of the conclusion of the morning church services. His mother likewise did her bit by the old instrument in the church where he played the money in the usual collection.

James Cummins, United States senator from Michigan, pumped in the Presbyterian church at Ingham, Ont. He was paid $5 a year. He pumped conscientiously for two years. At the end of that time he collected the $10 he had coming, and this was a part of the original money he invested in stock of the Ford Motor company, which eventually made him one of the nation's richest men.

The late Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was also a pumper. He labored in the Presbyterian church at Springfield, Ill., and gladly accepted the $5-per week weekly stipend which was turned over quarterly.

The official anthem is as follows:

Oh, the pipe organ pumper climbed up to his seat,
His cuffs, his collar and his necktie he doffed,
And he knelt over the handle for some hard work and soft.

CHORUS

Oh, forgetfulness, thermometers,
Cloudy days, and sunny days,
Oh, unpumpedness, Gumboozers!

No wedding or service or funeral passes
Could be complete without some kind words of praise,
The fire of the church organ pumper's kindness
In those wonderful days of yore.

CHORUS

The smile and unusual fee in a rage
When the subject went flat on a tremulous passage,
But the best of his days brought no surcease
In those wonderful days of yore.

CHORUS

So now we are gathered in reader him pushes
To the tables he worked in in days of yore,
To dine on the menus the waiters we raise,
Oh, those wonderful days of yore!

CHORUS

But if in your youth you didn't turn an honest penny by pumping an organ, perhaps you did it in a printing office as a helper to the printer-publisher of the home town paper. If that was far enough back, you probably "printed" a George Washington hand press, a bit of backbreaking labor necessary in the old days if the newspaper-reading public was to be kept informed on the affairs of the community. If you did this, then you're eligible for membership in the Ancient and Honorable Order of G. Wash. Pullers, a society founded at the suggestion of Harry G. Webster, an old Missouri "print," which carries on its membership rolls the name of a number of men who have risen high in the field of journalism and who are proud to say that they got their start in newspaper work at the lever of an old G. Wash.

Then there's the Cub Reporters' association, composed of men who as young journalists sought the adventure which in pecuniary suppressed to be found in newspaper work, found it, perhaps, and now in the order of busy middle age look back fondly upon the time when they smiled under the lash of a "Simon Legree city editor" and dreamed the dream of all cub reporters—that of "scooping the world on a big story."

Anyone who has been the victim of horseplay, hazing, kidding and razzing or even torture by the old-time, hard-boiled, demon city editor is eligible for membership. In the 70s quick hazings, dolugh prize fighting and "horrible crimes" meant handsips and pail for the cub reporter. He "fan-fooled" it around for news, donating into all sorts of hard and trying experiences. In the '90s barrooms were popular community centers, and crimes were rife for reporters to solve.

Still in the field of journalism, there are the French-cold newspaper men who as keen engaged in amateur journalism and are proud of their boyish efforts. And although such a society has not yet been formed, any newspaper man will tell you that there's a field for an organization to his knocks at the Association of Those Who Used to Be Newspaper Men Themselves.

Are you a radio DXer? Do you sit up late at night "getting" new stations over your radio, either short wave or long wave? Then you can be initiated into the Royal Order of Hard-Boiled Owls with Rubber Ears with the bowing ceremonies which nearly each are initiated.

Do you enjoy breaking the ice in a river, lake or pond and taking a bath there no matter what the weather may be? The Polar Bear club wants to hear from you. If you do, let you ever suffer from hay fever? (Kerchoo!) The Hay Fever association will be glad to send you a membership application blank.

Do you have unlimited faith in the windshield as an accurate weather prophet? So do the members of the Slumbering Ground Hog lodge, located at Quarryville, Pa., organized by George W. Heisel, Jr., who is illustrating conveyor this lodge has for its chief aim to enter the corpus of the groundhog, which they say "this an intelligence of a higher order than that of any other animal from the jerk of the blackberry to the elephant in the jungle" and that take an oath to "defend him, his family and his reputation and to guard him at he slumbers."

It's not easy to get into this lodge for you have to be elected by the seven patriarchs after seven years of observation by the footsteps of the Faith, that lodge's Eye-Rather, the Patriarch Jake, the Bonifrom Treasurer and other officers. But once you are elected, you can join in the annual ceremonies on February 2 around the groundhog's lodge.

A part of that ceremonies is to chant the following poem, written by Herman L. Hoch, official poet of the lodge. It goes as follows:

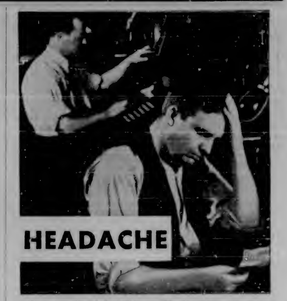
Today the question now from me unto you,
Have you yet to seek a shadow of six
Or have you seen it not?
Has the breeze yet come around
His schure the sky and cloud the ground
Or has the rain current
He wears no overtie board or gown.
He doesn't carry one in town,
And never wear no college.
Who never said what he should
And taught to live by rule or rote
He lives by the laws of Nature alone.
He knows by the shadows that are thrown
The advent of winter has been run
And he'll scuttle with no fear
But if the sun shines cause today
Betweens he hill an twenty away,
Your summer will appear.
Perhaps sometime the day may be
When folks are just as wise as he,
And have no fear of him.
Then would men have time to live
To take the proper time pure
Without an attempt
Were straightway to the dwelling go,
And coming back some just observe
Five cheers resounding cheers
And let the groundhog rest in peace
His like is not in all the land,
Nor have we his equal.

If you believe that there's more than one name for the colored boys who look after your comfort on the pullman cars, then you should join the Society for the Prevention of Calling Sleeping Car Porters "George." Organized by George W. Feaney, Jr., a Chicago banker, the society now has thousands of members all over the country. George Washington and George Dewey are their patron saints. George Ade is the past emperor. George M. Cohan, the official song writer. George William Cardinal Mundelein, the chaplain. Georges Clemenceau and Premier George of France, and George ("Babe") Ruth is sergeant at arms.

All of the foregoing are organizations to which almost anyone might possibly belong. But there are also others whose membership is necessarily rather limited in the certain professions. For instance, you'd have to be a sailor in the United States navy in order to belong to the Ancient, Honorable and Mystic Order of Lapa Lapas, although there are many landlubbers who are earnestly fitted for membership. The only qualification the prospective member must possess, in fact, is unduly acknowledge that he be a poor fish. But only sailors know how to initiate candidates properly, for it was two sailors who founded the organization at Kingston, Ohio, in 1907, and sailors are keeping the order going.

You couldn't belong to the Quiet Birdmen unless you were a World war aviator nor to the caterpillar club unless you were an aviator who had to make an emergency parachute jump to save your life, and you would be barred from membership in the Whoat club unless you were a New York bond salesman engaged in selling unsmitted bonds.

The list of these interesting organizations could be extended indefinitely were it not for the fact that the author of this article has just received notice of a meeting of those interested in forming a Society for the Prevention of Forcing More Bedtimes and he feels obliged to leave at once to attend the meeting.



Nerves on edge A head that throbs. You can't stop work, but you can stop the pain—in a hurry. Brave Bayer will do it every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and your headache is forgotten. There's nothing half-way about the action of genuine aspirin. If the box says Bayer, you will get complete relief.

These tablets should be in every shop, office, and home. Ready to relieve any sudden ache or pain, from a grumbling tooth to hangings. Don't suffer with that neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism etc. or that sore throat. Get some Bayer Aspirin and just follow those proved directions for instant relief.

Get the genuine tablets stamped with the Bayer cross. They cost very little, especially if you buy them by the bottle. Any doctor will tell you they are harmless. They don't hurt the heart. Then don't upset the stomach. So take them as often as you have the least need of those quick comfort. Take enough for complete results.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Brotherly Relationship

Hairdressers have our sincere sympathy. They are the children of two, and, of course, favor their father. Shoplifters have neither parent in common. If a widower with a son, marries a widow with a son, the boys are stepbrothers [illegible]

"Helpful" English

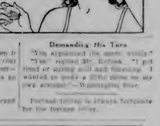
An English professor has chosen his words of Louis Untermeyer, whose commendation, to be sure in an auxiliary world language and also for the use of foreigners who find English incomforting.

Cuticura Ointment

Works Wonders in the Care of Your Hair

MASSAGE the scalp with the Ointment to remove the dandruff. Then shampoo with Cuticura Soap to cleanse the hair and restore its natural gloss and vigor.

Ointment 25c. Soap 25c. Ointment and Powder 25c. Sold throughout Canada. Cuticura Laboratories, Malden, Mass.



Think It Over

It is open from occasion when it is most difficult to be courteous when we need to apply courtesy most—the most test of courtesy is in emergency.

A traveling man's trunk and brand are alike much checked.

Demanding His Turn

"You approached the point quite," "You rejoined Mr. Bottom. "I got tired of sitting still and listening. I wanted to make a little speech on my own account."—Washington Star.

Portland letting is private turquoise for the fortune teller.

Clothes come so white —you'll be thrilled!

WHY not try it and see? Rinso makes clothes colored things fresh and bright-looking. Millions of women all over the country say so. You'll say so, too!

Rinso is hard-water, Rinso gives rather as much suds—soap for copper-lightweight, full-of-soap soaps. Thick, lasting suds. No softener needed!

You couldn't belong in the Quiet Birdmen unless you were a World war aviator nor to the caterpillar club unless you were an aviator who had to make an emergency parachute jump to save your life, and you would be barred from membership in the Whoat club unless you were a New York bond salesman engaged in selling unsmitted bonds.

Rinso

The granulated soap for tub, washer and dishes

A PRODUCT OF LEVER BROTHERS CO., CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Circular—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 9:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00 o'clock.

Interior—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:00.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6 o'clock.
Evening Service, 7 o'clock.
Prayer Service Thursday evening 8:00 o'clock.
Choir Practice Thursday evening 8:30 o'clock.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, March 13—"Substance."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m
Young People's meeting, 6:30
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.
Beginning Sunday, March 13th, there will be two weeks revival and pre-Easter worship, with Rev. and Mrs. Blaine Varner of Alpena, in charge.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

March 13—"What is Christ—Man-Like God, or God-Like Man?" Indian Mission—"From the Ditch to the Throne."
March 20—"How to Blindfold God —So He Cannot See." Note dates.

"Ladies Night" for the Men's Community Club next Monday night at the Methodist church. Mr. Bosdogh, of Boyne City, formerly from Peoria, will give the address. The Women's Club will meet this week Thursday with Mrs. Grant Crandall. Petoskey Avec., with pot luck luncheon at four o'clock.

Listen! Saint Patrick's Easter Supper will be next week Wednesday, instead of Thursday! Ham and eggs, and salads, and cream cake, etc., etc. Save the date, Wednesday, 5:30 at the church. The regular meeting for business will be next Tuesday, at 2 o'clock sharp, at the parsonage, entertained by Mrs. Hurd.

Mr. Dale Chapman has been elected as President of the Young Men's Club of the church, with the pastor as leader, and a list of the other regular officers.

CHANGES BEING MADE IN INTERIOR OF SUGAR BOWL

A transformation scene is under way at the Sugar Bowl this week, such as changes the entire appearance of the large and attractive room where customers have been served. The removal of a considerable portion of fixtures used in recent years and replacement of new equipment adds to the attractiveness of the place which now takes on a modern metropolitan appearance.

Mr. George Linden, owner-manager of the Sugar Bowl has had the change under consideration for some months, his final decision was in favor of remodeling, hence the activities and new dress of his place of business which will be pleasing to patrons and more satisfactory to Mr. Glados and his corps of assistants.

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.
S. T. Coker, Prop.

8tf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W ½ of SW ¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information,
E. L. J. Mills, Mackinaw, Mich.

1tf

MOHAIR CENTURY OLD IS FOUND IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Three Thousand Persons Answer Call for Antique Upholstery.

Mohair-upholstered furniture, considerably more than a century old, has been given considerable new life in this respect in response to a prize offer of $500 for the oldest piece of furniture covered in mohair.

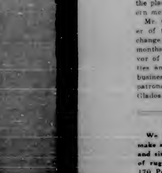
Since the day the contest opened, interesting reports and descriptions of old pieces of furniture have been pouring in, and the final entries are now in a shift is engaged in sorting over the contestants. The contest closes Thursday, the sofa entered in the competition is claimed to be at least 200 years old, a chair, one of a set, purchased by a bride and groom before the War of 1 12, is another interesting entry and there are several arbors reported to be at least a century old.

Red was the predominating color in olden days, the samples submitted show but occasional green ones are entered, suggesting that the modern love of color variety and the preference for "modern" shades had its beginning many years ago. Along with the mohair entries, many of horse hair were received. Unfortunately for the contestants who submitted horse hair, this will not be eligible for the prize, as the winner must submit mohair, the wool of the Angora goat.

The offer, given both $500 mohair and horse hair received. Practically every state in the Union has been represented. The most likely entrance for the prize so far over the Atlantic seaboard from the state of Massachusetts.

The judges, whose task it will be to select the winning piece of furniture, are Mrs. Ogden Mills, of Staatsburg, N. Y., Mrs. Henry Sloane Coffin, of New York City, and Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt Field, of New York City.

5th Michigan Man Wins Automobile



COLLINS A. BIRD, 1405 Kalamazoo Avenue, S. E., Grand Rapids, has been notified that he won the Chevrolet automobile in the daily automobile Cremo contest announced each week-day night over the Columbia network. He is fifth in Michigan and 47th in all districts in this contest. Mr. Bird is 39 years old, married and has lived in or near Grand Rapids all his life. He has been employed by the Grand Rapids Paper Box Company for the past ten years. His hobby is motoring. Mr. Bird has his choice of a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth automobile as his reward for writing 25 winning statement.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

P. T. A. MEETING POSTPONED TO TUESDAY, MARCH 15

The regular meeting of the P. T. A. scheduled for last Wednesday evening has been postponed to Tuesday evening, March 15th.

This was done to make possible the presentation of the "Mock Trial" which was given before the Men's Community Club a few weeks ago.

Other interesting features are being planned for the program and election of officers will be held.

A regular meeting of the Lady Maccabees will be held Tuesday, March 15, at 7:30 o'clock sharp. Important business will be brought before the meeting, hence the request is made that all members be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nowland and Mr. and Mrs. Will Nowland, visitors in Detroit for some days, returned home Sunday.

Prosecuting Attorney Rollie L. Lewis motored to the south part of the state early this week where he will attend to some business interests. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Lewis.

The March meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Friday in the community room.

Mrs. W. W. Hurd, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, entertained the Ladies' Aid Society Tuesday evening, in honor of the birthday of the musical director, Mrs. A. C. Belding, who was given a fine gift from the choir, and received many expressions of appreciation for her faithfulness, ability, and taste, in so ably handling the church music.

Tracy H. Gillis for many years prominent in civic, social and political affairs at Traverse City passed away at his home last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Gillis was well known in this state and leaves many friends to regret his death. He was born at Traverse City September 14, 1872, and is survived by Mrs. Gillis and one daughter.

DAIRY DELEGATES SUGGEST COUNTY WIDE PROGRAM

The second annual Charlevoix County Dairy Conference was a success from every viewpoint. While the delegates present did not equal in number the attendance of last year, they more than made up for this lack by their enthusiasm and deep interest. In nothing pertaining to the future dairy development in this county. First of all, some very interesting remarks were given on what the 1930 census revealed.

There were 1029 farms in Charlevoix County having a total of 4505 dairy cows, two years of age and over. To feed this population 20,353 tons of hay crops were raised. In this total 31 per cent was timothy, which is not so hot a dairy feed as 45 per cent was alfalfa, which is much better.

Comparing our percentage of alfalfa with that of other counties we find that Charlevoix County is very near the top. The biggest disappointment is that the average production per acre is only 1.36 tons which is much lower than the average. This being the case, probably farmers are not particular about their stands of alfalfa. It was found that 325 acres of sweet clover was used for pasture which is a crop that cannot be duplicated in this respect. Fifty-nine farms reported as having sweet clover.

Most of the time in the discussions was spent in talking about what could be done to increase our production of alfalfa which is the lish around which dairy progress revolves. The delegates recommended that the following steps be taken to secure the best results with alfalfa.

First—Well drained, clean seed bed.

Second—Test for lime and use if necessary.

Third—Prepare firm seed bed.

Fourth—Use adapted seed.

Fifth—Inoculate seed.

Sixth—Seed alone on light soil or with companion crop on heavy soil.

Seventh—Fertilize and cultivate.

This certainly is a program that would insure better results in alfalfa hay production than is now being reaped in the county.

Considerable discussion hinged on the activities of the new cooperative creamery at East Jordan. Summing up this discussion the following resolution was presented by George Meggison of Charlevoix and supported by L. D. Welshemier of Charlevoix: "That Charlevoix County Dairy Delegates urge all county dairymen to extend their entires support to the new cooperative creamery." Carried.

Realizing that a good sire is half the herd, it was recommended that dairymen construct bull pens which would permit the safekeeping of aged bulls until they could be proven. Clyde Clute, Boyne City, Roy Hardy, and Bert Lumby, also of Boyne City and Oakley Saunders, Charlevoix, stated that they would erect bull pens this year.

In making plans for extension work along dairy lines for this year upon motion by Frank Wangeman, East Jordan, seconded by John Struthers, Charlevoix, it was recommended that the Quality Cream Truck promoted by the Michigan State College be scheduled to again spend three or four days in the county and close its itinerary at a big Visitors Day for the patrons of the Creamery. This was carried unanimously.

Further upon motion by Roy Hardy Boyne City, supported by John Knudsen, East Jordan, it was recommended that the County Agent arrange for a series of meetings with the Cloga - Dairy Truck at seven or eight different points in the county. This would accurately inform these present the kinds of crops as well as acreage of crops necessary to feed the dairy herd being kept on the respective farms.

Space does not permit a more extended outline of what actually was transacted at this conference but the above summary of the recent Dairy Conference pretty largely indicates of what a Charlevoix County Dairy Improvement Program consists.

H. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

SECOND SERIES OF SOILS MEETINGS NEXT WEEK

The schedule for the second series of ten meetings held in the Grange Halls has been announced for the third week in March beginning Monday, March 14th.

Continuing the different phases of soil improvement, the two subjects that will be discussed will be the use, care and handling of barnyard manure and the usage of commercial fertilizer. At the first series of meetings lime and organic matter were the two important subjects.

It is especially desired that all who attended the first series will be present for the second as in that way these topics will be closely tied up together. Following is the schedule, all forenoon meetings beginning at 9:30 E. S. T. and all P. M. meetings at 1:30.

Monday, March 14—
Forenoon—Deer Lake Grange
Afternoon—Boyne River Grange
Tuesday, March 15—
Forenoon—Ironton Grange
Afternoon—Maple Grove Grange
Wednesday, March 16—
Forenoon—Peninsula Grange.
Afternoon—Rock Elm Grange.
Thursday, March 17—
Forenoon—Bernard Grange.
Afternoon—Marion Center Grge.
Friday, March 18—
Forenoon—South Arm Grange.
Afternoon—Wilson Grange.

Be sure to attend the nearest meeting. You will enjoy the discussions and they will be helpful.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

Annual City Election to Be Held April 4, 1932.

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the Michigan Election Law, I, the undersigned, as City Clerk will upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of Annual City Election, receive for Registration the name of any legal voter in said City not already registered, who may apply to me personally for such registration.

Provided, however, that I can receive no name for Registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before the day of Election.

I am further notified, that I will be in my office Tuesday, March 15, for the purpose of such Registration and Election from 8.00 A. M. until 9.00 P. M., that day for the purpose of registering such of the qualified voters of said City as shall properly apply therefor.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.
By—Wilma Novotny, Deputy City Clerk.
460

BRIDGE STREET PAVING, DISTRICT NO. 45

Notice of Special Assessment

To Maude Armstrong, Lyman Berton, Lydia Benton, L. E. Adams, W. J. Wokel Estate, Charles Hemrick-son, Charles A. Taylor, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mary A. Gilowski, A. McCall, Sr., Matt Dvorzog, William H. Wallace, George Weaver, W. H. Frazier, Archie Alcox, Charles Addison, Lucy Addison, Harry Mellon, Thos. Lou Carey, Louis Urlowski, Charles Carey, Edward Stewart, Peter McFarland, Marietta McFarland, Walter Taylor, Ella L. Taylor, William Gilchrist, Julia Reynolds, Philip Lemieux, the Catholic Church, Morris Ackert, Mrs. Morrin Ackert, John Ackert, Perry Smith, Willis Gross, Percy Edwards, Floyd Hull, Medrick Seymour, Mrs. Medrick Seymour, Henry Hartwig, Amy Beaudine, Frank Chvatil, Mrs. Frank Chvatil, Henry Hilpert, Frank Gotts, Jr., Frank Gotts, Anna McNally, Ernest Howe, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Stephen Smith, Jennie Withers, Lillian Saunders and to all other persons interested, take notice:

That the roll of the special assessment heretofore made by the board of assessors for the purpose of defraying that part of the cost which the council decided should be paid and borne by special assessment for the grading and paving of a part of Bridge Street with concrete pavement from the north line of Belvedere Avenue south to a point thirty-three feet south of the north line of West Carpenter Avenue forty feet in width including the necessary curbing, gutters, manholes, crosswalks, storm water sewerage and approaches is now on file in my office for public inspection.

Notice is also hereby given that the common council and board of assessors of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room in said City on Monday, the 28th day of March, A. D. 1932 at seven-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, Central Standard Time, to review said assessment, at which time and place opportunity will be given all persons interested to be heard.

Dated March 5, A. D. 1932
R. ay S. Hamilton, City Clerk.
1642

NOTICE OF TOWNSHIP CAUCUS

A township caucus for the Township of Marion, Charlevoix County, Michigan, will be held at the township hall on behalf of said township on Monday, March 14th at 2 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time, for the purpose of nominating of Township officers to be voted for at the ensuing election, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

Jay Adams,
Township Clerk of Marion Township.
4512

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.

Cherryvale Hatchery, E. Jordan
Phone 116 F-2 4416

The 20th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Grimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

EMPLOYED

Every dollar on deposit in our Savings Department is an EMPLOYED dollar and in addition earns its owner 4 per cent compound interest.

Why not put YOUR dollars to work in a Savings Account here?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge I. S. Sax John J. Ironn
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Porter Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MARCH 12, 13
EDWARD G. ROBINSON
in
"The Hatchet Man"
with
Loretta Young, Dudley Diggs, Tully Marshall.

The man of a thousand characters. The screen's greatest character actor in his most dynamic portrayal. Terrifying in its stark realism. Overwhelming in its mighty emotional sweep! Honored for his power, feared for his ruthlessness —the story of a man who was slave to two masters, love and hate.

Added Attractions—"Unemployed Ghosts"

Coming—"Over the Hill".

NOTE:—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

The House of the Three Ganders
by Irving Bacheller.

W. N. U. SERVICE.
Copyright by Irving Bacheller

A Bachelor story of the "North Country" based on a trial famous in the legal annals of New York state. A typically human American story. The woodsy setting, the quaint customs and the highly humorous sayings of the countryside, the unconscious nobility of its steadfast people, all blend to make the distinctive flavor of a true Bachelor story.

It will appear serially in these columns

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

YOUR TELEPHONE IS ALWAYS READY TO PROTECT YOU

IN emergencies . . . when you want the doctor, firemen or police . . . the telephone will summon them instantly. You need a telephone in your home.

You can have telephone service for as little as a day. To place an order, just call or visit the Telephone Business Office.

6c

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1932 Number 47

MARION TWP. CAUCUS RESULTS

TWO TICKETS IN FIELD BY NOMINATIONS MONDAY

Two sets of officials were nominated at the caucus. The names of candidates will be placed on ballots designated as Ticket No. 1 the names of which come first in the following list, followed by the names on ticket No. 2.

Supervisor—Geo Meggison, Geo Manthe.

Clerk—Jay Adams, L. E. McGhan

Treas.—W. H. Henry, Florence Williams.

Justice (full term)—W. K. Straw, Clinton Blanchard.

Justice (vacancy)—A. J. Bullock, Arlo Winkelman.

Hwy. Com.—Louis Shapton, Tom Jensen.

Ed. of Rev.—John Smith, D. E. Ingalls.

Overseer Hwys.—Clarence Beattie, Charles Cellier.

Constable—Al Balch, Charles Stevens.

Constable—Frank Fox, H. E. Bigelow.

Constable—C. F. Giesking, Glenn Cummings.

Constable — Howard Blackwood, Ludwig Greimen.

PARENT TEACHERS ASSN ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Parent Teachers Association held their monthly meeting at the school house Tuesday evening.

The first number on the entertainment program was given by the 5th and 8th grade Hiawathan band. The bandmaster, Ray Miller, led the orchestra. Solos were played by Lee Scott, Rodney Belding and "Tubby" Gill.

The mock trial that was given about three weeks ago before the Men's Community Club was repeated with E. A. Sturgeon taking the part of Judge Pat Heffler, the boy in trouble with Gerald Roth as the boys father. Archie Livingston took the part of the neighbor and Dr. McMillan the part of family physician Mr. O. P. North was the superintendent of schools where the boy attended and Mr. Palmer the officer bringing the boy before the court. The mock trial was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The election of officers was as follows: President, Ed Edwards; Vice President, O. P. North; Treas., Mrs. Arthur Edwards; Secretary, Mrs. Beatie Dean.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION APRIL 13TH

The Republican County Convention for the County of Charlevoix will be held at The High School in the City of East Jordan Wednesday, April 13th, 1932 at 10 o'clock Eastern Standard Time. For the purpose of electing five delegates to attend the State Convention, to be held in the City of Grand Rapids on Wednesday, April 27th, 1932 at 11 A. M. E. S. T. and for the transacting of such other business as may come before the convention. Delegates to the county convention are the same persons who were selected as delegates to the convention held in Charlevoix by the Republican party in the spring of 1931.

The several townships are entitled to the following delegates: Bay 4, Boyne Valley 6, Chandler 1, Charlevoix 1, Evangeline 6, Hayes 5, Hudson 1, Marion 4, Melrose 3, Norwood 2, Peaine 1, St. James 1, South Arm 6, Wilson 4, Boyne City, 1st ward 2, 2nd ward 4, 3rd ward 7, 4th ward 6, Charlevoix, 1st ward 3, 2nd ward 10, 3rd ward 7, East Jordan, 1st ward 2, 2nd ward 3, 3rd ward 8.

By order of the Republican Committee.

H. C. Meyer, Chairman.
Lela Simmons, Treasurer.
Kit Carson, Secretary.

A. OF C. BUSINESS MEET

A regular business meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce is scheduled for Friday night, this to be held at I. O. O. F. hall at the usual time and followed at its conclusion by serving refreshments.

The fire department answered an alarm Wednesday to protect the James B. Parsons residence where a fire endangering the property. This was quickly extinguished with nominal loss.

ODD FELLOWS SHOW THEIR ABILITY TO ENTERTAIN

Members of both the Masonic and Odd Fellows fraternities were in a jolly mood when they met at the I. O. O. F. hall Monday night with the members of the P. & A. M. as guests of the Odd Fellows to participate at a dinner prepared and served by the hosts.

The dinner was a prearranged event and followed the series of rubbage gauge that have been in progress for some weeks past in which the winners of the contest were to be entertained by their defeated opponents.

That the Odd Fellows demonstrated their ability as entertainers is fully acknowledged by everyone who attended the dinner Monday night; all of whom speak in complimentary terms of the manner in which the dinner was served, the elaborate preparations in making ready for the dinner and the social features presented.

Officers for the 1932-33 program of activities will be elected at the next meeting of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Pirates were awarded to Wm. Cook and Rollie Williams, high and low score respectively. There were 25 who took advantage of the chance to ride in the airplane and view the islands in the air.

The ice harvest is over, the last of the ice houses having been filled this week.

Later Notes

The Garden Island Indians are coming to Beaver Island on the ice for the first time this winter.

Arthur Larsen and Mike Call set out their nets Saturday for the first time this season.

The Mozart Club held a meeting Saturday for the purpose of planning an Easter Concert.

MARION CENTER

Mrs. George Everts, who has been ill for over two weeks is reported better.

Mr. Charles Withers was very pleasantly surprised last Saturday, March 12th, when eighteen of his neighbors walked in to spend the evening. The occasion being his —th birthday. Women are not the only ones who do not know their age.

Marion Township Caucus was very well attended considering the condition of some of the roads.

The County Nurse visited the school here Monday and examined the children. She reported the average condition in regard to eyes, teeth and glands good.

Mrs. George Meggison entertained Mrs. John Herrington last Friday evening, March 11th. It being her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eckland and Mr. and Mrs. Fabian Eckland attended the Annual Business of their church last week Wednesday. It was the 25th meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mascho.

MISS CLEMENTINE BROWE DIES HERE LAST TUESDAY

Following a short illness Miss Clementine Browe, twenty-one years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Browe of this city, died Tuesday morning at the Charlevoix Hospital where she had been taken for treatment.

The deceased was born at St. James August 21, 1911, where she lived with the family came to Charlevoix, about fourteen years ago. She was a Charlevoix high school graduate, class of 1930.

She is survived by her parents, three sisters, Mrs. Louise Bechtold of Grand Rapids, Misses Lucile and Dolores Browe of Charlevoix and two brothers, Ted of Central Lake and Wilfred Browe of this City.

Funeral service was held this forenoon at St. Mary's church with Fr. Neubecker officiating.

MRS. JOHN A. WEBSTER FUNERAL MONDAY P. M.

Funeral service was conducted at the Church of God Monday afternoon for Mrs. John A. Webster who passed away Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Verne Jones, 610 West Upfold Avenue, her death following an extended illness.

Her maiden name was Miss Margaret O'Neill. She was born at St. Pierre, Ontario, Canada, September 17, 1872 and came to this region forty years ago where she has since resided for a long term of years on a farm in Norwood township, but for the past three years, due to ill health, with her daughter herein mentioned at whose home she passed away.

She is survived by Mr. Webster, a lady living, she resides on the Norwood farm and three daughters, Mrs. Vern Jones, Mrs. Archie Baleb and Mrs. Gordon Sarasin of Charlevoix. Two sisters, Mrs. Claude Morris and Mrs. George Wire of Flint and two brothers, Jesse and Micky O'Neill of Charlevoix. The two sisters, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Wire, due to illness, were unable to attend the funeral service.

"OVER THE HILL" GLORIFIES LOVE

A drama that takes love from the cradle to old age and deals with many of its most important manifestations, "Over The Hill," Fox drama, marking the second screen appearance of that delightful pair of lovers, James Dunn and Sally Eilers and the reteam of the silent day favorite, Mae Marsh, comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

The love of a man for a maid, the love of a mother for her child, that of brother for brother, father and son, all have their place in this romantic story of a human heart.

The central story itself is two-fold, telling the boy and girl romance between James Dunn and Sally Eilers, a romance that is said to exceed in heart touching appeal their magnificent portrayals in "Bad Girl" and the mother and son tie that binds Dunn to "Ma," the character played by Miss Marsh.

Based on Will Carleton's classic poems the theme of "Over The Hill" is as true today as when it was originally written.

In addition to Dunn, Sally Eilers and Mae Marsh, a large picked cast includes Edward Arnold, Churchill, Maynard, Olin Howland, William Pawley and Joan Peers. In the prologue of the picture which Henry King directed are a number of Hollywood's most capable juveniles.

An unusually enjoyable social affair was Tuesday, when Mrs. W. W. Hurd entertained the Methodist Ladies' Society. Considerable business was transacted, followed by entertainment and refreshments, served by the hostess and a very merry social hour.

Monday March 28 is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix one day only.

Two record muskellunge have been captured in the last few days, one by Frederick Dimoyer of Leland that weighed 43 pounds, the other by Joe Stadish from upper Lake Hamlin weighing 45 pounds.

County News

BEAVER ISLAND
(Delayed Correspondence)

Mrs. John W. Greene met with a painful accident when she slipped on ice and fell. She dislocated her shoulder and was taken to Petoskey Hospital for X-Ray and treatment. She was accompanied by her daughter, Lillian. The trip was made by airplane. This is another example of the good of the airplane.

Captain J. E. Gallagher of Boyne City was a business caller here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pinchner returned home after visiting in Charlevoix and Cheboygan for several weeks.

Nolan Lafreniere is getting the timber on his ground to rebuild his dock.

Charles Pischker is in Charlevoix visiting the home of his brother, A. C. Pischker.

The Garden Island Indians make yearly trips to Beaver Island on the boat. The High Island Indians make a trip every two weeks by boat. No ice to travel on.

The airplane pilot, Bull Hasemond, stayed here Friday afternoon to take the passengers over. There were 25 who took advantage of the chance to ride in the airplane and view the islands in the air.

The Ice harvest is over, the last of the ice houses having been filled this week.

Later Notes

The Garden Island Indians are coming to Beaver Island on the ice for the first time this winter.

Arthur Larsen and Mike Call set out their nets Saturday for the first time this season.

The Mozart Club held a meeting Saturday for the purpose of planning an Easter Concert.

MARION CENTER

Mrs. George Everts, who has been ill for over two weeks is reported better.

Mr. Charles Withers was very pleasantly surprised last Saturday, March 12th, when eighteen of his neighbors walked in to spend the evening. The occasion being his —th birthday. Women are not the only ones who do not know their age.

Marion Township Caucus was very well attended considering the condition of some of the roads.

The County Nurse visited the school here Monday and examined the children. She reported the average condition in regard to eyes, teeth and glands good.

Mrs. George Meggison entertained Mrs. John Herrington last Friday evening, March 11th. It being her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eckland and Mr. and Mrs. Fabian Eckland attended the Annual Business of their church last week Wednesday. It was the 25th meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mascho.

MISS CLEMENTINE BROWE DIES HERE LAST TUESDAY

Following a short illness Miss Clementine Browe, twenty-one years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Browe of this city, died Tuesday morning at the Charlevoix Hospital where she had been taken for treatment.

The deceased was born at St. James August 21, 1911, where she lived with the family came to Charlevoix, about fourteen years ago. She was a Charlevoix high school graduate, class of 1930.

She is survived by her parents, three sisters, Mrs. Louise Bechtold of Grand Rapids, Misses Lucile and Dolores Browe of Charlevoix and two brothers, Ted of Central Lake and Wilfred Browe of this City.

Funeral service was held this forenoon at St. Mary's church with Fr. Neubecker officiating.

MRS. JOHN A. WEBSTER FUNERAL MONDAY P. M.

Funeral service was conducted at the Church of God Monday afternoon for Mrs. John A. Webster who passed away Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Verne Jones, 610 West Upfold Avenue, her death following an extended illness.

Her maiden name was Miss Margaret O'Neill. She was born at St. Pierre, Ontario, Canda, September 17, 1872 and came to this region forty years ago where she has since resided for a long term of years on a farm in Norwood township, but for the past three years, due to ill health, with her daughter herein mentioned at whose home she passed away.

She is survived by Mr. Webster, a lady living, she resides on the Norwood farms and three daughters, Mrs. Vern Jones, Mrs. Archie Baleb and Mrs. Gordon Sarasin of Charlevoix. Two sisters, Mrs. Claude Morris and Mrs. George Wire of Flint and two brothers, Jesse and Micky O'Neill of Charlevoix. The two sisters, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Wire, due to illness, were unable to attend the funeral service.

"OVER THE HILL" GLORIFIES LOVE

A drama that takes love from the cradle to old age and deals with many of its most important manifestations, "Over The Hill," Fox drama, marking the second screen appearance of that delightful pair of lovers, James Dunn and Sally Eilers and the reteam of the silent day favorite, Mae Marsh, comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

The love of a man for a maid, the love of a mother for her child, that of brother for brother, father and son, all have their place in this romantic story of a human heart.

The central story itself is two-fold, telling the boy and girl romance between James Dunn and Sally Eilers, a romance that is said to exceed in heart touching appeal their magnificent portrayals in "Bad Girl" and the mother and son tie that binds Dunn to "Ma," the character played by Miss Marsh.

Based on Will Carleton's classic poems the theme of "Over The Hill" is as true today as when it was originally written.

In addition to Dunn, Sally Eilers and Mae Marsh, a large picked cast includes Edward Arnold, Churchill, Maynard, Olin Howland, William Pawley and Joan Peers. In the prologue of the picture which Henry King directed are a number of Hollywood's most capable juveniles.

An unusually enjoyable social affair was Tuesday, when Mrs. W. W. Hurd entertained the Methodist Ladies' Society. Considerable business was transacted, followed by entertainment and refreshments, served by the hostess and a very merry social hour.

Monday March 28 is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix one day only.

Two record muskellunge have been captured in the last few days, one by Frederick Dimoyer of Leland that weighed 43 pounds, the other by Joe Stadish from upper Lake Hamlin weighing 45 pounds.

FIFTH TRI-POST LEGION MEET

LIVELY AND INTERESTING SESSION HELD AT BOYNE CITY

The fifth tripost meeting of the Charlevoix County American Legion met Tuesday evening at Boyne City and the session proved to be one of the most interesting yet held by the organization.

Following an excellent supper, came the business of the evening. Dr. Booker of East Jordan reported that the four act play, "The Spirit of 76" was ready for the starting of rehearsals and a plan of finance for this play was decided upon.

Judge Murphy of Petoskey, adjutant of the Eleventh District organization of the Legion, gave a fine talk on the American Legion and its aims.

The program consisted of several amusing skits, a clog dance and a musical number, two.

The suggestion to include the Auxiliaries of the three posts in the Tri-Post organization was made and discussed and appeared to meet with entire approval on the part of the delegates present. Of course, will no doubt be up to the ladies themselves.

SPECIAL MEETING A. OF C. MARCH 21

SECOND ANNUAL AGRICULTURE SUPPER AT I. O. O. F. HALL

Thursday evening, March 21, has been selected as the time when the Charlevoix Association of Commerce will hold their second annual agricultural supper. This to be at the I. O. O. F. hall, the supper to be under the direction of the Lady Marcabees at 7:30 p. m.

President Winkler of the Association is authority for the statement that a speaker of national prominence will address the meeting.

Arrangements are underway for a most successful meeting in which provisions is being made to provide and take care of a large attendance which is assured for this second annual event.

Members of the Association are extended the privilege of having their wives attend the meeting and the further courtesy of inviting some rural friend and his wife to be a guest, all of which leads to the conclusion that the attendance will be extraordinary while it is understood that the arranged program of entertainment will be exceptional.

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. S. M. Rife led the W. C. T. U. meeting held last Friday afternoon in the Community room. The topic was "Our Membership and Literature Campaigns" and the leader urged securing new members and getting the local about prohibitive before the public.

Mrs. Wm. C. Palmer conducted the devotionals and Mrs. Saltonstall gave a sketch of the life of Mrs. Jennie Alcox who was president of the local union for about twenty years. The Jennie Alcox group acted as hostesses.

A group of children from the first grade under the direction of Miss Alcox gave some motion songs which were much enjoyed.

Mendamer Dinehart, Coulter and Usher were appointed a committee to take charge of the enrollment of the union's quota of signatures to a petition asking the governments of world to send their most representative women to the International Women's Congress to be held in Chicago in 1933 in connection with the Century of Progress Exposition.

A social hour followed the meeting.

Kit Carson, secretary of the Republican County Committee, of East Jordan, was a business visitor in Charlevoix Tuesday in connection with a county convention, that convenes at East Jordan Wednesday, April 13.

Merry Brewsters Circle gave a bridge luncheon at the home of Mrs. Don Campbell Tuesday afternoon. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Glenn See, Mrs. D. F. Wood, Mrs. Charles Lanspeker and Mrs. Don Campbell. First prize was given to Mrs. Dean and the second prize went to Mrs. Clarence Wood.

Attorney Leon W. Miller of Petoskey was a visitor here on professional business Wednesday.

School News

"Quality Street" Tonight

The stage of the Palace Theater is in readiness for the first production of the High School Drama Club at 8:15 this evening.

Music will be furnished by the high school.

Memorial of Senior Class

The Senior Class of '32 made a presentation of a very appropriate memorial to the high school last week. This memorial is a bust of George Washington.

The bust was unveiled before the assembly with a presentation speech by David Dick, senior class president.

Declamations and Orations

The judges of our student declamation and oratorical contest decided that Albert McMillan take first place in the Declamation contest and Ida McMillan lead the list in the Oratorical contest.

Charlevoix has been invited to entertain the contestants of the sub-district contest which will take place early in April.

Domestic Science

The seventh and ninth grade girls have completed problem No. 1 in sewing. They are now busy working on problem number 2, the making of spring dresses.

The Bible Prophecy Class held at the Baptist Church each Monday evening is very instructive for these "dark days." Next Monday evening we discuss "Israel Restored and Renewed."

Miss Shirley McCann entertained the Junior girls of the Baptist church at her home Thursday evening. Missionary work was enjoyed by the girls.

An adjourned meeting of Lady Maccabees is scheduled for Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at I. O. O. F. hall Members please take notice.

AN APPRECIATION

I desire to extend my sincere thanks and express my highest sense of appreciation to all personal friends and electors in the city of Charlevoix for their loyal support in the recently held primary election. That I received most complimentary recognition from electors in each of the three wards in this city was, and will in the future be a pleasant memory.

Cordially, Edward E. Cross.

Captain John N. Chambers, former Charlevoix citizen, now residing at Mackinac Island, spent some time here early this week looking after business interests.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Parmelee are in southern Michigan this week, visiting friends and on business.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES EVENT

One of the outstanding musical events of this school year is to be presented on Wednesday, March 23, at the H. S. auditorium, when two hundred voices, under the direction of Miss Atkinson, is to give a short cantata, "The Childhood of Hiawatha," and the second grade is to present a brief operette.

The Charlevoix High School Band under the direction of Mr. Rider will present several numbers during the evening.

And now for the surprise! In order that everyone may hear this unique entertainment, the tickets are being sold for 10 and 25 cents. Don't fail to be one of the many who hear this

PICTURES IN BABY KIDNAPING

Window Used in Kidnaping Lindbergh Baby

State troopers examining the kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh, showing the window and ladder used by the abductors.

Four Generations of Lindbergh-Morrow Family

Mrs. Charles Long Cutter (second from left), great-grandmother; Mrs. Dwight Morrow, grandmother; Mrs. Lindbergh and the kidnaped baby.

THE PARENTS

Latest Photo of Lindbergh Baby

Characteristic pose of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh taken after one of their long flights.

Photograph of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., made public by the family after the kidnaping to assist in the search for the child.

Flyer's $50,000 Home Is Circled by Heavy Woods

The Hopewell home from which the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped is a new $50,000 structure on an estate of 400 acres.

It was selected by the Lindberghs partly because of its isolation and its good eyesight intruders.

Situated on the top of Sourland Hill, the second highest land in the state, it can be reached only by one winding dirt and gravelled road, running three-quarters of a mile from Pennington road, a main highway.

George H. Murray, Princeton, N. J., real estate dealer, who represented Colonel Lindbergh in the purchase, said:

"Strangers could easily be lost on the estate, especially at night, and if one thought he was being followed he could lose his pursuer in a few minutes by turning off the road and hiding in the woods. Then, if he wished, he could circle back to the road and go on his way."

The house is of stone and stucco construction, with a slate roof. It is two stories high, and has a spacious living room, dining room, kitchen, pantry, seven bedrooms and five baths.

A garage, with room for six cars, is connected with the house by a covered passageway. Over the garage are quarters for the servants.

A stream trickles through the property.

There is a view across a wooded valley toward Hopewell. This view was said to have been one of the main attractions of the place. The flier and his wife took an airplane trip above the land before accepting it.

Over the garage, with room for six cars, is connected with the house by a covered passageway. Over the garage are quarters for the servants.

A stream trickles through the property.

There is a view across a wooded valley toward Hopewell. This view was said to have been one of the main attractions of the place. The flier and his wife took an airplane trip above the land before accepting it.

POULTRY

FEED FOR POULTRY IN WINTER MONTHS

Laying Ration Proved Good by Experience.

What are the best methods of handling the farm flock at winter hens during the winter?

Suggestions are given by H. H. Telford, extension poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural college, as for lows:

Water is cheap and a very necessary food. Keep the laying flock supplied with an abundance of clean water.

A good laying ration may include a scratch feed mixture of 40 pounds of cracked or whole corn by 50 pounds of wheat. Experience has shown that the following approximate mixture of 50 pounds of grain should be fed per 100 hens each day during the laying of winter months: Thirty pounds, 15 pounds in November, 12 in December, 12 in January, 12 in February, 15 in March and 20 in April.

Keep the laying mash before the hens all the time in non-waste hoppers.

As green feed, the following may be used: cabbage with the price will permit; alfalfa, beets, carrots, etc.

Keep a box of gravel in the laying house in winter time. Lime is furnished in the form of oyster shell or calcite.

Feed sunshine of the grain in the morning and noon. Feed a light evening in straw litter at least an hour before roosting time and supplement with fresh mash in the morning, if needed. Regularity and quantity of care are important for securing the best results.

Over-Early Production of Eggs Not Advisable

Pullets should be full grown and well on to maturity before they begin laying, advises Miss Flora Dooley, poultry specialist of the Missouri college of agricultural extension division. Hover says farm flap laying is a very serious thing. Under a laying flock of the pullets begin laying before they reach the proper size and conformation, it is a study they will not hold out long and the eggs will be under sized.

Pullets that attain full weight before they begin to lay will produce bigger eggs from the start and will not be so likely to molt or stop laying in winter. Pullets should be fed good rations that they will grow fast. They are even slightly thin are likely to lay for only a short time. Those of the yellow skin varieties, and this includes all except Orpingtons, should have broiler and shanks that are a deep orange color when ready to lay.

If pullets shown signs of losing too early they may be helped by giving them lots of scratch feed. Miss Dooley says, in addition to this, scratch feed should be steadily increased, and straw gutters go into laying quarters that should be nothing short of a small scratch as much. Good feeding will be promoted if the scratch feed consists of at least one-third yellow corn.

Cull Out Poor Pullets

Some interesting figures have been secured from a large flock of White Leghorn pullets. Nearly 10,000 birds participated during March 1 and September 30 a profit of $1.91 over feed costs in the late fall pullets and $1.63 in the early pullets in the hens. The average egg production was 104 eggs for the early pullets and 83 eggs for the seven months.

One lesson learned was the importance of culling out pullets that do not pay their way. A standard was set so that those accomplishing it could and when the pullet flock has reached about 2 per cent of the number in all that time from that are usually slow in maturing can be easily identified. Those that are not producing can be removed to a separate pen and fed still less during winter months. Thus it is not necessary to feed stock by getting them lots of scratch feed. Miss Cooley says that any pullet that is not laying by December 1 is not likely to do so during the winter months.

Poultry Notes

A damp house is the cause of many poultry troubles.

• • •

Poultrymen must learn to be good feeders, judging the needs of fowls and feed accordingly.

• • •

The poultry ration should contain all the elements required in body maintenance and the manufacture of eggs.

• • •

It is not advisable to hold eggs for hatching purposes more than ten days before putting them under the hens.

• • •

In 92 New York state poultry flocks the average mortality was 25 per cent. Floor construction was the chief cause of disease in producing eggs, and dead hens are responsible.

• • •

An ample, sweet supply should be kept before the hens at all times. Make sure the hens will drink all they want, and in winter the water should be warmed to about 60 degrees.

• • •

Hens give off more water according to weight than any other domestic animal. Therefore, they need a constant supply.

• • •

Bacillary white diarrhea is due to hereditary infection; summer diarrhea is due to digestional disturbance or chilling of the chicks.

• • •

One of the first signs of poultry tuberculosis is a gradual wasting away of the birds. Often the bird is lame in one or both legs. Its wings droop and its joints are swollen.

Use Sweet Clover to Improve Soil

It Also Provides Nutritious Pasture—Live Stock Take to It.

Sweet clover is an excellent soil-improving crop, probably the best when stands are secured. However, it is necessary to time sweet clover seeding before seeding sweet clover, says writer in the Southern Agriculturist. If it is practical to lime the land, I think you would make no mistake in seeding it to sweet clover next spring. If you sow the unhulled seed, you could sow it in February while if you sow hulled seed, you had probably better not sow until the tenth or fifteenth of March.

While live stock do not like sweet clover at first, after confined on it does soon acquire a taste for it and make good use of the crop. It makes a nutritious pasture. Even if you sow sweet clover on the land, it would be very well to sow three to five pounds of lespedeza to the acre also in order to prevent the land from becoming sour. Lespedeza is an excellent soil improving crop although it does not improve soil as rapidly as does sweet clover. It will not be necessary to sow the lespedeza every year as it gradually freezes ground or a freshly prepared seed bed is prepared about the middle of March. If sowing for a hay crop, you should sow 15 to 20 pounds of seed per acre although on fertile soil give a fair stand the second year.

If you sow unhulled sweet clover seed, you had probably better sow one or two pounds of hulled seed also, adding 10 to 12 pounds to the acre should be enough.

Insect Pests Checked by Plowing in Winter

Recent investigations on soil erosion show the enormous losses farmers suffer from insect pests. Every one knows how a heavy rain and your sweet corn is washed either down the hill or you are sending some of the cream of your farm on its way to help clog up the Gulf of Mexico. With this in mind, therefore, one must consider well any recommendations that are made relative to the plowing of land during the coming months. And yet, if one will carefully guard against an over-loose loam and a compact subsoil, plowing he can be one of the most effective practical controls for chinch bug and cutworm insect pests. This is especially true of the various pests that spend much of their early stages in the soil and then turn to pollinated crops resident on such. Should the following summer. The worms and wireworms, root flea grasshoppers, chinch bugs, and, to a less extent, grubworms and webworms are many others are more or less effective by checked by winter plowing. Many are destroyed outright and some are exposed to the elements and to their enemies. Wherever it is safe to do so, therefore, it is to the interest of the fertility man for corn should be plowed in the late fall or in early winter, leaving the winter seedbed. However, it is usually not safe to plow sloping land or fields which naturally erode badly during the winter.—Missouri Farmer.

Cornstalk Poisoning

Cornstalk disease, which in some seasons causes heavy losses in cattle and horses that pasture cornfields, is a difficult disease to control, with, says Dr. C. J. S. Wescott, veterinarian of South Dakota State college. The cause of the disease is not known. The most reasonable explanation is that it is due to some kind of poisoning which grows moist or putrefies in the cornstalks, such, for example, as the fungus which causes the soft rot of potatoes. The animal becomes weak and wobbly, some being so crazed that they run a considerable distance before they show attention. Treatment of sick animals is ineffective and the best method for preventative is to keep cattle out of cornfields. Some views favor the idea that the disease is caused by the presence of smut in the cornstalks.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

MR. DOLLEY AND MR. HENNESSY

NIGHT after night Finley Peter Dunne used to while away down in James McGarry's saloon on State street in Chicago. Week after week there came from his pen those humorous conversations between Mr. Dooley and Mr. Hennessy which, throughout the late nineties and the early nineteen hundreds carried a half comic, half philosophical commentary on the news of the day which proved a common sense and healthful influence on the thought of the entire country.

Mr. Dooley was supposedly patterned on James McGarry himself, as far as text as his rich brogue was concerned, in thought and word he was undoubtedly the author, Finley Peter Dunne. Mr. Hennessy was John J. McGenna, veteran politician of "Archer road," today chief inspector of Illinois employment agencies, and for half a century the newspaper man's best source of information more interesting events in Chicago's low lives.

Mr. Hennessy's share in the conversations was merely to supply just the obvious commonplace remark needed to set Mr. Dooley's caustic tongue wagging, seemingly inspired, in long explanations of current events with a certain dull satirical edge to the point of many readers and a humor that served to smooth over much of the bitter partisanship of a day when party politics incited just such fierce comment. . . the Lord save us from harm," Mr. Hennessy would piously exclaim, "Mr. Dooley, what's it all about?"

"Ye ought to know the history iv this, me frind," Mr. Dooley would solemnly begin, "for it happened many years ago, this was a race between th' monarchists an' th' repyoo blicans."

• • •

WILD BILL

THEY called him "Wild Bill" Hickok, but his name wasn't William, at all, and instead of being the wild-man of the times—one of the quietest, softest-spoken men in the whole history of frontier. His real name was James Butler Hickok a native of Illinois who served as a spy for the Union army in Missouri during the civil war and later as an Overland stage driver and a scout for United States army in the Indian wars in the West.

The name "Wild Bill" was tacked on him because of a desperate battle behind bottle he was supposed to have fought with the "McCandless gang" which he was employed by the stage company. The only trouble with the story is that such a fight as was been described by many writers never took place. Official records in the Kansas Historical society show that Hickok killed one man named McCandless, a peaceful settler, and the manager of the utilities was such as to

Made specially for BABIES and CHILDREN

Physicians tell us that one condition is nearly always present when a child has a digestive upset, a starting cold or other little ailment. Constipation. The first step towards relief is to rid the body of those poisons. And for this nothing is better than Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. A gentle vegetable preparation made specially for babies and children. This means it is mild and gentle; that it contains no harsh drugs or narcotics. Yet it always gets results. You never have to coax children to take Pleasants. Real Candies always keep. 25c tube.

R. V. Pierce

CASTORIA

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Insects Fly High

Insects have been found by airplane observers as high as 10,000 feet above the earth.

RHEUMATIC PAINS relieved this quick way

If the stabbing pains of rheumatism are crippling you, rub on good old St. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes in a minute. This famous remedy draws out pain and inflammation. It's the quick, safe way to stop aches and pains in Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago or Backache, Neuralgia or swollen joints. No blistering. No burning. Get a small bottle at any drug store.

Medical scientists refer to the years of life and mechanical science sub-tracts.

Dizzy/ NR

Start through bowel action with Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets). Two NATURE'S REMEDY (NR Tablets). It's mild safe, nothing habit forming. Get NR (NR Tablets) today. Only 25c.

TUMS For Acid Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Gas, Sweetened, Pleasant. 10c a roll.

Faith is obedience, says evangelist George MacDonald.

Worms in your child? ACT QUICKLY!

Picking at nostrils. Gitting the teeth. Look for these other symptoms of worms. Rid your child's body of these worms with pleasant-to-take Dr. Peter's Compound Worm Pellets. Prepared like confections. Children like them without coaxing.

COMSTOCK'S WORM DEAD SHOT PELLETS

Mfd. by Comstock, Ink & Co., Inc., at Doylestown, Pa.

"Don't be in a hurry," is his invitation to stay.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills put up 80 years ago. Then and there. Sugar-coated. 25c.

You can't take a trick with the trump of fame.

MENTHOLATUM soothing ointment does not only relief like a magnet when rubbed on the chest and throat. Even breathing when inserted in stuffy nostrils. Try it today. 30c and 60c

FOR COLDS

Many a man walks and runs a risk at the same time.

ADVISES HEAT OF RED PEPPERS FOR RHEUMATISM

Brings Almost Instant Relief

When the intolerable pains of rheumatism or aches or neuritis or lumbago seize you usually need ... don't forget the marvelous heat Nature put into red peppers. For it is this generous heat that relieves all pain as it soothes and gets down under the skin, serving to clear up inflammation instantly. It is this genuine red pepper's heat that is now contained in an ointment called Rowles Red Pepper Rub Ointment. It is you can feel relief come. There's nothing better for breaking up a chest-cold, sinus trouble. Ask druggist for Rowles Red Pepper Rub in convenient jars.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 11-1932.

SYNOPSIS

Ragamuffin, ragged, and starving, a boy of about sixteen is found in the woods by a camping party. He is rescued from his brutal father, Bill Morrow. But never a kiss him, but his new friends counsel him

CHAPTER I—Continued

Without a word Bill strode off into the darkness. He went not in the direction of High Falls but took an old trail toward Iroad Creek flat. He was like a wounded panther growling with rage—a veritable child of the darkness with no sense of light.

"He won't be gettin' back here," Benoit declared. "There's a lumber camp down in Canada where he'll go. But I'm sure he ain't goin' to give up workin' for the rest. He'll work like The boy could even make a bottle o whiskey for one this summer."

But next day Bill arrived at the camp in the Canadian wilderness and after a deep pits in his heart for the man who was his father remembering as he did the good deeds over-all which he had done. He was some like starlight in his dark memories. Now he slept, as only a weary boy can sleep. He awoke refreshed in the morning.

"I'm glad it ain't yesterday no more," he said to Mr. Converse as he was dressing. "I felt better—more like a man."

"You look like a gentleman, and I want you to learn to eat as gentlemen do. Eat slowly and keep your knife away from your face. Use it only to cut your food and eat with your fork."

"I won't forget your advice" said the boy. "I'd like to be a gentleman."

Very soon they sat down to breakfast.

After the meal Mr. Converse turned to the lad saying. "I'll send Uncle Phin Bond down to the mill with you in my camp. He'll keep you busy till you're beyond the danger point. Uncle Phin, you take a gun with you and see that he gits there."

When most and the last wave ends to set out, the latter in his new clothes and knapsack. Mr. Converse said to him: "Have you got your money?"

"Yes sir, I've got it pinned in my pocket with a safety."

"When you get out on the woods, make for St. Lawrence county. It's a good country to live in and there's a fine opening for a boy in a store. You could learn across the border if necessary and be safe. Take this letter to my friend Colonel Blake. He lives in Canton."

Then Silas and the famous guide Jacques Dubois set out for the woods, leaving Grace alone in the deep woods from Big Deer pond to the Indian lake and pine knots a mile when, at a point where the trail crossed a hill side the guide stopped suddenly.

"Some one has crossed the trail away down yonder in the valley," he whispered. The guide stood still, looking intently at the distant object. Then he said: "It is a boy and a man. I'll tell you in a minute."

Again he whispered: "It's a man. He's netting on a log by the side of the trail. He doesn't see us. Come on, but keep your rifle ready. I don't like the looks of that man."

Then Silas and the guide came to the man sitting on a log by the side of the trail. He doesn't see us. Come on, but keep your rifle ready. I don't like the looks of that man."

He set out in the direction indicated and was soon lost in the forest. Toward the hills 10 miles to a little lodge and there he found a welcome. Within five minutes they came upon the Morrows dining at the table of the inn. The boy, walking stood, and assumed a stiff pose as Bill and the boy passed in the swing under the swinging doors. "Merlin, stranger."

Shall made no reply.

"It's dirty and black, or it would be as well talk to him. He ain't no use," said Thilde Scott as he stopped by the huge Quebecois flat.

The boy stood around a turn in the trail and in a moment was beyond the reach of pursuit. He was short this the guide overtook him.

"The supercargo that goes back at my cause" said Scott. "He's bored at Grace Bond that I'm over to see why he don't come down. I'm sorry for the boy. He's made up his mind that the millionaire will try to slip you across to his father at this lake."

A mile or so farther on the two came to that big brook now known as Mud lake. They got into the only boat at the landing and rowed across. It was now a two-mile stretch to the lake walled in by giant pines and spruces.

Meanwhile like some familiar figure in the old Morrison, sitting on a log by the trail side, had begun to find its way. The bird boys, thinking about the lonely stranger who had come down the trail with Thilde Scott. There was some thing familiar in the look of the man's face that suggested his father. By 6—6 They've found her," he said to himself. "They've dressed the boy up and put a dress on him so they've slipped him right under my nose."

He hurried down the trail in pursuit of half a mile when he saw the boy behind them. He was losing a shoe, and the slave was of considerable value. When he got to Mud lake rod found an boat and up the end of the lake was a mile away on the far shore, he started to skirt the lake, with his mouth full of curses.

CHAPTER II

The Fugitive Resorts to Strategy.

Soon after Silas arrived at the hunting camp of Mr. Converse, he and his guide crossed the lake and set out for the railroad. A freight and accommodation train was waiting as a flag station. Silas got aboard and went on to Fulton Chain. He was advised to change there, to the express train bound for Utica. This he did.

It was the Fourth of July. There had been a celebration of the day in the forest village. Mood stood in the midst of a merry throng when the express train arrived. After the engine had passed he saw the head of his father protruding from a window of the smoking car. The man was looking intently at the crowd on the platform. The boy ducked downward as it looking for something he had dropped. He climbed aboard a car near him some during shelter he had never take the train or wait for another. Perhaps his father would go off there.

A train of logs and girls sit around him, blowing tin horns laughing, throwing pine and flowers at one another. He had never known that boys and girls could be so happy. A little after the train started the Mohawk came through the car looking for the man. He went on to the end of the train and back, his big red eye searching in vain for the boy slave.

Shad got out with a large hand of merry makers at Hendrick, suddenly discovered that his father was waiting just ahead of him with a stranger. "If I don't get out now I'll be too late. I'll buy a bottle o whisky an' pay for some." he was saying. "I've had enough of this."

Shad left the train at the next corner and went straight out into the country.

After some hours of travel he came to a new settlement. It was a small side where dried hat was cooked or in windrows. He crossed the heavy road

"I Hope He's as Fond of Ladies as He Is of Flapjacks."

upon a rock of hay and made for him self a comfortable bed on the sweet scented grass and he slept.

He was up at daylight. About mid day he came to a little village where were a railroad station and a small hotel. At the latter he got his dinner. Late that afternoon he got a train going north and arrived at Long Lake early in the morning. A tea driver lent him to carry the boy and Colonel Blake two miles from town.

He set out in the direction indicated and was soon lost in the forest. Toward the hills 10 miles to a little lodge and there he found a welcome. Within five minutes they came upon the Morrows dining at the table of the inn. The boy, walking stood, and assumed a stiff pose as Bill and the boy passed in the swing under the swinging doors. "Merlin, stranger."

Shall made no reply.

"It's dirty and black, or it would be as well talk to him. He ain't no use," said Thilde Scott as he stopped by the huge Quebecois flat.

The boy stood around a turn in the trail and in a moment was beyond the reach of pursuit. He was short this the guide overtook him.

"The supercargo that goes back at my cause" said Scott. "He's bored at Grace Bond that I'm over to see why he don't come down. I'm sorry for the boy. He's made up his mind that the millionaire will try to slip you across to his father at this lake."

A mile or so farther on the two came to that big brook now known as Mud lake. They got into the only boat at the landing and rowed across. It was now a two-mile stretch to the lake walled in by giant pines and spruces.

Meanwhile like some familiar figure in the old Morrison, sitting on a log by the trail side, had begun to find its way. The bird boys, thinking about the lonely stranger who had come down the trail with Thilde Scott. There was some thing familiar in the look of the man's face that suggested his father. By 6—6 They've found her," he said to himself. "They've dressed the boy up and put a dress on him so they've slipped him right under my nose."

He hurried down the trail in pursuit of half a mile when he saw the boy behind them. He was losing a shoe, and the slave was of considerable value. When he got to Mud lake rod found an boat and up the end of the lake was a mile away on the far shore, he started to skirt the lake, with his mouth full of curses.

CHAPTER II

The Fugitive Resorts to Strategy.

Soon after Silas arrived at the hunting camp of Mr. Converse, he and his guide crossed the lake and set out for the railroad. A freight and accommodation train was waiting as a flag station. Silas got aboard and went on to Fulton Chain. He was advised to change there, to the express train bound for Utica. This he did.

It was the Fourth of July. There had been a celebration of the day in the forest village. Mood stood in the midst of a merry throng when the express train arrived. After the engine had passed he saw the head of his father protruding from a window of the smoking car. The man was looking intently at the crowd on the platform. The boy ducked downward as it looking for something he had dropped. He climbed aboard a car near him some during shelter he had never take the train or wait for another. Perhaps his father would go off there.

A train of logs and girls sit around him, blowing tin horns laughing, throwing pine and flowers at one another. He had never known that boys and girls could be so happy. A little after the train started the Mohawk came through the car looking for the man. He went on to the end of the train and back, his big red eye searching in vain for the boy slave.

Shad got out with a large hand of merry makers at Hendrick, suddenly discovered that his father was waiting just ahead of him with a stranger. "If I don't get out now I'll be too late. I'll buy a bottle o whisky an' pay for some." he was saying. "I've had enough of this."

Shad left the train at the next corner and went straight out into the country.

After some hours of travel he came to a new settlement. It was a small side where dried hat was cooked or in windrows. He crossed the heavy road

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor — Phone 479
Office 112 Bridge Street

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

SUFFERING FROM A KATZENJAMMER

In a long editorial in the American Mercury for March, H. L. Mencken tellingly comments on our present economic difficulties. "What we suffer from, essentially, is only a gross and persistent Katzenjammer," he says, "the natural product of the gay and fine jag in the history of the modern world. Three years ago . . . one heard on the authority of high-toned professors in swell colleges that a New Economics had come into America in the Republican that its first principle was that what went up would never come down. The way to get on in the world, it appeared, was simply to spend more and more . . ."

Mr. Mencken then gives a case history of "the typical American of that gaudy time," who tried to turn a few dollars into a million, and says: "It is a sad story. Nor is it really the story of every American? Hardly . . . It is only the old story of gamblers brought to book at last, their money gone and their shirt-tails out. We have all lost something, but not many have really lost everything. In actual value the country is still rich, and any man who owns any honest part of it still has that part, and will see it making money for him when the clouds roll by . . .

"It seems to me that the depression will be well worth its cost if it brings Americans back to their senses. Once they rediscover the massive fact that hard thrift and not gambler's luck is the only true basis of national wealth, they will discover simultaneously that a perfectly civilized and contented life is possible without the old fuss and display. For all the current alarms, they will still be as rich as any other people on earth, and a great deal richer than most.

"As with the people, so with the nation. Uncle Sam has been on a bust, too. It is hard for him to retrench, but somehow he must do it . .

There is sound sense in tiffs, and the sooner we realize it the better off we will be. Our spitting economic headache is the natural result of the economic gluttony that preceded it. The United States is as sound as ever—and probably a good deal sounder—and the final collapse of the nonsensical "values" of 1926-1929 has paved the way for an understanding of honest and permanent values, in both a concrete and an abstract sense.

HOW TO GET BETTER FARM PRICES

There is meat for farmers in all parts of the country in an address recently made by Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health of New York City.

Competition among dairymen and dairymen's organizations, he said, tends to reduce the price received for milk by producers. "If I were asked how dairy farmers can obtain better prices for their milk," he continued, "I would say stop unfair competition, control your surplus, prevent its use in demoralizing markets, and give every possible aid to our campaign for increased consumption."

In other words, the dairymen must be organized. And that goes for all farmers, no matter what commodity they have to offer. General poor business conditions have of course been partly responsible for low farm prices—but the lack of cooperation among farmers themselves has unquestionably done as much or more to knock prices down and keep them down.

On the day the last "independent" farmer joins a sound cooperative, agriculture will have real and permanent prosperity. And in the meantime, all farmers owe it to themselves and their calling to do everything possible to back up their cooperatives, not only through their own loyal support, but in bringing unorganized farmers into the fold. We live in a fast-moving highly competitive world, and cooperation is perhaps even more essential to agriculture than to industry at large.

OVERDOING A GOOD THING

A good many state legislative officers seem to look on the gasoline tax as a godsend when it comes to raising revenue for any and all purposes.

The decline in revenue from other kinds of taxes has intensified this trend. Now it is advocated that gas taxes be used for unemployment relief, poor relief, general state purposes, and so on. All of these purposes are no doubt laudable, and some are necessary—but it is difficult to understand why the bill should be passed on to the motorist.

A reasonable gas tax—with stress on the word "reasonable"—all of whose receipts are used for road work, is sound and it is accepted as essential by the majority of motorists. But when the gas tax goes beyond certain levels, or when the revenue derived is applied in other directions, it becomes class taxation of the most onerous kind. Taxes of five and six and seven cents a gallon are becoming alarmingly prevalent.

The upshot of the matter will probably be a "motorists' revolt". The public must make itself felt, in no uncertain way, if it is to keep the nonsensical "values" of 1926-1929 has paved the way for an understanding of honest and permanent values, in both a concrete and an abstract sense.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

ONCE THE PRISON OF A GOVERNOR

This old jail at Williamsburg, Virginia once held Governor Hamilton taken prisoner at Detroit by George Rogers Clark for interfering with the wheels of Nea Ware destiny. Evidently those early Americans were a busy and determined lot, but Time has long since released Hamilton while the old jail hangs on.

HOW TO GET BETTER FARM PRICES

There is meat for farmers in all parts of the country in an address recently made by Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health of New York City.

Competition among dairymen and dairymen's organizations, he said, tends to reduce the price received for milk by producers. "If I were asked how dairy farmers can obtain better prices for their milk," he continued, "I would say stop unfair competition, control your surplus, prevent its use in demoralizing markets, and give every possible aid to our campaign for increased consumption."

In other words, the dairymen must be organized. And that goes for all farmers, no matter what commodity they have to offer. General poor business conditions have of course been partly responsible for low farm prices—but the lack of cooperation among farmers themselves has unquestionably done as much or more to knock prices down and keep them down.

On the day the last "independent" farmer joins a sound cooperative, agriculture will have real and permanent prosperity. And in the meantime, all farmers owe it to themselves and their calling to do everything possible to back up their cooperatives, not only through their own loyal support, but in bringing unorganized farmers into the fold. We live in a fast-moving highly competitive world, and cooperation is perhaps even more essential to agriculture than to industry at large.

OVERDOING A GOOD THING

A good many state legislative officers seem to look on the gasoline tax as a godsend when it comes to raising revenue for any and all purposes.

The decline in revenue from other kinds of taxes has intensified this trend. Now it is advocated that gas taxes be used for unemployment relief, poor relief, general state purposes, and so on. All of these purposes are no doubt laudable, and some are necessary—but it is difficult to understand why the bill should be passed on to the motorist.

A reasonable gas tax—with stress on the word "reasonable"—all of whose receipts are used for road work, is sound and it is accepted as essential by the majority of motorists. But when the gas tax goes beyond certain levels, or when the revenue derived is applied in other directions, it becomes class taxation of the most onerous kind. Taxes of five and six and seven cents a gallon are becoming alarmingly prevalent.

The upshot of the matter will probably be a "motorists' revolt". The public must make itself felt, in no uncertain way, if it is to keep the nonsensical "values" of 1926-1929 has paved the way for an understanding of honest and permanent values, in both a concrete and an abstract sense.

THE HARD, COLD FACTS

"The Nation cannot tax itself rich. It cannot dole itself back to prosperity. The states with relief problems on their hands cannot get any additional money to spend by piping their funds to Washington in the form of taxes and getting them back again as gifts or loans. Inevitably they would lose some of it on the way. In addition they would have the aggravation of seeing their own money, which they could administer themselves much more economically, managed by a string of red tape leading to the desk of some Washington bureau clerk.—San Francisco Chronicle.

NEW MONEY FOR FARMERS

New sources of income for farmers in many sections of the country are promised, if Congress approves a unanimous recommendation just made by a conference of all interested sportsmen's organizations and game commissioners in the United States. Particular advantages are indicated for owners of lands not suitable for heavy cultivation, and lands along streams and bodies of water.

The recommendation provides for a federal tax of one cent on every shotgun shell, to be expended to increase upland game and waterfowl control of breeding and refuge areas. The estimated yield of the tax is $7,000,000 yearly, to be divided 55 per cent to the various state game departments according to the number of hunting licenses issued in each state, and 45 per cent to be expended by federal agencies.

The anticipated large increase in upland game and waterfowl will result in several different opportunities for farmers to profit. In areas suited to game development, plenty of shooting will attract sportsmen who will pay for hunting rights on a per season, per day or per bird basis. Landowners and tenants will profit from opportunities to sell farm products direct to sportsmen, either during open season or by mail throughout the year. The boarding of hunting dogs, transportation and guiding of the hunters, use of land for training dogs and for field trials, are listed as income possibilities, in addition to the well-known advantages of wild life as destroyers of insect pests and weed seeds.

WE MUST NOT APE CHINA

China long ago set the world an example of disarmament. But it is not recorded that other old and great nations followed that example, as the pacifists assure us nations would if the United States would now lead the way in reducing arms.

Instead the great powers have humbled China, exploited her, held her beneath their boots, the while they wrangled over the spoils. Today finds China at war, although Japan does not choose to so classify the use of her ships and men. Outraged, shelled, invaded, China is nearly helpless. Her peaceful nature has been her undoing.

While she is being attacked and subdued, the other great powers look on anxiously, but, it will be noticed, in any demand for a poor China in her distress, but fearful lest their own interests there be endangered by the disturbance.

The United States must never become another China. It must never frustrate or frustrate itself at the feet of less idealistic nations, which would not hesitate to take every advantage of its comparative defencelessness.

The United States must maintain a navy and an army that will cause respect that will deter other powers from running wild on sprees of international lawlessness.

"THE ARMY . . . FOREVER!"

The prating pacifist and all enemies of the nation's military establishment will do well to carefully read the report just issued by Secretary of War Hurley, which gives a broad and intimate view of the normal function of the United States army as well as what it stands for and means in seasons of peace.

We are not at war—we seldom are in danger of becoming involved in war—but we need the army just the same, as the Secretary points out and as every sensible citizen not hired by some propagandist syndicate knows.

The United States army has little to do in the way of fighting—the traditional business of any army; but the direct and indirect service of the establishment is of supreme moment to the nation which supports it. It is the friend of the Red Cross; it is needed and employed in every instance of national, physical or social calamity.

As the Secretary said, it has built or bought nothing that was not directly in the public interest. It is the friend of unemployment relief, the savior in time of distress or danger. It is a true evangel of peace in that it has charge of the great program of public work outlined by the government—river and harbor and devastating flood control. And it works at its job while good citizens and detractors of the service sleep in security and peace. It employs thousands who would be otherwise out of work. Its discipline is an asset to the nation. It stands ready to guard and defend in time of war even those who deride and insult the flag it follows. Like the policeman of the cities, it fills a function making for public relief and public security. The individual who sneers at American militarism and American precautions for defense and the proper guardianship of the people is not an American citizen in the true sense of that term.—Portland Oregonian.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

It has been the opinion of a great many students of international affairs, from the time of George Washington down to the present, that the activities of the pacifists, who claim, and doubtless in most cases truthfully, that they detest war are in many ways calculated to promote rather than to discourage conflict. Many pacifists seem to think that by disarming America we might furnish an example to the rest of the world, thereby urging other nations to disarm. But practical men are of the opinion that this would only invite disaster to the United States and that its armament can only come by international agreement, with Uncle Sam in the meantime in duty bound to look carefully to his defensive armament.

But the latest activity of the pacifists seems along the line of a national boycott, a weapon which is dangerous to use on the most propitious occasion. At first many of our leading pacifists were urging that Uncle Sam engage in a boycott directed against Japan, in an effort to stop the present Sino-Japanese trouble. Our government will, of course, do nothing of the kind, because the responsible heads of our affairs realize that this would only involve us in serious trouble with Japan, since an official boycott is little less than an act of war. If the United States were to institute an official boycott, even with the cooperation of other powerful nations, which by the way, it would be almost impossible to get, Japan would be placed between two horns of a dilemma. The government of Japan could not yield without facing overthrow at home. Either it would have to declare war on the United States or face slow death by strangulation. In such event, there is little question as to what course Japan would pursue. The obvious plan would be to strike at America before the strangulation process started to become effective. Thus in attempting to end the trouble in China we would only succeed in involving our own country.

But now that an official boycott has gone by the board our own pacifists have taken up cudgels for an unofficial boycott, a sort of housewives' affair. It is announced that the American Boycott Association is preparing a nation-wide consumers' boycott against Japan and it is stated that this will have the backing of church, pacifist and international orders. Thus again do the pacifists and internationalists, seeking peace, point the way to war. These would-be boycotters do not realize that the reason Japan is making war on China today lies in just such an unofficial consumers boycott which the Chinese people have been waging against Japan, and the failure of the Chinese government to do anything about it. Were American consumers to attempt the same thing it would not be long until the Japanese might be calling Uncle Sam to stop this unofficial boycott. And failure to do so would undoubtedly lead to serious difficulties, because the Japanese government, as stated above, would prefer to risk the results of a sudden swift attack rather than perish through revolution or financial bankruptcy.

Of course there are other things which the pacifists have failed to take into consideration. These include our silk industry which employs 300,000 men and which would be paralyzed by such action and our trade with Japan which totals nearly a third of a billion dollars a year. But after all the important point is that the pacifists by seeking to stop the little war near Shanghai may only succeed in starting one which might spread into a conflagration involving all the big powers including the United States. It would be a sad day indeed were the dreamers and impractical theorists to gain control of the foreign policies of the United States. The further we go the more we can be convinced that Washington was right when he advised us to attend to our own business and keep out of foreign quarrels and disturbances.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Why Not Stop Kidding Ourselves?

Many of our pacifists profess to believe that America is the world's greatest obstacle to peace. The impression they seek to create is that only the blood-thirstily militarism of the United States prevents the entire world from disarming. Appropriations for maintaining our regular army are opposed and Jane Addams even insists on the dissolution of our National Guard. They raise loud outcry against the slight military training given to youth in some of our colleges and high schools. They insist that if the rest of the world doesn't beat its cannons into ploughshares Uncle Sam is all to blame because he doesn't use his moral guidance.

A recently published report of the Foreign Policy Association shows just how preposterous this pretense of American militarism is.

France has given a year or more of intensive military training since the World War to 3,000,000 men now in the first line reserve. This is in addition to a million men in the second line reserve. These men have all been conscripted and their training is not of the incidental sort given in our National Guard or in our colleges and secondary schools. They are fully equipped to be called into quick action. France has as many trained army officers as we have men in our regular army—a total of 106,000.

Little Czecho-Slovakia has been calling approximately a hundred thousand men a year for military training, and has a million men in her reserves.

Poland has conscripted from 150,000 to 190,000 men a year since the World War, and now has a reserve force of 1,709,000 trained soldiers.

Italy has conscripted each year between 224,000 and 250,000 men, and has a reserve force of some 2,500,000 trained men. All of the Allies and the new nations formed as the result of the war, excepting England, maintain this system of conscription and the building up of immense armed forces. Soviet Russia has a larger army of conscripts, active and reserve, than any other European power, besides several millions more who have received partial training.

We have in the United States a little more than 100,000 men actively receiving such training. About 50,000 of them are available for mobilization in continental United States. We have more than twice the population of any of the nations mentioned other than Soviet Russia and greater national wealth than all of them combined.

Yet we hear this constant caterwauling against our comparatively insignificant military forces, not adequate to quell an insurrection of any size, not to mention national defense proportionate to what we have to guard in case of involvement in war. And while we do not expect war, neither

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Geo. F. Brown, H. Lee Iddings, E. H. Greer, J. W. Harris and A. Buttars went to Petoskey today to attend the banquet of Ivanhoe Commandery Knights Templar that occurs there tonight.

Charlevoix county is to be congratulated on the fact that A. B. Nicholas is public prosecutor. The chief aim of Mr. Nicholas is to keep down the criminal calendar when it can be done with due regard for the administration of justice, but cinch he gets a case in court, he shows the stuff he is made of. In the recent term he convicted every case in the calendar. A significant fact is that no attorney for defense ever attacks the prosecutors papers or information. We repeat, Charlevoix county is fortunate in having A. B. Nicholas for public prosecutor.

James Cameron is the new president of Central Lake and Ira Adkins will preside over the welfare of Bellair the coming year.

In accordance with the ordinance just adopted by the council, there will be no more blowing of whistles in Charlevoix harbor, except as required by the laws of navigation and for bridge signals.

SCHOOL NOTES

The high school room looked green on the 17th of March.

The tenth grade English begin the study of Julius Caesar this week.

The Physics class have completed electricity and now take up the study of sound.

The ninth grade English class were requested to write a catharine of themselves. The following is one which a young lady of the class wrote: "I am a rose of Sharon, a lily of the valley, as a lily among thorns so am I among all daughters. Behold! I am fair! My appearance is like Lebanon, excellent as the cedars; my statue is like two palm trees; my head upon me is carmel—it is of most fine gold; my hair is like a flock of goats, it holds rings captive in the tresses therein; my eyes are like doves beside the water brooks; my temples are like a piece of pomegranate; my nose is like the tower of Lebanon, which looketh towards Damascus; my teeth are like a flock of sheep newly shorn; my lips are like a thread of scarlet and my mouth is comely; my cheeks are as a bed of scarlet.

Forty Years Ago

MEMORIES

The Scribe Reviews Recollections of The Past—Persons and Events

The scribe knows that "the dead past should bury its dead", that the realities of the present give us ample occupation and the future beckons us onward and upward. But there is much in the past that gives inspiration for the future. The scribe is not a "pre-historic antiquity", but he reaches back to the Emmet County age, and has trod the path hither by the side of veterans of the Mormon epoch, passing many mile-stones in local history.

* * *

What changes could obliterate memories of the past! Many of the old faces have gone, but the paths they walked are here, the old home has hinged yet swing open to those who remain, the work of their hands is still visible and although the substance has faded the shadows yet remain. The scribe sees them passing before his mental vision, perfect in every characteristic that marked them in life.

* * *

The scribe remembers vividly that illustrious character of local history—Hon. Philo Beers—in his day the "prophet, priest and king" of a subservient realm. His fatherly qualities and benign smile gave him the soubriquet of "Pop." The little post office and drug-store over which he was the presiding genius, was the star-chamber where gathered the baons of the kingdom. Uncle Philo embraced in his person many functions, to all of which he gave a dignified personality distinctively his own. His knowledge of the "statoot" was not confined to that found in law books. He had originality. Judge Ramsdell used to say of him that he could stand before a justice court jury and read law that, while it carried all the ancient style of legal diction, could not be found in any book printed since the world was made. And the look of solemn honesty that shone on that venerable face carried conviction to the minds of those six men good and true. The scribe sees him now, as he used to stand with his hands in the pockets of his "barn-door" trousers, spouting words of wisdom upon some subject of local import. In most matters he was a czar to whom the little community rendered cheerful homage. Kind-hearted, benevolent, quick to resent, and quicker to forgive; storm at you today and cheerfully lend you $10 tomorrow. Ever ready to help the unfortunate, and equally as ready to vote the Democratic ticket on every occasion.

* * *

The scribe was a boy, and Uncle Philo old enough to be his grandfather, yet between the two there existed a cordiality of friendship that is now a happy memory. The scribe and a few older boys on one memorable occasion, exhausted the melon crop of an honored citizen. Uncle Philo stored the fruit in a barrel behind his counter, and would stand by that historic east window, with a countenance as solemn as a chief justice, and watch for the approach of those not "in it," giving a timely warning of impending danger. His explanation of the melon seeds upon the floor carried as great conviction as did his rendering of the law. With his lanky grandson upon his shoulder he would pace the floor and formulate the next spring's township ticket or talk of the virtues of Samuel J. Tilden, while baby's hands were fast-fixed to his hoary locks.

* * *

The scribe remembers well how he frowned and stormed and impreated when Dennis T. Downing of Little Traverse fame, disputed his sway and purloined the records of Emmet county from Charlevoix, then the county seat. You could only think of an emperor deprived by force and arms of a province. The variety and originality of the names applied to that fracas by Uncle Philo, and the embellishments thrown in, would have given Downing a stroke of apoplexy had he heard them, in the infant days of Charlevoix county, after Downing was "drowned", all roads led to Philo Beers, as in ancient days they led to Rome. No project that was not born in the old postoffice and no conspiracy against the crown that did not wither under the displeasure of our Richelieu. The new preacher, who, in his first sermon in the old school house under the hill, foolishly proclaimed himself "a Republican and an anti-Mason" never prospered on this charge because Uncle Philo so decreed.

* * *

The scribe can conjure up no greater contrast between those times and these than to look today in memory into the little "hole-in-the-wall" that constituted the postoffice. The old one-armed Indian mail-carrier arrives upon his semi-weekly trip with the pouch in a "mish-kan-ah-kon" upon his back. Uncle Philo leisurely continues his argument or narrative, meanwhile adjusting his spectacles and assorting the mail, omitting not one link of argument or word of story. We sit upon the counter or crowd into the little office, seizing our letters as they appear or helping ourselves to stamps. You could smoke in the post office then, and the old man would help you to a match during the mail hour. There was no hurry then; and if a stray reporter came now and then as they did, they took things as they did, they took things as they came, as the rest of us did.

* * *

There were many sorrowful faces the morning that the great big heart of Philo Beers ceased to throb. For many years we missed his wise counsels and his generous nature. The scribe well remembers his prophecies and could the old man look today upon the changes that two decades have wrought, his sturdy old soul would rejoice with ours. In his day the wood-scows were about the only carrying craft that navigated the river, yet he foresaw the commerce of today. He saw only the beginning of what he knew was the ultimate destiny of Charlevoix.

Now bore for water—you might strike gas, oil, coal or mineral water.

We don't care a ding-dang for anybody. We are on deck and all hands hold of the lanyards!

Just as soon as you can get to a hydrant turn the hose on these men who said Charlevoix was a dead town.

We are informed that the Silsby fire engine dropped her tongue and swallowed her cud, when the waterworks vote was counted Monday night.

It is a question which subject has been uppermost in the public mind the past winter—water works or police. But now police takes a back seat.

We learn with sorrow of the death in Philadelphia lately of Rev. Father Logue, who has spent several years on Beaver Island. He was a nephew of Rev. Father Gallagher, and a gentleman of fine attainments.

The question now absorbing the public mind, in connection with the water-works is from whence will the supply be taken? There are three sources from which to choose—Lake Michigan, Pine Lake, and a cluster of wells. We shall not discuss the merits of either, but venture the opinion that, with an eye to the future, and the question of pure water, wells will be the most feasible plan. This matter will, no doubt, be thoroughly investigated.

There is one feature of the result of the vote on water-works, that will be conceded by all, and from which all will reap the benefit, and that is the activity which will result from the construction of the plant the coming summer. It is estimated that between $7,000 and $8,000 will be expended here for labor. This, in addition to the activity that will prevail by reason of railroad construction, the building of depots, etc., will make a lively summer for Charlevoix We predict the liviest summer in the history of Charlevoix.

The Herald says Capt. "Tip" Miller of Point Betsey is a liar. The recklessness of the editor is due to the statement of Capt. Miller that he caught 400 perch without changing his bait. Knowing "Tip" as we do we will accept his story as true for two reasons. He is a truthful man, and, even did we doubt the statement, we would be backward about calling him a liar, even if he is 100 miles from us. Tip will take a lay-off and go around among some of these editors who have been questioning his veracity.

Fifty Years Ago

The sash and door factory is again in full blast.

Timber on the ground for the new livery stable.

Robert Miller is preparing to enlarge the Bridge Street House.

Ed. Bedford goes into the Milwaukee Life Saving Crew April 1st.

The G. R. & I. R. R. is to be completed to the Straits June 15th.

Isaac Mills and Alex. Cameron are to build new residences on Mason street this spring.

A scheme is on foot to divide the township of Eveline, setting up a new town on this side of the Arm.

The board of supervisors for Manistee county have voted to remove the county seat from Mackinac Island to St. Ignace.

The steamer Nellie Booth is to be repaired and put in shape for business. Capt. J. M. Thompson will have command of her.

Mr. Taylor, the gardener at Hon. J. S. Dixon's hat house, sends us a quantity of salad. Thanks.

L. D. Bartholomew has been appointed special Deputy to institute a Lodge of Odd Fellows at South Arm, to be called Jordan River Lodge.

T. D. Smith's hall is now completed and is a fine room. It is finished in good style and for medium sized gatherings or dances, it is just the thing.

The merchants of Harbor Springs have formed a "Board of Trade" to establish a uniformity of prices. In other words they have "put up a job" on the trading public.

A. B. Upright has an architect at work on plans for his new residence. It will be one of the finest dwellings in town. It is to have a mansard roof. Work will be commenced as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

The corporation of Charlevoix has 200 voters, besides many who have not yet declared their intentions to become citizens. This at the usual

(Continued on last page.)

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

do we expect cyclones, and yet occasionally they come regardless of whether they are invited, or wanted, or not.

We do not wish or intend to maintain in this country such armies as are kept up in Europe. But in view of the disparity between our military force and that of these other powers, why is it that this is the only country in the world, other than England, in which there is a formidable movement to get rid of what military defense we have?

This thought, too, occurs to many Americans. If these nations can afford to withdraw from productive occupations so many millions of men at great expense, why so much talk about Europe being too poor to pay the debts they owe this country? The man who rides around in an expensive automobile and then declines that he can't pay his grocery bill hardly expects to get a respectful hearing from his creditors.

Now everybody knows that France, Italy, Poland, Soviet Russia and the smaller nations of Europe have no more intention of disarming than they have of taking wings like a dove and flying to the South Pole. Only those who lack in comprehension of realities in Europe believe that those nations either want to or intend to disarm. Asking them to disarm is like urging a wildcat to file his nails.

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

LEGAL NOTICES

BRIDGE STREET SEWER EXTENSION, DISTRICT NO. 44

Notice of Special Assessment

To Percy Edwards, Floyd A. Hull, Stephen Smith, Ernest Howe, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Jennie Withers, Lillian Saunders and to all other persons interested, take notice: That the roll of the special assessment heretofore made by the board of assessors for the purpose of defraying that part of the cost which the council decided should be paid by the special assessment for the grading and paving of a part of Bridge Street with concrete pavement from the south line of Belvidere Avenue south to a point thirty-three feet south of the north line of West Carpenter Avenue forty feet in width, including the necessary curbing, gutters, manholes, cross walks, storm water sewerage and appurtenances is now on file in my office for public inspection.

Notice is also hereby given that the common council and board of assessors of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room in said City on Monday, the 28th day of March A. D. 1932 at seven-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, Central Standard Time, to review said assessment, at which time and place opportunity will be given all persons interested to be heard. Dated March 8th, A. D. 1932.

R. Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

4662

BRIDGE STREET PAVING, DISTRICT NO. 45

Notice of Special Assessment

To Mattie Armstrong, Lyman Bronson, Lydia Bennett, J. P. Adams, J. Weikel Estate, Charles Hemrick, Charles A. Taylor, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mary E. Chaweau A. Sons Inc. Matt Gearing, William H. Wagner, George W. and W. H. Evans, Archie Aiken, Charles Ashdon, Nellie Ashdon, Hatty McHugh, Thos. Lee Carey, Louis Dubowski, Charles Gidley, Edward Sweet, Peter McDonald, Marietta McFarland, Walter Taylor, Ella L. Taylor, William Benson, John Reynolds, Philip Lemieux, The Catholic Church, Morris Arkett, Mrs. Morris Arkett, John Arkett, Perry Smith Wills Cone, Percy Edwards, Floyd Hull, Medrina Seymour, Mrs. Medrina Seymour, Henry Hartley, Amy Bronson, Frank Cleary, Mrs. Frank Cleary, Henry Hibbon, Frank Conta, Sr., Frank Noble, Anna McNulty, Ernest Howe, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Stephen Smith, Jennie Withers, Lillian Saunders and to all other persons interested, take notice:

That the roll of the special assessment heretofore made by the board of assessors for the purpose of defraying that part of the cost which the council decided should be paid by the special assessment for the grading and paving of a part of Bridge Street with concrete pavement from the south line of Belvidere Avenue south to a point thirty-three feet south of the north line of West Carpenter Avenue forty feet in width, including the necessary curbing, gutters, manholes, cross walks, storm water sewerage and appurtenances is now on file in my office for public inspection.

Notice is also hereby given that the common council and board of assessors of the city of Charlevoix will meet at the council room in said City on Monday, the 28th day of March A. D. 1932 at seven-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, Central Standard Time, to review said assessment, at which time and place opportunity will be given all persons interested to be heard. Dated March 8th, A. D. 1932.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

4662

REGISTRATION NOTICE

Annual City Election to Be Held April 4, 1932.

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the Michigan Election Law, I, the undersigned City Clerk will upon any day except Sunday and such holiday, the day of Annual City Election, receive for Registration the name of any legal voter in said City not already registered, who may apply to me personally for such registration.

Provided, however, that I can receive no name for Registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before the day of Election.

You are further notified, that I will be in my office Tuesday, March 15, 1932, the Twentieth Day preceding said Election from 8:00 A. M. until 9:00 P. M. that day for the purpose of registering such of the qualified electors in said City as shall properly apply therefor.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

By Wilma Novotny, Deputy City Clerk. 4662

ORDER APPOINTING TIME FOR HEARING OF CLAIMS

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

In the matter of the estate of Sarah Elizabeth Anderson, Deceased.

At a session of said Court, held in the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said county, on the 26th day of January, 1932.

Present: Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Probate Judge.

The above estate having been submitted to probate and Harriet Mary Block having been appointed Executrix.

It is Ordered, That four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate for examination and adjustment, and that all creditors of said deceased, are required to present their claims to said Court, at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix, on or before the 27th day of June, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time claims will be heard.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

4663

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Default for more than 60 days having been made in the payment of principal and interest in the Real Estate Mortgage given by Josephine Scullin to the undersigned, under date of August 18th, A. D. 1928, and which was recorded September 19th, A. D. 1928, in Liber 82 of Mortgages on page 254 in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and the Mortgage Title thereon having been paid on account by assessment, and no suit or other proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the amounts secured thereby.

Notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises therein described, viz: Lot 21 and the west 4 feet of Lot 22 of Block Nine of the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold at public auction or vendue to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, that being the place where the circuit court for said county is held, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due thereon, which, at the date hereof, including a $15.00 Attorney fee, is the sum of $1141.70.

Dated December 10th, 1931.

H. W. Winkfield, Mortgagee
Charlevoix, Mich.

E. A. Ruegsegger,
Atty. for Mortgagee
Address: Charlevoix, Mich. 35x13

NOTICE OF CHANCERY SALE—

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, in Chancery.

Gelk C. Geukes, Plaintiff vs Elizabeth M. Geukes, Defendant.

In pursuance of a decree of said Court, dated 27th day of June 1931 in said cause, said suit having been filed on the 20th day of April 1931, whereby I am commanded to sell at public vendue, at the East front door of the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the 10th day of March, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the said real property described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by virtue of said decree, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.

Notice is hereby given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the East front door of the Court house in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, said court house being the place for holding the circuit court for said county), on 10th March, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, all or so much thereof as may be necessary of the said real property described, to raise the amount due to said plaintiff by virtue of said decree, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from date of said decree.

The premises to be sold are described as follows: Lot Number One Hundred and ninety-two of Upright and Hoffhan's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Register of Deed's Office in Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Dated at Charlevoix, Michigan, January 19th, 1932.

DAVID VAUGHAN, Appointed Special Commissioner to make said sale.

Business Address, Charlevoix, Michigan.

LISLE SHANAHAN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Business address, 108 Clinton St.
Charlevoix, Mich. 4657

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large or small lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy exchange property. Sentinel office. 18tf

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
316 Bridge Street
Hours—8:00 to 12:00, 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 186 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — Willing to Learn

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne — Bronx Salute

Not Bullet Proof — Along the Concrete

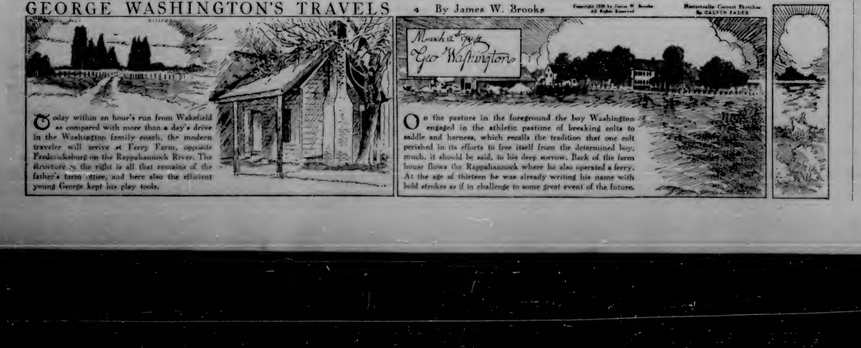
MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe — They Get That Way

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks



Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Use as cream and dust as powder. The medicated gold skin, and wash off pimples with an astringent. Then apply Mercolized Wax over the surface. Skin is clean and fresh. Continue this at night. Use Mercolized Wax to keep the skin free from blackheads, whiteheads, pimples, freckles, tan, sallowness or liver spots. Directions in package. Any druggist can supply you. Full treatment sufficient for most purposes, $1.75.

Free Enlargement With Every Roll of Films Send 10c for mailing. Quick service. Mail to: La Crosse Film Service — La Crosse, Wis.

America's Oldest Radio School — RCA Institutes — Offers you a thorough training in radio by home-study, shop-method, servicing, operating. Day and evening classes at 4 Avenues. Send for catalog. RCA INSTITUTES, INC. Dept. 1, 75 Varick St., New York City

Head stuffed with Catarrh

Put this cream up nostrils —brings instant relief

If your head's all stuffed up and you're fighting for breath just put a little ELY'S CREAM BALM up each nostril and relief comes almost instantly—relief that lasts for 10 hours or more! This cleansing, antiseptic is so remarkably good because it penetrates and actually clears out every air passage in the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen tissue and immediately enables you to breathe freely. Try it for clogged nose, Catarrh or head colds. WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

Easy to darken GRAY HAIR this quick way

so naturally nobody'll know

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair so naturally, so quickly remove no original shade by the world's finest, safe way which is now keeping millions of head's young looking. Besides the hair is not dyed, you fix the shade you want. As simple as brushing. Try it. Buy drug-gist Zacher's large bottled WYTHE'S SAGE & SULPHUR and just follow easy directions.

Do You Feel Like a RAG?

Do you get up in the morning with a tired feeling and drag yourself through the day? Do you lack pep—energy? Is it the warning sign of constipation, Dagmar says in serious words, take 2 or more of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They are a gentle, mild, and dependable safe laxative. Made of nature's pure herbs and roots, they help weight and bring back your pep—at all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS — Mild a Gentle Laxative

New York Led

New York state led the most men in the World war, approximately 400,000.

HIGH PRAISE FOR DR. PIERCE

Terre Haute, Ind. — I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery and I am glad to say that I have taken the Golden Medical Discovery and I am glad to say that I have taken two remedies above anything that has been ever been placed on the market," said Mrs. Hattie Cable of 919 Copeland St. "No woman can take the 'Favorite Prescription' without feeling good benefit, and as a blood medicine, my husband says Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is superior to anything else." Sold by all druggists.

Every package of Dr. Pierce's Family Remedies contains the Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 pages, 700 illustrations. Send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only, for free medical advice. Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

Mothers... Watch CHILDREN'S COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance! At the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for the first hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

The famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief quickly. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—it not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little ones. All druggists.

CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE

Capture

Host: "Then engagement was quite a surprise."
Hostess—"It was on to her!"

Dinner Dialogue

"They're going to put a salon in on upper deck."
"Then, gosh, we'd better buy our tills now."

Here's Another Stab at Age of "Mother Earth"

One of the most remarkable discoveries of recent years is the radioactive method, which greatly and quickly changes late fresh, says London Tit-Bits. This is at which the process is carried out is well known, and it is invariable. By taking metal which emitters both uranium and heat and feeling the proportion of each metal now existing in them, the length of time necessary to bring about the present state of affairs is not difficult to calculate. Such a calculation shows that the earth must have been solid not far short of two thousand million years ago.

The paths of the stars around the sun and the moon around the earth are not what they were originally. Science can demonstrate them and foretell the time exactly by gazing from their present shapes.

All of these methods show that the age of the earth must be more than two thousand million years and less than four thousand million years. We shall, then, not be far wrong if we fix the earth's birthday at about two thousand million years ago.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "dime"!

Every child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleaning at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gives the world formula for keeping the body's mind proper. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin with senna, and fresh herbs is a thing stimulant that makes the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children, or if they are cross and weary, they have it all ready in the bottom.

Short-Sighted Germans

Statistics derived from drawing blind numbers of the German government show that Germans are very frequently so unfortunate as the "Liquid of the Shortsighted." No, where else in the world is there so much short-sightedness as in Germany. Nearly one-half of the people of the land of Fatherland are short-sighted, that is, out of nearly 1,000 persons, more than 400 are afflicted with eyesight. Some have a woman's short sight is a Woman Inability Vision.

Large percentage of short-sighted people. Of the German people about 40 per cent are short-sighted, about 30 per cent have a slight short-sightedness, and only 30 per cent have normal vision. In the United States only 25 per cent of the people are short-sighted.

Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things. The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be as many sick spells of colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, or kept regulated.

Get some Syrup Pepsin, protect your household from those illness days. Forgotten headaches and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need cleaning out. Keep this preparation on the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause colonic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in the bottom.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of a Disordered Kidney or Bladder Condition

NEED prompt a nagging backache, with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition.

Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your druggist has Doan's.

Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

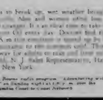
Nice Bit of Work

Flynn: "Did you catch the way Tom sorted wats that young miss was performing?"
Dooley: "No. I'll trade a freshened with a frosty. Now, you're on."

Generosity Wanted

"Is that an expensive gown to you, my dear?"
"No. I'll trade a freshened with a frosty. Now, you're on. Tom for a man with a generous way to thought I do it was—once."

Fight those colds!



Warm winter begins to break up, wet weather brings on a flood of accompanying colds. Men and women avoid this misery by taking extra care of themselves. Scott's Emulsion helps to build up body resistance. It enriches the blood and helps to ward off colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, as kiddy favorite!

Scott's Emulsion

OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

At the Hockey Match

Husband to his friend—That goal number was 8 to 7 to 5 to 3 to 1 to 0 to 1 to 3 to 5 to 7 to 8 to 9 to 10 to 11 to 12 to 13 to 14 to 15 to 16 to 17 to 18 to 19 to 20 to 21 to 22 to 23 to 24 to 25 to 26 to 27 to 28 to 29 to 30 to 31 to 32 to 33 to 34 to 35 to 36 to 37 to 38 to 39 to 40 to 41 to 42 to 43 to 44 to 45 to 46 to 47 to 48 to 49 to 50 to 51 to 52 to 53 to 54 to 55 to 56 to 57 to 58 to 59 to 60 to 61 to 62 to 63 to 64 to 65 to 66 to 67 to 68 to 69 to 70 to 71 to 72 to 73 to 74 to 75 to 76 to 77 to 78 to 79 to 80 to 81 to 82 to 83 to 84 to 85 to 86 to 87 to 88 to 89 to 90 to 91 to 92 to 93 to 94 to 95 to 96 to 97 to 98 to 99 to 100 to 101 to 102 to 103 to 104 to 105 to 106 to 107 to 108 to 109 to 110 to 111 to 112 to 113 to 114 to 115 to 116 to 117 to 118 to 119 to 120 to 121 to 122 to 123 to 124 to 125 to 126 to 127 to 128 to 129 to 130 to 131 to 132 to 133 to 134 to 135 to 136 to 137 to 138 to 139 to 140 to 141 to 142 to 143 to 144 to 145 to 146 to 147 to 148 to 149 to 150 to 151 to 152 to 153 to 154 to 155 to 156 to 157 to 158 to 159 to 160 to 161 to 162 to 163 to 164 to 165 to 166 to 167 to 168 to 169 to 170 to 171 to 172 to 173 to 174 to 175 to 176 to 177 to 178 to 179 to 180 to 181 to 182 to 183 to 184 to 185 to 186 to 187 to 188 to 189 to 190 to 191 to 192 to 193 to 194 to 195 to 196 to 197 to 198 to 199 to 200 to 201 to 202 to 203 to 204 to 205 to 206 to 207 to 208 to 209 to 210 to 211 to 212 to 213 to 214 to 215 to 216 to 217 to 218 to 219 to 220 to 221 to 222 to 223 to 224 to 225 to 226 to 227 to 228 to 229 to 230 to 231 to 232 to 233 to 234 to 235 to 236 to 237 to 238 to 239 to 240 to 241 to 242 to 243 to 244 to 245 to 246 to 247 to 248 to 249 to 250 to 251 to 252 to 253 to 254 to 255 to 256 to 257 to 258 to 259 to 260 to 261 to 262 to 263 to 264 to 265 to 266 to 267 to 268 to 269 to 270 to 271 to 272 to 273 to 274 to 275 to 276 to 277 to 278 to 279 to 280 to 281 to 282 to 283 to 284 to 285 to 286 to 287 to 288 to 289 to 290 to 291 to 292 to 293 to 294 to 295 to 296 to 297 to 298 to 299 to 300 to 301 to 302 to 303 to 304 to 305 to 306 to 307 to 308 to 309 to 310 to 311 to 312 to 313 to 314 to 315 to 316 to 317 to 318 to 319 to 320 to 321 to 322 to 323 to 324 to 325 to 326 to 327 to 328 to 329 to 330 to 331 to 332 to 333 to 334 to 335 to 336 to 337 to 338 to 339 to 340 to 341 to 342 to 343 to 344 to 345 to 346 to 347 to 348 to 349 to 350 to 351 to 352 to 353 to 354 to 355 to 356 to 357 to 358 to 359 to 360 to 361 to 362 to 363 to 364 to 365 to 366 to 367 to 368 to 369 to 370 to 371 to 372 to 373 to 374 to 375 to 376 to 377 to 378 to 379 to 380 to 381 to 382 to 383 to 384 to 385 to 386 to 387 to 388 to 389 to 390 to 391 to 392 to 393 to 394 to 395 to 396 to 397 to 398 to 399 to 400 to 401 to 402 to 403 to 404 to 405 to 406 to 407 to 408 to 409 to 410 to 411 to 412 to 413 to 414 to 415 to 416 to 417 to 418 to 419 to 420 to 421 to 422 to 423 to 424 to 425 to 426 to 427 to 428 to 429 to 430 to 431 to 432 to 433 to 434 to 435 to 436 to 437 to 438 to 439 to 440 to 441 to 442 to 443 to 444 to 445 to 446 to 447 to 448 to 449 to 450 to 451 to 452 to 453 to 454 to 455 to 456 to 457 to 458 to 459 to 460 to 461 to 462 to 463 to 464 to 465 to 466 to 467 to 468 to 469 to 470 to 471 to 472 to 473 to 474 to 475 to 476 to 477 to 478 to 479 to 480 to 481 to 482 to 483 to 484 to 485 to 486 to 487 to 488 to 489 to 490 to 491 to 492 to 493 to 494 to 495 to 496 to 497 to 498 to 499 to 500 to 501 to 502 to 503 to 504 to 505 to 506 to 507 to 508 to 509 to 510 to 511 to 512 to 513 to 514 to 515 to 516 to 517 to 518 to 519 to 520 to 521 to 522 to 523 to 524 to 525 to 526 to 527 to 528 to 529 to 530 to 531 to 532 to 533 to 534 to 535 to 536 to 537 to 538 to 539 to 540 to 541 to 542 to 543 to 544 to 545 to 546 to 547 to 548 to 549 to 550 to 551 to 552 to 553 to 554 to 555 to 556 to 557 to 558 to 559 to 560 to 561 to 562 to 563 to 564 to 565 to 566 to 567 to 568 to 569 to 570 to 571 to 572 to 573 to 574 to 575 to 576 to 577 to 578 to 579 to 580 to 581 to 582 to 583 to 584 to 585 to 586 to 587 to 588 to 589 to 590 to 591 to 592 to 593 to 594 to 595 to 596 to 597 to 598 to 599 to 600 to 601 to 602 to 603 to 604 to 605 to 606 to 607 to 608 to 609 to 610 to 611 to 612 to 613 to 614 to 615 to 616 to 617 to 618 to 619 to 620 to 621 to 622 to 623 to 624 to 625 to 626 to 627 to 628 to 629 to 630 to 631 to 632 to 633 to 634 to 635 to 636 to 637 to 638 to 639 to 640 to 641 to 642 to 643 to 644 to 645 to 646 to 647 to 648 to 649 to 650 to 651 to 652 to 653 to 654 to 655 to 656 to 657 to 658 to 659 to 660 to 661 to 662 to 663 to 664 to 665 to 666 to 667 to 668 to 669 to 670 to 671 to 672 to 673 to 674 to 675 to 676 to 677 to 678 to 679 to 680 to 681 to 682 to 683 to 684 to 685 to 686 to 687 to 688 to 689 to 690 to 691 to 692 to 693 to 694 to 695 to 696 to 697 to 698 to 699 to 700 to 701 to 702 to 703 to 704 to 705 to 706 to 707 to 708 to 709 to 710 to 711 to 712 to 713 to 714 to 715 to 716 to 717 to 718 to 719 to 720 to 721 to 722 to 723 to 724 to 725 to 726 to 727 to 728 to 729 to 730 to 731 to 732 to 733 to 734 to 735 to 736 to 737 to 738 to 739 to 740 to 741 to 742 to 743 to 744 to 745 to 746 to 747 to 748 to 749 to 750 to 751 to 752 to 753 to 754 to 755 to 756 to 757 to 758 to 759 to 760 to 761 to 762 to 763 to 764 to 765 to 766 to 767 to 768 to 769 to 770 to 771 to 772 to 773 to 774 to 775 to 776 to 777 to 778 to 779 to 780 to 781 to 782 to 783 to 784 to 785 to 786 to 787 to 788 to 789 to 790 to 791 to 792 to 793 to 794 to 795 to 796 to 797 to 798 to 799 to 800 to 801 to 802 to 803 to 804 to 805 to 806 to 807 to 808 to 809 to 810 to 811 to 812 to 813 to 814 to 815 to 816 to 817 to 818 to 819 to 820 to 821 to 822 to 823 to 824 to 825 to 826 to 827 to 828 to 829 to 830 to 831 to 832 to 833 to 834 to 835 to 836 to 837 to 838 to 839 to 840 to 841 to 842 to 843 to 844 to 845 to 846 to 847 to 848 to 849 to 850 to 851 to 852 to 853 to 854 to 855 to 856 to 857 to 858 to 859 to 860 to 861 to 862 to 863 to 864 to 865 to 866 to 867 to 868 to 869 to 870 to 871 to 872 to 873 to 874 to 875 to 876 to 877 to 878 to 879 to 880 to 881 to 882 to 883 to 884 to 885 to 886 to 887 to 888 to 889 to 890 to 891 to 892 to 893 to 894 to 895 to 896 to 897 to 898 to 899 to 900 to 901 to 902 to 903 to 904 to 905 to 906 to 907 to 908 to 909 to 910 to 911 to 912 to 913 to 914 to 915 to 916 to 917 to 918 to 919 to 920 to 921 to 922 to 923 to 924 to 925 to 926 to 927 to 928 to 929 to 930 to 931 to 932 to 933 to 934 to 935 to 936 to 937 to 938 to 939 to 940 to 941 to 942 to 943 to 944 to 945 to 946 to 947 to 948 to 949 to 950 to 951 to 952 to 953 to 954 to 955 to 956 to 957 to 958 to 959 to 960 to 961 to 962 to 963 to 964 to 965 to 966 to 967 to 968 to 969 to 970 to 971 to 972 to 973 to 974 to 975 to 976 to 977 to 978 to 979 to 980 to 981 to 982 to 983 to 984 to 985 to 986 to 987 to 988 to 989 to 990 to 991 to 992 to 993 to 994 to 995 to 996 to 997 to 998 to 999 to 1000

Not Catching

"That your husband, any industry?"
"No!" said Mrs. Flynn. "He has a good job, and I'm a good cook, and I have two children, and everything is all right."

NEURALGIA

THE agonizing aches from neuralgia can be quieted in the same way you would end a headache. Take some Bayer Aspirin. Take enough to bring complete relief. Genuine aspirin can't hurt anybody.

Men and women bent with rheumatism will find the same wonderful comfort in these tablets. They aren't just for headaches or colds! Read the proven directions covering a dozen other pains, neuritis, sciatica; lumbago; muscular pains.

Only, stamp days which penetrate to the very bones have lost their terror for those who carry Bayer Aspirin! All druggists, in the familiar little box:

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin — Genuine

WORLD'S DEBT TO WHITMAN AS POET

Modern Writers Fulfilling His Prophecy.

American poetry in the still young Twentieth century underwent momentous changes of mood and heart. We have witnessed a renaissance, a new birth, almost a revitalization, which is not punished, but is in vigorous progress.

It is a disaster in the complex chronicle of thought, culture, life of our time; it is a beautiful, vital, heartening chapter in a record each of which is not lovely, as many of the poets have felt and sadly sung. They have done much to interpret and redress the evil and to glorify the good.

Our poets are intensely American without being provincial, modern as this morning's sun, but not ignorant of man's olden traditions or unaware of the timeless values. Even when there is no visible trace in them of Whitman's form and individual thought, many of them are fulfilling in their private ways the prophecy which he made of poets to come after him, the declaration of independence which he pugnaciously announced and of which he was in his own time the solitary signer.

It is our generation—not the decades before us, not the ones who were children during his maturity—that first has come understand Whitman. He set American verse free long before "free verse" was talked about. It was the air in the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen tissue and immediately enables you to breathe freely. Try it for clogged nose, Catarrh or head colds. WORKS LIKE A CHARM! All druggists sell it.

Dinner Dialogue

"They're going to put a salon in on upper deck."
"Then, gosh, we'd better buy our tills now."

Easy to darken GRAY HAIR this quick way

so naturally nobody'll know

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair so naturally, so quickly remove no original shade by the world's finest, safe way which is now keeping millions of head's young looking. Besides the hair is not dyed, you fix the shade you want. As simple as brushing. Try it. Buy drug-gist Zacher's large bottled WYTHE'S SAGE & SULPHUR and just follow easy directions.

Capture

Host: "Then engagement was quite a surprise."
Hostess—"It was on to her!"

Do You Feel Like a RAG?

Do you get up in the morning with a tired feeling and drag yourself through the day? Do you lack pep—energy? Is it the warning sign of constipation, Dagmar says in serious words, take 2 or more of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They are a gentle, mild, and dependable safe laxative. Made of nature's pure herbs and roots, they help weight and bring back your pep—at all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS — Mild a Gentle Laxative

New York Led

New York state led the most men in the World war, approximately 400,000.

HIGH PRAISE FOR DR. PIERCE

Terre Haute, Ind. — I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery and I am glad to say that I have taken the Golden Medical Discovery and I am glad to say that I have taken two remedies above anything that has been ever been placed on the market," said Mrs. Hattie Cable of 919 Copeland St. "No woman can take the 'Favorite Prescription' without feeling good benefit, and as a blood medicine, my husband says Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is superior to anything else." Sold by all druggists.

Every package of Dr. Pierce's Family Remedies contains the Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 pages, 700 illustrations. Send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only, for free medical advice. Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

Down on the Farm

"Throwing dirt on spuds, Hiram?"
"Naw, these are young trees. I'm growing long-legged ones."

Mothers... Watch CHILDREN'S COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance! At the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for the first hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

The famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief quickly. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—it not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little ones. All druggists.

CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE

To Bring Back Prosperity

BY CALVIN COOLIDGE

If all the money in the country were divided equally—

—how much would you get?

ONE of the serious results that come from the experience through which our country has been passing for the past two years is a loss of faith. Because some have put their trust in things which they have found do not always endure they draw the hasty and unwarranted conclusion that it is useless to have faith in anything. They propose to economize all spending, work only the easiest course, and live entirely for the present, as we slowly lose all we will eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die.

It cannot be denied that many people have had an experience which at first thought seems to warrant such attitude. They had profitable employment on which they believed they could rely for a permanent income. That has gone, and they are unable to secure work. They had a home which ultimately they expected would be their own and would enable a home for themselves and their family. They have now, unable to level the payments due on it and have seen it taken from them. Others have found that investments on which they relied for the support of their old age have turned out to be of much less value than had been supposed. Some have met with losses through the talents of banks in which they had always deposited.

It is easy, in these circumstances, for the individual to conclude that these disasters have arisen through no fault of his own, that it must be the fault of someone, and let us pursue that something be handed to us. Sometimes a feeling of indignation remains in a threat of violence against constituted authority.

Among all these people, those who most encourage appeal to our sympathies. Those who have been victimized in false speculations are the ones who want more and cannot find it. It is the thing which has brought them to their situation. It is no new experience for a large number of the wage-earning people. Their condition has always been temporary. It will be temporary now. Surely the country will go back to work, back to production and consumption. The condition of the wage earner in America has always been the envy of all the rest of the world. Some hope dejected to depart from what has been and more comfortable contentment that the same again shall be.

But a new element has entered into the situation. Through the Federal Government, few have known anything about it, few have cared anything about it, and scarcely has done anything about it. Now the whole nation is aroused. There is a demand in the land where there is not an organization and active public effort for the relief of the unemployed. They will be cared for in an unprecedented way. We have had a tremendous spiritual awakening concerning our duty to relieve human suffering. It is true some people have been lost through methods of payments. That risk is always in existence where property is brought on credit. But even in this field, where one home has been lost, a thousand families have been retained. The owners, now find themselves securely and comfortably housed, with the protection in the long period saving and benefit when they find an income, instead of spending all their money for rents and experiencing no equity.

If all of those who have homes in the last twenty years could be dispossessed, it would be a calamity. But they have been benefited, as a class, they were distinctly better off than their neighbors.

The desire to build and own a home is one of the strongest motives in human nature. It is necessary to awaken from the dreamy age of to let participation and this is not likely to operate so strong a natural longing. But those who have given up the effort to despair or despond certainly must live somewhere or not in their own home, than in the home of someone else. Their real position in the world is disclosed by supposing that everyone else followed their example. The whole race would be without shelter, and we should be a generation.

Those who have come to the conclusion that they will do nothing to make themselves a home are injuring themselves most, but they are also injuring the whole community.

Any such scheme of things as their acquiescence would not be just nor effort. Various and reasons are both opposed to it.

When we examine the complaints of those who have lost through investments we find that they fall into three classes. Some have found they were plainly swindled. We are enacting more and more laws and setting up more and more regulations and safeguards to prevent a recurrence of such abuses. The purpose of all this thing is very old, and however has never been established from any commonsense where property was abundant. But business sentiment does wrong and does not prove. Our wise old standbys (trying to do right).

Others have sent poor judgment in investments. Thereby they have been tempted to take large risks by the lure of making large gains. Some did not make great profits, while many more suffered losses.

Those who trust to chance must abide by the result of chance. They have no legitimate complaint against anyone but themselves.

Still others using all the judgment possible for human beings and guided by the best financial advice obtainable, have seen their investments seriously impaired. But this already seems what everyone should know, that, even when surrounded by all the safeguards and all the integrity which it is possible to secure, the ownership of property involves a risk. No law, no regulation, no government supervision, no skill in management, has ever been devised that could protect the owners of property from fluctuation and occasional loss. Those are the hazards of our finite existence. Only omniscience can guard against them.

But that does not excuse us from making the most of what we have and doing the best we can.

While no one can tell with certainty what will happen to any particular property or what the market will be at any particular time, the best financial judgment expects that, while further losses may occur, sometime the general level of good standard properties will rise, so that some of the present losses will be restored. Future prices at which property will sell are always uncertain.

There is no one to be blamed for what is unavoidably true. The great fact of life is uncertainty. The only thing we can do is to recognize the uncertainty and govern ourselves accordingly.

It is true that a considerable number of possible have suffered through bank failures. In a time of declining prices the banks that have not been well managed always have difficulty. Some men that through no fault of their own have lost homes have been compelled to foreclose. But that does not mean a total loss to depositors. Sometimes the loss is heavy, but sometimes payment is made in full. In any case, funds are tied up and time is inconvenient, results.

Our national banking system is no sound as guarantees of experience has been able to make it. Most of the states follow a similar system. The nature of investments is regulated by law, and most banks are carefully supervised. Expert examiners visit frequently and insist on government agents. While absolute safety has been impossible to secure, it is probable that the records of modern deposits in properly regulated banks in this country would show over a course of years less than in the safest place to keep funds.

Banks are an absolutely necessity for the transaction of business. They provide the means of service of all of those using credit, extension of credit is the life blood of business. They are one of the most important of credit has been and continues to perform magnificent service.

Those who are engaged in hoarding currency are probably no safer as a class than those who keep their funds in the banks. They are depriving themselves and everybody else. They are in the position of not taking their part of the tasks of life and are trying to make themselves safe by letting others carry their risks for them.

If things be in great permanent comfort if we could be all the income for our investments and some survive outside ourselves. That is why it is easy to criticize some of the men we have not failed, but success has failed. Of course, it would follow that if society were to be limited for our fortunes that some society must be crushed with our successes. If we will to look at it that way we shall have to admit that on the whole society in this country has been very well be up. Our country, over its time of history, has been predominantly of a success.

But while there is a relationship of all of us which we term society, that differs from each of us just as a house differs from the materials of bricks in it; per people are not bricks, and every successful person is not a success. It must rest with the individual. The men we most admired were Paul and Jesus, Washington and Arnold, Lincoln and Twood, Edison and Ford, and Sandow.

If we are to be free to make our own choices in life, we must take the risk of being responsible for the results.

If we could lay the blame for present conditions to our own country or in the world of the stock at large, against whom is the blame to be assessed? It is impossible to point out any general moral fraud, any widespread dishonesty. We may go to the roots of greed and we find nations that what liberty is to be apportioned. Always men there? Were the wage earners responsible for getting all they could for their work? Were the managers of enterprise, by and little too greedy in trying to capitalize at a profit? Were the farmers too greedy in their efforts to make more money by taking more land and enlarging their production?

Every, if we could convict society on a general charge of wickedness, we could not point to any element that consciously brought about panics, failure of falling prices, unemployment, lack of confidence, business failures, and hard times. These were the ills things that everybody wanted. The most we can say is that there has been a general lack of judgment so widespread as to involve practically the whole country.

We have found out that we were not so big as we thought we were. We were riding too high. We shall have to keep nearer the ground. We may not feel as elated but we shall be much safer.

Economic well-being is very important, but perhaps it is not as important as we thought it was. If it is used as it ought to be, to minister to spiritual well-being, we cannot have too much of it. But if it is made a refuge for ministering greed and selfishness, idleness and ignorance,

Rinso

MILLIONS USE RINSO in tub, washer and dishpan

SEED Early Kansas Standard Alfalfa. Write for prices. Ft. Scott Seed Co., Ft. Scott, Kans. Also other seed lines. Our MACK McCULLOUGH Dallas, Kansas

Sunshine — All Winter Long

At the Foremost Desert Resort

A Mecca—marvelous climate—warm sunny days—clear starlit nights—dry invigorating air—splendid meals—gorgeous mountain scenes—direct rail de—the ideal winter resort. Write for a booklet.

PALM SPRINGS California

"This easy way gets clothes whiter"

Laura tells her friend

"IT'S a real shortcut way to do the wash. Just soak everything in thick Rinso suds—and forget about scrubbing. You don't even need to boil. Clothes come so white, you'll hardly believe your eyes! All you need to do is rinse."

Easy on clothes

The scrubless Rinso way saves the clothes. Spares the hands, too. And Rinso is a real shirt soap, one for every purpose—makes rich lather in hardest water, soft suds in softest water.

Great on washers, too. The makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. And nothing like it for safely washing all fabrics. Get the BIG package.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "dime"!

Every child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleaning at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gives the world formula for keeping the body's mind proper. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin with senna, and fresh herbs is a thing stimulant that makes the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children, or if they are cross and weary, they have it all ready in the bottom.

Short-Sighted Germans

Statistics derived from drawing blind numbers of the German government show that Germans are very frequently so unfortunate as the "Liquid of the Shortsighted." No, where else in the world is there so much short-sightedness as in Germany. Nearly one-half of the people of the land of Fatherland are short-sighted, that is, out of nearly 1,000 persons, more than 400 are afflicted with eyesight. Some have a woman's short sight is a Woman Inability Vision.

Large percentage of short-sighted people. Of the German people about 40 per cent are short-sighted, about 30 per cent have a slight short-sightedness, and only 30 per cent have normal vision. In the United States only 25 per cent of the people are short-sighted.

Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things. The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be as many sick spells of colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, or kept regulated.

Get some Syrup Pepsin, protect your household from those illness days. Forgotten headaches and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need cleaning out. Keep this preparation on the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause colonic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in the bottom.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of a Disordered Kidney or Bladder Condition

NEED prompt a nagging backache, with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition.

Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your druggist has Doan's.

Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

Nice Bit of Work

Flynn: "Did you catch the way Tom sorted wats that young miss was performing?"
Dooley: "No. I'll trade a freshened with a frosty. Now, you're on. Tom for a man with a generous way to thought I do it was—once."

Generosity Wanted

"Is that an expensive gown to you, my dear?"
"No. I'll trade a freshened with a frosty. Now, you're on. Tom for a man with a generous way to thought I do it was—once."

Fight those colds!

Warm winter begins to break up, wet weather brings on a flood of accompanying colds. Men and women avoid this misery by taking extra care of themselves. Scott's Emulsion helps to build up body resistance. It enriches the blood and helps to ward off colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, as kiddy favorite!

Scott's Emulsion

OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

At the Hockey Match

Husband to his friend—That goal number was 8 to 7 to 5 to 3 to 1 to 0 to 1 to 3 to 5 to 7 to 8 to 9 to 10 to 11 to 12 to 13 to 14 to 15 to 16 to 17 to 18 to 19 to 20 to 21 to 22 to 23 to 24 to 25 to 26 to 27 to 28 to 29 to 30 to 31 to 32 to 33 to 34 to 35 to 36 to 37 to 38 to 39 to 40 to 41

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 1:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week service, Thursday, 7:00 o'clock.
Morning Worship, 10:00.
Church School, 11:00.
Young People's Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

With next Sunday, Palm Sunday, we enter upon the most memorable and significant week in history. The Church has always known it as Holy Week, as hallowed by the deepest associations of the human heart through which a soul was delivered and as eternally sought as a goal by the one who would be saved. Palm Sunday, with appropriate services. The address for the morning sermon will be, "Hailing Your King."

The Junior Church will meet as usual at the Library at 1:30. Next Sunday will be the easter.

March 26th, the fourth Sabbath in March, will be observed as Rally Day. Plans are being made for a large attendance. Let us make it a day to remember.

Tickets must be purchased in advance for the Easter Banquet. Call Mrs. Hamlin for tickets or at the church.

Charlevoix county comes loose from Petoskey on Wednesday, March 30th, and will be annexed to Boyne City. Arrangements are being made for the churches of the county. There services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Those who attended the local service this year will be held at the Baptist church.

This service is one of those that will be held simultaneously in Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix. Nearly all the members of this county will be on one or more of the programs. Last year Charlevoix had the habit of Rev. Jens Haakenson, Rev. W. Hodenpyl, of East Jordan. Rev. Hodenpyl and Rev. Guy E. Smock of Boyne City. Two evangelists will be in the city now at the Baptist church, one at the Church of God, Rev. Blanch Varner. These two ministers will be present at the Rally Day to furnish the music of the occasion.

Charlevoix county comes loose from Petoskey on Wednesday, March 30th, and will be annexed to Boyne City. Arrangements are being made for the churches of the county. There services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Those who attended the local service this year will be held at the Baptist church.

This service is one of those that will be held simultaneously in Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix. Nearly all the members of this county will be on one or more of the programs. Last year Charlevoix had the habit of Rev. Jens Haakenson, Rev. W. Hodenpyl, of East Jordan. Rev. Hodenpyl and Rev. Guy E. Smock of Boyne City. Two evangelists will be in the city now at the Baptist church, one at the Church of God, Rev. Blanch Varner. These two ministers will be present at the Rally Day to furnish the music of the occasion.

The pastor plans to have a special meeting for the benefit of the following officers, viz.: Church mayor; 1 city clerk; 1 city treasurer; 1 park commissioner; 1 police commissioner; 1 alderman; 1 constable for each of the wards of the city.

Public Acts 1931

Determination by lot; procedure. In case it shall appear that two or more persons have an equal number of votes for the same office, for which but one person is to be nominated or elected and the same shall be the highest number of votes cast therefor, and no other provision is made in this act for determination of such tie, the board of canvassers, after notice to each of such candidates of a time and place therefor, shall determine the successful candidate by lot and shall declare and certify the same accordingly.

Relative to Opening and Closing of the Polls. Public Acts 1929—No. 308

Part IV—Chapter 3

Sec. 1.—On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, and shall be continued open until six o'clock in the afternoon and no longer; Provided, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon, and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day. Every qualified elector present and in line at the polls at the hour prescribed for the closing thereof shall be allowed to vote.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 6 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, at said day of election.

Dated March 8, 1932.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.
Wilma Novotny, Deputy City Clerk.
4781

STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix

In the matter of the petition of Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan, for condemnation of private property for public highway purposes in the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

At a session of said Court held at the Court House in the City of Charlevoix in said county on the 9th day of March, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ewan A. Ruegger, Probate Judge.

It appearing to the Court that Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan has this day filed in this court a petition praying for the appointment of three Court Commissioners to ascertain the damages to be paid as compensation for the taking of an easement for public highway purposes in, over and upon certain private premises therein described, and it appearing to the Court that the said Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan, did on the 25th day of December A. D. 1931, make and file in his office a written determination of the necessity of improving the highway known as trunk line road number US-31 in the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, by constructing the necessary grade and drainage structures and surfacing to a width of twenty feet of macadam or other suitable type of construction, and the necessity for securing an easement for public highway purposes in, over, and over the private property therein described, and the damages which in his opinion should be paid as compensation for the taking of said easement for said public highway purposes, in accordance with the provisions of Act 352, Public Acts 1925, as amended, and that all proceedings thereafter were in accordance with said Act as amended, and the said petitioner has taken or is about to take possession of the property described in said determination, over, and upon which it is necessary to acquire such easement for said public highway purposes, and the said petitioner has been unable to agree with the persons interested as owners or otherwise in any of the said described property on the amounts to be paid as compensation for such taking, that the description of said property and the names of the persons interested therein as owners or otherwise, so far as known, who reside in the County of Charlevoix and those persons mentioned in the attached descriptions as being residents of other counties, or states, are as follows:

Parcel No. 5—Sta. 54+92 to 56+70 T.&W.

A strip of land 100 ft. in width, lying 50 ft. each side of and adjacent to the centerline of US-31 as now surveyed over and across a parcel of land in the NW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co. Mich., said parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 50 feds S of NW corner of said Sec. 35; thence E 32 rods; thence N 16 rods; thence W 32 rods; thence N 16 rods to place of beg., Said centerline of US-31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence S 27° 00' W 1150.94 ft. to point of beg., thence continuing S 27° 00' W 1150 ft. to the centerline of the F. M. R. R. Spur, thence N along the centerline of said RR 300 ft. thence SE'ly 334 ft. more or less to the point of beg., except .6 56 ft. thereof and except that there is excepted from the above described parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence S 27° 00' W 1150.94 ft. to the centerline of the F. M. R. R. Spur, thence N along the centerline of said RR 300 ft. thence SE'ly 334 ft. more or less to the point of beg., except .6 56 ft. thereof and except the Right of Way of the U. S. 31 as now located, containing 0.094 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ben C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. E. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$1.00
Est. Benefits	None
Award	$1.00

Parcel No. 11 PV—For Vision—Sta. 19+69 to 20+35 North.

A triangular parcel of land in SW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R6W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence S 27° 00' W 1150.94 ft. to point of beg., thence continuing S 27° 00' W 1150 ft. to the centerline of the F. M. R. R. Spur, thence N along the centerline of said RR 300 ft. thence SE'ly 334 ft. more or less to the point of beg., except .6 56 ft. thereof and except the Right of Way of the U. S. 31 as now located, containing 0.094 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Chas. R. Munyon and wife Zada, R. F. D. No. 4, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$668.12
Est. Benefits	164.80
Award	$503.32

Parcel No. 11 PV—For Vision—Sta. 19+69 to 20+35 North.

A triangular parcel of land in SW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R6W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence S 27° 00' W 1150.94 ft. to point of beg., thence continuing S 27° 00' W 1150 ft. to the centerline of the F. M. R. R. Spur, thence N along the centerline of said RR 300 ft. thence SE'ly 334 ft. more or less to the point of beg., except .6 56 ft. thereof and except the Right of Way of the U. S. 31 as now located, containing 0.094 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Grace F. Bull and wife, Anna M.-124 State St., Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$71.57
Est. Benefits	21.00
Award	$50.57

Parcel No. 7—Sta. 48+85 to 50+20.

All that part of the following described parcel of land lying NW'ly of the NW'ly line of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, as now surveyed, said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing at the point on the W¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the point of beg., thence S 27° 00' W 1150.94 ft. to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed, said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing 21.49 chs. S of NW corner of Sec. 35, T34N R6W, thence S 42 rods to a point on the center of the E & W Township Highway thence E 20 rods; thence N 40 rods thence E 21 rods thence N 2 rods thence W 61 rods to place of beg., being part of SW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 26, T34N R6W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich. Said centerline of US 31 being described as follows: Commencing at a

MAD ARCTIC TRAPPER IS SLAIN BY POLICE

"Mounties" Spectacular Man Hunt Comes to End.

Winnipeg — The Royal Canadian Mounted police came to the end of a two months trail in the frozen wastes of the northwest territory when they killed Albert Johnson, mad man of the Arctic. The end to one of Canada's most spectacular man hunts came in a battle in which the demented trapper and lawyer fell in a hail of bullets from nearly a dozen rifles.

For the greater part of the two months Johnson, struggling desperately with cold and hunger, was bowling for safety in temporary safety in Alaska. When the authorities fulfilled their vow to "get their man" he was in the Forcupine vallely, about 100 miles from Aklavik in the northwest territory.

It was late that Johnson raged into the northwestern "red light" district and with him a pair of snowshoes and two automatic pistols. Reports are that he made a big "whoopee" and that if he had been able to retain his wealth, he would have returned a rich man.

Hunted for Weeks.

Johnson was a hunted man since the day eight weeks ago when he wounded Constable A. E. King, who had tried to arrest him as a trap thief. Three weeks ago he killed Constable E. Millen.

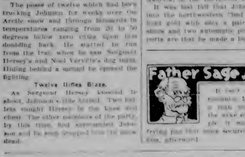
The police realized then that they were dealing with the raising of mad nerves and redoubled their efforts. It was six on snow tank. Time after time he fought perilous battles with them and escaped when by every one of all the might of the northland.

In dauntless to a point surrounded his cabin and still broke to it for the finish. He fought them back in turn-ended to each hand. Finally snow-men, stayed to guard the cabin while reinforcements went for reinforcements.

They found after five days' return on January 20 that Johnson had slipped away. He was tracked into a valley near Alt ok. At last he faced his adversary again. This was the climax to Albert Johnson's career. And now more words remain.

Why should we have to wait until company comes before we get out our prettiest china, put on our attractive clothes, and show our finest manners? Aren't the home folks after all just as good as company?

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.



ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

Cleveland's Mayor

All Around the House

Hurry a point cake to suit and it will keep for months.

• • •

Leftover vegetables, cut fine, combined and served as an escalloped dish or they can not be used in soups.

• • •

Turnips and beets are improved by adding one or two tablespoonfuls of sugar when cooking.

• • •

If the bottom layer of pie crust is covered with cracker crumbs the juice from fruit fillings will not soak out.

• • •

The secret of preparing cereal foods in a less slow cooking is to render the cellulose content more digestible. Cereal pellets are just strained grain, with most of the bran removed.

• • •

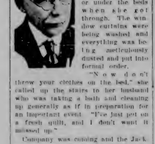
A piece of cheese the size of a walnut added to potato or onion soup gives it a nice creamy taste.

• • •

Fish will fry a rich brown if lightly brushed with salad oil before being rolled in cracker crumbs or meal.

WHEN COMPANY COMES

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.



Mrs. Jackson was using the vacuum cleaner on everything in the house from the rugs on the parlor floor to the paneling on the ceiling. There were no cobwebs in the corners or under the beds when she got through. The window curtains were immaculately clean and everything was looking meticulously neat and put-together for formal order.

"Now don't throw your clothes on the bed," she called up the stairs to her husband who was taking a bath and cleaning up generally as if in preparation for an important event. "You just put on a fresh outfit, and I don't want it mussed up."

Company was coming and the Jacksons were getting ready for it. The best table linen would be gotten out and the Mrs. Jackson silver, which she used only on rare occasions, would be shined up and her finest china would appear. There would be much more formality at meals, and more appetizing and more abundant food.

"I wish you'd quit fussing," young Jackson remarked quite sincerely to the departing guests when the Jacksons had just had company. "We have so much better things to eat when we have company than we do when there is no one here."

"Isn't it so!"

We are likely, also, to receive quite regularly company manners when there are guests at the house. Mr. Jackson smells the only at his right with a good deal of flourish and formality. When they are alone Mrs. Jackson may step or fall into her chair at the table as much as she pleases.

I'm not finding fault with all this. I'm just wondering if it might not make life a little less dull and entertaining if we should not work out ways for company to come before we put on our nicest clothes and served the most tempting meals.

Why should we have to wait until company comes before we get out our prettiest china, put on our attractive clothes, and show our finest manners? Aren't the home folks after all just as good as company?

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

SUCH IS LIFE—Another Bridge Fiend!

By Charles Sughroe

Woman Comes Back to Life on Morgue Slab

Panama City—"Take me to another hospital" was the remark of Leonora Arce, Colombian woman of thirty years, who sat up from the slab in the morgue of Santo Tomas hospital, on which she had been placed by realtives for autopsy.

Leonora had been pronounced dead from pulmonary congestion by the hospital doctors and her body had been sent to the morgue. Her husband had been notified and was on the way with a taxcrn to take away the body when she showed signs of breathing and in her sit up and surveyed the situation. Upon today's arrival, however, he was told that Leonora was alive and the taxcrn was sent back to the undertaker's. Leonora had been taken back to her bed in the hospital after protesting that she did not care for the treatment, but later in the day she was pronounced dead for the second time, but doctors refused to perform an autopsy, fearing that she was in a cataleptic state and might be still alive.

Crowds of natives surrounded the hospital following reports in the evening and early this morning that a resurrection had taken place at the national institution.

The next day it was decided that Leonora really was dead and the body was ordered to be buried in the city cemetery.

Virginia Boy Has Twelve Living Grandparents

Appalachia, Va.—George Morgan Farrell, twenty-monthsold son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Farrell, has 12 living grandparents or rather, eight great great grandparents and four grandparents. A great-uncle of the child is fifteen years old and an aunt is four years old.

POTPOURRI

Which Falls Faster?

An Indian, Gaffron, in the thirteenth century first proved for once that two bodies of unequal mass when dropped from sind the height in the same time would reach the earth at the same time. Aristotle had earlier expressed an opinion that the heavier body would arrive first. The experiment was tried from the leaning tower of Pisa.
© 1933 Western Newspaper Union.

Famous Rescue Team Is Reunited on Roosevelt

New York—One of the most noted rescue teams in modern American merchant marine history was re-established when Capt. Harry Manning and Dr. Irving Pfeil, a ship's officer on Pfeil's staff on the President Roosevelt.

For a time after the famous rescue of the Florida crew by Pfeil, in which Manning was an important and ex cordially courageous part, Manning was assigned to another ship of the American merchant marine lines. With the consolidation of the United States lines with the International Mercantile Marine and Dollar Steamers, Manning was reassigned to his old cabin.

GREAT SALT DESERT WILL BECOME A LAKE

Spectacular Phenomena Long Mecca for Tourists.

Tulsa, Okla.—Oklahoma's great salt desert, for years one of the most spectacular phenomena of the Southwest and mecca for thousands of tourists, has completed its last season as a "show place."

Called one of the seven wonders of the world by Capt. Nathan Boone (son of Daniel) of Kentucky, who led a body of United States troops on the first official exploration of the ground, the white expanse, the desert area of salt plains will soon be transformed into a salt lake, the third largest in the United States and one of the first government's proposed projects of 135 lakes as migratory wild fowl refuges.

Beautiful to gaze upon, but as barren as the Arctic wastes which it resembles, the Cherokee salt plains in Western Oklahoma has for years proved an enigma to scientists and a thing of wonder to wide-eyed travelers.

On its more than forty square miles of sun blistered dirt only four forms of life exist—two insects and two plants.

For years tourists have visited the region, riding in automobiles across the brittle white surface of the ancient "desert," shading their eyes from the intense glare of the light reflected from the salty expanse and getting off at mirages produced by the combination of sun and earth. For years, too, residents of the little town of Cherokee, Okla., four miles to the west have used ice plants as plants produced luxuries costlier even than the salt upon which the business of the town is based.

The prehistoric survey of the plains has been completed, and the tanks have been formed over by extensive orders of Uncle Sam to be used for migrant service. The actual waterline of the salt plains lake was begun in 1931. Progressive jobs to complete the final survey, also would be a profitable contracting with get under way.

Residents of the salt desert region look with high favor upon the prospect now that a spit lake that will be surprised to see its sandy sea shores in the United States—and the only one in Oklahoma. Its waters, it is predicted, will be as clear as crystal and as buoyant as those of the Dead sea in Southern California.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

THE GIRL ON THE SILVER DOLLAR

THE classic profile, which is found on all of the issues of the goddess of liberty on our silver dollar, believed to be that of Miss Anna W. Williams, a school teacher who died just a few years ago in Philadelphia.

In 1870 George Morgan, expert designer and engraver, was entrusted with the task of preparing a new design for a silver dollar that was to be distinctly different in detail, and Miss Williams was principal of the girls' school at the House of Refuge in Philadelphia and posed for the golden lady and a profile of Grecian type was chosen.

Marie du Raisin-Chantal was a charming, vivacious woman with an unusual sense of humor. Descended of the Seventeenth century when affectation was the vogue, she married for marriage to the Marquis de Sevigne was an unhappy one, and she concentrated her affection upon her two children, and especially upon her daughter. When that daughter married Count Comte de Grignan, lieutenant general of Provence and went there to make her home, her lonely mother commenced her famous correspondence with her, consisting of over 1,000 letters written over a period of 25 years. The establishment of a postal system via steamvessels in 1627 had given impetus to the writing of letters, which continued not merely correspondence for the recipient alone, but news in general for a great circle of friends, acting as a paper in the days before journalism. Thus the letters of Madame de Sevigne are written over a period of years, and they contain much valuable insight into court life in fashionable Paris.

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Radio's Masterpiece

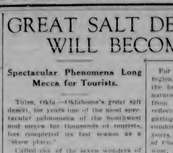
"The Door of Hell," or, as it is more usually called, "The Gates of Hell," is a work by the eminent French sculptor Rodin, which he originally intended to place his famous statue, The Thinker, on. Although but this monument has now been set up in Paris, contrary to the sculptor's original idea.
—Washington Star.

Atrocious Punishment

Punishment found on the Great Wall of China are said to state that whenever one of the builders of it bewails who were building it was found to have made a mistake in his work, he was beheaded alive in the wall at the place of his error.

There Is Nothing New

The present conviction nothing more than the past, and what is found in the effect was already in the cause.—Bergson.



Paris Plumber Is Highly Honored

France appreciates good craftsmanship. M. Vorger, a plumber of Paris, is here seen being decorated with the medallion of the Legion of Honor by M. Pomaret, undersecretary of the French Technical Educational society, for having been named one of the eighteen best tradesmen in all of France.

Military and Civilian

Should Be Wisely Used

The tongue is, at the same time, the best gift of God and the worst. With wisdom, none is more useful; and without it, none more mischievous.

GABBY GERTIE

THE MARQUESA DE MONTMAYOR

IN THE Seventeenth century Madame de Sevigne, writing from Paris long, gossipy letter to her beloved daughter in Provence, set down for posterity a genuine picture in the literary world as far-reaching as the contemporaneous life of the story behind those letters, the characters who moved through it and who lived strangely and too soon a daughter who did not return that affection. There is Walter in Paris, the central the character of the Marquesa de Montmayor, whose blood and wit and their inexplicable relationship, the fall of the house of Montmayor.

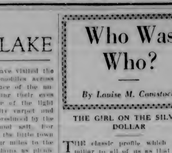
Marie du Raisin-Chantal was a charming, vivacious woman with an unusual sense of humor. Descended of the Seventeenth century when affectation was the vogue, she married for marriage to the Marquis de Sevigne was an unhappy one, and she concentrated her affection upon her two children, and especially upon her daughter. When that daughter married Count Comte de Grignan, lieutenant general of Provence and went there to make her home, her lonely mother commenced her famous correspondence with her, consisting of over 1,000 letters written over a period of 25 years. The establishment of a postal system via steamvessels in 1627 had given impetus to the writing of letters, which continued not merely correspondence for the recipient alone, but news in general for a great circle of friends, acting as a paper in the days before journalism. Thus the letters of Madame de Sevigne are written over a period of years, and they contain much valuable insight into court life in fashionable Paris.

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

THE GIRL ON THE SILVER DOLLAR



He's a success in business, it is true. But at home he's the worst kind of bother. Can't get along with his wife . . . easily upset . . . attacks of nerves . . . always tired out.

All this could easily be avoided with the aid of Fellows' Syrup, the perfect tonic. Man, how it puts an appetite and vigor! How it helps nose freshfed tempers and build up real energy. Just a single bottle may do you a world of good. Find out for yourself, by asking your druggist for a bottle of genuine Fellows' Syrup.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

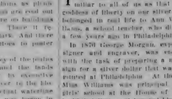
An Only Chance

"I'd like to see you this afternoon to get married."

"Can't — can't we call it Saturday?"

"No, she's going away for the week-end."

A Tonic for Women . . . Young or Old



Terre Haute, Ind. — "I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription off and on when I felt rundown and have never failed to be greatly benefited by it," said Mrs. Margaret Newman of 309 N. 8th St. "As a woman's tonic I am sure the 'Favorite Prescription' is unexcelled. From what I can learn, it is a superior remedy regardless of age, but especially good for young women."

Write Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice, stating the symptoms from which you're suffering.

Dr. Pierce's Prescription

Paradoxical

"A sausage factory is an odd place."

"Yes, the best thing in it is the worst."

WARNING
To Every Sufferer From STOMACH TROUBLE ACIDOSIS INDIGESTION, ETC.

A wise method of YUM-YUM TABLETS. Six wonder remedy for stomach trouble of every kind. Send for free booklet.

HERE IS QUICK RELIEF WITHOUT OPERATION

The most obstinate and long-standing cases respond to this wonderful treatment. Don't suffer another day. Write today for free booklet telling how. Write at once for a free trial package of YUM'S PINK TABLETS and again relief. Address: YUM-YUM LABORATORIES, Inc., Dept. 619-J, 34 South 17 Street, Philadelphia.

FIFTY—FIVE CENT CIGARS FOR $1.00.

Genuine H. U. Hilson Cigars, Clear Havana Filler, Sumatra Wrapper, Size 4½ x 42. Sent postpaid in plain box. Money back if not delighted. Send for free booklet of other cigars. This amount offer for limited time. H. U. HILSON CIGAR CO., Dept. 619, Hilson Bldg., Washington, D. C.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Imparts Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair. Promotes Growth. Prevents Dandruff. 60c and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

LOLETON SHAMPOO

Could Stand It

"Pa, can I have a pocket knife?"

"Yes, but you haven't stop playing."—London Tit-Bits.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel more comfortable. Continue treatment once every hour for five hours and you should be amazed at the relief!

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. It seems to work right through to the "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

MUSTEROLE

A lean conscience makes a fat will.

Constipation POISONS YOUR SYSTEM

Housewives who are being cured by Adlerika don't neglect themselves. Sick headaches, backaches, and vein and kidney symptoms all poison in the system cleared by constipation. Don't neglect nature's warning. Take Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to clean your stomach and intestinal tract. A favored remedy for fifty years. At all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS
Mild & Gentle Laxative

Military and Civilian

Should Be Wisely Used

The tongue is, at the same time, the best gift of God and the worst. With wisdom, none is more useful; and without it, none more mischievous.

GABBY GERTIE

THE MARQUESA DE MONTMAYOR

IN THE Seventeenth century Madame de Sevigne, writing from Paris long, gossipy letter to her beloved daughter in Provence, set down for posterity a genuine picture in the literary world as far-reaching as the contemporaneous life of the story behind those letters, the characters who moved through it and who lived strangely and too soon a daughter who did not return that affection. There is Walter in Paris, the central the character of the Marquesa de Montmayor, whose blood and wit and their inexplicable relationship, the fall of the house of Montmayor.

Marie du Raisin-Chantal was a charming, vivacious woman with an unusual sense of humor. Descended of the Seventeenth century when affectation was the vogue, she married for marriage to the Marquis de Sevigne was an unhappy one, and she concentrated her affection upon her two children, and especially upon her daughter. When that daughter married Count Comte de Grignan, lieutenant general of Provence and went there to make her home, her lonely mother commenced her famous correspondence with her, consisting of over 1,000 letters written over a period of 25 years. The establishment of a postal system via steamvessels in 1627 had given impetus to the writing of letters, which continued not merely correspondence for the recipient alone, but news in general for a great circle of friends, acting as a paper in the days before journalism. Thus the letters of Madame de Sevigne are written over a period of years, and they contain much valuable insight into court life in fashionable Paris.

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Radio's Masterpiece

"The Door of Hell," or, as it is more usually called, "The Gates of Hell," is a work by the eminent French sculptor Rodin, which he originally intended to place his famous statue, The Thinker, on. Although but this monument has now been set up in Paris, contrary to the sculptor's original idea.
—Washington Star.

Atrocious Punishment

Punishment found on the Great Wall of China are said to state that whenever one of the builders of it bewails who were building it was found to have made a mistake in his work, he was beheaded alive in the wall at the place of his error.

There Is Nothing New

The present conviction nothing more than the past, and what is found in the effect was already in the cause.—Bergson.

Sign of Evil

The "mark of the beast" as it appears in the twentieth verse of the thirteenth chapter of the Revelations of St. John the Divine, refers to following the path of evil as distinguished from following the path of good.

Sign of Evil

The "mark of the beast" as it appears in the twentieth verse of the thirteenth chapter of the Revelations of St. John the Divine, refers to following the path of evil as distinguished from following the path of good.

The House of the Three Ganders

By IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright by Irving Bacheller (WNU Service)

SYNOPSIS

Exhausted, ragged, and starving, a boy of about eighteen is found in the snow by Ashbell Baker. He tells Ashbell that his name is Lemuel Talbot. He's been chosen, like others before him, by his new friends succeed him, five, and in close succession, by men whom his benefactor has befriended. Lem is the last man in Canada, with a record in Colonel Blake. The colonel has wife, Lem's mother, and a daughter, Ruth. Lem is tempted by the farm's manager.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Her hair was like spun gold, her eyes were as blue as violets, her voice was as musical and rare free as the song sparrows. They were in that wistful stage of joyous, mutual discovery. The boy had found in her eyes a comradeship he could not name.

She was wiser than he for he knew nothing of that mysterious power in the eye which lures and grasps men's hearts, of a sudden which find prisoned the singular emotion now in the boy. He knew only a sweet thrill that Miss Williams consented to pose.

The engaging look about in Mr. Talkins' house during November of 1836. There is the morning the modest's suit, abundant and light in texture, caught in a soft coil at the back of her neck. Soon thus later it was decided that the familiar cap and sleeves as a part of the engagement for the goddess of liberty's head. Inspiration perfected results. For a time she posed not much longer and sold into his work that he ended up to fall, too madly in love with Miss Williams, the fact remains that she continued to pose for him during the setting of letters, which continued not merely correspondence for the recipient alone, but news in general for a great circle of friends, acting as a paper in the days before journalism. Thus the letters of Madame de Sevigne are written over a period of years, and they contain much valuable insight into court life in fashionable Paris.

© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Radio's Masterpiece

"The Door of Hell," or, as it is more usually called, "The Gates of Hell," is a work by the eminent French sculptor Rodin, which he originally intended to place his famous statue, The Thinker, on. Although but this monument has now been set up in Paris, contrary to the sculptor's original idea.
—Washington Star.

Atrocious Punishment

Punishment found on the Great Wall of China are said to state that whenever one of the builders of it bewails who were building it was found to have made a mistake in his work, he was beheaded alive in the wall at the place of his error.

There Is Nothing New

The present conviction nothing more than the past, and what is found in the effect was already in the cause.—Bergson.

Sign of Evil

The "mark of the beast" as it appears in the twentieth verse of the thirteenth chapter of the Revelations of St. John the Divine, refers to following the path of evil as distinguished from following the path of good.

Ashbell and learned his way to Amity Dam. The day was far spent. Mr. Smithers read the consent letter. He was a bearded solemn-looking man of middle age with a gentle voice that softened the price of dry goods and won the confidence of women.

"I'll give you a trial," he said. "You dollars a month and board is all I can pay you."

Shad agreed in these terms.

"Jill down here and rest yourself," said the merchant prince of Amity Dam. "We'll go home about nine o'clock."

After Shad rested a while, Mr. Smithers showed the boy his establishment from cellar to garret. It was the usual country store of that time. Mr. Smithers wrote out for the boy a list of his many duties. Before they were done the merchant gave Shad a lesson in wrapping packages.

Mr. Smithers lived in a frame house near the store. His wife was a thrifty housekeeper. With a needle in her hand, she led the boy to his room above Smith's store she lighted a candle and she promised not to tell anyone that she had seen him.

Shad and Hannah Hixon came out and sat in his accustomed place up the street at Amity Dam. Shad went out of the store for a look at him. His funny was in an advanced stage of debilitation. He was suffering "Bassel" "Dirty stock!" and like words of bitter scorn. As Shad approached the old man looked at him and nodded with a smile. He was about sixty years of age.

"Hello, boy," he said.

Hannah Hixon was not often drunk. Three or four times in a summer he went on a spree and when that happened he came always to Amity Dam. He was then so harmless and quiet that no one interested with his pleasure.

Shad was deeply interested in the curious man. He had no funny kick in the store. As he left, the drunkard called out laughingly: "And there's my round upon the ground great heap of gore."

Hannah's assessment of Isaiahlike did not agree with the opinion of the countryside. While people thought Isaiah a queer man, and overfond of work, who was deeply indebted in the beauty of his father-in-law with whom he lived, they respected him for his sorrowful history. He possessed. The man's wife had been crippled for life by a runaway horse. She possessed. The man's wife had been crippled for life by a runaway horse. She possessed. The man's wife had been crippled for life by a runaway horse. She

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.

W. A. ADAMS, Editor

Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS

One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THE PRESENT CONGRESS

It is fortunate that the present Congress has been fairly free from half-baked and dangerous legislative proposals.

It is true that various bills have been urged which would, if passed, have done much to retard business recovery. But nine of these has gone far. And Congress, working in conjunction with the President, has been responsible for several pieces of constructive legislation which are already benefiting the country at large.

Government can aid greatly both in restoring and maintaining prosperity. Or it can become, figuratively, a wall in the path of industrial progress. At present it may be that the greatest fear business has is of further tax increases—unless the tax bill amounts to an attempt to balance the budget. Many of the worst threats following the war was a main factor in bringing on depression—and heavy additional taxation would unnecessarily prolong it.

THE CAUSES OF FIRE

"Safeguarding America Against Fire," a publication of The National Board of Fire Underwriters, publishes a list of the known originating causes responsible for the largest fire loss in each state. They should be of interest to every citizen.

Matches and smoking seem to be the greatest offenders, accounting for the largest loss in 18 states. Defective chimneys and flues were high in 14 states and stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes, in seven states. Misuse of electricity and spontaneous combustion led the rest in two states each. Sparks from machinery, incendiarism, explosion and sparks on roofs were the major causes of loss in one state each.

The interesting thing is that every single one of these causes must come under the head of "strictly preventable". The most dangerous of them all, matches and smoking, represents pure carelessness on the part of the individual. Defective chimneys and heating systems are possible only through inexcusable negligence. Misuse of electricity is the product of abysmal—and also inexcusable—ignorance or of sheer carelessness.

More than 80 per cent of fires could be prevented with the exercise of a little care, a little judgment—a little intelligence. Various public and private organizations have labored mightily to instruct us in fire prevention and to sound into us the duty we owe to ourselves and our communities. The rest is up to us. A thinking people cannot continue to countenance a waste that takes 10,000 lives and half a billion dollars in property values each year.

WHERE OUR MONEY GOES

We often consider the debt ridden condition of foreign countries and pat ourselves on the back because the United States is not in the same boat. But if the trend of recent years continues, it won't be long until we are.

In 1900, the per capita cost of the Federal government was $7.29, and it increased ten per cent in the next 15 years. In 1931, the per capita cost was $54.15—a net increase of 500 per cent in 15 years. According to a Treasury estimate, the combined deficits of 1931, 1932, and 1933 will increase the Federal debt by the neat sum of $8,250,000,000, bringing the total debt to the staggering total of $19,240,000,000.

It is a favorite political practice to blame all this on the war. To a certain extent, that is fair enough. But it is obvious that many departments of the Federal government have proven inept, inefficient and wasteful. The Farm Board has spent the greater part of $500,000,000 in an effort to maintain prices on certain commodities—and has made a monumental and predestined failure of it. Two hundred millions more is being poured into Boulder Dam. The Postoffice is one long deficit. The Government operates ships at a loss—the Shipping Board appropriation in 1930 was $11,494,000. And to go back a few years, the Government sunk $1,600,000 while it was running the railroads.

The condition of the states is even gloomier —while Federal expenditures were increasing 730 per cent between 1903 and 1928, the states were more reckless yet, with a 900 per cent increase. Every family the country is saddled with a government debt of $1,000!

The thoughtful citizen will wonder if we are not approaching a tax crisis—a point beyond which we cannot pay. And he is liable to come to the conclusion that the progress of the country demands government retrenchment and economy, not in a vague future, but right now!

ONE RAILROAD YEAR

The detailed statement of operating receipts and expenses of the American railroads has recently been issued for 1930, the last year for which complete details are now available.

A short run down Duke of Gloucester Street in this Land of Eld will bring the traveler to the site of a vanished Capitol. Here Washington once became too embarrassed to reply to a vote of honor accorded by the House of Delegates. One member with a courteous bow assured young Washington that his great courage was exceeded only by his modesty. The Capitol is being rebuilt upon its original foundation.

It is an interesting document and of importance to every investor, every worker, every citizen. During the year the total operating receipts from all sources were slightly over $5,281,000,000. More than $4,000,000,000 of this was required to keep property going—wages and cost of operating equipment. After deducting taxes, rent of leased roads, interest on borrowed money—paid to more than 1,000,000 holders of bonds and equipment trust certificates—and total fixed charges, $265,000,000 was left, to which was added net miscellaneous income of something less than $31,000,000.

Cash dividends on railroad stock—an average return of six per cent on total stock outstanding, which represents nearly half of the roads' invested capital and is owned by 852,318 persons—totaled $497,000,000. Thus, the railroads were not only left with a deficit of $201,-167,000, but had absolutely nothing available for investing in new railroad facilities, or for making up deficiencies incurred in previous years, or for creating reserves for bad years in the future.

GOOD ROADS — GOOD EDUCATION

Writing in "Roads and Streets," M. S. Winder points out the intimate relationship that exists between rural roads and rural educational facilities.

During 1930, 50,000 school buses transported 2,000,000 children to and from 17,000 schools. From year to year the number of one-room country schools has been gradually decreasing, and the number of consolidated schools increasing. In 1917-18, there were 195,397 one-room schools and 5,349 consolidated schools. By 1927-28, the number of one-room schools had dropped to 153,306, while consolidated schools jumped to 17,664.

During the same period there has been a big increase in the number of pupils transported to schools at public expence. In 15 states, from 1920 to 1928, this increase was 191 per cent.

It is obvious that the children of families living on unimproved roads which become impassable or semi-impassable during several months of the year, are at a tremendous disadvantage when it comes to their education. The decline in the small schools and the increase in the large consolidated schools serving a much wider area, makes it necessary for each child, on the average, to travel farther. In one town which Mr. Winder cites, only 12 of 300 pupils enrolled in a school are within walking distance, while the others dwell in a district 240 square miles in area and are brought to classes in five large buses whose daily mileage is 125 miles each.

We usually think of improved rural roads from the standpoint of their effect on the social and economic life of farmers and small town residents. But the influence they have in making a high standard of education available to more children, is of extreme importance, and is alone all the justification that the good roads movement could desire.

THE PACIFISTS SEEM TO WANT WAR

Sensible men have tried to warn the internationalists and pacifists that they are idiotically belligerent in demanding that the United States slap an embargo on trade with Japan as a coercive measure. The boycott is vested with moral worth to persons who are addicted to peace pacts and international conferences. It is a vent for the indignation with which the illusionists see their world upset and their theories routed. Senator Borah has made no bones although he has endeavored to subdue the enthusiasms which would start the United States upon these wild courses.

A boycott is a warlike measure. Regardless of its economic effect upon the nation adopting it as a policy, it is an invitation to retaliation, and inasmuch as trade relations have caused many wars it is an open door to warfare. A nation which breaks its commercial relations with another country and tries to coerce it by starving its industries and its people should be prepared and ready to follow that up with coercion undertaken with its armed forces. In this case the American pacifists, true to tradition and form, demand that the United States step out alone with a gun to protect another country which would not be in the fix it now is if it had not become just what the pacifists want to make of their own country. The American pacifists would do just that.—Chicago Tribune.

A DUTY

In a recent radio address, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, held that life insurance is a basis of happiness and contentment, and that its ownership is a duty. "Only as men are able to accumulate something, whether much or little, from the fruit of their labor, be it manual or intellectual, are they able to face the future with anything approaching confidence," he said. "To lay up something for a rainy day has been the maxim of prudence for generations. Only as men and women apply this maxim can they face their own personal future without uncertainty, perhaps without alarm."

While stock markets crash and business lags, the billions of dollars safely invested in life insurance policies remain sound with the protection afforded unimpaired.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN

What has become of: The Polish corridor, umbrellas on a rainy day, those "fourteen points," the world that was to have been made "safe for democracy," the prosperity that was never to end because our resources were so great, the old-fashioned whirling waltz, the jails that were to be emptied when prohibition came, pug dogs, button shoes for men, ascot ties, that corner which was hiding prosperity?—Muncie, Ind., Press.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

No matter what we may think as individuals as to the extent of the depression and the length of the road we have yet to travel before we shall start up out of the valley, it must be admitted, even by pessimists, that there are now certain constructive factors apparent, which could not be discerned a few short months ago. To realize the change in international psychology we have to think back only a short distance in national and world affairs.

Only a few short months ago it looked as though the predictions of the extreme pessimists, to the effect that the end of modern capitalist society had been reached, were not far out of the way. Central Europe seemed to be sinking into financial chaos. It seemed that Germany might be forced to repudiate all debts both public and private and that Great Britain too was in for bankruptcy. What seemed like the final straw came with the abandonment of the gold standard by Great Britain. Conditions in the United States seemed little better. Great Britain's apparent collapse was followed by what amounted to a financial panic here. Banks were soon closing by the dozens and Europe was withdrawing its gold from America as rapidly as possible.

But now a new year has gotten under way, and while we are still in the trough of the depression, and there is no appreciable improvement in actual business conditions, it must be admitted that there are signs of hope on the horizon that were not apparent a few months ago. In Great Britain, especially, has there come improvement. That nation is balancing its budget. It has paid off the greater part of the money it borrowed from the United States and France in an effort to bolster the gold standard in England, sterling is going up on the world markets and British employment is picking up due to the adoption of the protective tariff, and the safeguarding of the English market for home industries. In the United States the closing of banks seems to have been definitely checked. The stock market has established what the experts call a "triple bottom" and for the past three or four months has seemed disinclined to go any lower, while there has been a distinct improvement in the bond market, always the first signs of stability. While many raw commodities do not yet seem to have reached the bottom, it is true that the decline has greatly slackened. And wheat remains persistently above the low spot established last fall which, it would seem, is a good sign of stabilization in that important commodity.

It seemed that last year all the news was bad news, especially that which came from Europe. Now we are getting an encouraging dispatch from over the waters occasionally. In the constructive factors have been the new national government in Great Britain, the decline of hoarding in Europe, the constructive program put under way in the United States with the consequent clearing of the financial skies and the tendency of securities and commodities to establish a bottom.

Of course we are not out of the woods yet. We will doubtless have many ups and downs before we get on the highway of prosperity once more. The pessimists say that the improvement is only temporary, due to desperate remedies taken by the Federal government to resuscitate business, like oxygen administered to the patient who is critically ill, as a last desperate hope. Nevertheless there are encouraging signs on the horizon and we are now beginning to see that the pessimists who a few months ago predicted the end of our modern business structure, were as much in error as the optimists, but in 1929 told us that hard times and bear markets were gone forever.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

American Economic Ignorance

Alexander Ramsey, British member of Parliament, chairman of the Engineering Employers' Association, in a recent speech at Birmingham favoring readjustment or repudiation of the American debt, or consent by the United States to taking pay for the cash our government loaned the Allies, in their cheap labor products to the displacement of our own employment, said:

"American politicians dare not challenge the ignorance of their people on questions of international economics."

Americans are indeed a simple minded folk. They have a few old fashioned ideas not modified by the intricacies of "international economics."

They believe, for instance, that having entered a war they had nothing to do with starting and from which they did not expect to get rich or profit, but heavily lost, that the nations they saved from defeat, loss of territory and payment of indemnities, ought to be grateful, rather than resentful for the aid they gave.

They have the simple minded idea that when an individual, or nation, in deep distress and need, borrows money to ward off disaster, those who loaned the money in the emergency are entitled to have some of it back.

They are innocent enough to think that having built up a standard of wages and living twice as high as that prevailing in the European nation of the highest standards, England, and five times as high as those of the European nation of lowest standards, Soviet Russia, there is no justification for refusing to protect their own standards of wages and living against those lower standards. They are ignorant enough to believe that the European system of increasing production by machine and mass methods, while permitting wages and consuming power to sink, rather than rise, is self-destructive in Europe and would be in the United States if accepted here.

They are guileless enough to think that if European nations have money enough to spend more money on armies than they spent before the World War, they have money enough to pay part of their honest debts.

When it comes to the plea of Mr. Ramsay that by going off the gold standard England has increased her debt to this country in pounds, that this debasing of the currency, intended to reduce wages and production costs and thus forge a more deadly weapon of cheapness in foreign competition, is one that justifies payment of the British debt to America in this debased currency, the American people are childish enough to believe that this is a policy for which Britons, and not American, are responsible, and affords no good reason for asking us to accept the return of our money in marbles or chalk.

It is not surprising that foreign industrialists and politicians think the American people ignorant on foreign affairs. That ignorance they have freely played upon in the past.

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Mrs. Dr. Miner (nee Mina Gaie) of Traverse City, has been the guest of Mrs. G. D. Wood this week.

A. L. Coulter has accepted a reappointment as deputy game and fish warden, and has reported for duty.

The 3rd U. S. Infantry in which regiment George A. McCartney is attached, has left Manila for San Francisco.

Sunday last being Palm Sunday the Catholic church in Charlevoix observed the day appropriately by the ceremony of blessing the palms, preceding high mass by Rev. Fr. Alexander. Sermon followed since Many Protestants were in attendance.

A large number of high school pupils surprised their former principal, Mrs. Dr. Milner, at the home of Mrs. O. D. Wood, Monday evening, by calling on her in a body. "Miss Gem" still lingers pleasantly in the memory of the high school boys and girls.

An old landmark has gone. The old Keyes building near the Fountain City House, has been torn down and carted away. It was built in 1867. The Sentinel was printed in its upper rooms in 1870 and in 1873 was occupied by Dr. G. W. Crouter for his first drug store.

The steamer Beaver went out into Lake Michigan Sunday afternoon to try her machinery. Everything worked to perfection. She went to the Beavers on her first trip Tuesday.

The people of Beaver Island are very proud of their new steamboat, the Beaver, and very much gratified that Capt. Campbell should name her in honor of their beautiful island. They have reason to be proud of the Beaver. She is a fine boat and will give the Islanders better and more regular service than they have ever had before. The Beaver was a beautiful sight Tuesday evening as she entered this harbor with every electric light doing its "trick".

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk. Wilma Sovereign, Deputy City Clerk. 4712

STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

In the matter of the petition of Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan, for condemnation of private property for public highway purposes in the city of Charlevoix, and Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

At a session of said Court held at the Court House in the City of Charlevoix in said county on the 5th day of March, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ernest A. Rosegregger, Probate Judge.

It appearing to the Court that Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan has this day filed in this court a petition praying for the appointment of three Court Commissioners to appraise the damages to be paid as compensation for the taking of an easement for public highway purposes in, over, and upon certain private property hereto described, and it appearing to the Court that the said Grover C. Dillman, State Highway Commissioner for the State of Michigan, did on the 28th day of December A. D. 1931, make and file in his office a written determination of the necessity of improving the highway known as trunk line road number US-31 in the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, by constructing the necessary grade and drainage structures and surfacing to a width of twenty feet with concrete, in accordance with a survey thereof and plats and specifications made under the supervision and direction of said State Highway Commissioner, and the necessity for taking an easement for public highway purposes in, over, and upon the particular private property therein described, and the damages which in his opinion should be paid as compensation for the taking of said easement in, over, and upon each parcel of said property, in accordance with the provisions of Act 252, Public Acts 1925, as amended, and that all proceedings thereafter were in accordance with said Act as amended, that the said petitioner has taken or is about to take possession of the property described in said determination, over and upon which in it necessary to acquire such easement for said public highway purposes, that the said petitioner has been unable to agree with the persons interested as owners or otherwise in any of the said described property on the damages to be paid as compensation for the same on said property described or present and in the law for public hearing at the hour prescribed for the closing thereof shall be allowed to vote.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 6 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, of said day of election.

Dated March 8, 1932.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

They played upon it, for instance, when they invited this country into a war for high ideals, without telling them that they had made a treaty in advance dividing up the territory of which the Central Powers were to be despoiled. They played upon that ignorance, or rather misplaced confidence, when they took the spoils of war and tried to hand the U. S. the League of Nations as its reward for having entered the struggle: a league that clearly has been employed as an instrument for national advantage, rather than for world peace and justice.

The American people may be ignorant and inexperienced in the field of international economics. This may account for the fact that between the Civil War and the World War the United States became the richest nation in the world, and what is better the nation in which there was the widest diffusion of wealth accumulated among millions of people. At the same time England, with her program of international economics, was losing her position of commercial and financial dominance. Just before the World War our rate of growth in national wealth was rapidly increasing. Between 1904 and 1912—eight years—we increased our national wealth seventy-two per cent, or at the rate of nine per cent a year. Then we began to substitute international for national economics, and in ten years between 1912 and 1922, according to the Federal Trade Commission, we increased our national wealth sixteen per cent, or at the rate of one and six-tenths per cent per year. By that time we were sitting in on the international economics game, and we are now finding ourselves short of chips. We have had the usual experience that comes with taking a hand in a game Europeans nations have been playing for centuries until they are well supplied with marked cards and loaded dice. After several years' experience in that game, having lost all but our shirts, the American people are beginning to wonder if it would not be well to go back to the old plan by which they earned their wealth rather than by depending on winning their money off of other nations that expect to make their living in the same way. In view of what this new game of "international economics" has already done to them, they are coming to believe that the way to prosper is by hang on to what they work to get, and play economic solitaire.

Forty Years Ago

MEMORIES

The Scribe Revives Recollections of the Past—Persons and Events.

In the autumn of 1868, before the scribe ever saw Charlevoix, he was one of a party who "toured in" from prehistoric Antrim City to the waters of South Arm on a pleasure expedition. The scribe was then residing in a suburb of Antrim City for purposes of health and courtship. The climate and surroundings favored both.

* * *

A word about Antrim City. It has long since ceased to be. It is now but a memory. Once it had a boat office, but now—well it's post office at Antrim City stood in about three miles south of Norwood, and directly west of where Atwood now sits in its glory. Atwood was yet to be—it was then back in the country and beyond the to us metropolitan people as "the state road". Antrim City was at the mouth of "Otter Creek" upon which was located a small mill and here also this the fishing establishment of W. L. Stiger and the store and post office under the management of Mr. Sickles. On the hill above was the tiny residence. This constituted Antrim City. Now only the Stiger fishery remains. Babylon is fallen.

* * *

But we revert to the memory of the South Arm expedition. The scribe remembers reaching the Arm at a point a mile above the head, and entering a small log store upon the beach. A motley assortment of merchandise occupied one side of the room, and in charge was a character who afterward figured in the early history of Charlevoix. A tall, gaunt, cold-featured man, gruff and repellant, stiff and unbending in nature and stiffer by reason of his high stiff collar and generous odd-fashioned neckerchief—William Lamb, by an Englishman by birth, a pessimist and a recluse; a man who loved nothing of human form and hated—even himself. A mysterious, unpredictable stole, with few bad habits and no good ones.

* * *

The scribe cast his lot in Charlevoix the spring of 1869, and the same year William Lamister moved his business to Charlevoix. Possessed of means, he built a store on Round Lake on the present site of Green's dock (the same building now occupied by Richards saloon). On Bridge street, where the Bank of Charlevoix now stands, was what he called his residence. Lamister was a ship-carpenter, or as he was pleased to call himself, a "marine b'architect," and during the season of 1870, he built the small schooner "Alice" the model of which resembled the make-up of her builder and afloat was as "cranky." As a merchant Lamister was a sui generis. Their probably never was his counterpart in that pursuit. He had but one mood—a mood that fluctuated between the maximum and minimum of morosseness. His periods of comparative decency were exhibited by getting a few of us about him decocting a bowl of punch, and accompanying his unmusical voice with a still more unmusical fiddle.

* * *

Disturbed and dyspeptic were his chief characteristics. He believed in nothing, hoped for nothing. He often said that "it took a man all his life to get the foolish notions out of his head that his mother put in." Solitude was his solace and selfishness the warp and woof of his being. Crusty and discourteous, yet he was a "keen keeper". Major Green relates how he once went with a pan to Lamister's store for ten pounds of flour. "Why in 'ell don't you buy a barrel?" was the greeting of the merchant to the customer. If he had a virtue it was his invariable refusal to sell whiskey as a beverage. The bottle must be accompanied by a doctor's order, or contain a quantity of camphor-gum. But the shrewdness of Gus Monroe, of Eveline, was too much for him and he outwitted him so that Uncle Phil Beers was at the bottom of the scheme. Gus put a handful of rock-candy in the bottle, and rubbed the nose with the odoriferous drug. Lamister smelled of the bottle and filled it, and Gus had a good time. But as long as Lamister lived thereafter, he would not sell even the necessities of life. The schooner of which we have spoken, proved an unprofitable investment, and he was ever-sensative on that subject. Rev. Geo. W. Wood once asked him how the vessel was paying him. "None of your ——— business", was his reply; and the minister never interrogated Mr. Lamister again.

* * *

Mr. Lamister, when in his sociable mood, would spend his evenings visiting with Dr. Duncan at the post office. Bridge street was then full of large stumps, and Lamister, in his night trips to and fro, would stumble over them. Swearing would not relieve these darkness in his pathway, and so he adopted a plan, that gave him protection from further disaffair. He hewed the north and south sides of the stumps and painted them white. The following spring Major Green was elected pathmaster, and the stumps were removed, much to the satisfaction of the old man.

* * *

He possessed a sail-boat and occasionally made trips along the shore. On a certain trip to Northport he had a woman as a passenger. The weather became rough and the lady became frightened. In reply to her frantic questionings he answered: "Talk to God, madam; talk to God!"

* * *

In the early days of harbor agitation, Lamister scoffed at every project looking toward that much desired improvement. He predicted that not a person in Charlevoix would live long enough to see over six feet of water into Round Lake. When plans were being perfected for the protection of the channel, Lamister advocated the building of cribs five feet wide. He had no faith in the future, either in this life or the next.

* * *

One winter day in 1872, William Lamister became weary of this world, sick of life, and, locking all his doors, he sat coolly down before a mirror, placed a big navy revolver to his head and blew out his brains. The scribe was one of the first to see him, with his head under the stove, the chair between his legs, and the pistol by his side. He died as he had lived, alone and unhappy. Yet his neighbors gave him a Christian burial and the first grave dug in the Charlevoix cemetery received the mortal remains of William Lamister.

(Continued on last page.)

The SENTINEL

For PRINTING

Parcel No. 7—Sta. 48+85 to 50+20. All that part of the following described parcel of land lying S'Wly of a line drawn from a point in the N line of said parcel to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed: Said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, being S 42 rods W of the NE cor. of said Sec. 35; thence S 2 rods; thence W 40 rods to place of beg., being part of the NW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., said parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W 32 rods thence N 10 rods to place of beg., said centerline of US 31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.171 acres, more or less.

Owned by: The Estate of Maggie Lamb, deceased, Wm. Lamb, executor, Charlevoix, Mich. Ralph Wanders, and a return receipt requested.

It Is Further Ordered, that a copy of this order be served at least 10 days prior to said time of hearing upon each of the persons interested in the property hereinbefore described as owners or otherwise, and upon the persons mentioned in the affidavit of service by or any part thereof.

Dated March 15, 1932.

Ernest A. Rosegregger,
Probate Judge

4712

NOTICE

City Bonds For Sale March 29, 1932.

The City of Charlevoix will offer for sale on Tuesday the 29th day of March, 1932, at 8 o'clock p. m. Eastern Standard Time, at the Council Room in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, the following described bonds of the City of Charlevoix:

Bridge Street Paving Bonds amounting to the sum of Eleven Thousand Dollars, bearing interest at the rate of six per centum per annum. The denomination of the bonds will be as follows: $500.00, $250.00 and $167.00 and described numbers to be selected in the above order and name to be fixed on the date of issue. Said bonds will be issued in payment, to be duly paid representatives.

It Is Further Ordered that a copy of this order be published three weeks in the Charlevoix Sentinel and the Charlevoix Courier a newspaper printed and circulated in this county of Charlevoix and circulated in the county of Charlevoix, and that the affidavit of publication be filed in said office of said Court before the time of hearing aforesaid.

Dated March 15, 1932.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk.

4712

BABY CHICKS—Limit July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks, Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching. Cherryvale Hatchery, E. Jordan Phone 116 F-2 4406

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Will sell in large size lots. Beautiful view of lake and fine prospective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy duckage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 18tf

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 104 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 784
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Office Hours
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

Parcel No. 11 PV—For Visitor—Sta. 19+69 to 20+35 North.

A triangular parcel of land in SW¼ of NE¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich. Said parcel of land is now surveyed over and across a parcel of land in the NW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., said parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods to the point of beg., thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W 32 rods thence N 10 rods to place of beg., said centerline of US 31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.171 acres, more or less.

Owned by: The Estate of Maggie Lamb, deceased, Wm. Lamb, executor, Charlevoix, Mich. Ralph Wanders, Adms:

Est. Damages	$20.45
Est. Benefits	14.37
Award	$16.08

Parcel No. 10 & 11—Sta. 19+69 to 20+35 N.; 20+35 to 21+87 N.

A strip of land 100 ft in width, lying 50 ft. each side of and adjacent to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed over and across a parcel of land in the NW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., said parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods to the point of beg., thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W 32 rods thence N 10 rods to place of beg., said centerline of US 31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.171 acres, more or less.

Owned by: The Estate of Maggie Lamb, deceased, Wm. Lamb, executor, Charlevoix, Mich. Ralph Wanders, Adms:

Est. Damages	$20.45
Est. Benefits	14.37
Award	$16.08

Parcel No. 10 & 11—Sta. 19+69 to 20+35 N.; 20+35 to 21+87 N.

A strip of land 100 ft in width, lying 50 ft. each side of and adjacent to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed over and across a parcel of land in the NW¼ of NW¼ of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Co., Mich., said parcel of land being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beg., thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing, exclusive of land in the present highway 0.388 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ken C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. R. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$81.60
Est. Benefits	39.70
Award	$41.90

Parcel No. 18 PV—Sta. 4+25 to 5+65 N. For Visitor.

A triangular parcel of land in NW¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, Charlevoix Twp., Charlevoix Co., Mich. being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beg., thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing, exclusive of land in the present highway 0.388 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ken C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. R. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$81.60
Est. Benefits	39.70
Award	$41.90

Parcel No. 18 PV—Sta. 4+25 to 5+65 N. For Visitor.

A triangular parcel of land in NW¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, Charlevoix Twp., Charlevoix Co., Mich. being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beginning, thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.090 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ken C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. R. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	None
Est. Benefits	None
Award	$1.00

Parcel No. 18—Sta. 3+95 to 11+50 North.

A strip of land 50 ft. in width, lying N of and adjacent to the centerline of US 31, as now surveyed over and across a parcel of land described as follows: Commencing 10.78 chains E and 4 chains N of the quarter post on the W line of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, thence W 6.88 chs. to Emmet & Grand Traverse State Road, thence S'Wly along said road to the N line, thence E 11.45 chains to place of beg. All in Charlevoix Twp., Charlevoix County, Mich. Said centerline of US 31 being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beg., thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing, exclusive of land in the present highway 0.388 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ken C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. R. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$81.60
Est. Benefits	39.70
Award	$41.90

Parcel No. 18 PV—Sta. 4+25 to 5+65 N. For Visitor.

A triangular parcel of land in NW¼ of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, Charlevoix Twp., Charlevoix Co., Mich. being further described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beginning, thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.090 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Ken C. Molet and wife, Lucy A. R. F. D. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	None
Est. Benefits	None
Award	$1.00

Parcel No. 18—Sta. 3+95 to 11+50 North.

A strip of land 50 ft. in width, lying N of and adjacent to the centerline of US 31, as now surveyed over and across a parcel of land described as follows: Commencing 10.78 chains E and 4 chains N of the quarter post on the W line of Sec. 34, T34N R8W, thence W 6.88 chs. to Emmet & Grand Traverse State Road, thence S'Wly along said road to the N line, thence E 11.45 chains to place of beg. All in Charlevoix Twp., Charlevoix County, Mich. Said centerline of US 31 being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of beg., thence N 88° 59' W 1955 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.090 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Chas. R. Munpon and wife, Zada B. F. D. No. 4, Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$665.12
Est. Benefits	164.60
Award	$500.52

Parcel No. 7—Sta. 48+85 to 50+20. All that part of the following described parcel of land lying S'Wly of a line drawn from a point in the N line of said parcel to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed: Said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods to the point of beg., thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W 32 rods thence N 10 rods to place of beg., said centerline of US 31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.409 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Geo. F. Hall and wife, Anna M., 1224 State St., Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$71.67
Est. Benefits	21.60
Award	$50.07

Parcel No. 7—Sta. 48+85 to 50+20. All that part of the following described parcel of land lying S'Wly of a line drawn from a point in the N line of said parcel to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed: Said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods to the point of beg., thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W 32 rods thence N 10 rods to place of beg., said centerline of US 31, being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the N line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 487.9 ft. E of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence to the right along the arc of a 2° 10' curve, long chord bears S 71° 15' W 1024.9 ft. more or less to the point of ending, containing 0.409 acres, more or less.

Owned by: Geo. F. Hall and wife, Anna M., 1224 State St., Charlevoix, Mich.

Est. Damages	$71.67
Est. Benefits	21.60
Award	$50.07

Parcel No. 7—Sta. 48+85 to 50+20. All that part of the following described parcel of land lying S'Wly of a line drawn from a point in the N line of said parcel to the centerline of US 31 as now surveyed: Said parcel of land being described as follows: Commencing at a point on the west line of Sec. 35, T34N R8W, 50 rods S of NW corner of said Sec. 35, thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods to the point of beg., thence E 32 rods thence N 10 rods thence W

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By F. O. Alexander

Equal to the Task

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

The Fireside Scene

Along the Concrete

All My Expensive Bric-a-brac

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

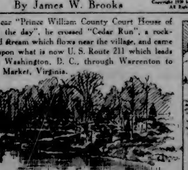
Our Boy is a Hard Snoozer!

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks

For more than a century and a half the "Belvoir" of Washington's character formint days—the "Belvoir" of his ardent youth—has been but a memory. From this site, on U. S. Route 1, below Alexandria, he set out upon surveying expeditions in the Shenandoah Valley at the age of sixteen. Ferrying over the Occoquan River at the right, he rode plunged into forest trails leading toward the Blue Ridge Mountains.

One near "Prince William County Court House of the day", he crossed "Cedar Run", a rock-ledged stream which flows near the village, and came out upon what is now U. S. Route 211 which leads from Washington, D. C., through Warrenton to New Market, Virginia.



BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say, Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh dope, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring instant comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand; genuine Castoria always has the name—

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Lesser Evil

Her—Do you pay our milkman by clock?

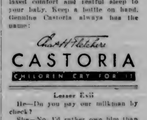
She—No, I'd rather owe him than worry about the bank balance.—Chicago News.

Bad Language

A new family had moved into the neighborhood and Jack, accompanied by his dog, made a call. He came home stained and soiled.

"Mother, I wouldn't have anything to do with that lady, she says cussing words. When I went on the porch she said: 'Don't let that dirty cur come on my clean porch.'"

Is Your Rest Disturbed?



Deal Promptly with Bladder Irregularities

Heed promptly bladder irregularities, burning, scanty and too frequent passage and getting up at night. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition. Try Doan's Pills. No other advertised diuretic is so widely used. Sold the world over. Recommended Get Doan's today

A Second Cousin

"That's a nice boy next door," said the caller. "Pardon me, isn't it?"

"Quite," agreed the little boy. "A evening gave it to me."

A Rare Creature

Mable—So you married Harold Sullen? Isn't after all, he was the most unsociable man we ever knew.

Nell—Yes, but he was unsociable with everybody.

END CHEST COLDS QUICK WITH GOOD RED PEPPER HEAT

Relieves Almost Instantly

When nasty breathing and sharp pains in chest, dry cough or washed-out feeling broadcast the presence of a chest cold, just try this safe and sure remedy that relieves chest colds and the sneezing pains of rheumatism, neuritis and lumbago almost instantly. It is the penetrating, healing heat of red peppers. Now this generous old peppery heat is centered in an ointment you simply rub on to get relief in less than 3 minutes. It is Rowles Red Pepper Rub. No blister, nor burn nor harm. It does bring the relief you want. Get a small jar from your druggist.

No Doubt About It

"Is the court about her broken engagement?"

"Completely unmanned!"

Why don't they arrest marketers for dispensing of green goods?

Poverty slips many a budding genius in the feed.

Good temper is like the sun: it shrds brightness over everything.

The eye is the barometer of the heart.

Careful Mothers treat for worms promptly

When your child won't eat, is pale, restless or feverish, beware of worms—they are childhood's greatest savage enemy and cause serious ills. Careful mothers give Jayne's Vermifuge, the safe, powerful, worm-expelling tonic to expel round worms and pinkworms. It is pleasant, thoroughly beneficial and tones up the whole digestive system. Get a bottle today from your nearest druggist. Advertised according to directions, then you can be sure that your child is safe from worms. DR. D. JAYNE & SON, Philadelphia.

OVER 30 MILLION BOTTLES SOLD

JAYNE'S Vermifuge

Quickest Way to Darken Gray Hair Naturally

Don't dye hair. Science has discovered a quick, simple way to darken gray hair naturally—so nobody can tell—restore its original shade safely and as easily as brushing. It makes the hair healthy. Finest way known to get rid of gray hair, as thousands testify. Try it. For directions only. Or for a bottle of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and follow easy directions. Druggists will delight you.

John's Mother Praises Doctor

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, tired-out, feverish, constipated, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup cleans the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Western mothers praise it. Mrs. Joseph W. Hill, 4506 Redford Ave., Omaha, Nebraska, says: "I'll never forget the doctor who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his weak bowels. That was when he was just a baby. He suffered a good deal before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup boy."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

Daniel Webster Relic

A Boston directory issued in Daniel Webster in 1827 and bought in his native has been found in the files of Sampson & Murdock, publishers of the Boston directory at present. The book listed 12,000 persons and their occupations, compared with 670,000 in the 1931 issue.

MENTHOLATUM stuffy nostrils, soothe irritation by use of Mentholatum is now. Rub briskly on chest to improve blood circulation and prevent congestion. Jars and tubes 30c.

CHECKS COLDS

No Wonder

Diner—Bring dinner I ever had here!

Waiter—You ate the chef is home sick today.

BREATHE FREELY in 30 seconds

Apply soothing cream—keeps nostrils open—Catarrh disappears

What magical relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the head pain goes clear and you breathe freely the very moment you apply a little fragrant, ointment. HAY'S CREAM BALM to each nostril. Relief and comfort are yours all night and all day. There's nothing better for clearing air passages, soothing inflamed, sore tissues and it even relieves Catarrh and head colds. Get a little HAY'S CREAM BALM from your druggist today.

EASTER—A Day of Many Meanings

1. President Hoover greeting the crowd gathered for the annual "Easter egg rolling" on the lawn of the White House.
2. Sunrise services on Easter morning in the Garden of the Gods, near Colorado Springs, Colo.
3. The Easter lily, one of the loveliest of all Easter symbols.
4. The Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, Calif., where an impressive Easter morning service is held every year.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT'S an "early Easter" this year, for Easter Sunday falls on March 27. Last year it came on April 3 and next year it will come on April 16. For all the rest latter days on our calendar Easter is the most variable. The only thing certain about it is that it always comes on a Sunday and it is limited to either one of two months, March and April. Then there are other limits, too, that is, it cannot come earlier than March 22 nor later than April 25.

Why all this variation in such an important annual festival? The reasons go back into ancient history.

The festival now known as Easter was celebrated by ancient Israel as the Passover for many centuries before the birth of Jesus Christ. It was based upon the events which took place when the Hebrews were saved from the destruction which was visited upon the Egyptians, as given in Exodus 12:27. The first Christians, being in the main Jews, continued for a long time to observe the Passover as well as other ancient ceremonies. But gradually these early followers of the Cross began to substitute the Christ for the paschal lamb of their Passover ceremonies.

Eventually there arose a difference of opinion between the Christians of Hebrew descent and those of Gentile descent as to the time when these ceremonies should be celebrated. Those of Hebrew descent declared that the day of the death of Jesus should be the date of the ending of the paschal fast, which in Hebrew sites, always was on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening. Therefore the Easter festival which followed, might fall on any day of the week. Those of Gentile descent, however, wanted the first day of the week, Sunday, to be the first day of the resurrection festival. Thus the Friday preceding would be observed as the date of the crucifixion without paying any attention to the day of the month, the first commencing each midnight of Saturday.

The dispute over this point was complicated by the irregularities of the time of full moon in relation to the year. The Hebrews observed their feasts at the instant of the vernal equinox, but this time is subject to small changes due to the astronomical fact of precessions of the axis of all bodies in the solar system. The Hebrews based their years on lunar changes, whereas we now determine the exact length of a year by the sun and clocks, which is more accurate. It is notable that the ancient Hebrews always had trouble their chronology because they based the beginning of each month on the first sight of the new moon.

The trouble was principally due to the fact that the moon revolves around the earth in 27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes and 11½ seconds, and the earth around the sun in 31,558,149 seconds. Therefore the moon makes 12.3683 revolutions to the earth's one. Full-moon times are also out of harmony with the spring equinox, and this fact caused trouble in determining times in ancient times. The result of all these complications was that by applying the Jewish rules to Easter, the dates of the crucifixion and the resurrection, two days which were supposed to be fixed for all time, varied constantly.

For 325 years the difficulty between the Christians of Jewish descent and those of Gentile descent continued. Not being able to decide the occurrence of Easter, the council of the early Christian church finally appealed to the astronomers in Alexandria, Egypt, for aid. However, the scientists were not of much assistance, for they had no lunar tables such as we now have, computed by master mathematicians. They attempted to make rules, but the variations of the full moon in reference to the year would not cause Easter to fall on Sunday any more than any other day at all related to the year on Sunday, so each nation celebrated to suit itself as that it would come on that day. Thus in A. D. 387 the Gauls celebrated Easter on March 21, in Italy it fell on April 18, and in Egypt it fell on April 25.

Eventually the selection of a certain Sunday was definitely fixed during the 16th century A. D. It was designated as the Sunday between the fifteenth and twenty-first days of the moon in the first month of the Jewish lunar years. It was directed that the computation should be made according to the tables of Victorius of Aquitaine, introduced in 457 A. D. Because of the fact that Britain did not consent to be a part of the Roman empire, the Sixth century decree did not affect the British church at first, and it continued to celebrate Easter on a basis previously approved at Rome. The matter was finally disposed of at a synod held at Whitby in Yorkshire in 664 A. D., after which the clergy of the British Isles conformed to the general practice of the western church.

Accordingly Easter is now observed by both the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches on the first Sunday after the full moon (or fourteenth day of the moon) on or next after March 21. So it cannot be earlier than March 22 nor later than April 25. Thus it is possible for the astronomers and mathematicians to tell in advance on what dates Easter will come each year, and they are now known for more than a century in advance.

That, of course, is based upon the assumption that our calendar will continue undisturbed. But there is a possibility that some time within the next few years a new calendar system will be adopted and in that case Easter Sunday will be placed and in that case Easter Sunday will be placed and in that case Easter Sunday will be placed at a fixed date instead of a variable one.

So, in case you're interested in knowing when will be the Easter dates for the next few years, here they are:

1933	April 16
1934	April 1
1935	April 21
1936	April 12
1937	March 28
1938	April 17
1939	April 9
1940	March 24
1941	April 13
1942	April 5
1943	April 25
1944	April 9
1945	April 1
1946	April 21
1947	April 6
1948	March 28
1949	April 17
1950	April 9

Just as Easter is now a variable date, so has it a variable meaning to many different people. To the child, who views it through his religious significance, it means a day whose symbols are rabbits, little chickens and Easter eggs. To those of children, too, who like to think of any holiday time in terms of something real to eat, Easter time means candy eggs, candy rabbits and other candy symbols of the day, not to mention chocolate fragrant, sugary piles of the scientific marshmallow confection, known as hot cross buns.

How did a number of peculiar items of be associated with Easter anyway? It goes back to the days of the ancient Saxons who worshipped Easter as goddess of the dawn and besides gave of new life with the coming of the vernal equinox. That was long before they had ever heard of Christianity and the Resurrection. In their joy at the return of new life in the springtime they brought the Easter goddess their sweetest cakes, at the same time eating great numbers of them themselves.

They clung to this custom even after they had embraced Christianity. Some of the early Christian leaders were a bit dubious of preserving such pagan customs, but the custom was too ancient a person who was also a genius for compromise, suggested in the proverb that they found the main cakes marble them with the cross. Thus the Saxon Easter biscuit was made to fit Christian conceptions and for centuries after words it was felt that they were endowed with some special spiritual qualities. A few years ago bakers on Good Friday not only would not bake bread, as would many Jews, but if they thought on that day would be efficient medicine for various ills which crumbled in a cup of water and then taken like the bread.

To most people Easter means a time for coming forth in new clothes and although some of our philosophers have lamented the extravagance of the "Easter attire parade" as a sign that we have lost the spiritual significance of the day, in reality it is in keeping with the essential spirit of Easter, which is ushered in by rebirth and joyous adieu. It is the time of "resurrection" of revived life after sombre death. It marks the climax of the year when all growing creatures from sheep, cheese of the field, child of winter and brings to new scene. With all nature heralding the way by bursting forth in new raiment it is only natural that mankind should celebrate the season of new life by putting on new apparel.

So when sunset appears in church on Easter Sunday in a new hood and a new hat, it is not more human vanity exhibiting itself, than when it dresses with the symbols of fair of Judaism, according to it. It is human, of the sweet spreads Jewish is now in Christian times. Easter Sunday started. Because they Christianity nations made symbols of new life, and length to their big boats made to the summer after certain kinds of shells measure existence, said Louise Olcott. He added, however, that the inland sea-ers did make voyages of 1,500 miles which would have carried them to the American coast.

"SICK HEADACHE?"

IT is not necessary to give in to headaches. It is just a bit old-fashioned! The modern woman who feels a headache coming on at any time, takes some tablets of Bayer Aspirin and heads it off.

Keep Bayer Aspirin handy, and keep your nonsupernatural. Headaches, especially, come at inconvenient times. So do colds. You can end them before they've hardly started if you'll only remember this handy, harmless form of relief. Carry it in your purse and ensure your comfort while shopping, your evening's pleasure at the theatre. Those little nagging aches that bring a case of "nerves" by day are ended in a jiffy. Taste that once kept pestle-horror are forgotten half an hour after taking Bayer Aspirin. You'll find these tablets always help. If you get real aspirin, you'll get real relief. In every package of genuine Bayer tablets are proven directions which relieve headaches, colds, sore throat, toothache, neuralgia, pain, sciatica, rheumatism, etc.

The tablets stopped Baby's pain won't fail you, and can't harm you. They don't depress the heart. They don't upset the stomach. No take them wherever you go. Cost little, and take enough to end the pain.

BAYER

Prized Gray Hairs Went Into Discard

A young interesting man has long been slaughter of the hair that white young, he is not nearly as young as he looks. His youthfulness of appearance has often caused pre-sons in authority—such as traffic po-licemen—to treat him with a degree of condescension rather painfully for-treatable. His office boy, whose ap-pearance is one of stately promotion thoroughly in everywhere respect by subway guards, box office employees and garage attendants with influence over tempers that he ever can achieve.

This persistent youthfulness has worried him mildly, for ten years or more. At was, therefore, with some fear that he first observed that he was going gray. It appeared along the sides of his head. His appreciation was in curity. Then his wife, embracing on one of her periodical campaigns to smarten up, his husband, had her look at his hair the shorter. He explained the need to the barber.

He emerged from the shop groomed and the time that he was invited like an asset young executive. He dropped in at a soda fountain and had a wilting fear from dispenser. Finally the dispenser, a lad of about twenty, served to him.

"And what is yours, young man?" he inquired.

The advertising was honest in the mirror. The barber had put the gray away.—New York Sun.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong. So should build up by druggists in tablets or liquid—Adv.

Polynesians Were Travelers

America in ancient times was not completely enclosed as it is at present, Captain Olcott. At least the islands of the South American coast had contacts with thousands of far off Polynesia, according to Dr. H. H. Dixon, of Harvard university. The American coast, the sweet potato family is now in Polynesia and the Cocoanut trees likewise found started. Theories that Polynesians sailed their long canoes to the coast of Peru, a distance of 3,000 miles, are ex-plained by the fact that the Polynesians made voyages of 1,500 miles which would have carried them to the American coast.

Notices in a press festively.

Kills Pain and Heals

ZMO OIL

It kills pain while it heals, because it penetrates into the wound.

If you have Pain in Back, Cold in Head, Cough, Sore Throat, Earache, Piles or know of a wound on man or beast that will not heal, try ZMO-OIL.

35¢ at Drug Stores

If you have not tried ZMO-OIL we will gladly send you a free sample bottle. Write

DR. R. ZAGEL & CO.
831 New York Ave. SHEBOYGAN, WIS.

Keeps Illusion of Sea

Capt. Dewitt Wilson Brown, old time sea captain, has spent the past quarter of a century aboard a ship, but not at sea. His home, where he has been living enjoyed a landlocked existence.

Or an Automobile

Commercial Traveler—The line of forever is so vast that man scarcely comprehends it.

Listener—What? Have you never driven a car?—Boston Transcript.

Young BODIES DEMAND it!

Two bodies of all growing children require certain essential vitamins. Ingredients among these are Vitamin A and D, found in cod liver oil. Scott's Emulsion is rich in pure cod liver oil. "A" helps sunscreen—and their parents as well—build sturdy, active bodies. "D" aids children to grow well and to develop perfect bones and teeth. In this combined form, they are easy to get and digest. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. Sales Representative, Harold F. Ritchie, Inc., 69 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Listen in on Dr. Allen A. Stockdale's broadcasting with Count and Luden's Cough Drops, Columbia Coast to Coast Network

Scott's Emulsion
OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

CUTICURA SOAP

Used in Every Country in the World for More than Three Generations

FROZEN NORTH TO SUNNY SOUTH

Mothers! BEWARE OF WORMS

Be on the look-out for the common enemy of children. Watch for such symptoms as picking at nostrils, grittina of teeth, poor appetite and fretfulness. Expel them with Dr. Peery's Vermifuge, the safe, intestinal parasites with Comstock's Dead Shot Worm Pellets. Easy for the most sensitive child to take.

COMSTOCK'S WORM DEAD SHOT PELLETS
With Comstock's Lax. Vermifuge
1170 e. Erie Chicago, Ill.

When a nose goes out of shape for want a simple scrap of gauze and tape.

CRAMPS
Wonderful, simple treat. Immediate relief from Cramps, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Nausea, Vomiting. Send 25c for trial bottle.
INT. NATIONAL DRUG & SUPPLY CO.
1934 Irving Pk. Blvd. - Chicago, Ill.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 12-1932.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Church Services—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 9:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00
Services—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

Everything is set for the celebration of Easter, the great Christian anniversary with supplementing music, an Easter message—and a delightful atmosphere at worship.

In the evening the Sunrise Service. The time is 6:00 a. m. Let us make this service worthy of its name.

Mr. Gerald Bush, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, will occupy the pulpit Sunday, April 24. The pastor will spend a few days in California, Ohio, Mr. Bush arranged unto undertake the task in an address before the Chamber of Commerce luncheon from our pulpit. Time did not permit him to fully complete his subject, consequently Mr. Bush consented to finish in the near future. Whether his will consider this assignment a task time we do not know. We are sure however that whatever subject Mr. Bush chooses it will be profitable and interesting.

Jas. McGrath, Allen Campbell, Wm. Parmelee, and Amos Weimer responded in a generous manner to a request for donations. Consequently we have eight new and sturdy tables for our dining room and the old tables are revamped that one may use them with a complete sense of security. Those gentlemen also built a temporary extension to our platform. We trust the time will come when we can reward them with more than a public mention.

Because some who planned to unite with us at Easter time are out of the city it has been decided to postpone this event until the second Sunday in April.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church at Ironton entertained about 30 women from the Charlevoix Congregational church at a St. Patrick's Day tea last Thursday afternoon. Following an interesting program in the church, delicious refreshments were served in the dining room which was appropriately decorated in Irish green.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Keuch, Pastor

Easter! Given vitality to life. Without the fact of Easter, life would be dull, flat and meaningless. The natural, universal dream of humanity is toward the idea that Easter reveals immortality brought to life. That which was the eternal "dream" of man from the earliest known times, that which was the longing of man became a reality when Jesus Christ arose from the dead.

The Easter message will be given Sunday morning at 10:00 by Rev. Martin, Rev. Martin is inspiring so will be able to keep his appointment this Sunday.

Communion will be observed during the service.

The Young People will hold their Easter service at 6 p. m. Sunrise service. Miss Rena Carey will lead the meeting.

Bible School follows the morning service.

Evening service at 7 p. m.

There will be no prayer service at the church this week.

Remember the Union Good Friday services to be held in the Baptist Church Friday afternoon beginning at 1 p. m.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

The Good Friday and Easter services at the Methodist church will be somewhat as follows. The pastor secured a resolution in the Association of Commerce for the closing of the stores from twelve until three. The service at the Methodist church will begin promptly at one thirty and close promptly at 2:45, guaranteeing convenience to merchants. All will come at once and leave at once, maintaining strict silence. The church has been completely darkened, to dramatize the "noonday darkness" of the crucifixion.

Solemn worship and praise.
Invocation.
Violin "Nocturne", from Chopin, by Miss Germond of Petoskey.
Scenic drama—"Three Marys at the Cross".
Lesson Sermon:
Communion, accompanied by violin—"Sonata", from Beethoven.
Recessional, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," onto the street. The entire service in Calvary darkness, and the communion in the light of the cross only.

Easter Sunday the pastor's topic will be: "Shall We Continue," on eternal living. The choir will give the beautiful number of Scarcella "They Have Taken Away My Lord," with other selections and what will be greatly enjoyed by a Charlevoix audience, Mrs. Mildred McArthur, of Flint, will appear as soloist.

"Among the Lilies" will be a fine and symbolic service, in the sanctuary at six thirty, by the young people.

The Club meets this Thursday with Mrs. George Brown, assisted by Mrs. Barnes.

The Aid Society has a once-o'clock luncheon next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Markham, on Belvedere Ave.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, March 27—"Reality."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 20.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (1 John 2:17): "And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 191): "As a material, incorporeal life-basis is found to be a misapprehension of existence, the spiritual and divine Principle of man dawns upon human thought, and leads it to "where the young child was,"— even to the birth of a new idea, in the spiritual sense of being and of what life includes."

EASTER NOVELTIES. 1c TO 10c.
Children's Gift Baskets (Filled) 10c, 15c, 25c
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION APRIL 13TH

The Republican County Convention for the County of Charlevoix will be held at The High School in the City of East Jordan Wednesday, April 13th, 1932 at 10 o'clock East. ern Standard Time. For the purpose of electing five delegates to attend the State Convention to be held in the City of Grand Rapids on Wednesday, April 27th, 1932 at 11 A. M. E. S. T. and for the transacting of such other business as may come before the convention. Delegates to the county convention are the same persons who were selected as delegates to the convention held in Charlevoix on the Republican party in the spring of 1931.

The several townships are entitled to the following delegates: Bay 4, Boyne Valley 6, Chandler 1, Charlevoix 6, Evangeline 6, Hayes 5, Hudson 1, Marion 4, Melrose 5, Norwood 2, Peaine 1, St. James 1, South Arm 2, Wilson 4, Boyne City, 1st ward 2, 2nd ward 4, 3rd ward 7, 4th ward 6, Charlevoix, 1st ward 3, 2nd ward 10, 3rd ward 7, East Jordan, 1st ward 2, 2nd ward 5, 3rd ward 8.

By order of the Republican Committee.

H. C. Meyer, Chairman.
Lela Simmons, Treasurer.
Kit Carson, Secretary.

LIBRARY REPORT
(Continued from first page.)

Supplies

Subscriptions for magazines	$ 9.50
Furniture for office	4.50
Magazine covers	12.90
Books, supplies for desk, flowers, stamps, paper, etc.	16.01
	$44.16

Books

New books purchased:
Adult	408
Juvenile	115
Gifts presented	39
Total	562

Minnie E. Payton,
Librarian

EASTER NOVELTIES. 1c TO 10c.
Children's Gift Baskets (Filled) 10c, 15c, 25c
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

CITIZENS MILITARY TRAINING CAMP TO OPEN JULY 5

Only 6 will mark the opening of the summer Military Training Camp at Fort Brady, the Soo.

All indications point to the largest enrollment on record. Last year the total allotment was filled some time before the first of May. If you are able bodied and between the ages of seventeen and twenty-four and are anxious to make a good start in life, plan to spend a month at Fort Brady. You will not regret it.

Every young man who has attended one of these camps, is anxious to go again. The United States government will pay all costs. Transportation to and from camp, three good meals a day, competent medical care, uniforms and equipment will be furnished without cost. You will go home at the end of the month a better American, in better health and better able to take up your studies or return to your job.

The purpose of the camps is to make better citizens to carry on the nation's work and perpetuate her institutions. There is no obligation for future military service. There are no strings attached. More than half a million young men have attended at least one of these summer camps, within the past ten years.

If interested see Lt. F. H. Wilkinson or Principal O. F. North at the High School.

FORMER CHARLEVOIX GIRL ATTAINS PROMINENCE

A former Charlevoix girl and graduate of Charlevoix High School, who has attained prominence in the musical world is Miss Annabel Comfort, 129 E. Tenth St., New York City, who has just received a scholarship to study composition at Fontainebleau Palace, Paris.

Miss Comfort is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lou H. Comfort of Charlevoix and is well known locally.

Miss Comfort graduated with her master's degree from the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, and had a fellowship at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia for two years. It was on her composition, that she received her scholarship from the Pierson Foundation in Philadelphia.

She sails for Paris June 15th according to her present plans.

Several local sportsmen have made the trip to Jordan river during recent days or nights to participate in the sucker spearing activities. As per phenominal catches have been made or at least reported by the Charlevoix groups making the trip.

DRAFT HISTORY OLD IS FOUND IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Three Thousand Persons Answer Call for Antique Upholstery.

Mobile upholstered furniture, considerably more than a century old, still in good conditions and that has been in daily use since the time of its purchase, has been uncovered by the Household Science Institute of Chicago, in response to a prize offer of $25 for the oldest piece of furniture covered in goatskin.

Since the day the contest opened by printing reports and descriptions of old pieces of furniture have been pouring into the Institute offices and now a check is entrusted in sorting over the documents. The contest closes today. The sofa enlisted in the competition is claimed to be at least 200 years old; a chair, one of a set purchased by a bride and groom before the Use of 1812, is another interesting entry and three are several articles inscribed to be at least a century old.

Last was the predominating color in olden days, the examples submitted are but occasional green ones are reported, suggesting that the modern love of color variety and the prefer ence for "leather" shades had its beginnings many years ago. Also with the touch of modern, many of these have been restored. Unfortunately for the contestants who submitted home built, her will not be eligible for the prize as the winner must submit neither, the age of the Antique goat.

To date more than 3,000 entries have been received. Practically every state in the Union has been represented. The most likely claimants for the prize so far are from the Pacific coast. fine furniture used in the early days and imported from abroad is still the cherished possession of the household.

Draft Defined

A draft is air in motion that removes heat from the body faster than bodily heat is normally dissipated. According to the National Institute of Home Industry, of Holland, Michigan, this body, points out the Institute, desired condition is that wherein the air is in constant motion, yet not a sufficient velocity to create a draft condition for anyone. Home air conditioning systems now available are equipped with air-conditioning units which maintain the air in sufficient motion to prevent air stagnation or heat concentration, yet the air is not of sufficient velocity to cause a sensation of draft is the most sensitive skin.

James Divis, a city employe for several years, who has been more or less indisposed for some days, entered the hospital for treatment Tuesday. His condition is not reported as serious hence it can be expected that he will be discharged and back on his electrical work soon.

Weather conditions for the past few weeks has been exceptionally fine, such as has prevailed during the winter months just passed. Blizzards have raged through the middle west, tornadoes with heavy loss of life in the south, carrying with it millions of dollars in destruction of property, while weather and snow conditions in Chicago Monday were recorded as being the worst and most severe in all history. During all this weather conditions here have been agreeable with a few snowflakes at long intervals apart, some cloudy days but usually all sunshine. Some snappy nights but no zero weather, in fact as a whole, making for a wonderful winter.

Judge W. C. Severance of the probate court, Antrim County, was a Charlevoix visitor Monday.

EASTER NOVELTIES. 1c TO 10c. Children's Gift Baskets (Filled) 10c, 15c, 25c
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

"CHRIST THE VICTOR" FOR EASTER CANTATA

All those who are lovers of good music, and especially of the beautiful music dedicated to the Easter season, should keep the following event in mind.

The inspiring Easter Cantata "Christ the Victor" by Dudley Buck, will be presented Easter Sunday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock Central Standard Time at the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

The mixed chorus consists of 45 voices from Charlevoix and East Jordan, assisted by Mrs. Gladys Dean, pianist; Miss Gwendolyn Miller, organist; Mrs. Ruth Soule, violinist; Hugh Parker, clarinet soloist; and Mrs. Marjorie Livingston, Mrs. Sylvia Miles, Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson, John Nordrum, Albert Rider, Fred Tyler, soloists. The program will be directed by Mrs. Florine M. Stelter.

The following Sunday, April 3rd, the Cantata will be given at the East Jordan Presbyterian church with the same personnel.

NOTICE—Tickets for mothers and daughters banquet limited. Please purchase in advance. There will be no tickets sold at the church. Date of banquet March 30th. Place, Congregational church. Time, 6:30 p. m. 2t12

EASTER NOVELTIES. 1c TO 10c. Children's Gift Baskets (Filled) 10c, 15c, 25c
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

FROM THE SENTINEL FILES

(Continued fro 6th page.)

His estate, which included property in Chicago, was administered by Major Green, and amounted to $25,000, all of which he willed to a friend in Chicago, named Peacock.

Jake Tapsaan, a Grand Traverse Indian, was born while George Washington was president, and is often seen with his rifle upon the streets of Traverse City. He has passed his 100th mile stone but is yet strong and vigorous, though he does not remember George.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

U. S. Signal Service commenced March 17th.

Senator Ruttars spent Saturday and Sunday in town.

The north half of St. Ignace has been incorporated as a village, to be known henceforth as St. Ignatius.

Regular trains row run to Harbor Springs, and passengers going to that place do not have to lay over in Petoskey.

East Jordan is to have a newspaper. E. S. Clink, of Boyne City, having bought out the Enterprise, proposes to remove it to that place.

The winter term of the Charlevoix school will close Friday. On Saturday evening the school will give an exhibition at Lewis hall. The Charlevoix orchestra are to assist.

It is now proposed to sell Bois Blanc island, which was reserved by the government to supply Fort Mackinac with wood. The island is twelve miles long, and lies in Lake Huron off Cheboygan.

A. J. McLeod has the upper rooms of his Bridge street establishment finished off and will re-ove his family thereto this spring, in order to be nearer his business. He will rent his residence on Mason street.

The Petoskey Record says the Indians up there are becoming rapidly civilized. Two young ladies met an old squaw on the street, and thinking to be polite, said to her "bon jour." The squaw stared at them in plain English, and in plainer English replied "Go to hell!"

The Masonic body in the United States has done well by the brethren in the lurred district of Michigan A. M. Clark of Lexington, the almoner of Masonic relief, has distributed nearly $24,000 in cash. Every Master Mason in the lurred district, who lost his home and was left destitute by that terrible calamity has received all the way from $20 to $300 each, according to their losses and needs. Relief has been given to upwards of 150 Masons.

Rev. G. Daniels' sermon Sunday evening was a marked relief from the stereotyped form of sermons with which Methodist pulpits are so prolific now-a-days. It was a practical presentation of truths which affect society in every day life, and it was listened to with rapt attention by a large congregation. His subject was "Sins of Omission," and what may be possible for any fruit raiser to do to prevent omissions.

In regard to cherries the surplus has been practically all used up so that the cherry man faces the year of 1932 with a clean slate.

While prices, of course, will not be favorable, they will justify a man in taking good care of his orchard and in using a good spraying program.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Soule are driving to Lansing today, where Mr. Soule was called to consult with the highway department relative to a new bridge now under construction that is located near the Charlevoix power plant in Bellaire on Intermediate river.

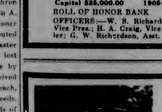
Mr. Thomas Bacot is in Detroit this week visiting his sister, Mrs. Robert Hammel and other relatives and friends.

A meeting is scheduled for tonight at the court house which will be attended by Democratic party followers under a call issued by Lee Powers as committee.

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1908—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.



DIVIDENDS
In loyalty, in faithful service, and in zealous care for your best interests, this bank pays daily dividends.

For that is our conception of the way a good friend should act—always.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932
Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. Sse John J. Roen
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre
This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.
ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.
SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MARCH 26, 27
"Alias the Doctor"
with
RICHARD BARTHELMESS
MARIAN MARSH
Exposed! The shameful secrets of a famous surgeon's past lovers . . . Yet the world knew him as her brother! It was illegal for him to save this woman! He had made a name for himself —but the name was another man's! Sensation piled upon sensation! A blinding flash of drama! It will stun your senses—test your nerves and courage to the breaking point. See it—and then forget it if you can!
Added Attractions—Comedy "Unemployed Ghosts".
Coming — "DANCE TEAM".
NOTE:—Open Saturday and Sunday nights only until further notice.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Bob and Mary never miss those "Spur of the Moment" parties
WHENEVER any of their friends plan a party "on the spur of the moment", Bob and Mary are almost sure to be invited. For THEY HAVE A TELEPHONE and can be reached quickly at any time.
Your telephone will "open the door" to many interesting and pleasant social events. And, in case of emergency, you can summon help immediately . . . by telephone.
Few things provide so much service at such low cost as the telephone.

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
Btf E. T. Gabos, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,000 will buy one of the best 70 acre farms in Charlevoix County.
Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.
Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Manchus, Mich. 31f

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1932 Number 49

DEATH TAKES JAMES DIVIS

WELL KNOWN CITY EMPLOYE DIES IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

Mr. James Divis, for the past eight years engaged with the city in electrical department passed away at the local hospital Thursday morning, his death following an illness of about two weeks, the last few days of which were spent at the local institution where he received treatment.

He was a native of Bohemia, born May 23, 1859, and came to the United States when a mere lad. In his boyhood days he lived with relatives in Jordan township for a few years, when due to harsh and even brutal treatment he was taken from his inhuman relatives by county officials and from that time until he reached fifteen years was cared for by his foster parents, a good education and later took up electrical studies, was a good position near Houghton, where he continued for fourteen years, and as herein stated for the past eight years in Charlevoix.

His work has been faithfully performed in every instance. His predominant characteristic was absolute honesty in business transaction and this also held true in his life work.

Mr. Divis was a veteran of the World War and his discharge papers was with him a prized possession. He was an honored member of Charlevoix lodge No. 282 F. & A. M. Arrangements for his funeral service have not been completed at this time, but it is wholly probable that this will be held under the auspices of his home fraternity.

So far as is known there are no immediate relatives of the deceased in this region. About two years ago he had a half brother who was in the government hospital in California, but no letters have been exchanged between the two during the past few years, hence whether or not the half brother survives is a matter of conjecture.

VALUABLE POINTERS FOR FRUIT GROWERS

The visit of D. H. Hootman, Fruit Specialist, was cordially received by a splendid attendance from all sections of the county.

At the Dupre Falls Agricultural Day Program held on March 22, fully 200 people heard his message which was largely supporting cast of "Dante Team," who also included Much of his time was spent in discussing the merits of raspberries and strawberries in making an additional income in this growing fruit. He discussed briefly the main factors to consider in making a success of the small fruit industry.

At Eveline Orchards on the forenoon of March 23, 70 farmers attended a practical demonstration on cherries and apples. Mr. Hootman pruned dozens of trees to demonstrate the principles of strong growing. A person many times is more apt to over prune than under prune so it largely resolves itself into using good judgment. The main emphasis was placed on the necessity of trying to eliminate undesirable limbs and to take out limbs that interfere with others and to take out where the growth is thick.

An attendance of 59 heard Mr. Hootman in the afternoon in East Jordan where he talked upon the many problems facing the growers of raspberries, strawberries, cherries and apples. From the use of chains to use alike to those who sacrifice what the situation is today and what may be possible for any fruit raiser to do to prevent possible loss.

The Record-Eagle of March 24 says:

"In the film are K. B. Mathews of Ludington, former prosecutor of Mason county, vice-president of Hardy & Lay Company and well known in legal, business and political circles of the state; Fitch H. Williams, for 26 years a practicing attorney in Antrim county and for the past few years a member of the firm of Clark, Cline, Ferris and Williams of Detroit, and one of the best known corporation lawyers in Michigan; W. Von Spreeken of Ludington, prosecuting attorney of Mason county and a well known criminal lawyer.

Mr. Mathews and Mr. Von Spreeken, who are associated in Ludington, will maintain their offices there, each of them spending three days each week in Traverse City. Mr. Williams, who will maintain his home in Kingsley, will devote his entire time to the local office.

The firm will specialize largely in corporation law although engaging in all branches of the profession."

Mr. Williams is well known in this entire region, more he has a statewide reputation as an attorney of exceptional ability with a knowledge of the law unsurpassed, wisdom in interpreting its complexities, logical in his conclusions and special aptitude for solving legal tangles.

Mr. "Bob" Miles made a business trip to Lansing Tuesday, returning Wednesday.

JAMES DUNN AND SALLY EILERS STARRED IN THIRD TRIUMPH

"Dance Team" Gives Fair Greatest Opportunity of Their Careers

Cleared by many critics as the wonder team of the year," a classification they cheerfully deserve following their remarkably humane characterizations in "Bad Girl" and "Min and Bill," James Dunn and Sally Eilers make their third screen appearance together in the leading roles of "Dance Team," the Fox Film version of Sarah Addington's popular novel, which will be the feature attraction at the Palace Theatre beginning next Saturday and Sunday.

Few film players in recent years have leaped to fame as spectacularly as have these two youngsters. To find a suitable parallel one must go back to the silent days when Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell rose overnight from utter obscurity to the heights of fame in their first teaming picture, "7th Heaven." And strange as it may seem, it was the same director who invented Janet and Charlie in their first picture, Frank Borzage, who directed the photoplay that lifted Sally and Jimmy to stardom.

Previous to the filming of "Bad Girl," Miss Eilers was just a pleasingly and amiable ingenue in the eyes of Hollywood executives. True, she had played leading parts in "Quick Millions" and "The Black Camel," but no one considered her a potential star. And Dunn was not even known as the screen capital. He had just arrived, having been signed in New York for the specific part of the good ne in "Over The Hill." Quite by hance they came under the keen eye of Borzage (or so did Gaynor and Farrell several years before, and as so often the case history repeated itself.

In their new picture "Dance Team" Dunn and Miss Eilers are said to have the same type roles as they had in their previous pictures, Dunn as flash and blood boy and girl whom on would meet in the ordinary walks of life, while Miss Eilers as classy youngsters they are fond of, with the ambitions of youth, which carry them through many disappointments and discouragements, to success as a dancing team. But with success comes the inevitable jealousies of the heart, of riches and of vanity, all of which add to the humanness and appeal of the film.

Minna Gombell, who played with Dunn and Miss Eilers in "Bad Girl" again has large supporting cast of "Dance Team," which also includes Edward Crandall, Harry Beresford, Inez Lawson, Ralph Morgan, and Claire Maynard. The screen play was written by Edwin Burke, whose adaptation of "Bad Girl" also scored greatly in making "Bad Girl" the success that it was. The new film was directed by Sidney Lanfield.

NEW LAW FIRM OPENS IN TRAVERSE CITY

A new law firm under the name of Matthews, Williams and Von Spreeken will open offices on the fifth floor of the State Bank Building, Traverse City, Thursday, March 24, where the firm will in the future engage in general practice.

The Record-Eagle of March 24 says:

"In the film are K. B. Mathews of Ludington, former prosecutor of Mason county, vice-president of Hardy & Lay Company and well known in legal, business and political circles of the state; Fitch H. Williams, for 26 years a practicing attorney in Antrim county and for the past few years a member of the firm of Clark, Cline, Ferris and Williams of Detroit, and one of the best known corporation lawyers in Michigan; W. Von Spreeken of Ludington, prosecuting attorney of Mason county and a well known criminal lawyer.

Mr. Mathews and Mr. Von Spreeken, who are associated in Ludington, will maintain their offices there, each of them spending three days each week in Traverse City. Mr. Williams, who will maintain his home in Kingsley, will devote his entire time to the local office.

The firm will specialize largely in corporation law although engaging in all branches of the profession."

Mr. Williams is well known in this entire region, more he has a statewide reputation as an attorney of exceptional ability with a knowledge of the law unsurpassed, wisdom in interpreting its complexities, logical in his conclusions and special aptitude for solving legal tangles.

County News

MARION CENTER

Mrs. Margaret Eckland visited Mrs. Geo. Meggison Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. John Herrington who has been ill the past week is around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shapton and Mr. and Mrs. Monyon called on Mr. and Mrs. Will Straw Sunday.

C. B. Meggison and family and Mr. and Mrs. Vern McGhan and son Clare spent Easter with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison.

The new tester, Ed. Ostland is making his monthly visit in the neighborhood.

Several members of Marion Center Grange attended Pomona at Ironton Saturday. Everyone enjoyed the pictures shown by our County Agent B. C. Mellencamp.

Mr. Vern Meghan was attending Court last week in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Vern McGhan was attending Court last week in Charlevoix.

Father F. L. McLaughlin was a Charlevoix visitor Saturday, making the round trip by airplane. He was accompanied by his brother, Eddie.

Mike Ciull, Art Larsen, Sendenbaugh brothers and R. J. McCann, who are fishing out of Manistique, were here over Sunday.

John Tully returned home from Charlevoix Saturday, where he was called on business. Mr. Wing, of St. Ignace accompanied pilot Rod Hammond on his trip here, by plane, Saturday.

The Garden Island Indians were here Sunday, they made the trip with a horse for the first time this winter.

The Easter Monday dance was held in the new hall and was well attended by old and young. All report a splendid time.

Mrs. Mary Gallagher, Beaine twp. pioneer, passed away in her 96th year, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Patrick Early, on Thursday, March 24th. She was the widow of the late Daniel P. Gallagher. Mrs. Gallagher was born in County Donegal, Ireland, leaving there 48 years ago and coming to Beaver Island, where she has since made her home. In point of years she was the oldest resident of Beaver Island. She is survived by three daughters and three sons; Mrs. Patrick Early of Beaver Island; Mrs. James McCann of Charlevoix, Mrs. Kittie O'Donnell of Escanaba; Dan and Hugh D. Gallagher of Beaver Island, and Peter Gallagher of Ashland, Wisconsin. Funeral took place Saturday at Holy Cross Church. Father McLaughlin officiating. Burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Due to various reasons the meeting of the Boyne Valley Progressive Club, scheduled for Friday, March 25 was adjourned. According to present plans the meeting will be held tomorrow (Friday) night, this to be preceded by a 6:30 dinner, served at 7:30 p. m. at the Wolverine hotel. Former Governor Green will be the feature speaker. It is probable that Charlevoix will be well represented at the meet. Mr. F. O. Barden is president of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwite McGeah and son "Bill" of Flint were guests of Mr. J. R. Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons several days recently. They returned to Flint Monday accompanied by Mr. Cooper who will visit friends in the south part of the state for an indefinite length of time.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery D. Pierce and son James, of Sault Ste. Marie, spent the week end in Charlevoix, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howard. Mr. Pierce is principal of the Sault Ste. Marie school and formerly held the same position in the Charlevoix school. Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Howard are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bedford, son and daughter, returned to Grand Rapids Monday, following a few days visit at the home of Mr. Bedford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford on Park Avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sterrett attended a meeting of veterans of foreign wars, members of the G. A. R. and American Legion held at Petoskey last Thursday night.

IH HOSPITAL FROM CRASH

MR. AND MRS. FRANKLIN SEARS INJURED IN GEORGIA

A telegram received here Friday carried the information that Mr. and Mrs. Franklin C. Sears were confined in a hospital at Valdosta, Georgia, where they were being treated for injuries received when their automobile was wrecked colliding with another machine as they were returning from spending the winter months in Florida.

Mrs. Sears was more or less cut around her face and head, her jaw fractured and in addition suffered internal injuries. Mr. Sears also was cut and bruised around his head, several ribs broken and received a number of minor injuries.

Details of the accident reaching Charlevoix friends are of meagre nature, but little is known here as to the seriousness of the affair or as to the length of time they will be detained at the hospital before they will be in condition to resume their homeward trip.

Five sons, two of whom were killed outright, were occupants of the machine that collided with the Sears automobile, according to information received here.

ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE MEET

SECOND ANNUAL AGRICULTURE SUPPER AT I. O. O. F. HALL

Thursday evening, March 31, has been selected as the time when the Charlevoix Association of Commerce will hold their second annual agricultural supper. This to be at the I. O. O. F. hall, the supper to be under the direction of the Lady Maccabees at 7:30 p. m.

The theme of the evening will be J. A. Hannah of the Michigan State College. Mr. Hannah was United States delegate to the World Poultry contest, held abroad, and will undoubtedly have a message of vital interest to his auditors.

Arrangements are underway for a most successful meeting in which provision is being made to provide and take care of a large attendance which is assured for this second annual event.

Members of the Association are extended the privilege of having their wives attend the meeting and the further courtesy of inviting some rural friend and his wife to be a guest, but all of which leads to the confusion that the attendance will be extraordinary while it is understood that the program of entertainment will be exceptional.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Myers motored to Detroit Friday and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Broderick. They were accompanied on the trip by their daughter, Miss Helen Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Jacobs spent the week end and the early part of the week with their son Mr. Kenneth Jacobs and family in Grand Rapids.

School News

Oratory and Declamatory Contests

This year the Oratory and Declamatory Contest will be held at the Charlevoix gymnasium, Thursday evening, April 7.

Five schools have entered representatives in both contests, Charlevoix representatives are Albert McMillan in the Declamatory Contest and Lois McMillan in the Oratory Contest.

A small admission charge of 10c and 25c will be made to cover expenses.

Three years ago the contest was held in Charlevoix and was very pleasing to all. A large attendance is hoped for again this year.

Music

Hugh Parker has won great honors in the field of music. He is one of the few school players picked from throughout the entire United States for the National High School Orchestra and is the only one from Michigan. The meeting is held at Detroit. Mr. Parker is currently playing in the Charlevoix

Hot One on the Fire Department

Residents of South Hempstead, L. I., had a good laugh at their fire department the other day. A flame broke out right in the fire house and the sprinkling battered the fire guard inside the apparatus room.

MILITARY PRISON IN NEED OF PRISONERS

Program of Model Institution Handicapped.

San Francisco—Wanted, 232 prisoners. That's what Col. George Moll, Works might advertise about his model prison out in San Francisco Bay. He hasn't enough prisoners.

For Alcatraz, army disciplinary barracks out on an island within the city limits of San Francisco, is where for many reasons—but of the 288 prisoners, only one is there for life, only one prisoner has ever made a really successful getaway, and every man works eight hours a day and four hours on Saturday.

It's a fine place where there is running hot water and lavatory in every cell, steam heat, shower baths, library, theatre shows, and every facility for the prisoners.

Under new army regulations a post commander may keep at his post guardhouse any prisoner within certain bounds, and therefore only the worst cases are sent to Alcatraz. Last year the barracks received 12 men to date after accomplishing with these prisoners the aim of their imprisonment, disciplining.

The mind is handicapped in all its activities by the fact that a key to each water and all water must be locked to keep them from Francisco. Alcatraz "If you attempt a flight, changing the water from two ways to shower.

All old Spanish fort, the original fortification overlooking San Francisco, Alcatraz, which became a military prison in 1858 has on their under arms only two men at a time, although within three minutes 1st persons can be armed to deal with any emergency.

Banking upon its importance to any consideration of the island is the kind of food the prisoners get. A sample menu consists of corn flakes and milk, fried hamburger steak, hot cakes, syrup, bread, coffee, and butter for breakfast; stew tomato soup, and cocktail, fried beefsteak, fried onions mashed potatoes, brown gravy, butter, bread, cream, pudding, pickled beets, raisin pudding, bread and coffee for dinner; baked macaroni and cheese, dill pickles, doughnuts, bread, coffee, for supper.

Now this menu does not read those who have served in the army for 20 days!

And recently they had turkey for their Sunday meal at Alcatraz.

The island has an auxiliary garden over the angel island across from Government reserved. Keeping men busy in the activities of National Week was attended without. In 1936 Francisco served as the "Alcatraz" Barracks Week, during the fire of 1906, and was attended in the Presidio, accommodations consisted of 1911 But he added 232 more prisoners in do all the work for a few days.

Colonel Works and his adjutant, Maj. Zenos E. Nash feel that the morale of the men in the barracks as well as their amenities, for eight hours' work.

The colonel thinks Alcatraz may be beautified by growing of grass on the hillside between sheet and cliffs. This men in the prison agree with him and have worked recently to carry out his ideas.

The prisoners are dressed in black uniforms and black shoes copy dress from war as it is enforced most black. The prisoners have a privilege which those where their clothes are repaired and pressed, a shoe shop, plumbing shop, and a carpenter shop complete shop and furniture shop. They also have a laundry which serves all the guests around the bay.

Pride of the island is the furniture departments, where skilled men repair antiques and build reproductions of the old Spanish furniture. Famous the Hepplewhite, Sheraton and other types.

The prisoners are allowed to use U.S. products to army and navy officers, and have all the orders they can fill.

Prisoners in productive capacities are allowed $2 a month for their work. The balance of what their industrial prisoners in gets into a general welfare fund. A recent purchase of $3,000 worth of cutting picture production machinery was made from this fund.

Among the features of the prison is its night-time rounding 214 feet above the water. The light is visible 22 nautical miles. This lights gives a beam for 7-10 a seconds and is of 2.5 seconds. It is of 50,000 candle power.

Assignment to Alcatraz is considered one of the best to be had in the army for its climate and pure, according to Major Stack.

As for the prisoners, well there's the words of the only lifer on the island, Joseph Sullivan, "Sure I love to spend my life somewhere; this is about as good as any prison I'd ever care to be in."

POTPOURRI

Fireflies

There are several kinds of fireflies, the most common of which is the lightning bug. The adult insect is about one-half inch in length, with a pair of wing covers, under which are concealed membranous wings. The head is partly concealed by the prothorax, which is usually marked with yellow. The antennae are moderately long, and the eyes are large. The female is usually wingless and resembles the larva in appearance. The eggs are laid in the ground, and the larvae, which are also luminous, feed on snails and slugs. The pupa stage is passed in the ground.

(© 1932 Western Newspaper Union.)

CONGENIALITY

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Charlie Hunter, in "Behold This Dreamer," is imaginative, resourceful, ambitious to be a painter. He is married to the single daughter of a tough, snobby who neither admires him nor does pay father. They think him crazy, and have him examined and then confined in an asylum for the weakening of the executive chromosome. Here he finds congenial company, and inspiration, of which he drinks. He sees a girl on white fish-pail cradle sway which is now done in the pictures, and is refused to be back to his commonplace wife and her impossible proportional father. The homebirder with them is subsequently sent to Virgin Isles back to his kindly, assimilating and unfrustrated friends, where he may expect to finish and the patron which is to help him accomplish his idealistic ambitions. He is not strictly realistic who is crazy, and who is sane, but his elements the commercial environment.

Mrs. Chalice was a woman who had no need to economize for her owners, and had dissented from the blue blood of New England. Some one had stolen her household, and was busy spend to do so. Now she was sinner, was the exception, and her husband's estate were horrified and moved away, or died or indifferent to her. There was one left to whom she could give the grand lady, and that was Charlie's wife, and she treats around the bay.

Pride of the island is the furniture departments, where skilled men repair antiques and build reproductions of the old Spanish furniture. Famous the Hepplewhite, Sheraton and other types.

The prisoners are allowed to use U.S. products to army and navy officers, and have all the orders they can fill.

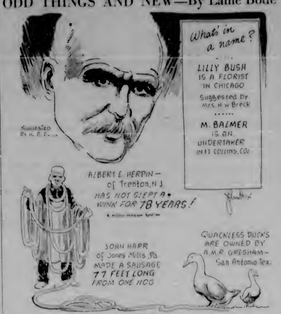
Prisoners in productive capacities are allowed $2 a month for their work. The balance of what their industrial prisoners in gets into a general welfare fund. A recent purchase of $3,000 worth of cutting picture production machinery was made from this fund.

Among the features of the prison is its night-time rounding 214 feet above the water. The light is visible 22 nautical miles. This lights gives a beam for 7-10 a seconds and is of 2.5 seconds. It is of 50,000 candle power.

Assignment to Alcatraz is considered one of the best to be had in the army for its climate and pure, according to Major Stack.

As for the prisoners, well there's the words of the only lifer on the island, Joseph Sullivan, "Sure I love to spend my life somewhere; this is about as good as any prison I'd ever care to be in."

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode



FIND MONSTERS OF PREHISTORIC TIMES

Unearth Bones of Two Species of Dinosaurs.

Washington.—Two hitherto unknown prehistoric monsters, members of the group of the terrible lizards, were unearthed in the semi-tropical regions of northern Montana over 75,000,000 years ago, have just been described from a collection of fossil bones gathered by a Smithsonian institution expedition.

Paleontologists regard these the safest life saver applied to one of the vicious reptiles belonged to the armored dinosaur group, and at the top of the fossil tail carried a bone-like mass weighing 50 pounds. According to the expedition group, the mass might have been used as a weapon, with which to prevent the rear from enemy attack or perhaps to bonds aside, the bone mass portions of an earlier day.

Study of the other bones of the beast, shown according to Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, curator of vertebrate paleontology, that the tail extremity could not have been used for such a purpose. It was so heavy that the animal could hardly drag the tail even with an extreme effort. The huge tail must have been developed along the ground mass as a counter drags heavy steel ball materials. Intelligence of the two reptiles might have become stuck in the mud by its heavy appendage, and made it easy prey for the meat eaters.

The other animal, Dr. Gilmore says, had a thick bone plate protruding from the rear nine rows of bone cavity beds and a six-horn skull with the name of styracosaurus pratus, constitute its claim to the hall of fame.

Specimens of closely related species show that this great creature grew quickly and, in proportion to its weight, the skeleton of the adult was not disproportionately large. The enormous skull, six feet long, and with a spare for nerve tissue was only about the size of a cow's fat.

To imagine a Texas horned toad magnified 100 times, Doctor Gilmore says would perhaps present a picture of the explanation monsters that roamed the fellow laden mud of Montana in the days of the great dinosaurs. Fortunately this ferocious age has disappeared, their food constituted of plants and vegetable matter.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

STALEY & CO.

IF MASTER SHARPIES, the well-known Bottle of "Sinky A Do," seems discouragingly clever and unreasonably lucky in getting out old scrapes to endorse little boys reading this children's classic, they have only to realize that the Bottle grew up to be mere editor then Bustard Kipling to understand why. He two other names in No. 5 Study, however, to 15, Dreadful, the Mirror of the story, and Mad, the. Lloyd C. Immervelle. Sharpies himself, back there, testifies that Kipling's pictures of the youthful school days is a bit overdrawn.

Born in India, Kipling was sent to be educated to the United Services College in Westward Ho! in England. Here at the age of twelve the future author of "Barrack Room Ballads" and other "Barrack Room Ballads" showed little of the talent he was exciting fascinating books with which he later enslave himself. Instead, he spent most of the time reading at a penniless rate. Though the King of Yvetot and Mr. Micawber in real life, predicted for this queer little boy an uncommon death "to an attic, a garret, or possibly a cell," he was considered his profession. Among those were Rudyard Kipling, the light of whose life was the son of their libraries, a very opposite type. Although he describes him as a "sizzling, frizzling literary linguine with a small head of curly hair," he was also a favorite with his friend, retaining its connection with him through the long story of Rebecca Grail. All who know and love Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" are unanimous tribute to this heroic girl.

(© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Mummy" Protected

Steel trees left by a large lumber company operating in Arkansas and Louisiana have been declared "mummy trees" by negro cutters, who zealously guard a golden cutting down. Several large trees, previously marked with a golden cross, have survived, and left on each area to assure the seeding in of a new crop of young trees, according to the United States Department of agriculture.

Medal Had Come Far

A copper medal struck in 1730 with the likeness of Andre Hercule de Fleury, French cardinal bishop and statesman, during the early part of the reign of Louis XV, was found in a well near Phoenix, Ariz.

Explaining the Planets

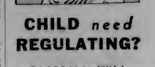
An eighteenth century scientist explained the origin of the planets by saying that they were splashed out of the sun in a collision between the sun and a comet.

CHILD need REGULATING?

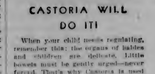
CASTORIA WILL DO IT!

When your child needs regulating, remember this: the organs of babies and children are delicate. Little bowels must be gently urged—never forced. That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's ailments; contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. You can safely give it to young infants for colic pains. Yet it is an equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him only Castoria. Genuine Castoria always has the name

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT



It isn't what a man gives but the way he gives it that shows his true character.



Picking at nostrils. Grinding the teeth. Loss of appetite. These are symptoms of worms. Rid your child's body of these ruinous parasites with Dr. Peter Fahrney's Give Comstock's Dead Shot Worm Pellets. Prepared like candies. Children take them without suspicion.

COMSTOCK'S WORM (DEAD SHOT) PELLETS
Peter Fahrney & Sons Co.
2152 Sheffield Ave., Chicago, Ill.
At Druggists

They will be a pretty happy couple as long as a wife laughs at her husband's jokes.

Bedridden with Rheumatism

Rubs on oil...gets up right away

There's nothing like good old Sloan's Liniment Oil for relieving the pain of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Rheumatic Pains, Lumbago or sore Muscles. You rub it on. Without rubbing or massaging. Simply draw out pain by blessed warming heat. Doesn't stain. Costs little. Get a small bottle from your druggist.

Sloan's Liniment
Kills Pain

Free Enlargement With Every Roll of Film Developed and Printed 25c Coupon in Each Package
La Crosse Film Service — La Crosse, Wis.

Every man has a grievance and every woman is about it upon the least provocation.

Constipated

Instead of habit-forming purgatives, take NR (Nature's Remedy) tonight. NR—a gentle, effective, all-vegetable laxative—is guaranteed to relieve constipation, sour stomach, bad breath and headache. Get a 25c box at your druggist's today. Don't suffer another day. Take NR tonight. Tomorrow you'll thank us.

NR TONIGHT
Nature's Remedy
The All-Vegetable Laxative

TUMS
For quick relief from acid indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach. Only 10c.

Some prejudices are very useful—especially among people you can't stand.

NIP CHEST COLDS, QUICK WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPERS

Relieves Almost Instantly

To break up congestion, to receive free circulation to stop chest colds ... to alleviate the circulatory pains and aches of rheumatism, muscular soreness ... Nature has stored up in red peppers a marvelous therapeutic heat that penetrates deeply into the skin without blistering or burning and swiftly brings relief. Now this glorious red peppers heat is contained in an ointment, Rowles Red Pepper Rub. As you rub it on you'll feel better. And in 3 minutes relief comes. Drug stores sell Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Try it.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 11-1932.

The House of the Three Ganders

By IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright by Irving Bacheller (WNU Service)

SYNOPSIS

Unhappily engaged and starving, a fat old bachelor sets out in search of a wealthy girl. He finds Miss Lucy Ann Bigelow, who has three ganders, and proposes to her. Lucy Ann is willing, but her father objects. Undaunted, the bachelor, Bumpy Smithers, sets out to win Lucy Ann's father. He succeeds in getting a job with Mr. Bigelow, and Lucy Ann's daughter Ruth are impressed by the bachelor's ingenuity. Bumpy devises a scheme to get Mr. Bigelow to Florida, and Lucy Ann's father is persuaded to go. Bumpy and Lucy Ann, Ruth, Mr. Bigelow and Mrs. Smithers, Bumpy's mother, start for Florida.

CHAPTER III

A Day at the Fun Shop.

From the rear room of the store Stout the souvenirs to the cellar and out of the open hatchway. He went directly to the Smithers home. The neighbors now familiar with the history of Stout, was at home. Learning the fact he went to his bed.

"You disappear until the ordered comes," he cautioned Mrs. Smithers. "I'll describe him as a "stealing, fleeting literary linguine with a small head of curly hair." Stout, who made presents in the youthful Kipling's class, had described the story of Rebecca Grail. All who know and love Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" are unanimous tribute to this heroic girl.

(© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Mummy" Protected

Steel trees left by a large lumber company operating in Arkansas and Louisiana have been declared "mummy trees" by negro cutters, who zealously guard a golden cutting down. Several large trees, previously marked with a golden cross, have survived, and left on each area to assure the seeding in of a new crop of young trees, according to the United States Department of agriculture.

Medal Had Come Far

A copper medal struck in 1730 with the likeness of Andre Hercule de Fleury, French cardinal bishop and statesman, during the early part of the reign of Louis XV, was found in a well near Phoenix, Ariz.

Explaining the Planets

An eighteenth century scientist explained the origin of the planets by saying that they were splashed out of the sun in a collision between the sun and a comet.

"Hello, Bumpy!" he shouted. "I'm glad to see you. I'll tell my boss you're ready to start up the fun works."

"It's a sight to see you workin'," said Bumpy.

"Say, by Jemima! When I've swung an ax a while I git a grintge ag-in Adam for ev'ry thut sticks."

Bumpy was pleased by the proud friend.

"Say boys, what be you expectin'?" The boys did not quite understand his query and were silent.

"Well, I've a good visit on a reg'lar Christmas dinner. Come down to the spring a minute. I want to show ye some 'ordinary things I've found out there in the woods."

They followed from the Stout ground to a wooded ravine. A covered spring was under the bank of it.

Bumpy pointed to the wild apples. "Ain't them fine?" he asked.

"Why, they're good, Bumpy," said Ruth.

"Well, you've never learnt how to make 'em good. I'll show ye how. I've got a receipt to my brain." He sketched a bar of the old fruit and call for assembly.

Bumpy picked up a broom, sliced the room as if obeying the call. Returning to his task he said:

"It's been great times—that bird has. We used to go to the fair, he'n me, and sell apples. When I go a-fishin'er I take him with me, carry him on a stick behind me, fastened to my pack. He amuses the fish'rs while I work. Everybody loves him."

Bumpy had a fatty way of bullying the help.

"Go an' wash yer hands an' comb yer hair," he said. "By Jumbo! Anybody would think that you was astrin' down with company folks to a plain meal every day. Now, what's the matter with you? I want you to look right."

Bumpy was nervous as he began to sing and wriggling his brow when annoyed.

"Stop screwin' up yer face that way!" Bumpy would command. "Don't you know the devil had stopped on yer brow? Now, look right at me. Sing!"

"Is it Mrs. Jericho?" Bumpy asked.

"Well, sir, I reckon she's the richest woman in the world. I've been a-livin' with her for—why, I don't know exactly."

Bumpy had a good laugh at the memory of the experience. Then he became serious again.

"Mrs. Jericho's husband, Jedediah, died several years ago. He was a queer old man. He was a miser. He lived in a little shack with a hole in it and a cork in the hole.

"He was all I had to do was tote a bottle of whisky an' fill up the cup with it. That of log holds enough to see awake with. When I wanted a drink I'd lift my pants leg an' stick a straw in the hole an' shift a part o' the hold a little scant up. I call it my honey New Year leg."

The boys laughed.

"Yes, sir, my ol' leg an' me is goin' to behave."

He took down a bottle hanging on the wall and said: "Here's the main stuff in the fun works."

He rinsed its strings and filled them "Honey Mush" and "The Baker's Hornpipe." The bird sang joyously and Bumpy danced a jig as Mummy Bird sang. He hung the bottle and went to Bessy.

"I'll put you down an' bring me turkeys an' the butter. I'll start now."

The boy ran and fetched them.

The bird indulged in a weird warble. Bumpy smiled and said:

"Well, Dick, you've never learnt how to sing Christmas carols, I have. I've got a magnet in my brain."

He sketched a bar of the old tune

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Wilbur A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street. Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

GOOD BUSINESS FOR ALL

Improvement of transportation conditions, especially in respect to the railroads, would have a sustaining effect on all business throughout the country and contribute immeasurably to its recovery, in the opinion of Harry J. Haas, President, American Bankers Association.

Any attempt to benefit the lines, he said, will be directly reflected in many other fields of activity. Furthermore, the people have a tremendous direct financial interest in the rails. Outstanding railroad bonds and notes amount to $11,500,000,000 and stocks total over $7,000,000,000. Over $3,000,000,000 of insurance reserves, backing up hundreds of thousands of policies, are invested in railroad bonds.

In normal times the railroads pay yearly over $580,000,000 to bondholders in interest, $460,000,000 to stockholders in dividends, and $2,500,000,000 in wages to 1,500,000 workers—a total of almost four billion dollars which goes directly into the hands of an appreciable part of the public. To this must be added the $400,000,000 they pay annually in taxes. The contribution thus made to national stability, and economic development, is easily imagined.

During the past year the railways' purchases amounted to one-half those of 1929, and they are likewise paying less in wages. This condition obviously does much to prolong depression—but the railroads can do nothing about it until our regulatory laws are changed so that they will be allowed to compete on a basis of equality with other common carriers. Fairness to the railroads would be good business for all.

A DANGEROUS PROPOSAL

Proposed federal taxation of gasoline, to provide revenue for general purposes rather than highways, was recently denounced by framers of the first state gasoline tax law, as a dangerous invasion of a state tax field, a threat against the soundness of state and local financing, and unreasonable taxation which might destroy a lucrative source of revenue.

Those framers—Loyal M. Graham and C. C. Chapman of Oregon—said also that excessive taxation of the commodity or use of revenue for other than highway purposes, was never contemplated. "No single product can stand exorbitant taxation," said Mr. Graham. "I believe the limit has been reached . . . . Because it has worked efficiently is no reason for 'riding a free horse to death'."

As a matter of fact, a number of states have ridden the horse to death, and now they are getting for it, in decreased consumption of gasoline, in dissatisfaction on the part of the motorist and—perhaps worst of all—in growing tax evasion and gas bootlegging, with all the graft and corruption that inevitably accompany it. A federal gas tax would only make a bad matter worse. Legislators with a mania for "adding just one cent more" to the tax had better see the writing on the wall, and let well enough alone.

FARM ROADS AND UNEMPLOYMENT

The primary object of emergency highway legislation is to relieve unemployment. Extreme claims have been put forward on both sides in an effort to prove the efficiency or utility of this kind of relief.

It now appears that the percentage of road funds spent which go to labor, and thus serve the primary object, is largely determined by the kind of road built. Statistics of the United States Bureau of Public Roads show that in the case of high-type roads costing $21,700 per mile, labor receives 16.7 per cent of the total cost. If an appropriation of $100,000,000 were applied entirely to such roads, labor would receive $16,700,000—or a total of 4,760,000 labor days, at a wage of $3.50 per day. The appropriation would permit the construction of 4,600 miles of highway—about fifteen hundredths of one per cent of the total road mileage in the United States.

A comparison with the benefits received from farm-to-market road construction, is interesting. These roads, of modern dustless, all-weather surfaces, cost from $1,200 to $5,000 per mile, and make use of existing gravel and macadam roads when available, or the sand-clay mixtures and gumbo soils found in certain states. Experience has shown that labor receives directly about 40 per cent of their cost. On the basis, therefore, of $3,500 per mile total cost, a $100,000,000 road appropriation would give $40,000,000 to labor, or 11,430,000 labor days, at $3.50 per day, and would provide 28,500 miles of road—over four times the mileage of high-type roads. It is true that in the case of the latter, labor receives other moneys for work done at mills and quarries—but this would be offset, in the case of the former, by labor at oil refineries and commercial gravel pits.

Consequently, farm-to-market road appropriations not only provide rural districts with a necessity of progress—good, year-round arteries of travel—but are most valuable in offsetting unemployment and providing American families with a livelihood.

RETURN TO FUNDAMENTALS

In a recent address Governor Ritchie of Maryland declared that there is need "for a return to those fundamentals which at other times assured us a government under the Constitution and liberty under the Bill of Rights."

Federal usurpation of the powers and responsibilities of the States is destroying rights and privileges of the individual, and steadily weakening self-government. "We see theories of public ownership, excursions of Government into business fields where Government does not belong and unnecessary public competition with private industry, all doing violence to American institutions and putting the mortmain of government on the creative and competitive impulses of the American people," he said.

The American people of this generation have had an unprecedented opportunity to observe what happens when the Federal Government broadens its sphere of activity. Our lives, both in their business and social phases, are, to a constantly increasing degree, coming under the control of official dictatorship.

We cannot afford to temporize with bureaucracy. There is no end to the politicians' passion for power. There is but one way to stop the trend—cut paternalism off at the roots and demand an immediate and complete federal retrenchment that will lift burdens of legislation and taxation and give us again those fundamentals of which Governor Ritchie so eloquently speaks.

SAFETY RESTS WITH THE DRIVER

In commenting on the staggering number of deaths due to traffic accidents on some of the highways in Oregon, the Portland Oregonian, makes the following very practical remarks:

"The automobile is not the pleasing toy so many of us appear to consider it. Its terrific potentialities annually realized in this country are as dread as those of war.

"It is the human factor that makes motoring alike perilous—and safe—and the best of all commonplace rules is to watch the road.

"Drivers of motor vehicles whose speed limit on the highway is tentatively fixed at 45 miles an hour, but who may drive at a greater speed if prudence suggests it, have no time to view the landscape or to turn their heads for a word with someone in the rear seat.

"We do not believe the traffic problem ever will be solved—that is to say, that ever we shall be quit of it. But relief lies as surely in public education as in law."

The constant increase in deaths and accidents from automobiles from 1927 to 1930, inclusive, based on the average loss cost per car, has forced the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Under writers to make a marked increase in automobile liability rates in 14 leading states. The insurance companies undoubtedly regret that such action is necessary, more than does the average car owner.

COMPETITION AND GROCERY TRADE

That there is plenty of truth behind the old adage about competion being the life of trade is proved regarding the progress made in the past ten years by the grocery business, as shown in a comprehensive survey made by William G. Shepherd for Collier's Weekly.

The independent grocer, far from being wiped out by chain competition, has been growing stronger and more efficient by leaps and bounds. Mr. Shepherd finds that everybody has benefitted by the prolonged and at times bitter warfare which the old-fashioned has had to wage for his very existence. The housewife gets more efficient service, better goods, prompter deliveries and lower prices. The chain stores get a fair share of the business, but the progressive independent is also a beneficiary, having developed an efficiency which means quicker turnover, better selling methods, and fewer unsalable items.

Independent grocers have strengthened themselves greatly by buying cooperatively, advertising cooperatively and selling cooperatively. Groups of independent grocers have organized into the so-called "voluntary chains," with remarkable results in efficiency.

"About two years ago," says Mr. Shepherd, "the regular chains were about equal in numbers to the voluntaries. Since then the voluntaries have added over 16,000 to their lists. And they are multiplying rapidly. They are now working hard at increasing their efficiency by refinements in merchandising. Many of them have already caught up with the scientific chain systems.

"The independent grocer has learned the mass grocery business. The chains urged him on to it. They didn't crush him—they unwittingly forced him to learn team work in business, instead of playing the lone wolf. That means just as much profit for him as before, if not more. And he gains greatly in power and security.

"Still more important to the general public, it means lower grocery prices and more reliable merchandise for Mrs. America. The average grocer today is striking just about the safe minimum in economic distribution."

Advertising has played a large part in the success of the independent grocers, Mr. Shepherd finds. Groups of independents club together and take space in the newspapers to advertise locally a sale of their products. Thus at last the little grocer is able to realize the dream of his life—advertising his bargains in adequate space in his home-town newspaper. Mr. Shepherd believes that it is this joint advertising which first put the independent grocers on a real sound competitive basis with the chain stores.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

It goes without saying that past two and a half years have been anything but pleasant for at least ninety-eight per cent of the American people when we examine this thirty month period from the financial standpoint. Practically everyone has taken a loss of some sort or another. As one man put it to the writer the other day: "If you had anything in 1929, and still have it, then you have lost money." This is a broad statement but one which is pretty generally true. Real estate, securities, commodities, all have shrunk in value during the past three years.

And so, if we fail to give the matter a sufficient amount of philosophical thought, we are apt to come to the conclusion that our lot, in these trying days of 1932, is about the hardest of any in the history of our country. Of course this is pessimistic exaggeration. The United States had ridden safely over a number of depressions, some of them as bad as the one we are now going through. Moreover our method of living, and our standards of living are so high today, that the comforts and conveniences of the average man, on a small salary, would have appealed to the rich as luxuries a few generations ago, even if they had been obtainable at any price. The lighting and heating of our homes, our fine highways and hospitals, are a few examples.

Those of us who cannot be convinced that times have ever been harder in the United States than at present should study the life and writings of George Washington, whose bicentennial birth year is now being observed. The terrible handicaps he had to overcome it, make our present day difficulties seem trifling. Some time ago Alexander Brin, chairman of the Program Committee of the Massachusetts Geo. Washington Bicentennial Commission, in an address summed up some of the hardships which the founder of the nation had to undergo. Some of the things worth repeating, in Mr. Brin's address, follow. Read them and then thank fortune that your lot is not as hard as was that of George Washington himself.

"A knowledge of the trials and tribulations of Washington will make Americans realize the folly of under-valuing our own country, of growing impatient with American progress and of losing confidence in America's destiny. Washington's courageous and steadfast devotion against unexampled odds, his belief in the possibilities of the American Republic, is a challenge to us today.

"From Washington's own diary and letters we learn that in the years when he led his country in the battle for Independence, that even the troops under his command were dispirited and dissatisfied and in some cases were in mutiny; that the currency issued by the Congress had lost all its value; that there were no funds with which to pay the soldiers; that the army was lacking in food supplies, ammunition and transportation facilities. In the early spring of 1781 the Continental currency was worth only a fraction of its face value. For example, a $500 bill was worth but one cent. One had to pay $75 for a simple breakfast. In May of the same year this currency ceased to have any value. No one would accept as payment any note or bond issued by authority of Congress. Even the troops would accept nothing except gold and silver, and that could be had only on the credit of individuals. The government could get nothing on its credit. Within less than one month before the surrender at Yorktown, Congress was advised that if provisions were not immediately forthcoming it would be necessary to disband the whole army. It is in times like these that Washington's greatness was tested to the limit.

"Only a passionate rekindling of the spirit of America as Washington understood it can give power to the western republic as the champion of that which is worthy in human life. As the guide and preceptor of a floundering world, we are the only abiding hope of the modern world, the bulwark of human progress, the most perfect embodiment of political idealism that this earth has known."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A Tale of Two Nations

A dispatch to the Tribune from its correspondent in Belgium reports that the Belgians still resent the official apology given Ambassador Gibson for the satisfaction of the United States, certain Belgian publicans having been nasty in their comments on the altruistic adventures of the American government and people in Europe, particularly in Belgium.

Probably the only people whose squawks should astonish Americans are the Afghans. Of them we could truly say that we did not understand why they should be against us. We never tried to do anything for them. It was silly, of course, to make Belgian newspaper criticism a matter of state concern. Belgian newspapers are free to slander the United States as they please, and should be. It is a dull day pleasure in all Europe. It is also a proper recompense for the American predilection for doing good.

Japan entered the war before America. Its objective was the German territory and fortifications in Shantung. The German garrison made a formal resistance for honor. The Japanese did the garrison the honor of an investment and assault. Japan thereupon occupied the territory, intending to keep it. After this military exploit Japan virtually withdrew from the war. Although it had a fine army the use of it in Europe was not seriously considered, even in times of the greatest allied distress. Japan turned to commerce and war profits, and without reproach from Europe. Its manhood was saved from erosion. Its markets were rich, its policy was self-interest, and that policy was accepted by the allies as an honorable one. It had no altruistic motives. It undertook no self-sacrificing enterprise. It wanted nothing for any one except for itself, and when territory was divided at the peace conference it took all the German Pacific possessions north of the equator. It had and retained the respect of the entire world.

The United States entered the war to end war. It was to make the world safe for democracy. It wanted nothing for itself it did not want for all humanity. It raised an army of 4,000,000 men. It fairly flooded Europe with money during and after the war. It made every other country its debtor and every one its enemy. It asked for nothing and got a radio privilege on the Isle of Yap.

It has since been berated for what it did and for what it does not do. What it thought were benefits conferred assume the substance of injuries done. It lost men, money and good will, all of which Japan retained. The world proceeds on the motto: Always see to it that the sucker never gets an even break.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Capt. Finucan left Monday for Manistee to bring out the Steamer Illinois.

Miss Mattie Bedford, who is attending the Kalamazoo Seminary, is home for a week.

Harry Campbell left Thursday for Michigan City, to go as second engineer on the steam barge Calhoun.

Among the Beaver Island visitors here today are Rev. Fr. Zugelder, W. J. Gallagher, Capt. M. Bonner and Dr. Wilkinson.

Mrs. Martha E. Smith recently wrote Mrs. President Roosevelt asking her to contribute a handkerchief to the Charlevoix Ladies Episcopal Guild to be sold at the forthcoming handkerchief sale. Yesterday Mrs. Smith received a pleasant note from the President's wife, and the desired handkerchief.

Bert Smiley, well know here, is having a lovely time running a paper at Galesburg, Mich. One night recently his home was bombarded with rotten eggs and other refuse. The windows, doors, piazzas and sides of the building were covered with rotten eggs, ancient hen fruit. Smiley sallied forth to investigate. He dodged a few missiles and the marauders ran away. When Bert was here he nearly drove bridge tender Uncle Jim Martin with the asphalt. Bert had a small sheep that had a spot a foot too long to go under the bridge. Jim growled at Bert one day when he thought Bert was overdoing the joke and Bert spent an entire day driving back and forth between the bridge and the big lake blowing the whistle signal with his horn. You could hear Uncle Jim's "language" the length of Bridge street.

Since 1688 there have been but four springs that the Straits of Mackinac opened in March, and this is one of them.

A GRAND EVENT

About 175 Masons and ladies filled the Hotel Elston Tuesday night, on the occasion of the Masonic Banquet.

The semi-banquet hours were the social hours of the event, and the large office and parlors were the scenes of most enjoyable social intercourse. That fine musical organization, the mandolin orchestra gave relief to the occasion by a repertoire of excellent music. Miss Myrtle Mills, pianist, executed a classical number in an artistic manner. Miss Florence Smith sang, and the ladies' quartette sang beautifully two exquisite numbers.

At 10:30 the dining room doors were thrown open and the feast began.

It was midnight when toastmaster Green rapped for order and called upon Rev. C. V. Stout to invoke the divine blessing upon the event. Then followed the following post prandial program:

"The Moral and Philosophical Teaching of Masonry," Rev. C. T. Stout.

"Pioneer Masonry in Northern Michigan," Willard A. Smith.

"Benevolence of Masonry," W. W. Aylesworth.

"Order of Eastern Star," Mrs. H. Harsha.

"The Square and Compasses," J. W. Harris.

"Michigan, My Michigan," Archibald Buttars.

"The Craftsman, H. Lee Siddings.

The last speaker at the close of his oratorical and highly edifying address began to direct compliments into past master F. G. Hines, who sat at his right. He warmed up to his subject as he progressed, and drew from his pocket a magnificent gold and silver pastemaster jewel which he in behalf of the lodge, presented that popular and efficient Mason—a gift never more deserved, or more gracefully or worthily bestowed. Past master Hines could not be expected to talk under the circumstances—he could not. He briefly and gracefully accepted the gift and sat down amid applause.

There was never a more successful or enjoyable event in Charlevoix, and it will go into the lodge history as a social and fraternal milestone.

Great credit is due the Hotel Elston management for the high character of the menu, and the excellent service given. Absolutely no criticism could be made.

Forty Years Ago

It is the Grand Rapids Herald, Tip, That Called you a liar.

Frankfort, Mich.,
March 25, 1892.

Tip the Editor

I notice in your paper of the 16th that the Herald man calls me a liar, although I had given him a true account of my catching the fish, and had also given him the best of reference as to my veracity. Had he inserted the reference I gave him the readers of his paper could not have doubted my veracity, especially of his own political affiliation for some men take his paper as I take the Republican the rule and guide of my faith. I don't think any of my friends will believe the Herald's assertion, for they know I would not lie when the truth would answer.

Truly yours, Tip Miller.

Known among the natives as Kiskinna-ma-goh.

MEMORIES

The Scribe Revives Recollections of the Past—Persons and Events.

In jotting down these reminiscences of persons and events the scribe's memory is sharpened by what it feeds upon, and as he passes along, other figures rise before him as if in silent protest against his too rapid passage. Again the scribe goes back in memory, to his younger days, when a journeyman printer in the office of the Herald in Traverse City, the fall and winter of 1868.

The project of starting a paper at Charlevoix had been perfected, and the scribe was waiting for the rigors of the winter to pass before starting out on his northern journey. One day an old man entered the office and introduced himself as Wm. Slamm, county surveyor of Grand Traverse county. A little, dried up old man, fully seventy years old, with a voice about like Tim Smith's and memory like that wonderful organ with only a few stops left. He was accepted and after several days labor he presented the scribe with the first plat of this village ever made, except perhaps the one furnished the proprietor, Hon. John S. Dixon, at the time the work was done.

Well-worn, viz, viz.

That early February journey north in 1869, in the Traverse City stage, of which Nelson Alfaire was proprietor and punter, was uneventful, but still fresh in memory. A ferry at Antrim and the state roads—here again memory is quickened, and we see Richard Knight's log house, and across the road the little blacksmith shop, where oxen were shod and sleighs ironed by the sweaty little Englishman who since has represented his district in the legislature and yet lives, an honored citizen. The Banks farmers of today were then "homesteaders," or squatters on railroad land. "Old Ed. Pearl" dispensed justice, joined in wedlock, and, on one occasion, granted a divorce, on the principle that "the power that made could unmake."

All along that portion of Banks, where now the broad acres of fields speak eloquently of prosperity and happiness then dwelt the homesteaders, enduring privations, wielding the axe more than guiding the plow, burning the fallow more than tilling the field. Where these churches now stand, then stood the maple and the elm—the monarchs of nature, from whose lofty tops the birds called to worship. What a transformation! Brawn and muscle, intelligence and energy are the elements that have wrought in the Arbma. And was their depot and entrepot, and "Antrim City" was their metropolis. The whole broad assemblage of the hardships endured, but he also remembers the brighter side of life among these pioneers, their kind words, and hospitable hearthstones are treasured as pearls of memories. The "old Indian orchard" upon the Hilltop, the landmark known of mound surveyor stephen Smith, past whose door the scribe has been the first boy, the old log schoolhouse, down the Antrim road, where the scribe attended service, perhaps was its sole devotional spirit as the pastoral admonition. These memories linger with undiminished distinctness as the quarter of a century is traversed.

A side glance eastward, although a digression, may not be out of place. One memory again recalls that journey to South Arm. That territory was then a part of Antrim County. On the west side of the head S. G. Jaquays kept a store and Sail had full sway. The little settlement about the head embraced D. C. Nettleton, Mike Murphy, D. Hogan, "old man Bogard", Jake Keller, Chris Mayhew and a little further up on the west side, St. J. Parish. Up to 1869 there was no justice—but the orderly tools "more stout" in getting their mail from Charlevoix. The post office—"Nashonetta"—was established in 1869 with David C. Nettleton as postmaster.

Where the East Jordan Lumber Co.'s mill now stands our party camped and roasted potatoes and partridges. Sail owns a sawmy mongrel dog, who answers to the name of Sawdust. Lorraine's town now flourishes. The hillside was covered with a forest, and a small opening scarcely measuring with one stroke, reached half a dozen times around the axeman

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

Snoop Can't Hold Her Jokes

THE FEATHERHEADS

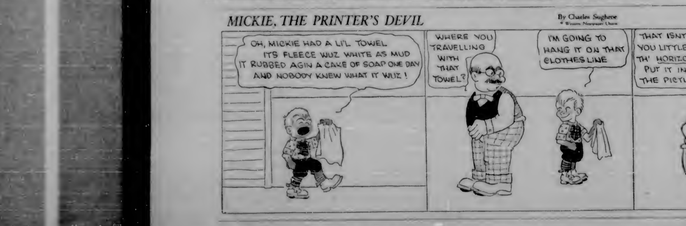
On the Sun Porch

Spring Tonic

Along the Concrete

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL

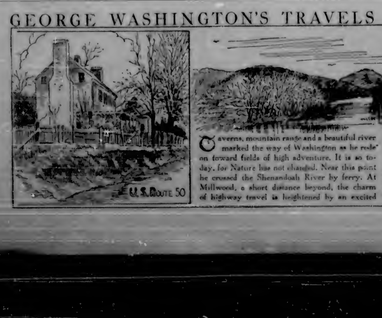
By Charles Sughroe



Just Then the Sun Came Up!

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks



Copyright 1931 by James W. Brooks. All Rights Reserved.

Universally Current Slanders By CALVIN FADER

Covered mountain roads and a beautiful river marked the way of Washington as he rode on toward fields of high adventure. It is so today, for Nature has not changed. Now this point he crossed the Shenandoah River by ferry. At Millwood, a short distance beyond, the charm of highway travel is heightened by an excited little stream called "Spout Run" which hurriedly crosses and recrosses the pastur-lined roadway as if it, too, were on an important mission. Coming out on U. S. 50 over the old road to the right at a place called Paris, the young Ruler of Destiny was seen at Greenway Court, the Blue Ridge home of Lord Fairfax.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get an ounce jar of ordinary Powdered Mercolized Wax and use as directed. Then gradually the aged, sallow skin disappears, a beautiful complexion of youthful freshness and clearness is revealed. Full directions in each package. Any druggist can supply you.

Prospects Management, Arkansas title investigations, 1004 Rixford, Ign Writer Advertising Bldg. Phone 846 Little Rock, Ark.

Plowin' Time

Visitors at times saw the country so stirred up.

Native—Shucks, you should be here when plowin' season sets in.—Pathfinder.

"TARGET hits the bull's-eye on every count. It's the new idea in roll-your-own tobacco . . . real cigarette tobacco, blended just like ready-mades.

"And the smokes you roll from Target look like ready-mades. They stay plump, and don't roll out at the ends. You get 40 gummed papers free with every package. No more roll-your-own smokes that bust open while you're trying to smoke them.

"And the saving you make is a 1932 idea. Just think of it, I get thirty or more swell smokes from each pack of Target. And I pay only one dime. Yessir, I'm for Target."

AND GET THIS! The U. S. Government Tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6¢. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about 2¢. We wonder you don't smile twice for a dime!

SAVE MONEY
ROLL YOUR OWN
SEE WHAT YOU SMOKE

Wrapped in Moisture-proof Cellophane

TARGET CIGARETTE TOBACCO 10¢

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky Quality

[HERE'S A 1932 TOBACCO WITH THE 1932 IDEA !!!]

Sister Only Died

Lady—Have any of your sister who died, but it was I who was ill.

The PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT

"And Betty—what suds! So rich and lively..."

AFTER struggling with flat, lifeless suds—I'm a joy to the Bride's Ready, Betty. I never dreamed there were such suds. They're so thick and creamy, dirt dissolves like magic. Clothes simply leap from the suds the minute I even saw."

Saves time—saves work

Makes of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Great for tub washing, too. Soaks out dirt—loosens it. Banishes rubbing! Saves time, clothes, work.

Cup for cup, Rinso gives more suds than soaps or light-weight, puffed-up soaps—even in hard-water. Wonderful suds for dishwashing, and for all cleaning. Get the 24¢ package.

Rinso

MILLIONS USE RINSO in tub, washer and dishpan

Become Independent In Your Own PROFITABLE BUSINESS

Join the sales force of a 75-year-old business with a reputation for quality. Sell to steady customers on our route. Profits start at once and increase as a permanency proposition. Age 3 to 60 years. Capital required, $300.00 to $500.00 to cover stock. Write for full particulars. Dept. 1-32.

The Rawleigh Company, Freeport, Illinois

The Man Who "Brings 'Em Back Alive"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT, a few years ago, a certain mother down in Texas had been more successful in performing the ceremony of "laying on of hands"—a ceremony familiar to innumerable mothers of innumerable active, venturesome little boys—then thousands of visitors to certain zoological parks in various parts of the United States would never have had the thrill of looking upon the only authentic man-eating tiger ever brought to this country, the biggest king cobra ever captured alive, two of the exceedingly rare Indian rhinoceroses and the tallest baby elephant (just two feet and ten inches at the shoulder) ever brought across the seas.

But lest that statement appear to be too paradoxical let it be explained at once that she was the mother of Frank H. Buck, who as a collector of live animals, reptiles and birds, is without a peer in the world today. She had discovered her young son busily engaged in the capture of a big, angry, hissing rattlesnake near the Buck home on the outskirts of Dallas, Texas, and the "laying on of hands" ceremony was observed forthwith to convince him that there were less dangerous way for a lad of his years to earn money. (He was collecting rattlesnakes because an old doctor in Minneapolis, Minn., who manufactured a "magic snake oil," was in the market for the reptiles).

Frank Buck will tell you that the ceremony was performed in a most thoroughgoing fashion. But it failed of its purpose. For from his earliest childhood till entering his second long-trousered year, and the desire to possess them was his unconscious ambition. So the mother who tried to shape the destinies of the foremost exponent of the art of "laying on hands alive" was due to be foiled from the beginning.

When the Buck family moved to Chicago, the boy, no longer able to venture small wild adventures and birds as he had done on his native soil, haunted the Lincoln Park zoo and the pet stores in the big city, feasting his eyes on strange new animals and birds from far-off corners of the earth. What interest he was able to save he invested in owning some of these birds—paying for one pair, incidentally, at ten times as great as he himself could charge when years later he became a collector.

When he grew sister Grace Buck's hobby took him to South America in search of its fellow. This was followed by a second trip to the southern continent and when he sold his collection of live birds he found the deal so profitable that he resolved to go in for wholesale bird and animal collecting. And also was the beginning of a mighty career.

Now, after 18 years in the business he can look back upon a record of having crossed the Pacific ocean 60 times; of having circumnavigated the world five times, of knowing more, perhaps about the fauna of Asia than any other living man. For here is the stupendous list of creatures which he has "brought back alive":

Thirty-nine elephants; 49 tigers (including Siberian, Malayan and Manchurian); 28 spotted leopards; 20 black leopards; 10 clouded leopards; 4 Himalaya snow leopards; 20 golden cats; 52 orang-utans; 31 gibbon apes (white-handed, silvery, agile, lively and stunning); over 5,000 monkeys of different varieties; 31 tapirs; 320 Asiatic antelope and deer, including black buck, nilgai antelope, Indian gazelle, axis deer, barking deer, hog deer, sambar deer; 3 Asiatic water buffalo; 1 sladang or Malayan gaur; 1 babirussa (tusked of wild swine); 2 Africna cape buffalo; 15 African antelope, including sable, waterbuck and the rare white oryx of the Sudan; 2 giraffes; 40 wild goats and sheep, including Markhir goats, Barbary sheep, Malayan serow and Punjab sheep; 11 camels; 40 kangaroos and wallabies; 2 Indian rhinoceros (the rarest and most valuable wild animals now in America); 40 bears, including Malayan honey bears, Himalayan black bears and Indian sloth bears; 10 large pythons (over 20 feet in length); 1 king cobra (largest ever captured alive); over 100 small snakes, including half-groun pythons, cottus vipers and other varieties; 2 great monitor lizards; 12 crocodiles; over 500 small mammals of different species, including river rats, Asiatic squirrels, binturongs, wild dogs, civets, porcupines, marble cats, ant-eaters, etc.; over 100,000 birds, ranging all the way from the big ostrich-like cassowaries of the Pangan islands down to Australian finches as small as humming birds, and including cockatoos, parrots, birds of paradise, cranes, peafowl, Himalayan song-thrushes, and such rare pheasants as the Impeyan, argus, tragopan, blood, firebreck, Bulwar's and Prince of Wales.

Today Frank Buck can go into almost any zoo in the United States or walk through the menagerie tent of any circus and, looking through the bars of the cages, greet the inhabitant thereof as an old friend. For it was he who brought that inhabitant from his native haunts in this place or that the thousands of Americans who have before only heard of the existence of some strange animal can see the animal in the flesh.

Obviously a man with such a record has had more than his share of thrills and narrow escapes from death. Obviously, too, an account of them could not be told within the space of this article any more than a full account of them could be told in the book "Bring 'Em Back Alive" written by Frank Buck with Edward Anthony and published by Simon and Schuster. But there was space to tell back to tell of the time Frank Buck found himself sliding into a pit with a screaming tiger ready to eat him if he happen were trying to get out of the pit into a cage, of the time one of his leopards escaped almost into the new world into a cabin where the leopard was at last well roped him; and of the time when a big cobra escaped from its cage and corrected him in a bit in his assumption of omniscience.

Those are only three of the times when Frank Buck stared death straight in the eyes. There were many more others. Perhaps the strangest of all of them was the time a tiger, estimated by the keepers of all animals from which him to death with its six hundred pounds of weight and all but succeeded. That was when the lions clash an orang-utan, the giant long-tailed ape of Malaya, was loose in the lion house into a death embrace with his powerful arms and limbs rent him to pieces with his teeth. There was just one chance to save either ape and Frank Buck took it. Here not a professional hazer, but when the orang-utan fell into his outstretched arms, Buck simply walked in and gave the long-tailed ape an uppercut on the point of the jaw that was as an effective k. o. as was ever demonstrated in the prize ring.

"Yes, I have had more than my share of thrills," Frank Buck will tell you. "But I am frank to say that those time calls on my nerves present a love of leading death in the eye. I am not that kind of adventurer. I take no unnecessary risks. When a man operates on as big a scale as I do he doesn't have to look for trouble. No matter how careful one is, something is bound to go wrong when live animals and reptiles are handled wholesale. It is then that experience counts.

And in strife and that experience counts in other times than when something goes wrong and an adventure such as he is feels death in the eye. A big game hunter has to think of saving only one life—his own. But a man who collects wild animals, as Frank Buck does, has to think of saving his own life and the animal's too. For the biggest king cobra, a giant orang-utan, an Indian rhinoceros, or a man-eating tiger is utterly valueless to a zoo or a circus if it is dead.

Experience counts, too, in keeping the animal alive after it has been captured. It may seem strange to call Frank Buck a distiller. But that's exactly what he is and he is an expert in matters of diet to the most finicky epicures in the world. He can't guess how an ocean-going wild animal in the change from the food which it eats in its wild state over to "civilized fare." He has to know! The capture of some rare wild animal may represent a great outlay of money and time, but the ever-present element of danger to the collector. But if after the beast is captured, the collector doesn't know how to keep it healthy, both physically and mentally, the whole investment of time and money and the potential value of the animal when it is delivered to the zoo or circus may be an entire loss. Therefore it would seem that the element of risk in wild animal collecting is such as would give a conservative business man heart failure.

Typical of some of the dietetic problems which Frank Buck has had to solve was the case of Baby Boo, the two-foot-ten-inch elephant which he brought back on one of his trips. So far as is known there has never been written any book on "The Care and Feeding of Infant Elephants." So when Frank Buck bought one from a party of Eurlas in Sumatra and it was delivered to him in a half-starved, weak and wabbling condition there were no precedents for him to go by in determining what to do to keep from having a dead baby elephant on his hands. Here is what happened, as he tells it:

"My problem had fast begun. I had to get some food into that elephant's baby-and without much loss of time. I sent Ali (the native assistant) our to street around for a milk-goat. He brought one back and hopefully milked it. I tried to pour some milk down the stubborn pachyderm's throat but I couldn't get her jaws open. Once or twice I managed to get them partly open but before I could pour the milk down she closed them again.

"I considered five or six different plans for feeding that animal, dismissing them as impractical as fast as they popped into my head. Then I got an idea that I thought was worth trying. The first step was to send Ali to a nearby clump to cut me a length of bamboo. As is commonly known, a stalk of bamboo is made up of a series of joints, the wood being hollow between joints. Ali brought back exactly what I had sent him for, a piece of bamboo about nine inches long, leaving the joint to purge its bottom. This gave me a device which I planned to use as a feeding tube. I sharpened the opening till it came to a point, and, assisted by Ali, I was on the right track. I pretended with the next step.

"Before this could be carried out we had to get our elephant (we practically existed her to the shed where we had arranged to spend the night. I instructed Ali to boil some rice in water. When the rice was cooked, I mixed some goat's milk with it. The result being a thin but nourishing gruel. Then I proceeded to fill my bamboo with this nutritious mixture.

"This done, Ali got his shoulder right under the elephant's forequarters (if she was to show standing on her back legs. Then I forced the point of the bamboo tube between her tightly closed jaws, gradually working it in until I could tip up and dump the contents down her throat. Needless to say, this was done to prevent from swallowing, giving in after a few seconds of purging. A second mixture was prepared and the operation was repeated, this time the task proving less difficult. In all, I fed her three cans of goat milk.

"An hour later I put the obstinate little girl to bed, covering her up with some old gunny sacks. The following morning there was a decided improvement in her condition, some of the weakness having disappeared. We gave her her breakfast, repeating the performance with the tube. This time it was unnecessary to pry her up.

"A little later in the morning we put her on a bullock cart and took her back to Dombi, from where she was transported, along with our animals, to Singapore. There we had no trouble feeding her en route, the bamboo feeding tube working perfectly.

Her other item which a wild animal collector needs to have in his professional equipments for following his profession is diplomacy. That Frank Buck has that is shown by the fact that some of his rarest specimens have been obtained because of his friendship with oriental potentates and his skill in handling the native peoples of the jungles where he has had to go to find his animals. Among these people Frank Buck is a great "man" (chief) and he is that in reality in the Malay peninsula and on Indian soil. If he hadn't been he would never have been permitted to penetrate the forbidden jungles of Nepal, which is closed to white men, and bring back with him those two Indian rhinos which now have their home in the New York and Philadelphia zoos.

If he hadn't been, it is doubtful if he would have been able to make the remarkable moving picture which resulted from his last trip to the Orient. For it was a fateful smile that came sneaking to tell his "boss" that a python was lying near a trail used by a tiger and that resulted in an epochal film record of a python-tiger fight, the like of which few white men have ever seen and none has ever before photographed.

For to cap his career of "bringing 'em back alive" Frank Buck has lately brought back a picture record of life in the jungle, which is as unique as the record of his career as a collector of wild animals. He also has brought back the memory of one of his narrowest escapes from death—the memory of being stalked by a tiger, of tripping and falling backward when the big cat hurled itself at him and of looking up and seeing its striped belly of the animal passing over him. "Yes, it was a rather close call," said Frank Buck in telling me of this incident. "But—well, you see me here don't you?"

© by Western Newspaper Union.

POULTRY

FOOD MAIN THING AS PULLETS GROW

Oversupply of Chick Mash Not Wise.

The success or failure of the poultry industry depends upon the rearing and feeding of the pullets during the growing age, according to Prof. H. R. Ingraham, head of the poultry department at North Carolina State college.

"Under this age pullets should be supplied as much as possible," says Mr. Ingraham. "This stimulating growth which leads to early maturity and to the young birds, which means a small loss with a correspondingly low egg production."

The feeding practices which are neglected in the under fourteen weeks Mr. Ingraham says. It is a mistake to carry the young pullets through the developing period on cheap mash, as such feeding tends to bring about an early lay and a mid winter moult and is at a premium. The high priced feeds should be decreased after the birds are ten weeks old so as to bring them into lay about the time of October the 15th.

When the birds are fourteen weeks old a grain ration should be kept before them at all times and Mr. Ingraham recommends that two-thirds grain and one-third mash be fed until the birds go into the laying house. The consumption of grain can be regulated by keeping grain in the hoppers all the time and by feeding mash several times a day for limited periods.

Flock's Need of Protein Made Scientific Record

Scientific research is just a high sounding phrase to most of us, but that agriculture owes much of the advance it has made in the last half century to science is the plain truth. The laboratory yields its secrets only to its client, but the results are often so simple that a child can profit by them. Examples of this are plentiful on the farm, and now comes an announcement from the research laboratory of a large commercial feed plant of a discovery which will interest poultry raisers, especially just now. Through scores of experiments in feeding many thousands of baby chicks these scientists say they have proven that a proper synchronization of proteins in the feed is necessary to produce best results in pigmentation, feathering, growth, and vitality. They refer to the discovery as an ingredient which no doubt will prove equally successful in all live stock rations.—Southern Agriculturist.

Increasing Hatchability

Hatchability of eggs has been definitely increased by proper feeding of flocks at Ohio State university. A total ration containing 20 per cent protein was given fed to birds in confinement, producing an average hatchability of sixty fifty per cent. Skimmilk added to this ration showed considerable improvement and on another yard with kangaroo increased hatchability to fifty per cent.

When the percentage of meat in the ration was increased from 20 to 30, the addition of soybean meal increased hatchability from 50.7 to 63.7 per cent, starts fed on a 30 per cent meat ration gave 70.8 per cent. Bluegrass chaff also helped it to 64 per cent.—Prairie Farmer.

Green Feeds Are Necessary

An abundance of green food is necessary at all times. A lack of it causes ill health and low production. Greens are a tonic that stimulates the appetite. They also aid the digestive tract to function properly, thereby assuring for the birds a larger use from the feed consumed. Poultry should be given all the greens that they can eat, some daily at a regular period. This is best given at noon or in the late afternoon. Sprouted oats is one of the best forms of greens and should be fed when the sprouts are from one to three inches in length.—American Fruit Grower.

Poultry Facts

Turkeys made a good return to Minnesota producers in 1931.

• • •

It is difficult to keep a brooder house dry when it is crowded. Most litter loses several times.

• • •

The White Leghorn flock on the farm of J. J. Hagerty of Augusta, Ga., averaged 200 eggs for the 1930-31 season; the top hen produced 260 eggs.

• • •

In spite of dark, cloudy weather, Dr. Hess says that cod liver oil is a fine substitute for sunshine.

• • •

The Pekin duck has a creamy white plumage and a long, broad and deep body with a full breast and deep keel. There is an ideal body formation for a market bird.

• • •

Lights in the laying house may not increase the total number of eggs laid in a year, but they do shift some of the heavy spring laying to the winter months when prices are better.

• • •

The year's supply of egg cases can be purchased to the best advantage when the heaviest withdrawals are made from cold storage.

• • •

One hundred cons, laying hens will transpire three to four gallons of water as vapor in a day. The waterers will give off only half as much.

• • •

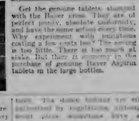
An outstanding example of what can be done in raising turkeys in the farm of A. Maclean of Ontario, Malton county, Oregon, where 2,000 birds have been raised successfully on one farm.

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it unites your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two of three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will effect "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, it may be taken handily, keep it in mind, and not to buy by the name Bayer. Unless the name Bayer is stamped on tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin.



Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute stability, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with substitutes, costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is no room for substitution when you ask for, and insist upon, purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets at the large bottles.

Indians in U. S. Army

The twelve Indian tribes still remaining in United States military service live in Hamilton, Ariz., most of whom are descendants of Geronimo's Apaches.

Wrong Place

How—I'm plugging for words.

Wow—Why don't you submit to this vitamin advertising fiend. He'll feed you.

Protect Your Children

Furnish your children from those nasty colds that always start with winter. Doctors recommend Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil as an effective resistance-builder. Rich in Vitamin A, it helps protect children from recurrent colds. And its Vitamin D helps build strong bones and teeth. Young mothers—and grandmothers, too—find this emulsion so easy, pleasant way of taking cod liver oil. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N.J. Sales Representative, Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc., New York

Listen in on Scott & Bowne radio program "Stories that Will Charm Children" over Red Network every Tuesday and Thursday at 5:30 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time) and Coast-to-Coast Network every Sunday at 5:30 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time)

Scott's Emulsion
OF NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL

When He Would Know

"Was it a friend gave you that liquor?" "I don't know. He didn't tell me when I left it."

Gets an Earful

Bridget—What do you do when your side-curls get an argument?

Colleen—I shut me ears.

No Wallflower

The sparkling eyes which such a picture of the healthy girl possesses are those which make a girl stand out from the crowd. That woman's glory is her shape, and should know.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women have been converted by Kruschen to this wonderful health that restores muscle and brain, forms no vain and empty boast. Kruschen is the salt for all who want "sparkling life." Proved for over forty years by millions. Get a bottle today at any chemist.

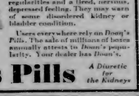
FELLOWS' SYRUP

Some women know too much to get fat. Others don't know enough to keep from it.

No man is ever so busy that he can't find time to make an occasional mistake.

Tired, Nervous and Depressed?

Health Suffers If Sore Kidneys Do Not Act Right



IF ED promptly a nagging backache, with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition.

Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. The sale of millions of boxes annually attests to Doan's popularity. Your dealer has Doan's.

Doan's Pills A Diuretic for the Kidneys

Frank Confession

"So you want to marry my daughter," said the man. "Why do you go in for confessing to me about it?"

"You let that out," sighed the young man. "It was the lumber who holds my notes."

To keep clean and healthy take to Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate liver, bowels and stomach.—Adv.

Football Note

Nice—I'll get even with you when you marry one of my daughters.

Mother—I'll wait till the eleven were on me.—Boston Transcript.

MENTHOLATUM
Keep hands in good condition for outdoor work by using Mentholatum liberally. It is indispensable for cracked, sore skin. Also for
CHAPPED SKIN

DARKEN GRAY HAIR NATURALLY

Easy to do this quick way

Don't dye hair. Science has discovered a quick, simple way to darken gray hair naturally—so nobody can tell—restore its original shade safely and as easily as brushing. It makes the hair healthy. Friend may known to get rid of gray hair, as thousands testify. Try it. For druggist only 75¢ for a bottle of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and follow easy directions. Results will delight you.

Sunshine ★★★★ —All Winter Long

At the Foremost Desert Resort, of the West—where sunshine comes every day—clear, starlit nights—cool, invigorating air—splendid golf, polo, gymkhanas, horses—found here!—this Class "A" all-the-year-round resort

PALM SPRINGS California

ADVERTISING is as essential to business as is rain to growing crops. It is the keystone in the arch of successful merchandising. Let us show you how to apply it to your business.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
C. Russell Parker, Pastor

Celebrevals—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 3:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00
Evening—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. Gerald F. Bush will occupy the pulpit next Sunday. The pastor will be on his way to Columbus, Ohio.

A missionary program will be given in the church school service next Sunday. Mrs. Parker will have charge.

Hazel Parker and Lela Finkbeiner will return home from Olivet College, Saturday, for one week of vacation.

Hanna Isaksen will lead the Junior Church Sunday afternoon. Miss H. A. Coon will supervise.

Mrs. Parker will have charge of the Young People's Service at 7:00 p. m. Sunday.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Roach, Pastor

Our morning worship service begins at 10:30.

Mr. Martin of Lansing will be in charge of the service and bring the message of the morning.

Sunday School meets following the morning service.

B. Y. P. U. at 6 p. m.

Evening service at 7 p. m.

Monday evening the Bible Study class at the church. The Subject: "How the Kingdom and the Church Differ." Next Week subject: "The Anti Christ."

Mid-week prayer and business meeting will be held Thursday evening at the church at 7:30.

CHURCH OF GOD
J. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:00 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor

April 3rd—"Why the Atonement" Dwight Hamel. Have already volunteered a statement of the Union service last year.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. F. F. McMillan. Board Meeting next Monday at 7:30 p. m. at church. The meeting will be held at the parsonage.

The music of Bible that made the ether of the church so beautiful on Easter Sunday, filled the air in the house of the sick, and sadness, and some much appreciated by those that were unable to be present. The music for the sunrise service was much appreciated by those in charge. The sunrise service of Easter morning was held as early as light. At ten thirty the church was crowded, with a program of music, which showed much thought and ability, with the solo by Miss French, and the violin of Miss Jean Smith, being features much enjoyed. Three adults were received into the membership of the church.

The Missionary Society meets with Mrs. Mary Reinhart Wednesday afternoon with opening of mite boxes as part of the program.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject: April 3—"Unreality."

Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 27.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (I John 2:1-11): "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 273): "The testimony of Holy Writ sustains the fact in Science, that the heavens and earth to one human consciousness, that consciousness which God inspires, are spiritual, while to another, the unillumined human mind, the visory is material."

Proper Position for Safe Driving

This young lady, posed by Dr. Dudley B. Reed, director of health service, University of Chicago, is showing how the "perfect driver" sits behind the wheel for safety and comfort. Dr. Reed pointed out that mohair velour upholstery, which has a pile surface, grips the clothing and helps maintain proper driving posture.

MOHAIR AN AID TO SAFE DRIVING

Scientist of University Tells How Pile Surface Keeps You From 'Slumping.'

In the test midwest months more persons have been killed in automobile accidents in the United States than our country's army lost in action during the World war. This is the startling fact which is focusing the earnest attention of safety officials everywhere and challenges enthusiasm and action of every citizen. What can be done to reduce this huge death toll?

Safety measures are being effective in another if more workable plan has been tested with the assistance of motor car engineers. This plan would protect himself and others from accidents simply and easily by adjusting another two—just those offered by the Button II Head conference of Industrial Division of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Proper driving position to the fact that sitting properly with the feet in the seat and the back in the seat is the best way to relax. Proper driving position is a direct help to safety.

Doctor Reed points out, if the waits are adjusted to a height that will take cover on vision. His theory of a good grip the driving wheel with the arms of the body fairly well relaxed, ing the tendency to slip and slide.

Proper driving position results in driving. Doctor Reed supports in by charts shown in the main. If a driver is in the slumping position, he supports, two are likely to happen or more: If a sudden position, the muscles do not quickly respond when the emergency demands quick correction of the overlook, low seats and legs are cramped, the muscles do not have an opportunity to expand and allow normal circulation of the blood, depriving the brain of oxygen and other normal nourishment. In case of body collision, the muscles are tense and ready for action, and the driver is not in a position to brace himself. Most important of all the safety, the driver's knee should remember, is best in such a position that strikes may have power to be an angle instead of in a straight position as was learned in that the driver's knee if the wrong is greatly reduced. In person becomes fatigued more easily and is seen, in conclusion that invites accidents.

Here are twenty hints proper safe positions, especially helpful during long motor trips, when a wrong habit by unnoticed. Sit with the feet under the pedals, the back of the seat and the weight resting directly on the seat. Have driving wheel so support the back at a point within the shoulder the arms and the top of the hand. Do not recline too much, shorter pedal throw should decrease the head and throw should be so adjusted as to result in a slight bend of the knee. Be able to reach the pedals and the driving wheel without changing the position of the body. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road ahead without changing the position of the head. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the body. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the head. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the body.

NORTHERN DISTRICT
Y. M. C. A. ITEMS

Boyne City H-Y had as their guest Superintendent J. C. Limbaugh of Boyne Falls School and several high school boys, Tuesday, March 29, for explanation of and introduction into H-Y organization.

The H-Y group of Mancelona put on a fine banquet for Fathers and Sons, March 28, with Mr. C. W. Brown toastmaster, and Rev. John Alexander, guest speaker. Secretary Emil Hooke of the Boys' Conference at Petoskey April 23.

The banquet of the Older Boys' Conference at Petoskey April 24, will be held at 6:30 in the Temple Church. An excellent menu has been arranged and costs only 40 cents.

Those will be special church services with Y. M. C. A. speakers in several of the cities Sunday April 24 Gaylord, East Jordan, and Gaylord are already arranged for.

Some boys in the district are thinking seriously of an educational trip to Washington with the Y. M. C. A. summer Write Mr. Ray Johns at the Institute Secretary Angell at Petoskey.

Two older boys of the Charlevoix H-Y have organized and are directing a Junior H-Y in their school. Irene Young is president, Pat Mc-Amond Jewell Coulter, Secretary.

Secretary Angell organized a H-Y Club at East Jordan Thursday, March 24, with Virgil Milliman, president, and Mr. M. G. Roberts and Mr. Vaggee, leaders.

President W. G. Spencer of Hillsdale College, banquet speaker at the Boys' Conference will speak in the East Jordan Presbyterian church, April 24, 10:30 a. m.

Mr. Wayne Childs and Rev. C. J. Kendall are arranging for a big delegation of older boys to the April 23rd conference from Central Lake.

Stanley Kellison of Cheboygan, Warren McDonald of Petoskey, and John Alexander of Bellaire will direct the conferences singing. April 23.

Mrs. F. L. Farran of Cadillac is spending a few days as a guest of Mrs. E. N. Faulkner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence N. Bridge and son, Raymond, Holland Patent, N. Y., are spending Easter with Mr. Bridges parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bridge.

Many Sportsmen have in recent up to Susser Creek taken some fine catches from the ice-bound lake. The smelt taken were fairly good size, and in nine, but not taken in any great numbers by individual fishermen.

CITIZENS MILITARY TRAINING CAMP TO OPEN JULY 5

July 5 will mark the opening of the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Brady, the Sou.

All institutions point to the largest enrollment in history for the camp, the total allotment was filled some time before the first of May. If you are not fully enrolled by that date, a waiting list will be started, and you will be notified. It was an admirable silence service, with a testimonial, for the audience, sing "In the Cross of Christ I Glory" until the street was reached.

The violin "Nocturne" from Thomas to Miss Gormond, was very appropriate to the darkness music, and much enjoyed, as was the Sonata from Beethoven during the Eucharist.

The church people report it as one of the most helpful and impressive Good they have ever had. Everyone came at once and left at once, with absolute quiet and silence.

SIGON AUXILIARY TO MEET NEXT MONDAY

The regular monthly meeting of American Legion Auxiliary will be held next Monday night in the Legion Home on East Garfield.

Those Unit members attending the last meeting of the Auxiliary well remember that the day put on by member present and it is rumored that there will be something of the kind on the program for the coming meeting.

It is hoped that the usual good attendance will turn out as this promises to be an interesting meeting.

H. W. Garrett of Grand Rapids, a former Charlevoix visitor, was here on business Wednesday.

Mr. L. E. Crandell, who for some weeks past has been visiting his son Voris at LaCrosse, Wisconsin, returned home last Friday.

Arthur Elliott was acting as assistant at the F. S. Myers store during Mr. Myers absence of several days over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Myers and daughter Helen, visitors in Detroit for a few days, returned home Tuesday.

Easter Seal parade on, if the waits are adjusted to a fairly good size they cover on vision. His theory of a good grip the driving wheel with the arms of the body fairly well relaxed, ing the tendency to slip and slide.

Proper driving position results in driving. Doctor Reed supports in by charts shown in the main. If a driver is in the slumping position, he supports, two are likely to happen or more: If a sudden position, the muscles do not quickly respond when the emergency demands quick correction of the overlook, low seats and legs are cramped, the muscles do not have an opportunity to expand and allow normal circulation of the blood, depriving the brain of oxygen and other normal nourishment. In case of body collision, the muscles are tense and ready for action, and the driver is not in a position to brace himself. Most important of all the safety, the driver's knee should remember, is best in such a position that strikes may have power to be an angle instead of in a straight position as was learned in that the driver's knee if the wrong is greatly reduced. In person becomes fatigued more easily and is seen, in conclusion that invites accidents.

Here are twenty hints proper safe positions, especially helpful during long motor trips, when a wrong habit by unnoticed. Sit with the feet under the pedals, the back of the seat and the weight resting directly on the seat. Have driving wheel so support the back at a point within the shoulder the arms and the top of the hand. Do not recline too much, shorter pedal throw should decrease the head and throw should be so adjusted as to result in a slight bend of the knee. Be able to reach the pedals and the driving wheel without changing the position of the body. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road ahead without changing the position of the head. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the body. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the head. Have the seat adjusted so that the driver can see the road behind without changing the position of the body.

LEGION CAN NOT LET THIS CHALLENGE GO UNHEEDED

By Russell Cook
National Director, Americanism Commission, the American Legion.

Professional pacifists, radical agitators and other forces not having at heart the future welfare of the United States of America have inaugurated a concerted effort to break down our naturalization laws, abolish means of national defense and bring about social disorder where every conscience is a law unto itself.

They have hurled a challenge in every liberty-loving, law-abiding citizen and believer in ethical religion as their work by day and by night is the furtherance of schemes to weaken and destroy a national spirit in America.

This challenge can not pass unanswered. The self-respecting citizen, also would assume itself to meet this organized campaign which is threatening the security of our general welfare. The duty to the American Legion is clear.

The professional pacifists are sponsoring a bill to amend the laws so that a slacker may become a citizen, enjoying the benefits and protection of the United States government without sharing his proportionate part of the responsibilities.

The administration goes to the very root of citizenship and national security.

The founders of this nation established the Constitution for our common defense.

Fundamentally, citizenship is based on the obligation of every one who enjoys its protection to share its responsibilities, regardless of how the individual conscience looks upon the tragic wastefulness of war.

No government can stand with every individual conscience a law unto itself.

FROM THE SENTINEL FILES

(Continued fro fifth page.)

(text for the erection of a two story, double store building on his lot on Bridge Street, opposite T. D. Smith & Co's store. The building will be a wooden building 18x60 and will be stairway. One of the stores is to be occupied by a new drug store of Dr. B. H. Wood, and the other by C. B. Hathaway, jeweler. The upper story will be finished up as future demands may require. It is expected to be completed early in May. The building will stand twenty-five feet from the corner, which is reserved for a non-templated brick building.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

Hanks, Antrim Co., has nominated Henry W. Bean, Bear Lake, for Supervisor. They have made a good choice.

Work on the piers will soon stop and the harbor will be finished. It will be commenced soon. Six cribs are completed and sunk.

We call attention to the advertisement of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad Company. The lands of this grant command the highest price of any Land Grant Railroad in the United States and are the finest complement to Michigan and shows what immigrants think of our state. Their lands in Grand Traverse are selling at from ten prices asked, and their terms are easy.

Marion, March 26, 1872

Editor Sentinel:

Sir—At a Republican caucus held on Friday, March 22nd, at the house of Warren D. Thompson, the following persons were nominated for township offices: For supervisor, John Newman; Clerk, John J. McMahon; treasurer, John Ward; School Inspector, A. D. Brady; Justice of the peace for the full term, Alexander Simmons; Chas. Hogan; Constables, Leonard Whitmoyer, George Cooper, Daniel Hinslaugh and Stephen A. Smith.

A. D. Brady, Wm. Black and Joseph Clark were appointed Township committee for the ensuing year. Mr. Newman has given general satisfaction the past year, and seems to be the people's choice regardless of party. There may be, and no doubt there are, some few individuals who are never satisfied and always finding fault. Such feelings are caused perhaps, from disappointment in getting into office, or their natures demoralized by selfishness. However this may be, we think Mr. Newman will be elected by a large majority. Pro bono publico! Yours, etc. En Ansi.

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.
Cheerydale Hatchery, E. Jordan
Phone 116 F 2 44tf

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.
We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop. 8tf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,400 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W ½ of SW ¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 1tf

TO VOTERS OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

I wish to announce that in the September primary election I will be a candidate, on the Republican Ticket, for State Representative from Charlevoix and Leelanau Counties.

I believe that I am qualified by age, experience and education to satisfactorily perform the duties of this responsible position.

I am a resident of Eveline Township, Charlevoix County. I own and operate the 40-acre orchard known as Cherry Hill Farm, where I have lived for the past ten years.

DOUGLAS D. TIBBITS

The 200th anniversary of George Wash ington's birth. Does his spirit still live in his faith in the future of this country and his will to make the best of difficult situations and his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
MEMBER OF FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM Under State Supervision
ROLL OF HONOR BANK
OFFICERS: W. S. Richardson, Pres., A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres., H. A. Craig, Vice Pres., A. L. Livingston, Cashier, G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

THAT "WEIGHT-LIFTER"

Those pieces of unsatisfactory taxes who feel extra financial burden during "tax time" are, for the most part, those who take themselves a powerful tax "weight-lifter" in a Savings Account. Every dollar you put in this bank helps dollar by dollar to increase your ability to PAY TAXES PLUS.

Why not begin now to prepare for next April 1st's taxes?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Boen
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre
This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.
ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, APRIL 2, 3
James Dunn and Sally Eilers in
"Dance Team"
with Minna Gombell, Edward Crandall.

"Bad Girl" made them famous—"Dance Team" makes them immortal! Here is a picture with the same appealing story with the same magic spark of tender reality. Dunn and Eilers surpass themselves. As the two Broadway hoofers who danced from a park bench to Carnegie . . . and almost lost love on the way! As two youngsters who try to subdue love. Then fall for each other in spite of it.
Added Attractions—Screen Song and Talkartoon.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 7
George O'Brien in
"Rainbow Trail"
With Cecelia Parker, Minna Gombell, Roscoe Ates, J. M. Kerrigan.

Laugh— Thrills — Romance, in Zane Grey's dynamic drama. A colorful saga of the old west. Relive the romance and adventure of these glamorous days. He'll ride into your heart—alone he battled — fighting a rule that terrorized the city, west—striking with an avenging fury born of his love.
Added Attractions—Comedy "Put Up Job."

NOTE—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY" "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1932 Number 50

S. WIDDIFIELD DIES IN CHICAGO

FALLS IN VAT OF SCALDING WATER, DIES TUESDAY

Word was received here Tuesday evening that C. Stanley Widdifield, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Widdifield, had met with a serious accident and that he was in a critical condition in one of the Chicago hospitals.

Mrs. Widdifield left for Chicago via the Pennsylvania line the same evening. A second message came Tuesday morning, before Mrs. Widdifield arrived in Chicago, that Stanley was dead.

Mr. Bergeson has been firmly intrenched in city affairs for a term of years. From his first appearance in city politics he has been recognized as a potent factor. From the start he held and still retains a strong following of staunch supporters who continue to back him in his local political aspirations to continue as the chief executive of this city. This was evidenced by the heavy vote polled in the recent primary election and this evidence alone should have been recognized by promoters of the stick-or-campaign as well as the futility of their late effort and that the ultimate result of the campaign would be complete disaster.

During his ten years as mayor of Charlevoix Mr. Bergeson has not wholly escaped criticism for some activities under his administration, nor do we believe that any person can remain in the public eye for a decade of time without incurring the displeasure of some one or more citizens, especially so when some individual has an axe to grind and finds personal ambition thwarted.

It is within the range of possibilities that during his long public service Mr. Bergeson has made some mistakes, these in the eye of some are held as grevious errors, in the eye of others as being of a minor nature, all depending on personal viewpoint. He has at least his work to do. In the midst of the city as a whole, has been noteworthy, even meritorious, and by far outweighs all minor errors or discrepancies charged against his administration by either constructive objectors or by those who broadcast vicious propaganda.

Personally we have held and still hold Mr. Cross in high esteem as a business man, citizen and neighbor. In this regard we are willing, yes, pleased to be so recorded; also, we feel that we can so speak for Charlevoix citizens generally. He is a fine neighbor, sincere, friend, honorable in social and business life, a man of principle and advanced ideas, such as makes for qualities essential in public service. Therefore it is a matter of regret that those who conceived the plan and made the attempt to "put over" the slicker campaign have placed Mr. Cross in a more or less embarassing position insofar as his future political ambition is concerned, particularly so to friends having his true interest in view.

We trust it is that the over zealous effort in any cause can seriously injure the proposition in which they take special interest and which they are endeavoring to support. Then again how true it is that some, decent, principle, in order to further personal interest, or in a spirit of revenge are willing to sacrifice one individual in order to injure some other individual, often as in the present instance without accomplishing their inanity of purpose.

FRIENDS ENTERTAINED

Old time friends and neighbors who reside or have resided near Ironton were entertained a few nights ago by Mr. and Mrs. John Nesen, at their home on Antrim street. Guests present were. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lewis, Mesdames Carrie Bird, Clyde Ogden and Lillian Saunders. Supper served cafeteria style and a good old fashioned visit formed the evenings entertainment. The evening passed most enjoyably for hosts and guests.

Captains B. J. Gellick and H. P. Hilligan of Grand Haven were here Wednesday inspecting the S. S. Marquis Roen that entered this harbor recently from Sturgeon, where she had been overhauled during the winter months. While here Captain Gillick was in a reminiscent mood and revealed the fact that with his people, who in early days lived at Bear Lake, came to Charlevoix 50 years ago to remain as permanent citizens.

"VICTORS SPOILED THE SPOILS WITH TOO MUCH REVELRY

Monday's election wound up in the wee hours of the following morning with an over-enthusiastic celebration by a group of supporters of the winning faction.

It was an amusing, as well as disgusting display of exuberance. It is hard to believe that grown men, married and heads of families would make such a show of themselves. A few members of the Legion's drum and bugle corps, partially financed through city appropriation of taxpayer money, with Legion equipment, took part in the revelry.

There was utter disregard for the sense of mind of the city at large. The celebrants, some none too sober, apparently did not stop to think of the annoyance they caused the sick, the children and peace-abiding citizens they aroused in the middle of the night.

If the type of citizenry taking part in the celebration is a sample of the supporters aligned with the winning political faction, they lent but scant credit to result."

The above article was taken from Petoskey News of April 5th.

From it we gather that the election has been carried over into a bar-roomed display of generalities by a group of supporters of the losing action.

It is as amusing, as well as disgusting display of rhetoric. It is hard to believe that grown men, married and heads of families would be responsible for such a display of "weeping." Those who originated the above article, by their own partially financed by taxpayers' money through city appropriation" would no doubt have taken part in the celebration had they been the people's choice as evidenced by the election results.

As in times past they show their sour hungered for the truth, and the people have spoken in their ballot. These responsible for the above article, in times past not at all sober, apparently do not as yet think of the injustice of singling out one group in the celebration or the lawsuiting of another. They make statements made when they are losers.

If the type of citizenry publishing such articles is necessary and future merit were supporters of the losing political faction, they lent their cause no credit as evidenced by the election results.

The celebration referred to in the above article was a disgrace to the city, lacksmen, did no damage, either to property or character, and was carried on in a manner unbecoming of organizations in the city, including good losers, in a spirit of fun.

Such a display of poor sportsmanship after the "nonsense odor" emanating from a "Place" off of main street for so many years.

As to the type of "citizens" participating in the celebrations we would say that our citizens generally all fishing on closed streams, shooting deer out of season, violating game and shooting pheasants out of season, being carried home from a celebration drunk, are the citizens who supported the nonsense received by this organization.

Signed
Executive Committee.
Leslie T. Shapton Post, No. 226,
American Legion.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. is scheduled for Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the Library room. Mrs. Wm. Bingham will deliver the principal address. Subject: "Ideals of Citizenship."

Arthur Alcock for some weeks a patient at Lockwood hospital, Petoskey, returned to his home here last Sunday. His condition considered as serious at the time he entered the hospital for treatment. This condition has cleared up materially in recent weeks and a present shows encouragement satisfactory to Mr. Alcock, family members and friends.

County News

BEAVER ISLAND

The "Rembler" made her first trip to Charlevoix Wednesday with a load of empty oil barrels and cedar ties.

L. J. Malloy was a visitor on Garden Island Saturday and Sunday.

Harry Lewis moved his family over from Garden Island Saturday, by boat.

Mr. Lou Allard of Charlevoix was a passenger on the mail plane Tuesday. He came to take up his duties at the head lighthouse.

Gus Mielke went to Charlevoix Tuesday on business, making the trip by plane.

Dominick Gallagher left Monday for the Head to open up the light house for the season.

Joe Webb went to Charlevoix on business this week.

W. J. Gallagher Jr. returned home from Charlevoix Friday, making the trip by plane.

Dutch Hammond accompanied Bud Hammond on his trip with the mail Tuesday, from Charlevoix to the Island.

James W. Gallagher went to Charlevoix and Petoskey Wednesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie left for Chicago Wednesday. Joe Webb went to Traverse City and Petoskey on business.

John A. Gallagher of Pointe twp. is in Charlevoix this week on business. He went over on the plane Tuesday.

C. M. Harris went to Charlevoix to get some supplies for his spring work at his camp.

Baizex Early went to Charlevoix Wednesday to visit his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Fischner left for Cheboygan where Mr. Fischner will resume his position on Patrol No. 1.

W. J. Gallagher, Jr. went over to attend the boxing matches to be held at the Legion Home.

Archie LaFreniere left for Benton Harbor to join the House of Lloyd.

Eddie McLaughlin went to Charlevoix Wednesday to attend the League boxing bouts.

MARION CENTER

Rev. J. E. Lockyer and wife of Clare, former Methodist pastor of Charlevoix were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison last week Wednesday.

Adolph, Alice and Lawrence Eckland are out of school with the measles also Bobby Straw, Christina Withers and Darlene and Geraldine Williams.

At the township election Monday the first ticket was elected. There were one hundred and fifteen voted.

Marion Center Grange met at a regular session last Friday evening. There were about two hundred in attendance. Members of Maple Grove, Ironton, Bernard, South Arm, Pennisular Granges were present also the first Degree Team, and over sixty of our own members. Six men from Marion Center Grange served a fine supper in a very creditable manner and all enjoyed the fine program put on by Ironton Grange.

All.

Mr. Earl Van Zant has moved into his new house which he built since tearing his other by fire some time ago.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR JAMES DIVIS MONDAY

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church Monday for James Divis who died Thursday morning of last week.

The service was under the auspices of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. of which the deceased was a member, with Rev. W. W. Rauch, pastor of the church officiating.

A large number of American Legion members attended the service, thereby evidencing the respect in which they held their late World war comrade.

ELECTION PROVES INTERESTING

MAYOR ARTHUR BERGESON RE-ELECTED DECISIVELY

The projection of Mr. E. E. Cross as a sticker candidate for mayor to oppose Mr. Arthur Bergeson, the regularly nominated candidate at the general election held Monday, turned out disastrously for Mr. Cross, proved to be a boomerang to those proposing the plan, while the final result proves that the project was fully advised, making for the worst kind of political tactics in an effort to accomplish the defeat of Mr. Bergeson, that could possibly be proposed.

School News

Sub-District Forensic Contest Here

Thursday evening of this week the Sub-District Oratorical and Declamation Contest will be held in the local gymnasium. Harlow Springs, Boyne City, Cheboygan, Boyne Falls and Gaylord are sending representatives. Charlevoix is represented in Orations by Lila McMillan, with her oration, "Andrew Jackson", and in Declamation by Albert McMillan with his selection, "At the Grave of the Unknown Soldier", by Bruce Barton. The admission is only 10 and 15 cents.

The subdistrict contest is usually held in Cheboygan where we always find a filled house. Our delegation being a little late last year had some difficulty in getting seats. Let's show those visiting schools that Charlevoix is interested in forensics too!

Senior Honors Announced

This week the Valedictorian and Salutatorian, together with those senior, who have maintained a high average has been announced.

Valedictorian—Lila McMillan
Salutatorian—Carl Beattie
Honorable mention for being close to second place: Margaret Smith and Ruby Sizemore.

The following may be admitted to the University without examination:

Norman Ance, Marian Smith, David Bird, Kathleen McCall, Hugh Parker, Edna Kelchner, Pat Gaffney, Winifred Martin, Mary Margaret Orlowski, John Funk, Dorothy Griffin, Stanley Carter.

Senior Play Chosen

Friday, the 15th of May is set for the Senior Play, and it will indeed be an unlucky day for those who do not attend. "Two Girls Wanted" is one of the most lively, up-to-the-minute, amusing and interesting comedy-dramas that could be chosen. It has only recently been released for amateur production and the Seniors feel sure that the girls will be filled with delight at the prospect of an evening of genuine fun and entertainment.

Watch for announcement of cast and staff and further details about this distinctly unusual comedy.

Basketball Tournament

Monday night, March 28, the junior girls played the Freshmen. Predictions were that the Juniors would win for they had been undefeated by the Freshmen up to this time. However, the Juniors were a little off their play, and the Freshmen team impressed considerably, by the game ended with a score of 5 to 6 in favor of the Freshmen.

Wednesday night, March 30, the Sophomores played the Seniors. The Seniors, of the game were allowed known before the game. The Seniors had not organized a team until a few days before the tournament while the Sophomores have a very strong team and the teamwork was splendid. The score was 2 to 40 in favor of the Sophomores.

Friday night the finals were played. The Freshmen were good but the Sophomores were able to win with a victory of 3 to 18. The Sophomore team will undoubtedly receive basketball letters. The members of that team are: Margaret Shaw, Marjorie Partridge, Jerrine Smith, Janet Livingston, Marian Tuby, Meady Scott, Alice Usher, Dorothy McCartney, and Cora Chavrill.

The boys' games started Monday of this week. There are six teams in the tournament and they have been practicing strenuously for weeks. The juniors of the gym have been looked against again while secret plays were being perfected so a hard fought tournament is expected.

We would like to bring to the attention of the students of the high school and the citizens of the town the opportunities that are being offered through the Music and Speech departments of the school. We regret that there was not a larger attendance at the splendid program presented by Junior High School Chorus, for its merit was as great or perhaps superior to that of presentations by much larger schools. Such an exhibition of talent and fine training by the young people of our city can not but be an inspiration to all who hear.

The crowd at the Drama Club production of "Quality Street" was not as large as we desired. Of course, these organizations feel that though only a few enjoy their efforts the time has not been spent in vain, but what encouragement they would receive from more whole hearted support.

However there are several interesting events yet to come. Tonight there is the Inter-District Oratorical and Declamation Contest which will be held at Petoskey this afternoon. Miss Ann Arbor a little sophomore girl pianist rendered an auditorium filling Hill Auditorium in its throes, to rise to its feet in honor of her skill.

Then on May 13th the senior class will present the annual play which has not been to its appeal and interest as well as its fine quality.

Plan on these dates. We are sure you will enjoy yourselves.

GEORGE GERSHWIN COMPOSES COMPLETE SCORE FOR PICTURE

James Gaynor and Charles Farrell, sweet lullabie of seven lovers, are to be born together again with the upcoming Saturday of "Delicious," new Fox musical romance at the Palace Theatre. The film features Janet Gaynor in Gershwin Melodies, denoting the first time that the famous American composer has written the entire musical score for a motion picture.

Unlike "Sunny Side Up" and "High Society Blues," initial musical successes of the famous pair, "Delicious" presents 21 song numbers strung on both. Each melody in the picture is skillfully woven into the body of the drama in such a way that the action of the story is never stopped. Near broadcasting of a national program over a nest-timed hookup from 10 to 11 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. Each item throughout the United States will hold an again missing and arrange for an added or preliminary local program to coordinate with the broadcast, depending upon the geographical location and time.

The Charlevoix Unit, No. 77, Post Association of the American Legion have changed their regular meeting night which falls on April 19, to April 18, in order to take part in this national program as a unit. The meeting will be held at the Legion Home.

At the regular meeting of the local Legion post Tuesday evening over a dozen members and members from Bellaire were present. Entertainment and refreshments were provided and a get acquainted session was held. A number of the visitors signed up as members paying their dues. T. Stanton Post "even has not" for 1932 membership.

One feature of the entertainment was the revival of an old fashioned custom, the "kangaroo court". The "culprit" was duly tried and convicted and sentence passed upon him. The musical entertainment was also a feature of the evening. Other plans in the near future were discussed.

DISTRICT ORATORICAL, DECLAMATORY CONTEST

To be held at the Charlevoix gymnasium Thursday evening, April 7th, at 7:30 p. m.

Orations

Vivian Meyer, Boyne Falls, "Why Disarm?"

Robert Miller, Petoskey, "The Old Man With the Cane."

Lila McMillan, Charlevoix, "Andrew Jackson."

Opal W. Lewis, Gaylord, "Tumult in the Orient."

Ruth Hutchinson, Harbor Springs, "Manchuria and the Constitution."

Robert Stanley, of Cheboygan, "Repeal of the 18th Amendment be Requested"

"Green Cathedral", High School Girls Trio.

Declamations

Eleanor Pearson, Boyne Falls, "The Unknown Soldier."

Marjorie Mackinaw City, "Abou Ben Adhem," by Leigh Hunt.

Albert McMillan, Charlevoix, "The Mrs. W. S. Richardson, chairman of programs committee, deserves much credit for the success of the evening's entertainment.

STATE FERRY OPENS APRIL 10

Transportation of automobile and passenger service via the State Ferry over the Mackinaw City-St. Ignace route opens April 10 at which time one ship will open the season. A second ship will go into commission May 15 and the third ship July 1st, according to information from the State Highway department, with all three of the ships operating daily the route until September 1st when a reduction will be made in the service.

The many entrants from neighboring schools should insure an exciting evening May 7th and 8th when Charlevoix host the host of the District Meet at which time we will have the privilege of hearing musicians from our own town as well as from neighboring cities. Those who have attended stage of hearing musicians from other schools have always felt that one does not have to have achieved great years to be a musician, and some of our high school students not old enough to vote—but their ages. Three or four years ago at the meeting of the High School Music Contest held in Ann Arbor a little sophomore girl pianist roused an audience filling Hill Auditorium to its feet in honor of her skill.

Then on May 13th the senior class will present the annual play which has not been to its appeal and interest as well as its fine quality.

Plan on these dates. We are sure you will enjoy yourselves.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BANQUET A SUCCESS

The Mother and Daughter Banquet sponsored by the South Side Circle of King's Daughters' church has been unanimously voted the best they have given to date. The banquet was excellent and served in a most efficient manner.

Mrs. James Krolik, president of the South Side Circle acted as toastmistress, and in a pleasing way introduced those taking part on the program. Mrs. Mary Richard, Mrs. Dan Soule and Mrs. Archie Livingston delighted all with their musical selections. Mrs. Soule, a beautiful tenor to our mothers and Mrs. Ruby Cain-Stacy responded with a toast to daughters.

Mrs. E. L. Dawson, Mrs. G. R. Parker, Mrs. Engle, Van Alsburg, Mrs. C. Richard Mrs. Richard Mrs. Home gave three minute talks on outstanding women in Government, Religion, Education, Art, Music and Home. Miss Rose O'Neil gave a reading, "The Stick-Together Family." Mrs. W. S. Richardson, chairman of programs committee, deserves much credit for the success of the evening's entertainment.

Mabbie Brennan, Boyne Falls, "Vision of War."

Frank MacMillan, Cheboygan, "The Unknown Soldier."

"Second Waltz", Piano solo, Hilda Ogden

The order in which the above will be delivered will be determined by drawing, just preceding the contest.

Judges—Superintendent George Kiser, Alba; Miss Geraldine Ingold, English and Dramatics, Traverse City; Miss Nova Walker, English and Public Speaking, Traverse City.

Admission: Students 10c; adults, 15 cents.

LEGION HOLDS REGULAR MEET

NATION WIDE BROADCAST SET FOR MONDAY, APRIL 18

Music (theme) and solicitations is being taken in the coming "Victory Membership Celebration" of the American Legion April 18th to members of the organization then is any unused program ever held by the legion, according to reports from National Headquarters in Indianapolis.

Arrangements have been perfected through cooperation of Mr. M. R. Ayleworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, for nation wide broadcasting of a national program over a nest-timed hookup from 10 to 11 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. Each unit throughout the United States will hold an again missing and arrange for an added or preliminary local program to coordinate with the broadcast, depending upon the geographical location and time.

The Charlevoix Unit, No. 77, Post Association of the American Legion have changed their regular meeting night which falls on April 19, to April 18, in order to take part in this national program as a unit. The mee

MANCHURIA NEWEST WORLD STATE

Announcement of creation of the world's richest proposed wave this land been proclaimed from what Switzerland has been known as "Manchuria." The announced opinion for the proposed government of the new monastery which magazine investigation, be by, four nations have been founded by the state. In rapid succession, Africa under (meaning "Rich Lands"), and Europe (Palace of Manchuria"), and Turong ("Great Jung"). Until a name finally announced, the new territory will reign with be called, diminutive, "Manchuria plus Johol," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Although the name of the proposed state seems to shift over night," continues the bulletin, "its territorial makeup is reasonably definite. In it are included the three provinces heretofore have made up Manchuria — Liaotung (also known as Fengtien and as Shengking province), Kirin, and Heilung (also known as Amur province). To these have been added Jehol, which ects the adjacent province of Inner Mongolia, the Kwantung leased state from ninety with approximately 40,000 square miles, and what may be termed as that of the Union of South Africa.

"The new state of Manchuria and Jehol thus far in the north and has a more unique ethnology.

"If China's new provincial unit is a population of approximately 30,000,000 persons, the latest returns are known to have died. This creditor money or possible plan is in keeping with the economic and southern sovereign, and the good schools, of the Chinese, Japanese and foreign. Among the citizens of the new state will be found the world's largest group of Russian exiles and refugees.

"The new state of Manchuria and Jehol has far in the north and has a more unique ethnology.

"If China's new provincial unit is a population of approximately 30,000,000 persons, the latest returns are known to have died. This creditor money or possible plan is in keeping with the economic and southern sovereign, and the good schools, of the Chinese, Japanese and foreign. Among the citizens of the new state will be found the world's largest group of Russian exiles and refugees. Among the citizens of the new state will be found the world's largest group of Russian exiles and refugees.

"The new state of Manchuria and Jehol thus far in the north and has a more unique ethnology.

"If China's new provincial unit is a population of approximately 30,000,000 persons, the latest returns are known to have died. This creditor money or possible plan is in keeping with the economic and southern sovereign, and the good schools, of the Chinese, Japanese and foreign

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street. Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

EAT OUR WAY TO HAPPINESS

Speaking at the recent Conference on Nutrition, which was part of the National Educational Association Convention held at Washington, D. C., Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, said: "What people eat determines to a larger degree than we realize what they will become."

Discussing the subject informally, Dr. Wilbur expressed the opinion that a close relationship exists between food and good citizenship. Therefore, nutrition is an important thing in government. "Nutrition is the most basic of all our human responsibilities, and the thermometer of good nutrition is happiness," said he. A high tribute was paid the good dairy cow at the conference when Dr. Wilbur declared, "The human race depends for its permanence upon the dairy cow—milk is a safe food."

Perfectly nourished children with an adequate supply of growth promoting foods, such as milk and eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals and a small amount of meat, will be better citizens. They will resist disease better, especially diseases of the nervous system, and are less likely to become addicted to injurious habits. They will have a better chance, in short, for health and happiness.

FEDERAL EXCISE TAX ON AUTOMOBILES

The proposed Federal motor vehicle excise tax should not be accepted with closed eyes. On first glance it seems an easy and fair means of raising revenue—but on consideration, its Vices far outweigh its virtues.

One worker in every ten in the country—4,000,000 in all—is dependent on the automobile industry for livelihood, and business generally looks to the industry as one of the leaders in the work of recovery. Automotive plants are located in 41 states—and all states contribute material used in automobile construction. Thus, any move that would retard the sale of motor cars would tend to increase unemployment and slow down business recovery.

There are, at present, 26,000,000 motor vehicles in use in this country, one fifth of which are owned by farmers. Two-thirds of the buyers of cars have incomes below $5,000 a year, and 85 per cent of cars sell for less than $750 wholesale. Consequently, the automobile tax would mainly affect the person of small means. In many cases, the additional cost made necessary by the tax would prevent a sale.

What we need now is business stimulation—and anything that would get against that should be discarded. The automobile sales tax may look good on paper—but in actual working out, it would very likely prove damaging to the entire country.

THE ONLY SOLUTION

In a recent statement, Representative Frances P. Bolton, of Ohio, said: "The only solution for the dairy farmer is to get in properly organized cooperatives. The success of the Dairymen's league, the pioneer organization in that field in New York State, has been outstanding. It markets every year more than any other dairy cooperative in the field and has a stabilizing effect on prices, the benefit of which has fallen upon members and non-members alike.

"Agricultural interests have lagged behind in the matter of organization. It is the great weakness of rural life. . . ."

This goes for all classes of farmers, as well as the dairymen. It is true that prices are now extremely low even when produce is handled through cooperatives—but without the cooperatives, prices would be lower yet. The unorganized farmer who sells for whatever he can get, is the greatest existing barrier to higher prices. So long as he exists in great numbers, cooperatives will be unable to obtain maximum results.

The farmer is passing through a crucial period, as is industry. And industry is meeting its present problems, as it did those of the past, through organization and concerted, directed effort. The farmer must do the same thing if he is to exchange depression for prosperity.

NEW HOPE FOR COPPER

The price of copper recently advanced, due to reports that the world's leading producers had virtually reached an agreement to cut output to 20 per cent of capacity from the existing 26 1-2 per cent.

This was made necessary by the steady accumulation of stocks of the metal, which reached a new high record of 800,000 tons a fortnight or so ago. Copper executives felt that the outlook for the metal was brighter as the result of a series of conferences held by the producers.

Anything that will help place the mining industry on a sounder status will benefit the nation—and particularly the western, metal-producing states. For many moons copper has been selling, along with other metals, at profitless prices—and the result of that has been felt in unemployment, a drop in tax receipts in the complete shutdown of once important mines. The industry is passing through a crisis and the hopes of the West will be with it. The mines made the west, in the beginning—and its future is largely involved with the future of metals.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

ORIGIN OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS IN AMERICA

Among the many acts of wisdom of George Washington was to provide a fund for the teaching of orphans and children whose parents were unable to defray their expenses in school. Ties in the building still in use at Alexandria, Virginia, and the fund was supplied from the dividends of certain bank stock which General Washington owned. In this act of Washington is found the origin of the public school system in America.

ACCIDENTS AND GOOD ROADS

"The charge has been made that the so-called 'safe roads' are in reality more hazardous," says Maxwell Halsey of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "This grows out of the fact that many newly constructed street- and highways have had worse accident records than had the old ones. . . . The fallacy in their statement, however, lies in calling the new roadways 'more safe.' It is true that they would have been 'more safe' if the speed and volume of travel to which the older types of roads were subjected, had continued, but such has not been the case.

"Each year the individual desires to get from point 'A' to point 'B' more quickly and with greater comfort. His first request was 'get me out of the mud' and so the authorities strove desperately to improve the surface of the roadway. The expansion of paved and improved surfaces was rapid and thorough and the complaints died away. . . . Then the cry was 'give us faster cars.' The automobile industry was quick to sense the demand and soon even the most inexpensive cars had much higher economical and comfortable speeds. . . . The manufacturers won the race and succeeded in providing more and faster cars than the roadways were designed for. . . .

"Many of the engineers settled back in their chairs and said 'this speed question is simply a matter of adequate enforcement . . .' They forgot, however, that the function of the police is not necessarily to enforce the letters of the law . . . but to enforce the law to exactly that extent to which the people want it enforced.

"The more opportunities there are for accidents, or rather actions which result in them, the more you will have . . . 'It is fundamental that safety and facility should be built into the highway. The street and highway should be constructed so as to make it as difficult as possible for the motorist to have an accident or to cause congestion. The control of traffic should take its cue from industry and other fields where accidents and congestion are made less frequent through design. Good design can make practically intolerable the obedience of many regulations intended to reduce accidents. This will provide a more positive control and should materially reduce the cost of patrol and enforcement."

UNKNOWN FRIENDS OF THE CRIMINAL

The anti-gun-law advocates, those unknowing friends of the criminal, gained another "victory" a few months ago.

This was achieved in New York where, on October 1st, a law was passed abolishing all gun permits except those held by householders. According to Karl T. Frederick, vice-president, National Rifle Association, this "was widely heralded as a 'sweeping blow at gangdom.' It should have been proclaimed for what it was—a sweeping blow at law and order . . .

"The object of such a law is obvious. It is to disarm everybody except the police and a few favored persons. The result is equally obvious. Everybody is disarmed except the crooks, the racketeers, the gangsters, the police and those few favored persons."

Experience in states has shown that Mr. Frederick speaks truly. No law ever devised can disarm an underworld which breaks fundamental laws as a matter of course, in the practice of its profession. No law ever devised can do more than disarm the honest, law-abiding citizen, leaving his home, place of business or person open to attack—for the benefit of the criminal.

There is a sound type of gun law—that which increases the penalty for crimes in which firearms are used. Every state should have such a law—and in every state it should be possible for the honest citizen to easily obtain and own a gun for protection. It is time we legislated against criminals, instead of honest men.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR STABILITY

During 1931 life insurance companies of the United States paid to policyholders and beneficiaries the sum of $2,600,000,000.

What this meant to the country at large staggers the imagination. It meant that in a year of depression millions of dollars upon millions of dollars went into circulation, which started businesses, financed factories, supplied capital for concerns of all kinds, and—of greatest importance—helped furnish employment to hundreds of thousands of our citizens.

President Hoover has said that "the sixty-eight million policyholders of the country with policies aggregating one-hundred-nine billion dollars, represent a major stratum in the very bed-rock of our economic life. Insurance not only protects the home and family and their social and spiritual values, but helps to meet current and future needs of expanding industry, commerce and education. I am informed that more than half, or fifty-four per cent of the people of the United States, own life insurance. The individual initiative, foresight and systematic saving which this represents makes for stability in the entire social order."

Owners of insurance policies will echo that—and particularly those owners who have watched other types of investment wither, while their insurance investment deviated not one cent in value, and is as sound today as on the day it was bought. Life insurance is one of the half-dozen great businesses which, in the best sense of the term, work in the public service.

Four Telephone Employees Awarded 1931 Vail Medal

Michigan Bell Telephone Company employees honored for action in emergencies that resulted in saving lives. 1—Everett Horton, cable splicer, Pontiac; 2—Mrs. Celia S. Schroeder, night operator, Roseville; 3—Charles G. Enos, cable splicer, Detroit; 4—Fred Collins, lineman, Detroit.

VAIL MEDAL GIVEN FOUR IN MICHIGAN

UNUSUAL ACTS OF SERVICE BY TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES TOLD IN CITATIONS

Theodore N. Vail medals to bronze will be awarded four employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company —three men and a woman for outstanding acts of service in moments of extreme emergency during 1931, it is announced by Harry Forsaker, president of the Company and chairman of the Michigan Committee of Vail Medal Awards. They are Everett E. Horton, Pontiac cable splicer; Mrs. Celia S. Schroeder, Roseville night operator and Fred Collins, lineman and Charles G. Enos, cable splicer, both of Detroit.

Each was instrumental in saving a life, and in effect in preventing an incipient conflagration and possible serious consequences in connection with the application of methods followed in recognition of the Vail Medal awards. They are known as the Vail Medal

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

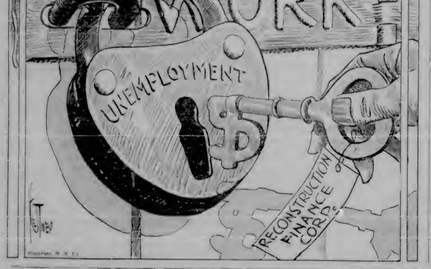
FINNEY OF THE FORCE

Next, the Sheriff's Sale

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

Felix Applies a Patent Mask

The Key



Along the Concrete

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Seaghone

The Joke's on Lizzie

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks

Here, surrounded by unbroken forests and untrod valleys, except for the Red man, the boy surveyor began his work for Lord Fairfax. Two small stubs of foundation stone, encircled by the trunks of dead trees, are the only objects that remain to mark the site of the original Greenway Court.

In this outpost of civilization, standing near the rear of Greenway Court, the boy Washington recorded the findings of his instruments in the field. The building, known to folks roundabout as "Washington's Office", remains in good condition today. To the right is the "Powder Horn" where arms and munitions were kept to repel Indian attacks.

"HOW JOHN SAVES MONEY . . . . AND LIKES IT . . . . !!"

IN hard times it's possible to make a husband save money. But it's hard to make him like it. I've found a way.

"John used to smoke at least a package of ready-made cigarettes a day. I suggested that he roll his own, when hard times came. He snorted at the idea.

"I bought a package of Target and made John try it. Now he says he won't smoke anything else, because Target is real cigarette tobacco, just like the ready-mades are. He says those forty gummed papers you get free with every package would make any dub a good cigarette roller.

"Well, John's happy, and I'm happy, and we save at least $5 a week."

AND GET THIS: The U. S. Government Tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6c. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the new extra amount. No wonder you get such value for a dime!

SAVE MONEY
ROLL YOUR OWN
SEE WHAT YOU SMOKE
Wrapped in Mistersweet Cellophane

Distd. by W. Weintraub & Company, Inc. Louisville, Kentucky Chicago

Historical

Six-pounds Hora, wine had sworn It stirred in the fine drink of animal, cause house guests exhibiting a preference for Washington and his men for a bed, by explaining its position, the said:

"This is George Washington come into the silverware."

Professor Rogers of Massachusetts Tech writes that it is extremely hard to get anyone to give anyone a specific answer to a question.

"No one can possibly tell what any important thing will look like a year from now," he explains. "I myself have been given predictions covering a period of ten years, and received a copy of Under Two Flags from a relative who told me that that book would give me a thousand and interesting pictures of the 1914 war. It was many years before I was at liberty to read the book."—Boston Post.

A Spellbinder

"Dere wuz makin a speech last night."

"Yes?" replied Mr. Meekish. "And I noticed the impression on extra audiences the former way you have met me, who says what she likes and no one is afraid of talking back."

STOP RHEUMATIC PAINS WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPERS

Relieves Almost Instantly

Good old Nature has put into red peppers a marvelous therapeutic heat that gets to the seat of pain in aches, muscles and almost instantly relieves pain in backache, lumbago and neuritis. Just warm, lumbago and neuritis. Just warm, penetrating heat—no other good-medicine chest colds, too. Now this great heat is yours in Red Pepper Rub. Soothing, warming, comforting—you just rub on, in less than 3 minutes you feel no end cause. It is called Stanbro Red Pepper Rub. Sale. Will not burn or sting. Get a small jar from your druggist.

Simple Explanation

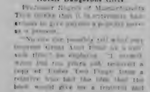
When a man says he can't save anything?

He—The neighbors are always doing something we can't afford.

A man may go well work at mimeographing an ad and only think about it, and always be thinking about.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat, so often leads to something serious—when you rub on good old Dr. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes before you can count fifty. Relief without burning or blistering. This famous oil simply draws out inflammation and pain. It is soothing, healing. For the aches and pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Neuralgia or Backache don't wait—bring on quick to ease to bring relief. Get a small bottle of Dr. Jacobs Oil from your druggist.



MENTHOLATUM
The soothing ointment dries out your cold like a magnet when rubbed on the chest—forces fumes long when inserted in stuffy nostrils. Jars and tubes 30c.
FOR COLDS

MUSTEROLE
Musterole Co., Cleveland, Ohio

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 16-1933.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

MARE MONEY selling new accessories and Gifts. Write for samples. Experience unnecessary. Albert Mills, 2153 Monmouth, Cincinnati, O.

Free Enlargement With Every Roll of Films sent us to develop and print (only 25c each). La Crosse Film Service — La Crosse, Wis.

Designs in Light

The photographic process called recognizes a background for his pictures and recently the idea of making a background by the use of electric lights has become popular. The steps from a thing are produced into the plain background through a mostly arranged piece of foliage and the effects are often very beautiful. Decorators have taken up this idea and shades are being arranged over concrete lights which throw a pretty design upon the wall or ceiling in light and shade.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

. . . THROUGH CASTORIA'S GENTLE REGULATION

The best way to prevent colic, doctors say, is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste. Also remember that a tiny baby's tender little organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently cared. That is just the time Castoria can help most. Castoria, you know, is made especially for babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation, perfectly harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. For 'twenty in two decades mothers through crying times with colicky babies and children suffering with digestive upsets, colds and fever. Keep genuine Castoria on hand, with the name

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN—CRY FOR IT

Novels Dangerous Gifts

Professor Rogers of Massachusetts Tech writes that it is extremely hard to get anyone to give anyone a specific answer to a question.

"No one can possibly tell what any important thing will look like a year from now," he explains. "I myself have been given predictions covering a period of ten years, and received a copy of Under Two Flags from a relative who told me that that book would give me a thousand and interesting pictures of the 1914 war. It was many years before I was at liberty to read the book."—Boston Post.

Now easy to get rid of Gray

Keep Hair Naturally Dark

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair wonderfully quickly restore its original shade by the wonderful, safe way which is now keeping millions of heads young looking. Benefits the hair as it darkens—it is the shade you want. As simple as brushing. Try it. Try Grandma's Sage Tea. Sold by druggists. Ask for a large bottle of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and join fellow easy directions.

Three sets always be "indicapati kilts of temperament where there be seriousness.

A first-class prize doesn't always indicate a first-class mind.

Simple Explanation

When a man says he can't save anything?

He—The neighbors are always doing something we can't afford.

A man may go well work at mimeographing an ad and only think about it, and always be thinking about.

Now easy to get rid of Gray

Keep Hair Naturally Dark

Now without using dangerous dyes you can darken gray hair wonderfully quickly restore its original shade by the wonderful, safe way which is now keeping millions of heads young looking. Benefits the hair as it darkens—it is the shade you want. As simple as brushing. Try it. Try Grandma's Sage Tea. Sold by druggists. Ask for a large bottle of WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR and join fellow easy directions.

Rheumatic Pains

Relieved this Quick Way

If stabbing pains short across your back and cripple you, rub on good old Dr. Jacobs Oil. Relief comes before you can count fifty. Relief without burning or blistering. This famous oil simply draws out inflammation and pain. It is soothing, healing. For the aches and pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Neuralgia or Backache don't wait—bring on quick to ease to bring relief. Get a small bottle of Dr. Jacobs Oil from your druggist.

Make the Weather What You Want It

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of the famous rumors attributed to that great American humorist, Mark Twain, which is familiar to most of his fans concerned the time he ate the first "Thanksgiving turkey" about the weather but nobody ever does anything about it." However true that statement may have been then, it's pretty safe to say that we have done something about it since we have learned to control the weather in our homes and offices.

Of course, away back in the early years of mankind, he learned how to make fire and with modern science we have learned to control the temperature of our homes and offices. We have learned to control humidity and we have learned how to make the air conditioners can keep us warm in winter and cool in summer. We have learned to control the cleanness and quality of the air we breathe. We have learned to control the movement of air currents.

The science in the heating engineers said any personality is efficiency of a plant owed to study is based on the fact that despite the fact that temperature and humidity are two of the most striking items a man or woman may notice about their environment, almost their effect is one which they are able to control. Most of us are content to be almost entirely unconscious.

When a city engineer starts talk about human and buildings with almost wordless, a person of public-minded mind and he starts interference. "What about carbon dioxide? How about fluctuations brought on by closed stuffy rooms? How about the fact that the human organism as when we don't get enough fresh air? You forget what fresh air is like, don't you?"

The answer is on file in the public documents of the federal government in Washington. Frightful many members of the medical profession have known for some years that fatigue, headache and nervous tension are due largely to lack of so-called fresh air germs found in the air. Many of these physicians have had the courage to be outspoken in the face of general belief and about the belief established in the public consciousness for so many years.

It is interesting to know how physiologists and scientists of engineers are regarded air and how their findings stack up with modern scientific developments. Aristotle founder of a school of thought that served the thinking of mankind for more than 1,000 years, regarded air as one of nature's four cardinal elements, the others being fire, earth and water.

Up until 1777 little was known about air. Then, Dr. Joseph Black, who was experimenting with chemicals made the discovery of a gas he called fixed air, now known as carbon dioxide. In 1775, Joseph Priestly isolated oxygen, calling it "dephlogisticated air," and then for the first time mankind began to have some exact knowledge of atmosphere.

Lavoisier, a leading student of his period, a few years later discovered carbon dioxide would extinguish flame. He concluded, therefore, that an excess amount of carbon dioxide formed by breathing would contaminate indoor air. His standing and reputation brought ready acceptance for this theory, and it was a natural step to the premise that fresh air with an excessive carbon dioxide and with an abundance of oxygen, was necessary for human well being.

A small number of scientists refused to concur in Lavoisier's theory but most scientists, engineers and medical men built their conjecture in the belief nothing was to be gained by the voicing of contrary opinions.

Among the first public reports of these early theories in 1836 of Dr. R. H. Bakers, surgeon of the United States public health service, and chief surgeon of the Department of Commerce's bureau of navigation, a division that records as much of the whole atmosphere as any department organization in the world.

In General Orders of the public health, Dr. Bakers stated: "It was observed by many investigators that it was not until the construction of the penitentiary and the labors of the celebrated philanthropist, John Howard, that any great advance was made in the knowledge of the means of preserving health in prisons. Previous to that time the mortality was frightful, and the diseases of the prisons were very serious scourges."

Dr. Bakers further declared that this was followed by attempts to relieve the evil by the introduction of more and abundant air into the buildings, and by the establishment of a system of ventilation. Experience soon showed that the most effectual means of preventing the accumulation of noxious gases was to admit a large supply of fresh air, and to cause it to enter and leave the apartments in such a manner as to produce a current sufficient to carry off the vitiated air

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

"A job for me? Gee, that's great! I'll report in the morning, sure"

The man who can be reached quickly and easily by telephone usually is the first to be called back to work.

A telephone in the home is protection, too, making it possible to summon aid instantly in case of fire, sickness or accident.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Services—
Morning Worship, 10:45.
Church School, 12:00.
Junior Church, 9:30.
Young People's Forum, 7:00.
Mid-Week Service, Thursday, 7:00
Sermon—
Morning Worship, 10:30.
Church School, 11:30.
Young People's Service, 4:30.
These services are on Eastern Standard Time.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

April 10—"Seeing the World and yourself— in a Mirror."

The Club meets this week Thursday, with Mrs. Superman, on West Hudson avenue. Pot luck refreshments at four o'clock.

The Ad Society meets next week Tuesday, with Mrs. Ed Burns on Alice street. This will be the last of the one o'clock potluck dinners, and all are urged to attend. If impossible, come for business session at two o'clock.

The W. C. T. U. meets this week Friday, with an address by Mr. Hoag, one of the High School, on "Ideals of Citizenship for Youth".

The Advocate Easter to Thanksgiving for one dollar is a great chance to get this great paper. Try it. The most able editor in the church now conducts it. And the news of our own Michigan Methodism.

The Finance Department would like to know who has envelope No. 96, for complete records, etc. Report to the pastor.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Gauch, Pastor

Our morning worship service will be held at 10:30. Bible School following at 11:45.
Young People's Service at 6 p. m.
Evening worship at 7 p. m.
Thursday evening at 7:30 will be our mid-week service with business meeting.
Next Monday even the Bible Study Class will be held at the church at 7:00.
Subject, "The Antichrist."
Ladies' Aid Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, April 10th—"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?"
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday, 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

Mr. and Mrs. Monte Withers spent a few days at Grand Rapids and other points south last week on business returning to Charlevoix Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Young of Boyne City were visitors here Tuesday.

HI-Y ACTIVITIES

The local Hi-Y group has thirteen members and they meet each Thursday morning for a breakfast, in the domestic science room of the high school. The president is Hugh Parker, and he appoints two boys, at each meeting to be the cooks for the next meeting. These have to come as early as six o'clock, while the others are supposed to arrive about six forty-five.

Not all the boys come each time, but there were twelve out at the last meeting. Hugh Parker and Devere Bird were the cooks. There are interesting plans for a large attendance at Petoskey, April 23, being the convention of the Northern District of the State Hi-Y work. Rev. W. W. Hurd is the "leader" of the local group and is chairman of a committee, including Devere Bird, John Winder, and G. F. Bulk, to secure registrations, in advance, for the Petoskey group. The fee is but seventy-five cents and the program at these conventions is of a high order and very much worth while.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION AT EAST JORDAN APR. 13

The Charlevoix County Republican convention will be held at East Jordan High School, Wednesday, April 13, at 10 o'clock Eastern Standard Time.

Delegates shall be the same persons who were chosen as delegates to the county convention held at Boyne City by the Republican party in the spring of 1931. Report to your committee Chairman of your ward or township if you are unable to attend.

Herman G. Meyer, chairman.
Kit Clarke, Secretary.
Lola Simmons, Treasurer.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

By a recent action of members of the Carpenters and Joiners Union Charlevoix local No. 797 reduced their wage scale 25 per cent below previous rates. Hereinfore $1.00 per hour was the scale rate. Hereafter and until further notice the rate will be 75 cents per hour. 511

Miss Pearl Bigge, principal at the County Normal goes to Ypsilanti today where she spends the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cross motored to the south part of the state last Sunday, where they visit relatives and friends at and around Benton Harbor for some days.

Captain and Mrs. D. E. Wilbur returned to Charlevoix Saturday after spending some months with their daughter Mrs. Wilbur Cline at Beverly and son A. A. Wilbur in Chicago.

Miss Noreene Moran left Saturday for Traverse City where she will be engaged in work with the Western Union for a few weeks.

Mr. H. D. Dean, a former superintendent of the local government fish hatchery, now of Northville, was a Charlevoix visitor one or two days recently.

Miss Lenora Smith returned to her student work at Kalamazoo Sunday, following a few days visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Swain Smith.

A regular meeting of Lady Maccabees will be held at I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday evening, April 12th.

LIONEL ATWILL ENACTS ROLE HE MADE FAMOUS ON BROADWAY

Theatrical producers have been known to make great sacrifices in order to sell their plays to the motion pictures, and conversely, movie producers have been known in order to score spirited bidding for a stage production, particularly when that production has in the "name" class.

A most unusual example of this been dealer to buy and sell was furnished when the Fox Film Corporation was dickering with the producers of the Broadway hit, "The Silent Witness," which comes in talking picture form to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

After witnessing the stage production several times the Fox officials made a fabulous offer for the screen rights which the stage producer was ready to accept when a condition was sprung. The actor who was playing the leading role in the Broadway production was the well known stage star, Lionel Atwill, and the movie people decided that he was the only player who could give the role the necessary life and vitality on the screen.

The stage producer was inclined to demur at first. The show was soon to go on tour and he wanted Mr. Atwill to play the lead in the road show. But when the demand of the Fox officials became insistent Mr. Atwill was called into the conference and when he expressed a desire to have his role on the screen the wise producer decided to entrust the star show role to the star's wider study.

Mr. Atwill's role is that of Sir Austin Hayward, an indolent father who assumes the responsibility for a murder of his daughter and who finally has committed to find himself accused in a web of circumstantial evidence that extraordinary and ingenious to spoil the realm of all possibility. His portrayal of the role on the screen is said by those who have seen the film and those who know him and those who know his screen dramatic talents to stage performance of the same part.

The 100th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does the spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to conquer the forces of difficult situations now used by his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On the 100th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Bohnsack, Pres., A. H. Crippen, Vice Pres., H. A. Craig, Vice Pres., A. L. Livingston, Cashier, G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

THAT "WEIGHT-LIFTER"

Those owners of assessable taxes who feel no extra financial burden during "tax time" are few indeed, but those men who have discovered a powerful "tax weightlifter" in a Savings Account or Savings Certificate that at any reality puts the dollar to work is a TAX PAYMENT PUND.

Why not begin now to prepare for YOUR next year's taxes?

1855 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST LIVING CORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge, Robert Bridge, L. S. See, John J. Reen, Ernest J. Hitter, Joseph M. Foster, Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, APRIL 9, 10
Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell in
"DELICIOUS"

With El Brendel, Lawrence O'Sullivan.
At their happiest — Peppiest — and gayest? They bring you a new love thrill and lots of laughs in this romance of a wee wimoine lassie who captivates the season's catch from under all eyes and arms.

Added Attraction, "Two Cartoons"

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 14
"Silent Witness"

With Lionel Atwill, Gretu Nissen, Helen Mack, Wilden Heythum, Brunwell Fletcher.

He dared not speak though headlines screamed Guilty. Why did music end the hectic love-life of this gorgeous blonde? Why did her young lover's father forbid him to talk? Why did the boy consent to hide what he knew?

Added Attractions, Comedy, "Mys. Mystery"

NOTE — There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

An indication of spring—Moses Cooper killed a snake last week measuring 52 inches long.

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.
Cherryvale Hatchery, E. Jordan
Phone 116 F 2 4416

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
8tf S. T. Coker, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy 40 acres. 20 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit, etc. on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description W ½ of SW ¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 11tf

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" — "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." — "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 62 — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1932 — Number 51

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB ACTIVE

REARING POND PROJECT TO GET UNDER WAY AT ONCE

An unusually interesting meeting of the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club was held in the K. P. hall last Monday evening. Although the attendance was not what it should be considering the activities of the organization, the interest shown by those present was encouraging.

Arrangements were made to start on the long proposed and much discussed rearing pond which is to be for the purpose of improving the fishing in Lake Charlevoix, especially as with regard to the "steelhead" for which this lake has been so famous.

For the convenience of sportsmen coming into this vicinity for the purpose of fishing it was decided to establish a list of guides to be registered with the local Sportsmen's Club. To carry out this project it is requested that those considering themselves able to qualify for this occupation to register with the secretary, Charles Wood.

Those applicants meeting with the requirements will be given credentials to show that they are registered and will be notified when a guide is required in their particular locality.

An invitation is to be extended to the recently reorganized East Jordan Sportsmen's Club to meet with the local club at their next meeting, to enable the two organizations to cooperate in the furtherance of the various activities in which the clubs are interested. Sportsmen from the Bayou City region are also invited to be present at this meeting which will be held on the second Monday in May.

CLUB LEADERS AND MEMBERS HOLD IMPORTANT MEET

Plans Made For Largest Achievement Day Ever Held in County

Fully 35 club leaders, club members and club boosters were present at a meeting held in the Boyne City gymnasium last Monday night. A nice little banquet was enjoyed at 6:30 fast time after which, problems pertaining to the Achievement Day to be held a Charlevoix on April 29 were discussed.

Plans were made for the largest Achievement Day ever held in the county. This year the club Achievement Day will be held in connection with the May Health Day as without a doubt, it will be a pleasing event. A most interesting program is being developed which will include a basket craft demonstration, health play by one of our hot lunch groups, the long anticipated Style Revue and the awarding of certificates by Mr. A. G. Kettunen, State Club Leader to all deserving club members.

After this discussion the group was divided into two sections. The group interested in the clothing project met with Miss McCarty, head of the Domestic Science Department and the other met with Mr. Krause, Manual Training Department Head. Some very helpful advice and suggestions were given to the club leaders and club members which should help in making a success of the club program in the county. Such meetings as this make our club program more valuable and go a long way toward improving the quality of work being done throughout the county. When you see the exhibition, you will wonder how those boys and girls with no lack of materials and proper equipment have been able to make the wonderful articles displayed. Mark the date of April 29 down on your calendar for you surely will not want to miss this big event.

B. C. Mellenamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

MISSIONARY MEETING WEDNESDAY EVENING

The April meeting of the Missionary Society of the Congregational Church will be held next Wednesday evening, the 20th.

The meeting will begin with a cooperative supper at 6:30 at the church followed by a devotional service led by Mrs. Ada Shockley. For the remainder of the program there will be pictures showing the work of Congregationalism at home and abroad. Mrs. G. R. Parker, Mrs. B. Saltonstall and Mrs. W. H. Miller in charge.

REXALL ONE CENT SALE

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, April 14, 15, 16. Buy advertised articles. One like article for 1 cent additional. CENTRAL DRUG STORE

MR. A. RIDER AND HUGH PARKER RETURN FROM CONFERENCE

Mr. A. Rider and Hugh Parker returned from the Music Supervisors National Conference held in Chicago, Ill., Saturday afternoon.

It is customary at these gatherings to have what is known as the National High School Orchestra and National High School Chorus. After a week of rehearsals the conference closed with a concert, the program being made up of numbers from the Orchestra and Chorus. Fully 5,000 people to enjoy this concert.

Mr. Rider was interested in the Music Supervisors conference while Hugh was a member of the Orchestra. some have thought he was in a contest. That is not the case. Indeed there is a try out which is competitive. This tryout is only to find the best or place one should qualify in his or her division in this tryout Hugh received second chair or place in his division. There were seventeen clarinets. Of this number four are selected as soloists and Hugh was selected as one of those four.

A splendid time is reported by those young men. Although the time is given in full from 8:00 a. m. to 10 p. m. the contacts are makes thoroughly repaid. Hugh was the only clarinet player from Michigan.

SUPERVISORS FOR ENSUING TERM

ELECTED RECENTLY AT THE GENERAL ELECTION

The following, with the exception of Peaine township in which a vacant at now in progress, is a list of supervisors elected at the general election, together with the township or ward represented by them for the ensuing term.

The Peaine contest will probably be settled within the next few days by the supervisors themselves, and unless the subject becomes a higher court proceeding Peaine township will be credited with a newly elected supervisor.

Bay township, Charles M. Smith.
Charlevoix, Ray Bay, Wm. J. Pearson, Chandler two, Marion Wood.
Charlevoix twp., William H. Cook.
Evangeline twp., Libby Gardner.
Eveline twp., William Saunderson.
Hayes twp., A. G. Tillotson; Hudson twp., Bert Woodward; Marion twp., George Maggani; Melrose twp., Dan Buckley; Norwood twp., Orton Van Dusen; St. James twp., James H. Slaughter; South Arm twp., Elmer Hott; Wilson twp., Otto D. Smith.
Boyne City, 1st ward, Agnes Lurch; Boyne City 2nd ward, Elmer Tindall; Boyne City, 3rd ward, John Parker, Boyne City, 4th ward, Roy Hamm.
Charlevoix, 1st ward, Harry A. Craig, Charlevoix, 2nd ward, Frank Partridge, Charlevoix 3rd ward, Wm. S. Parmelee.
East Jordan, 1st ward, William F. Bashaw, East Jordan, 2nd ward, W. R. Barnett, East Jordan, 3rd ward, John J. Porter.

LEGION AUXILIARY ENTERTAINS AT TEA

The Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion gave a tea at the home of Mrs. Albert Rehfus on Friday afternoon.

The program included some interesting readings by Mrs. Dan Cantner, Mrs. Albert Rehfus and Mrs. Harlin Meltham. Miss Erma Carey sang three selections which were very much enjoyed.

An interesting part of the program had to be posed pictures of the cast of characters in a playlet, Mrs. Clarence Meggison, was detailed at home with the measles.

Delightful refreshments were served by the ladies assisted by Mrs. Harlin McGhan.

LOCAL COUPLE ARE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

A quiet wedding took place in the office of the church Saturday evening April 9th, Mr. Alfred Gill and Miss La Rue Higman, popular young people of Charlevoix, were united in marriage. Rev. G. R. Parker read a single ring service.

The young couple was attended by Marcus Smith and Miss Bonita Higman, sister of the bride, both of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gill are planning to make their home in the city.

CHARLIE AND MARIAN MEET AGAIN ON SCREEN AFTER MANY YEARS

Farrell And Miss Nixon, "After To-Morrow" Story Broke Up Together

One of the first pictures that Charles Farrell ever played in was Mary Pickford's silent photoplay, "Rosita." Though he appeared in only one scene it was a big role for Charlie for it was the first named screen character that he ever impersonated. Had he not been so nervous as he later admitted he was, or so blessed upon his own role, he might, with a bright, youthful, cheerful, sun-haired, brown-eyed girl who was also making her first film appearance in the picture have made Charlie Nicholson a try out which is competitive. This tryout is only to find the best or place one should qualify in his or her division in this tryout Hugh received second chair or place in his division. There were seventeen clarinets. Of this number four are selected as soloists and Hugh was selected as one of those four.

If these two unknown youngsters had had the power to lift the veil on time, or a crystal ball with which they could have peered into the future, they could have looked ahead several years and seen themselves, as screen favorites, co-starred in the Fox dramatic romance "After To-morrow." Frank Borzage's production which opens Wednesday at the Palace Theatre.

But they were only human, and being one scene together for a long hard road ahead of them. This road, moreover, proved much shorter and easier than either of them contemplated. It was not long after that Farrell was cast in Frank Borzage's Fox picture, "The Heaven," opposite Janet Gaynor and with that picture came stardom. Miss Nixon's fat standing roles were with Tom Mix in that actor's western dramas. Her first starring picture was "Spanglish". Since the advent of talking pictures she has been prominently cast in "The Rainbow Man", "Say It With Flowers" with John Barrymore, "Young Nowhere," "Show of Shows" and her recent Fox success, "Charlie Chan's Chance."

"After Tomorrow" as the first picture Farrell and Miss Nixon have made together since they first appeared together in "Rosita." With these two young stars in the picture are such well known favorites as Minna Gombell, William Collier, Sr., Sara Lane, William Pawley, Ferdinand Munier, and Josephine Hill, who comes from the Broadway stage to make her debut in the picture. The film is based on John Godfrey's and Hugh Stanger's stage success.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR CHARLES STANLEY WIDDIFIELD

Death Resulted From Accident Occuring in Chicago Last Week

Funeral services for Charles Stanley Widdifield, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Widdifield, were held at the Widdifield residence on Upright Street, on Thursday, April 7, one day before his thirty-fifth birthday. The service was conducted by Rev. W. H. Hanch.

Stanley died on Tuesday, April 6 at 7:20 a. m. at the Mercy Hospital in Chicago, the result of injuries sustained in an accident at the packing plant of Armour and Company, where he had been a member of their Industrial Engineering department for the past eight years. This accident happened at 11:30 a. m. on Monday while he was showing a prominent banker through the plant. At his bedside at the time of his death were his brothers, R. Kenneth and Albert E. Widdifield, who reside in Chicago. A memorial service was held in the Armour Time Office where Stanley was engaged, Wednesday morning.

Charles Stanley Widdifield was born on April 8, 1897. He attended the public schools in Charlevoix and later entered Ferris Institute at Big Rapids, Mich., where he completed a business education. Since that time he had been engaged in business in Detroit and Chicago. He was not married.

The body was accompanied to Charlevoix by Mrs. H. W. Widdifield and her sons. The deceased is survived by those persons and his father Harry W. Widdifield. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Attending the funeral from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rongsgger and son, Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harris and Miss Edith Lamereaux of Boyne City.

Clifford Gregory who met with serious injuries when he fell from a tree to the ground, a distance of forty feet, several days ago, since which he has been in the local hospital, is reported as showing some improvement, while every indication now points toward complete recovery from the injuries sustained.

MRS. J. HULL DIES SUNDAY

Was Resident of Charlevoix For Forty-Three Years.

Funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Susan McCollin Hull, wife of Mr. John B. Hull, which was held at the residence of her son Emerson G. Hull on Upright Avenue, with Rev. L. Grassel Parker officiating.

Mrs. Hull's maiden name was Miss Susan McCollin. She was a native of the state of New York and was born at Hamilton, September 22, 1864, therefore at the time of her death is her 68th year.

She came from New York to Charlevoix about 46 years ago in 1886 and on September 22, 1887, was united in marriage with Mr. John H. Hull by whom she is survived, the son Emerson G. Hull before mentioned and four grandchildren, Marguerite, Richard, John Mac and Jean Hull, also by two brothers, Samuel G. and Milton H. McClellen.

Mrs. Hull's death followed an illness extending over a continuous period of more than twenty-one years during which time her condition has been serious and frequently critical, thus her passing was not wholly unexpected by family members and friends.

EASTERN TIME TO BE ADOPTED

Council Action To Become Effective Saturday at Midnight

Under a resolution passed by the city council at their meeting held Monday evening Charlevoix for the first time in history, will adopt Eastern Standard Time falling in line with the rest of the state on the time proposition, thereby conforming with the time under which courts and county business has been conducted during recent months and for a long er period in industrial centers throughout the state.

Clocks, many of them will be "spoked" ahead one hour at midnight Saturday April 16th by local citizens who follow the resolution passed by the city council at their last meeting.

LEGION TO GET FLOUR FOR NEEDY

ARRANGEMENTS TO BE MADE AT TRI-POST MEETING

Through a decision reached by officials and members of the County Red Cross organization at a meeting held Wednesday night the distribution of flour to needy in Charlevoix County will be made under the direction of the American Legion.

Arrangements for this will be made at the Tri-Post meeting of the American Legion at a meeting scheduled for Monday night, April 18, at East Jordan.

Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan were represented in the meeting which was held at the County Bank in Charlevoix.

DELEGATES AT CO. CONVENTION

HELD AT EAST JORDAN WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13TH

The following Charlevoix persons were at East Jordan Wednesday, where they attended a Republican County Convention, called for the purpose of electing delegates to a District Convention to be held at Sault Ste. Marie and also delegates to attend a state convention at Grand Rapids.

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, Mrs. A. C. Belding, Mrs. James Simmons, Mrs. Laura Courser, Mrs. L. E. Benton, Mrs. Ella Usher, Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Palmer, Jr., and Mrs. F. F. McMillan, Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Wm. Joseph Flanders, William E. Parmelee, Captain Frank Partridge, Frank F. Bird, Fenton B. Bulow, Jess Smith.

Captain and Mrs. M. J. Bonner, visitor in Grand Rapids for the past few months, returned to their home here Tuesday.

REXALL ONE CENT SALE

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, April 14, 15, 16. Buy advertised articles. One like article for 1 cent additional. CENTRAL DRUG STORE

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE" SCREENED FOR FIRST TIME

Frederick March in Title Role in Robert Louis Stevenson's Mystery Thriller.

For forty-four years Robert Louis Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has been the leading mystery thriller of the stage, with its awesome struggles between the beautiful and hideous in a man's soul.

Today, after two generations of use in thrilling audiences, it is now on the talking screen for the first time with Frederic March in the title role. Paramount's vivid dramatization of this classic is the feature picture at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Under the direction of Rouben Mamoulian, director of "City Streets," March will lead his own personality to the Jekyll - Hyde role, although following the examples laid down by Richard Mansfield in first securing the stage part and of John Barrymore in the first film portrayal.

As a play, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has attained more success, writes a famous critic, than the original Stevenson story. The reason for this, says the critic, is due to the fact that the theme presents unlimited possibilities for an actor and he seems seeing the transitions from Hyde to Jekyll are more realistic than merely reading of them.

Since Mansfield first stepped upon the stage as Jekyll and Hyde on May 9, 1887, the play has been a popular and much-used vehicle.

The great actor was responsible for the first dramatization of the Stevenson story, which was written as a play at Mansfield's request by Thomas Russell Sullivan.

Mansfield has left a vivid description of his feelings on the night when he first presented the play in Boston. He wrote: "That night in the second act where, as Hyde, I grasped the potion, swallowed it, writhed in the awful agony of transformation and rose pale and erect, the visualized embodiment of Jekyll—an agon of apprehension seized me and I endured a lifetime in the silence in which the curtain fell. In another instant I realized that silence was a tribute of awe and terror, inspired by the reality of the scene. For when the curtain arose only a few audible roar which was the sweetest sound I ever heard in my life, and I breathed again."

HOUSEHOLD FURNISHING PROJECT LEADERS HOLD THEIR FOURTH LESSON

Fine Display of Rugs One of The Features of the Evening

Thirteen groups were represented at the Household Furnishing project meeting held in Boyne City on last week Wednesday. Miss Gertrude Reis, Specialist from Michigan State College met with the 29 leaders and gave them the instructions for the Fourth and last lesson.

One of the most pleasing features of the meeting was the large display of rugs made by the above groups in the county. Fully 50 rugs were exhibited and carefully commented upon by Miss Reis in regard to the color schemes, the merging of colors and the workmanship. The making of rugs seems to have been the most attractive feature of this project and judging from the opinion expressed by the leaders, there will be at least 200 rugs exhibited when the Achievement Day takes place some time the first week in May.

All committees necessary in arranging for the Achievement Day were appointed by Mrs. Ada Kinglinger, County chairman in conference with Miss Reis and the county agent. Great plans are being formulated for the exhibition Fully 200 ladies will finish the project.

Don't forget that the entire public is cordially invited to attend the Achievement Day and that you will be deeply interested in seeing how rugs that have been made by the ladies enrolled in the project. You will hardly think it possible that such wonderful rugs could be made from burlap, overalls and other similar materials. Watch the paper for further announcements in regard to the Achievement Day Plans.

B. C. Mellenamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

Lizzie Bourisseau, for some months past finding out of Lindington, returned home Monday and for the summer months at least, will remain here.

Mrs. H. S. Harsha, for some months past a District visitor returned to Charlevoix Thursday.

CHARLES DICKENS CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet given by the members of the Charles Dickens club with their husbands as guests was held Tuesday evening. The kitchen and dining room facilities of the Congregational church were secured for the occasion to unofficially accommodate the assembly.

A welcome three course dinner was served to the guests seated around the long tables which were beautifully decorated with dainty favors and taper candles carried out in the club colors, blue and yellow. Huge clusters of snapdragons and pussy willows completed the decorations.

Preceding the banquet a greeting was extended by the president, Mrs. Floyd Fenstermaker, to those present, followed by the singing of a community song with words suited to the occasion. Following the banquet the entire audience was entertained with a novel program prepared by the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Clara Webster. Musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. Carleton Dean, piano, and Mrs. Dan Smith, violinist.

Ladies of the Church of God will offer a line of baked goods and basket goods for sale at the salesroom of the Staley Hardware Co., Saturday April 16.

CO. CONVENTION ELECTS DELEGATES

FOR STATE AND CONVENTION TO BE HELD

Dr. J. F. McMillan was selected temporary chairman and William Vought temporary secretary of the County Republican Convention held at East Jordan yesterday.

The committee on resolutions immediately following the organization, consisting of Mrs. Hazel McMillen, Charlevoix, Charles Naylor, Boyne City, Andrew Struthers, Hayes Twp., John J. Porter, East Jordan, Mrs. G. C. Conkle, Boyne City, Mrs. Herman G. Meyer, chairman of the Republican County Committee for some time past re-elected as an aspirant for legislative honors, announced his candidacy to succeed to the position now held by Hon. Louis S. Anderson in this, the Charlevoix-Leelanau legislative district.

LEGION BALLOTS ON BACK PAY

FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS OF STATE HEADQUARTERS

Forty-two members were present Tuesday evening, at a regular meeting of Irwin T. Simpson Post No. 434 American Legion, held in their hall on East Garfield Avenue. Following the meeting a special call to the membership to be present was sent out at the direction of the State Department of the Legion for the purpose of balloting on the question of whether or not the government adjusted compensation should be paid. At the national convention, at Detroit a majority of Michigan delegates went on record as in favor of favoring the compensation paid and immediate demonstration has been expressed in Legion circles throughout the state, as to the wisdom of this action in local states and public places.

Among other projects taken up on Tuesday evening was the plan to have State Commander Rodgers visit a regular county meeting of the Legion at Charlevoix on the evening of Saturday, May 14th. If he can be present, an effort will be made to secure a ball large enough to admit the public to hear Commander Rodgers on that evening. Other prominent Legion speakers may also be present. A traffic safety campaign in Charlevoix conducted by the local post in cooperation with the city officials is another of the plans for this summer's activities.

The next meeting of the Lower Eleventh District will be held at Charlevoix on Sunday, May 15, 1932. In the meantime county Legionnaires should not forget the 7:30 post meeting on April 18th, at East Jordan.

It seems that in years past the "Sentinel" has failed to make any uses for recently Mr. Prescott Adams while making alterations on the building on Park Avenue, found that Sentinels had been used as building paper, the dates of which were 1903 and 1904.

Emil Plechner received a message Wednesday asking him to report at Camp Custer for duty with the Department of Conservation skip Patrol No. 1, now ready to re-enter upon her regular activities on the Great Lakes.

VETERAN BUREAU GROWING RAPIDLY

Billion a Year Concern, With Costs Mounting.

Washington.—Removal suitable for the postage of lamenting preceding World war veterans to the rolls and assisting 30 per cent of the value of their bonus immunity certificates served to focus attention on the tremendous growth in recent years of the funds expended by the soldiers' relations administration.

Testimony developed before the house appropriations committee by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, disclosed that the veterans' administration is now a billion dollars a year concern with expenditures still growing. He figures revealed that in 1920 the veterans' administrator expected to expend the sum of a billion dollars for the administration of veterans matters pertaining to hospitalizing, rehabilitating, vocational training, transportation and other activities.

During the past twelve years the independent establishment handling veterans' affairs has expended all told and bounds will come it is estimated it will take about fifteen years more to care for the remnants of the hundreds of thousands of veterans now receiving and from the government in one form or another. During the next five years the peak load will be carried by veterans of service in the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the Boxer uprising.

Build New Hospitals.

While the administration is due for appropriations, which it is thought amount to a billion dollars, hospitals will be built, new beds provided, appropriations for the extension and treatment of some kind, of needs for some veterans' relief, and for many other veterans on losing certificates compensation, pensions, vocational and service and to the army of emergency.

In recent legislation is pended power ting the veterans to seek the relief bureau of their compensation certificates before the billion dollars held in trust by the state which the veterans administration would become in the next few years.

The big items in the veterans' administration bill as requested for 1933 by General Hines are:

Administration, medical, hospital and domiciliary services, $377,000,000.

Army and navy pensions, $228,000,000.

Adjusted service certificate fund, $150,000,000.

Military and naval service, $115,000,000.

In the budget message President Hoover asked $1,000,000,000 for veterans' administration affairs appropriations—two-fourth of the entire bill for that purpose.

Of this sum $1,000,000 was for use in making loans to veterans on their bonus certificates. This loans appropriation committee can this figure in $900,000,000. Virtually no cut was made in all branches on the $1000,000 reduction was effected by cutting down the figure for bonus payments with the money amount adjusted. General Hines can go to congress to get this sum, if it is needed, by a deficiency bill next December.

As of December 31, 1931, 3,813,144 veterans were receiving compensation for disability incurred in, resulting from or aggravated in military service during the World war. Compensation was also being paid to the dependents of 97,537 veterans whose death occurred in, or resulted from service in the World war. The amount of compensation payments dependent upon the degree of disability, ranges from $8 per month for a temporary partial disability to $360 per month for what is known as a double permanent and total disability.

Current fiscal will the number of service pensioners will be reduced by 170,000 more than the increased by 132,000 since June 30, 1931.

A big increase in the number of those receiving money for disability resulting from other than military and naval service was recorded last year.

Shoe Repair Champ

Lambeth, England.—Mr. C. Fox, hotel proprietor by the hounds, swam the Solent and then bolted into a private house, from which he emerged in fine fettle.

This shoe repair scene of Attorney Ellis in Reno, Nevada, was filled with humor the court was after the completion of a lengthy term. You know announcing that Andrew, or Elmer, as his friends know him, had been chosen assistant attorney general of the United States. Both Andrew and Elmer are natives of Illinois, but have chosen separate professions. Both graduated admitted to the bar in the same year, and started a young child. The latter school boy might never have been in the seventh heaven if he could own a shoe shop, but when father pulled the data have a sawpy high-powered motor car—even will speed along at 75 miles an hour. It matters parents wish to choose some day a successful for their children or to feel something now and starting to give them.

The fact is, time not to long for the "good old days". There were many things in our years which were crude and unpleasant, but our amusements were simple and rare enough to be appreciated when they came. There were the Fourth of July celebration in the summer, and the annual visit of the circus in the fall, and these two events were looked forward to with the keenest interest, and prepared for as well. The old buggy was washed up, and the harness greased and the horses groomed to a high polish. We saved what little money we could put our hands on, made a date with the prettiest girl available and set out to have a glorious time. The anticipation then and the two events in retrospect served us for six months at least.

In winter there were occasional parties, or dances at a neighbor's house.

I noticed in the account of a recent social affair held in a nearby city that the farmer presented to each guest at the dinner which followed the dance were Persian rats and cockatoos.

Our young people must be thrilled and amused at any rate.

© 1931 Western Newspaper Union.

CATS AND CANARIES

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It takes a good deal to give a young person a bath today. They are so hot in daily open air recreation that it is only the strong and the extreme that will submit to the ordeal with any degree of interest. Once a week, or fortnight at the most, is the limit for a child of average strength. Indeed, the modern tendency is to regard the bath as a luxury rather than a necessity.

Not so many years ago, a visit to the family bathroom was a matter of much interest to the children. Then the water was turned on, and the various faucets and spouts were tried out. The process of filling the tub was watched with fascination. Then came the delightful splashing and the final emptying of the tub. Bathing was a real pleasure.

Now the bathroom is a place to be shunned as much as possible. Where the water is turned on, it is only to wash hands and face. Even the tub is used for other purposes than bathing. Many a bathroom has been converted into a kitchenette, a storage room for trunks, or a den for father.

Of course, there are still children who like to bathe, but they are the exceptions. Most children have to be driven to the bathroom, and they emerge from it with the greatest reluctance.

Why this change? Why should children who formerly enjoyed bathing now dislike it? Is it because they are more sensitive to cold? Is it because they are more self-conscious? Is it because they are more interested in other things? Is it because they are more indolent? Is it because they are more afraid of germs? Is it because they are more afraid of water? Is it because they are more afraid of soap? Is it because they are more afraid of towels? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathtub? Is it because they are more afraid of the faucets? Is it because they are more afraid of the spouts? Is it because they are more afraid of the water pressure? Is it because they are more afraid of the drain? Is it because they are more afraid of the plug? Is it because they are more afraid of the chain? Is it because they are more afraid of the overflow? Is it because they are more afraid of the soap dish? Is it because they are more afraid of the towel rack? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom mirror? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom scales? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom cabinet? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom floor? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom walls? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom ceiling? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom window? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom door? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom key? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom lock? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom hinges? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom sill? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom floor? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom rug? Is it because they are more afraid of the bathroom mat

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1369, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter

THE TAX BURDEN

Said the Milwaukee Journal recently:

James G. Kimberly, of the Neenah Paper Co. and the Kimberly-Clark Co., is moving his legal residence from Neenah to Washington, D. C., because of Wisconsin taxes. Mr. Kimberly has made no parade of this. But, when asked why he was leaving Wisconsin, he said something very pointed and enlightening: 'For years the Wisconsin legislature has been mounting taxes. They are aimed particularly at the wealthy. I have decided to move to Washington because there is not the same spirit of "soak the rich there."

"All right," the first answer is. "If a man does not like his share of the expense of our government, let him go." But that is no fair criticism here. And it doesn't help Wisconsin any to dismiss this unpleasant news as of no account. Mr. Kimberly did not leave when his taxes were made higher than elsewhere. He did not leave until there came the proposal to raise taxes far above those of other states. Not until the governor of the state made it clear that his purpose is not merely to raise enough taxes, but to redistribute wealth."

There is a great deal of self delusion among some statements on the question of "soaking the rich." Of course the wealthy ought to be willing to pay their fair share of the expense of government but those who seem to think that it is possible to raise limitless sums of money by hanging taxes on to the wealthy are doomed to disillusionment. In the first place, the number of rich in the United States has declined considerably in the past three years—more especially the number of those who thought they were rich. And in the second place taxes are not always paid by those against whom they are assessed. Take any big industry for example. It is easy to raise the taxes on that industry, but who pays the taxes? Why in the final analysis it is the fellow who buys the product of the factory, and that is poor old Mr. Consumer. He pays it in a higher price for the product, and in lessened employment and business stagnation when the tax burden becomes too great.

The state or community which lowers its tax burden during the next few years by careful management of its affairs is going to benefit by the influx of wealth and population it will get. The people are becoming tax conscious and there will be a great many more examples like the one cited above by the Milwaukee paper unless our states and smaller communities do something in the way of trimming budgets and lowering taxes. It is impossible to shift the tax burden on to Santa Claus no matter how alluring the scheme may look on paper

A MILE OF RAILWAY

A recent editorial in "Railway Age" asks: "Would you like to own a mile of railway?" It then shows the income taxe report the proud owner of this average mile would file.

His investment in property in the mile of line would have amounted to $110,000 in 1931, as compared with $106,000 in 1929 and $108,500 in 1930. The transportation of freight would have produced $13,419 in 1931—and $19,909 in 1929, and $16,833 in 1930. Passenger traffic would have brought $1,766 in 1931, $5,601 in 1929, and $3,006 in 1930. Combined with revenue from other sources, such as the mails, his gross revenues would have amounted to $17,445 in 1931, and $26,204 in 1929, and $22,018 in 1930.

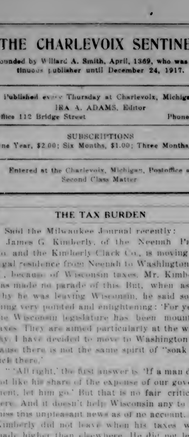
Expenses for maintenance of roadway, buildings, equipment and so on, would have been $13,437 in 1931, as compared with $18,791 in 1929 and $16,385 in 1930. He would still have to pay taxes and rentals for equipment and jointly used facilities. These items would have reached a total of $1,811 for 1931, $1,987 for 1930 and $2,162 for 1929.

Thus, our owner's net return on an investment well in excess of $100,000, would have been $2,187 in 1931, $5,531 in 1929 and $3,646 in 1930 —or 1.98 per cent, 4.95 per cent and 3.36 per cent, respectively.

Even in years of intense, inflated prosperity the roads were unable to earn a return of as much as five per cent—and now their profits have dropped to the vanishing point. Of all great industries, the rails are in the most precarious position—and no industry is more necessary to industrial development and the public welfare. That is worth thinking over.

THE INSURANCE SALESMAN'S NEW ERA

Jokes concerning the life insurance salesman are probably as old as the business itself. It became a tradition that a person should make every effort, short of leaping from a window, to avoid him when he presented himself at the home or office.



But times change and this tradition seems to be changing with them. We have found out that the life insurance salesman has something good to sell. He offers us not only protection for ourselves or our dependents, but a first-class, proven investment, whose value remains the same in spite of the wizening process that has been going on among investments of other kinds.

Most any stock-and-bond salesman, on the other hand, was once an honored visitor anywhere. In the dear dead days of 1928 we used to spend hours with him, fascinated by his wares. It would have been an effort for him to avoid selling. Though he may have had plenty of good sound securities to offer, we usually wanted him to tell us only of glamorous speculations. But now, as a former securities salesman recently said, he envies his lowly brother, the insurance agent, who doesn't have to spend his time crossing streets in order to get out of sight of former customers!

MORE UNFAIR CLASS TAXATION

Some nationally organized sportsmen's associations are joining in a request that Congress finance the rehabilitation of water fowl breeding grounds through the imposition of a special tax of one cent a shell on shotgun ammunition.

Congress should reject this plan; not because there isn't real need for the restoration of the duck population, nor because there is any reason why duck shooters themselves should not pay the bill. Congress should reject this plan because of its palpable unfairness to men and boys who buy shotgun ammunition for purposes other than the shooting of ducks, and because of the likelihood of serious fraud and scandal if an attempt is made to exclude these other buyers through a system of refunds.

The proposed act contemplates such refunds in the case of trap shooters and skeet shooters.

Are its authors aware of the magnitude of gasoline tax frauds and evasions now practised in numerous states in the collection of refunds on gas purportedly used elsewhere than on highways?

And what about the fellow who burns a lot of ammunition in a year on vermin and on game other than ducks, but who dwells in a region where the duck shooting is negligible? Must he be taxed to pay for some other man's water fowl hunting?

Because of the shortened season on water fowl, far more shells were fired at Minnesota pheasants in 1931 than at Minnesota ducks. In many states in the South, quail shooting is far more important sport than duck shooting. Some hundreds of thousands of men and boys in regions that are far from the main duck routes shoot chiefly at rabbits. Surely it would be neither just nor reasonable to promote duck resources at the expense of the farm boy . . . or . . . the sportsman shooting almost exclusively at upland game.—From the Minneapolis Journal.

ONE BIG COOPERATIVE

The dairymen of the New York Milk Shed are setting an example that should be observed by farmers everywhere.

Delegates from nearly every county of the Milk Shed recently met in Syracuse and went on record as favoring one big cooperative association, and recommended that the Dairymen's League, a pioneer in its field, be the one.

Then they adopted a number of resolutions embracing the fundamentals necessary to a successful cooperative. These included: A comprehensive financing plan, ability to control surplus at its source, employing a classified price plan for the sale of milk and its products, etc.

These dairymen are taking the bit in their teeth, and doing the things that will pull the farmer out of the economic mire. A strong, loyally supported cooperative is essential to agricultural progress. There is no room for division of effort, or internal discord. It is up to every farmer to work for the good of all, if only for selfish reasons. In New York the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association has done an immensely valuable work ever since its inception—and the scope and worth of that work will be greatly increased if the recommendations of the delegates are scrupulously followed by the farmers whose interest they have at heart.

FACTS — NOT THEORIES

Advocates of anti-pistol laws, in their zeal to suppress crime, commonly fail to look facts in the face.

There is no good reason for believing that a criminal class which lives by breaking laws, would suddenly see the light and obey a law against possession of one of the tools of its trade. There is good reason for believing, however, that the result would be that the criminals would go on as before, completely armed, and that law-abiding citizens only would be disarmed.

This has been the result in certain communities—notably New York, with its famous Sullivan Laws. Crimes of violence have not decreased in that city—on the contrary, they have increased. The criminal class has paid no more attention to the anti-gun law than to any other statute on the books. Thus, the Sullivan Laws have not only failed to protect the public, but have actually endangered it.

It has been suggested that Federal laws be passed against the shipment—and also the manufacture of guns. To this it may be answered that any reasonably skilled mechanic, using materials readily attainable, could make a gun in a few hours—and this gun would kill as decisively as the finest product of the gunsmith's craft. Furthermore, one smuggled shipment of foreign-made guns would last the underworld for years.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litchert

The World Court seems to be having its troubles these days, in added quantity, when it comes to the question of the ratification of the resolution for adherence by the United States. After the rejection of Reservation Five by other nations who are members of the court it seemed that American membership had gone by the boards. Then the drawing up of the Root protocol, which was said to be an "agreeable" compromise revived the agitation for American adherence to the court. But it soon became evident, after the resolution was referred back to the Senate, that the Root protocol was subject to various interpretations. Senators who strongly favored Reservation Five, that gave Uncle Sam the right to veto advisory opinions on the questions in which he claimed an interest, declared that the Root protocol destroyed this reservation, and added the argument that if this were not true, the nations who had rejected Reservation Five would have rejected the Root protocol. Even many of the senators who favor American adherence to the World Court began to demand that the question of the Root protocol and Reservation Five be cleared up.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, offered a resolution to the effect that it was the belief and understanding of the Senate that the intention of Reservation Five was still in force and effect under the Root protocol. Then a dispute broke out as to whether this Reed resolution would have to be acknowledged by the other powers to be effective. Senator Reed said that it would not, but Senator Borah and others held that it would. Then Senator Pittman came forward with a reservation which would make it necessary for the President of the United States to ascertain from the other powers their views on the general question at issue with the understanding that American ratification would not be completed until answers were received satisfactory to the American government on the question of adherence to opinions on questions in which the United States has or claims an interest.

This resolution of Senator Puttman's, it is predicted, will pass the Senate if and whenever the question of our adherence to the World Court comes up and it is believed by most observers that it throws the question back where it was two or three years ago. But that is not all. A new question has arisen to plague the advocates of American adherence to the World Court. The women are getting busy. The first intimation came when Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, himself an opponent of American adherence to the League of Nations and the World Court, offered a reservation which would prohibit the World Court from administering any law based on the inequalities of sex, or which did not give the women of the world exactly the same standing as the men.

This action was followed by a telegram from Mrs. Alva E. Belmont, chairman of the National Woman's Party, to Senator Johnson of California, denouncing the League for attempting to secure ratification of the Hague nationality convention which is said to discriminate against women. In her telegram Mrs. Belmont, who is in Paris, said:

"It is supremely important for American women not to lose their hard-won gains for equality by our country entering into any international agreement recognizing a system of law founded upon inequality between men and women.

"I wish to express to you the grateful appreciation by the National Woman's party of your leadership in this fight to keep American women from losing through international action any of the equality which has now been established in our country."

It is not believed that European statemen will relish this attempt of American women to place the League and its court in a position where there will be no sex discrimination, and so another vexing problem has come up to vex the League adherents in the United States. One can almost sense the joy which the efficient and chivalrous Senator J. Ham Lewis must feel in thus sponsoring the cause of the American woman, especially when his efforts are designed to do the cause of internationalism no particular good in the United States.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Balance The Budget

According to one New York financier "England has balanced its budget in incredibly short time, and already England is further on the road to recovery than any other important nation."

Here is food for reflection on the part of those statesmen in our own country who think that prosperity can be restored by passing the buck on taxation by further huge bond issues to make up the government deficit and increasing government deficit and increasing governmental expenditure.

Nothing perhaps has so changed the financial picture in Great Britain as the announcement that the national budget has been balanced. A few short months ago when Great Britain went off the gold standard, financial experts (so called) were whispering to one another that the day of John Bull was over. He would never again be the world banker or the leading world power in a diplomatic and military way.

Now we find that Great Britain is apparently coming back faster than any other nation. One important reason, as stated above, is the balancing of the budget. Another is the new protective tariff which has greatly stimulated those British manufacturers which supply the home market, a market which was previously given over to the competition of the world. The free traders in America, after predicting dire things to the world as the result of this new British tariff are now strangely silent. And we find that Great Britain, under a nationalist-conservative government is coming back. No doubt John Bull will in due time, barring unexpected upsets, reestablish himself in the financial and diplomatic world, and once more commence playing the nations one against the other for the purpose of assuring Great Britain the dominating role in European and world politics.

There is a lesson in this for Uncle Sam. The quickest way out of the depression will be through a sane balancing of the national budget and a stopping of the leaks in the tariff wall, leaks made possible by the displacement of the money standards of many countries in Europe, and by constantly lowering standards of living in competing countries.

We've Given Enough

The cry now raised that the United States should continue to revise downward the war debts of Great Britain because Great Britain's going off the gold standard has reduced the value of the pound sterling, is

(Continued on fifth page.)

HEADS LINCOLN RESEARCH WORK

One of the best known Lincoln historians and admirers is Dr. Louis A. Warren, director since its establishment four years ago of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation, Fort Wayne, Ind. Under his direction, the Foundation has become one of the outstanding centers of Lincoln interest in America.

Doctor Warren began his studies of Lincoln fifteen years ago while editor of the Larue County Herald at Hodgenville, Kentucky, birthplace of Abe ham Lincoln. His book "Lincoln's Parentage and Childhood," based on a complete search of Kentucky court records, is the recognized authority on this phase of Lincoln's life. For this research he was awarded in 1929 the research degree of Doctor of Letters by the Lincoln Memorial University. He is editor of "Lincoln Lore," a weekly publication sending 100+ bulletins to students of Abraham Lincoln in the United States, and quite often on the basis of the director of the Foundation he is engaged in an exhaustive study of Lincoln's formative years—7 to 21—which were spent in Indiana.

DR. LOUIS A. WARREN

LINCOLN'S HUMANITY SAVED HONOR OF G.O.P.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—A new example of Abraham Lincoln's humanity and sympathy for people in trouble has been discovered here in the archives of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

It was contained in a letter to the martyred president from a young Philadelphia woman dated April 5, 1861 in which she pleaded for the life of Lincoln and told him the story of her troubles. She had been engaged to a young man, who in 1857 enlisted for three years in the army. After a few months service he was sent to a Texas pilot stick. After his recovery he, with some other soldiers, was permitted to return home for the election. This was in October, 1860. The young man on said they had intended to get our ried while he was home but due to the objections of her father, he was also returned to his regiment a single man. The young woman confessed to the President that there had been in illicit relations then and begged Lincoln to send her home. Such action that they could be married and pre vent an "unlawful family," as she expressed it. In commission she wrote: "I hope and pray to God you may not cast me aside in scorn and disdain."

Nine days later President Lincoln sent the girl's letter to the secretary of war, with the following quotation in his own handwriting: "Hon. Secretary of War—Send him to her by all means."

Lincoln's Favorite

"The most satisfactory likeness of him" is the way Robert Todd Lincoln described this picture of his father, in the museum of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation at Fort Wayne, Ind., as an original print of this photograph which was presented by the son of Abraham Lincoln to Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, when that concern was founded in 1905. The photograph, taken by Brady in Washington in 1865 appears on the five dollar federal reserve notes and on the three cent postage stamps.

Yes, Quite Probable

Teacher—Tell me, George, why does the cuckoo lay its eggs in the nests of other birds?

George—Probably because of the hunting shortage.

Natural

"My dear, he looked so stupid when he proposed to me."

"Well, darling, look at the stupid thing he was doing."—Bray Bardon.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

The Barnard Grange is building a new hall near the M. E. Church.

The Supreme Court has decided that the U. K. & I. must reduce its fares to 2 1-2 cents per mile.

Frank Wilkinson, a student in the Michigan University School of Dentistry, is here visiting his relatives for a few days.

Contractor A. J. Cameron has begun work on J. W. Harris' new residence on River street. It is an interesting fact that Mr Harris's house will stand exactly on the site of the old Fox & Roe store—the first mercantile establishment in this neck of the woods.

Some old landmarks have disappeared the past week. The old Fox homestead near the Wilmr dock has been torn down and the Gellek residence has been removed to the rear of L. S. Sm.'s new store to serve as a watchmnie.

Captain Fountain and his crew have vigorously removed improvements on the grounds of the life saving station. A row of thirty trees have been planted parallel with and twelve feet from the revetment, between which and the revetment there will be a ten foot gravel walk. A portion of the grounds are being added but the plot will chiefly be covered with the muck taken last year from the "swamp-hole" back of the station and lawn seed sown. Captain Fountain expects to have grass growing on the entire plat next fall. When the plans are fully carried out the grounds will constitute a park of exceeding beauty.

NORWOOD NOTES

A gang was over from East Jordan who took down the smoke stack and moved it and the boiler to East Jordan for Mr. Porter. This about cleans up the remnants of the old mill which was built in 1866.

Forty Years Ago

Charlevoix needs a band, and should have one before July 4th.

H. S. Harsha has the foundation under way and is putting the lumber on the ground for a new 30x42 residence on State street, adjoining the Congregational Church.

Mrs. A. A. Smith of Northport, aged 84, is writing a series of articles for the Grand Traverse Herald, depicting the hardships of a pioneer missionary life. Her husband, the late Rev. Geo. N. Smith, was the first ordained Congregational minister in Michigan, and his entire life was spent in mission work among the Indians.

MEMORIES
The Scribe Revives Recollections of the Past—Persons and Events

There are but few, comparatively, of the present inhabitants of Charlevoix who know Seth F. Mason—one of the earliest settlers of this place. The scribe remembers him as a quiet and pleasant old gentleman who, in the autumn of 1869, harvested an excellent crop of oats on that portion of the present corporation of Charlevoix bounded by Bridge, State, Antrim and Mason streets. With his family he dwelt in a log house where Newman street now runs, in front of the machine shop. The beautiful balsam tree growing there, was brought by Mr. Mason in an open boat from Huron county and transplanted by the door of his modest domicell.

* * *

Only about three years was the scribe permitted to know this genial old gentleman. Inured to the water, he had the reputation of being one of the most expert small-boat sailors in these parts. The summer of 1870 he built a fine "clinker" sail-boat, which in honor of the paper first started, he named the "Sentinel". Coming from Northport one stormy fall day, he missed the river, drifted into the lift dock, capsized and was drowned, his body being recovered several days later on North Point. The sorrowful event cast a gloom over the little community that the scribe yet vividly remembers.

* * *

It was about at this period of Charlevoix history that stalwart Henry Morgan came upon the scene of action. Stalwart in stature, stalwart in honesty, and stalwart in good, old-fashioned Presbyterian piety. Henry Morgan passed through the struggles of those pioneer days but was denied participation that followed them. Well does the scribe remember the sturdy old Scotchman, with a hand like a ham and a heart as big. He began his career here as a merchant and shipper. His store, on the corner of State and Mason streets, is still an ancient landmark. The first dirt removed from the mouth of the river, (not taking into account what Wm. Lasley scraped down-stream with his hand shovel), was taken out by Mr. Morgan with a long-handled scraper, operated over the side of a skow swung athwart the stream, with a team on either bank as the propelling power. His energy was phenomenal and his power of endurance was equal to his energy. It was he who built the old north "pier" under the swamp land contract, with D. U. Nelleton as local commissioner.

* * *

Mr. Morgan was as earnest in his religion as he was in his work, and it was literally behind the world before a church edifice arose in Charlevoix. Even in the midst of pioneer life in the backwoods of a new country, and in possession of property by no means extensive, he would contribute his means, his energy and his counsel to the erection of a house of worship. Many a time and oft would he take your breath, in power and exhilaration he was eyebrow and no man ever accused him of hypocrisy. Vessel and cargo stood up ashore or by the bottom before he would put a stick over the rails on the Sabbath. In the early battles improvements to pave his energy and rare judgment and aught that was accomplished stands to his credit.

* * *

But the obstacles that arose to climb early hardier struggles almost wrecked him financially and physically. His Charlevoix venture was made less years too easily. About 1870 he went west for a time when some disruption seized him, and he was taken to his old home in Mitchell, Ind., to die. Contemporary with Mr. Morgan here, was the late Capt. Gifford, U. S. A., and well does the scribe remember hearing the Captain relate the story of a controversy between Mr. Morgan and a settler. The Captain was forty rods away, but he could hear the old Christian champion bring his big right hand into the palm of his left and tell him "Jim got mad at God Almighty!" And the hollow laugh of Gifford still rings in the ears of the scribe.

* * *

And this brings the scribe to the remembrance of that friend of those early days, that brave soldier, genial companion, and intelligent gentleman—Capt. Walter Clifford, 7th U. S. Infantry. The scribe will speak of him in another issue.

Sixty Years Ago

H. W. Beach was elected supervisor in Banks.

The ice in Lake Michigan is rotting rapidly and the indications are of a sudden breakdown.

Footrail—We call attention of our readers to the poetical effusion to be found elsewhere from the pen of Andrew O. D. McCabe.

THINGS THAT ARE SURE

The husbandman prepares his soil,
And sows his seed, Autumn may bring
A rich reward for his toil;
If we endeavor to do right
In daily dealings with mankind,
We shall be sure of peace at night;
And sweet our rest from labor find.
When you may need either boots or shoes
Mr. McCabe makes them of all kinds.

Work made to order and repairing done on short notice.

A. O. D. McCabe.
Charlevoix, April 13, 1872

The post office has been removed by Deputy Postmaster Cooper to the Fountain City House until the appointment of a new Postmaster, which will occur soon.

The carpenters will commence the three story addition to the Fountain City House next week. It will fill up almost the entire space between the present building and Geo. Kyes' store.

FROM CROSS VILLAGE
April 9, 1872

Editor Sentinel:

Dear Sir:—Things are progressing in this place about as usual. Feed is scarce and quite a number of horses and cattle have died for the want of it, and quite a number more will die if some does not soon souk. Mr. Whitney has his stock nearly completed and will have wares sufficient for the largest class of inland propellers. Morris is getting along with his dock finish. At our contract, John S. Shorter off was elected Supervisor, Samuel Bishop Clerk, Joseph Rhodes Treasurer, Joseph Dennis and Michael Wade justices and Amos C. Bennett, school inspectors. A large number of votes was polled and there was no bitterness and there was never a spirited opposition. But the best news for us country men all of it was blessed.

Yours,
Rusticus

Several magazines have been forced to quit business, the depression having caught them with nothing on their slate.—Detroit News.

AUTO WEIGHT TAXES FALLEN OFF 45 PER CENT

Automobile weight taxes may approximately 45 per cent below on March 1, 1932, than for the same period a year ago, according to statistics of the Department of Revenue. About the same reduction in the number of license plates sold, is noted.

On March 1, 1931, a total of 467,000 sets of plates had been issued in return for weight taxes amounting to $10,176,146. For the same date this year weight taxes of $5,570,000 had been received by the department from the sale of 258,000 sets of license plates.

A study of the records discloses that the decrease in the number of plates is not uniform in all parts of the state. The following statistics by counties show total number of motor vehicle registrations for March 1, 1931 and March 1, 1932. The 1931 figure is given first in each instance:

Antrim 681—351; Charlevoix, 784—335; Cheboygan 987—423; Crawford 299—121; Emmet, 1,021—354; Grand Traverse, 1,240—1,040; Kalkaska, 139—92; Leelanau, 718—294; Manistee, 489—221.

Moving Air Best, Blood Tests Show

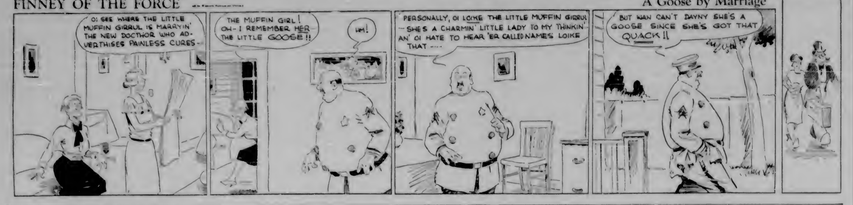
Serum precipitin is one of the most important tests in the study of air conditions in the body," says a bulletin of the Air Service in the United States Health Service. It must be determined in the laboratory by means of Thomsen's method of hemolysis.

Increasing or blood precipitin runs parallel with increasing exposure to C. S. Brown of Minot N. Dakota, the precipitin starts the first day and reaches its maximum in about a week. Then it begins to decrease, and in about a month it is gone. Brown's blood precipitin was found to be 0.1 at Washington, 0.2 at Fort Leavenworth, 0.3 at Fort Riley, 0.4 at Fort Sill, 0.5 at Fort Worth, 0.6 at Fort Bliss, 0.7 at Fort Huachuca, 0.8 at Fort Douglas, 0.9 at Fort Lewis, 1.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 1.1 at Fort Crockett, 1.2 at Fort Clark, 1.3 at Fort Ringgold, 1.4 at Fort McIntosh, 1.5 at Fort Brown, 1.6 at Fort Bliss, 1.7 at Fort Huachuca, 1.8 at Fort Douglas, 1.9 at Fort Lewis, 2.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 2.1 at Fort Crockett, 2.2 at Fort Clark, 2.3 at Fort Ringgold, 2.4 at Fort McIntosh, 2.5 at Fort Brown, 2.6 at Fort Bliss, 2.7 at Fort Huachuca, 2.8 at Fort Douglas, 2.9 at Fort Lewis, 3.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 3.1 at Fort Crockett, 3.2 at Fort Clark, 3.3 at Fort Ringgold, 3.4 at Fort McIntosh, 3.5 at Fort Brown, 3.6 at Fort Bliss, 3.7 at Fort Huachuca, 3.8 at Fort Douglas, 3.9 at Fort Lewis, 4.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 4.1 at Fort Crockett, 4.2 at Fort Clark, 4.3 at Fort Ringgold, 4.4 at Fort McIntosh, 4.5 at Fort Brown, 4.6 at Fort Bliss, 4.7 at Fort Huachuca, 4.8 at Fort Douglas, 4.9 at Fort Lewis, 5.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 5.1 at Fort Crockett, 5.2 at Fort Clark, 5.3 at Fort Ringgold, 5.4 at Fort McIntosh, 5.5 at Fort Brown, 5.6 at Fort Bliss, 5.7 at Fort Huachuca, 5.8 at Fort Douglas, 5.9 at Fort Lewis, 6.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 6.1 at Fort Crockett, 6.2 at Fort Clark, 6.3 at Fort Ringgold, 6.4 at Fort McIntosh, 6.5 at Fort Brown, 6.6 at Fort Bliss, 6.7 at Fort Huachuca, 6.8 at Fort Douglas, 6.9 at Fort Lewis, 7.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 7.1 at Fort Crockett, 7.2 at Fort Clark, 7.3 at Fort Ringgold, 7.4 at Fort McIntosh, 7.5 at Fort Brown, 7.6 at Fort Bliss, 7.7 at Fort Huachuca, 7.8 at Fort Douglas, 7.9 at Fort Lewis, 8.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 8.1 at Fort Crockett, 8.2 at Fort Clark, 8.3 at Fort Ringgold, 8.4 at Fort McIntosh, 8.5 at Fort Brown, 8.6 at Fort Bliss, 8.7 at Fort Huachuca, 8.8 at Fort Douglas, 8.9 at Fort Lewis, 9.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 9.1 at Fort Crockett, 9.2 at Fort Clark, 9.3 at Fort Ringgold, 9.4 at Fort McIntosh, 9.5 at Fort Brown, 9.6 at Fort Bliss, 9.7 at Fort Huachuca, 9.8 at Fort Douglas, 9.9 at Fort Lewis, 10.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 10.1 at Fort Crockett, 10.2 at Fort Clark, 10.3 at Fort Ringgold, 10.4 at Fort McIntosh, 10.5 at Fort Brown, 10.6 at Fort Bliss, 10.7 at Fort Huachuca, 10.8 at Fort Douglas, 10.9 at Fort Lewis, 11.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 11.1 at Fort Crockett, 11.2 at Fort Clark, 11.3 at Fort Ringgold, 11.4 at Fort McIntosh, 11.5 at Fort Brown, 11.6 at Fort Bliss, 11.7 at Fort Huachuca, 11.8 at Fort Douglas, 11.9 at Fort Lewis, 12.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 12.1 at Fort Crockett, 12.2 at Fort Clark, 12.3 at Fort Ringgold, 12.4 at Fort McIntosh, 12.5 at Fort Brown, 12.6 at Fort Bliss, 12.7 at Fort Huachuca, 12.8 at Fort Douglas, 12.9 at Fort Lewis, 13.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 13.1 at Fort Crockett, 13.2 at Fort Clark, 13.3 at Fort Ringgold, 13.4 at Fort McIntosh, 13.5 at Fort Brown, 13.6 at Fort Bliss, 13.7 at Fort Huachuca, 13.8 at Fort Douglas, 13.9 at Fort Lewis, 14.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 14.1 at Fort Crockett, 14.2 at Fort Clark, 14.3 at Fort Ringgold, 14.4 at Fort McIntosh, 14.5 at Fort Brown, 14.6 at Fort Bliss, 14.7 at Fort Huachuca, 14.8 at Fort Douglas, 14.9 at Fort Lewis, 15.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 15.1 at Fort Crockett, 15.2 at Fort Clark, 15.3 at Fort Ringgold, 15.4 at Fort McIntosh, 15.5 at Fort Brown, 15.6 at Fort Bliss, 15.7 at Fort Huachuca, 15.8 at Fort Douglas, 15.9 at Fort Lewis, 16.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 16.1 at Fort Crockett, 16.2 at Fort Clark, 16.3 at Fort Ringgold, 16.4 at Fort McIntosh, 16.5 at Fort Brown, 16.6 at Fort Bliss, 16.7 at Fort Huachuca, 16.8 at Fort Douglas, 16.9 at Fort Lewis, 17.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 17.1 at Fort Crockett, 17.2 at Fort Clark, 17.3 at Fort Ringgold, 17.4 at Fort McIntosh, 17.5 at Fort Brown, 17.6 at Fort Bliss, 17.7 at Fort Huachuca, 17.8 at Fort Douglas, 17.9 at Fort Lewis, 18.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 18.1 at Fort Crockett, 18.2 at Fort Clark, 18.3 at Fort Ringgold, 18.4 at Fort McIntosh, 18.5 at Fort Brown, 18.6 at Fort Bliss, 18.7 at Fort Huachuca, 18.8 at Fort Douglas, 18.9 at Fort Lewis, 19.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 19.1 at Fort Crockett, 19.2 at Fort Clark, 19.3 at Fort Ringgold, 19.4 at Fort McIntosh, 19.5 at Fort Brown, 19.6 at Fort Bliss, 19.7 at Fort Huachuca, 19.8 at Fort Douglas, 19.9 at Fort Lewis, 20.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 20.1 at Fort Crockett, 20.2 at Fort Clark, 20.3 at Fort Ringgold, 20.4 at Fort McIntosh, 20.5 at Fort Brown, 20.6 at Fort Bliss, 20.7 at Fort Huachuca, 20.8 at Fort Douglas, 20.9 at Fort Lewis, 21.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 21.1 at Fort Crockett, 21.2 at Fort Clark, 21.3 at Fort Ringgold, 21.4 at Fort McIntosh, 21.5 at Fort Brown, 21.6 at Fort Bliss, 21.7 at Fort Huachuca, 21.8 at Fort Douglas, 21.9 at Fort Lewis, 22.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 22.1 at Fort Crockett, 22.2 at Fort Clark, 22.3 at Fort Ringgold, 22.4 at Fort McIntosh, 22.5 at Fort Brown, 22.6 at Fort Bliss, 22.7 at Fort Huachuca, 22.8 at Fort Douglas, 22.9 at Fort Lewis, 23.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 23.1 at Fort Crockett, 23.2 at Fort Clark, 23.3 at Fort Ringgold, 23.4 at Fort McIntosh, 23.5 at Fort Brown, 23.6 at Fort Bliss, 23.7 at Fort Huachuca, 23.8 at Fort Douglas, 23.9 at Fort Lewis, 24.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 24.1 at Fort Crockett, 24.2 at Fort Clark, 24.3 at Fort Ringgold, 24.4 at Fort McIntosh, 24.5 at Fort Brown, 24.6 at Fort Bliss, 24.7 at Fort Huachuca, 24.8 at Fort Douglas, 24.9 at Fort Lewis, 25.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 25.1 at Fort Crockett, 25.2 at Fort Clark, 25.3 at Fort Ringgold, 25.4 at Fort McIntosh, 25.5 at Fort Brown, 25.6 at Fort Bliss, 25.7 at Fort Huachuca, 25.8 at Fort Douglas, 25.9 at Fort Lewis, 26.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 26.1 at Fort Crockett, 26.2 at Fort Clark, 26.3 at Fort Ringgold, 26.4 at Fort McIntosh, 26.5 at Fort Brown, 26.6 at Fort Bliss, 26.7 at Fort Huachuca, 26.8 at Fort Douglas, 26.9 at Fort Lewis, 27.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 27.1 at Fort Crockett, 27.2 at Fort Clark, 27.3 at Fort Ringgold, 27.4 at Fort McIntosh, 27.5 at Fort Brown, 27.6 at Fort Bliss, 27.7 at Fort Huachuca, 27.8 at Fort Douglas, 27.9 at Fort Lewis, 28.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 28.1 at Fort Crockett, 28.2 at Fort Clark, 28.3 at Fort Ringgold, 28.4 at Fort McIntosh, 28.5 at Fort Brown, 28.6 at Fort Bliss, 28.7 at Fort Huachuca, 28.8 at Fort Douglas, 28.9 at Fort Lewis, 29.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 29.1 at Fort Crockett, 29.2 at Fort Clark, 29.3 at Fort Ringgold, 29.4 at Fort McIntosh, 29.5 at Fort Brown, 29.6 at Fort Bliss, 29.7 at Fort Huachuca, 29.8 at Fort Douglas, 29.9 at Fort Lewis, 30.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 30.1 at Fort Crockett, 30.2 at Fort Clark, 30.3 at Fort Ringgold, 30.4 at Fort McIntosh, 30.5 at Fort Brown, 30.6 at Fort Bliss, 30.7 at Fort Huachuca, 30.8 at Fort Douglas, 30.9 at Fort Lewis, 31.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 31.1 at Fort Crockett, 31.2 at Fort Clark, 31.3 at Fort Ringgold, 31.4 at Fort McIntosh, 31.5 at Fort Brown, 31.6 at Fort Bliss, 31.7 at Fort Huachuca, 31.8 at Fort Douglas, 31.9 at Fort Lewis, 32.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 32.1 at Fort Crockett, 32.2 at Fort Clark, 32.3 at Fort Ringgold, 32.4 at Fort McIntosh, 32.5 at Fort Brown, 32.6 at Fort Bliss, 32.7 at Fort Huachuca, 32.8 at Fort Douglas, 32.9 at Fort Lewis, 33.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 33.1 at Fort Crockett, 33.2 at Fort Clark, 33.3 at Fort Ringgold, 33.4 at Fort McIntosh, 33.5 at Fort Brown, 33.6 at Fort Bliss, 33.7 at Fort Huachuca, 33.8 at Fort Douglas, 33.9 at Fort Lewis, 34.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 34.1 at Fort Crockett, 34.2 at Fort Clark, 34.3 at Fort Ringgold, 34.4 at Fort McIntosh, 34.5 at Fort Brown, 34.6 at Fort Bliss, 34.7 at Fort Huachuca, 34.8 at Fort Douglas, 34.9 at Fort Lewis, 35.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 35.1 at Fort Crockett, 35.2 at Fort Clark, 35.3 at Fort Ringgold, 35.4 at Fort McIntosh, 35.5 at Fort Brown, 35.6 at Fort Bliss, 35.7 at Fort Huachuca, 35.8 at Fort Douglas, 35.9 at Fort Lewis, 36.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 36.1 at Fort Crockett, 36.2 at Fort Clark, 36.3 at Fort Ringgold, 36.4 at Fort McIntosh, 36.5 at Fort Brown, 36.6 at Fort Bliss, 36.7 at Fort Huachuca, 36.8 at Fort Douglas, 36.9 at Fort Lewis, 37.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 37.1 at Fort Crockett, 37.2 at Fort Clark, 37.3 at Fort Ringgold, 37.4 at Fort McIntosh, 37.5 at Fort Brown, 37.6 at Fort Bliss, 37.7 at Fort Huachuca, 37.8 at Fort Douglas, 37.9 at Fort Lewis, 38.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 38.1 at Fort Crockett, 38.2 at Fort Clark, 38.3 at Fort Ringgold, 38.4 at Fort McIntosh, 38.5 at Fort Brown, 38.6 at Fort Bliss, 38.7 at Fort Huachuca, 38.8 at Fort Douglas, 38.9 at Fort Lewis, 39.0 at Fort Sam Houston, 39.1 at Fort Crockett, 39.2 at Fort Clark, 39.3 at Fort Ringgold, 39.4 at Fort McIntosh, 39.5 at Fort Brown, 39.6 at Fort Bli

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

FINNEY OF THE FORCE



THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

Along the Concrete

Pruning

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

You Gotta Hand It to the Boy for Trying

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Discussion

"Pshaw, the wolf is at my door." "Will he eat table scraps?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I CUT MY SMOKING COST IN HALF AND DOUBLED MY PLEASURE!!!!"

THAT'S a strong statement. But it's true. And Target Cigarette Tobacco is the answer.

"I first started on Target to save money. I heard you could roll thirty or more cigarettes for a dime with Target. But that isn't all.

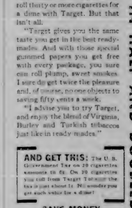
"Target gives you the same taste you get in the best ready-mades. And with those special gummed papers you get free with every package, you sure can roll plump, sweet smokes. I sure do get twice the pleasure and, of course, no comparison to saving fifty cents a sack.

"I advise you to try Target, and enjoy the blend of Virginia, Burley and Turkish tobaccos just like in ready-mades."

AND GET THIS! The U.S. Government Tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 5c. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about ½. Remember you get such value for a dime!

SAVE MONEY ROLL YOUR OWN SEE WHAT YOU SMOKE

Wrapped in Moistureproof Cellophane



Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky Cigs

If sore hips or shoulders, don't rub, for doctors are fatally fond of take "treatment."

ZMO-OIL

kills pain while it heals; because it penetrates into the wound.

SORE MUSCLES
ITCHING SKIN
SORE THROAT
COUGHS PILES CUTS SORES
BURNS
and BRUISES

at Drug Stores

OR MAIL ZAEGEL & CO. Sheboygan, Wisconsin

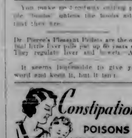
WANTED—Old Age Pension Information

Write Information Bureau, Box 1, Thermopolis, Wyo.

Your age or residence ordering pens the "bunker" unless the bookie assist that they kno.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills put up 80 years ago. They regulate liver and bowels. Adv.

It seems impossible to give your word and keep it, but it isn't.



Heaven who are kept indoors nights and caring for others nonessentially neglected. Dick Sutherland, Natchez, and worn out feeling are symptoms of poison in the system caused by constipation. Don't neglect nature's warning. Take Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to clean your stomach and intestinal tract. A favored remedy for fifty years. At all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS
Mild & Gentle Laxative

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 15-1932.

Chief Black Hawk and His "War"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS just 100 years ago this June that there was being fought in Illinois and Wisconsin what has since come to be called the last Indian war, from the standpoint of the white man. Like most wars, it was a mixture of tragedy and comedy, with the latter predominating. It was a war in which two immeasurable points of view—that of the American frontiersman, and that of the American Indian—came to their sharpest focus. Chief Black Hawk was a perfect, flaming horror in defense of his ancestral home; from the frontiersman's point of view he was only another "savage" and bloodthirsty redskin" who had to be gotten rid of to make way for the "advance of civilization."

Comparatively insignificant in terms of numbers engaged, battles fought and duration, the Black Hawk war of 1832 survives in the memory of most American households because of the later prominence of some of the men who fought in it. Two of them became Presidents of the United States; one was a Presidential candidate, one was President of the Confederate States of America, and the others won varying distinction as senators, governors and military leaders in the Mexican and Civil wars. The Black Hawk war was the last historic skirmish on the east bank of the red man against the white east of the Mississippi. When Black Hawk failed, it meant that all of the lands in the old Northwest Territory were soon open to white settlement and development without the ever-present threat of Indian hostility to halt them.

The leading figure in this now dimly remembered war was Ma-ka-tai-me-she-kia-kiak, or Black Hawk, a chief of the Sauk and Fox Indians, of whom Keokuk, or Watchful Fox, was the legal chief. By the Treaty of November 3, 1804, made at St. Louis, the Sauk and Fox agreed to surrender all of their lands east of the Mississippi. But in 1828, only the close of the War of 1812, when a wave of migrations began to pour into Illinois, that the United States was ready to claim the land which it had acquired from the Indians. Keokuk and the majority of his tribe bowed to the inevitable and moved across the Mississippi to a new home in Iowa. But Black Hawk, who had been a disciple of Tecumseh, the great Shawnee, and an ally of the British in the War of 1812, but it is known that would not move to Iowa. He maintained that he had been deceived as to the terms of the St. Louis treaty and did not consider them binding upon him.

In 1831 so much friction between Black Hawk's tribesmen and the Illinois settlers had developed that Governor Reynolds considered it advisable to call out the militia to "protect the lives and property" of the pioneers. But General Gaines, military commandant in the West, hoping to avoid the expense of a demonstration with force, summoned Black Hawk and his chiefs to a conference at Fort Armstrong on the Mississippi. The council was a stormy one and resulted in no satisfactory settlement of the difficulties, whereupon the militia on June 16 left their camp at Rushville, Ill., and marched upon Black Hawk's village. They found it deserted and burned. All the Indians' crops, timber and wood used by Black Hawk that fine "hostiles" should come in for a peace talk and on June 30 Black Hawk and 27 of his followers signed a treaty with Governor Reynolds in which they agreed to refrain from hostile acts and to retire beyond the Mississippi.

During the following winter Black Hawk began dreaming the old dreams of Pontiac, the Ottawa, and Tecumseh, the Shawnee-chief, of an Indian confederation to resist the whites. His enthusiastic woo among the Winnebagoes, the Pottawatomies and the Kickapoos, gaining converts to the idea everywhere, but also meeting empty promises. But he made no overt act until the spring of 1832 when General Atkinson, military commander in the West, received orders to demand from the Sauk and Fox that they hand over certain members of the band who were accused of having killed some Menominees the previous year.

Atkinson arrived at the rapids of the Des Moines river on April 10, he found that four days previously Black Hawk had crossed over into Illinois with some 1,000 Indians, of whom 400 were mounted men and 500 were warriors. Immediately the settlers' rumors spread among the Illinois frontier. Black Hawk and 1,000 bloodthirsty savages were descending upon the settlements to kill, scalp and loot. Such was the story.

The Indian side of the story is rather different. Under the terms of the treaty which Black Hawk had signed with General Gaines the Indians were to be supplied with corn in place of that which they had left in their fields when they were to Iowa. What had happened is a familiar incident in the history of our relations with the Indians. The government failed to keep its promise. The amount of corn supplied over to them was so meagre that they began to suffer from hunger. In the meantime a party of the Sauk, in the words of Black Hawk, "crossed the river to steal some corn from their own fields."

Moving with his band up the Rock river, Black Hawk was overtaken by a messenger from General Atkinson, ordering him to return and remain on the Missouri side. The old chief replied that he had not taken the warpath but was going on a friendly visit to the village of White Cloud, the Winnebago prophet, and continued his journey. Atkinson then sent imperative orders for him to return or else he would pursue with his army and drive him back. To this the Indian leader answered that he preferred to fight to either with a threat so long as his people or the Winnebagoes was a peaceable one and that he intended to do no war.

Meantime he still until he was met by some Winnebago and Potawatomie chiefs, to one of whom he spoke it plain that they had no intention of joining with Black Hawk in any war against the Americans. Feeling that he had been betrayed by his Indian friends, the Sauk leader resolved to send a flag of truce to the white, asking permission to descend the Rock river, return to the Mississippi and carry to his home-ians in town.

In the meantime Governor Reynolds had called out the militia and one of the captains of the hastily-organized companies elected to fill his own men was a lanky young storekeeper from New Salem named Abraham Lincoln. At about the time Black Hawk was holding his council with the other tribes a large force of the militia had mobilized at Beardstown under General Whiteside near Dixon's Ferry. At the request of Maj. Isaiah Stillman, Whiteside sent a scouting party of about 270 men under Stillman up to locate the Indians. This party ascended the Rock river to the mouth of Sycamore creek and camped there. Ignorant of the fact that they were only a short distance from Black Hawk's camp.

Then occurred a tragic error—the first in a war filled with tragic blunders. Black Hawk sent three of his warriors under a flag of truce to ask for a conference. Stillman's undisciplined volunteers fired on them, killing one. This followed the opera bouffe "battle" which has come down in history as "Stillman's Run" in which 40 Indians and 270 white men took headlong flight, inflicting a loss of about a dozen on the militia at a loss of only two or three themselves and those were killed by the treachery of the whites.

The news of this defeat spread even greater terror through the state. Governor Reynolds called out more troops and from Washington came word that Gen. Winfield Scott, "Old Fuss and Feathers" of Mexican war and Civil war fame, gave a commission for the President and hurry ordered to the scene of the "war" with a thousand regulars. While en route to Illinois this army was attacked by the cholera and the mortality from this disease was greater than the total number killed and disabled by the Indians during the entire war.

The war dragged on throughout the summer of 1832, without any very decisive events, except that the superior forces of the settlers pushed Black Hawk ever further into Wisconsin. The Indian leader suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of an army commanded by Gen. Atkinson at the battle in the Wisconsin river among the wormwood hills and many were wounded and slaughtered.

Right Hawk now realized that the game was up. With the remnants of his band he fled north for the Minnesotan, hoping to escape from the soldiers and find some refuge among the Sioux. Instead he found himself in trouble. He reached the Mississippi at the mouth of the Bad Axe river on August 1 with his starving warriors and his pitiful little band of women and children. There occurred the last battle of the war, which might be called as a "naval engagement in an inland war."

While Black Hawk and his tribesmen were trying to cross the river in canoes and on rafts, a steamer, the Warrior, hove into sight on upper river, a detachment of soldiers and some civilians. Black Hawk raised a white flag in ask for a parley, and again the flag of truce was disdained by the white men. The captain of the Warrior answered that he followed the flag was only a decoy used to fool wily Indians to lure him into an ambush. So he ordered the cannon to be unlimbered and to begin shooting the Indian camp. As a result 23 Indians were killed outright and many others were wounded. Black Hawk's warriors were crazed by this unexpected attack that they fired only a few shots in return, one of which wounded someone on board the Warrior.

The following day the pursuing troops under General Atkinson, which were joined by a detachment of regulars under Col. Zachary Taylor (later the Civil Rough and Ready of the Mexican war and President of the United States) and an army of Wisconsin volunteers, came up and attacked Black Hawk's band on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi. Black Hawk replied that he had not taken the warpath but was going on a friendly visit to the village of White Cloud, the Winnebago prophet, and continued his journey. Atkinson then sent imperative orders for him to return or else he would pursue with his army and drive him back. To this the Indian leader answered that he preferred to fight to either with a threat so long as his people or the Winnebagoes was a peaceable one and that he intended to do no war.

Meantime he still until he was met by some Winnebago and Potawatomie chiefs, to one of whom he spoke it plain that they had no intention of joining with Black Hawk in any war against the Americans. Feeling that he had been betrayed by his Indian friends, the Sauk leader resolved to send a flag of truce to the whites, asking permission to descend the Rock river, return to the Mississippi and carry to his home-ians in town.

In the meantime Governor Reynolds had called out the militia and one of the captains of the hastily-organized companies elected to fill his own men was a lanky young storekeeper from New Salem named Abraham Lincoln. At about the time Black Hawk was holding his council with the other tribes a large force of the militia had mobilized at Beardstown under General Whiteside near Dixon's Ferry. At the request of Maj. Isaiah Stillman, Whiteside sent a scouting party of about 270 men under Stillman up to locate the Indians. This party ascended the Rock river to the mouth of Sycamore creek and camped there. Ignorant of the fact that they were only a short distance from Black Hawk's camp.

Then occurred a tragic error—the first in a war filled with tragic blunders. Black Hawk sent three of his warriors under a flag of truce to ask for a conference. Stillman's undisciplined volunteers fired on them, killing one. This followed the opera bouffe "battle" which has come down in history as "Stillman's Run" in which 40 Indians and 270 white men took headlong flight, inflicting a loss of about a dozen on the militia at a loss of only two or three themselves and those were killed by the treachery of the whites.

The news of this defeat spread even greater terror through the state. Governor Reynolds called out more troops and from Washington came word that Gen. Winfield Scott, "Old Fuss and Feathers" of Mexican war and Civil war fame, gave a commission for the President and hurry ordered to the scene of the "war" with a thousand regulars. While en route to Illinois this army was attacked by the cholera and the mortality from this disease was greater than the total number killed and disabled by the Indians during the entire war.

The war dragged on throughout the summer of 1832, without any very decisive events, except that the superior forces of the settlers pushed Black Hawk ever further into Wisconsin. The Indian leader suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of an army commanded by Gen. Atkinson at the battle in the Wisconsin river among the wormwood hills and many were wounded and slaughtered.

Right Hawk now realized that the game was up. With the remnants of his band he fled north for the Minnesotan, hoping to escape from the soldiers and find some refuge among the Sioux. Instead he found himself in trouble. He reached the Mississippi at the mouth of the Bad Axe river on August 1 with his starving warriors and his pitiful little band of women and children. There occurred the last battle of the war, which might be called as a "naval engagement in an inland war."

While Black Hawk and his tribesmen were trying to cross the river in canoes and on rafts, a steamer, the Warrior, hove into sight on upper river, a detachment of soldiers and some civilians. Black Hawk raised a white flag in ask for a parley, and again the flag of truce was disdained by the white men. The captain of the Warrior answered that he followed the flag was only a decoy used to fool wily Indians to lure him into an ambush. So he ordered the cannon to be unlimbered and to begin shooting the Indian camp. As a result 23 Indians were killed outright and many others were wounded. Black Hawk's warriors were crazed by this unexpected attack that they fired only a few shots in return, one of which wounded someone on board the Warrior.

The following day the pursuing troops under General Atkinson, which were joined by a detachment of regulars under Col. Zachary Taylor (later the Civil Rough and Ready of the Mexican war and President of the United States) and an army of Wisconsin volunteers, came up and attacked Black Hawk's band on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi. Black Hawk replied that he had not taken the warpath but was going on a friendly visit to the village of White Cloud, the Winnebago prophet, and continued his journey. Atkinson then sent imperative orders for him to return or else he would pursue with his army and drive him back. To this the Indian leader answered that he preferred to fight to either with a threat so long as his people or the Winnebagoes was a peaceable one and that he intended to do no war.

Meantime he still until he was met by some Winnebago and Potawatomie chiefs, to one of whom he spoke it plain that they had no intention of joining with Black Hawk in any war against the Americans. Feeling that he had been betrayed by his Indian friends, the Sauk leader resolved to send a flag of truce to the whites, asking permission to descend the Rock river, return to the Mississippi and carry to his home-ians in town.

In the meantime Governor Reynolds had called out the militia and one of the captains of the hastily-organized companies elected to fill his own men was a lanky young storekeeper from New Salem named Abraham Lincoln. At about the time Black Hawk was holding his council with the other tribes a large force of the militia had mobilized at Beardstown under General Whiteside near Dixon's Ferry. At the request of Maj. Isaiah Stillman, Whiteside sent a scouting party of about 270 men under Stillman up to locate the Indians. This party ascended the Rock river to the mouth of Sycamore creek and camped there. Ignorant of the fact that they were only a short distance from Black Hawk's camp.

Then occurred a tragic error—the first in a war filled with tragic blunders. Black Hawk sent three of his warriors under a flag of truce to ask for a conference. Stillman's undisciplined volunteers fired on them, killing one. This followed the opera bouffe "battle" which has come down in history as "Stillman's Run" in which 40 Indians and 270 white men took headlong flight, inflicting a loss of about a dozen on the militia at a loss of only two or three themselves and those were killed by the treachery of the whites.

The news of this defeat spread even greater terror through the state. Governor Reynolds called out more troops and from Washington came word that Gen. Winfield Scott, "Old Fuss

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

WE

WHO is those anyone who was alive and able to read the news papers on May 30 1927, to whom that word is not empty, returning the glorious and excitement with which the world received the news that Charles Lindbergh, in the monoplane the Spirit of St. Louis had made the world's first winging flight across the Atlantic?

All during the hectic days that followed that historic flight, when Lindbergh was being entertained and honored and raised again to higher ovations, frequently used the phrase proving "we" in speaking of his trip. Among those thereby impressed by the appropriateness that the flyer had come to refer to himself and his ship, the Spirit of St. Louis, as "we" in the sense of fact, he didn't use "we" in this sense at all. His true explanation is that he used it to indicate himself and the backers of his flight, Major Lindbergh of the Robertson Aircraft Co., Harry Knight and the other business men of St. Louis who financed and supported the history-making flight.

* * *

BRODIE

THE late "Steve" Brodie in Lindbergh's way always insisted that he was the first person to jump from a high place and live. Many people believed him, and for the next fifty years it was a common boast.

Steve started out as a gentlemanly waiter. But he took the money he made watching long customers in Lower East Side beer gardens and for some years was a street car conductor, but this, however, was very boring for such a gentleman as Steve. So Steve proceeded to find seven more honest jobs playing the horses. In 1886 according to his own story, he was offered $25 to jump off High Bridge. He did it, and pocketed the $25 as a bonus earned this story was accepted by the citizens and the assistants from the police force. Then Steve was dragged on throughout the summer of 1886 without any very decisive events, except that the superior forces of the settlers pushed Black Hawk ever further into Wisconsin. The Indian leader suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of an army commanded by Gen. Atkinson at the battle in the Wisconsin river among the wormwood hills and many were wounded and slaughtered.

Right Hawk now realized that the game was up. With the remnants of his band he fled north for the Minnesotan, hoping to escape from the soldiers and find some refuge among the Sioux. Instead he found himself in trouble. He reached the Mississippi at the mouth of the Bad Axe river on August 1 with his starving warriors and his pitiful little band of women and children. There occurred the last battle of the war, which might be called as a "naval engagement in an inland war."

While Black Hawk and his tribesmen were trying to cross the river in canoes and on rafts, a steamer, the Warrior, hove into sight on upper river, a detachment of soldiers and some civilians. Black Hawk raised a white flag in ask for a parley, and again the flag of truce was disdained by the white men. The captain of the Warrior answered that he followed the flag was only a decoy used to fool wily Indians to lure him into an ambush. So he ordered the cannon to be unlimbered and to begin shooting the Indian camp. As a result 23 Indians were killed outright and many others were wounded. Black Hawk's warriors were crazed by this unexpected attack that they fired only a few shots in return, one of which wounded someone on board the Warrior.

The following day the pursuing troops under General Atkinson, which were joined by a detachment of regulars under Col. Zachary Taylor (later the Civil Rough and Ready of the Mexican war and President of the United States) and an army of Wisconsin volunteers, came up and attacked Black Hawk's band on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi. Black Hawk replied that he had not taken the warpath but was going on a friendly visit to the village of White Cloud, the Winnebago prophet, and continued his journey. Atkinson then sent imperative orders for him to return or else he would pursue with his army and drive him back. To this the Indian leader answered that he preferred to fight to either with a threat so long as his people or the Winnebagoes was a peaceable one and that he intended to do no war.

Meantime he still until he was met by some Winnebago and Potawatomie chiefs, to one of whom he spoke it plain that they had no intention of joining with Black Hawk in any war against the Americans. Feeling that he had been betrayed by his Indian friends, the Sauk leader resolved to send a flag of truce to the whites, asking permission to descend the Rock river, return to the Mississippi and carry to his home-ians in town.

In the meantime Governor Reynolds had called out the militia and one of the captains of the hastily-organized companies elected to fill his own men was a lanky young storekeeper from New Salem named Abraham Lincoln. At about the time Black Hawk was holding his council with the other tribes a large force of the militia had mobilized at Beardstown under General Whiteside near Dixon's Ferry. At the request of Maj. Isaiah Stillman, Whiteside sent a scouting party of about 270 men under Stillman up to locate the Indians. This party ascended the Rock river to the mouth of Sycamore creek and camped there. Ignorant of the fact that they were only a short distance from Black Hawk's camp.

Then occurred a tragic error—the first in a war filled with tragic blunders. Black Hawk sent three of his warriors under a flag of truce to ask for a conference. Stillman's undisciplined volunteers fired on them, killing one. This followed the opera bouffe "battle" which has come down in history as "Stillman's Run" in which 40 Indians and 270 white men took headlong flight, inflicting a loss of about a dozen on the militia at a loss of only two or three themselves and those were killed by the treachery of the whites.

The news of this defeat spread even greater terror through the state. Governor Reynolds called out more troops and from Washington came word that Gen. Winfield Scott, "Old Fuss

A World's Record

MORE than three thousand mothers without a single lost of other mother or child That is the official Post Country record of Dr W. D. Caldwell's fifty years' family practice in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you know constipation must be the wonderful preventative of such poisons which cause real illness. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A constipated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin! Children detect it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Infant? Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when symptoms of illness or pain are troubled with sick headaches and are appetite. Take some for several days when sunshine, and see how it picks you up.

It is a convenience preparation which every drug store has ready; by the bottle. Just ask anywhere for Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

"Dark Floats 13,000 Miles

After a journey of nearly seven miles, or half one million one pieces, one of the largest floating docks in existence has come to its destination at Wallsend, on the Tyne. The dock was constructed some time ago at Newport, Monmouth. It was constructed some time ago at Wallsend, on the Tyne. The dock was constructed some time ago at Newport, Monmouth. It was handled that its trip was without an accident. The dock was sent off according to the specifications pre-

Even Better

"Now, for once we have a man we can trust."

"This candidate is a big brother."

"Oh, maybe he'll treat us!"

Fools Them All

They never come home ... mine is her two years at least ... always think the contrary. Besides, he has such a young, attractive wife who simply is devoted to him.

Why doesn't he ever let her down and all of "pep"? The answer to Fellows' Syrup. He wonderful tonic which restores impoverished nerve tissue. Vitamin-like for digestion, and the whole system seems to tingle. Let a bottle at your druggist's today. Remember, Doctors recommend it.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

Fights Bull at 83

A bull fight between two bulls, Juan Jimenez, was the feature of a recent fiesta at Pozuelo de Alarcon, near Madrid. Jimenez, the popular bullfighter, fought a young bull which was present with the aged picador assistant as a bonus, considered and entered the bull ring with a long, heavy pole, and were soon back.

Veracity

"Does that dish always tell the truth?"

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "if it's stood somewhere else."

White-as-snow washes ...this safe, easy way!

YOU'LL see the difference at once. The whitest, brightest wash you ever saw! Safe!

No wonder the makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. No wonder millions of women all over the country will use no other soap on washday. It's all they'd needed, even in hard water. Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lighter, puffed-up soaps.

And how those suds loosen dirt! Great for tub washing. Rinso suits our dirt—saves scrubbing and boiling—saves the clothes. Get the BIG box of Rinso. You'll like its creamy suds for dishwashing, too.

A PRODUCT OF LEVER BROTHERS CO., CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Rinso

The granulated soap for tub, washer and dishpan

REXALL ONE CENT SALE APR. 14, 15, 16

On special occasions during the year we offer many of these items at prices lower than the regular list price.

At no time, however, do we offer any of this merchandize at such rock bottom prices as we are offering on this One Cent Sale.

Candy and Pure Food items are offered on this sale at tremendously low prices but are not sold on the One Cent Sale Basis. NO LIMIT! Buy all you want. Only Rexall Stores can conduct The Original Rexall One Cent Sale.

HOT WATER BOTTLE
Full 2 qt. capacity. Molded one piece. 2 for $1.51.

CARA NOME PERFUMES
Rich fragrances to charm the senses. A choice for every type of personality. 2 for 51c.

BOUQUET RAMEE TALCUM
Silken soft, fragrant. Saves dainty trevks. 2 for 51c.

ANTIACID POWDER
Corrects sour stomach; sets on full way. 50c jar. 2 for 51c.

MILK OF MAGNESIA
More absorbent. Form fitting. 35c pkg. 2 for 36c.

SANITARY NAPKINS
A dependable remedy for monthly discomforts. 10c size. 2 for 11c.

PURETEST EPSOM SALT
Regularly 25c. 1 lb. 2 for 26c. Regular 10c size. 2 for 11c.

GERMICIDAL SOAP
Kills germs as it cleanses. Deodorizes. 25c cake. 2 for 26c.

U. D. ZINC OINTMENT
Regularly 20c size. 2 for 21c. Regular 30c size. 2 for 31c.

MI 31 SOLUTION
The mouth-tested antiseptic. 50c pint. 2 for 60c.

PURETEST ASPIRIN
Does not depress the heart. Box of 24 tablets 25c. 2 for 26c

PEPTONA
For new strength. Scientific malt and iron compound that combines blood-giving strength and energy. $1 pint. 2 for $1.01

MI 31 SHAVING CREAM
Plenty of lather to soften beards. Does not irritate skin. 50c tube. 2 for 51c.

LIGGETT'S CHOCOLATES
Famous, delicious chocolates. 2 for $1.01.

REXALL ORDERLIES
The delicious laxative. Why take harsh, bitter drugs when you may have this. It weakens bowels so easily yet so thoroughly. 50c size. 2 for 51c.

MINERAL OIL
Tasteless, odorless, colorless, internal lubricant. $1.00 pint. 2 for $1.01.

DAINTY DEODORANT
Soft powder to banish body odors. Dust in shoes too! 35c can. 2 for 36c.

MI 31 DENTAL PASTE
Whitens teeth and neutralizes decay acids. 50c tube. 2 for 51c

MIDNIGHT CREAMS
Modern formulas at lower prices. 50c jar. 2 for 51c.

ADHESIVE PLASTER
Grips tightly. Choice of white or flesh. 1 in. x 5 yds. 25c size. 2 for 30c.

JASMINE SOAP
The scent that's sweeping America. 10c cake. 2 for 11c.

RUBBING ALCOHOL
Relax tired, aching muscles with this invigorating body rub. Reduces excessive perspiration and removes body odors. Fine shaving lotion. 50c. 2 for 51c.

Many other toilet goods, Puretest Products and Rexall Remedies included in this sale.

SHARING PROFITS WITH YOU.
The United Drug Company, world's largest producer of drug store merchandise, sponsor this sale. The profits that are sacrificed are charged to advertising; in making new friends for the Rexall Drug Stores everywhere who are exclusive distributors for Rexall goods.

CENTRAL DRUG STORE
OCHS & KIRBY
Charlevoix Michigan

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong after an absence of nearly six weeks, spent with relatives and friends in Chicago, returned home Thursday.

Frank A. Kenyon and Ira A. Adams were business visitors in Bellaire and Kalkaska.

REXALL ONE CENT SALE
Thursday, Friday, Saturday, April 14, 15, 16. Buy advertised articles. One like article for 1 cent additional.
CENTRAL DRUG STORE

PURE MAPLE SYRUP made in Grand Ledge, best quality, $2.00 per gallon. Bine H. Baldwin, 623 Kalamazoo Ave., Petoskey. 5114

Mrs. H. F. Memik goes to Detroit today to see her nephew, Otto Russell, who for some weeks has been in the Ford hospital for surgical treatment. If his condition is favorable she will bring her nephew to Charlevoix when she returns.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Cross who recently spent ten days motoring to various points in southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, where they visited relatives and old time friends, returned home Sunday with the report that it was a pleasant, but enjoyable vacation.

The fishing tug, Elton, Captain John Cross, with its crew entered the port Monday from Ludington where they did the line show any person's shave. Something of a gala was in progress when the ship left Ludington as one

Banana Tops U. S. Fruit Import

Fifty-Five Million Stems Delivered in 1931.

Washington.—If the bobbies hit upon a fad in basket socials in 1931 were evenly distributed among men, women and child of voting age, covered seven dozen. In more than 3,000 cities of America were delivered at our ports" says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"While the banana is one of the most popular fruits in the true home of the United States it is an alien. Hawaii pineapple is the product with plenty of variety. Thus in wise former Country American people have become the world's most prodigious banana consumers. Central American republics supply more than 90 of our bananas, Jamaica about one-fourth and most of the others come from southern Mexico, Cuba and Colombia.

"The bananas started its journey around the Tropics of the world from India and the Malay peninsula. When it reached the West Indies and Central America in the thirteenth to the fifteenth of the American Indians. It was a stranger to the United States until the banana part of the last century. In 1870, a schooner captain, returning to Boston from Jamaica, brought a stem of bananas as a curiosity. Fifteen years later a company was organized to advertise the growing American appetite for bananas.

"Today hundreds of ships, many of them specially built and shaped to carry such cargo, bring millions of bunches of bananas annually to our ports. Most of these ships are flying the flags of foreign countries, but more and more American ships are being built for the trade. The modern ships are equipped with refrigerating machinery to keep the fruit at the proper temperature. Ventilators are also provided to carry off the gases given off by the fruit as it ripens.

Grow From Eyes.

"The farmer of the United States who purchases acreage for a farm or plantation places the land before clearing. Next he sets out the young plantation vines. He clears away the jungle growth and cultivates the soil, usually by means of machinery. Gathering bananas is a delicate operation. Each bunch of ripe plantain-like fruit are cut with a sharp knife and carried on the shoulders of the workers to the loading platform, where they are packed in crates. Each bunch is carefully wrapped in paper to protect it from bruises to which they are subjected also are as carefully watched as the temperature of an infant's milk. The slow or too rapid ripening may mean the loss of whole cargoes of fruit.

"When the shipping manager is advised, perhaps by radio, that a fruit ship is due to arrive at his port and a certain number of stems are reported from his plantation he dispatches workmen to bring in the required quantity. It takes an expert to select the stems of proper grade for shipment.

"To ship a stem of bananas from its lofty native height means destruction of the bananas and much loss of time. So the stem, equipped with a long pole topped with sharp knives, perhaps 15 inches apart, is cut just below the fruit so that the plant top and stem point toward the ground. Even a "hacker" or tenacious earlier stops on the stem, it is clipped by another workman, and carried on a mule, horse or, rider or wagon-transported to the nearest railroad on the long haul to the ships hold."

Invents New Diving Bell

Expected to Reach Depth of 3,000 Meters.

Berlin, Germany.—The astronomer and of the American explorer, Wilkins Beebe, that he expected to reach a depth of 1,000 meters with a new diving bell has brought to light the work of a young German engineer, who claims to have perfected a diving apparatus capable of reaching a depth of 3,000 meters and of propelling itself energetically along the sea floor, thereby lines mechanically to the bell, thus greatly simplifying diving operations as they have been practiced to date.

Hans Phillipp of Koetz-Mantheim has worked for five years on a small model of his device with a view to obtaining full tips

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THE TAX ROAD

Practically one-quarter of the national income went to the government in 1931. The exact percentage is 22.1, as compared with 14.4 in 1930 and 6.4 in 1913.

Whoa, in a single year, the proportion of national income consumed by taxes can rise almost eight per cent, it is time for the thoughtful citizen to take action. The present trend is plain—the United States has started on the long dark road that Australia, Germany, England and other countries have taken. The result, if it keeps to that road, will be the same as in those countries—industrial stagnation, steadily increasing unemployment, unbalanced budgets, possibly impairment of credit—and, always, even higher taxation.

Government must retrench, exactly as businesses and individuals have retrenched the past two years. It must weed out unnecessary departments, banish waste and duplication of effort—in short, promote thorough efficiency. Present high taxes have not resulted from the cost of legitimate governmental functions, but from the cost of illegitimate functions—ventures into the operation or regulation of business, efforts to artificially peg prices, etc.

High taxes drive capital away from business, and force it into tax-free bonds. They make for hoarding and are thus the best friends of depression. This tax problem is a real problem nowadays—and every citizen must face it.

BALANCED BUDGETS AND BRAKES

Congress is busy balancing the national budget. Before its hectic recommendations are finally considered, altered and adopted, wise heads will tackle the problem and apply the four-wheel brakes of common-sense, practicability and political expediency to the first malformed creations of the hysterical solons.

This year, as never before, balanced budgets and balanced brakes are the most important need of the nation and especially of America's 26,000,000 motorists.

"Motorists this year, with new taxes of all kinds facing them must take special care in fitting the family car into the family budget. The 1932 cars are more powerful and faster than their predecessors. "In many states higher speeds than ever before are allowed and encouraged by local authorities Smooth, efficient stopping is one of their greatest and most vital characteristics—while they are new and in perfect adjustment. Quickly, however, due to the increased strenuosity of 1932 driving and the use of free wheeling, their brakes are bound to become worn and out of adjustment. This will present a terrific hazard this year to the car owner who is not aware of this new factor in the brake situation.

"The specter of danger will be intensified, also by the fact that hundreds of thousands of people are deferring the purchase of new cars at this uncertain time and will try to get by with old vehicles, many of which are in bad shape and have dangerously worn and out-of-adjustment brakes. These cars, jogging on the highways with the faster newer machines, present a grave menace to drivers and passengers in them and in other vehicles.

"The remedy is a simple one. If each owner of a new or old machine will go to his brake station once every month or so for an inspection of his brakes, a readjustment if they are out of balance and a relining if they are dangerously worn, the expense will be trifling. The resulting safety may save thousands of dollars and untold grief in the avoidance of accidents, hospital bills and law suits. In addition, the justified feeling of confidence in a properly braked car will have a high but intangible value at this time when our minds are occupied with too many other problems."

DISASTER FOR THE RAILROADS

Nineteen-thirty-one, according to a railroad spokesman, was the most disastrous year in the rails' history. In the face of that, their taxes aggregated about four times the sum available for dividends, and amounted to $2.65 for every man, woman and child in the entire country. Federal taxes, which are based on net income, were naturally lower than in other years, but all other forms of railroad taxes were higher. The tax collector absorbed $7.30 out of every hundred dollars of gross revenue—the largest proportion on record.

On the other hand, we have made the railroads one of our foremost taxpayers, and on the other, we have allowed competing forms of transport, regulated and taxed to a far lesser degree, to unfairly obtain a great volume of business that once went to the rails. We have paralleled the railroad tracks with fine highways, partly built at railroad expense, and along these highways roll the trucks and buses over which the Interstate Commerce Commission has no authority. The inland waterways float boats which furnish government subsidized transport.

The rail industry is the greatest single employer and purchaser of supplies in the country—and if it goes into bankruptcy, the public will be the principal sufferer.

Intelligence, fairness and our own selfish interests demand the formulation of a regulatory policy that will apply equitably to all forms of transportation.

TRANSPORT FOR THE FARMER

Perhaps the most pronounced progress of our time has been made in the direction of improved transportation. Good roads and better and cheaper cars to use them, have caused miraculous changes in the business and social lives of the American people.

Of all classes of citizens, the farmer has been the least benefited in this. Most farmers have cars and trucks. But few farmers have access to roads that are usable at all times of the year or that permit the greatest possible efficiency in transport at any season. The rough road, the road that becomes one long series of mudholes in winter, the road that goes to pieces under snow or a good hard rain—those are still characteristic, shucking generally, of rural America.

A few states—New York, California and others—have done fine work in building good farm to market roads. They have realized that the best main highway in the world is of no use to the farmer if his home is five or ten miles away on an impassable dirt road. They have, consequently, done much in recent years to provide secondary roads, suitable for all types of travel, and passable at all times, which connect the small village and the farm with the outside world.

THE FRIENDS OF DEPRESSION

Idle dollars are the best friends of depression.

They do no one good. Stuck away in strong boxes—or socks!—they are entirely worthless. They are unable to do their bit in carrying on the financial work of the world. They are a sign of fear, of a hysteria kind of conservatism that mistakes hoarding for thrift.

True thrift is a fine thing. It is the source of the money that builds plants, buys and operates machinery, employs men, keeps the wheels of industry going.

As an advertisement of the Northern States Power Company recently said: "The opportunity to earn a return on investment is better today than for years. Banks pay interest on deposits regularly. Sound securities earn, and pay a regular, safe income."

The hoarder is cheating himself—of greater importance, he is cheating us all. He is prolonging unemployment, profitless prices, the accumulation of goods for which there is no market because people have no money to buy. He is, in the full sense of the word, anti-social.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

WHERE PHI BETA KAPPA WAS FORMED
AT WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA

HERE WHERE RALEIGH TAVERN STOOD, THE GREEK LETTER FRATERNITY PHI BETA KAPPA WAS ORGANIZED DECEMBER 5,1776 AND TOO NEARLY A HALF CENTURY IT REMAINED THE ONLY COLLEGE FRATERNITY IN THE UNITED STATES DEVOTED TO LITERATURE AND PHILOSOPHY. THE MEETINGS HERE HAD A MARKED INFLUENCE UPON THE INTELLECTUAL LIFE OF THE YOUNG REPUBLIC

LEARNING TO COOPERATE

In speaking editorially of the depressed condition of dairy farming in New England, the Boston News Bureau recently said: "He" (the farmer) "must do something for a permanent solution. He must relinquish his old insular individualism and learn to cooperate within his own ranks . . . That gospel has already had a scattered presentation. Now the pressure of adversity is forcing realization home . . ."

That is good advice for farmers everywhere. Dairy farmers, wheat farmers, cotton farmers—all have felt the bite of profitless prices and a poor market. By now they should have learned that that is largely their own fault. They have attempted to do business as it was done 50 years ago—each farmer selling to the distributor on his own hook, and they have failed. The way out is the cooperative way. Nothing else can give the farmer, as a group, control over the market and the price structure.

Hundreds of thousands of farmers are already organized. But a great many are unorganized and they are the ones to which such messages as these are addressed. They are holding back themselves and their organized neighbors—the best managed cooperative in the world is doomed to defeat if the farmers refuse to give it adequate support. It is high time the farmer stopped complaining about his lot and acted.

BIRDIE! BIRDIE!

Revision of migratory fowl hunting regulations to give the States more power in fixing open seasons probably will result from Senate hearings on waterfowl conservation, just concluded.

Senator Walcott pointed out that legislation will not be needed to amend the waterfowl hunting regulation, action by the Secretary of Agriculture being sufficient. The apparent desire, he said, is for the Bureau of Biological Survey to fix extreme limits for the open season, as for instance, November 1, but to specify that not more than 30 or 60 or some other number of days, as seems desirable, shall be hunting days; and that the States shall fix the actual days for hunting within the period.

A REAL ISSUE

It is within the realm of possibility that the great issue in political campaigns of the future will be simply this: The growth of Federal bureaucracy with resulting encroachment on the rights and liberties of the people.

This is a real issue which must eventually be decided. The ordinary citizen, both as a business man and as a member of organized society, has seen America become more and more "Russianized." He begins to realize that unless the present trend is stopped, the inevitable consequence will be a political dictatorship. To use an old and melodramatic phrase, a day of reckoning must come.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank Litschert

In speaking of the American business men, in his statement before the Senate Finance Committee in the hearings on the tax bill, Secretary of Treasury Mills said in part:

"In times of active business when their capital is fruitfully employed and profits are large the government collects from them considerable revenue. When industry and commerce go flat, capital ceases to work, and profits disappear, their income likewise vanishes and so as our taxes. That is why the income tax as applied to individuals has failed us in this emergency. The large profits and the big incomes have melted away. Taxes on incomes of $100,000 and over fell off by 96 per cent from 1928 to 1930 and have fallen off to a great extent since then. Mere talk of doubling or tripling rates on the very large incomes. Those that remain would probably seek isles of safety that do not pay taxes. Raising rates on the larger incomes does not solve our problem. They are no longer there. There is no more abundance in the hole in a doughnut."

Here is a concise statement of the situation explaining the failure of the income tax provisions of our revenue laws to produce the money to pay expenses of government in these subnormal times. It is to be hoped that the statement will be read and digested by that unthinking part of our population inside Congress and out, which seeks to solve the deficit and the budget problem by "soaking the rich." Undoubtedly such a course would be entirely satisfactory to most of us. The trouble is that in times like the present the scheme does not work. Business institutions which ordinarily heap up good profits are no longer doing this, and what we are confronted with now is not a theory but a set of cold, hard facts, and not pleasant facts at that.

It is unthinkable that the national budget will not be balanced. Surely this will be done by Congress sooner or later. It is so vitally necessary to our welfare as a nation and to the ultimate restoration of prosperity that the final results of any other course are too serious to contemplate. Balancing the budget is now the most serious business before Congress. How salutary an effect it may have can be gathered from what has happened in Great Britain since that nation's budget was balanced.

The question then is not whether the budget will be balanced, but how. The House passed a bill which falls short of the final balancing but furnished a big lump in that direction. Undoubtedly the Senate will make improvements in the House bill and it is to be hoped that those will be real improvements of the kind calculated to reassure the American public and not unduly disturb its business interests.

Of course everyone will be called on to bear the increased burden of taxes either directly or indirectly. There is no such thing as passing it on entirely to the other fellow. And incidentally it is to be hoped that Congress will not forget the fact that ther are two methods of balancing the budget, one by increasing taxes and another, and more satisfactory one by decreasing expenses. Of course some increase in taxes is necessary in the present emergency but it is to be hoped that the program of economy and paring the expenses of the federal government will not be neglected.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Pacifists Would Strip Their Country Of Its Defenses

The pacifists are determined that the United States shall be defenseless. They are working as hard as they can to accomplish that end. They mean to bring about a day when America will have an inadequate, out of date navy, a ridiculously small, ill-equipped, unbalanced army, and as little reserve as possible. If they can make the country helpless they imagine they will have furthered the cause of world peace.

Before the depression they encountered considerable resistance from the less fanatical, who saw the need of protection. But now that the need for economy has become so great and has become such a serious issue, their cause has received considerable advancement. The need for reducing governmental expenditures has come to their aid and promises to gravely menace the security of this country.

Those who do not want the United States to be prepared for an emergency have laid their plans carefully. They are attacking all along the line. They seek to prevent the addition of new ships to the navy and to reduce those now in existence, thus weakening our first line of defense to the point of impotency. They strive to hamper development and maintenance of the standing land forces, our second line of defense, so vitally important if the first line give way. And to make their damage complete they try to destroy the possibility of reserve resources, essential to our plan of national defense. Already the National guard has been seriously weakened, and the existence of military training in the schools and colleges and summer camps is threatened.

There might be some excuse for such activities were the United States a militaristic nation, controlled by an ugly, reckless military faction, our army huge and lavishly equipped, our navy second to none, and our citizenry thoroughly lashed to a great reserve military machine, ready at a minute's notice to go into action. Nowadays no sane person would countenance such conditions in our peace-loving country. The advocates of preparedness do not seek such a program.

As a matter of fact we are woefully unprepared to defend ourselves. Our small standing army is scattered over the nation and in our possessions, handicapped by provisions of economy. Our navy has not been maintained as have those of other great nations. We have no compulsory military training to provide us with the great reserve strength of some of the other countries. We lack airplanes, artillery, supplies, equipment, just as we did when we found ourselves in the World War. Then we were fortunate to have allies to hold the line while we took plenty of time in getting ready. Another time we may have to depend upon ourselves from the start.—Portland Press-Herald.

Boom To Blame

The trouble which disturbs all of us in some degree these days is not the fault of the gold standard. It is rather the fault that, during the "new era" boom days, we merely paid lip service to the gold standard while we lived and bought and planned and borrowed in utter disregard for the gold standard. Now that the standard has reasserted itself, we find ourselves appalled by the derangement of value relationships. Prices and values which the exigencies and stupidities of

(Continued on fifth page.)

NEW STUDY AIMS TO PERPETUATE LINCOLN LORE

Expanded Program Announced by Historical Foundation.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—The most comprehensive study of the life and character of Abraham Lincoln ever attempted has been announced here by the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

"The state in which Lincoln grew to manhood now becomes the scene of the most thorough study ever made of his life and already boasts the most complete collection of literature on the Emancipator as re assembled," an nounced Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, which endowed the foundation.

Arthur F. Hall

"After four years of work under the direction of a distinguished Lincolnian scholar, Dr. Louis A. Warren, we have laid the necessary groundwork for an expanded program, designed to perpetuate Lincoln here and stimulate interest in his life."

Doctor Warren, who started his study of Lincoln's life while editor of the Lincoln County Herald at Lincoln's birthplace, Hodgenville, Ky., has organized the foundation into eight departments to conduct research, gather material for exhibits, mark sites of historical significance, compile all available information, conduct educational programs, publish books, pamphlets and magazines, and to provide speakers for all occasions identified with Lincoln's career.

Interest in Lincoln Growing

"Many new and interesting significant facts are being added to the already long story through our research," Doctor Warren states, "and we are finding a growing interest in this subject on the part of the public. In our library we now have the largest private collection of literature ever assembled about any one man. Rather elaborate plans are mapped, and we plan in the next few years to expand this wealth of material and make it available to the vast number of Lincoln fans."

"The foundation is meeting with exceptional success in its work as a result of the splendid co-operation we are receiving from the entire personnel of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company. The administration of this institution, situated in all parts of the United States, are constantly on the lookout for new material and often run across some incident or relic that adds materially to our collection. The company's officers, meanwhile, have been extremely liberal in making it possible for us to acquire many costly documents, relics, and other interesting items."

Constantly Adding to Collection.

Doctor Warren explained that all of the company's officers, from the day of its founding in 1905, had been diligent students of Lincoln's life and had striven to make his ideals their company's ideals. The decision to endow the research foundation came in appreciation of Robert T. Lincoln's authorization for the company to use his father's name and favorite photograph.

Rare Memento

One of the rarest curios in the museum of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation at Fort Wayne, Ind., is this unique paperweight which was in use on the desk of President Lincoln at the time of his assassination. The weight was presented to Dr. S. Newman, veterinary surgeon general of the Army of the Potomac, by Major Stackpole, steward of the White House at the time of the President's death, and was later sold by the widow of Doctor Newman. Its most recent owner, President Arthur F. Hall of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, presented it to the Foundation when its library and museum were established two years ago.

Yes, Quite Probable

Teacher—Tell me, George, why does the cuckoo lay its eggs in the nests of other birds?

George—Probably because of the housing shortage.

Natural

"My dear, he looked so old when he proposed to me."

"Well, darling, look at it as a stepping by way thing."—Boston Transcript.

From The Sentinel Files

Sixty Years Ago

The tug Commodore Nutt is being refitted and repaired preparatory to the season's work.

Mrs. Ruth Hawkes has commenced the erection of a 20x26 residence directly opposite the Sentinel office.

Gen. P. Powell and Co's. Newspaper directory gives Charlevoix as a place "on Green River, six miles from Lake Michigan." Please correct that Mr. Rowell.

The mass meeting on Saturday last declared unanimously in favor of David C. Nettleton for local commissioner for the Harbor Improvement.

Honor Where Honor Is Due—Perhaps to no man in the county are we more indebted for our success than ar in the harbor improvement than Henry Morgan, Esq. His experience, skill, and great energy have rendered him an invaluable assistant to the superintendent. Charlevoix needs more such men as Henry Morgan.

Building starts off briskly and carpenters are in good demand. Our leading builder, Mr. See, has two dwellings and a store building ahead of him and other contracts are offered. The growth of our village the coming summer will far exceed that of any two previous seasons. The future growth and prosperity of our village are unquestioned. The river improvement brings the attention of capitalists, and a general springing up of business interests, and an energetic extention of our village boundaries are certain.

"The situation at the mouth of the river is encouraging in the highest degree. A substantial pier of 168 feet projects lakeward on the north side of the channel. The tug Minnie Warren commenced dredging on Thursday morning and will before the leaves it, make upwards of six feet of water. Meantime, timber is in readiness up the lake to commence a pier on the south side as soon as navigation opens. And, as soon as a commissioner is appointed and the contract let, the appropriation lately granted will be used. No system-atic dredging can be done this summer, but work on the piers will be carried rapidly forward. The spring of 1873 will find nine or more feet of water in Pine River, sure!

Fifty Years Ago

Gollick and Ingalls billiard hall opened Monday.

Next week closes the thirteenth year of the Sentinel existative.

The steamer Lucelle is now making regular trips up Pine Lake and South Arm.

The next meeting of the Common Council will be held at the Odd Fellows hall.

The group of four boat houses on the Charlevoix Summer Resort beach have been demolished by the ice.

Fred Butts was elected supervisor of Chandler, and Anthony O'Donnell of Prairie township, Beaver Island.

The "juveniles" have organized a Historical Society of which Blanche Barthomeuve is president and Florence Smith, secretary. They have weekly meetings.

About noon Friday a cloud of dust appeared over the hill, and soon two horsemen appeared over the bridge, followed by 2 Mile Eaton's cavalcade of Texas horses and mules—all running loose and following the two horses and riders. Bringing up the rear came A. J. Cameron and an assistant in Mexican saddles. The animals, nearly fifty in number, went through town on a gallop, and was a novel sight indeed. They looked thin and train-stained, from their long journey, but oats and hay will soon make good horses of them.

At the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Summer Resort held in the parlors of the Burdick House, Kalamazoo, the following board of directors were chosen:

Peyton Ramey, President.
B. B. Merrill, Vice President.
H. E. Bardeen, Secretary.
E. Woodbury, Treasurer.
Directors, H. W. Page, S. A. Gibson, H. F. Weimer, I. D. Bixby, O. M. Allen.

The Charlevoix Sentinel of March 14th, contains a list of the newly elected village officers, in which are found two names familiar to residents of Marshall. The president of the village is Willard A. Smith, editor of the Sentinel, who made his first acquaintance with newspaper work in this office. A. R. Upright, son of Gen. N. Upright of Corwin, was elected a member of the board of village trustees. The following personal is taken from the Sentinel: A. R. Upright has purchased of W. H. Hurlbut an undivided one-half interest in the north half of the railroad quarter section adjoining the village, opposite court house square. It will be platted into building lots and will be known as Hurlbut and Upright's addition to the village of Charlevoix. It takes in what is known as the Taylor or Kelsey place west of the state road. The owners are considered exceedingly lucky in securing the property, and there is no doubt about their having a bonanza.—Marshall Statesman.

(Continued on last page.)

Three Thousand Persons Answer Call for Antique Upholstery.

Mohair-upholstered furniture, comparatively more than a century old, still in good conditions and that has been in daily use since the time of its purchase, has been discovered by the Household Science Institute of Oakland, in response to a prize offer of $250 for the oldest piece of furniture covered in mohair.

Since the day the contest opened, interesting reports and descriptions of old pieces of furniture have been coming into the institute offices and now a staff is engaged in sorting over the contestants. The contest closes October 1. One sofa entered in the competition is claimed to be at least 200 years old; a chair, one of a set purchased by a bride and groom before the War of 1812, is another interesting entry and there are several articles reported to be at least a century old.

Red was the predominating color in olden days. The samples submitted show, but occasional green ones are entered, suggesting that the modern love of color variety and the preference for "cooler" shades had its beginning many years ago. Along with the modern entries, some of horse hair were received. Unfortunately for the contestants who submitted horse hair, they will not be eligible for the prize, as the winner must submit mohair the hair of the Angora goat.

To date, more than 3,000 entries have been received. Practically every state in the Union has been represented. The most likely claimants for the prize so far are from the East where fine furniture used in the early days and imported from abroad is still cherished possessions of the families.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

uncontrolled war-time credit inflation lifted to lofty pinnacles have been ruthlessly hauled down to conform to an arbitrarily and even brutally enforced and dangerously sweltering gold value. But no corresponding deflation has been attempted—perhaps no corresponding deflation was possible—in the case of fantastic debts and obligations which were as natural and inescapable corollaries of credit inflation as two dollar wheat, ten-dollar shirts and over-priced stock shares and other property. Our chief source of trouble has been a complete lack of balance between the carrying charges on these debt (whether in the form of interest or taxes) and the deflated dollar value of property, products and services.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Statement of Ownership, Management (Circulation, Etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912 of The Charlevoix Sentinel published weekly at Charlevoix, Michigan, for April 1, 1932.

State of Michigan, County of Charlevoix, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Ira A. Adams, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor of the Charlevoix Sentinel and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 411, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher, Ira A. Adams, Charlevoix, Mich.
Editor, Ira A. Adams, Charlevoix, Mich.
Managing Editor, None.
Business Manager, None.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.)
Ira A. Adams, Charlevoix, Mich.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)
None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is (This information is required from daily publications only.)

Ira A. Adams, Editor.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 31st day of March, 1932.

(Seal) Ira A. Adams, Notary Public.

My commission expires Dec. 31, 1932.

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
316 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00
Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 724
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

The SENTINEL For PRINTING

STANDARD RED CROWN

primed for SPRING

MIGHTY POWER
HIGHER ANTI-KNOCK

SPRING SPIRIT! Standard Red Crown—the better gasoline—is seasonally adjusted. In winter it's brimming with quick starting light ends. In summer it's a sparkling, eager fuel, free from troublesome gases that cause vapor-lock. And now—right NOW—it's a dynamic gasoline, ready for the open road. Higher anti-knock. Packed with extra power units to give extra energy. Only a concern with tremendous manufacturing facilities could possibly make a gasoline exactly right for every season of the year. Try Standard Red Crown today. It's adjusted for spring.

Sold at any Standard Oil Service Station and at most garages

It Burns Clean at Any Speed!

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

STANDARD RED CROWN
THE BETTER GASOLINE

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

A Modern Solomon

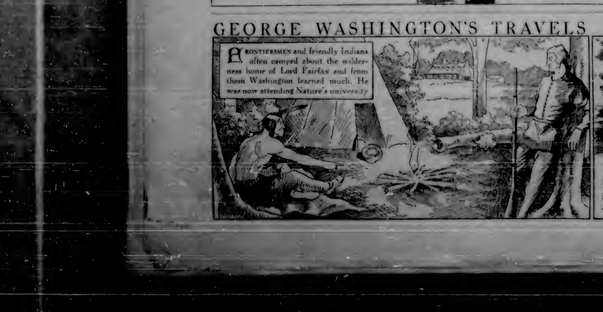
FINNEY OF THE FORCE

The Hardest Farm Job

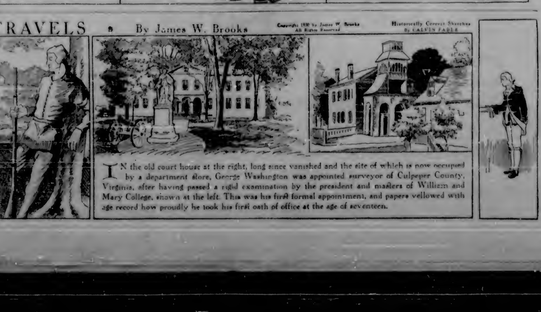
Along the Concrete

Excavating

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe



The Poor Old Boss Must Be Married



GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks

IN the old court house at the right, long since vanished and the site of which is now occupied by a department store, George Washington was appointed surveyor of Culpeper County, Virginia, after having passed a rigid examination by the president and masters of William and Mary College, shown at the left. This was his first formal appointment, and papers yellowed with age record how proudly he took his first oath of office at the age of seventeen.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

— With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries or is his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made especially for children's stomachs. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will stop sleepless little bowels in act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Remember Castoria always has the same

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN—CRY FOR IT

Just How New Yorker Happened to Be "Let In"

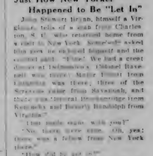
John Stewart Bryan, himself a Virginian, tells of a task Tom Charleston, S. C., who returned home from a visit to New York. Somebody asked him how he enjoyed himself and the answer came: "Fine! We had a great time! Almost all Tallmadge's Oddest Characters were there—Major Tillman from Lamplighter, was there, three of the Seventeen Astor from Savannah, and there was General Hendersonville from Kentucky, and Judge Randolph from Virginia."

"I see made quite with you?"

"No, there were some. Oh, yes; there was a fellow from New York there."

"How did he get in?"

"Why," said the answer, "he was giving the dinner!"—Boston Globe.



Be on the look-out for the common enemy of children. Watch for such symptoms as pickin at mouth, pitting of teeth, poor appetite and frightening dreams. Treat promptly with Comstock's Dead Shot Worm Pellets. Easy for the most sensitive child to take.

COMSTOCK'S WORM PELLETS
15¢ a Box at Druggists
W.H. Comstock Ltd. Morrisburg, Ont.

Duly Attested

When Judge Thomas Riley Marshall presided over ceremonies, every feeling at Galveston and island a fancy was indulged to the fun in a row to Mrs. Hines in Oklahoma to the tin extended. She was attended an affidavit with fourteen signatures attested to legal status that accompanied the form on his way. "Number fourteen weighs this, we we know the affidavit was."

FOR NERVOUSNESS AND HEADACHES

Danville, Ill.

"I experienced a nervous condition and suffered severely with my head. I got sick and tired. I tried a great many remedies but nothing did me any good, said Mrs. Mary Jennelle of 212 N. Jackson St., until my husband was advised to get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. He got me a bottle and I took it regularly for a while. I believed all the nervous headaches and felt much better. All women suffering with nervousness and headaches should take it." All druggists sell

Dr. Pierce's Prescription

Town Hall Tonight

Inspired Youth Desiring of Hamlet Fast—Do you think, sirrah, the Longfellow lays taken her after notice to our president?

"Of a truth, yes. The local grocer is furnishing groceries."

Yet the he men isn't quite as enjoying as the she men.

Headache! NR TO-NIGHT

An NR—NATURE'S REMEDY tablet will promptly start the liver, relieve constipation, sweeten the stomach, relieve sick headache, sourness, and bring welcome relief at once. This all-vegetable tonic laxative is

The All-Vegetable Laxative

NR

Next

Tums for the Tummy! Quick relief for sour stomach, indigestion, heartburn. Tums are candy! Only 10c

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair. Promotes a Luxuriant Growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair. 60c. and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N.Y.

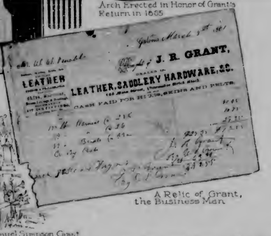
FLORESTON SHAMPOO — Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Keeps the scalp free from dandruff and promotes a healthy growth. 50c.

GRANT and GALENA

Grant Memorial Home

Arch Erected in Honor of Grant's Return in 1865

Statue in Grant Park



A Relic of Grant, the Business Man

Grave of Samuel Simpson Grant

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE date is April 27, 1822. The place is the little backwoods town of Point Pleasant on the Ohio river, 25 miles east of Cincinnati. In the home of Jesse Root Grant, a forebear of a small tannery, his wife, Hannah Simpson Grant, has presented him with his first child, a son.

For the first six weeks of his life the baby is anonymous. Father and mother, it seems, cannot agree upon a name. Then, in the words of W. B. Wentworth in his biography "Ulysses Grant," "It was agreed finally to at chance decide the questions. The essential relatives—for the story runs—wrote the names of their choice on sliced paper, rolled up the slips, and drew one. It was Ulysses, the name that had been proposed by grandmother Simpson. Evidently the outcome was not wholly satisfactory to the maternal part of the family. Somebody who was there announced in looking Hiram on in front of Ulysses in the child was called Hiram Ulysses Grant. A virile name is Hiram, devoid of sweetness and carrying a sense of muscular strength. No doubt it was hoped by the hard-headed forebearers of the family that Ulysses would take into the obscurity of an assumed name its bright lustre. Young Ulysses are known by his name their mother calls them, and himself called her son Ulysses or I say the story.

Thus, the first chapter in the story of a man and a town.

The scene shifts now to the north and west some six inches, on a high point of land rising abruptly from a little river which empties into the mighty Mississippi six miles away, a scene from Kentucky, named Thomas Jeffers, has established himself here and the name of Point Pleasant was looked on to the Jeffersonian Presidencies later Augustus that name to the Fever river and that below, with its unrivaled position on the Mississippi, and with its navigable waters to the ocean of Galena. Galena is the name of the valuable minerals of lead which was mined there.

So while Ulysses Grant is growing up into a lanky young manhood back in Ohio, the mining men on the Fever river is growing into the busy, stirring community of Galena in the new state of Illinois. Many roads lead to Galena, because this is still the heart of the lurious country, and the rich ore has given things the white men wants and conveyed. But the thing which is lowering a rush of migration there and which would have doomed it to speedy oblivion is the sudden decline of the lead mining industry.

The outbreak of the Black Hawk war in 1832 gave Galena additional prominence for a short, sanguinary career, directed by Sauk leaders and who was built around the little settlement and it was converted into a military camp as a place of refuge for the settlers. With the passing of the Indian threat, the town boomed with additional mining activity. By 1845 the town was the important river port after Minneapolis and north of St. Louis. It had a population of 15,000. All steamers which plied the river between Western waterways came up the little river and that up at the Galena levee to load and unload.

Next to St. Louis, Galena was the most important town in the state and citizenship began suffering from diseases of grandeur. The immediate impression that it would soon overshadow the old French and Spanish metropolis to the South. Some men even went into that it would soon be displayed in importance by a little town named Chicago, which boasted only among the residents on the shores of Lake Michigan, they would have laughed to scorn the prophecy.

For certain visitors to Galena West in those days visited visitors. And "everybody" included national and state celebrities. Through the years of the service headaches and felt much better. All women suffering with nervousness and headaches should take it." All druggists sell

Dr. Pierce's Prescription

Town Hall Tonight

Inspired Youth Desiring of Hamlet Fast—Do you think, sirrah, the Longfellow lays taken her after notice to our president?

"Of a truth, yes. The local grocer is furnishing groceries."

Yet the he men isn't quite as enjoying as the she men.

Headache! NR TO-NIGHT

An NR—NATURE'S REMEDY tablet will promptly start the liver, relieve constipation, sweeten the stomach, relieve sick headache, sourness, and bring welcome relief at once. This all-vegetable tonic laxative is

The All-Vegetable Laxative

NR

Next

Tums for the Tummy! Quick relief for sour stomach, indigestion, heartburn. Tums are candy! Only 10c

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair. Promotes a Luxuriant Growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair. 60c. and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N.Y.

FLORESTON SHAMPOO — Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Keeps the scalp free from dandruff and promotes a healthy growth. 50c.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

LA PERICHOLE

WHEN Theodosia Wilder across the "bridge of Ben Luis Ferry, he he crossed from Ohio. Ferry, the modern a wooden pontoon bridge, its carriage, perhaps, for the use of the wealthy and city's most romantic old bridge, just of Cassilis de Pericholes. La Pericholes of the times was a famous in her dances and actress very beauty to serve to expose when "one was startled to discover that the nose was long and then the mouth too small and a little children the eyes unbalanced." Wonder tells us of her love affairs with that wounded and genuine Don Andres Otheary of Peru, and of her conversion to a convent after her beauty was marred by smallpox scars.

The real Pericholes lived in the Eighteenth century. Of humble parentage, made way for valor and her gift of memory that she was a sensation on the world's stage, and after while still in her early twenties, and the magnificent castle where for two in his honor. Manuel de Amat, Spanish viceroy in Peru in real life gave her still steady art to stand as barracks and prison by the Lima police. A Peruvian biographer describes her as "small of stature and somewhat plump her movements full of vivacity. Her actual face was pale brunette and even during her most successful days potted in smallpox marks, which she skillfully concealing with cosmetics. Her small, black eyes were lighted by expressive animation. Her nose was, shall we say, snubbed, and a little mole on her upper lip gave her large mouth an irresistible charm.

JOHNNY APPLESEED

A BELIEVED legend of our days of westward expansion is the story of Johnny Appleseed, known to every settler along the Pennsylvania and Ohio frontier, and in many byways, alive, as Johnny Appleseed. It was on his mission to plant along the paths newly hewn into the wilderness apple trees to give welcome shade and refreshing fruit to the hordes to come. He was an eccentric figure, ragged with sacks of apple seeds salvaged each autumn from the cider mills. The small boys of the frontier regarded him (as rightly he was) as kin and even the Indians considered him a harmless relic of the Great Spirit. He was known as the apostle

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15
Junior Church, 6:00
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Mid-week Service, Thurs 7:30
Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:15.
Sunday School, 11:00
Young People's Service, 5:00

We will announce the new series of sermons next Sunday. The suggestions from the congregation has helped materially in deciding upon this subject.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting 6:30
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject: April 24—"Probation After Death."

Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 4:30 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Keuch, Pastor

"Set for the defense of the Gospel of the Grace of God." "There is none other name given among men whereby we must be saved."

Morning Worship, 10:30
Bible School, 11:45
B. Y. P. U. 6:00
Evening Worship, 7 p. m.

Sunday closes our associational year. Let us make as good a record as possible by all being present. The annual meeting of the association will be held with the Petoskey church, May 25 and 26.

A special meeting of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society will be held at the church Wednesday evening, April 27.

The program is being arranged by Mrs. James Maggison. The Guild Girls will give a demonstration of their work in the form of a playlet. The devotional service will be in charge of Mrs. Harlan McGhan.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor

April 24—"Our Lighting Plant and God's".

May 1—"Good Business Advertising; or, Creating a Demand in Religion." Note dates.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. Milton Block, on State St. The Aid Society meets for a regular afternoon meeting next week Tuesday, with Mrs. Hooker, on Antrim Street.

The early hour of the new time last Sunday seemed to make little difference with the attendance. No change is announced, for the present in the time of the various services and meetings of the church.

Mrs. W. W. Hurd delivered the address for the Mother and Daughter Banquet Tuesday evening, in Elk Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. Hurd were entertained by his former District Superintendent, Rev. and Mrs. J. C. DeVinney.

FROM THE SENTINEL FILES

(Continued from fifth page.)

FORTY YEARS AGO

"No. 105" locomotive came down from Petoskey for the first time Thursday.

Geo. W. Miller returned from Chicago Sunday, bringing with him Faulkner's young $75 Irish setter. Mr. Faulkner will arrive the latter part of May.

We consider bicycle riding undignified and out of place for a gentleman of mature years. We have formed our opinion after two days of vain effort to mount one of the things.

Wm. L. Stiger, the "lone fisherman" of Antrim City, was in town Monday. Mr. Stiger takes exceptions to certain statements made in "melange" concerning the present status of the town of which he is "burgomeister". He claims the place is booming, and bids fair to surpass its ancient glory, that Atwood is green with envy. In addition to his own extensive fishing establishment, Dan Flannegan has a shingle mill and store and ships quite extensively. Mr. Stiger lived in Charlevoix when there were but four houses. In 1867 he built Fox's dock on Lake Michigan.

MEMORIES

Lieut. Walter Clifford, U. S. A., was a brother of the Newman's, of this place. In anti-bellum times his name was Edward Walter Clifford Newman, but in a moment of thoughtlessness, he enlisted as a private in a regular regiment under his two middle names. His courage and ability won him promotion, his warrants and commissions bearing the name of "Walter Clifford". Under this name he was married at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., and later, in this county, he had that name legalized in the probate court.

* * *

The scribe was one of a crowd that welcomed the propeller Fountain City from Buffalo, the first trip in the spring of 1868. Someone remarked that "Lieut. Clifford" was aboard." Jack Ingalls observed: "Clifford is a Captain now" and so he was, and one of the first to land was Clifford. For three years he remained here "unassigned", and may be classed as a prominent figure in the pioneer history of Charlevoix. Clifford was, during those years, the life of our little social circle, and an enthusiastic believer in the future of Charlevoix. Indirectly he went into mercantile business here, with his brother, W. C. Newman and built for a store building on the south side of Round Lake, known now as the "Tip Miller place." His residence on the south terrace, was afterward occupied by O. D. Wood and lately burned.

* * *

Clifford was an original and striking character. His rapid promotion in the regular army from the ranks to a captaincy, is sufficient evidence of his ability and courage, while his geniality and keen appreciation of humor was proverbial. He was never happier than when perpetrating a practical joke upon some one. Straight as an arrow, solidarity in every way, courteous and kind, he was every inch an "officer and a gentleman;" but his propensity for fun asserted itself with astonishing frequency. "Corporal Tom Kelly" was his favorite victim and many a prank did he play upon the old veteran. The scribe did not escape his penchant for deviltry, and yet remembers one cold November night, when he was enticed from his editorial den and held prisoner on the street, coatless and shivering, to sing "Larboard Watch" with him, release only being granted after the fourth and last verse had awakened every resident of the street.

* * *

But the brave Captain's pride received a shock one memorable Fourth of July. A celebration had been arranged, with Major Green as orator, and Capt. Clifford as marshal. At nine o'clock on the morning of the 4th, the Captain, in uniform of his rank, and astride about the only decent horse there was in the county, repaired to Dick Cooper's from where the "column" was to move to the grove, where J. D. Bartholomew's residence now stands. Not even a drum headed that procession. Clifford led, and about a dozen of us followed him across the old wooden bridge. Clifford marshaled the crowd to the grove and was seen no more that day. When next the scribe saw him his first words were: "If my colonel had seen me that day he would have had me courtmartialed." And his laugh could be heard across the harbor.

* * *

The crack of a rifle could be safely set down as Clifford shooting loons with his Winchester. He was a "dead shot" as the Indians in the White River campaign discovered to their sorrow. He was an enthusiast in harbor improvement matters, and contributed freely on all occasions. Although possessing an enviable war record, and two brevets "for meritorious conduct in the field", he was never boastful. His order to report for duty assigned him as Indian agent at Fort Berthold, Dakota, in which capacity he served for several years, winning warm commendation from his superiors, for his tact and courage, displayed in the management of a semi-hostile tribe.

* * *

Later, on his assignment to the 7th Infantry, he was plunged into the Indian troubles preceding and succeeding the Custer massacre, and when Sitting Bull was rounded up, Captain was detailed by Gen. Gibbon to bring in the chief and his band which he did, accompanied only by a sergeant and interpreter. In the White River campaign he commanded a column sent in pursuit of a hostile, and was once reported killed. He was proud of his profession and his flag but sometimes fell afoul of with his West Point superiors by his "mus-ang" reckless ness. It is related that once, while officer of the day, he doffed his uniform and soundly thrashed an important potentate who had remarked to the Captain that his shoulder straps were all that saved him from his wrath. But his straps were won in the smoke of battle and even West Pointers respected him.

His leave of absence was spent in Charlevoix and the last evening here he spent at the residence of the scribe, relating the stirring incidents of his Indian campaigns. He left Charlevoix next day, never to return again. He had but just reached his western post when he died suddenly from heart disease. Always popular with his men, his death was sincerely mourned by them and in that far off deserted military post, a beautiful monument, erected by his company, marks the last lavouac of a brave soldier. The scribe, soon after, went personally to Gen. Sheridan, in Chicago, to arrange, if possible, for the removal of the remains to Charlevoix, but in the absence of any army regulation covering the case, it could not be accomplished. The Captain considered Charlevoix his home, and took a deep interest in its welfare.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

What do you think about Charlevoix sugar in your coffee next winter?

A committee of the Galesburg resort people who recently bought the Walcutt farm, near Ironton, are here this week and bought the material for 12 cottages to be erected at once on the grounds.

One by one the landmarks are disappearing. Monday the lone pine tree on the bluff near the mouth of the river was cut down to make room for the new Harris residence. This tree was one of a group that stood on the bluff in Mormon times, that gave this point the name of "Pine River." Thus the ruthless hand of man is slowly but surely destroying the landmarks.

The Grand Traverse Masonic picnic and convention for Charlevoix, July 16th, may be put down as a certainty.

On Tuesday N. A. French a past-master of Kalkaska lodge was here and attended the regular communication of Charlevoix lodge, and action was taken that may be considered definite.

A committee was appointed consisting of the following members of Charlevoix lodge: E. H. Greer, H. L. Giddings, W. A. Smith, J. W. Harris, F. G. Hines.

Now for heaven's sake don't croak any longer. Get into the procession and participate in the sweetness.

The blindfolded drive of Prof. Hemstreet, Tuesday, was a most remarkable demonstration of mental telepathy. The committee, Doctors Armstrong, Auld and Wicks, started out from the Opera House with a team and carriage, leaving Prof. Hemstreet in charge of another committee. Dr. Armstrong did the driving, and the rig went around several squares, bringing up at the Cook's drug store, where the committee secreted a small knife on an upper shelf. Returning to the Opera House Hemstreet was carefully blindfolded, conducted to the carriage, the committee being seated with him. Hemstreet took the reins and started off with a brisk trot. He turned the corner at Main street, again at State and in fact followed the route precisely by the committee, all the time at lively pace. He seemed to mentally see every approaching team, and handled his horse with as great skill as if he could see. At Cook's store he drew up, alighted, and entered the store, went to the shelf, and after ten minutes search brought out the knife. It was an amazing exhibition, and proved Hemstreet to be a marvel.

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples. Carloads only. Pay highest market prices. The Hamilton Co., New Castle, Pa. 5116

PURE MAPLE SYRUP made in Gratiot County, best quality, $2.00 per gallon. Bion H. Naldrett, 623 Kalamazoo Ave., Petoskey. 5114

If troubled with headache, dizziness, nervousness or any other symptom of eyestrain, consult Dr. Leahy the Optometrist when he comes Monday, May 2nd.

CAROLE LOMBARD
CINDERELLA MODEL
IN FILM CAREER

No one, sketching through the highlights of Carole Lombard's meteoric career, can say without a flush at having falsified, that Cinderella stories do not come true.

Miss Lombard, featured in "No One Man", a story done in the modern manner by Rupert Hughes and to be offered as a Paramount screen headliner at the Palace Theatre for two days beginning Wednesday, was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Seven years later, having miraculously escaped all the pitfalls of child prodigy, which fate easily might have been here in view of her youthful imagination, she arrived with her mother and two older brothers in Hollywood.

Ensuing years found her time divided between school, apparent chips in Mack Sennett comedies, ingenue roles for Fox and Pathe, and fine generalship in mapping her campaign of battle for future and greater stardom.

Who knows but that acquiring the part of William Powell one day, found a place in those early plans?

After a small part for Paramount in "Safety in Numbers", she was called to New York and accepted an important role in "Fast and Loose". Three days after she began work in this production at the New York studio, she was notified that she had been willed a sizable sum by a relative. Before the picture was completed, she had been signed to a long term contract.

Perhaps it was just coincidence that her new estate in life all topped in on her whole her cinema role was that of a poor little girl who suddenly found happiness, wealth and position.

For Carole has known what it means to work for bread and board. She has done without dessert when her sweet tooth fairly ached for saccharine satisfaction; she has stoutly maintained the rights of losses in debate with unsympathetic, and if you understand, unhearing, landlords and landladies.

Being a sensible young lady, Miss Lombard has not allowed success to turn her head. She is still the sincere, friendly, happy-go-lucky girl that women refer to as a "peach at heart" and whom men call "a brick."

Her skin is exceptionally fair, her eyes are blue with an aura of innocence, she is informal, wisecracking, not an ounce ritzy—but very fastidious about her comfort and wardrobe.

"No One Man," perhaps the plum of her histronic career, is her first picture appearance after an extended vacation, including a honeymoon to Honolulu with William Powell, the man she was featured with in the Paramount pictures, "Man of the World" and "Ladies' Man."

Monday, May 2nd, is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Difficult cases solicited.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale or mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan. The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Evan A. Kuegeger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Harry Hibbler, Mentally Incompetent.

Gerald W. Richardson, Guardian, having filed in said court his petition praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described.

It is Ordered, That the 9th day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Evan A. Kuegeger,
5113 Judge of Probate.

Breakwater fishing will be in order May 1st, just ten days hence. With this in view local sportsmen are polishing their reels, testing lines and leaders, looking after their artificial Fly assortments, cleaning up creels and tackle boxes and a little later will be digging bait and looking for night crawlers, all looking forward for a good day on some favorite stream with the opening day of the season.

Attorney E. S. Clink and Mrs. Clink of East Jordan, were business visitors in Charlevoix Wednesday.

Mr. George Strain who first came to Charlevoix fifty years ago last week, for many years thereafter a resident of the county, but for some years past living in Detroit, spent a few days here this week with relatives and renewing old time friends.

FOR SALE—An 11 room residence 201 Alice St., Charlevoix. Mich. Modern. Partly furnished. Cash or terms. Address W. 7917 St. Paul Ave. Detroit, Mich. 5212

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing

104 W. Garfield

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.
Cherryvale Hatchery, E. Jordan
Phone 116 F 2 44t6

For Sale

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
6tf S. T. Gokee, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 1tf

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Employers often summon additional help by telephone

When applicants apply for work today, they usually are asked to leave their telephone numbers. For the easiest and quickest way to summon additional help is by telephone.

In many instances, other things being equal, the person who can be reached by telephone gets the job.

Your telephone is one of your most important business and social assets. And, in emergencies, such as fire, accident or sudden sickness, your telephone is PRICELESS PROTECTION.

Announcement

At the solicitation of my friends, I announce my candidacy for State Representative for the Charlevoix-Leelanau District at the September Primary. I have always supported the Republican principles of Government and for the past four years served as Chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Committee.

I stand for drastic reduction on Real Estate taxes and the equalization of our school taxes.

Having conducted a successful mercantile industry in Boyne Falls for the past thirty years and serving as President of the State Bank for the past twelve years, together with my knowledge of farm needs, I have had a varied experience which my friends state should qualify me as your Representative at Lansing.

HERMAN C. MEYER

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On the 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905 1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. J. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

HAVE YOU HEARD PEOPLE TELL what they will do "when their ship comes in"? But the trouble is, most of these people never sent their ship OUT!

Successful folks don't wait for ships to come in. They simply send less than they earn and save the difference. And isn't today the best day to start a Savings Account?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Roen
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, APRIL 23, 24

"Charlie Chan's Chance"

With Warner Oland, Alexander Kirkland, H. B. Warner, Linda Watkins, Marion Nixon

When man-hunts fail, Chan finds the woman. Unmasks her face! Unveils her past! And solves the perfect crime!

Added Attraction—Two Cartoons.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 28

"No One Man"

With

Carole Lombard, Ricardo Cortez, Paul Lukas.

Men at her feet! Yet where is the one great, god-like man to hold the heart of this dazzling, dangerous daughter of the rich?

Added Attraction—"All Sealed Up."

NOTE:—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15
Junior Church, 6:00
Young People's Service, 7:00
Mid-week Service, Thurs. 7:30
Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:15
Sunday School, 11:00
Young People's Service, 5:00.

We will announce the new series of sermons next Sunday. The suggestions from the congregation has helped materially in deciding upon this subject.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, April 24: "Probation After Death"
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

"Set for the defense of the Gospel of the Grace of God." There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

Morning Worship, 10:45
Bible School, 11:45
B. Y. P. U. 6:00
Evening Worship, 7 p. m

Sunday closes our associational year. Let us make as good record as possible by all being present. The annual meeting of the association will be held with the Petoskey church May 25 and 26.

A special meeting of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society will be held at the church Wednesday evening, April 27.

The program is being arranged by Mrs. James Meggison. The Guild Girls will give a demonstration of their work in the form of a playlet. The devotional service will be in charge of Mrs. Harlan Metcalf.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

April 24—"Our Lighting Agent, and God's".

May 1—"Good Business Advertising or, Creating a Demand in Religion." Note dates.

The Club meets this week Thursday, with Mrs. Milton Block, on State St. The A. I. Society meets for a regular afternoon meeting next week Tuesday, with Mrs. Hooker, on Antrim Street.

The early hour of the new time last Sunday seemed to make little difference with the attendance. No change is announced for the present in the time of the various services and meetings of the church.

Mrs. W. W. Hurd delivered the address for the Mother and Daughter Banquet Tuesday evening, in Big Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. Hurd were entertained by his former District Superintendent, Rev. and Mrs. J. C. DeVinney.

FROM THE SENTINEL FILES

(Continued from fifth page)

FORTY YEARS AGO

"No. 103" locomotive came down from Petoskey for the first time Thursday.

Geo. W. Meyer returned from Chicago Sunday, bringing with him Faulkner's young $75 Irish setter. Mr. Faulkner will arrive the latter part of May.

We consider bicycle riding undignified and out of place for a gentleman of mature years. We have formed this opinion after two days of vain effort to mount one of the things.

Wm. L. Stiger, the "lone fisherman" of Antrim Lake, was in town Monday. Mr. Stiger takes exceptions to certain statements made in "memoirs" concerning the present status of the town of which he is "burgomeister". He claims the place is booming, and is to far surpass its ancient glory that Atwood is green with envy. In addition to his own extensive fishing establishment, Dan Pennegar has a shingle mill and flume and ships quite extensively. Mr. Stiger lived in Charlevoix when there were but four houses. In 1867 he built Fox's dock on Lake Michigan.

MEMORIES

Lieut. Walter Clifford, U. S. A., was a brother of the Newman's, of this place. In anti-bellum times his name was Edward Walter Clifford Newman, but to a consent of thought oneness, he enlisted as a private in a regular regiment under his two middle names. His courage and ability won him promotion, his warrants and commissions bearing the name of "Walter Clifford". Under this name he was married at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., and later, in this county, he had that name legalized in the probate court.

The scribe was one of a crowd that welcomed the propeller Fountain City from Buffalo, the first trip in the spring of 1869. Someone remarked that "Lieut. Clifford" was aboard." Jack Ingalls observed "Clifford is a Captain now" and so he was; and one of the first to land was Clifford. For three years he remained here "unassigned", and may be classed as a prominent figure in the pioneer history of Charlevoix. Clifford was, during those years, the life of our little social circle, and an enthusiastic believer in the future of Charlevoix. Indirectly he went into mercantile business here, with his brother, W. C. Newman and built for a store building on the south side of Round Lake, known now as the "Tip Miller place." His residence on the south terrace, was afterward occupied by O. D. Wood and lately burned.

* * *

Clifford was an original and striking character. His rapid promotion in the regular army from the ranks to a captaincy, in sufficient evidence of his ability and courage, while his geniality and keen appreciation of humor was proverbial. He was never happier than when perpetrating a practical joke upon some one. Straight as an arrow, soldierly in every way, courteous and kind, he was every inch an "officer and a gentleman," but his propensity for fun asserted itself with astonishing frequency. "Corporal Tom Kelly" was his favorite victim and many a prank did he play upon the old veteran. The scribe did not escape his penchant for deviltry, and yet remembers one cold November night, when he was called from his editorial den and held prisoner on the street, coatless and shivering, to sing "Larboard Watch" with him, release only being granted after the fourth and last verse had awakened every resident of the street.

* * *

But the brave Captain's pride received a shock one memorable Fourth of July. A celebration had been arranged, with Major Green as orator, and Capt Clifford as marshal. At nine o'clock on the morning of the 4th, the Captain, in uniform of his rank, and astride about the only decent horse there was in the county, repaired to Dick Cooper's from where the "column" was to move to the grove, where L. D. Bartholomew's residence now stands. Not even a drum headed that procession. Clifford led, and about a dozen of us followed him across the old wooden bridge. Clifford marshaled the crowd to the grove and was seen no more that day. When next the scribe saw him his first words were: "If my colonel had seen me that day he would have had me courtmartialed." And his wrath could be heard across the harbor.

* * *

The crack of a rifle could be safely set down as Clifford shooting loons with his Winchester. He was a "dead shot" as the Indians in the White River campaign discovered to their sorrow. He was an enthusiast in harbor improvement matters, and contributed freely on all occasions. Although possessing an enviable war record, and two brevets "for meritorious conduct in the field", he was never boastful. His order to report for duty assigned him as Indian agent at Fort Berthold, Dakota, in which capacity he served for several years, winning warm commendation from his superiors, for his tact and courage, displayed in the management of a semi-hostile tribe.

* * *

Later, on his assignment to the 6th Infantry, he was plunged into the Indian troubles preceding and succeeding the Custer massacre, and when Sitting Bull was rounded up, the Captain was detailed by Gen. Gibbon to bring in the chief and his band which he did, accompanied only by a sergeant and interpreter. In the White River campaign he commanded a column sent in pursuit of the hostiles and was severely injured by a fall. He was proud of his profession and his flag but sometimes fell afoul of his West Point superiors by his "mustang" recklessness. It is related that once, while officer of the day, he doffed his uniform and soundly thrashed an intoxicated private who had remarked to the Captain that his shoulder straps were all that saved him from his wrath. But his straps were won in the smoke of battle and even West Pointers respected him.

His leave of absence was spent in Charlevoix and the last evening here he spent at the residence of the scribe, relating the stirring incidents of his Indian campaigns. He left Charlevoix next day, never to return again. He had but just reached his western post when he died suddenly from heart disease. Always popular with his men, his death was sincerely mourned by them and in that far off deserted military post, a beautiful monument, erected by his company, marks the last honours of a brave soldier. The scribe, soon after, went personally to Gen. Sheridan, in Chicago, to arrange, if possible, for the removal of the remains to Charlevoix, but in the absence of any army regulation covering the case, it could not be accomplished. The Captain considered Charlevoix his home, and took a deep interest in its welfare.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

What do you think about Charlevoix sugar in your coffee next winter?

A committee of the Galesburg resorts people who recently bought the Walcutt farm, near Ironton, are here this week and bought the material for 12 cottages to be erected at once on the grounds.

One by one the landmarks are disappearing. Monday the lone pine tree on the bluff near the mouth of the river was cut down to make room for the new Harris residence. This tree was one of a group that stood on the bluff in Mormon times, that gave this point the name of "Pine River." Thus the ruthless hand of man is slowly but surely destroying the landmarks.

The Grand Traverse Masonic picnic and convention for Charlevoix, July 16th, may be put down as a certainty.

On Tuesday N. A. French a past master of Kalkaska lodge was here and attended the regular communication of Charlevoix lodge, and action was taken that may be considered definite.

A committee was appointed consisting of the following members of Charlevoix lodge: E. H. Green, H. L. Giddings, W. A. Smith, J. W. Harris, F. G. Hines.

Now for heaven's sake don't croak any longer. Get into the procession and participate in the sweetness.

The blindfolded drive of Prof. Hemstreet, Tuesday, was a most remarkable demonstration of mental telepathy. The committee, Doctors Armstrong, Auld and Wicks, started out from the Opera House with a team and carriage, leaving Prof. Hemstreet in charge of another committee. Dr. Armstrong did the driving, and the rig went around several squares, bringing up at the Cook's drug store, where the committee secreted a small knife on an upper shelf. Returning to the Opera house Hemstreet was carefully blindfolded, conducted to the carriage, the committee being seated with him. Hemstreet took the reins and started off with a brisk trot. He turned the corner at Main street, again at State and in fact followed the route previously by the committee, all the time at lively pace. He seemed to mentally see every approaching team, and handled his horse with as great skill as if he could see. At Cook's store he drew up, alighted, and entered the store, went to the shelf, and after ten minutes search brought out the knife. It was an amazing exhibition, and proved Hemstreet to be a marvel.

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples. Carloads only. Pay highest market prices. The Hamilton Co., New Castle, Pa. 5116

PURE MAPLE SYRUP made in Gratiot County, best quality. $2.00 per gallon. Bion H. Naldrett, 623 Kalamazoo Ave., Petoskey. 5114

If troubled with headache dizziness, nervousness or any other symptom of eyestrain, consult Dr. Leahy the Optometrist when he comes Monday, May 2nd.

CAROLE LOMBARD CINDERELLA MODEL IN FILM CAREER

No one, sketching through the highlights of Carole Lombard's screen career, can say without a flash at having falsified, that Cinderella stories do not come true.

Miss Lombard, featured in "No One Man", a story done in the modern manner by Rupert Hughes and to be offered as a Paramount screen headliner at the Palace Theatre for six days beginning Wednesday, was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Seven years later, having miraculously escaped all the pitfalls of child prodigy, which fate easily might have been here in view of her youthful magnetism, she arrived with her mother and two older brothers in Hollywood.

Ensuing years found her torn divided between school, appearing leads in Mack Sennett comedies, leading ships for Fox and Pathe, and finally generalship to mapping her campaign of battle for future and bigger stardom.

Who knows but that a spraying the heart of William Powell one day found a place in those early plans?

After a small part for Paramount in "Safety in Numbers", she was called to New York and accepted an important role in "Fast and Loose". Three days after she began work in this production at the New York studio, she was notified that she had been widowed a sizable sum by a relative. Before the picture was completed, she had been signed to a long term contract.

Perhaps it was just coincidence that her new estate in life all toppled in on her, while her stardom role was that of a poor little girl who suddenly found happiness, wealth and position.

For Carole has known what it means to work for bread and board. She has done without dessert when her sweet tooth fairly ached for satisfaction, she has stoutly maintained the rights of losers in debate with unsympathetic, and if you understand, undressing, landlords and landladies.

Being a sensible young lady, Miss Lombard has not allowed success to turn her head. She is still the sincere, friendly, happy go-lucky girl that women refer to as a "smart, at least" and whom men call "a brick".

Her skin is exceptionally fair, her eyes are blue with an aura of intensity, she is informal, wisecracking, yet an entire city could very fastidious about her clothes and manners.

"No One Man," perhaps the piece of her heretofore cameos, to her first picture appearance after an extended vacation, including a honeymoon to Honolulu with William Powell. On such she was featured with in the Paramount pictures, "Man of the World" and "Ladies' Man."

Monday, May 2nd, is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Difficult cases solicited.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale or mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan. The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Harry Hobbler, Mentally Incompetent.

Gerard W. Richardson, Guardian, having filed in said court his petition praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described.

It is Ordered, That the 9th day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Ruegsegger,
5113 Judge of Probate.

Broadcast fishing will be in order May 1st just ten days hence. With this in view local sportsmen are putting their reels, feeding lines and leaders, looking after their artificial fly assortment, cleaning up creels and baitboxes and a little later will be digging bait and looking for night crawlers, all looking forward for a good day on some favorite stream until the opening day of the season.

Attorney E. S. Clink and Mrs. Bessie Lathrop of East Jordan, were business visitors in Charlevoix Wednesday.

Mr. George Ryder who first came to Charlevoix fifty years ago last June, for many years thereafter a summer visitor, but for some years past living in Detroit, spent a few days here this week with relatives and visiting old time friends.

FOR SALE—An 11 room residence 307 Alice St., Charlevoix. Modern. Partly furnished. Cash or terms. Address W. 7917 St. Paul Ave., Detroit, Mich. 5212

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing

104 W. Garfield

BABY CHICKS—Until July, one day old to four weeks old. White Rocks Barred Rocks, Reds and Leghorns. Custom Hatching.
Cherryvale Hatchery, E. Jordan
Phone 116 F-2 4416

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
8tf S. T. Gokey, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information,
E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich.
1tf

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Does his spirit still live? Is his faith in the future of this country our faith? Is his will to make the best of difficult situations our will? Is his courage to overcome obstacles our courage?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and march on.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres., A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres., A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

HAVE YOU HEARD PEOPLE TELL what they will do "when their ship comes in"? But the trouble is, most of these people never sent their ship OUT!

Successful folks don't wait for ships to come in. They simply spend less than they earn and save the difference. And isn't today the best day to start a Savings Account?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank

"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Roen
Ernest J. Hitler Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, APRIL 23, 24

"Charlie Chan's Chance"

With Warner Oland, Alexander Kirkland, H. B. Warner, Linda Watkins, Marion Nixon

When man-hunts fail, Chan finds the woman. Un-masks her face! Unveils her past! And solves the perfect crime!

Added Attractions—Two Cartoons.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 28

"No One Man"

With

Carole Lombard, Ricardo Cortez, Paul Lukas.

Men at her feet! Yet where is the one great, god-like man to hold the heart of this dazzling, dangerous daughter of the rich?

Added Attractions—"All Sealed Up."

NOTE—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Employers often summon additional help by telephone

When applicants apply for work today, they usually are asked to leave their telephone numbers. For the easiest and quickest way to summon additional help is by telephone.

In many instances, other things being equal, the person who can be reached by telephone gets the job.

Your telephone is one of your most important business and social assets. And, in emergencies, such as fire, accident or sudden sickness, your telephone is PRICELESS PROTECTION.

Announcement

At the solicitation of my friends, I announce my candidacy for State Representative for the Charlevoix-Leelanau District at the September Primary. I have always supported the Republican principles of Government and for the past four years served as Chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Committee.

I stand for drastic reduction on Real Estate taxes and the equalization of our school taxes.

Having conducted a successful mercantile industry in Boyne Falls for the past thirty years and serving as President of the State Bank for the past twelve years, together with my knowledge of farm needs, I have had a varied experience which my friends state should qualify me as your Representative at Lansing.

HERMAN C. MEYER

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1932 Number 1

LOCAL SCHOOLS TO ENTERTAIN

PLANS COMPLETED FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL FOR MAY 6

On Friday the sixth of May, Charlevoix will be host to High School music organizations from a considerable number of Northern Michigan Cities. Already definite enrollments have been received from East Jordan, Gaylord, Onekama, Kingsley, Charlevoix, Traverse City and Alpena. Bands, Orchestras, Glee Clubs, Mixed Choruses and Ensembles will take part in the program that this year is a departure from the contest type of most of other years. Competing music organizations will be rated as excellent, average, very good, etc., as decided by the adjudicators but rank as to first, second and third place will not be given. The festival idea is likewise inaugurated this year for the first time and the activities of the day will be climaxed by a massed performance of all the visiting groups. Vocal and instrumental selections will be presented "en masse" that the individual schools have been preparing for the past several months. Guest conductors will be present and all who attend (and all are invited to attend) may be assured of an unique musical treat.

Between three hundred and four hundred High School students will take part, representing the music departments of their respective schools, and undoubtedly many more parents and interested townspeople will follow their music groups to Charlevoix for this event.

Further announcement of more definite nature will be made through the school in the next two or three days so that persons interested may be informed of the exact hours for the various events in the program.

DISTRICT CONVENTION OLDER BOYS Y M C A

The Northern District Convention of the State Y. M. C. A. work held in Petoskey last Saturday, was the largest by far of all such meetings previously held. Over two hundred boys, and their group leaders, sat down to the banquet at 6:30 in the Disciples Church. The other meetings were in the High School.

The programme, as previously announced in detail, in our local press, was carried out about as planned. The addresses were of a high order. The president of Hillsdale College, Dr. W. G. Spencer addressed the boys in the afternoon and at the banquet, and also a group of clergymen, otherwise invited, at the noon hour in the Disciples' Church.

Of the Charlevoix group Parker, Bird, Winder, Livingston, McCann Smith, McCartney with leader, Rev. W. W. Hurd and Greenman, Levinson, Roen, Godstick, Hansen, with leader Pat Moran from the J. Y. were in attendance, with Rev. Parker, Rev. Rauch and Mr. North of the High School in attendance either all or part of the day. William White of Boyne City, was elected District President for the ensuing year.

SCHOOL BAND TO GIVE FREE CONCERT APRIL 29

Friday night, April 29, at 8 p. m. is the date and time of the annual spring music concert for the Charlevoix Public Schools. The school band will furnish the majority of the program which will be assisted by the Mixed Chorus and Girls Glee Club under the direction of Miss Esther Mary Atkinson.

A varied list of interesting and pleasing numbers will comprise the band program. Several marches, serenades, overtures and waltzes are included in the program. Three of the numbers on this program will be used in the music contest here on May 6 and 7.

The public is cordially invited to attend this concert, no admission will be charged. Children are asked to come with parents.

Fire at the residence of William D. Hicken at 308 Mason Street, Saturday afternoon necessitated calling the fire department to the scene. Some considerable amount of damage was done to the roof and interior of the structure before the department succeeded in their effort to save the property from total destruction.

Mr. George A. Burke of Grayling accompanied by his nephew and niece Mr. and Mrs. George Burke of Toledo, visited Charlevoix friends Thursday afternoon.

JOAN BENNETT'S ROLE PROVES IMPORTANCE OF HER VERSATILITY

As an example of the variety of accomplishments necessary for a starring career in pictures, Joan Bennett's role in "She Wanted A Million," forthcoming Fox production to be shown at the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, serves perfectly.

Miss Bennett is first shown as a factory worker, fitting of which called for her to actually operate one of the large weaving machines in the Goodyear plant at Los Angeles. In the later sequences of the picture she is shown swimming, dancing, appearing as a contestant in two different beauty contests, singing and riding.

It was while filming the riding scene, in which Joan is seen with her riding master in a Parisian park, that she was thrown from the unruly horse, resulting in the painful accident that kept her near death in a Los Angeles hospital for weeks. After her complete recovery, and work had started once more on the picture, Joan bravely mounted the horse again and rode fearlessly in front of the hooded cameras that has caused the animal to become unmanageable.

In addition to the varied accomplishments she is called upon to display, Joan has over twenty costume changes in the picture, or nearly three times as many as are used in the ordinary production. These run the complete list of feminine attire from the printed house apron of her small-town days, the blue-denim smock of the factory, up to the lovely gown she wears at the Coronation Ball when she is named Miss Universe at Atlantic City and the dazzling costume in which she is made Queen of the Quat'z Arts Ball, in Paris.

Spencer Tracy, who is co-featured as the youthful sweetheart whose love finally prevails over Joan's determination to have none but a millionaire husband, also is seen as a resourceful young man. From the call of a locomotive, where he first becomes acquainted with Joan, he rises through the various stages of a successful career to become assistant to the president of the railroad in Paris, where he meets Joan at the Ball, he is seen in masquerade dress as Napoleon, certainly a far cry from the greasy overalls of his engineer days. Others prominent in the cast and who are called upon to display their versatile talents are Una Merkel, James Kirkwood, Dorothy Peterson, Donald Dillaway and Lucille LaVerne. John Blystone directed the picture, his third for Fox Films, from the screen play of William Anthony McGuire.

LADIES' ACHIEVEMENT DAY NEXT WEEK

Great plans are being formulated for the Annual Achievement Day sponsored by the ladies in the county who have participated in the Home Furnishing project. It will be held in the Presbyterian church in Boyne City on Friday, May 6. Thirteen organized groups have received the four lessons under the supervision of Miss Gertrude Reis, Specialist from the Michigan State College. A total of 23 leaders have received the instructions and carried them back to their own group.

The big feature of this event will be the display of over 200 rugs made by the ladies interested in this project. When one stops to consider the fact that these rugs have been made from burlap, overalls and other worn out materials, then one will appreciate the wonderful work being done in this project. A most pleasing program is being developed including music, humorous numbers, short playlets and many other features.

The public is invited and cordially urged to attend this Achievement Day. The complete program will be announced in next weeks issue. Watch for it and make your plans now for this big event.

B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Scott motored to Detroit Monday where they visit friends for the major part of the week.

Mr. B. H. Benjamin, postmaster at Mackinac Island, and Mrs. Benjamin, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Kenyon last Friday. They are spending a short vacation by taking a motor trip through southern Michigan, with Lansing as their principal objective.

Herman C. Meyer, Jr., Arden C. Westover, and Warren Towers of Boyne Falls were Charlevoix visitors Saturday.

PROCLAMATION

The City Council has designated the week of May 2 to May 7 as annual cleanup week.

We are going to have a good summer this year so let everybody Clean Up, Paint Up, and Cheer Up.

The City Street Department will remove all cans and rubbish placed in convenient places on streets and alleys.

We urge everybody to join in this Clean-Up Movement so that we can live up to our slogan—

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL"

Signed,

Arthur Bergeon, Mayor

County News

MARION CENTER NEWS

Last Friday night sixty of Marion Center Grange members visited Barnard Grange and put on the program. Barnard furnished the lunch and took care of the crowd in a very creditable manner. There were about one hundred and eighty present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Withers attended the funeral of Mrs. Wither's mother, Mrs. LaLonde Saturday at East Jordan.

Mr. Levi Francisco returned from the Hospital last week much improved in health.

Mr. Floyd Black and daughter Jeatine have been entertaining the measles.

Mr. Charles Jones of East Marion passed away last Friday. The funeral was Monday at the home. Interment at Brookside Cemetery. The family has the sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN AT BARNARD GRANGE HALL

Following the the program put on by the Marion Center Grange at the Barnard Grange Hall on April 22.

One of our Grange songs.

Reading given by Mrs. Frank Bird.

Song, "Everybody Calls Me Honey," by Ruth Meggison.

Playlet, "No Peddlers Admitted," acted by Chas. Cellner, Irene Cellner, Robert O'Dell.

Monologue: "Work Wanted," by Minnie Straw.

Song by Gladys and Bernice Meggison.

Playlet, "Losing to the Game," acted by Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Williams, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McGhan.

Cornet Solo, by James Block, accompanied by Ruby Sunernaw.

Song, by Carl Kern.

Reading, "The Cow", by our Worthy Master.

Playlet, "Tell A Woman" acted by Mrs. Beecher, Mrs. Cellner, Mrs. Wickersham, Mrs. Lydia McGhan.

Song, "By Two School Boys," Rollie Williams, L. E. McGhan.

Closing Song by Junior Girls.

Following the program, the traveling gavel services were used, the Marion Center Master, Clarence Meggison presented the gavel to Barnard Master, Richard Paddock, who in turn will present it to Maple Grove Grange, May 10th.

A fine lunch was served by Barnard Grange to the following visiting Granges: Deer Lake, Ironton and Marion Center.

Captain and Mrs. James Sanford were most agreeably surprised last Saturday when two nephews, Captains James and Thomas Coffee of Marinette, Wisconsin, stopped here to make them a short visit. The two Captains started their careers as proteges of this famous uncle and now hold masters papers such as qualifies them for commanding ships of any tonnage on the Great Lakes chain.

Mrs. George Wire of Flint arrived here Friday to spend an indefinite period of time, a guest of her brother, Amos O'Neill and family, other relatives and friends.

The U. S. Lightship tender "Sumac", entered this port from Milwaukee Thursday night and in accordance with her custom in past years will make Charlevoix harbor her headquarters for some weeks while placing aids to navigation in their respective positions in Lake Michigan Waters. Captain John Olson is in command.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Shapton, vacation visitors at Miami, Florida, during the winter months returned Saturday.

SENTINEL ENTERS ON 63RD YEAR

VOLUME 1, NUMBER 1, ISSUED APRIL 24, 1869

The Charlevoix Sentinel with this issue enters upon its sixty-third year as a local weekly publication, every year and every issues of which has been published in the interest of this entire region and especially pronounced in Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix Sentinel came into existence with Volume 1, Number 1, April 24, 1869 under the management of the late Willard A. Smith, who from that date until his death, December 24th, 1917, a period of 48 years and 8 months, was continuous publisher of the paper of which he was the founder.

The Charlevoix Sentinel, during the early years of its history, could only have maintained its existence through extreme sacrifice, indefatigable effort and tireless energy on the part of its promotor, who uncomplainingly endured the hardships of pioneer days, supported principally by an urge to assist in the development of this region to a position superior and in complete accord with its natural advantages.

In this he had the satisfaction of seeing his desire fulfilled, the development from the state of an original wilderness into what is recognized as the most beautiful and best known vacation city in Michigan.

The Charlevoix Sentinel in the future as in the past, will be maintained and continued as a clean, readable home paper, such as will reflect to the advantage of Charlevoix and of interest to readers.

OSSIAN BEDELL SOON TO BE ONLY MEMORY HEREABOUTS

River Steamer Sold For Excursion Service On Lake Michigan

The good ship Ossian Bedell, on which practically every Buffalonian has got seasick at least once, and that for years plied the swift waters of the Niagara between the foot of Ferry Street and the Bedell House and rode the waves at the easterly end of Lake Erie like a cork, has been sold up the lakes, and soon will be spending her old age riding the deeper, calmer waters of Lake Michigan.

One Capt. John H. Gallagher of Charlevoix, Mich., has bought the Bedell and will put her in service as an excursion steamer to make daily trips between Charlevoix and Beaver Island, a summer resort.

In 1901 the Bedell was built here by the Buffalo Drydock Company and named for the late Ossian Bedell, politician and owner of Niagara River recreation places. After fourteen years apprenticeship on the river, the Bedell was put on the Erie Beach run, and made regular trips from 1915 to 1930. She is 116 feet long, has a 28 foot beam and a twelve-foot draft, with capacity for 700 passengers. In her day she was considered quite a boat.—Buffalo Courier Express, April 30, 1932.

Mr. Don Ramsdell of Bay City was a business visitor in Charlevoix Thursday.

EZ THINGS GO—

THER MAY BE SOME DISADVANTAGES IN SPENDIN' SUNDAY AT THE CHURCH, BUT ONE THING YOU KEN SAY FER IT IS THET IT DON'T NEVER TURN TURTLE.

CAPT. BILL, ONE OF THE STEBBINS BOYS

GOVERNMENT FREE FLOUR DISTRIBUTION

The American Red Cross will have a car load of flour for distribution to the needy of Charlevoix County in the near future.

All heads of needy families wishing to get some of this flour will please register at the American Legion Home, East Garfield Avenue.

This list will be strictly confidential and not open to the public.

The distribution will be done by the American Legion.

School News

"Two Girls Wanted"

The Senior Play, "Two Girls Wanted" which is to be presented on Friday, May 13th, is proving to be a most enjoyable comedy. Norman Ance is becoming exceedingly impatient to begin rehearsing his "big scene" with Marian Smith in the last act, and Dan Geniet has already developed an amazingly heart-stirring voice in his pleading with Dorothy Griffin. Joe Arvilla and Kathleen McCall seem as surprised as the audience will be to find themselves in love; and we want to watch out for David Dick—for we've learned he can take money and actually make us feel sorry for him and hope he won't be discovered.

Now who would imagine Esther Brady as a real "domestic" girl with a deep affection for the kitchen range—or Mary Margaret Urlowski a sophisticated society matron—or Charles Novotny as the chauffeur who saves Dan's life—or Winifred Martin as a boarding-house keeper? However it must be admitted that Leo Yettaw is a typical office boy. You can readily see this is something you cannot afford to miss. We are still sticking to "depression prices"—only 25c and 35c admission.

Work on the sets is to begin immediately with Stan Cartter in charge.

Poppy Poster Contest

Seven students of the local school have entered the National Poppy Poster Contest. George Smith, Geo Laflance, Marian Tyler, Byrnece Lampheare, Lillian Novotny, Dorothy Partridge and Gladys Meggison are busily working, for the posters must be completed by May first, when the best one from the local group will be sent to the National Committee, the remaining six being put on display in the stores here.

Band Concert

There will be a band concert at the Gym next Friday evening, April 29. Everyone is invited, free of charge. The mixed chorus will also sing a few selections.

Let's have a good crowd.

Next week is the Music Contest to which everyone is eagerly looking forward.

An older girls conference is being held at Petoskey on Saturday, April 30. A large number of the high school girls will attend.

Mr. Bush spent Friday and Saturday in Kalamazoo, Ann Arbor and Detroit interviewing candidates for the 6th grade and Home Economics Department.

All day of Friday, April 29, will be spent as County Health Day and Handicraft Club Achievements. In the evening a musical concert will take place by the band and the two glee clubs. School will be closed to the great joy of the students. Many of the neighboring schools are also closing.

The Junior High School is planning a vocational program to take place at a later date. Work done in the Manual Training and Domestic Science Departments will be on exhibit and a program will follow. Mr. Bingham is in charge.

The Seniors are planning a trip for Thursday, June 9. The place is not yet decided upon.

Mr. Jennings of Hillsdale College spoke to the Seniors last week.

Mr. Hurd has been asked to give the Baccalaureate address Sunday, May 29.

The attendance is now back to normal after a period of measles, colds and flu. Last week there was one day with only 3 absent.

The Hi-Y conference last Saturday was attended by about 200 boys from the 17 places that sent members. Charlevoix had 15 present. After Registration the different groups discussed questions. Mr. Freement lead the discussion. The banquet at 5:30 was followed by a speech by Dr. Spencer.

Junior Hi-Y are planning a dance for Friday.

Friday evening the freshmen spent a very enjoyable evening at the gym. Games were played and light refreshments served. The committee in charge was Marie Novak, Charles Carey, Jean Graves and Jack Foster. Faculty guests were Mr. Bingham and Mr. Rider.

IF IT MOVES, SPENCER TRACY CAN DRIVE IT; HAS OPERATED MANY VEHICLES

Spencer Tracy has never driven a submarine but that is only because he has not yet gotten around to it.

The popular favorite, who came to the screen from the Broadway stage, where he created the powerful role of Killer Mears' in "The Last Mile" has appeared in seven talking pictures, and in six of them he had to learn how to drive some new type of vehicle.

In "Quick Millions," Tracy had to maneuver a ten-ton truck through the heavily congested city streets. In "Goldie" he took the wheel of a big tramp freighter on the trip between Los Angeles Harbor and San Diego. In "Sky Devils" he piloted a large plane. In "6 Cylinder Love" he drove a big touring car through a board fence and in "She Wanted A Millionaire" he took the throttle of a big Southern Pacific locomotive and became fairly expert at it.

In his latest Fox picture, "Disorderly Conduct," in which he is co-starred with that delightful heroine of "Bad Girl" and "Dance Team," which opens its local engagement next Saturday and Sunday at the Palace Theatre, Tracy had to spend a couple of preparatory weeks astride a motorcycle to qualify for his role of a speed cop, and if advance reports are to be believed he handles the snorting two-wheeler with considerable adeptness. To date the actor has not tried his hand at submarine or speed-boating, but expects he will be called upon soon to round out his piloting experience on either or both of these craft.

In "Disorderly Conduct" which tells a highly romantic story involving policemen, bootleggers, politicians and a society girl, Miss Eilers, Tracy and Brendel are supported by a large and capable cast including Ralph Bellamy, Ralph Morgan, Allan Dinehart, Charles Grapewin, Cornelius Keefe and other celebrities. John W Considine, Jr., directed the production from the story by William Anthony McGuire. This is the second picture in which Miss Eilers and Tracy have appeared in, together, their first being the Fox drama, "Quick Millions."

LEGION BOXING BOUTS ARE WELL ATTENDED

The Legion Home on East Garfield was the place of exhibition Wednesday evening of some of the finest and most entertaining boxing matches yet sponsored by the local post.

A number of ring artists from Traverse City with a sprinkling of fans journeyed up to give battle to the local boys and the results points to future interesting sessions between the contestants.

The recent improvements and the new ring installed for these exhibitions gives both spectators and contestants added advantages and makes the Legion Home an ideal place for these affairs.

Refreshments as usual were served to those holding lunch tickets for which a charge of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children was made.

These meetings are open to the public and it is the opinion of those who have witnessed a number of them that there is no place where one can get more recreation for the money invested.

LEGION AUXILIARY MEET NEXT MONDAY EVENING

The regular monthly meeting of the Legion Auxiliary will be held next Monday evening at the Legion Home on East Garfield.

The usual interesting and enjoyable session is anticipated and a good attendance is requested as matters of importance are to be discussed at this meeting.

Mrs. John B. Durgin, of Petoskey, was a guest of Charlevoix friends Friday.

LEGION SPONSORS TREASURE HUNT

FIFTY-THREE BOYS TURN OUT FOR JUNIOR BASEBALL

Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, is sponsoring another treasure hunt, their first venture along this line having proven so popular and successful that there have been many requests for a repetition of the event. The date of the next hunt is set as of Thursday evening, May 5, 1932, at 9 o'clock, all contestants to meet at the Legion Home on East Garfield Avenue. Cars may be used in this hunt and must display a numbered tag furnished by the committee, as they will be stopped at a certain point during the hunt and the occupants asked to show their tickets. If any person without a ticket is found in a car, all the occupants of that car will be disqualified for the treasure. Many of the Legion members have the tickets for sale.

A bridge and poker party (stag) will be held at the Legion Home on the evening of Saturday, April 30th. Legion members are requested to each fill a table, if possible. There will be refreshments.

Fifty-three boys turned out last Saturday afternoon for Legion Junior baseball practice. Equipment for the squad is needed and the proceeds of the coming treasure hunt will be devoted to this purpose. R. G. Nebelung of the Children's Fund Unit, and former major league player with the Cleveland Indians, is the coach. Junior baseball is an important part of the American Legion's program all over the United States.

A school of instruction for post service officers will be held at the regular meeting of the Legion on Tuesday evening, May 3, 1932. This will take in the counties of Charlevoix, Antrim and Kalkaska, and will be held at Charlevoix on the date above mentioned. The department service officer will conduct this school and each post is being furnished with further particulars.

GRASS LAKE NOW OFFICIALLY LAKE BELLAIRE

Officially the name of one of Antrim counties' many lakes is now Lake Bellaire, according to reports from the Federal and State geographic commissions. Until recent months as well as from the early history of this region, this body of water has been known as Grass Lake. It is practically surrounded by summer cottages ranging from the moderate to most ostentatious. On the east shore is located the nationally famous Fisherman's Paradise resort, on the west shore the celebrated Miley's Lodge and at other points places of note open during the summer vacation period. The Lake is one of the noted Intermediate Chain and is located two miles south of Bellaire, on M-88.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Commencing May 1st special meetings will be held at the Phelps Pilgrim Holiness church. Rev. Morton Goodman of Burnips, Mich., is the eveangelist. You are cordially invited to come and hear this man of God. Sunday services will be at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. and every evening at 7:30.

A. T. Harris, Pastor.

Captain George Johnson and wife of Traverse City and Capt. William Franklin and daughter Margaret were guests of Captain and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur Saturday. Captain Johnson for some years past has had command of the S. S. Manitou, a position which he assumes with the placing of the Manitou in commission, sometime in June, for the 1932 season over the same route as in past years. Captain Franklin is with the Goodrich line and will have command of the S. S. Alabama again this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Kenyon spent Sunday at Cheboygan, guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Mayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Poole are again residents of Charlevoix, having concluded their vacation at Miami, Florida, and returned home Monday.

Mr. Frank Glassford, following a visit of some months in Florida, returned home Friday.

Vern Jones, who has been confined at the local hospital for the last two weeks due to an operation, is well on the road to recovery and expects to end his stay at that institution the latter part of this week.

FLORENCE STILL HOLDS ITS MEDIEVAL CHARM

Venerable City Not Spoiled by "Face Lifting."

Washington.—Florence, officially Firenze, is still Florence, as clean cut as a cameo, and modern in spite of its many centuries. Only a hideous fringe has been added to the city.

The glorious art treasures that attracted visitors from all over the world when the city's old port to the sea—Pisa—was a hotbed of malaria, are still there. The city still gets some work and supplies from the countryside, but still maintains its personal distinction and unaffected charm. Only the automobile traffic has changed it into a noisy town.

"There is no purpose to build a new Florence and destroy the beauty and grandeur of the Middle Ages," the Florentine city manager, Dr. Giovanni Poggi, told me. He had studied in the United States at Princeton and Columbia, and received his doctorate of philosophy at the University of Florence.

"Florence must not be changed," he said. "Florence must remain Florence. Some new buildings must be erected, but they must be in harmony with the old. Florence must remain Florence."

Dr. Poggi is a man of his word. He has been in charge of the city's public works for 20 years, and has seen to it that the old city has been kept clean and sanitary, and that its ancient buildings and relics have been preserved.

Florence is a city of 300,000 people, and has a population density of 400 persons per acre. Florence has no slums. Its people live in apartments, and the apartments are clean and sanitary. Florence has no tenements.

"Florence is a city of workers," Dr. Poggi told me. "Its people are industrious and thrifty. They are not rich, but they are not poor. They are not idle, and they are not lazy. They are not beggars. They are not criminals. They are not drunkards. They are not dirty. They are not ignorant. They are not illiterate. They are not diseased. They are not vicious. They are not immoral. They are not degenerate. They are not decadent. They are not corrupt. They are not evil. They are not wicked. They are not sinful. They are not damned. They are not lost. They are not forsaken. They are not abandoned. They are not cursed. They are not accursed. They are not doomed. They are not condemned. They are not reprobate. They are not castaways. They are not outcasts. They are not pariahs. They are not untouchables. They are not lepers. They are not plague-stricken. They are not pestilential. They are not contagious. They are not infectious. They are not epidemic. They are not endemic. They are not pandemic. They are not universal. They are not ubiquitous. They are not omnipresent. They are not everywhere. They are not nowhere. They are not somewhere. They are not anywhere. They are not here. They are not there. They are not yonder. They are not hither. They are not thither. They are not whither. They are not wither. They are not withered. They are not withering. They are not withering away. They are not withering away and dying. They are not withering away and dying and rotting. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist and vanishing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist and vanishing and disappearing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist and vanishing and disappearing and perishing. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist and vanishing and disappearing and perishing and passing away. They are not withering away and dying and rotting and decaying and crumbling and falling and tumbling and sinking and disappearing and vanishing and perishing and passing away and ceasing to be and coming to an end and dying out and becoming extinct and obsolete and archaic and primitive and barbaric and savage and brutish and bestial and animal and vegetable and mineral and nothing at all and ceasing to exist and vanishing and disappear

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1915.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

SLASHING GOVERNMENT EXPENSE

Municipal and state governments must follow the precedent set in private business, and slash expense, throw out inherited impediments to progress and eliminate waste, if their cost of operation is to be cut. A recent survey shows that the average cost of government in 146 cities rose from $24 per capita in 1915 to $56 in 1929.

We cannot have tax reduction so long as government functions are steadily enlarged. We cannot have tax reduction so long as we demand "improvements" costing millions for which we have no real need. We cannot have tax reduction so long as we pay little attention to the administration of local governments, make a practice of electing unsuitable men to office, and follow that by dashing to the polls to vote for new bond issues.

The public alone has the power to bring tax rates down. When it exercises that power, the tax problem will solve itself.

DON'T GET COLD FEET

There is in the United States a confused mental picture of Mexico and the South American countries—that part of the world technically termed Latin America.

The average American has only a faint conception of the magnificent, natural resources, social development or the culture of our sister republics to the south of us.

Many bought bonds of those countries and the securities of their industries. Like many other investments, these have shown depreciation.

In commenting on the activities of a number of organizations seeking to get investors to switch South American securities to something else of speculative or uncertain character, the Committee on Inter-American Relations, composed of American business men, points out that in hasty or ill considered action "there is grave danger of Latin American bonds being sacrificed with great and unnecessary loss to holders."

Very careful investigation is needed of the many substitutions now being offered investors in exchange for their South American securities.

In referring to the potential strength of our own United States, a prominent economist created the phrase, "Don't sell America short." His statement might well be applied to the countries south of us. Their great natural resources should cause them to forge to the front in the next generation as did ours after the Civil War.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

In somewhat the same manner in which sulphur and molasses dosing of our grandmother's day got credit for the health work done by dandelion greens, which usually made their appearance on the family table at about the same time so an increased consumption of milk, reported in a number of localities, is regarded as a sign of returning prosperity. While this is probably true, to health officials, nutritionists and relief committee workers, it also indicates something else of importance. It confirms a belief which has been steadily growing among these community leaders for some time—that we are slowly but surely learning that milk is the biggest and best bargain offered in the food markets today.

Milk is our most nearly complete food, being rich in the proteins that serve to rebuild worn-out body tissues. Milk is our best food source of calcium, that most essential element of bone and tooth structure, and other mineral salts that average modern diets are apt to slight. It boasts the vitamins that mean health and growth and is rich in carbohydrates and fats that furnish daily energy and reserve strength.

Together with whole-grain cereals, fresh fruits, green vegetables, eggs and a portion of meat, a full quart of milk each day for every child and a pint for every adult will balance our meals, protect us from many infections, keep us well and working toward lasting health, happiness and prosperity.

POWER WON'T CLICK

It was Al Smith—as astute a public man as has appeared in the United States for many years—who said that power would not be a dominant political issue.

He said it some time ago, but it is worth repeating. "I found in New York," he commented, "that power was the one thing I put my hand to that I could not arouse the people over. It is too intricate, and few understand what it is all about. I even found it necessary in New York to explain what the word 'horsepower' means, whenever I made speeches on the subject."

In other words, Governor Smith, whose special ability lies in dramatizing political issues, could not dramatize power. The stuff is simply not in it. In spite of those Senators who tear their hair about it and say that all other issues are "blinds" to hide the real issue of power, the people won't get excited.

In fact, there is good grounds for believing that even those who can understand it, and can define "horsepower" for themselves, will refuse to treat it as a major issue—there are so many things in the average home that are more pressing than an electric bill which represents about one per cent of the family budget. The cost of food, clothing, rent, recreation and—above all —the cost of government, come to much more impressive totals. The dollar we spend for electric service brings us more, perhaps, in comfort, convenience and happy living, than the dollar we spend on any other household necessity.

Power will still be an issue in certain municipal, county and even state elections. But it won't play a brilliant role in the Presidential battle of 1932—or in that of 1936. Few public men possess Governor Smith's color and gift for eloquence—and if he couldn't make power click, nobody can.

WHAT'LL WE DO WITH THE WORLD?

The World looks to the United States for leadership, for money and for the best products that ever came out of factories. Even Russia with its new egotism has turned to the United States for brain-power to initiate mass production, scientific agriculture, engineering plans, and schemes to get the most out of life with the least amount of energy. Sometimes the United States trades successfully with the World, but again now our Government and our institutions are running in red ink because the world has gone flatter than ever Dowie could imagine. The question naturally suggests itself —What'll we do with the World?

President Hoover recently said that during the past two years, as compared with the pre-war decade, the proportion of our foreign trade carried by ships under the American flag has substantially increased. And note an important note in what the President added: "It has notably grown in trades where no American flag services previously were provided."

Our countrymen long ago learned that they had to have carts and wagons if they expected to trade in the markets. And then they built railroads that brought the different parts of the country into closer connections.

The old clipper ships did fine service on the seas, but they have passed. The American merchant marine is being expanded, and great lines now are operated under the American flag between Europe, Latin America, the Orient, and in the coastwise service.

The United States is competing with the world for world trade. That's why the United States is building its own great fleets to meet the ever-increasing competition in foreign commerce.

COOPERATIVE FIGHT FOR FAIR PRICES

Conditions in the New York Milk Shed, where prices for dairy products have fallen to dangerously low levels, may do more good than harm.

That is the territory served by one of the greatest cooperatives in the country—the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association. The League has, for many years, pointed out the menace of unorganized farmers who are unable to demand fair prices for their products. And present conditions show the truth of that. No cooperative can serve its full purpose so long as great numbers of farmers in its territory remain outside the fold, or some of its members fail to follow where it leads.

It is safe to say that had the League not existed, things would be even worse than they are. The League is putting up a good fight for fair prices—but that fight cannot produce a permanent victory without the full support of all dairy farmers. The drop in prices should have driven the truth of that home to many unorganized dairymen.

The farmer's salvation, in all parts of the country, depends largely on the cooperative. The sooner all farmers learn that, the sooner they will achieve economic stability.

BOYS' CLUBS

In the old days when boys in New York City, obliged to play in the streets because of lack of playgrounds and Boys' Clubs, saw the police coming, they would yell:

"Cheese it, the cops."

Not so today. Now they cry:

"Play ball."

Why?

Because of the work of representatives of the Crime Prevention Bureau of the New York Police Department, who have organized neighborhood baseball leagues and are encouraging boys to spend part of their time in formally organized and housed Boys' Clubs.

No one knows better than Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York that the boy who is placed amid wholesome surroundings is a good citizen in the making. When subject to vicious environment he is a potential criminal. In presenting his annual report to Mayor Walker, Commissioner Mulrooney called special attention to a problem that has caused increasing concern in recent years—the extreme youth of the majority of offenders against the law.

Boys' Clubs are an effective means of checking juvenile crime. They are deserving of liberal public support.

SOUND TAX REDUCTION

There is room, and plenty of it, for sound tax reduction by government. But in some quarters there seems to be a misunderstanding of the question.

What government can do is to eliminate the waste, duplication of effort, the general inefficiency prevalent in many departments. Doing this would improve, rather than damage, the operation of government.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

TEMPLE OF JUSTICE OF YESTERYEAR

Once upon a time the official jurisdiction of this old court house in Winchester, Virginia reached into far Western wilds, the central city of which is now called Chicago. There is no record within its walls however that any sheriff had the hardihood to venture that far on official business.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The hypocrisy and buck passing tendencies of some of the European diplomatic power players, supposedly gathered in Geneva to help the disarmament movement, was exemplified again recently in the outburst of Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, against the proposals of Hugh S. Gibson, the American representative, that the disarmament conference get down to business by outlawing some of the aggressive weapons of war. This suggestion of Mr. Gibson was made evidently on the theory that the way to get something done was to do something, and not such a proposal would be practicable now that all nations have agreed to eschew aggressive warefare.

In his reply M. Tardieu is said to have pounded the table and grown red in the face, declaring it was useless to prohibit big cannon, great tanks and other implements of offensive warfare because the scientists of the various countries would then invent pocket cannon to replace the big guns and so on, and it was useless to try to save money by abolishing certain kinds of implements of war because the money would then be expended in developing other implements.

If this is the true situation in Europe then there is little use to talk about limitation of armament and all the efforts of our own government for disarmament have been in vain. Perhaps the best thing to be gathered from M. Tardieu's outburst is that the people of Europe are not so anxious for peace as some of our own verdant pacifists would have us believe.

M. Tardieu's remedy is to make the League of Nations a real super-state, give it big offensive armament and let it enforce the peace. Under this method the United States, in case war broke out between Italy and France, would be abidged to accept the League's judgment as to which side to join and then to furnish its full quota of men, money and ammunition for the picnic. The plan is of course a very good one from M. Tardieu's standpoint owing to the fact that France, through its allies in Europe, dominates the League and the World Court and would have the power and pleasure of designating just which side we should join in case of trouble.

It is to be hoped that some steps for just and efficient limitation of offensive armament can be taken at Geneva but it is becoming more and more doubtful whether anything of the kind can be accomplished.

Maybe some of the European nations could be induced to junk a few rusty cannon if Uncle Sam will agree to cancel the war debts, join the League of Nations and furnish plenty of men and money in case trouble breaks out on the dark and bloody continent.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

CUT THE EXPENSE

Says the Industrial News-Review:

"We often consider the debt-ridden condition of foreign countries and put ourselves on the back because the United States is not in the same boat. But if the trend of recent years continues, it won't be long until we are.

"In 1900 the per capita cost of the federal government was $7.29, and it increased 10 per-cent in the next sixteen years. In 1931, the per capita cost was $24.37, an increase of 500 per cent in fifteen years. According to a Treasury estimate, the combined deficits of 1931, 1932 and 1933 will increase the federal debt by the neat sum of $8,250,000,000, bringing the total debt to the staggering total of $19,240,000,000.

"The condition of the states is even ghoulier, while federal expenditures were increasing 700 per cent between 1902 and 1928, the states were more reckless yet, with a 900 per cent increase. Every family in the country is saddled with a government debt of $1,000.

"The thoughtful citizen will wonder if we are not approaching a tax crisis—a point beyond which we cannot pay. And he is liable to come to the conclusion that the progress of the country demands government retrenchment and economy, not in a vague future, but right now."

About the only encouraging sign in the present situation is that the people are beginning to awaken to the seriousness of the tax situation. Tax associations are being formed everywhere and there is rising a demand for lower expenditures and balanced budgets, locally as well as nationally. And it is to be hoped that the sentiment will not crystallize too late to prevent a genuine disaster. Already there are ominous rumblings of tax rebellion. A considerable percentage of the available land in Mississippi was sold recently for taxation. And it is reported that in even as rich a state as Ohio, petitions are being circulated and signed for a ballot by the voters of the state on the question of giving the local units of government the right to repudiate the public debts by repudiating bonds issued by the local units. And Ohio, it is to be remembered, is a rich and conservative state. Such action in some of the commonwealths west of the big river would not be so surprising.

We are now witnessing a distribution of business and a restarting of the return to normalcy, because of the painful and not always progressive efforts of Congress to balance the national budget. The time has come when we must pay the piper. For some years we have spent the national money in unnecessful efforts either to run the railroads or to lift the price of farm products by governmental manipulations—efforts which have finally resulted in nothing more constructive than a violent national headache and a yawning deficit.

The national budget must of course be balanced, and so must the budgets of our state and local governments, where the tax to the small property owner is much more onerous. This cannot be done altogether by attempting to find new sources of taxation. What we really need is a sane cutting down of expenditures so that more taxes will not be necessary. Stocks, bonds and commodities are being pretty well deflated. What we need next is a deflation of government costs. And when the budget parers set to work in real earnest they will be surprised at how much they can trim expenditures without really affecting public service. We are either going to have cheaper and more efficient government or a breaking down of government which will spell the beginning of a dictatorship and an end of the bureaucrats. If the bureaucrats know what is good for them they will assist in this reform of the budget. If they keep on obstructing they will finally obstruct themselves out of their jobs.

One Cause of Unemployment

The cause of unemployment

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Excavations for the Foundation of The Sugar Factory in Progress

Quietly, without any hurrah or brass band, Superintendent Hartaig began operations Monday morning that will not cease until the wheels of the beet sugar factory begin to turn late next autumn.

The plat was surveyed and the preliminary stakes set last week. Tests were made to determine the stability of the bottom and it was decided that pile-driving was unnecessary.

Monday morning, with three teams and a gang of men the work of excavating began and will occupy the most of the week. Mr. Hartaig expects to be laying stone in the foundation by next Monday morning.

Superintendent Hartaig is an expert in sugar factory construction, having built five in Michigan. In a recent interview he was enthusiastic in his talk about the Charlevoix factory. He says the location beats them all, and that every surrounding condition is ideal.

Forty Years Ago

The lumber for the Catholic church is being placed on the ground and the structure will be erected this summer.

A. J. Mudge is opening up a grocery at his old stand on Antrim st.

Mel Livingston has charge of the Democrat during the illness of the editor.

Isabel and Myrtle Miller in their character dust, "Old Folks at Home" at Lewis Grand Opera House Friday evening, will alone be worth the price of admission.

The Steamer Puritan was wied bound here all day Saturday and part of Saturday night. Mod was wanted by hundreds of our citizens who have been long praising for electric lights in Charlevoix.

Fifty Years Ago

The Close of Volume Thirteen of The Sentinel

This week the Sentinel closes the thirteenth volume of its existence and next week steps out upon its fourteenth year confidently, cheerfully, proudly.

As we look back over the past years of our journal's career, over its infancy of discouraging struggles, and later its victories and its successes, we are conscious of a feeling of pride, that through it all from its initial number to its present, we have been permitted by a kind providence to direct its labors and dictate its policies.

The Sentinel has made its mistakes as all agencies under human government will do, but no man can say it has not worked faithfully and well for the good of its party, and better, if possible, for the permanent good of its town and county.

However much the incoming tide of men may ignore the accomplished results of its labors in the past, we are not backward in asserting that much of the growth and development of all parts of our county are the fruits of its faithful labors when our present thriving interior villages were a wilderness.

The Sentinel thanks its patrons for their friendship in the past, and pledges itself to prove itself worthy of their continued confidence.

The Charlevoix band is organizing.

John Newman is erecting a new house on his farm in Marion.

The Village Council meets Thursday evening at Odd Fellows' Hall.

We have received the first number of the East Jordan Enterprise. May it live long and prosper.

Lots are going off like hot cakes in Upright and Hurlbut addition, and buildings are going up on every one of them.

Hon. A. Buttars recently took the degrees of the Masonic Christian Knighthood at Pilgrim Commandery of Big Rapids.

W. L. French arrived last Wednesday, and will make Charlevoix his headquarters for the season in buying shipping wood, bark, etc.

Work on the Mackinac extension of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad is rushing now. Some 400 men are employed and 100 more wanted.

Although our yat completed, the horses were removed to the new livery stable Saturday. A force of workmen are engaged in finishing the building.

Deputy County Surveyor Dixon is surveying and platting the Upright & Hurlbut addition to the village of Charlevoix. With commendable enterprise Mr. Upright makes a choice in every deed that a house shall be erected thereon. Selections are being made almost daily and houses are already in process of erection.

A strong feeling exists among the Republicans of this Senatorial District that Hon. Archibald Buttars must be his own successor. It is a rare thing for a man to step from an active business life into a more successful career of public duty than has Mr. Buttars as Senator of the 31rd. He has indulged in no windy platitudes, but has, by his good, intelligent common sense, his solid and substantial way of doing things, his practical manner of dealing with issues, his consistency and sterling rectitude, won the respect of his associates and an enviable status among the prominent public men of Michigan. The District cannot do a wiser act than to return him to the Senate.

Hastings From Hayes

Did you know there were twenty-legged swine as well as quadrupeds of that kind? Well there are.

There were no constables elected in Hayes. There were four "constables" elected, and one man refused to qualify as "constable."

Sixty Years Ago

Geo. W. Esterly & Co.'s mill commenced sawing Monday.

The Michigan Game Law applies to Indians as well as whites.

Richard Cooper and Willard A. Smith have been appointed Notaries Public for Charlevoix County.

The Marshall Statesman has passed from the hands of Burgess & Law- is to Seth Lewis, the veteran publisher. "Uncle Seth" was the founder of the Statesman, and its publisher for over twenty years. When under Mr. Burgess' editorial management, it was a leading anti-Grant organ. Mr. Lewis, in his saltory, expresses entire satisfaction with the administration of Gen. Grant, thinks he is the coming man, and will strenuously work to promote his election, if nominated. Mr. Lewis is a man nearly seventy years of age and one of the first settlers of Marshall. Under his instruction we "slung" our first type, and under his fatherly guardianship we served the greater part of our apprenticeship.

Work on the Charlevoix-Petoskey road is progressing rapidly. The bridge at Pine River is completed and the road is graded to the Antrim county line.

Mr. Hester has sold his saddle horse to the Washington photographer, Gardner, and the deal is believed to be complete. On the very day that news of General Lee's surrender at Appomattox reached the President- just five days before Lincoln's assassination by John Wilkes Booth.

Dexter Warren, whose studies of Lincoln's life attracted much attention when he was president of the Lincoln Historical Research Founda- tion at Fort Wayne, compared photographs of Abraham Lincoln and discovered that a picture in the library at Fort Wayne of Lincoln's first inauguration was one of the two photographs referred to by Lincoln's secretary, John Hay, in his article in "The Century Magazine" as the "Lincoln-Douglas Debate" picture.

"The story of the 1861 War in pictures" is the way the accompanying photographs of Abraham Lincoln are described by Dr. Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation of Fort Wayne, Ind., one of the Fifty-nine Lincolnian scholars.

The first picture, one of the most celebrated of the Beardless Lincoln portraits, was used as a campaign photograph in the presidential campaign of 1860. It was taken during the week of June 16, 1860, by the photographer, Hesler, of Chicago, and is known to Lincoln students as "The Candidate Lincoln." It depicts the unmarried president as he was in the prime of life just before he entered the White House.

The other picture, known as "The Triumphant Lincoln," was taken just five years later and is believed to be the last photograph which President Lincoln ever had taken. It was made by the Washington photographer, Gardner, and the date is believed to be April 9, 1865, on the very day that news of General Lee's surrender at Appomattox reached the President- just five days before Lincoln's assassination by John Wilkes Booth.

Dexter Warren, whose studies of Lincoln's life attracted much attention when he was president director of the Lincoln Historical Research Founda- tion at Fort Wayne, compared photographs of Abraham Lincoln and discovered that a picture in the library at Fort Wayne of Lincoln's first inauguration was one of the two photographs referred to by Lincoln's secretary, John Hay, in his article in "The Century Magazine" as the "Lincoln-Douglas Debate" picture.

"All photographs, stills or moving pictures, of Lincoln are valuable, but to me the most valuable are those which show the changes in his appearance during the four years he was president," Warren said. "Of course, many people have seen the famous Lincoln photograph which was made from a composite of the two photographs taken in Chicago in 1860. It was taken during the week of June 16, 1860, by the photographer, Hesler, of Chicago, and is known to Lincoln students as 'The Candidate Lincoln.' It depicts the unmarried president as he was in the prime of life just before he entered the White House.

"The other picture, known as 'The Triumphant Lincoln,' was taken just five years later and is believed to be the last photograph which President Lincoln ever had taken. It was made by the Washington photographer, Gardner, and the date is believed to be April 9, 1865, on the very day that news of General Lee's surrender at Appomattox reached the President- just five days before Lincoln's assassination by John Wilkes Booth.

"Of the other photograph, 'The Triumphant Lincoln,' Doctor Warren comments as follows:

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, as in so many of the others, seems to interpret the very atmosphere in which the photograph was taken.

"At 9 a. m. March 24, 1865, he addressed the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Ohio regiment as they passed in review before the White House. He remained there until 2 p. m. and then drove to the Soldiers' Home, where he passed the night. The next day he returned to Washington and received the Confederate peace commissioners. During the next few days he was busy with callers and on April 9 there was another serious situation to be met when Secretary of War Stanton announced the surrender of Lee's army. Lincoln was in a happy mood during this period, and the following day, April 10, he was shot by John Wilkes Booth.

"The original negative from which this picture was made came very close to being destroyed by a fire that struck Mr. Hesler's Chicago studio in 1865. Mr. Hesler had his studio less than a year previous to the fire and had secured the negative with his personal belongings.

"Of the other photograph, 'The Triumphant Lincoln,' Doctor Warren comments as follows:

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, as in so many of the others, seems to interpret the very atmosphere in which the photograph was taken.

"At 9 a. m. March 24, 1865, he addressed the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Ohio regiment as they passed in review before the White House. He remained there until 2 p. m. and then drove to the Soldiers' Home, where he passed the night. The next day he returned to Washington and received the Confederate peace commissioners. During the next few days he was busy with callers and on April 9 there was another serious situation to be met when Secretary of War Stanton announced the surrender of Lee's army. Lincoln was in a happy mood during this period, and the following day, April 10, he was shot by John Wilkes Booth.

"The original negative from which this picture was made came very close to being destroyed by a fire that struck Mr. Hesler's Chicago studio in 1865. Mr. Hesler had his studio less than a year previous to the fire and had secured the negative with his personal belongings."

Of the other photograph, "The Triumphant Lincoln," Doctor Warren comments as follows:

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, as in so many of the others, seems to interpret the very atmosphere in which the photograph was taken.

"At 9 a. m. March 24, 1865, he addressed the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Ohio regiment as they passed in review before the White House. He remained there until 2 p. m. and then drove to the Soldiers' Home, where he passed the night. The next day he returned to Washington and received the Confederate peace commissioners. During the next few days he was busy with callers and on April 9 there was another serious situation to be met when Secretary of War Stanton announced the surrender of Lee's army. Lincoln was in a happy mood during this period, and the following day, April 10, he was shot by John Wilkes Booth.

"The original negative from which this picture was made came very close to being destroyed by a fire that struck Mr. Hesler's Chicago studio in 1865. Mr. Hesler had his studio less than a year previous to the fire and had secured the negative with his personal belongings."

Of the other photograph, "The Triumphant Lincoln," Doctor Warren comments as follows:

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, as in so many of the others, seems to interpret the very atmosphere in which the photograph was taken.

"At 9 a. m. March 24, 1865, he addressed the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Ohio regiment as they passed in review before the White House. He remained there until 2 p. m. and then drove to the Soldiers' Home, where he passed the night. The next day he returned to Washington and received the Confederate peace commissioners. During the next few days he was busy with callers and on April 9 there was another serious situation to be met when Secretary of War Stanton announced the surrender of Lee's army. Lincoln was in a happy mood during this period, and the following day, April 10, he was shot by John Wilkes Booth.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

and depression in this country is the forcing down of price levels below production costs by foreign competition based on lower wage levels and living standards, which destroy consuming power among those who work to produce these articles abroad, and among those who are deprived of the right to make or grow them here. The farmer suffers from the fact that he is compelled to meet rapidly increasing cheap competition abroad with his surplus while at the same time his nearest, best and only protected market at home is impaired when industrial unemployment develops in the United States.

So long as we permit prices in the United States to be fixed, as we are doing now, by foreign producers operating on the basis of low and lowering wages for workers, rather than give our own unemployed a square deal in meeting such competition, by handicapping it with tariffs to the full amount of the advantage gained through cheapening goods, by cheapening men and destroying their consuming power, we will indeed have to wait for the rest of the world to raise its wage and living standards before we can effect economic recovery. By giving our own workers a square deal we could end the depression almost immediately. Until European industrialists are willing to lay down the weapon of cheapness of goods procured by debasing labor and destroying the consuming power of the masses, Mr. Rainey will not get much cheering in this country for his scheme of having American tariffs fixed at an international conference in Paris, Geneva, or London, rather than by the Congress of the United States. For the American Congress is elected by the American people to serve their just interests rather than the ends of the international pawn brokers and labor sweaters. That foreign nations are sharpening, rather than discarding this weapon of cheapness, is shown by recent wage decreases in Germany and Italy and by the action of England in going off the gold standard, thus cheapening money in which wages are paid, and reducing wages 30 per cent throughout the British empire. While foreign economic armament is thus heavily increased, we find the majority in the House of Representatives actually planning to further tear down our already pitifully inadequate economic defenses, and wanting to get into another European conference where every other participant will have the desire, already publicly expressed, to wipe our employment defenses out entirely!

"Story of Civil War" Told in Two Lincoln Photographs

"The story of the 1861 War in pictures" is the way the accompanying photographs of Abraham Lincoln are described by Dr. Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation of Fort Wayne Ind., one of the Fifty-nine Lincolnian scholars.

Best of Beardless Pictures.

The first picture, one of the most celebrated of the beardless Lincoln portraits, was used as a campaign photograph in the presidential campaign of 1860. It was taken during the week of June 16, 1860, by the photographer, Hesler, of Chicago, and is known to Lincoln students as "The Candidate Lincoln." It depicts the unmarried president as he was in the prime of life just before he entered the White House.

The other picture, known as "The Triumphant Lincoln," was taken just five years later and is believed to be the last photograph which President Lincoln ever had taken. It was made by the Washington photographer, Gardner, and the date is believed to be April 9, 1865, on the very day that news of General Lee's surrender at Appomattox reached the President- just five days before Lincoln's assassination by John Wilkes Booth.

Dexter Warren, whose studies of Lincoln's life attracted much attention when he was president director of the Lincoln Historical Research Founda- tion at Fort Wayne, compared photographs of Abraham Lincoln and discovered that a picture in the library at Fort Wayne of Lincoln's first inauguration was one of the two photographs referred to by Lincoln's secretary, John Hay, in his article in "The Century Magazine" as the "Lincoln-Douglas Debate" picture.

"All photographs, stills or moving pictures, of Lincoln are valuable, but to me the most valuable are those which show the changes in his appearance during the four years he was president," Warren said. "Of course, many people have seen the famous Lincoln photograph which was made from a composite of the two photographs taken in Chicago in 1860. It was taken during the week of June 16, 1860, by the photographer, Hesler, of Chicago, and is known to Lincoln students as 'The Candidate Lincoln.' It depicts the unmarried president as he was in the prime of life just before he entered the White House.

"The other picture, known as 'The Triumphant Lincoln,'

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — Success.

Along the Concrete

Spring deluge

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe — Our Boy Has Gotta Be Noticed

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — 10 — By James W. Brooks

IN the early autumn of 1751, a journey fraught with affectionate anxiety was undertaken on the high seas. In that year the devoted boy spent with his half-brother Lawrence in quest of the latter's health to Barbados, a British possession in the West Indies. Here Lawrence contracted smallpox while a guest in the home of Major Clarke, governor of the island. No journey was ever made by Washington without a purpose. Though favored with rich soil, he found Barbados planters poor, which prompted him to resolve that he would ever be free from the enemy called Debt.

COMING events had begun to cast their shadows before. At the age of nineteen the young man was called to the Colonial capital at Williamsburg by Governor Dinwiddie and made adjutant general of militia for the Northern Division of Virginia. He set to work earnestly to soften the lax discipline of the militia, when again he was called to Williamsburg. On October 31, 1753, he rode away on a mission through the wilderness, bearing a message to the French at Fort La Boeuf commanding them to retire from disputed territory.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get an ounce of pure mercolized wax at any druggist. Use it like cold cream. Every night spread it on your face, like cold cream. You can't feel or see the wax. In the morning wash off the wax and the dead skin comes off with it. Your complexion is beautifully clear, fresh and young looking. Full directions in each package. Mercolized wax is also unexcelled to use before shaving. Instead of lather, rub on a little mercolized wax and then shave. The razor glides over the skin without irritation. Powerful astringents in Mercolized Wax Complexion Cream gradually absorb large pores, wrinkles and blemishes. Full directions in each package. Mercolized Wax Complexion Cream, 50c and $1.00 at druggists.

Profitable Shoe Shining

A Boston shoe shine stand has given the four sons of Tony Pallimmile their opportunity in life since his emigrated to another corner in Naples another is dodging conscripting, two other sons in this country have been enabled to start in the clothing and contracting businesses by the nickels and dimes their father's shoe shining parlor earns.

HAVE Beautiful Skin — soft, smooth, clear, "pink and white"—the matchless complexion of youth. Bathe your face with Glenn's Sulphur Soap. Clears away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rashes and other skin troubles. Relieves chapping and roughness of hands, arms and body. Invigorates the scalp. Fine lathering for the face and arms use. Glenn's Sulphur Soap 25c. Glenn Sulphur Products Co., Dept. 2, Cincinnati, O.

Puzzler

"I understand you said your wife never exchanges a cross word," remarked the observant friend.

"That's right," answered Mr. Meekton. "The arrangement is sufficiently interesting the way it is without trying to enliven it by cross conversation."

Catalysm

"Tell you what your future over the phone that we were engaged?"

"Yes, dear."

"What did he say?"

"Well, darling, I couldn't tell whether he was talking to a worker or it was a break-down on the line."

Worms in your child? ACT QUICKLY!

Fighting at nostrils. Grinding the teeth. Loss of appetite. These are symptoms of worms. Rid your child's body of these ruinous parasites that sap health and strength. Give Comstock's Dread Shot Worm Pellets. Prepared like confections. Children take them without suspecting treatment.

COMSTOCK'S WORM DREAD SHOT PELLETS

Sold by Dr. H.T. Comstock, Inc. at Druggists Morristown, N.Y.

Willing

"I must tell you last my daughter may bring a husband into your beauty and her intentions."

"I don't mind—many young couples have started in a very small way."—Montreal Star.

ZMO-OIL kills pain while it heals, because it penetrates into the wound. SORE MUSCLES, ITCHING SKIN, SORE THROAT, COUGHS, PILES, CUTS, SORES, BURNS and BRUISES. at Drug Stores OR MAIL ZAEGEL & CO. Sheboygan, Wisconsin

Sign of Spring

Son—Father, what is a garden glory?

Pa—The bugs and worms planning to eat your stuff.

Idle curiosity breeds distortion.

Do You Feel Like a RAG?

Do you get up in the morning with a tired feeling and drag yourself through the day? Nervous—cooped—sickish? It is the warning sign of constipation. Neglect anything serious. Check this. Take 2 or more of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They are a gentle, sure, and absolutely safe laxative. Made of nature's pure herbs and roots. Use them tonight and bring back your pep—at all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS Mild & Gentle Laxative

W. N. U., CHICAGO. NO. 17—1932.

• The House of the Three Ganders

By IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright by Irving Bachelller (WNU Service)

SYNOPSIS

Ezekiel and shaving a few of about [illegible] Ezekiel Bee, [illegible] the Mississippi. The boy finds [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
C. Russell Parker, Pastor

Church service—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15.
Junior Church, 6:00
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Mid-week Service, Thurs 7:00
Institute—
Morning Worship, 10:15.
Sunday School, 11:00
Young People's Service, 6:00

We will celebrate the Lord's Supper at both churches next Sunday. We will be a reception of members at Charlevoix.

The subject for the morning Meditation will be "A Yellow Streak." Illustrated 19th front sets thought of the sermon theme.

The subject for our next series as announced last Sunday means from the many suggestions from the congregation. The first sermon of the series, "The Book Nobody Knows" and "The Man Nobody Knows" are real communications on modern religious knowledge. The Book has such a small share in use in the modern home and an interest in it that we, as one congregation that we have developed quite a taste of nutriousness. There are some individuals who think it seems, that their interests are of more moment than the Scriptures. A complete list will be given next week later. The subject is "The Teachings of Jesus."

A Mother's Day Reception: As we have done before we will on again have some music, recitals, gifts to the oldest and youngest members present at the Mother's Day service Sunday May 8th.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11a.m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Keech, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Bible School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U. 6:00.
Evening Worship, 7 p. m.

A union service at 7:30. Gale Chew will speak for the Young People.

Thursday evening prayer service at the church.

Next Wednesday the Aid will meet with Mrs. Ruby Davis.

Boys' Study Class next Monday evening at 7:30. Topic "The Millenium."

The Special Guild service will be held with Marie Hallquist Tuesday evening at 7:30.

The Women's Missionary Society will hold their Annual Missionary Day the first of May. Watch for the date.

The Young People will hop in the Special services for Mothers' Day, May 8. Pageant will be given in the evening.

Grand Traverse Association meets in Petoskey May 26, 26.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject, May 1—"Everlasting Punishment."

Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Problem After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 24.

Among the Bible citations was this passage: Ps. 23:4—"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following: p. 424—"The understanding, even in a degree, of the divine All-power destroys fear, and plants the foot in the true path and leads to the house built without hands eternal in the heavens."

COMING! COMING! COMING!

Your men traveled over to Boyne City last Monday evening to hear Mr. E. F. McIntire, of that city, speak before the Rotary Club. Mr. McIntire has just recently returned from a two year stay in Russia and because of his contacts in a position to give some very important information concerning that much misunderstood country.

Those four men took the responsibility of getting Mr. McIntire to our city one week from Thursday. A supper will be served at the Congregational Church at a nominal charge of 50c cents. If you can possibly attend this address it is not only to your advantage from the point of entertainment but of good information.

High School students should attend because of the glowing reports from Russia of the Youth Movement that has attracted the attention of our youth. Hear Mr McIntire's opinion. Make plans to hear this address. It is for father, mother, brother, sister, Uncle Bob and Aunt Mary.

TELEPHONE MEANS OF CALLING FIRE DEPARTMENT

More fires are reported by telephone to the Charlevoix fire department than by any other means, according to H. B. Marshall, local fire chief. That serves to reduce the fire loss that otherwise would be sustained, by many thousands of dollars, he says, declaring that the time saved in telephoning an alarm results in quicker arrival of the fire fighting apparatus and crews. Generally the arrival of the department at the scene of a conflagration is a matter of only a very few moments after the telephoned report is received, which may mean the difference between slight damage and almost total loss of the property.

Urging that the person reporting a fire by telephone do so in a calm, clear voice, giving the street address, cross streets, and other essential information as quickly and as possible, Chief Marshall says that the Michigan Bell Telephone company cooperates with the department closely.

The telephone operators, for instance, are instructed to give precedence to fire and other emergency calls, and pay full and speedy attention to such a call the instant it flashes through the central office switchboards. The operator handling a fire call also remains on the line until full or sufficient information concerning the blaze is supplied the fire department, and frequently gives valuable assistance in relaying the facts.

There are many instances on record of persons excitedly reporting fires merely by shouting into the telephone, "My house is on fire," and giving no other information. In such case, the operator or her supervisor ascertains the origin of the call by consulting the central office records and gives the information and advice to the fire department.

The Michigan Bell company shows on the front of the telephone directory instructions for reporting fires by telephone.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR MR. CHARLES T. JONES

Funeral service under the auspices Charlevoix Lodge No. 292, F. & A. M. was held Monday afternoon for Mr. Charles T. Jones at the family home, near the Loeb school house, where he has resided for a term of years.

He was nearly seventy-five years old and a resident of the county for many years. The survivors are Mrs. Jones, one daughter and one son.

In earlier years he resided near Boyne City and his Masonic membership was held with the Lodge at that place, some members of which attended the rites held Monday.

Rev. W. W. Hurd, pastor of the Charlevoix M. E. Society officiated at the service.

Mr. B. T. McHugh and family, for the past two years residing in Flint, returned to Charlevoix a few days ago with the intention of remaining here permanently.

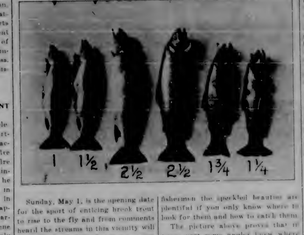
A meeting of the hospital auxiliary will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Albert Cook, 602 Park avenue, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Members are requested to be prepared to sew and all are urged to be present.

Mrs. Merritt Lewis, who was called to Benton Harbor some five weeks ago on account of her mothers illness and remained until her mother passed away, returned home Saturday.

Mr. W. C. Bellinger, two daughters and his mother, Mrs. C. B. Bellinger, were called to Leelanau County Sunday, where they attended the funeral service of a relative, Mr. Adam Bellinger, 71 years old and a pioneer in the county.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson drove to Grand Rapids Tuesday, where Dr. Wilkinson attended the Republican State Convention as an accredited delegate from Charlevoix County and Mrs. Wilkinson as an interested guest and observer of convention procedure. They were accompanied by Mr. Clarence Meggison, postmaster at Charlevoix and Supervisor James H. Gallagher of St. James, both of whom were delegates to the convention.

Taking on weight and feeling fine is the latest report from Mr. D. S. Payton, who for some months past has been living at San Diego, California. Enclosed in the letter carrying the information was a recent picture of Mr. Payton, evidencing that insofar as weight is concerned that he has taken on many pounds; that he stands erect as the proverbial Indian.



Sunday, May 1, is the opening date for the spirit of casting brook trout to rise to the fly and from comments heard the streams in this county will be well attended during the opening and following days of the season.

According to a number of local fishermen the speckled beauties are plentiful if you only know where to look for them and how to catch them. The picture above proves that at times pay some angler lives where and how.

Good luck to all true sportsmen.

Tariff Sniping

Despite the fact that no political party, coming into power at Washington will ever dare again, unless world conditions change vastly, put into effect the doctrine of free trade or tariff for revenue only, there is still a great deal of oratory devoted to the attempt to weaken the faith of the American people in the principle of protection. For instance in a recent address, in which, according to press dispatches, he discussed Washington and Jeffersonian principles, former Governor Harry F. Byrd is quoted as saying:

"Take the tariff for example. Whatever may be our individual opinions about the tariff walls we have built around America, no one can deny that we have made the tariff higher and higher until even England our second best customer, the last resort of free trade, has not only imposed protective duties, but has created a commission that may increase duties 100 per cent against those articles that treat England with injustice."

"It is one thing to impose a tariff to protect living standards here, but it is bad business to raise the duties until we alienate our best national customers, destroy our export trade and encourage American industry to migrate abroad and employ foreign labor. The workmen at home are not protected in this way."

In passing, it might be well to state that protection was a principle of both Washington and the Jeffersonians in the early days of the republic, and the First Congress of the United States passed a protective tariff and it is equally true that the law is doing the nation a great deal of good. It is reviving industries which are now busy supplying a British home market which was formerly supplied by nations of continental Europe, with the result that Great Britain more than any other nation in the world is now on the upgrade. It is not true however that the tariff is a retaliatory one. It came following the overwhelming victory of the Conservative party which has always been for protection, and whose leaders have continually pointed to the United States as furnishing an example which Great Britain should follow.

The charge that we have raised our tariff so high our best customers cannot buy from us is disproved by the fact that the shelves of our stores in the United States now are filled with foreign made goods which are displacing the wares of our home producers. Our present tariff is not too high, in fact the constantly lowering of the costs of living in other nations and the depreciation in the currency in many of those nations, has rendered ineffective the protection which the Smoot-Hawley act was intended to give.

If it were the present tariff which had shut off our exports these exports would be declining principally to those countries which are most effected by our tariff. But this is not the case. Our exports to countries like Brazil, which are little affected by our protective tariff, have fallen off just as much in proportion as our exports to other countries.

There never has been a time, during the past century at least when a protective tariff was an issue between American and American producer as the present.

FAIL TO LINK ANN RUTLEDGE WITH FAMED S. C. FAMILY

Was Daughter of Rutledge Pioneer, Says Doctor Louis A. Warren.

FORT WAYNE, (IND.)—Attempts of statisticians to connect Abraham Lincoln's first sweetheart, Ann Rutledge with the famous Rutledge family of South Carolina have failed, it was announced here by Dr. Louis A. Warren, secretary of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

The Rutledge statistics in the records of pioneer families fail to reveal any connection between Ann Rutledge and the Rutledges whom Abraham Lincoln married in 1842, Dr. Warren said. He pointed out that the Rutledges of South Carolina, "whose wealth and influence, reaching to almost the middle of the nineteenth century, were of such a century ago this year."

"If I were born and have ever resided in the most humble walks of life, I have no wealthy or prominent relations or friends to recommend me."

Doctor Warren, known as one of the foremost Lincolnian scholars, was appointed director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation when the organization was endowed by the late Oscar Nathaniel Isaac Lincoln Oatman to perpetuate Lincoln Lore and further study of Lincoln's life. He is the author of "Lincoln's Parentage and Childhood" and has made many contributions to the record of information on Lincoln's ancestry.

There was a colony of Rutledges in Augusta County, Virginia, whom this writer is bit the same name Ann Rutledge married," Doctor Warren said, pointing out that it was the same colony that Lincoln's father, Thomas Lincoln, was born. He suggested that Ann's ancestors probably followed the same pioneering trail from Virginia through Kentucky and Indiana to New Salem, Ill., that the Lincolns followed.

"But the idea that Ann Rutledge was descended from the South Carolina aristocrats of the same name reasonably originated with a romance. All attempts to prove the relationship have failed."

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale of mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1932.

Present, Hon. Erwan A. Rouggeorge, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Harry Hibbler, Mentally Incompetent.

Gerald W. Richardson, Guardian, having filed in said court his petition praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described.

It is thereupon, That the 9th day of May, A. D. 1932, at the office in the said city, said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Rouggeorge,
Judge of Probate.

5153

(Political Advertisement)
TO THE VOTERS OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Appreciating the confidence you have placed in me in the past I wish to announce that I shall be a candidate at the September Primary for the Office of County Treasurer.

Joseph Wm. Flanders.

FOR SALE—Modern residence, 201 Alice St., Charlevoix, Mich. Address W. Wolf, 9317 St. Jean Ave., Detroit, Mich. 5224

FOR SALE—An 11 room residence, 201 Alice St., Charlevoix, Mich. Address W. Wolf, 9317 St. Jean Ave., Detroit, Mich. 5224

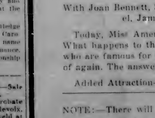
PURE MAPLE SYRUP made in Grafton County, best quality, $2.00 per gallon. Hiram H. Naldrett, 623 Kalamazoo Ave., Petoskey. 5149

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples. Carloads only. Pay highest market prices. The Hamilton Co., New Castle, Pa. 5116

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy thokage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.
We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing and relaying rugs. In fact all types of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.
5tf S. T. Gokey, Prop.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM
$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,000 will buy one of the best 40 acre farms in Charlevoix County.
Eight room lower bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description W ½ of SW ¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.
Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Manistique, Mich. 11c



Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. L. Crimming, Vice Pres.; H. A. Lindquist, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier

The 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Home his spirit and love of his fellow men. The future of this country our fault? It will be made by the children of today, so we will be no wonder to overcome challenges on our doorstep?

On this 200th anniversary of his birth let us take heart, face forward and work with

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert E. Fridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Rosa
Ernest J. Biller Joseph M. Porter Meyer A. Lachman

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

WOU HAVE HEARD PEOPLE TELL what they will do "when their ship comes in". But the trouble in most of them, people never port their ship.

Successful folk don't wait for fortune to come to them. They send out their ports and save the difference. And isn't today the best day to start a Savings Account?

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, APRIL 30, MAY 1

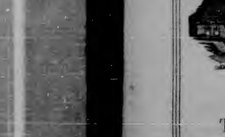
"Disorderly Conduct"
With Sally Eilers, Spencer Tracy, El Brendel, Dickie Moore.
To her, bad behavior meant a good time! She had money. She had looks! And she had to have thrills. She got them and got away with them, until she met a guy who knew how to keep his mind on duty and off women!
Added Attractions—"Two Cartoons".

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, MAY 4, 5

"She Wanted A Millionaire"
With Joan Bennett, Spencer Tracy, Una Merkel, James Kirkwood.
Today, Miss America—Tomorrow what? What happens to the beauty contest winners who are famous for a day and are never heard of again. The answer is sensational!
Added Attraction—Comedy "Summer Daze"

NOTE:—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, '7.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.



Thousands of fires throughout Michigan are reported annually BY TELEPHONE

In other words, thousands of persons in Michigan annually find their telephones PRICELESS PROTECTION when fire endangers property and the lives of loved ones.

In small Michigan communities, having no fire-boat alarm system, the telephone is especially valuable as a means of summoning aid immediately in case of fire.

Few things offer so much convenience and protection at such low cost as the telephone.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1932 Number 2

MUSIC CONTEST HERE MAY 6TH

MASSED PERFORMANSE SCHEDULED FOR EVENING

The splendid concert given by the band, assisted by the glee clubs, on last Friday evening has made everyone doubly anxious to hear our musical organizations again this Friday in competition with neighboring schools.

Following is the contest program:
9:00 Orchestra; East Jordan and Kingsley.
9:30 Band: Traverse City, Onekama, Charlevoix, East Jordan.
10:30 Girls' Glee Club: Alpena, Traverse City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Gaylord.
11:10 Boys Glee Club: Alpena, Traverse City, East Jordan.
11:50 Mixed Chorus: Traverse City, Alpena, Charlevoix.
1:30 Wood Wind Ensemble: East Jordan, Traverse City.
Grand: Traverse City, Kingsley, Onekama.
String: Traverse City.
2:30 Rehearsals for Evening Festival.
In the evening at 7:30 o'clock an especially enjoyable feature will be presented. There will be a massed performance of all the orchestras, bands and glee clubs in a Festival Program. The following numbers will be given.
Orchestra, "Festal March" by Cadman; "Schubert Serine".
Girls Glee Clubs—"River, River"; Page; "Come Lovely May"; Jacobsen-Reynolds; "Hi Heavenly Love Abiding", Schumann-Schreiber.
Boys Glee Clubs—"Who Will O'er the Downs", Pearsall; "Three Changes", Arr. Bartholomew; "Glory to God—Nature", Berthoven-Parker.
Mixed Chorus — "Hail Smiling Morn", Spofforth; "Beautiful Savior", Christiansen; "Ash Grove", Welsh Air.
Orchestra; "Tannhauser", Wagner; "German Dance", Beethoven; "Trojans Overture", Roberts.

CANDY FOR MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 8TH
Beautiful Carnation Packages for $1 and $2, also other packages at 50c.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

PICTURE FANS APPROVE CHATTERTON-LUCAS TIE-UP

Paul Lukas appears opposite Ruth Chatterton in the role of the romantic doctor in Paramount's filmization of Philip Barry's play, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," a sensitive and highly dramatic triangle-theme story. It is the Palace theatre's feature for two days, beginning Saturday of this week.

In enacting the role of the doctor who brings happiness to the young, courageous, and unconventional wife to whom marriage is not enough, Lukas returns to work with the star with whom he is now leading film fame.

Lukas and Miss Chatterton make a combination admired by fandom, particularly in romantic roles. Both being highly educated and their intellectual and temperamental qualities complement each other and contribute to their effective portrayals in roles involving the love element.

Lukas has appeared as Miss Chatterton's leading man in three of her greatest successes, "Anybody's Woman," "The Right to Love" and "Unfaithful," and now for the second time in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow."

An established leading man in talking pictures through his work with Pola Negri, Lukas had become a character player until given these romantic parts with Miss Chatterton.

Nearly all men, and some women, are prone occasionally to do some surprisingly freakish things, not regularly nor from force of habit, just something unexpected and out of the ordinary. An apt illustration is a case now under observation, that of Mr. Harley Orks, regular in his habits, prompt and attentive to his business, always, or most always, on the job, yet with his quota of experience, has, during recent days persistently remained away from the store and in his home constantly. Why? One little word tells the entire story. Measles!

Gustav C. Mielke of St. James spent the early part of this week in Charlevoix on business.

CANDY FOR MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 8TH
Beautiful Carnation Packages for $1 and $2, also other packages at 50c.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

Captain C. J. Allers with his crew and Patrol No. 1, the crack ship operated by the Department of Conservation made this port early this week and is making frequent trips to various locations planting fish in Lake Michigan.

JOE E. BROWN APPEARS AS HERO IN NEW COMEDY

Joe E. Brown, star of "Local Hero Makes Good" and numerous comedies appears as both fireman and baseball hero in his latest picture, "Fireman Save My Child," a First National picture coming to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Brown is go on his greatest opportunity in "Fireman, Save My Child." In it he appears as the small town hero who is the assistant fire chief, and star pitcher of the local baseball team. He is a natural hero in fun who would rather go to a fire than make love to his best girl. He drops everything, baseball game or love, at the first fire fanfare. This conception of the small town hero by Robert Lord, Ray Enright and Arthur Caesar, film fashion favorites, gives Brown great latitude in securing laughs from audiences.

Ann Sheridan, Joe Donnel, Brown invents a fire extinguisher. Needing money to exploit his patent, he accepts a job from Ole St. Louis Cardinals to pitch for their team. He makes good as a pitcher, but is in constant difficulties with the team manager because of his penchant for dropping everything when a fire truck shrieks by. By the end, everyone regards him as a rube and he falls into the clutches of a blonde baseball vamp. Out of love for Ann Sally, the hometown girl. His difficulties are smoothed out, however, and he returns to the hometown with a hero than ever, rushing to his marriage with Sally in the local fire wagon.

Evelyn Knapp portrays the hometown girl with whom "Smoky" Joe is on love. This is Miss Knapp's first important role since her injury last year which confined her to a hospital for several months. Lillian Bond, English star recently seen on the New York stage in the role of Ann Rutledge in "Free For All," appears as the adventuress who complicates the hero's romance. Guy Kibbee is the team manager who cannot sympathize with Joe's passions for fires and baseball. Others are Eric Blore, Sarah Cattle, George Meeker, Andy Devine, who made such a hit as the indian football star in "The Spirit of Notre Dame, and a large staff of Pacific Coast and major league baseball players, among whom is Frank Shellenbach, star pitcher.

TROUT FISHERMEN OUT IN NUMBERS MAY FIRST

Trout fishermen were out in numbers the opening day of the season, May 1st, all making fetin fair to exceptionally good catches. The season was not as desirable as could have been wished. At that it was not bad. The early morning was cool and cloudy. Later in the day clouds were mirkers and the sunshine to some extent made for comfort, while the fishermen, more interested in taking the speckled beauties, took little heed of the weather and put out on the lake for their first day of the season.

The Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Church and their husbands entertained by Mrs. R. L. Harrington, 108 Clinton Street Wednesday evening. A short but interesting program was carried out as follows: Reading by Mrs. H. S. Harsha; recitation, Mrs. George H. Stuart; reading, Mrs. Harry A. Craig; piano duets, Martha and Bobby Craig; reading, Mrs. Joe Donnel. The social hour followed by serving delicious refreshments, all of which made for a pleasant afternoon for the guests.

Residents of Charlevoix, who spent the winter in Florida and other southern points, are gradually resuming in their summer homes here. Late advice to the Sentinel carries the information that Mr. and Mrs. George W. Trout after spending the winter at St. Petersburg are on their way home and after visiting relatives in Detroit for a few days will continue their trip to Charlevoix.

CANDY FOR MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 8TH
Beautiful Carnation Packages for $1 and $2, also other packages at 50c.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

County News

MARION CENTER NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Bowly Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Withers attended Pomona Grange Saturday evening with Boyne River Grange about two miles northeast of Boyne Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo Meggison visited Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Mellencamp of Boyne City Sunday.

Achievement Day program in Charlevoix Friday, April 29, was well attended. Our 4-H clubs are to be congratulated on the good work done the last year as well as previous years.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Palmer were visitors on the Mainland the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovern McGhan and Mr. and Mrs. Harlan McGhan made a trip to Petoskey Sunday afternoon to see their niece who is in the hospital there with appendicitis.

Marion Center Grange met in their hall last Friday evening with a good attendance considering the lateness of the hour. They did not call to order until after the C. H. S. band concert in Charlevoix.

The Ladies of the Grange organized an Auxiliary with Mrs. Ida Cellar president, Mrs. Arlo Wickersham vice president, Mrs. Mamie Straw secretary and Mrs. Florence Williams Treasurer. They will hold their meetings about once a month. The dates will be announced later.

BEAVER ISLAND NOTES

Patrick Bonner, treasurer of Peaine township, was in Charlevoix on business for a few days.

Mrs. Patrick Malloy, of Pontiac, is visiting at the home of her son, Earl Malloy.

Lou Bruge returned home after spending the winter at Frankfort with his daughter, Mrs. Dolphis Pellestere, Jr.

The Misses Margaret and Edith Gallagher were visiting in Charlevoix this week.

Mr. Bert McDonough who is employed by the lighthouse construction company, left this week for Algona, Wis., to resume his work for the season.

Raymond White drove to Chicago Wednesday, returning Monday, accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Rae Gilden, brother Clifford and cousins John and Bernadine McAuley.

John S. Bush, with the U. S. Department of Justice was a business visitor here this week.

Nels Lafreniere and daughter, Rita, were Charlevoix visitors this week.

Mrs. Cleo Harris and son, returned home after a two week's visit with friends in Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lefi are Charlevoix visitors this week.

Doctor and Mrs. Russell Palmer were visitors on the Mainland the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gen LaBlance and daughter Teresa, were visitors here Monday.

Pat Moran of Charlevoix was a business caller here this week.

Everett Dale and Eddie McLaughlin were business callers in Charlevoix this week, making the trip with the gas boat "High Island".

The Patrol boat No. 1 was in port Sunday, the first trip of the season.

Mads Jensen of Garden Island made a business trip here Saturday, the first trip this season.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Conoghan, a daughter, Saturday, April 23.

Mrs. Bert McDonough was a Charlevoix visitor this week.

James H. Gallegher returned Thursday from Grand Rapids where he attended the Republican State Convention.

Mike Coll who is making St. Ignace his headquarters during the spring fishing season, was here over Sunday. He returned to St. Ignace Monday.

Geo Mielke was a business caller in Charlevoix the first of the week.

Wm. Superneau of Charlevoix was a business caller here Tuesday.

The Beaver Hotel opened its doors to the public May 3rd, under the same management as in former years.

The new mail boat "Onian Bedell" started on the season's mail run between Charlevoix and St. James, May 2nd. Since the opening of navigation the "Rambler has been on the

CANDY FOR MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 8TH
Beautiful Carnation Packages for $1 and $2, also other packages at 50c.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

MRS. GEO. COOK FUNERAL SAT.

WAS RESIDENT OF THIS VICINITY FOR SIXTY YEARS

Funeral service was held for Mrs. George Cook Saturday afternoon with Rev. G. Russell Parker officiating.

Mrs. Cook was 68 years old and had lived in or near Charlevoix for the past sixty years, in early years in Hayes township but for a long term of years in this city.

Her maiden name was Lola Victoria Ferguson. Born in Hamilton Co., New York, May 3rd, 1864. Eight years later she came to Charlevoix, where she remained until the time of her death, a continuous period of sixty years and with her death leaves to mourn her passing a host of friends old and young as well as the universal respect of every resident in this vicinity.

April 6, 1888 she was united in marriage with Mr. George W. Cook, who preceded her in death about ten years ago.

Mrs. Cook is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Nabel Bergeron of Charlevoix, Mrs. Cora Howard of Muskegon, one son, George W. Cook, and fourteen grandchildren; also by three sisters, Mrs. J. M. Clark of Charlevoix, Mrs. E. Franks of Bancroft and Mrs. E. Pepper of Lansing.

Earl Johnson is taking a short vacation from his regular duties at the H. B. Jacobs store. From reports we conclude that some part of his vacation is being used on trout fishing trips.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford, with Mrs. Julia Cram and her grandson Billie House, drove to Frankfort Saturday, to visit their brother, Ed. They returned home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Slaughton, who have been spending the winter on Upright Avenue, returned to their farm in Marion Monday.

Mrs. Ruth Soule will present a group of her violin and cello pupils in a recital at the Baptist Church Wednesday evening, May 11, at 8 o'clock. The public is extended a cordial invitation to attend.

Mrs. Charles Holsworth of Traverse City spent Sunday in Charlevoix with her mother, Mrs. Archie Irwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd McDonough returned home Monday after spending a week in Charlevoix.

Leroy Allers of Charlevoix returned home the first of the week after relieving Floyd McDonough as engineer on the freighter Rambler, for a week.

School News

No Unemployment in Junior Class

For the last week and for the next three weeks there won't be any unemployment in the Junior Class, for everybody has a job preparing for the biggest, most successful, beauty for Junior Hop which is May 20.

Some of the girls are making flowers and they are measuring the caps and sizing it up. Don't forget May 20!

Teacher's Banquet

Tuesday evening, May 3, Miss Edith Sukell of Western State Teachers College spoke to the Charlevoix faculty at a dinner held at the Hotel Charlevoix. Teachers from Petoskey, East Jordan and Boyne City were guests at the meeting.

The subject of Miss Sukell's talk was "Curriculum Articulation." This is the beginning of a definite attempt on the part of the local faculty to formulate a more coherent and practical course of study for use in the Charlevoix schools. A group study of curriculum problems will be made throughout the school during 1932-1933.

The Faculty of the Charlevoix School is planning and making arrangements to take a trip to Beaver Island sometime before the end of this school year.

Tickets will go on sale this week-end for the Senior Play, "Two Girls Wanted." At the very low prices of 25 and 35 cents, everyone will wish to see this extremely interesting and laughable comedy.

Junior High News.

A Junior High School Achievement day, featuring work of the English, history, vocal and instrumental music, physical education, manual arts, and home economics departments is being planned for Wednesday, May 18.

The program will consist of a demonstration through the medium of a short play, "The Honors Tea Party," directed and played by students in the English and history classes, individual and group numbers in the vocal and instrumental classes; representative games demonstrated by students in physical education, exhibits and demonstration work by students in the manual training and home economic groups.

Students will assume charge of the work under the uniform supervision of the faculty.

Third Grade Spring Play

A play named "A Gift in the Garden" was given by the Third Grade last Thursday morning for the elementary children. The stage was the garden full of boys and girls, representing flowers. Freda Wilds did some good acting with the part of the little girl who had been chosen to be Queen of the May, and felt that she couldn't be the queen because she didn't have the pretty clothes she would need. Eleanor Herrington was the Fairy of the Flowers, who helped to make her troubles many. Marion Wood took the part of the little rich girl and Phyllis Van Allsburg the little poor girl. All of the children took their parts well and produced a pretty spring program.

Next week the first grade will present the play, "Johnny Appleseed."

The fifth and sixth grade are painting vases for Mother's Day.

Doris Howe and Dorothy Olszewski were recently awarded Palmer Method Progress Pins.

Mrs. M. L. Hartman, sons Henry and Charles and her brother, J. Chicago, were here Friday making arrangements for improvement work on the Hartman summer home located at 307 Michigan avenue. Extensive changes will be made in the property at once in order to have the residence completed by June 1st, the date set for the family to occupy the home for the summer months.

Henry Pike, for some days reported critically ill at his home on West Lincoln street, is improving at this time, with every indication that he soon will regain perfect health.

At the local Methodist parsonage, last Saturday evening, occurred the marriage of Mr. Stephen Kaiser and Miss Margaret Frame, both of Elk Rapids. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Perry O'Dell of that city.

CANDY FOR MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 8TH
Beautiful Carnation Packages for $1 and $2, also other packages at 50c.
FESSENDEN THE DRUGGIST

HIGH SCHOOL BAND IN DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

The annual spring concert of the Charlevoix school band, Albert W. Bidell, conductor took place in the school gymnasium on April 29.

The opening number, Klohr's "Men of Valor" march, was conducted by Hugo Parker, student director for Mr. Bidell. The second and third numbers were Iriana Overture and Beethoven's German Dances. Both of these departments of the league, who is holding schools of instruction for band members, will be heard Friday evening when they are to be performed by the massed bands which will be entertained for the district contest festival here in Charlevoix.

The "Iriana" Overture was written by Charles Rohrer as a special request for a National class C contest number. The number is dedicated to Ralph A. Harding, director of the University of Illinois bands, around which only the scene was layed. It was composed to represent a celebration in an urban town. The selection referred to was the national band festival held at Urbana, Illinois, (University of Illinois) in 1931 under the management of Mr. Harding.

Another contest number on the program was a selection from the well known opera "Tannhauser." This number is the one which will be used in grading the band.

Two novelty numbers first made famous by the program. A group of xylophone solos and a number by saxophonists of Harold Bennett's march "Military Escort." The program ran as follows:

ACHIEVEMENT DAY PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Everything is in readiness for the ladies Achievement Day to be held in the Presbyterian church in Hoyne City on Friday, May 6.

Of especial interest will be the display of home made rugs which represents the work of at least 200 women who have participated in the county extension program.

A most pleasing program has been arranged by Mrs. Robert Russell, chairman of the program committee, with the assistance of her research class. There will be both formative and effective attractions with a dinner at noon as the small cost of 25c per plate which will be prepared by the ladies of the Presbyterian church.

The feature of the day will be the presentation of certificates to the district all requirements.

Women who have successfully com-

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson W. Price, after spending the winter in Ohio returned to their home in Boyne City a few days ago, where they have established it ensalves for the 1932 season and where Mr. Price will continue for Mickinton garden expansion work.

Mrs. F. M. Lewis, Mrs. Frank A. Kenyon, Mrs. Blanche Greesman and Mrs. Lewis Brown, Indian River and Chubbyman Saturday where they visited relatives and friends, returning home late Saturday night.

Leon Atchison, a former Charlevoix resident, but for some time past living at Traverse City, was a guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. H. E. Fowler, on Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Maggie Sherrow left for Ypsilanti Monday to attend the funeral service of her sister, Mrs. Alice Hallock who passed away late Saturday at Flint. Mrs. Sherrow was accompanied by a sister Mrs. Harry Hubbard, who resides at Flint, and was visiting here when their sister died. Martin Peterson also accompanied the women on this motor trip to Flint.

Dan McInnis was missing from his city delivery work Monday and Tuesday as he is taking time off from his usual duties. Percy Dunlap is taking care of the job with the postal department, during Dan's absence.

Mr. Clark C. Haire, publisher of the Boyne Citizen, was a business visitor in Charlevoix Tuesday, and found the time while here to call at this office for a short visit.

Mr. W. S. Richardson and son Gerald W. motored to Grand Rapids Monday where they spend several days on business.

Mr. J. W. Harris of Oak Park spent the early part of the week in Charlevoix and at the Harris summer home properties on Lake Charlevoix near Ironton and making arrangements for opening his cottage early during the vacation season.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETS

A meeting of the hospital auxiliary will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Albert Cook, 602 Park avenue, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Members are requested to be prepared to sew and all are urged to be present.

LEGION ENJOYS OFFICIAL VISIT

HORACE C. PARRISH, STATE SERVICE OFFICER, SPEAKS

Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, had an honored guest, Tuesday evening, in the person of Horace C. Parrish, field service officer of the state department of the legion, who is holding schools of instruction for post service officers in various territorially located conventions for groups of counties throughout the state. Mr. Parrish held private interviews at the local legion hall during the afternoon, with veterans from the counties of Charlevoix, Antrim and Kalkaska having disability and compensation claims to present and, in the evening following a potluck supper, addressed an assemblage of some forty Legionnaires and ex-service men giving an intensely interesting description of his work and explaining the duties of post service officers.

Among the matters of interest of the local post, the treasure hunt scheduled for nine p. m., Thursday evening, May 5th is referred to. Numerous inquiries have been received relative to the

ESKIMOS ADOPTING WAYS OF WHITE MAN

Tribes of the North Turn to Trapping and Trading.

Washington.—The Eskimo, according to dispatches from the far North, is slowly changing his ways of life and many of those remote Americans of the last frontier are adopting white man's ways.

In Alaska and western Canada many Eskimos have deserted their former hunting and fishing to meet personal food and clothing needs and have become trappers and traders. In Greenland and northern Labrador the Eskimo has clustered around the settlements and trading posts and a visit to one of these, no matter how long, will see old skin tents and barbarous skins for the white man's stuff—tents, furs, dress clothing and gramophones.

The Bishop of Arctic Canada went so far in discussion on American television that there are many natives who have learned and mastered the white man's ways. "Some natives in the north are as well educated as Americans living in the Arctic. Natives who have been educated outside the Arctic and whose mind somehow have lifted itself from their environment are not to be considered as Eskimos in the true sense of the word."

The Eskimo, he said, will be here long after he is dead, but will be the same as "he was when I first met him."

Considering some limited numbers, the Eskimo is now a tremendous factor. The most famous population of the most famous explorer, Stefansson, is 5,000, but Dr. Lindley Clinger on his famed love and others have estimated the number of Arctic Americans from northern Greenland to the Bering sea and Siberia, between the eastern shores of Alaska and even on the tip of Asia across the Bering Strait.

Throughout this Eskimo there are, today, many white men. Some are of one language, a strange tongue which combines a smattering of 10,000 words. As in Chinese, inflection is very important. Two outsiders learn it, although a native English boy learning his white man's experience and missionaries attempt to teach the language.

"Nearly all Eskimos live on or near the coast because they depend for their food from the sea. They raise no vegetables, supplementing their meat diet in summer with wild berries and roots. In summer they hunt land animals and birds, as a rule, and in the winter they live on sea mammals and fish.

"Whales, seals and walrus furnish practically all the food, fuel and clothing for the Eskimo. Their houses are made of snow blocks or skin tents. Their clothing consists of skin boots, trousers, shirts and parkas, all fashioned from skins.

"Their sleds, dogs, or canoes are always assembled with lashings rather than the familiar western nails and screws. Their kayak, or skin boat, has remained around the northern seacoast, indicating the whole area a cradle of its own, as do the bow and arrow and skin tents and harnessing skins for the white man's stuff—furs, dress clothing and gramophones.

"The Eskimo's diet is the finest ever known to mankind, as vitamin specialists, Vilhjalmur Stefansson and others have found out. The Eskimo eats all parts of animals, and a very great deal of them, and a very small amount of vegetables. He eats the meat raw or fat, but seldom cooks it any. A large portion of his food is fish, and he obtains seal grease as cooking oil. The Eskimo is the finest and heaviest consumer of cod liver oil in the world. He eats seaweed for a thing to season. Among the Eskimo are found many kinds of seaweed, which are used in various ways as vegetables.

"The Eskimo's diet is the richest in vitamins and minerals of any people on earth, and a very great deal of it is eaten raw or frozen. He eats it raw for fat, but seldom cooks it any. A delicious egg dish is made by mixing seal oil with the eggs of wild birds and freezing the mixture. This dish is delicious when eaten frozen. The Eskimo also eats the eggs raw.

"The Eskimo's diet is the richest in vitamins and minerals of any people on earth, and a very great deal of it is eaten raw or frozen. He eats it raw for fat, but seldom cooks it any. A large portion of his food is fish, and he obtains seal grease as cooking oil. The Eskimo is the finest and heaviest consumer of cod liver oil in the world. He eats seaweed for a thing to season. Among the Eskimo are found many kinds of seaweed, which are used in various ways as vegetables

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.

IRA A. ADAMS, Editor

Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS

One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THINKERS NEEDED IN LEGISLATURES

Unemployment insurance, old age pensions, the stabilization of employment through a set-up of governmental and social agencies, taking away the riches from the rich and giving them to the poor—all these subjects and many similar ones are certain to bob up in Congress and in the legislatures from here on while the American people are groping toward a solution of their serious problems.

In the welter of proposals presumably designed to help the business, industrial and social situation will appear many so radical that they cannot command support enough to make them dangerous at any time soon, but there will be others, equally radical in effect although not gain considerable foreeon the surface, that may among the unthinking. And among them all are likely to be found practical suggestions, even though they may run counter to accepted systems of the present, that may be worked out to the advantage of the whole people.

There have been few times in the history of the nation when it is so important to have men in our legislative bodies who are thinkers; men who are genuine humanitarians anxious to do the best possible thing for the greatest possible number of their countrymen, but who yet are unwilling to sacrifice the principles upon which this nation's success and prosperity have been founded in order to give away and swing to hafe-baked and untried plans whose long-run effect would be to harm the very persons they may be intended to benefit.

Candidates for the Congress, for the legislatures, for the governorships should be looked over more carefully than ever before. They should be made to declare themselves upon every important subject having to do with the people's welfare. The wild-eyed should be weeded out in the primaries and conventions and those candidates that are progressive without being radical, and conservative without being moribund, should receive the support of level-headed Americans to the exclusion of all others.

PLAIN TALK FROM FARMERS

Application of common sense to government from farm problems is again being urged upon Washington by farmers throughout the country. The latest advice along this line directs attention to overlapping of activities between the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior. Speaking for the farmers, Tom Cathcart, addresses an open letter to Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior.

"Dear Mr. Secretary," writes Editor Cathcart, "you have an extraordinary opportunity to help hard-pressed taxpayers, to confer a great benefit on the farmers, and to prove yourself a generous and far-sighted public servant.

"Nobody knows better than you what a crazy quilt our government has become. Bureaus and commissions have become so plentiful that not even old residents can name them all. Some are independent and others are scattered through the various departments without logic or reason.

"Take your own department, for instance. Among other bureaus you have the Reclamation and the General Land Office. They should be transferred to the Department of Agriculture for many sound and convincing reasons, as you, being an intelligent man, very well know.

Take your Reclamation Bureau, which is now considering a $400,000,000 irrigation project in the Columbia River basin, to yield more than a million acres of new farm lands. The plain fact is that too much land is now being used for agriculture. It is necessary to restrict rather than increase the productive farm lands, if agricultural unrest is to be dispelled by fair prices.

"No progress in these matters can be made while the responsibility is divided, and while sundry bureaus work independently and without thought of the major problem. Why don't you inform your associates in the Cabinet and notify the President that in the interest of the nation you are willing to surrender those bureaus which properly belong in the Department of Agriculture? Such a surrender would be an act of statesmanship which would be long remembered and appreciated."

QUALITY OF COMPETITION

There cannot be equality of competition throughout the world, however desirable theoretically that may seem to be, without equality of prevailing labor costs. As cheap money drives out dear money, so cheap labor drives out better paid labor. The effect of an integration of standards is to sink all to the lowest standard. The sort of international trade competition in which the industrial nations of Europe are engaged is such that the American people, under present conditions, have everything to lose and nothing to gain, by entering it. For the United States to attempt the lowering of tariffs which constitute our sole means of defense against lower wages and living standards, would be fatal. And in speaking of the reduction of tariffs throughout the world, this is to be kept in mind: that no other country in the world has justification for levying a tariff on our output on the basis of our tariff policy—equalization of labor costs—while we do no injustice to any other country by handicapping its imports in our markets to the extent in which they have been made cheaper than our production by lower wages.

The most important disarmament conference it would be possible to hold, is one in which industrial nations would engage to divest themselves of that weapon of cheapness forged through the lowering of wages and consuming power and the destruction of human values.

PROTECTION BEFORE DISASTER

From 1915 to 1926 the annual fire loss in the United States climbed steadily from less than $200,000,000 to over $561,100,000, except in 1919 when there was a slight drop, immediately offset by a sharp rise in 1920. But in 1927 reductions of nearly $100,000,000 were shown with continuing reductions in 1928 and 1929 to a total of $459,445,778, the lowest mark after 1920. Then there was a slight increase.

With this marked reduction in fire loss over a period of years, it looks as if fire prevention work and fire protective measures which result largely from fire prevention education, are winning a areal battle in behalf of public safety. In this connection improved fire departments manned by better trained men and equipped with high grade standardized apparatus units have played a leading part.

Smaller towns and cities are daily learning the advantages that accrue to them by preventing the destruction of tax paying property and employing industries.

In these days when economy in public and private expenditures is essential, fire waste cannot be tolerated. Fire departments should be kept in first-class condition and make-shift apparatus should be replaced. It is poor economy to leave the lives and property of a community to the mercy of inferior protection.

This is a public problem which must be met before a disaster occurs which causes a community loss of life and propety far in excess of the cost of protection.

THE CAR IN THE FAMILY BUDGET

This year, as never before, the expenses of automobile opera are of vital importance to the average American family. Father, mother, sister and brother are all in need of the outdoor recreation and relaxation afforded by the car to offset the pessimism clouding our thoughts. The utility of the car has become a major consideration, a priceless asset.

The new car must be cared for thoughtfully to enable it to give the utmost in economical and safe service. The old car, if it is your intention or need to get another year's wear out of it, must have particular attention to keep it from becoming an extravagance through costly repair jobs or a deadly hazard through the failure of its running gear.

W. T. Palmer, after a two year study of the automobile accident situation, said in a recent speech that one of the most difficult things in the world is to get American motorists to save their own lives and their own money by taking simple precautions that cost nothing.

"Any reliable service station," said Mr. Palmer, "will be glad to look over a motorist's car and tell him the exact condition of the things on which the motoring safety of himself and his family depends—steering gear, wheels, lights and brakes.

"This is particularly true of old cars. Their brakes, especially after years of service, should be expertly inspected at intervals. If they are worn out of adjustment they offer a motoring danger to which no driver has the right to expose himself or his loved ones in the high speed road traffic of today."

EVERY AGE WILD—AT THE TIME

Women are turning of one accord these days to cut-out sandals, ventilated shoe fabrics, and in some more extreme cases even to slippers without toes which exhibit the polished toenails of their wearers. There may be some people who will hold their hands aloft and say: "What is the world coming to?"

We hasten to divulge the dark secret that as long ago as 1874 American women were discussing the advisability of wearing sandals as a change from the clumsy footwear of the period, and that they met in conclave in Boston that year to consider this and important underwear and hosiery innovation.s

Among the forms considered at that time were suspenders from which trains could be supported when not in use—as trains. An elastic knitted garment which might give warmth and hold up stockings at the same time was considered.

THE SOUND OF MANY WATERS

"When every nerve is taut with the effort to bring industry and commerce up from decline, to revive hope, to restore employment, to keep the national credit high and unchallenged, it is discouraging in the extreme to see so many men in Congress willing to make ducks and drakes of our public finance. If they are waiting for public protests to urge them back to paths of sanity, such protests ought immediately to come up to them from all quarters of the land like the sound of many waters."—New York Times.

In arguing about what they will do in the matter of German reparations the French and British are giving us another example of counting the chickens before they are hatched, especially in view of the fact that Germany says there ain't going to be any reparations.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The British statement that nothing would be carried in the official budget for war debt payment, and at the same time nothing would be expected from reparations from Germany, caused a great deal of discussion in the United States Senate the other day. One of the significant intimations in the British statement was that the matter would be reconsidered after the Lausanne conference in June, at which conference the British, French and Italians expect to get together and iron out the matter of reparations. As Germany has already made announcement that she is making no provision in her budget for the payment of reparations, the outcome is apparently obvious.

It becomes once more evident that allied nations are making a real effort to link debts and reparations together, although the United States has consistently maintained that the questions are distinct and separate, and so, indeed, they should be. For example, the part of the loan to France which has not been cancelled is for obligations incurred after the armistice was signed. At the time the obligation was made, there was no understanding to the effect that the payment of the obligation depended upon how much money France could get out of Germany in the way of reparations. Germany was not asked to go on the note as security, and it was understood that the obligation was one which had been incurred by France. The same thing holds true of the British and Italian debts.

The final effort to link the debts up with reparations and to cancel the debts when the reparations are cancelled will have quite a little support in the United States from the little body of Internationalists which is capable of making a great deal more noise than its numbers warrant. The principal argument of the cancellationists which will be used in this country is not that debts and reparations are tied together but that it will be "good business" for Uncle Sam to cancel these debts. Just where the good business is to come in is not exactly clear. The international nationalists infer that if the debts are cancelled, by some magic process foreign trade will revive and the whole world will become prosperous again. The internationalists will say nothing about the $270,000,000 in the way of additional taxes which will be saddled on to the American people because of the default of these debts. At this particular time when business in the United States is handicapped by taxes, it certainly does not look like "good business" to add another $270,000,000 to the burden.

So far no convincing proof has been given of the inability of the allied nations to make payments on their debts. Conditions are on the mend in Great Britain and certainly France is in much better shape now than at the time the debt agreement with her was completed. If there is any revision in her case on the theory of capacity to pay, it certainly ought not to be downward.

As a matter of fact there is no proof that a cancellation of the debts, or rather the transferring of the load to American taxpayers, would help business either here or abroad. Persistent evidence is to the effect that the European nations will continue to spend all their available money in preparing for the next war, no matter whether the debts are cancelled or not. As Senator Reed well said in the Senate the other day:

"At one time we made a reduction of those debts on the argument that it was in the interest of a financial and economic betterment of world conditions The argument was advanced that the reduction was necessary to the economic and financial progress and recovery of the world.

"But while we made a reduction, and a very large one, the recovery did not take place. The improvement was not at hand. It was for the reason that the policies and programs of Europe made it impossible for recovery to be had."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

More Is Coming To Us.

We knew it would come sooner or later. The only surprise is that someone hadn't thought of it sooner. Uncle Sam has been blamed for every thing which has gone wrong in Europe since the signing of the armistice. He is chastised verbally because he doesn't furnish men and money to police the world, and because he does not cancel the debt which the allied nations owe us. But at last has come the crowning achievement. Andre Cheradame, French journalist, has figured out that the allies do not owe us anything at all, but that on the other hand we still owe them a lot of money. So it can be seen, if this theory becomes popular, as it doubtless will in Europe and among internationalists in this country, that as soon as the debts are cancelled, agitation will start for Uncle Sam to start making payments to Europe on account of the late lamented war.

M. Cheradame figures it out this way: it took Uncle Sam 465 days to get ready to fight before American troops actually began mopping up in the war. During that time he says we saved 196,000 American lives and eleven billions in money and during that time of course the allies were holding on for dear life on the western front and begging Uncle Sam to hurry.

Therefore, according to M. Cheradame, we owe for this saving of life and money something like sixteen billions to the allies yet. He has worked it all out and estimates that after the debts are cancelled we will still owe $761,000,000 to the Republic of France, $865,000,000 to Italy and something like $27,000,000 to Belgium, to say nothing of what we would owe Great Britain. Evidently we get no credit for having finally saved the allies themselves.

M. Cheradame, it is said, has presented a resolution to the French parliament calling For the payment of the net amount by America to France.

In the meantime, as the Topeka Capital so aptly puts it:

"So there is no calculating the cost of war. After it seems to have been paid for, there are a lot of tag ends to liquidate. Mr. Cheradame, anyhow, has a sense of humor, even if he does not know it. He would probably agree that there is no justice in the world. If there were, this country would submit its entire war costs to Europe for payment. It was their war, got up by the armed powers, not ours.

Our Rivers And Harbors.

Every one of course who has studied American history is aware that our army, navy and marine corps have other things to do besides defending the country in time of attack by a foreign foe. The peace time achievements of our military and naval service are not to be taken lightly. The building of the Panama Canal, the develo-

(Continued on fifth page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Just a third of a century ago this week since the first copy of the Sentinel was printed by the present publisher.

Mrs. N. A. Shores has bought the S. H. Nelson residence on Dixon Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Shores who have moved here from Norwood will occupy the house soon.

The farmers of western Antrim County have organized an independent telephone company and before snow flies that section will be a network of wires connecting the farmer with each other and with their markets. The line from Central Lake to Atwood is built to within two miles of the latter place and its farmers are connected. There are 75 farmers in the Antrim. The line will be continued from Atwood through Milton to Elk Rapids.

Forty Years Ago

Engineer Wells has completed very elaborate and complete plans of the Charlevoix water-works.

Last Saturday the editor of this paper received a package by mail from Elk Rapids. On opening it there was disclosed a tin tobacco box, containing a sparrow's nest was a note from the sender, Capt. John Fiver, of the schooner Badger. The note informed the editor that the bird's nest was found in the mizzen-gaff-topsail, after towing out of Charlevoix harbor, where she loaded.

The road gang is at Ellsworth and moving north rapidly, followed closely by the hallasters. It is expected that the construction train will be at the gravel pit on the Bull farm in side of ten days.

Mr. Seymour, the C. & W. M. bridge man was down from Ellsworth yesterday, and reported that the "lower sink hole" had tumbled in again.

Fifty Years Ago

St. Ignace has 2,500 inhabitants and not a sidewalk to its name.

Over one thousand bushels of potatoes were shipped on the Lawrence from Cross Village one day last week.

The little passenger steamer Valley Queen is to run on Torch Lake this season between Eastport and Elk Rapids.

The 7th U. S. Infantry, Capt. Clifford's regiment, has been ordered to Arizona, to assist in quelling an Indian outbreak.

We think the cattle-drives, the long ores yards and the crowding of the animals at the bridge abutty, the pastime glory is departed.

S. M. See, Mason & Co. have the contract for the erection of the Bridge Street House addition, and work will be commenced on it at once.

Fred W. Mayne on Monday established himself as an attorney in Charlevoix. He has rented the law office so long occupied by J. M. Clark on Bridge Street. He will do a general collection, law and real estate business.

A mysterious explosion which shook the earth for miles around occurred on Fox Island a few weeks ago, and investigation showed that a strip of land comprising several acres had been torn from the top of a bluff and thrown four or five hundred feet to the beach below.

A. B. Cruickshank, an attorney from Livingston county, is in town with a view to permanent settlement here. He is in quest of a house and office.

It is now definitely settled that Charlevoix is to have a foundry and machine shop. John M. Ackert and Orange S. Washburn, of this place are to form a co-partnership with that purpose in view, and will at once erect a building near the Sash & Door Factory. They will in the meantime order a lathe, and run it from the power of S. M. See, Mason & Co. until their building is completed, when they will add an engine and such other machinery as they may require. They have engaged the services of a practical founder and machinist.

President Gates and S. M. Moore, of the Chicago Summer Resort, were here last week and inaugurated improvements on their grounds which will materially change the looks of things up there. A Traverse City plumber has been engaged to put in a system of pipes throughout the Club House for water supply. An elevated reservoir and wind-mill will be the means employed to furnish water. Work will be commenced immediately on the proposed bowling alley, and an addition to the Club House. Ten or more cottages will be erected.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

Antrim County is to have a series of monthly fairs to be held at Torch Lake during the season for the purpose of giving farmers opportunity to buy, sell or exchange horses, mules, oxen, cows, sheep, swine, or anything in the shape of farm stock.

The ice has disappeared from Round and Pine Lakes and small boats are making their appearance.

The young misses of the village held a May party on Wednesday, in one of our beautiful groves.

Frederick J. Meech has been appointed Postmaster at Norwood, in this county, vice Wm. Harris, resigned. Ambrose E. Palmer has been appointed Postmaster at Torch Lake, Antrim County.

The Commissioner of Highways of this Township have laid out a highway commencing at the foot of Bridge street and running thence east to Pine Lake, thence northerly to a township road hereto-fore laid out. Also one commencing at the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of Section 20 in the centre of the State Road, and running south one mile to the shore of Pine Lake.

The SENTINEL For PRINTING

Get your copy of "Places to Go"

IF YOU OWN A CAR, then you should have a copy of this fascinating booklet, "Places to Go". It contains more than one hundred illustrations of attractive scenic spots in the great Mid-West, and describes many more. It tells you where they are—and how to get there. These interesting places, many of them just around the corner, will be the answer to your touring queries. . . . If you own a car, you can certainly go places this season, and you can cover more ground at a lower cost per mile. For STANDARD RED CROWN—the better gasoline—will take you to places you have never been before. . . . Every atom of this gasoline is bursting with eager energy. . . . It stays on the job—it never lets up—furnishing power, and more power, to your engine. It's seasonally adjusted. Adjusted to economic conditions, too, for it gives maximum performance at a moderate price. . . . It Burns Clean at Any Speed.

"PLACES TO GO" and STANDARD RED CROWN—the better gasoline —may be procured from any Standard Oil Service Station

When You Buy Standard Gasoline - Ask for "Places to Go"

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

DISTRIBUTORS OF ATLAS TIRES

We wish to ask our school board why steps are not taken in the school house matter. It is within the power of the district to erect a $4,000 building this summer without bringing any burden to the people, a sum of money especially raised for that purpose and sufficient to commence the work, it is the hands of the Treasurer. We look upon our present school building and blush with shame.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

ponent of our rivers and harbors, sanitary problems, control of great national calamities, these are some of the duties which have devolved on our military forces, and they have always been accomplished in that effective way which has made our army and navy one of the best in the history of the world.

The activities of our army and naval units in peace times have been noted for their efficiency, whether it came to a matter of sanitation, of flood control or relief, or of conducting hotels in the Canal Zone. The fact of this efficiency has been remarked time and again not only by discerning American citizens but by citizens of other nations.

There recently arose a movement to take the river and harbor work out of the control of the Army Engineer Corps and put it under the control of a newly created Board of Federal Public Works. The record of the army engineers in this matter of river and harbor control has been so fine that there is grave doubt as to the wisdom of such a move. As the Duluth, Minn., Herald, recently put it in commenting on this proposal:

"But there is something in this situation that is stronger than mere logic, and that is the way the army engineers have handled this work. In all the long history of river and harbor work under the flower of United States army which is assembled in the Army Engineer Corps with its high standards, its noble traditions, and its freedom from politics, there is not, so far as we know, even the faintest suspicion of the graft and disorder and waste that all too commonly are associated with custom handling of public works.

"The general public sentiment at the time is against the creation of new boards and commissions to take over governmental activities. Such new organizations certainly add to the expense of government at a time when the tendency is toward the reduction of expenses and taxation.

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
314 Bridge Street
Hours—8:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 4 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bartholomew Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Bob and Mary never miss those "Spur of the Moment" parties

WHENEVER any of their friends plan a party "on the spur of the moment", Bob and Mary are almost sure to be invited. For THEY HAVE A TELEPHONE and can be reached quickly at any time.

Your telephone will "open the door" to many interesting and pleasant social events. And, in case of emergency, you can summon help immediately . . . by telephone.

Few things provide so much service at such low cost as the telephone.

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By Ted O'Loughlin

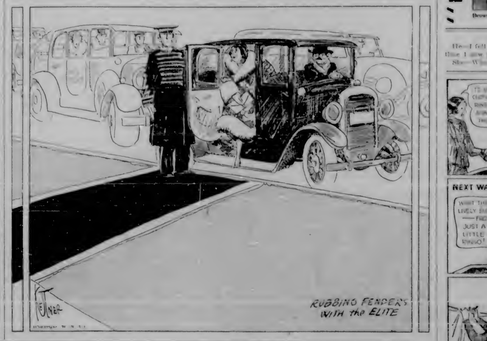
Turn About Is Fair Service

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

Big Hearted

Why, Father!

Along the Concrete



MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

He finds a Few for the Funny Column

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks — Copyright 1931 by James W. Brooks. All Rights Reserved. — Historically Correct Stories By CALVIN FADER

ON the night of November 2, 1753, Washington was glad to see his friend, Lord Fairfax, ride unexpectedly into camp at Wills Creek, now Cumberland, Maryland, on U. S. Route 50. The titled Old Etonian had come to spend the night with the boy who was about to plunge into the wilderness on a doubtful mission. As they sat in silence before a crackling fire, rain and snow fell outside the forest circle. Lofty, old lord. Knocking the ashes from his pipe, remarked: "Dinwiddie was a fool to send a boy on a mission like this." Washington said nothing.

ELEVEN days later, November 21, Washington and his aides reached Logstown, near the present town of Beaver, Pennsylvania. Here he met an Indian known as Half King, who drew on birch bark a plan of French forts "five sleeps" distant, illustrating by drawing up his blanket five times as if in preparation for slumber.

"THERE'S A PAID TESTIMONIAL FOR TARGET!!!"

"I DIDN'T get a cent for writing this statement about Target Tobacco . . . but Target has saved me half a buck a week since I started using it, so you might call this a paid testimonial.

"Here's the answer. I switched to Target to save money. But I didn't know I was going to keep on enjoying real cigarette taste. Target is blended cigarette tobacco, just like the ready-mades. And it rolls up easy with those gummed papers you get free.

"So I advise you to spend a dime at your nearest dealer's and see for yourself. Just think, you get thirty or more cigarettes from every package."

AND GET THIS: The U. S. Government tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6c. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about 1c. Nickel-dime on cash value for a dime!

SAVE MONEY
ROLL YOUR OWN
SEE WHAT YOU SMOKE
Wrapped in Moisture-proof Cellophane

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. Louisville, Kentucky

The Test

How—I fell in love with you the first time I saw you.

Nice—What was I wearing?

Clothes last longer
QUICK clothes in creamy Rinso suds last! Is the whitest wash ever! Nourishing, no boiling. Gentler last longer. Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as puffed-up sugar-soaps. Is kinder to hands! Lasts in Maidenform bras, mens washers. Recommended by 40 makers of Good for dishes, too. Get Rinso at your grocer's today. 2 sizes, 10c and 25c package.

Rinso

MILLIONS USE RINSO in tub, washer and dishpan

Habit

Lawyer—To what ground do you desire to answer?

Witness—I am a telephone operator.

Housewives who are kept indoors with hog and dying for others commonly neglect themselves. Sick headaches, backaches, and worn out lasting are symptoms of poison in the system caused by constipation. Don't neglect nature's warning. Take Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to clear your stomach and intestinal tract. A favorite remedy for fifty years. At all druggists.

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS
Mild & Gentle Laxative

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 18-1932.

ARBOR DAY—1932

© ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE observance of Arbor day varies in the different states of the Union, although the majority of the commonwealths are held during the latter part of April or the first part of May. But whatever the date, it has a special significance this year because of two men. For 1932 is the tercentenary of the birth of George Washington, the "Father of His Country," and the centenary of the birth of J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day."

The connection of George Washington with Arbor day celebrations dates back to the fact that this year he has been the inspiration for the most extensive tree-planting program ever undertaken. In this country Arbor day is a part of general broadcasting celebration program this year but here, the project, sponsored by the American Tree association of Washington, D. C., of which Hugh Miller Brown, vice president in Washington, is executive head, is somewhat differing from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian line to the Mexican border.

In announcing this project at the time that President Coolidge created the Washington bicentennial commission at later charge of the general celebration this year, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, said:

"What more significant and unique national event to engineer to enkindle the affections which Americans have for Washington? Washington himself must have noted trees for his diary contains repeated references to them value and care, and he chose a spot for his home where their beauty is unexcelled. Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place, two columns of trees, straight larches stand like sentinels, his country's compliment, along with those thousands of Americans who come to pay him reverence during the daylight hours.

"He must have loved the regal beauty of a tree. In the symbolism of a tree can Washington be memorized, prominently. Deep-rooted in the ground, a tree is like a man, coming up out of the earth, but lifting its branches to heaven. And as it grows in usefulness, so it grows in beauty. It may outlive the span of years. It offers its shade to all alike, and its disinterested existence succour a library, countryside and nation for its physical and esthetic sensibilities. So a tree bespeaks the spirit of Washington. He was democratic in his services, regal in his leadership, commanding in his principles, while he extended a brotherly hand to a great and independent people struggling for fatter freedoms.

"Not only have millions of trees already been planted in honor of Washington and registered with the American Tree association, but social, civic and patriotic clubs and organizations as well as by individuals, by the Washington tree planting idea has now gone around the world.

"King Boris III of Bulgaria has joined this great tree planting army in honoring Washington by presenting to Henry W. Shoemaker, the American minister at Sofia, two very rare Bilkan varieties of evergreens, one for the legation garden, the other for the American school near Sofia. These trees have been planted by Minister Shoemaker, who is from Pennsylvania, with the help of the Bulgarian foreign office representing that nation. Mrs. Shoemaker, Mrs. Maynard Barnes, Mrs. Frank Brown, wives of the secretaries of the legation, and Mr. H. Frey, the king's landscape gardener, assisted in the planting of the trees.

"Joseph C. Grew, the American ambassador at Istanbul, Turkey, was the first representative of the American government in the foreign field to register on the national roll of trees. He planted three black walnut trees with Hassan Ali Bilkin, Turkish foreign minister on the national honor roll as a witness.

"Following this came the registration of Fred Morris Dearing, minister to Panama, and Mrs. Dearing, who, with Harriett G. Ackerson, Jr., as a witness, planted a tree to mark the bicentennial of the birth of Washington at the Country club at Lima. American dignitaries also came from F. E. Liberone, the consular agent at Chiclayo, Chile, who planted six English walnuts there.

"From Cuba came the registration of Eugene E. Jaye, the American consular agent at Sagua La Grande. Pasquito Moreno, the director of the board of Sagua Yacht club and secretary of the Rotary club of Sagua la Grande, has also registered on the national honor roll in the name of the Yacht club itself. Edwards Bartlett, Sr., the president of the club registered the trees. Edwards Bartlett, Jr., registered two more in his own name. Manuel Hill and A. M. Bilbao have registered also.

1—J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day," born April 22, 1832.

2—Certificate issued to Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Turkey, for three trees planted in Istanbul, Turkey, in honor of George Washington.

3—Mrs. Herbert Hoover helping plant a cedar tree from the Ferry farm, where George Washington spent most of his boyhood days, as President Hoover and other government officials look on. The tree was presented to the President and his wife by the George Washington Tree Guild of Fredericksburg, Va., and was replanted on the White House grounds.

4—A tree, presented by King Boris III of Bulgaria was planted recently in the garden of the American legation at Sofia for the American Tree association with the help of (1) Henry Fry, the king's landscape gardener, (2) Henry Shoemaker, the American minister to Bulgaria, (3) Mrs. Henry Shoemaker and (4) I. Kirkoff of the Bulgarian foreign office, representing the Bulgarian government in the program honoring Washington.

Carlos Chanslon, ranger in the bureau of forestry of the commonwealth of Virginia, U. S., has supervised the planting of a seedling from the Stone Mother mountains and brought to the Stone Mother mountains in The first tree now being planted in the hillsides and is doing fine, he reports.

Fuad E. Nimah of the American school at Tarsus, Turkey, has reported the planting of eight trees, and at his suggestion and that of Ambassador Grew, the American Tree association has sent the bureaucratic tree planting messages sent to its "Forestry Primer" to assure that a score of schools in Turkey, those schools include the Constantinople Women's college, Robert college, the American academy for girls, the American Boys' school, and Ismir Boys' academy at the request of the consul of education at Ankara. Ambassador Grew says there is a keen interest in tree planting of all kinds in Turkey.

There has been more than a hundred registrations from the Boy Scouts in Hawaii, and the library of the department of agriculture, Kyoto Imperial university, Kyoto, Japan, has asked for the information on tree planting seeding and printed matter for display.

On April 22, the date on which Nebraska celebrates Arbor day, the fame of one of her distinguished citizens went far beyond the borders of that state. For April 22, 1832, was the centennial of the birth of the "Father of Arbor Day" and a special commemorative stamp issued by the United States government, as well as special observances of the day in many parts of the country, served to call Americans their debt of gratitude to J. Sterling Morton.

Morton was born in Adams, Jefferson county, N. Y., on April 22, 1832. When he was two years old, his parents moved to Michigan and there he grew up, attending a private school in Monroe and then a Methodist seminary in Albion. In 1850 he entered the University of Michigan and remained there for most of the course, but withdrew in his senior year and was graduated from Union college in his native state in 1854.

In the same year he was married to a Michigan girl and the young couple decided to "go West, and grow up with the country." They settled first at Bellevue in the territory of Nebraska, but moved later to what is now Nebraska City, where Morton was a member of the town company, which surveyed and established that town. Morton's to the townsite he preempted a tract of land half a mile square and upon that was he built his home which he called "Arbor Lodge."

Morton was the founder and first editor of the first newspaper in Nebraska City, the Nebraska City News and was a prominent figure in Nebraska affairs in its earliest days. In 1858 President Buchanan made him secretary of the territory, and upon the resignation of Gov. William A. Richardson he became acting governor. He was, however, more interested in other matters than in politics. He was an original member of the Nebraska territorial board of agriculture and the Territorial Horticultural society. Coming from two heavily wooded states, New York and Michigan, Morton was struck by the bleakness of the "treeless state," as Nebraska was called at that time.

The result was that at a meeting of the state board of agriculture on January 4, 1872, Morton introduced a resolution setting aside April 10 for tree planting so that Nebraska would be a "treeless state" no longer. More than a million trees were planted that year and several million more during the following years.

In 1885 the Nebraska legislature, wishing to further honor the man who had originated the idea of Arbor day, passed an act changing the date of its observance to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday in that state. In 1893 Morton entered the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland as secretary of agriculture, remaining in office until 1897.

By 1895 the Nebraska legislature was able to proclaim Arbor day a success and a permanent institution. Governor Silas A. Holcomb issued the proclamation, which had come down to the present day. In 1908 President Roosevelt made him secretary of the territory, and upon the resignation of Gov. William A. Richardson he became acting governor. He was, however, more interested in other matters than in politics. He was an original member of the Nebraska territorial board of agriculture and the Territorial Horticultural society. Coming from two heavily wooded states, New York and Michigan, Morton was struck by the bleakness of the "treeless state," as Nebraska was called at that time.

The result was that at a meeting of the state board of agriculture on January 4, 1872, Morton introduced a resolution setting aside April 10 for tree planting so that Nebraska would be a "treeless state" no longer. More than a million trees were planted that year and several million more during the following years.

In 1885 the Nebraska legislature, wishing to further honor the man who had originated the idea of Arbor day, passed an act changing the date of its observance to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday in that state. In 1893 Morton entered the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland as secretary of agriculture, remaining in office until 1897.

By 1895 the Nebraska legislature was able to proclaim Arbor day a success and a permanent institution. Governor Silas A. Holcomb issued the proclamation, which had come down to the present day. In 1908 President Roosevelt made him secretary of the territory, and upon the resignation of Gov. William A. Richardson he became acting governor. He was, however, more interested in other matters than in politics. He was an original member of the Nebraska territorial board of agriculture and the Territorial Horticultural society. Coming from two heavily wooded states, New York and Michigan, Morton was struck by the bleakness of the "treeless state," as Nebraska was called at that time.

The result was that at a meeting of the state board of agriculture on January 4, 1872, Morton introduced a resolution setting aside April 10 for tree planting so that Nebraska would be a "treeless state" no longer. More than a million trees were planted that year and several million more during the following years.

In 1885 the Nebraska legislature, wishing to further honor the man who had originated the idea of Arbor day, passed an act changing the

© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

PARACELSUS

THE real Paracelsus, concerned with a subject of the impossibility of exercising knowledge and art by literary thinking in the point of that name, was a Swiss physician, botanist and chemist, who lived from 1493 to 1541.

Until the discovery in England three months ago of his life and a search for Shakespeare's self assuring the Paracelsus excellence in the two, the key dates of the poet, set out as to Shakespeare's records of his early years, were of Stratford, White professor at the University of Leeds, interested in studying himself the works of Lucretius and Ovidius, authors of classical mythology and "of eminent" on the poetical of Shakespeare. It was on this work with Will Bedford on the third night, when Shakespeare grew on the drowsing and whimsical Dromio, pressing the Dromio of Ephesus and Antipholus of Syracuse, and pressed the Dromio of Syracuse and Antipholus of Ephesus.

Browning as an undergraduate was a student concentration of his time, to the opening of the world, but with one effort of a life devoted exclusively to romantic affairs a Swiss man. Wooing when the poet was only twenty-three Hatta and Paracelsus' understanding to its remainder of the Shakespeare of Paracelsus.

THE SISTINE MADONNA

FOR some time four centuries artists and members strove to do the identity of the model who posed for the church's highest masterpiece—the Sistine Madonna. It was early established that her features were those of Tita Costanza, mother of Raphael's illegitimate offspring. And since we are informed that here, the noble matron, mother and the model woman of the world, were inspired the model for Michelangelo Lotti, the daughter of a baker, Raphael's favorite model and some think his own love.

The "Madonna di San Sisto" usually known as the "Sistine Madonna," is one of the best of Raphael's paintings and is unique in that there are no sketches for it are known to exist. It was painted in 1516 for the monastery of Saint Sisto at Piacenza. The painting was done entirely by Raphael, in Rome, while he was under the patronage of Julius II.

Only recently was more information added to that given in the books. For Pope Sixtus IV and "Sir" Barbara, who knew in advance of the Madonna in the picture. Dr. Sixtus Sixtus Barbara, the personal physician of Saint Sixtus at Piacenza. The painting was done entirely by Raphael, in Rome, while he was under the patronage of Julius II.

Julius II, patron of Raphael and Michelangelo and virtual founder of the papal palace and ruler of the Church throughout was the model for the figure of the pope. St. Barbara, this authority informs, was the husband of Urbino, the ward of Julius II.

HUCKLEBERRY FINN

IF HUCK is a very free little boy in Clemens version of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," it is because both the author of the story and the artist who illustrated it used their boys for their models.

The Huck Finn Mark Twain wrote about was a distillery acquaintance he particularly liked, as he was, with the battered straw hat and the ragged suspenders. Artist Kemble's pictures showed Twain in his "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" was Tom Blankenship. Tom's father was at one time town drunkard, an occupation well defined and sandwiched-office of those days. In Huckleberry Finn I have drawn Tom exactly as he was. He was ignorant, unwashed and lovely—for he was by no means as good a heart as any lad ever. He was the only really independent person, man or boy, in the community and by consequence he was tranquilly and contentedly happy and was on good terms with all the rest of town.

The Huck Finn the illustrator F. C. Kemble drew was Continued Peter Morris, son of Jackson, N. J. Mark Twain selected Kemble because he saw a resemblance in Huck to one of Kemble's drawings in life. Kemble in turn drew Huck to resemble Morris, then sixteen years old, whom he found playing in a public schoolyard in the town. The boy fitted the author's description for every character from Aunt Polly to Tom, and in a crude sketch made of Mr. Sanderson, who was Twain's favorite Huck Finn. Clemens himself once wrote to Kemble that he found his models four minutes for nearly.

(© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

MICROPHONICS

Phoebe Cromwell, broadcaster in the Boston's orchestra, and a member of Gideon Glass's band, which that successful played over the air and heard in the Valley of Contentment, is also in the form of motion picture actress. The broadcasting record that she found a place in the film, with the possibilities of making broadcasting her personal career. Now Miss Cromwell is in Hollywood, where she is busy with the production of motion pictures. Her broadcasting experience is quite unique.

It's said that Jimmie Rodgers, the "Blue Yodeler," who is heard over the Columbia chain, is going to be a movie star. The broadcasting record that he made a picture for Paramount. Rodgers is to be featured in a musical comedy.

Ted Weems and his orchestra are heard over the Columbia chain, and Perry Como, baritone, is featured with the band. Weems is a native of Ohio, and Como is a native of Canonsburg, Pa. Both are graduates of the University of Notre Dame.

Broadcasting is not confined solely to the musical entertainers of the radio, as the announcers of the studios have also won fame as a result of their connection with broadcasting. Graham McNamee, well known as a sports announcer, was the first announcer when the broadcasting was first started.

Phillips Lord, who is heard over the Columbia chain, is known as Seth Parker, and is also known as

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Church—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15
Junior Church, 6:00.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Mid-week Service, Thurs. 7:00
Trenton—
Morning Worship, 10:15
Sunday School, 11:30

Young People's Service, 5:00.

Opponents of Prohibition claim that the installation of kegs would employ four jobs in two million people. The Congressional Record of December 22, 1914, shows that in 1913 only 389,681 were employed, of those, more than 400,000 were bartenders, who will get no job, if, as we want one, the utmost limit per of beer be 3.2.—Cleveland Educational World.

Special Mother's Day Services will be held in both churches at Ironton Sunday (Tomorrow). An appropriate gift will be given to the oldest and youngest mother present.

The State Division of Old Age Pensions will be in Boyne City on Tuesday, May 10th, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. for the purpose of receiving applications for old age pensions. Persons desiring to make application should call at the office of the County Clerk in the Court House.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Ben Hayward on Thursday afternoon, May 12th

SQUAW TELLS TALE OF PRIMITIVE LOVE

Remarkable Story Secured by Smithsonian Man.

Washington.—Childhood love and death in a primitive society are pictured in an extremely human document just issued by the Smithsonian institution.

It is the life story of a so-called Chesapeake Indian girl, told by herself. The narrative was secured by Dr. Truman Michelson, Smithsonian ethnologist.

Dr. Michelson was recently questioned in the city of this story of a romantic primitive people about which little exists, when, the anthropologist hears, we know.

"At first," she says, "the girls played with we called 'play pots'—tiny vessels which they made after the men, women and boys, with sand behind the pots. We used broken shells for the pots and for the dishes. The people on the bank of the shallow gut (meaning in native parlance a waterway) would have no boats on a moonlight night [see drawing], but nothing on earth would induce them to go out on the water. We had dug out canoes. They were real pretty. We found if the bark came off in one piece it made a good canoe. We used to make play houses in the sand. We had dug out canoes.

"At 7 years a little sister was planted until we called her 'Little Corn.' She had the ceremony of each pregnant young man and girls. The boys stayed in the woods and the girls in the house with the food. We girls would paint our bodies with red paint and put on our best. We wore real pretty skirts. Some of the skirts were made of deerskin. We wore shell beads. The beads were made from a shell we got from the water. We would make them into necklaces. We would make them into bracelets. We would make them into earrings.

"At 12

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THE TAXING ORGY

The taxing orgy has surely reached alarming proportions when the owners of a big hotel tear it down to avoid paying taxes on the structure. But such a spectacle was witnessed in Chicago recently. The owners could save money by having a vacant lot rather than one with a costly improvement on it.

Colonel Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, in an address before the Chicago Better Business Bureau a few days ago, declared that since the war taxes had been taking not only a big slice of the national income, but a good share of the principal from which the income was derived. "We thought taxes were being paid out of earnings, when, as a matter of fact, tax collectors were dipping into our savings and capital," he said.

The fact that capital and savings were being confiscated by taxation has escaped notice, Colonel McCormick says, because all property values seemed to be rising steadily. Every property owner was looking to an increase in value in his holdings to enable him to come out. But, now that all values are on the toboggan, it has been brought home to the people what an excessive proportion of their income and even of their capital has been taken from them to finance an expanding governmental machine.

At a time when this discovery is being made, a tremendous tax burden is levied on the country. When Congress gets through with the pending revenue measure, the people will be saddled with a bill of another $1,000,000,000 or more. When profits, wages, salaries, rents and income of every description are falling, when values of all property are sliding downward, when 8,000,000 or more Americans are without employment, one of the heaviest tax increases in the history of the nation is being levied.

This drastic invasion by the federal government of the pockets of business and the people is declared to be necessary in order that the budget of the government may be balanced. Sufficient revenue must be raised, we are told, to meet the expenditures, quite regardless of the method. Certainly, huis due must be paid. But, in the future, balancing of the budget should emphasize reduction in expenditures rather than increase.—Houston Post.

HANDING US THE BURDEN

The international debt situation was well summed up in a terse sentence by John Hays Hammond, internationally known mining engineer, when he said in an interview recently with newspapermen in San Francisco:

"It is unfair to the American taxpayers to expect them to assume the burden of the European war."

That sums up the case in a nutshell. After all cancellation of the war debt which European nations owe the United States is not cancellation. It is merely a means for shifting the remaining unpaid burden of the war on to the shoulders of Uncle Sam.

Germany says she can pay no reparations, and the allied nations say that unless Germany pays reparations they cannot pay what they owe the United States. A cancellation all around would leave Uncle Sam holding the bag and give to his citizens the task of liquidating the remaining cost of the war.

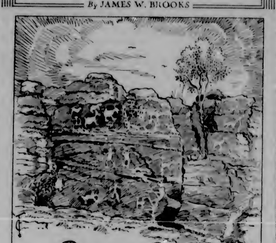
Without going into the claim of the European nations that they cannot pay—a claim which is open to a great deal of argument—the fact remains that it is not fair that the cost of the war be shouldered on to the American taxpayer. It was not our war in the beginning, and we did not start it. It may be admitted that we helped to finish it, and without our help it doubtless would have been finished in an entirely different way. But our associates in the war evidently retain no great amount of gratitude for service rendered. But even if they have forgotten those stirring months of the war when they ought at least see the unfairness of handing us the entire financial burden through the sugar coated method of cancellation.

DEMAND GOVERNMENT ECONOMY NOW

The increasing cost of government is one of the highest barriers in the path of industrial expansion and a return to normal conditions.

The tax problem extends, with steadily increasing importance, through every branch of government. The orgy of spending which followed the war— and was largely the result of the inflation of 1926-29—has come full circle at last. We are no longer able to increase taxation and public debt without seriously imperiling the future of the country. Investors are frightened, and money is hoarded. Businesses come to a standstill and more and more men are thrown out of work. Nothing could do more to start the country on the upgrade than decisive governmental economy—not next week or next year, but now.

TRAILS WE CROSS
By JAMES W. BROOKS



PICTURE ROCKS

HERE IS ONE SIGN THAT NO MOTORIST WILL BE ABLE TO READ. IT IS A PICTURE ROCK, ONE OF MANY NEAR TUCSON, ARIZONA, AND ITS MEANING THE WISE MEN OF TODAY CANNOT FATHOM.

©Western Newspaper Syndicate, Bureau

LABOR AND ROAD BUILDING

A recently completed study of the New Jersey Contractors' Association shows that 76 cents out of every dollar spent for road work goes to labor. Thirty-four cents is paid to labor directly on the project and 42 cents indirectly through the transportation and manufacture of supplies and equipment.

The experience of other states has been similar, which explains the efforts being made to expedite road building during the time of severe unemployment. It is interesting to note, in this connection, that more of the road dollar goes to labor when comparatively inexpensive highways—of the "road-mix" type—are constructed, than in the case of main highways. Furthermore, the road dollar goes much farther from the standpoint of the community, inasmuch as the cost of the former type is but 10 or 20 per cent of that of the latter.

The most fertile field for the road builder lies in rural localities. For a very small cost per mile, first-class, all-weather roads can be built connecting farms and towns with existing main highways—and those secondary roads carry, figuratively speaking, a constant stream of dollars to the towns and farms reached. They bring tourists off the beaten path, stimulate small town business, make it possible for the farmer to take his goods to market or shipping points at the most advantageous time. The nation's secondary roads are the nation's "feed" roads—and that word is a good measure of their importance.

COOPERATIVES SERVE

Cooperative marketing associations for farm products are not particularly new in this country, but some of the conditions under which they are forced to operate at this time are. The cooperative idea is inherently sound or it never could have stood the abuse and misuse of years as it has. Much of the progress of the movement is due to the vision of leaders founding successful marketing associations, according to Professor James Drury of New York University. "Many cooperatives have failed," says Professor Drury, "because money return has been the sole measure of success."

Money values alone are no longer sure means of worth. Through cooperatives, it is believed that American farmers may lead the way to a new type of civilization, based on a true sense of values. They are learning, through cooperation, that they must give as well as get. Something more deep-rooted than present money return must be the basis of organization of a cooperative marketing concern that expects to live and grow in the future.

Farmers must accept changes of the times. Industry is adjusting itself to meet new situations. Cooperative marketing offers a ready means of changes from old methods to newer, sounder and more progressive programs for the disposal of farm products.

COOPERATIVE RURAL FIRE PROTECTION

When a farm house catches fire it is almost a sure loss. The same danger exists for homes in most small towns.

In order to secure better fire protection for rural communities, there is growing interest in cooperative ownership of modern fire fighting apparatus maintained at a central station, capable of quickly reaching adjoining towns or farm residences.

A few years ago such a plan would have been impractical due to poor roads and horse drawn fire engines. But today good roads radiate in every direction. High speed, standardized, motor driven apparatus can reach fires long distances away in a very few minutes.

Fire is a terrible menace. No wonder citizens of small towns are considering "cooperative protection" when it becomes practical through collective ownership of modern apparatus such as protects the city dweller. By dividing the expense, the burden is not prohibitive and the return in safety for life and property is beyond estimate. Good fire departments, properly equipped with the most efficient and modern apparatus, are not a luxury but a vital necessity in the rural as well as urban areas.

CHEAP LABOR COMPETITION

A petition signed by the governors of twelve states, asking the immediate imposition of a tariff on copper, was recently presented to President Hoover. The petition said, in part: "History shows that lasting prosperity in the copper mining industry in the United States occurs together with adequate tariff protection . . .

"Thousands of mine workers have lost their means of making a living. They and their dependents lack even the common comforts of life. Public health, safety and welfare are menaced. Depression in the copper mining sections of this country is far lower than that generally resulting from the current world-wide economic unbalance.

"Competition of foreign copper is the cause of this distress."

WHAT HAS IT DONE?

"With business compelled to reduce both expenses and payrolls, and the family budget cut to the bone, what has the government done to reduce its cost to the American people, and thus save them something on their tax bills?

"I realize the difficulties, but surely government, like individuals, should face the realities. Government should put its house in order and balance its budget, and instead of eternally looking for new sources of revenue it should make a determined try at spending not more, not the same amount, but less of the earnings and savings of the American people."—Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

Lincoln Great Admirer of Washington

Composite photographs were not uncommon even in the "Way back when"—days. Here is a celebrated one of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln that is doubly composite. Having no full-length portrait of Lincoln available, the photographer merged Lincoln's head with John C. Calhoun's body. This composite was then merged with the famous Washington portrait, and the resulting picture—an obvious fake, since Lincoln was not born till ten years after Washington died—was widely sold under the title, "The Father, and Savior of Our Country."

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Research into the life of Abraham Lincoln has definitely established that George Washington was the President of Lincoln's fervent admiration, according to Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

"The story of Lincoln's boyhood interest in Weems' Life of Washington' is well known," Director Warren points out, in a statement made public here. "But it has only recently been established how enduring those sentiments turned out to be.

"It is difficult to exaggerate the influence which Washington exerted over the man who was destined to be ostracized by his equal place in the hearts of the American people. Certainly young Lincoln could have been impressed when he read these words in Weems' biography of Washington:

"'Young readers! the thy way, think of Washington and HOPE. Though lowly, thy birth, like his, forsome and fair fortune, like his, friends and aims of honorable kind, HOPE.'

"But the crowning evidence of Lincoln's great admiration for Washington comes to us in an address he delivered when he was a comparatively unknown lawyer, a fifteen years before he became President. In this address, which was read for many years and highly discussed in the state circles of a country newspaper, Lincoln said:

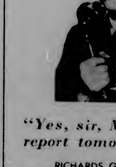
"'We are now to contribute our day in adding to the applause which we are every day bestowing upon the experience in the cause of free country, with unclaimed gratitude, on the first name in it's annals, is unbounded. To command his love, to hold forth to the view of his glory to the cause of Washington is alike impossible. Any young attorney in the state who would pronounce the name and of the naked, meaningless adjective brave it unrivaled.'

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.



"Yes, sir, Mr. Brown, I'll report tomorrow at eight"

RICHARDS GOT THE JOB BECAUSE HE HAD A TELEPHONE

When an application is made for work, employers are quite likely to ask for a telephone number. For they know that the easiest and quickest way to get into touch with additional help is by telephone.

Your home telephone is an important asset in business and social life. It places you within instant reach of business associates and friends. And, in emergencies, such as fire or sudden sickness, it will summon help immediately.

Of all the things you buy, probably none gives so much for so little as your telephone.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

The tug Frank P. Gelken brought in five tons of lake trout last Saturday and on Monday she came in with six and a half tons. The Gelken has the record for the largest co-ition catch.

Miss Irene Harsha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harsha, drew the first prize, a fine set of paints in a porcelined case, in the water color contest offered by the Young People's Magazine recently. A large number contested for the prize Miss Harsha is to be congratulated.

Lisle John Shapton of Marion was down Thursday and smoked a Belvedere cigar under our editorial nose remarking at the same time that it was the 70th anniversary of his birth. May the genial old gentleman celebrate many more happy birthdays.

On Monday, Mr. H. F. Grover was here and closed the deal between the syndicate of C. & W. M. officials and Jay. R. Dixon, whereby the latter's 70 acre farm changes hands, in accordance with the option secured some parties, who secured an option last fall. Mr. Grover, acting for the on John Bell's four acres adjoining. Although but little can be learned of the purposes of the purchasers, enough is known to justify the belief that Charlevoix is and will continue to be an especial object of the favor of the railroad company in their years for development. It is understood that the property will be platted for residence and resort purposes, and a large hotel erected. To Charlevoix it is the most important link in the chain of events that have occurred since the railroad became an assured fact.

Forty Years Ago

Not an idle man in Charlevoix. Everything is humming and the hum is increasing.

Robert Trimble, of Norwood, has announced himself as a candidate for sheriff.

Dr. Lamb, an M. D. and D. D. S. of Philadelphia, was here yesterday, and decided to locate and open dental rooms. He will come Saturday to remain.

The Catholic society last week purchased two more lots adjoining their two already owned on the Mason addition. They expect to begin the erection of their church edifice next month, and hope to complete it during the summer. Mr. Schuerman is secretary and treasurer of the Society and has the books open for subscription to the building fund.

On Monday, Mr. H. F. Grover was here and closed the deal between the syndicate of C. & W. M. officials and Jay. R. Dixon, whereby the latter's 70 acre farm changes hands, in accordance with the option secured some parties, who secured an option last fall. Mr. Grover, acting for the on John Bell's four acres adjoining. Although but little can be learned of the purposes of the purchasers, enough is known to justify the belief that Charlevoix is and will continue to be an especial object of the

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Pigeons are expected up here about the last of June.

The bridge tender is to have a new "office" to rent $100.

One good evidence of the growth of Charlevoix is the fact that S. M. See, Mason & Co. have thirty-two carpenters in their pay roll and want more.

The scow, Lottie Mason, of this port, went ashore on Two Rivers Point during the recent fog. She was not released.

The Charlevoix Sentinel has just closed its thirteenth volume. It justly credits itself with having done much for its party and the development of Charlevoix county.—Traverse Bay Eagle.

The "Charlevoix fleet" is growing to quite a respectable proportion; steamers and vessels are now owned here as follows: Tugs, Payne, Biggie, Bob Stevenson, Minnie Warren; passenger steamers, Gazelle, Clara Belle, Nellie Booth, M. W. Wright; scows, Lottie Mason, Herries, a half interest in the Supply; schooners Fleetwing, Sea Gem, De Couteres and Watts Sherman.

At the regular meeting of the I. O. G. T. on last Friday evening the following officers were installed for the ensuing quarter:

W. C. T.—W. J. Bradley; W. V. T.—Miss Abbie Bennett; W. S.—F. G. Hines; W. A. S.—Miss Minnie Cooper; W. M.—Dr. Wm. Preston; W. D. M.—Miss Etta Edwards; W. I. G.—Miss Lottie Mason; W. O. G.—Jared Sherd, W. C.—Rev. Daniels; W. F. S.—Harry Nesbitt; W. T.—John Bell, W. R. H. S.—Miss Lizzie Saunders. W. L. H. S.—Miss Lizzie Bell.

Richard Cooper has leased the Fountain City House and contents for one year to E. F. Wheeler, of Petoskey, who will take possession the 20th. Mr. Cooper gets $1,200 rent for the year. Dick's familiar face will be missed in the place he has filled so long, but it is a satisfaction to know that he is not to leave town.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

The N. T. Co.'s propeller Champlain was the first boat through the Straits this spring.

At the drawing of prizes of the Detroit Commercial Advertiser in Detroit lately, Allen Chamberlain, of this village, held the number that drew the $250 gold watch.

The mammoth uproars of the

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY for the
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX
YEAR OF 1932

STATE OFFICERS

GOVERNOR
(Office at Lansing)
Wilbur M. Brucker ..... Saginaw
John Leisha, Private Secretary ..... Lansing

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR
(Office at Lansing)
Loren D. Dickinson ..... Charlotte

SECRETARY OF STATE
(Office at Lansing)
Frank D. Fitzgerald ..... Grand Ledge
Frank D. Brown ..... Lansing

STATE TREASURER
(Office at Lansing)
Howard C. Lawrence ..... Ionia
Hoyt Woodman, Deputy ..... Nashville

AUDITOR GENERAL
(Office at Lansing)
Gramel B. Fuller ..... Ford River
George L. Hauer, Deputy ..... Charlotte

ATTORNEY GENERAL
(Office at Lansing)
Paul W. Voorhies ..... Grand Rapids
Emerson G. Boyles, Deputy ..... Charlotte

SUPT. OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
(Office at Lansing)
Webster H. Pearce ..... Mt. Pleasant

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER
(Office at Lansing)
Grover C. Dillman ..... East Lansing
Martin Dedlinger, Deputy ..... Lansing
Charles Zeigler, Deputy ..... Lansing
Frank F. Rogers, Consulting Eng. ..... Lansing

STATE SENATOR, 29TH DISTRICT
Calvin A. Campbell ..... Indian River

REPRESENTATIVE IN STATE LEGISLATURE
(Charlevoix-Leelanau District)
Louis E. Anderson ..... Northport

UNITED STATES SENATORS
Arthur H. Vandenberg ..... Grand Rapids
James Couzens ..... Detroit

REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS
(11th District)
Frank P. Bohn ..... Newberry

JUSTICES OF SUPREME COURT
George M. Clark ..... Chief Justice
Henry M. Butzel ..... Associate Justice
Howard Weist ..... Associate Justice
John S. McDonald ..... Associate Justice
William W. Potter ..... Associate Justice
Nelson Sharpe ..... Associate Justice
Walter H. North ..... Associate Justice
Louis H. Pead ..... Associate Justice
Jay Mertz ..... Clerk

COUNTY OFFICERS

JUDGE OF PROBATE
(Office at Charlevoix)
Ervan A. Ruegsegger ..... Boyne City

COUNTY CLERK
Fenton R. Bulow ..... Charlevoix
Fay A. Bradley, Deputy ..... Charlevoix

SHERIFF
David Vaughan ..... Charlevoix
H. W. Cook, Under Sheriff ..... East Jordan
Chas. H. Marshall, Chief Dep. ..... Charlevoix
Henry M. Steimel, Deputy ..... Boyne City
Fred Denise, Deputy ..... Boyne Falls
Roland McDonogh, Deputy ..... St. James

COUNTY TREASURER
Joseph Wm. Flandery ..... Charlevoix
Lillis M. Flanders, Deputy ..... Charlevoix

REGISTER OF DEEDS
Frank E. Bird ..... Charlevoix
Mary C. Bird, Deputy ..... Charlevoix

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY
(Office in Court House)
Rollie L. Lewis ..... Charlevoix

COMMISSIONER OF SCHOOLS
(Office 309 W. Upright)
William C. Palmer ..... Charlevoix
Gladys Palmer, Clerk ..... Charlevoix

CIRCUIT COURT COMMISSIONER
Lisle Shanahan ..... Charlevoix

CORONERS
F. F. McMillan, M. D. ..... Charlevoix
S. B. Stackus ..... Boyne City

SURVEYOR
S. A. Tokely ..... Boyne City

DRAIN COMMISSIONER
James J. Simmons ..... Charlevoix

COUNTY AGENT
Jerome Cole ..... Boyne City

COUNTY ROAD COMMISSION
William E. Byers ..... Charlevoix
Frank H. Wangeman ..... East Jordan
LaVerne C. Rouse ..... Boyne City
R. T. Davis, Supt. of Roads ..... Charlevoix
Ernest Peaslee, D-puty Clerk ..... Charlevoix
Meeting dates of Road Commissioners the first Tuesday of each and every month.

SUPERINTENDENTS OF POOR
Lyman. E. Benton, Secretary ..... Charlevoix
Jerome Cole ..... Boyne City
Jacob K. Ulrey ..... East Jordan

SCHOOL EXAMINERS
William C. Palmer ..... Charlevoix
L. L. Close ..... Boyne City
A. J. Duncanson ..... East Jordan

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' RELIEF COMMISSION
William Herriman ..... East Jordan
John A. Newville ..... Boyne City
Dr. F. H. Wilkinson ..... Charlevoix

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT
Burton C. Mollenkamp ..... Boyne City

BOARD OF ELECTION COMMISSION
Dayton P. Mesch ..... Charlevoix
T. J. Smith ..... Boyne City
Herman A. Goodman ..... East Jordan
Fenton R. Bulow, Clerk ..... Charlevoix
Fay A. Bradley, Deputy ..... Charlevoix

COUNTY AUDITORS
H. A. Craig (Supr 1st ward) Charlevoix
A. Tillotson (Supr. Hayes twp) Bay Shore
All bills payable from the General Fund except appropriations and Mothers' Pensions are audited and paid on the first Thursday of every month, except holidays.
Mothers' Pensions paid the 15th of each and every month.
All bills paid from the Poor Fund are paid on or before the 10th of every month.
Pay days for the Road are the 5th and 20th of every month. All bills payable from the Road Fund are audited the first Tuesday of every month, when the Road Commissioners convene at their monthly meeting (except holidays).
All other bills paid from the various funds are paid upon presentation of claims.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS
Regular meeting 4th Monday in June.
Regular meeting 2nd Monday in October.
Special meeting in January after each General Election.
The Chairman appoints new committees at each June Session. List of Committees may be obtained at the office of County Clerk.

IRONTON FERRY
(Under supervision Board of Supervisors)
Sam Alexander, Ferryman ..... Ironton
Pere Bennett, Assistant ..... East Jordan
Commissioner of Highways—Evelina twp.; Supervisor 2nd ward, City of Charlevoix; Supervisor Wilson township.

TERMS OF COURT
March ..... Third Monday
May ..... Fourth Monday
August ..... Second Monday
October ..... Fourth Monday
First day of each session is given to Court business and probation cases. Naturalization terms are May and August.

CIRCUIT COURT OFFICERS
P. C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, Traverse City
Fenton R. Bulow, Clerk ..... Charlevoix
Fay A. Bradley, Deputy ..... Charlevoix
Rollie L. Lewis, Pros. Atty. ..... Charlevoix
Lisle Shanahan, Commissioner Charlevoix
A. C. Curtiss, Stenographer Traverse City
Arthur L. Fitch, Sheriff ..... Charlevoix
Henry W. Cook, Undersheriff, East Jordan
Chas. Marshall, Court Officer ..... Charlevoix
Caroline Gerken, Friend of Court, B. City

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BAR
J. M. Harris ..... Boyne City
E. N. Clink ..... East Jordan
E. A. Ruegsegger ..... Charlevoix-Boyne City
Arthur L. Fitch ..... Charlevoix
Lisle Shanahan ..... Charlevoix
Rollie L. Lewis ..... Charlevoix

CITY OF BOYNE CITY
Mayor ..... W. P. Vought
Clerk ..... Ge'l Ormsby
Treasurer ..... Chas T. McCutcheon
City Assessor ..... C. C. Schaub
City Attorney ..... E. A. Ruegsegger
Alderman, 1st Ward ..... Fred Mitchell
John Tompkins
Alderman, 2nd Ward ..... H. Bollenberger
E. A. Fisher
Alderman, 3rd Ward ..... Vern Kuhns
Melvin Sparks
Alderman, 4th Ward ..... Roy Hegarden
Clair Canute
Agnes Lorch
Supervisor ..... Wm. F. Tisdale
Supervisor, 1st Ward ..... J. H. Parker
Supervisor, 2nd Ward ..... Roy Scott
Supervisor, 3rd Ward 1935
Supervisor, 4th Ward 1934
Justices of the Peace—
Jerome Cole 1935
Leo H. Cook 1934
Chief of Police ..... Henry M. Steimel

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Mayor ..... Arthur Bergeon
Clerk ..... Ray S. Hamilton
Deputy Clerk ..... Wilma Novotny
Treasurer ..... Mary A. Rife
Deputy Treasurer ..... Robert E. Rife
City Assessor ..... Darsie F. Mesch
City Attorney ..... Lisle Shanahan
Alderman, 1st Ward ..... Arthur Bergeon
Joseph M. Foster
Alderman, 2nd Ward ..... Ernest J. Kibbe
Floyd J. Bosworth
Alderman, 3rd Ward ..... Edward O'Neil
Jesse Smith
Supervisor, 1st Ward ..... Harry A. Craig
Supervisor, 2nd Ward ..... Frank Partridge
Supervisor, 3rd Ward ..... Wm. Fairmeiee
Justices of the Peace—
Robert Withers 1934
Horace R. Fowler 1935
Chief of Police ..... Charles Jefferies

CITY OF EAST JORDAN
Mayor ..... Robert G. Watson
Clerk ..... Otis J. Smith
City Assessor ..... Grace E. Boswell
City Attorney ..... Wm. F. Bashaw
Alderman, 1st Ward ..... E. N. Clink
Joseph Mayville
William Taylor
Alderman, 2nd Ward ..... Charles F. Strehl
M. J. Williams
Alderman, 3rd Ward ..... Don Parmenter
John Kinney
Supervisor, 1st Ward ..... Wm. F. Bashaw
Supervisor, 2nd Ward ..... Wm. E. Barnett
Supervisor, 3rd Ward ..... John Porter
Justices of the Peace—
Herbert C. Blount 1934
Chief of Police ..... Henry W. Cook

VILLAGE OF BOYNE FALLS
President ..... Frank L. Pierce
Clerk ..... Otto Hausler
Treasurer ..... Floyd P. Hausler
Trustees—Fred Benke Herbert Seals, Tom Worrill, Dan Herrington.
Village Assessor ..... John Hausler

BAY TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Chas. N. Smith, Bay Shore
Clerk ..... J. M. Knapp, Boyne City, Rt2
Treasurer ..... Margaret Belknap, B. C., Rt2
Highway Com., John Taylor, B. C., Rt2
Justices of the Peace—
H. G. White, Boyne City, Rt2 7-4-32
John Karcher, Boyne City, Rt2 7-4-33
W. Schneider, Boyne City, Rt2 7-4-34
A. J. Kotesky, Boyne City, Rt2 7-4-35
E. Bradley, Boyne City, Rt2 7-4-36

BOYNE VALLEY TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... W. J. Pearson, Boyne Falls
Clerk ..... G. J. Snyder, Boyne Falls
Treasurer ..... Clyde Goff, Boyne Falls
Highway Com. T. Matelski, Boyne Falls
Justices of the Peace—
William J. Petts, Boyne Falls 7-4-32
Frank Howard, Boyne Falls 7-4-34
Joe Thomas, Boyne Falls 7-4-36
William Green, Boyne Falls 7-4-36

CHANDLER TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Marion Wood, Boyne Falls
Clerk ..... F. H. Atkin, Boyne Falls
Treasurer ..... Edwin Sage, Boyne Falls
Highway Com.-Wm. Hughes, Boyne Falls
Justices of the Peace—
E. R. Walton, Boyne Falls 7-4-32
Jesse Petts, Clarion 7-4-32
Evelina Eastwood, Boyne Falls 7-4-34
Charles Tousley, Boyne Falls 7-4-35
George Penfold, Boyne Falls 7-4-36

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Wm. H. Cook, Charlevoix
Clerk ..... Versard Norton, Charlevoix
Treasurer ..... Lola Crattier, Charlevoix
Highway Com.—Geo. Engleton, Charlevoix
Justices of the Peace—
Neil McAulay, Charlevoix 7-4-32
Josey Moritt, Charlevoix 7-4-33
Colon McKenzie, Charlevoix 7-4-34
George Cook, Charlevoix 7-4-35
George Arnold, Charlevoix 7-4-36

EVANGELINE TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Lillie Gardner, Boyne City
Clerk ..... F. N. Talmer, Boyne City, Rt2
Treasurer ..... Luella Clute, Boyne City, Rt2
Highway Com. L. Provost, Boyne City, Rt2
Justices of the Peace—
Ben E. Ellis, Boyne City 7-4-32
Alvah Nulph, Boyne City 7-4-33
Lila Tainter, Boyne City 7-4-34
Clyde Clute, Boyne City 7-4-35
John Anthony, Boyne City 7-4-36

EVELINE TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Wm. Sanderson, East Jordan
Clerk ..... Ralph Pyle, Ironton
Treasurer ..... John Knudsen, East Jordan
Highway Com. Elmer Faust, East Jordan
Justices of the Peace—
Orville Bennett, East Jordan 7-4-32
E. E. Loomis, East Jordan 7-4-33
Datus Dean, East Jordan 7-4-36

HAYES TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... A. G. Tillotson, Bay Shore
Clerk ..... Zula Struthers, Charlevoix
Treasurer ..... Hazel Evers, Bay Shore
Highway Com. G. Ferguson, Charlevoix
Justices of the Peace—
Samuel Schantz, Charlevoix 7-4-32
William Hahn, Charlevoix 7-4-34
Amandus Evers, Charlevoix 7-4-35
James A. O'Brien 7-4-36

HUDSON TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Bert Woodard, Vanderbilt
Clerk ..... Charles Baker, Boyne Falls
Treasurer ..... Howard Marshall, Boyne Falls
Highway Com. ..... N. Cuttrell, Boyne Falls
Justices of the Peace—
William Leanier, Boyne Falls 7-4-32
John Hill, Vanderbilt 7-4-34
Cora Baker, Vanderbilt 7-4-35
Chris. Nicewander, Boyne Falls 7-4-36

MARION TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Geo. Maggison, Charlevoix
Clerk ..... Jay Adams, Charlevoix
Treasurer ..... W. J. Henley, Charlevoix
Highway Com. Louis Shapton, Charlevoix
Justices of the Peace—
A. J. Hollits, Charlevoix 7-4-32
Fred Mason, Charlevoix 7-4-34
H. L. Francisco, Charlevoix 7-4-35
Wm. K. Straw, Charlevoix 7-4-36

MELROSE TOWNSHIP
Supervisor Daniel Buckley, Walloon Lake
Clerk ..... Roy Brown, Walloon Lake
Treasurer ..... Wm. H. Murner, Clarion
Highway Com. ..... Joe Miller, Clarion
Justices of the Peace—
Hugh O. Eaton, Clarion 7-4-32
Clyde Kent, Clarion 7-4-34
Asa Greenlee, Walloon Lake 7-4-35
Barney Howard, Boyne Falls 7-4-36

NORWOOD TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Orton VanDusen, Charlevoix
Clerk ..... Orville Hilton, Charlevoix
Treasurer ..... R. R. Farmer, Charlevoix
Highway Com. Plenny Gennett, Charlevoix
Justices of the Peace—
Ed. Gregory, Charlevoix 7-4-32
George Parsons, Charlevoix 7-4-34
Floyd Wagner, Charlevoix 7-4-35
William Mayne, Charlevoix 7-4-36

PEAINE TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... John Gallagher, St. James
Clerk ..... Helen Rickspers, St. James
Treasurer ..... Patrick Bonner, St. James
Highway Com. C. P. Gallagher, St. James
Justices of the Peace—
James A. Carnest, St. James 7-4-33
Wm. Rickspers, St. James 7-4-34
James Mooney, St. James 7-4-35
Pat Malloy, St. James 7-4-36

ST. JAMES TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Jas. H. Gallagher, St. James
Clerk ..... Mary A. Gillespie, St. James
Treasurer ..... Lloyd McDonough, St. James
Highway Com. Pat Lafreniere, St. James
Justices of the Peace—
Mary Mielke, St. James 7-4-33
Nels J. Lafreniere, St. James 7-4-34
Roland McCann, St. James 7-4-35
Harry Marcher, St. James 7-4-36

SOUTH ARM TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Elmer Holt, East Jordan
Clerk ..... Lawrence Addis, East Jordan
Treasurer ..... Peter Undor, East Jordan
Highway Com. Wm Batterbee, East Jordan
Justices of the Peace—
Benj. Insatis, East Jordan 7-4-33
Martin Rhalling, East Jordan 7-4-34
Earl Danforth, East Jordan 7-4-35
George Nelson, East Jordan 7-4-36

WILSON TOWNSHIP
Supervisor ..... Otis H. Smith, East Jordan
Clerk ..... E. S. Brintnell, East Jordan
Treasurer ..... Angust Gross, Boyne City
Highway Com. F. W. Bolling, Boyne City
Justices of the Peace—
George Jaquays, East Jordan 7-4-32
Harry Bolling, Boyne City 7-4-34
Claude Pearsall, East Jordan 7-4-35
Lester E. Hardy, Boyne City 7-4-36

NATURALIZATION

The following is brief instructions of the procedure of Naturalization under the new naturalization Law effective July 1, 1929, but full information may be obtained at the County Clerk's office.

All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside.

All persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are declared to be citizens of the United States.

Any person 18 years of age can start the procedure for his citizenship papers three years after his arrival in this country. He must appear personally before the Clerk of the Court or his Deputy and make application for a Certificate of Arrival and Preliminary form for a Declaration of Intention. If the person was admitted on or after July 1st, 1929, he should have an immigration identification card bearing a number in red ink; this must be presented at the time of making application. The applicant must furnish two photographs taken within the last thirty days, size 2½ ins. x 2½ ins., must be on thin paper with a light background and show a front view of the face without hat (Snapshots, group or full length pictures will not be accepted); both photos must be signed by the applicant on the margin, being careful not to write on the features. The fee for same is $5.00 and must be made by Money Order, payable to the Commissioner of Naturalization, Washington, D. C.

Investigation is made by the District Director of Naturalization and if applicant's record is found satisfactory, a Certificate of Arrival will be issued, but if the arrival of the applicant is irregular and requires extra investigation, a fee of $20.00 must be paid before such investigation can continue.

Notice is given by the District Director when Certificate of Arrival is issued, and applicant must bring such Certificate of Arrival to the Clerk of the Court, who will make application for his Declaration of Intention. The fee is $5.00 and must be paid to the Clerk at time of making application.

The Declaration of Intentions must be held by the applicant two years and become void 6 years after the issue thereof. After two years the applicant can make application for Petition to Citizenship. He must appear before the Clerk or his Deputy and make application for Petition. He must furnish the names of two citizens that can act as his witnesses at the final hearing, said citizens must know that applicant has resided in the county six months and in the United States five years. NOTE—(Any alien can make application for his papers any time after his arrival in this country, but the Petition or the application for Petition cannot be made unless the alien has been in the United States for five years.) If such a witnesses available have not known the applicant for five years, then, and in that case, Depositions are taken of two residents of his last residence in other counties on forms furnished by the Clerk.

After first papers have been issued, applicant cannot be out of the United States for more than six months or petition cannot be issued, unless a satisfactory affidavit is presented showing the reason for such delayed return or continuity.

After the preliminary papers for a Petition have been returned from the Department to the Clerk, the applicant must bring his two witnesses named, and file his Petition. The fee is $10.00 and must be paid to the Clerk. After such Petition has been duly executed, and ninety days prior to the hearing in Court, the Clerk will post the name of Petitioner and his two witnesses. (No hearing can be heard in Court thirty days or more before or after a General Election).

After the Petitioners and Witnesses have been posted for ninety days, they are ready for the calendar. The petitioners and their witnesses must appear in Circuit Court for examination, which is made by the presiding Judge. If they are admitted to Citizenship the Clerk issues the Oath of Allegiance and the Certificate of Naturalization is given to Petitioner. If citizenship is denied, the petitioner will be directed by the Court which procedure will be necessary to become eligible for citizenship.

Any person over 21 years of age who claims they have derived United States Citizenship through the Naturalization of a parent or husband, can make application for a Certificate of Citizenship for a fee of $15.00 and by making application on special forms furnished by the Clerk.

If a citizen of the United States (after Naturalization) intends to visit his home country, to prove his identity as a citizen of the United States in that country, a special Certificate can be obtained by making application to the Clerk and paying a fee of $10.00.

Certified copies of all Naturalization papers can only be made by the Department of Naturalization, and the fee for same is $10.00.

Any persons who have been misinformed and erroneously believed themselves citizens of the United States, stating their first papers, providing that they have lived up to all the requirements of law and resided continuously in the United States during a period of five years next preceding July 1, 1914.

Any woman who married an alien on or before September 22, 1922, loses her citizenship and must take out a Declaration of Intention, providing she can prove one year's residence.

An alien woman must be naturalized under the general law, unless she was born a citizen by birth, and in that case a Declaration of Intention is not necessary.

All children born in the United States, of parents residing here, are citizens whether they parents are or not.

The Naturalization papers of the Father naturalizes all the children under twenty-one years of age, but not the wife.

Children born in another country and twenty-one years of age or over when the father secures his final papers, are not citizens, and must be naturalized under the general law and regulations.

To acquire knowledge in passing the examination for a fee of $20.00 must be paid, it is helpful to the applicant that he will study the City, State and National Government, and read books on American History and the bi

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

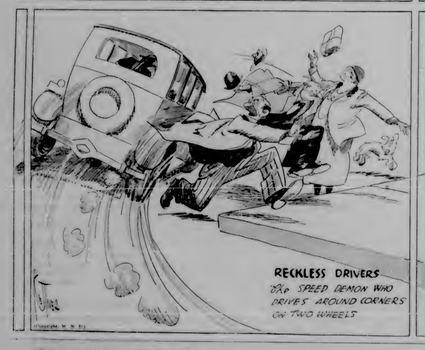
FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By Ted O'Loughlin

What's in a Name?

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

Her Goal

Along the Concrete



The Day of Resurrection Is Here

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

"In God We Trust; all Others Cash"

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — 12 — By James W. Brooks

AGAINST biting winds and snow, accompanied by Half King, White Thunder and two other chiefs, Washington and his staff rode into Venango on December 4, 1753. Here he was entertained at supper and afterward set down in his diary that he had never had better cause to be thankful for his sobriety. Wine and brandy loosened French tongues as to their intention to seize and hold the country.

FOUR days later and very tired, he delivered his message from Governor Dinwiddie to French officers at Fort Le Boeuf. He was made welcome by Le Gardeur de St. Pierre, the commandant, who desired to be remembered to Lord Fairfax whom he had known in Paris.

WASHINGTON had arrived at Le Boeuf on the 12th. On the 16th he was handed a sealed reply to Governor Dinwiddie and two days later, he embarked upon a perilous return, accompanied by his aides and the reluctant Half King who was loath to part with French liquors.

Made specially for BABIES and CHILDREN

Physicians tell us that one condition is nearly always present when a child has a digestive upset, a startling cold or other little ailment. Constipation. The first step toward relief is to rid the body of impure wastes. And for this nothing is better than genuine Castoria. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made especially for babies and children. This means it is safe and gentle; that it contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. Yet it always gets results! You never have to resort elsewhere to Baby Castoria. Real Castoria always bears the name:

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Oils From Orange Trees.

Four under distinct types of essential oils are emitted from the orange tree and the fruit. Orange oil is derived by pressing the rind of either the sweet or bitter orange; bergamot oil, extracted from the rind of a special variety of orange cultivated almost exclusively in Italy and Guinea for its essential oil content; petitgrain oil produced by distillation of the leaves and twigs of the bitter orange; and orange flower or neroli oil, distilled or extracted from the fresh flowers of the bitter orange tree. Orange oil is the very one of these products which is made in the United States.

Worms in your child? ACT QUICKLY!

Pitting at sunrise. Getting the teeth. Loss of appetite. Sleep. Grinding of teeth. Rash. Red scaly child's body of these ruinous parasites that sap health and strength. Give Cormoch's Dead Shot Worm Pellets. Pleasant to take confections. Children take them without suspicion they're worming.

COMSTOCK'S WORM DEAD SHOT PELLETS
W. H. Comstock, Ltd. Brockville, Ont.
Sold by all Druggists

Accounted

Mrs. H. tells to call on Gerald's mother and was telling her about a new maid they had secured as cook. "I don't know what we would have done without her," observed Mrs. H. "I must introduce Gerald almost before remarked the mother.

"Yes," said Gerald proud to "I know one of em well, mother. I knocking out his two front teeth."

A COUGH Is a PROTEST against the presence of disease-breeding germs. Destroy them and stop the cough by using
B. & M.
THE PENETRATING GERMICIDE
No other treatment like it. Your Druggist can supply the large size at $1.25 — or order direct from
F. E. ROLLINS CO. 27 Bleecker St. Utica, N.Y.

Lollypops and Courage

A chemist has discovered that a slight variation in the glucose content of the blood makes all the difference between courage and cowardice. Inserted for admission to the dark regions of 32 degrees south latitude intersects the meridian of 36 degrees west longitude, which also was taken as the axis of movements.

The product of the population of a given area by its distance from the assumed parallel is called a north or south moment, and the product of the population of the area by its distance from the assumed meridian is called an east or west moment.

In computing north and south moments the distances are usually in minutes of arc. In calculating east and west moments it is necessary to use the same minutes of the unequal length of the degrees and minutes in different latitudes.

The population of the country is grouped by square degrees—that is, by areas included between consecutive parallels and meridians—as their area conversions units with which to work. The population of the principal cities is then deducted from that of the respective square degrees in which they are situated and separately.

The center of population of each square degree is assumed to be at its geographical center except where such an assumption is manifestly incorrect; in these cases the position of the center of population of the square degree is estimated as nearly as possible.

The population of each square degree north and south of the assumed parallel is multiplied by the distance of its center from that parallel; a similar calculation is made for the meridian values; and the sum of the north moments and the sum of the south moments are ascertained. The difference between these two sums, divided by the total population of the country gives a correction to the latitude. In a similar manner the sums of the east and of the west moments are ascertained and from them the correction in longitude is made.

The weighted distance of the center of population from the assumed parallel and meridian is measured in any convenient linear unit. In 1930 it will come to 10.1 miles, and in 1940 to the other hand it is very much smaller—2.6 miles, according to 1930. In the absence of any appreciable change in the westward movement since 1790 that is to say, the center of population will move westward at a rate of 10 miles per decade.

The westward migration is a reflection of the development of the nation—the transcontinental railroads, the settlement of the states west of the Mississippi, the development of the great oil industries in Texas and Oklahoma and other parts of the West and the steady growth of population in general in those areas. All these are in the direction of the center of population. Moreover, the Pacific coast states have all been well above the national average in the matter of increase since the World war.

A noticeable fact in the plotting of the centers of population is the changeless direction which they have followed since 1790. It has clung to the thirty-ninth parallel of latitude since 1790. It has progressed almost in a straight line, reaching the farthest point west in 1930. The rate of movement in 1790-1800 was 51 miles per decade; in 1800-1810 it was 61 miles; in 1810-1820 it was 58 miles; in 1820-1830 it was 65 miles; in 1830-1840 it was 55 miles; in 1840-1850 it was 53 miles; in 1850-1860 it was 48 miles; in 1860-1870 it was 38 miles; in 1870-1880 it was 30 miles; in 1880-1890 it was 40 miles; in 1890-1900 it was 34 miles; in 1900-1910 it was 32 miles; in 1910-1920 it was 23 miles; in 1920-1930 it was only 11.4 miles, and in 1930 it will come to 10.1 miles.

The center of the population had returned nearly to the 1850 position compared to 1840, when it was 8 miles west of it. In 1860 it was 48 miles west of Charlestown, Ind. From 1860 to 1900 it moved 2.6 miles north and 29.3 miles west; the movement being 30 miles in a direction 5 degrees north of west. In 1910 it was 20.1 miles west and 2.6 miles north of the 1900 position. In 1920 it was 11.4 miles west and 2.6 miles north of the 1910 position. In 1930 it was 10.1 miles west and 2.6 miles north of the 1920 position.

The center of population of 1930 is in Clinton county, Ind., 7 miles northwest of Kokomo, 55 miles northwest of Indianapolis and 20 miles southeast of Logansport. It is in the northwest quarter of section 36, Howard township, Clinton county, Ind., on the farm of Lewis Barnhart. It is 1 mile south of the Howard-Clinton county line and 1 mile west of the Howard-Tipton county line. It is 2 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Greentown, Ind., and 3 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Kokomo, Ind.

The center of population of 1940 will be in Howard county, Ind., 7 miles northwest of Kokomo, 48 miles northwest of Indianapolis and 20 miles southeast of Logansport. It will be in the northwest quarter of section 31, Howard township, Howard county, Ind., on the farm of Lewis Barnhart. It will be 1 mile south of the Howard-Clinton county line and 1 mile west of the Howard-Tipton county line. It will be 2 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Greentown, Ind., and 3 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Kokomo, Ind.

Gut Your Expenses!

To prevent sickness and disease in the home is to practice economy. Thousands of women are adopting the health habit of keeping Nature's Remedy (NR) Tablets handy. Mild but thoroughly effective, NR tablets relieve biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach, constipation. NATURE'S REMEDY—NR tablets are mild and all-vegetable, is ideal for the family use. Try it and save expensive calls.

NR Tonight — Nature's Remedy
NR TABLETS

YUMS for the tummy! Quick relief from indigestion and heartburn. Only 10c.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 19-1932.

Uncle Sam's Westward March

Population Centers from 1790 to 1930

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

REVENTS the name of the town of Lincoln, Neb., appearing in the headlines of newspapers in every part of the world, and the name was changed to Lincoln. It had been the scene of many entertainment dinner, when scores of people assembled to celebrate the birthday anniversary of the great emancipator. Nothing unusual about any other happening where for a score of years men and women had gathered together to honor the memory of Lincoln.

But a quarter of that, this center is located at a point in the sparsely settled, western Kansas town, which is 2.6 miles northeast of Lincoln, 15 miles southeast of Beloit, Kan., and 15 miles southwest of Concordia. Three times and whenever Senator Lincoln, that town received the name of "the center of population" and it became known as "the center of population" and it became a matter of some distinction to belong to Lincoln. Its central location was due, the census officials declared, to the fact that the center of population was then in close proximity to the center of the United States.

Now that the center of population has moved northward and westward and the center for the United States has moved southward, Lincoln is left on the map as well as ever, Chiefly because of the fact that Lincoln is the capital of Nebraska and is a city.

Lincoln is the center of population and how is it computed? Probably most of us have a vague notion that it is the point at which the census officials would put the pin if they were to stick a pin in a map of the United States and balance it on the point of population in precisely the same way that we balance a ruler on the finger tip.

If you stood a line across the population of the United States into equal parts north and south and another line dividing it equally east and west, thus the point of intersection of these lines would be the center of population. Of course, it would not be the exact center of population, as used in the census bureau, for the reason that it is calculated the centers for the location of the center of population. Before it is necessary to assume that the center is at a certain point, then to take a parallel and a meridian are drawn, crossing the center of population.

In making the computations for 1930, for example, the same point was selected as in 1920; this intersection was assumed to be where the parallel of 39 degrees north latitude intersects the meridian of 86 degrees west longitude, which also was taken as the axis of movements.

The product of the population of a given area by its distance from the assumed parallel is called a north or south moment, and the product of the population of the area by its distance from the assumed meridian is called an east or west moment.

In computing north and south moments the distances are usually in minutes of arc. In calculating east and west moments it is necessary to use the same minutes of the unequal length of the degrees and minutes in different latitudes.

The population of the country is grouped by square degrees—that is, by areas included between consecutive parallels and meridians—as their area conversions units with which to work. The population of the principal cities is then deducted from that of the respective square degrees in which they are situated and separately.

The center of population of each square degree is assumed to be at its geographical center except where such an assumption is manifestly incorrect; in these cases the position of the center of population of the square degree is estimated as nearly as possible.

The population of each square degree north and south of the assumed parallel is multiplied by the distance of its center from that parallel; a similar calculation is made for the meridian values; and the sum of the north moments and the sum of the south moments are ascertained. The difference between these two sums, divided by the total population of the country gives a correction to the latitude. In a similar manner the sums of the east and of the west moments are ascertained and from them the correction in longitude is made.

The westward advance of the center of population since 1920 is the smallest for any decade since 1790. It is 11.4 miles for the decade since 1920 as compared to 23.1 miles for the decade 1910-1920, 32.1 miles for the decade 1900-1910, 34.1 miles for the decade 1890-1900, 40.1 miles for the decade 1880-1890, 30.1 miles for the decade 1870-1880, 38.1 miles for the decade 1860-1870, 48.1 miles for the decade 1850-1860, 53.1 miles for the decade 1840-1850, 55.1 miles for the decade 1830-1840, 65.1 miles for the decade 1820-1830, 58.1 miles for the decade 1810-1820, 61.1 miles for the decade 1800-1810, and 51.1 miles for the decade 1790-1800.

The center of population of 1930 is in Clinton county, Ind., 7 miles northwest of Kokomo, 55 miles northwest of Indianapolis and 20 miles southeast of Logansport. It is in the northwest quarter of section 36, Howard township, Howard county, Ind., on the farm of Lewis Barnhart. It is 1 mile south of the Howard-Clinton county line and 1 mile west of the Howard-Tipton county line. It is 2 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Greentown, Ind., and 3 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Kokomo, Ind.

The center of population of 1940 will be in Howard county, Ind., 7 miles northwest of Kokomo, 48 miles northwest of Indianapolis and 20 miles southeast of Logansport. It will be in the northwest quarter of section 31, Howard township, Howard county, Ind., on the farm of Lewis Barnhart. It will be 1 mile south of the Howard-Clinton county line and 1 mile west of the Howard-Tipton county line. It will be 2 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Greentown, Ind., and 3 miles west of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Kokomo, Ind.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

BROTHER JONATHAN

BACK in Revolutionary days it was what stood for all the hearts and welfare of this country. From George Washington, when confronted by a serious problem of state, was wont to say "We will have to see what Brother Jonathan has to say about it."

Brother Jonathan was Jonathan Trumbull, governor of Connecticut at the time of the Revolution, one of our first great patriots. He was also a member of an illustrious clan of Virginia, including John, senior, and his son, John, Jr. Trumbull, senior, changed his name to the initials of the Lord's brothers, Jonathan, Joseph and Benjamin.

For all intents and purposes he was the right hand man of the Revolution. Just what Trumbull senior was to the entire Trumbull family, he was to the colonies. Throughout the duration of the war his home at Lebanon, Conn., was a hub of war talks—where suppliers were outlined and shipped off to the armies; armies similar his own arrangements, and of his simple home he advised Washington and Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Lafayette. It was he who planned Ethan Allen's successful expedition against Fort Ticonderoga. With courage typical he made speeches which stirred up patriotism and won volunteer soldiers, and his state furnished more troops than any other except Massachusetts. Jonathan Trumbull died in 1785, at the age of seventy-four.

• • •

TOM THUMB

TOM THUMB, so famous a midget that his name has become synonymous, almost, for any of those very people at whom the world always was wont to point and scoff, was not a midget through choice, but a victim of glandular malfunction, like many of the unfortunates of the present day.

Tom Thumb's midget soul and body were born of whom, under the auspices of P. T. Barnum, he became a performer, Charles Sherwood Stratton of Bridgeport, Conn., and became famous throughout America and Europe.

Tom Thumb's parents did not want him to be a midget, either. They were of average size, and so was Charles S. Stratton, brother of Tom Thumb, growing up all the usual stages of boyhood and manhood. Tom Thumb, growing up all the usual stages of boyhood and manhood. Tom Thumb's parents were married in 1844, and Charles was born in 1845. Charles grew to be a strapping youth of 17 years, when he was suddenly stricken with a disease which stopped his growth. He was then 25 inches tall and weighed 15 pounds. Shortly after he was discovered by Barnum, who engaged him to appear in his museum. Charles Sherwood Stratton changed his name to Tom Thumb, and went on the stage.

Tom Thumb's midget soul and body were born of whom, under the auspices of P. T. Barnum, he became a performer, Charles Sherwood Stratton of Bridgeport, Conn., and became famous throughout America and Europe.

Tom Thumb's parents did not want him to be a midget, either. They were of average size, and so was Charles S. Stratton, brother of

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15.
Junior Church, 6:00.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Midweek Service, Thurs. 7:30.

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:15.
Sunday School, 11:00
Young People's Service, 5:00.

The subject for next Sunday will be stated two ways: "These Sayings of Mine (Jesus)", or "The Value of His Teachings of Jesus." These two answers are important just now because of the prevailing uncertainty over the question: "What is the True Religion?" We urge those who plan to find guilt in all of the sermons of this year, to study The Teachings of Jesus, to find him this remembrance.

A little extra fun was given to the Mother's Day service when there was prompt two of each group to claim the gifts for the elder and youngest in the group. It has never occurred in the past that such a thing could happen and this is the first occasion during several years of this nature. Those who won prizes were Mrs. Gus Swanson, Mrs. Mark Hinkamp, Mrs. Vane Smith and Miss Eli Bobrick.

All in all the service last Sunday was one of the most delightful of its kind the pastor has ever participated in. An added feature was the music rendered by Mrs. Stalker and daughter Jane. The vocal numbers with Jane Stalker accompanying, were rendered by four mothers, and their daughters. Mrs. Stalker and daughter Jane, Mrs. A. Faulkner and daughter Helen, Mrs. O. Lamphere and daughter Dyrenne and Mrs. A. Livingston and daughter Janet.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

May 15—"Good Business Advertising Or, Creating a Demand." The pastor presents this topic, postponed because of the Mothers' Day service.

The Club does not meet this week, but will meet next week with Mrs. Kate Bloss, on U. S. 31.

There is a campaign on in the church for using the new colored envelops in the package, for the purpose mentioned. This will help much although only a little from each.

The District Missionary Convention is this week Thursday and Friday, in Central Church, Traverse.

At the recent election of the Hi-Y group, in our high school, officers were chosen for the coming year. None of the present officers, being seniors, will be gone. John Winder was elected president; Paul McCarroll, vice president; Dale McCann, secretary and treasurer, and Bert Hurd, spouse. The group will be augmented by those coming up from the J-Y boys, which work was organized this year.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject: "Mortals and Immortals"
Service First Wednesday of month, at 7:45 p. m.
Sunday Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Keech, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30
Bible School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U. 6:00.
Evening Worship, 7:30 p. m.

The Bible Study class meets Monday evening at 7:30 to learn of "Christ's Future Earthly Reign."

Any person interested in the Bible prophecies, their meanings and fulfillments is invited to attend.

The Missionary Society will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. William Kibby on Pine street. Election of officers will be a part of the meeting.

Wednesday evening May 18 at 8 o'clock the ladies of the church will present a pageant showing the Home Mission opportunities of America and the privilege of bringing the Gospel of Christ to millions of foreigners, many of whom will return as messengers of the Gospel or assimilated to the Truth.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S CLINIC

There will be a crippled children's clinic for children of this district held at the James Decker Munson Hospital, also known as the General Hospital, on Tuesday, May 17th, commencing at 8:30 a. m. and lasting all day. The hospital is located on the State Hospital grounds at Traverse City.

All citizens having crippled children are invited to come and bring their children. There are no fees charged and no obligations placed upon the parents. This is an excellent opportunity to have expert advice on the conditions of crippled children. Dr. Baighey of the Henry Ford hospital in Detroit will be the orthopedic physician in charge.

NOMAD, B. L, NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hurton from Saginaw arrived to look after the Pifer front farm.

Mrs. Pat Malloy and daughter Patricia of Pontiac, are here for the summer.

Clifford White of St. James spent the week end with friends here.

Clayton Gallagher was a Sunday visitor.

Harry Bingham of Detroit was a week end visitor here.

A very merry party at the Dale home on Saturday evening. Thirty-nine young people, dancing, card playing and light refreshments. All report a good time.

Garnett Ludeke was a week end visitor at her home.

Raymond Dale and son Donald were week end visitors here.

Geo. Snyder is a visitor at St. James for a ten days stay.

Joe Koss was a St. James visitor for the week end.

Supervisor James H. Gallagher of St. James was a charlevoix visitor Wednesday on business connected with some probate court proceedings.

Mrs. F. W. Mayne for some months past with her daughter Mrs. Myra Savage in Pasadena, returned here from the west Wednesday and will be a tithe at least, remain in Charlevoix.

Mrs. W. E. Hampton of Ann Arbor spent a little time here early this week on business.

The government ship Manitowoc, Captain Fowler and crew of the U. S. department of surveys, entered this port Monday afternoon, where she will make her base while operating in nearby waters.

A group of violin and cello pupils of Mrs. Ruth Soule will give a recital in the Methodist church on May 16th at 8 o'clock, instead of May 11, as stated in last week's paper. The public is cordially invited.

Miss May Dowling accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sutherland and Miss Dora Terns returned to their homes in Chicago, Monday, after spending ten days at Miss Dowling's cottage on Dixon avenue.

Mr. T. H. Merriam of LaGrange, Illinois, spent several days here recently on business connected with the Merriam estates of which he is executor.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hatzke, who were here some days recently arranging for the opening of their Michigan avenue and Boulder Park cottages for the summer returned to Detroit Sunday.

Mr. W. W. Hurd gave the annual address before the Monday Club, of "Benzonia-Beulah" on Tuesday evening.

WANTED—Salesman to work among farmers. Must be married and able to leave home. Year around position. Write Petoskey, Box 310.

Announcing

TORCH LAKE INN OPENING
SUNDAY, MAY 15TH
1:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time
CHICKEN DINNER, $1.00 PER PLATE
Make Your Reservations Early
R. H. Bence, Prop.
Central Lake, Mich.
Phone 19-R3

NOTICE!

TO ALL USERS OF ELECTRIC CURRENT AND WATER

Beginning with the month of May all bills for April rendered must be paid on or before the 20th day of May, or the service will be discontinued without notice. Commencing with the month of June all arrears must be paid as follows:

15 per cent on or before June 20th.
20 per cent on or before July 20th.
25 per cent on or before August 20th.
25 per cent on or before September 20th.
15 per cent on or before October 20th.

Failure to pay any installment together with the current monthly bill, service will be discontinued on the day following without notice.

BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Dated April 28th, 1932.

AMERICA'S WORLD RESPONSIBILITIES

By H. J. HAAS
President Interstate Bankers Association

H. J. HAAS

WE are in a changing world, with many new financial problems for which we have no precedents. Many old profitable lines which have been established for years are changed as to be unrecognizable. American bankers have been called into world affairs to blame new trails of financial unknown. We may expect those calls to be more numerous in the future than they have been in the past. We are living in a world a financial leader and we must accept the responsibility which goes with it.

Let us look to the future with confidence. Every one has experienced a crisis sooner or later, perhaps as great as this, we could never ever come it, but time is the great healer and eventually we have come out of it. As it is with individuals so it is with nations. Our nation has had much sorrow in the last years of its existence. In the past we have gone through the major depression of 1837-1857-1873 to 1878-1884-1893-1896 1907-1914-1921 and the present.

I venture to state that in each of these periods there were many failures and doubts of the future just as we have them today, but we have emerged after each depression a better country, renovated, to be better and stronger to meet the needs of the people and to conform to changing conditions. Should we not judge the future by the past experience?

Nearly all people are better informed financially and individually, to the extent that many of the mistakes that have been in the past, so why not look to the future confident that the financial and social and economic problems will be adjusted satisfactorily.

Confidence is not established by any one thing but by an accumulation of things. If we can get confidence started on its way, gathering a little here and there, it will accumulate as it rolls and runs along. This is not the work of any one man to perform, but by the cumulative effort of each and every one of us. What we are to the future is not the result of what we have done on any one day but the result of all that we have done for all time. The American Bankers Association is endeavoring to do its part. Individually and collectively we are endeavoring to do our part. Individually we are doing our part, but they are only a few compared to the number. We are endeavoring to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described as the North half of Lots Six (6) and Seven (7) in Block A of Stockerton's Addition to the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, Michigan.

It is Ordered, That the 3rd day of June A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said probate office and show cause why a license should not be granted to said administrator to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate as prayed for in said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate.

263

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale of Mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan,
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of James Davis, Deceased.

Ernest Kibbe, a creditor, having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to himself or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That the 27th day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate

263

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Application for Administrator.

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of James Davis, Deceased.

Ernest Kibbe, a creditor, having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to himself or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That the 27th day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate

263

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples, Carloads only. Pay highest market price. The Hamilton Co. New Castle, Pa. 5116

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake. Reasonable terms. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information.

E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 11f

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing and sizing old rugs. in fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop.
21f

PUBLIC INJURED BY BANK GOSSIP

National Association Declares Community Interests Demand Protection Against Idle Rumors

BOTH in their advertising and in their direct contacts with customers and prospective customers, conscientious and persistently devote some time and thought to keeping sure the public of the fact that when the bank has many obligations toward its customers, equally is it true that the depositor also has certain definite duties to the bank to enable it to properly maintain its position in the community," a recent statement of the American Bankers Association declares.

"A bank admittedly is a semi-public institution and there is a reciprocal obligation resulting upon both the banker and his customers to maintain the degree of confidence that institution that is superior to the personal interests of either," it says.

Bankers have always assiduously devote greater effort to building up the public viewpoint in their communities that due to their public obligations and burden of public interest, the banks are entitled to protection against illinformed or malicious gossip and rumors, the statement says.

"As to banks in some states, bank slander laws afford this protection," it points out. "We recommend that this protection be availed of by definite action wherever practical both as a matter of immediate expediency an also in a broader public sense to stop the dangers of idle gossip about a community's banking institutions."

Get Set Be Done

Farmers should rid themselves of any false hope of relief under the legislation. The only recourse left for the producer on a reduced price level is to produce his goods as reduced costs, and nearly every farmer can do that and still turn a few economies in production. Farmers must produce as largely as possible the materials they use and get away from cash purchases until prices come down proportionately on the things they buy. The cheapest way in the farming business is to raise your own feed and not let the other man eat your profits.

Napoleon No Scholar

Napoleon did not distinguish himself in school. At one writer puts it Napoleon's scholastic career was not brilliant and he received his commission in the artillery in 1785 without having given evidence of any marked ability, except, perhaps, that of holding his own counsel and of carrying through to the end any attitude adopted. These traits, which after ward made him feared equally in the council chamber and on the battlefield, he inherited from his mother.

MRS. FRANKLIN C. SEARS TO ANN ARBOR WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin C. Sears accompanied by Mrs. Curtis went to Ann Arbor Wednesday, where Mr. Sears will take special treatment and possibly undergo an operation for injuries received in an automobile accident some weeks ago near Valdosta, Georgia. Since returning from the south Mrs. Sears has been confined to her room at the Sears cottage on Dixon avenue. She has made some progress toward recovery in recent weeks, but not such as has been satisfactory to patient or relatives, hence the trip to Ann Arbor, where her friends hope that permanent and speedy improvement will be shown in her physical condition.

Mrs. George Trumbull of Chicago arrived here some days ago and is occupying her cottage on the Belvedere Club grounds for the season.

Sunday, May 15th, has been selected as the date for opening "Torch Lake Inn" for the 1932 season. Mr. R. H. Bence as in past years will be manager of this popular sailing resort. Dinner will be served at 1:00 p. m. Eastern Standard time. For particulars see announcement in this issue of the Sentinel.

PLANTS FOR SALE—Superior tomato, cauliflower, peppers, cabbage, and other plants. Very reasonable John M. Ackert, 933 State St. 263

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale or Mortgage of Real Estate.
State of Michigan,
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 6th day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Maybelle M. Russell, Deceased.

Rollie D. Lewis, Administrator of said Estate, having filed in said court his petition, praying for a license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described as the North half of Lots Six (6) and Seven (7) in Block A of Stockerton's Addition to the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, Michigan

It is Ordered, That the 3rd day of June A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said probate office and show cause why a license should not be granted to said administrator to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate as prayed for in said petition;

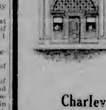
It is Further Ordered, That publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate

263

QUALITY MERCHANDISE AT REASONABLE PRICES

STALEY HARDWARE CO.
PHONE 86 323 BRIDGE STREET



BUILDING A BANK ACCOUNT

Whether you are a man, woman, boy or girl, you will learn that saving money or building up a bank account is a part of your education.

For with it you will be building character. Success and a Happy Future.

The following stockholders are interested in and back of this financial institution: John Burns, Mary A. Cameron, Mrs. D. Campbell, L. S. See, A. H. Cummins, Archie Livingston, Est. of Edward C. Waller, Martin Block, Mrs. Martha Swinton, W. S. Richardson, Carrie E. Livingston, H. A. Craig, A. L. Creamer, G. W. Rushcadon, M. A. Lyelbert.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

WOU HAVE HEARD PEOPLE TELL

what they will do "when their ship comes in." But the trouble is, most of these people never sent their ship out!

Successful folks don't wait for ships to come in. They simply spend less than they earn and save the difference. And isn't today the best day to start a Savings Account?

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert P. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Roen
Ernest J. Hiner Joseph M. Porter Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MAY 14, 15
Marlene Dietrich in

"Shanghai Express"
With Clive Brook, Anna May Wong, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallett.

Mysterious, seductive, tantalizing! Many men had loved, but only one had been loved in return! They met—and parted—to meet again aboard the "Shanghai Express"—part of a strange cargo of Sin—Intrigue—Sorrow—and Happiness.

Added Attractions—"Two Cartoons"

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, MAY 18, 19

"Two Kinds of Women"
With Miriam Hopkins, Phillips Holmes, Wynne Gibson, Stuart Erwin, Irving Pichel

One's a romantic dreamer—the other's a money-mad schemer. He thinks he'll take the bird but will the other let him?

Added Attractions—Screen Song and Talkartoon.

NOTE:—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1932 Number 4

FRANK A. KENYON DIES HERE FRIDAY

SUFFERS STROKE AND SUCCUMBS WITHIN 3 HOURS

In less than three hours after suffering a stroke of apoplexy last Friday, May 13, Frank A. Kenyon, a well known representative citizen of Michigan passed away at the Kenyon residence, 202 Michigan Avenue.

Mr Kenyon to all appearances was in his usual health of preceding days and Friday until after the noon hour. The first information other than this was, when shortly before 1 o'clock, Mrs. Kenyon went into the garage and found him lying on the floor unconscious.

Help was hastily summoned and he was taken into the house. Dr. R. B. Armstrong was called and a few minutes later rendered every possible assistance to relieve the doomed man, without success, he was Friday passing away without regaining consciousness, as the hands of the clock were designating the hour of three.

The transition from the known to the unknown, the change from the fullness of mortal life to that of immortality was instantaneous. For him the great mystery was solved and with it the termination of lifes activities for a man of merit, known for his fidelity in the business affairs of life, honest with his associates, family and above all else with himself.

He first attained prominence by connection with public affairs in Charlevoix County, when for four years, 1896 to 1900 as county clerk and for four years, 1950 to 1904 as register of deeds. Later upon retiring as a county official he was postmaster at East Jordan for ten years. For twenty-one consecutive years prior to May 8, 1931, he was superintendent of Mackinac Island State Park and Michilimackinac State Park, taking the position and assuming the duties tendered them when each of the two properties were in a rundown, dilapidated condition such as was a disgrace to a place set apart and dedicated to be numerous in the future than they have been in the past. We are living in a world a financial leader and we must accept the responsibility which goes with it.

Let us look to the future with confidence. Every one has experienced a crisis sooner or later, perhaps as great as this, we could never ever come it, but time is the great healer and eventually we have come out of it. As it is with individuals so it is with nations. Our nation has had much sorrow in the last years of its existence. In the past we have gone through the major depression of 1837-1857-1873 to 1878-1884-1893-1896 1907-1914-1921 and the present.

I venture to state that in each of these periods there were many failures and doubts of the future just as we have them today, but we have emerged after each depression a better country, renovated, to be better and stronger to meet the needs of the people and to conform to changing conditions. Should we not judge the future by the past experience?

Nearly all people are better informed financially and individually, to the extent that many of the mistakes that have been in the past, so why not look to the future confident that the financial and social and economic problems will be adjusted satisfactorily.

Confidence is not established by any one thing but by an accumulation of things. If we can get confidence started on its way, gathering a little here and there, it will accumulate as it rolls and runs along. This is not the work of any one man to perform, but by the cumulative effort of each and every one of us. What we are to the future is not the result of what we have done on any one day but the result of all that we have done for all time. The American Bankers Association is endeavoring to do its part. Individually we are doing our part, but they are only a few compared to the number. We are endeavoring to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate as prayed for in said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate

263

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples, Carloads only. Pay highest market price. The Hamilton Co. New Castle, Pa. 5116

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake. Reasonable terms. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information.

E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 11f

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing and sizing old rugs. in fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.

Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop.
21f

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administrative Account.

State of Michigan,
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of May A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Ruegsegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William John Burns, Deceased.

James H. Gallagher, administrator of the bonis non having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 3rd day of June, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Ruegsegger,
Judge of Probate
263

County News

MARION CENTER

Marion Center Grange met Friday last at their hall. They initiated two in the third and fourth degrees. After a good program and penny march over seventy sat down to a bountiful Harvest Feast.

Mrs. Grace Mudge and son Jimmy of Detroit are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison.

Rev. Gordman and Rev. Haines closed their special meetings at Phelps Sunday evening. A good attendance and much interest has been shown throughout the entire two weeks.

Floyd Black, mail carrier on Rt. 2 has a new Ford. He and Mrs. Black are the proud parents of a baby girl.

Mrs. Frank Kelley visited Mrs. Frank at Barnard one day last week.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

Captain A. J. Wessel, of Grand Haven was here Friday inspecting the boat and Coast Station.

Earl Gallagher, after spending three weeks here, returned to his studies at the University of Detroit, Friday.

John Hoffman, representing the Petoskey Grocery Co., was here on business, Friday.

Mrs. Francis Gillespie was a visitor in Charlevoix Wednesday.

Mrs. John Feindt, of Kalamazoo, arrived here Wednesday for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Allen.

H. W. Allers, of South Haven, is here visiting relatives and friends.

Capt. Harry Vandenberg left Friday for a ten days' visit in Grand Haven and Holland.

W. C. Palmer of Charlevoix, returned home Saturday after holding the 7th and 8th grade examinations here.

R. T. Havin of Charlevoix, accompanied by his wife, spent a few days here on business.

Mrs. Alben Smith of Charlevoix is here visiting her mother, Mrs. Hannah Mooney.

James Marvin, representing the Rawleigh Products Co., is here on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bissell returned home Sunday, after spending the winter in Milwaukee.

Frank O. Gallagher was a business visitor in Charlevoix, Friday.

Joe Bissell and Robert Gordon of Charlevoix, were visitors here, Sunday.

Capt. B. J. Gillick, U. S. local steamboat inspector of Grand Haven was here on business here this week.

Mr Hunter, of the Watkins Products Co., is here for a few days on business.

Louie Gabbie was a business caller in Charlevoix, the first of the week.

Mr. James Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kalane, are here doing research work in the interest of the U. of M.

Capt. C. C. Allers left Monday for a business and pleasure trip, through the southern part of the state.

Floyd J. Fessenden and son Willam, left for the north Saturday where they will camp and fish some favorite trout stream for a few days.

CHARLEVOIX GARAGE TO HANDLE CHEVROLETS

The Charlevoix Garage located at 202 Antrim Street hereafter will be occupied by the authorized sales and service agency for the full line of Chevrolet cars and in connection will have a used car department conducted by Perry Smith and R. F. Sloan, Jr. The service and repair department will be in charge of Al Belfus, who has a reputation for first class work which will be maintained at the local station.

A full line of accessories and genuine Chevrolet parts will be carried by the firm, such as will enable it to make repairs at all times without unreasonable delay. Prompt service and painstaking effort will be stressed by the management and help in connection with the service offered.

See their advertisement in this issue of the Sentinel.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kenyon and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter of Spring Lake, the former a son and Mr. Potter a cousin of the late Frank A. Kenyon, were called here early this week to attend Mr. Kenyon's funeral service held Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Roy, daughter Kathleen and Katherine, sister and neices of the late Frank A. Kenyon, of Elkhart, Indiana, arrived here Saturday to be present at the funeral service of Mr. Kenyon Monday.

INDIANS BEAT ELLSWORTH

TO JOURNEY TO ALBA FOR THE GAME SUNDAY

Baseball between Charlevoix and Ellsworth played here Sunday p. m. was attended by a good crowd of fans who witnessed a genuine slugging exhibition in which Charlevoix took the lead and the long end of the game with a score of 14 and the Packers stepped with 11.

Amos John, pitcher for Charlevoix struck out 13 while the Packers pitchers struck out 8. The Packers also made one double play and a three base hit while Charlevoix made 2 three base hits. The visiting team used three pitchers during the game while Charlevoix used only one.

The game was well played and interesting from start to finish, particularly so with Ellsworth having several seasoned minor league players in their aggregation, who will be in their regular lineup in future games, therefore it is probable that the team will be strong opposition in future games.

The same teams will meet again on the local field Memorial Day when the Packers will endeavor to reverse the results.

Charlevoix leaves journey to Alba on Sunday for a game with a local nine there.

FIND SKELETON OF FEMALE

ON SHORE OF LAKE MICHIGAN NEAR FISHERMAN'S ISLAND

A gruesome find made Sunday by some young people near Fisherman's Island was that of a human skeleton partly buried in the sand about one hundred yards inland from the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

Later examination of the find by county officials including Coroner McMillan, Sheriff Vaughan, Prosecutor Lewis and several local citizens revealed the fact that the skeleton of a female who in life was about 5 ft. 5 in. in height. Some of the bones were in a good state of preservation while others were woefully disintegrated indicating that the body had been buried some years. There is no clue as to who the deceased party was, the length of time since death or when the body was placed at the point where found. In fact the entire affair is shrouded in mystery, with but little if any prospect of its being solved in the future.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. AMELIA SUPERNAW

Funeral service was held at St. Mary's Church Friday forenoon for Mrs. Amelia Superaw, who passed away at the home of her son Edward Yettaw, 209 West Upright avenue, May 12th at the age of 85 years.

Her maiden name was Amelia Rabelle. The date of her birth was February 26, 1847 and native state Vermont. She was united in marriage with Edward Yettaw, a veteran of the Civil war, who died twenty-nine years later. In 1895 she married Albert Superaw, who also survives.

She came to this region in 1875 locating in Hanky township, where she resided until about three years ago, when she moved to Charlevoix and has since that time made her home with her son, Almond Yettaw as hereinn mentioned.

Mrs. Superaw is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Amelia Gillett of Ellsworth; Mrs. Alnetta Smock of Frederick and six sons, Edward of Eastport; Henry of Ellsworth; William and Fred of Atwood; Almond of Charlevoix and Alex of Alberta, Canada. One sister, Mrs. Charlie Arm of Elk Rapids. Also there are twenty-eight grandchildren and nineteen great-grand children.

Fr Neubecker officiated at the funeral service, Interment at St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Donald Elos, Mr. Victor Hallahane, and Mr. James H. Wood, the two first mentioned of Bloomfield Hills, where they are connected with Cranbrook Institute, department of science and the later from the U. of M. representing the department of botany, were Charlevoix visitors Wednesday night and Thursday of last week.

Mrs. and Mrs. J. E. Bowker, of Traverse City are guests at the local Methodist parsonage.

School News

Sophomores Present One-Act Play

On Wednesday evening, May 25, the Sophomore English class will present an informal evening of one act plays, a fantasy and two comedies will make up the program. The admission to this an fifteen cents. The proceeds will be placed to the Drama Club Treasury.

Drama Club Bake Goods Sale

On Saturday of this week the Drama Club is holding a baked goods sale, the proceeds of which will go toward the expenses of the two students who are attending Northwestern Summer Session. Many others from members of the Club are contributing to this sale and it is hoped there will be a large patronage. Tuition is taken care of through the scholarships, room and board is quite an item. Should there be any organizations in the city who wish to contribute toward this fund, they may communicate with Dorothy Partridge, chairman of the finance committee.

Boys Tennis Tourney

The boy's tennis tournament is well under way. The first round was run down from the six contestants who started to it in the quarterfinals. The five games were played last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The sets in the quarter finals will be played off as soon as the weather permits.

Girls Athletics

Through the girls intramural athletics there has been formed an organization called the Girls' Athletic Association. They elected officers as follows: President—Marguerite Chew; Vice president, Anna Willis; secretary, Janet Livingston, treasurer, Frances Block.

A burlesque food made Sunday by some young people near Fisherman's Island was that of a human skeleton partly buried in the sand about one hundred yards inland from the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

Later examination of the find by county officials including Coroner McMillan, Sheriff Vaughan, Prosecutor Lewis and several local citizens revealed the fact that the skeleton of a female who in life was about 5 ft. 5 in. in height. Some of the bones were in a good state of preservation while others were woefully disintegrated indicating that the body had been buried some years. There is no clue as to who the deceased party was, the length of time since death or when the body was placed at the point where found. In fact the entire affair is shrouded in mystery, with but little if any prospect of its being solved in the future.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. AMELIA SUPERNAW

Funeral service was held at St. Mary's Church Friday forenoon for Mrs. Amelia Superaw, who passed away at the home of her son Almond Yettaw, 209 West Upright avenue, May 12th at the age of 85 years.

Her maiden name was Amelia Rabelle. The date of her birth was February 26, 1847 and native state Vermont. She was united in marriage with Edward Yettaw, a veteran of the Civil war, who died twenty-nine years later. In 1895 she married Albert Superaw, who also survives.

She came to this region in 1875 locating in Hanky township, where she resided until about three years ago, when she moved to Charlevoix and has since that time made her home with her son, Almond Yettaw as herein mentioned.

Mrs. Superaw is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Amelia Gillett of Ellsworth; Mrs. Alnetta Smock of Frederick and six sons, Edward of Eastport; Henry of Ellsworth; William and Fred of Atwood; Almond of Charlevoix and Alex of Alberta, Canada. One sister, Mrs. Charlie Arm of Elk Rapids. Also there are twenty-eight grandchildren and nineteen great-grand children.

Fr Neubecker officiated at the funeral service, Interment at St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Donald Elos, Mr. Victor Hallahane, and Mr. James H. Wood, the two first mentioned of Bloomfield Hills, where they are connected with Cranbrook Institute, department of science and the later from the U. of M. representing the department of botany, were Charlevoix visitors Wednesday night and Thursday of last week.

Mrs. and Mrs. J. E. Bowker, of Traverse City are guests at the local Methodist parsonage.

LADY OF SPAIN PORTRAYED IN NEW FOX FILM

Men have died for the Lady of Spain, desire to her beauty, and danced in the singing consternation of her castanets. She overthrew all that is dear to men, all that is serious in existence, all that is important in the theory—the legendary, long, forever dark-eyed Senorita of Spain.

Down and prone under some forlorn cork tree lay some of the pups of the day they were born. Then, one day, pan heads in mutual admiration and adoration. That is the Pluto at the Ritz in a lovely, old-world in all ways in countries and in some parts or our great Southwest especially along the Mexican border.

The Fiesta of the Rains found a colorful background for our sequence of "The Lady Caballero." Fox make scenes of the modern border number coming Wednesday and Thursday to the Palace Theatre. Lola Lane is far from home in the scenes of the picture, directed by Irving Cummings and featured with Victor McLaglen and Cordelia Montenegro in the leading roles. Lola Lane, Miss Montenegro and Victor McLaglen were invited to attend the Fiesta as the guests of U. Henry Gordon Miss Montenegro's wealthy Mexican uncle is the picture.

Beneath the softly glowing moon and the twinkling stars of the gayly decorated patios of the ancient hacienda are aglow with color and light. Native peons with their serapes and sombreros, Spanish caballeros with the proud dons and their haughty women folk. Music from a native instrument commander of the Legion, and Miss Mary Ripley department president of the Auxiliary, were the guests of honor. Governor Brucker, in his speech, especially lauded Leslie L. Shapton, Post and its commander, Lee L. Allard, for the splendid relief work accomplished by the post during the past winter. Three bugle and drum corps were in line in the parade and the Charlevoix corps were awarded especially to have made an excellent showing.

District junior baseball committee chairman Rollie L. Lewis succeeded in getting up a good deal of enthusiasm for the meeting which drew word among the boys of the district and will visit each town in the league during the week throughout the district.

The Senior boys received their letters for class tournament victors last Monday. The letters are orange and gray with four narrow stripes for winning the class tournament for four consecutive years.

Junior Hop

This Friday the annual J-Hop will be held in the Canoe as a last bit entertainment for the Seniors for two weeks the Juniors have been working hard. They decided that this year's hop to be a hop that will remain long in the memories of the Seniors and other guests.

Band News

On May 28 and May 26, Wednesday and Thursday, the Charlevoix school band will hold an individual solo contest. The band has been divided into a Class A group and Class B group. The Class A group composed of the advanced members will hold their contest on Wednesday and the Class B group will compete on Thursday. These contests will be held in the band room during the 8th hour of the school day which begins at 2:15 p. m. Anyone interested in this contest may attend.

MAY CONCERT MAY 26 AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The lovely Hiawatha's Wedding Feast by Longfellow adapted to the beautiful Indian music by S. Coleridge Taylor, will be heard in a concert on Thursday evening May 26th at 8:15 at the Congregational church.

The concert is given by 40 Charlevoix singers assis

A Few Little Smiles

GOOD GAME

Bobbie and his old maid sister were playing in the nursery. Their mother had given them an apple each. Bobbie had eaten his straightaway. Mary was sitting here and there eating.

"It's play Adam and Eve," Bobbie suggested.

"How do you play that?" asked Mary.

"I'm home now to eat your apple and I give you—" was the indignant reply.

NOT VAIN

"She is not at all vain since the operation," whispered the fair lady's escort.

"Then tell me no lies," replied the lady.

Page Kipling

Big farmer—Have you got any use for Kipling on the farm?

Little farmer—Yes, sir; he's good for bedbugs.—Boston Weekly.

Remarkable Bird

"I wonder how a parrot like that lives it out?"

"Think it walked from Hartford to Berlin and talked the way the whole time."—Hartford (Hamburg).

Nothing More

"Would you be happy if you had all the money you wanted?"

"I should be happy if I had all the money you wanted to borrow."—Life.

Illegible Distress Prognosticator.

Always Punctilious

Little Fred, well trained in all parlor habits, had been taken after a party rather dull evening.

"Good night," he murmured. "I had a pretty good time."

ONE EXCEPTION

Smith—Prisons are a great economy.

Jones—Not if you're broke.

Floriculture

The barber shop was busy, and Bill, in a tremendous hurry, asked what was telling his mother all about it.

"Gee, Bobby, you're a sight," he bawled. "She had on a green dress and a hat with all them artificial flowers with the leaves that look like Bradford, Bobby."

Catty Chat

"This is my twenty-third birthday," Strength, timidly in my resemblance to Hercules.

"Yes, but it is mine for the first time."

Inexcusable

"That man was very rude," said the scrapper to the boatrun.

"In what way?"

"When you introduced me as a crooner, he said I'm a coroner. Hope he see you again."

Poor Judgment

Mother, did baby come from heaven?

"Yes."

"Then having waited for a home like this?"

An Achievement

City Host—Your method of cultivating your crop is old-fashioned. I'd be surprised if you got more than ten pounds of apples off that tree.

Farmer—So would I. It's a pear tree!—Cambridge Chronicle.

Cause for Complaint

Circus Manager—Well, what's going now?

Indignant Man—Every time the Strong Man writes a letter he uses me to rub out the mistakes.

"It Fills Him

"Now your husband must live on milk for a month."

"He says milk is no food."

"Tell him to eat it."

"Then it's all right, doctor. He's a dry baby."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Hard to Please

"This is the finest rug in the city," said the salesman.

"Well, no," sighed the young matron. "My sister has the finest rug in the country and I want a better one."

HOARDERS HEAP BUM BILLS ON TREASURY

Called Upon to Redeem Mutilated Currency.

Washington.—The amount of burned, rotted and mutilated money arriving at the treasury has reinvested the vaulted to the highest level since World war days.

Treasury officials attribute the increased receipts of mutilated currency to the widespread and unusual hoarding activities which followed last year's record number of bank failures, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Beginning shortly after the bank failure rate reached a high peak last year the amount of badly worn, torn and mutilated currency handling the treasury has increased quarterly, and today employees at the currency redemption department are forced to work overtime in the case of heavily currency which comes in daily.

Fingers of bankers is responsible for their the average bad money sent in the mails by the banks, and it is the mails by the banks, and it is the mails by the banks, and it is

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00, Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

BUT WE'LL NEVER LEARN

It took the depression to make people understand that it is entirely possible for government expenses to become so high that taxing the people to meet them becomes an oppressive burden upon the entire public. So long as nearly everybody was making a good deal of money, public expenses were nobody's business. Of course the people took an academic interest in the subject and perhaps growled a bit every time they had to march up to the treasurer's office and give up a good deal of money, but, after all, they had the money to give up and so they forgot the whole matter in a few days and failed to remember it again until next tax-paying time. But when taxes became due and several million people did not know which way to turn to obtain the money to pay their share of government expenses, they began to wonder whether, after all, they had not been making a mistake all these years in permitting government costs to mount, year after year. But now that they have discovered that there is no doubt about their having been negligent, they do not know what to do about it except to demand lower taxes to meet expenses that for the most part are definitely fixed and cannot be lowered except by special legislation.

But this attitude is merely a reflection of the average man and his family's attitude toward their personal affairs during boom times. They did not reflect that the family income might be reduced. They always had been able to meet their installments eventually, and so they proceeded to buy anything on the installment plan that happened to please their fancy. For transportation purposes a Fidgety Four might meet their needs quite well but since the Jones next door had an Opulent Eight. Good times were going to last forever and if anybody ventured even to pipe a squeak of doubt about it, he was promptly dubbed a killjoy, a knocker and a bum sport.

The lesson of this depression is that in times of prosperity we should prepare for times of adversity, but if you think anybody will learn that lesson you merely do not know what you are talking about. Almost nobody ever has learned it, although it has been taught many times, and probably almost nobody ever will. Even though the weather man predicts rain, who carries an umbrella if the sun, at the moment, is shining brightly?

HOW TO SILENCE CRITICISM

Much ado was made in Congress recently over the remark credited to Senator Reed of Pennsylvania to the effect that the United States now seems to need a Mussolini. Doubtless such a statement coming from a senator of influence and high standing was a bit startling, yet remarks to be heard on the streets that Congress has broken down completely and that the country needs some sort of a temporary dictator to clean up the mess, are by no means uncommon.

Of course the United States is not going in for dictatorship and popular government has not proved a failure, in spite of the failure of Congress to function during the past several weeks. The reason for this is that Congress will finally be forced to come to an intelligent view of what the country needs by the very pressure of public opinion.

After the House and the Senate get through with economy and tax bills those measures will have to go to conference committees and there is still hope that much can be done there toward whipping the legislation into shape.

PLEASURES CEMENT FAMILY TIES

In these days when so much is heard of the breaking down of the family as a part of our national life, it is gratifying to note an off-setting tendency.

How much of the alleged failure of our family life is due to the large number of diversified attractions, and the hobbies of different members of the family along varying lines, can never be determined. But it is well known, however, that when a family enjoys itself and participates in pleasures together, that such a family is much less likely to form one of the inharmonious groups which is unfortunately becoming so typical of some of our so-called select and super-cultured centers.

This applies to the sport of motor boating, and everything indicates that this strictly family amusement is very much on the increase. Dependable statistics state that from 1919 to the present date the number of motor boats in use between 16 and 65 feet in length has increased at the rate of 15 per cent annually and there are now more than a quarter of a million of this type of craft in use in the United States.

The motor boat is distinctly a family matter. This is particularly true of the type known as cruisers. It is needless to say that a family embarked on a week-end cruise in one of these trim little floating homes is a far more congenial group than one in which father is on the golf course, mother is at a bridge club, with sons and daughters scattered miscellaneously at the movies, dance palaces, night clubs, pool rooms, or speakeasies.

Let us salute motor boating as an important and welcome family recreation.

BEHIND A BOTTLE OF MILK

In discussing some outstanding farm problems, an authority on those subjects vividly described what is back of the bottle of milk the housewife finds on her doorstep each morning.

Back of it are the broad green fields, the rolling hills, the shining homes and barns of the countryside. Back of it are plants employing thousands of men and women, and express trains and trucks speeding the milk to the city —so it may be delivered in perfect condition. Back of it is the prosperity—or the failure—of whole communities, of banks, farms, manufacturing businesses.

If that bottle of milk sells for a fair price, it means that taxes are met, mortgages are paid promptly, men are given work at good wages. If it sells for an extremely low price—as is the case in many states at present—it means that mortgages are foreclosed, bills and taxes are unpaid, stores go into bankruptcy. Back of that bottle of milk, then, are frozen assets, hard-pressed or bankrupt country banks, sheriff's sales.

A good commodity cannot be produced at too low a price—whether that commodity be milk or wool or automobiles or furniture or clothing. That is the reason, in the case of the farmer, for cooperatives which, through mass action, give agriculture the bargaining power with which to maintain a fair price for what it has to sell. Every person interested in American prosperity will wish the cooperative movement all success.

SILVER AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM

An international conference to consider the stabilization of silver is favored by the House committee which has been studying the causes of the decline, abasement and demonetization of the metal.

As Bernard Baruch, the well-known financier, told the committee: "It seems quite clear to me that the matter requires international cooperation and study, the reaching of conclusions and the taking of actions.

"I believe that anything we can do to retrace the steps of excessive deflation and restore the purchasing power of all countries is a right thing to do so long as it is absolutely insured against excessive inflation."

The silver problem has become of increasing moment the past two years. By lowering the purchasing power of whole countries, it has adversely affected international trade and helped cause unemployment and an industrial decline in this and other great nations. It has placed American mines in a disastrous position. The rehabilitation of silver will be of international benefit.

A GREAT SAFETY CONTEST

The National Traffic Safety Contest, which began the first of the year to run twelve months, is the biggest safety movement ever attempted.

The present campaign got off to a bad start in January, which showed an increase in automobile fatalities over the same period in 1931. A few cities—notably Seattle, Dallas, Baltimore and Boston—had encouraging decreases, but in others—notably Chicago, San Francisco and Newark—the death toll soared. It is now up to motorists, in every community, to do their part to assure that other months make up for the black marks registered in January.

The individual citizen must make the campaign a success by his own efforts. He must school himself in safe and competent driving at all times and follow the Golden Rule of highway usage. If that is done, 1932 will see the automobile accident problem improved.

INFLUENCES OF AUTOS ON INDUSTRY

Much has been said and written about the effect of automobile production on general business.

Recently an investigation was conducted by a manufacturer of two well known cars. It was found that material, parts and supplies for use in the manufacture of these cars were made from many concerns, and that the combined number of employes of these institutions was 500,000 persons. In turn, employes of these firms support approximately 2,000,000 direct dependents. It is easily seen that the purchase one car means wages for literally millions of people, and actual bread and butter for countless others dependent upon them.

It is this situation that has prompted the leaders of our country to urge the public to purchase motor cars. In the official circles and in financial quarters, it is believed that the automobile industry eventually will lead the United States out of the existing business depression.

WHY NOT?

Senator Capper of Kansas hit the tax question with a sledge hammer when he proposed that whenever a body of citizens petitions Congress for measures involving large appropriations for special services to a limited territory, they include with their petition a statement like this: "And in order to raise the money thus called for, we request that you assess upon US a tax necessary to meet the expenditure."

Senator Capper is right in proposing that those who seek special favors at the hands of government, be prepared to pay for expenditures secured instead of loading the burden onto the general taxpayer who, in the majority of cases, receives little or no benefit from such projects, although he is now taxed staggering sums to pay for them.

HOME AIR CONDITIONING BASIS OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT THAT WILL REVIVE PROSPERITY

Twenty-Five Million American Homes in Need of its Benefits, States Dr. Hill.

CHICAGO, ILL.—"Transition of the old furnace into an air-conditioning plant, makes residential heating systems now used as much out of date as the old-fashioned lowboy or kitchen range," declared Dr. E. Vernon Hill, dean of American air-conditioning scientists, and editor of the Aerologist, a national publication devoted to the science of heating, ventilating and air-conditioning.

"Air-conditioning, for the 25,000,000 homes in America, as well as the almost innumerable commercial, public and industrial buildings, is the new innovation that Hills, in the parlance of the lumberjack man, 'a fell but un known wust.' It is the basis of a new industrial development that will be instrumental in reviving prosperity and which will be a balance wheel that will keep prosperity on an even keel for many years to come."

This statement is based on the fact that the American public has become familiar with the comforts and luxuries of air-conditioning through the perfected systems now used in the better theaters, public buildings and in many lines of industry. "This has resulted," he said, "in demand for air-conditioning in the home," and he expressed the opinion that when the average public fully recognizes the benefits imparted by air-conditioning from the standpoints of health and comfort, air conditioning will be looked upon as more of a necessity than the radio or even the automobile.

"No home need be without the comforts and healthfulness of air-conditioning," Doctor Hill continued. "There is now available to any home owner who can afford the usual type central heating plant, a heating-air-condition ing system that automatically performs the important functions of air-conditioning. Thermostatically controlled, these systems, in addition to supplying the warmth essential to winter comfort, also automatically supply the home air with sufficient moisture to offset the lower dryness characteristic of winter heating.

"They also meet another vital requirement of air-conditioning, namely, constant air circulation, by means of a thermostatically controlled air circulating unit. This air circulation is deathless, set of sufficient force to keep the air in every room constantly moving, changing it from four to six times per hour. An outstanding benefit of this air motion is the development of an indoor temperature that is practically uniform in every room at floor and ceiling levels.

Dr. E. Vernon Hill, Chicago, eminent aerologist and dean of American air-conditioning engineers, who states that home air-conditioning is the basis of an industrial development that will revive prosperity.

"This unit likewise makes the heating system available for cooling purposes during the hot periods of summer. The air motion eliminates the stagnant air conditions that characterize home interiors in hot weather and, by keeping the air in constant circulation through the cool basement, tends to modify the temperature. Its most important benefit, however, is the gentle air motion which produces a physical comfort commensurate with that obtained by lowering the temperature several degrees.

"Thermostatically controlled home air-conditioning systems now available are dependably efficient, moderate priced and practically fool-proof. Their use, in conjunction with all heating equipment, gas burners, or automatic stokers for coal, virtually eliminate all of the drudgery, discomfort, and inconvenience that heretofore have characterized home heating.

"Obviously," he said in conclusion, "public demand for domestic air-conditioning will be almost unlimited, for air-conditioning systems are impossible to expand beyond and they impart a genuine indoor comfort that is now experienced in but few homes or places. Public acceptance of the new idea in year round air-conditioning, will, in effect, render practically all existing heating obsolete."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Pass The Naval Bill

Action on the Hale bill, authorizing the construction of enough tonnage to bring the United States navy up to the strength prescribed in the London naval treaty, could not be taken at a more appropriate time than at present. Pleas that the measure be delayed until the conclusion of the Geneva Disarmament Conference have no validity. There is no remote possibility that the London treaty will be upset by a new agreement at the Geneva gathering. On the other hand, there are compelling reasons why the United States should inform Europe that it intends to maintain a navy of full treaty strength.

While the Hale bill was under discussion in the Senate, efforts were being made at Geneva to reopen the entire naval question. Senator Charles Dumont, representing the French delegation, attempted to convince the naval commission that the questions settled at London should be threshed out again. But he met stern opposition from Senator Swanson, of land will stand with the United States delegation. England States against breaking the naval treaty.

The motive of France is very plain to every one. The Paris government has let it be known that it has no intention of disarming. France merely raises the question of naval armaments to obscure the issue before the conference and to make the failure of that venture the more certain. The motion of Senator Dumont is another gesture to divert the responsibility of failure away from France.

Nothing that can take place at Geneva will alter the urgent necessity of building up the American navy to treaty requirements. Congress has allowed the navy to lag behind so that the sea power of this country is only a trifle greater than that of Japan. The nations of Europe, which claim to be so poverty-stricken that they can not pay their war debts, maintain enormous military as well as naval forces. Only America lags behind what is considered essential for adequate national defense.

Senator Lewis says "nothing would bring the Geneva conference to action more quickly than to observe the United States had taken steps to protect itself against the upbuilding of its navy." This country has nothing to gain by listening to the disarmament pipe dreams that come out of Geneva. Let the Hale bill pass so that Uncle Sam may proceed to build the navy up to parity with Great Britain. Evidence that the this country intends to pursue a vigorous course in this respect would have a wholesome influence upon Europe.—Washington Post.

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 724
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Barthelmore Block
Phone 246-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
218 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00. Evenings by Appointment

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

At last accounts the crater of Mt. Mcilauba was still inactive.

Deputy Game Warden Coulter has been in town a few days with his family and friends.

The work of laying the stone foundations of the sugar factory began this morning and will be pushed to the utmost limit.

Work on the grounds of the Charlevoix Summer Home has been progressing for some time along the lines laid out last year and beautiful terraces are being transformed into a surpassing beauty.

A petition is being circulated in Marion to change the State road from the Ventress hill road to a point on the lake. It has always been a mudtrap when the roads were laid out in the present line at that point (where it could have just as well avoided the hill.

Forty Years Ago

The Chicago Resort folks are having their walks and terrace stair repaired.

Now on exhibition at C. W. Hill's clothing store, a cage of five squirrels.

Hotels are all full and the streets present a busy aspect in the first month we will have here the track layers, Seymour's bridge crew, the iron bridge crew, the passenger depot force, the ballasters and the waterworks force. The home team.

Patronize home institutions. If there is a business house that is also a religious institution it is worthy of home consideration. We will buy wheat we can in Charlevoix if we have to give an additional cent, and what we mean if it be done packed, but we will, if good, give an additional 5 cents per bushel more than the price of your home friend to prosper, buy your goods at home merchants. Employ home mechanics, home doctors, and home painters.

Fifty Years Ago

Bill Woodbury of Kalamazoo is the guest of C. V. Cook.

Anson Fox recently purchased the store formerly occupied by Mrs. Hitchcock at the Marshall's sale in Wolverine.

Chief Chalmers has moved here and taken possession of the house formerly occupied by John Atkinson.

The Charlevoix Summer Resort Association has completed its organization.

Work on the foundation of the new Island Route, are to take their departure for Chicago. Homer bowing his compliments. They will run in Lincoln Park.

Engineer J. W. Harvie has a force of men at work grading the roadway in the rear of the station and freight house.

The railroad company last week let the passenger depot contract to Pelton & Co., of Grand Rapids and work on the foundation has been commenced.

Saturday night the steel was laid to the Cassidy place, in Banks. If at once in Charlevoix county in the vicinity of the Wm. Stevens farm, in Marion and coming rapidly northward. With good weather the rails will be at the gravel-pit on the Hull farm early next week.

Forty Years Ago

Fifty folks are to erect a music hall and bowling alley on the grounds and work will be commenced at once.

J. P. Woodbury and R. S. Cobb, of Kalamazoo are up on the Jordan fishing. These gentlemen caught a trout on Monroe Creek one day last week.

Mr. Ed. Parmelee, of Reading, Mich., is building a cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Resort. Likewise Mr. Allen of Kalamazoo, which is to be the finest one on the grounds.

Messrs. Ramey, Gilmore, Page, Allen, Weimer and Roberts, of Kalamazoo, were in town last week on business connected with the improvement of the Charlevoix Summer Resort.

The county seat of Mackinac Co., is to be moved from the village of Mackinac to St. Ignace on the 18th of September next, and the supervisors have adopted a resolution for a special election on June 4th to submit to the people a proposition to issue bonds for a loan of $17,000 to build a court house and jail at St. Ignace.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor of the Sentinel:

Having been attracted by the beauty of your village and its surroundings on my first visit to it and having become interested and attached to it by subsequent visits, I am pleased to notice the evidence of enterprise and foresight on the part of your voters by which a public park is assured. I am not advised as yet whether a name has been chosen for the prospective park, but I hope a good one will be selected though I have no suggestions to make with reference to it. The object of the present is to venture a suggestion, that with the aid of the Sentinel, in creating public sentiment into favor, I hope may be favorably received and acted upon.

It is with reference to the lands lake which nestles at the feet of your pretty village. I think no one would offer an apology for its present name, which is hardly better than no name at all, it is indefinite and inappropriate, neither euphonious nor suggestive.

I would offer as a substitute a name which is free from all their objections and which would appeal to everyone as an appropriate and suitable one.

Is it more natural to look at the feet of a pine for cones than to look at the foot of Pine Lake for "Cone Lake"? Is it not suggestive? Think of a coterie of cones floating in delightful row from the Jordan and the Boyne meeting on its dimpled surface foreshadowing the location of the country seat upon its shores. Does it please you?

Yours sincerely,
B. Saltemstall.
Treasurer of the Chicago Club Resort.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

The tug runs out and in Pine River with but little difficulty.

Superintendent Nettleton with a force of men, has been engaged during the week in loading the piers with stone and gravel.

W. C. Newman, Esq., of this village has commenced the erection of a 22x24 store building on his property on Round Lake, which he proposes to fill with a stock of general merchandise as soon as completed.

A basket of "Rhode Island Greening" from from the cellar of Hough Miller, Esq., of that township, and of his own raising, is a gift highly appreciated by an old cuss. Grand Traverse apples can't be beat.

Traverse Bay Progress—This is the name of a monthly paper, the first number of which we have received, published by Elroy L. Sprague, at Elk Rapids, in the interests of the Grand Traverse Region. It is small, but family sixteen up and ably edited and we have no doubt it will do its share in the development of the region.

Pigeon Roost—Pigeons in countless numbers are nesting in the north-eastern portion of Marion. The rookery is said to be a mile in width and three miles in length. We call the attention of all to the law relating to shooting these birds. Any person shooting pigeons within half a mile of their nesting place is subject to a heavy fine. We are astonished to learn that men of standing and intelligence should violate this law, and that on the Sabbath day.

HEADS LINCOLN RESEARCH WORK

One of the most unseen Lincoln admirers and collectors in the South is Warren, director since its establishment four years ago of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation, Fort Wayne, Ind. Under his direction, the Foundation has become one of the outstanding centers of Lincoln information in America.

Doctor Warren began his studies of Lincoln fifteen years ago, while editor of the Logan County Herald at Hodgenville, Kentucky, the home of Abraham Lincoln. His love, Lincoln's fellowmen and childhood, based on a questionable search of Kentucky court records, is the recognized authority on this phase of Lincoln life. For this research he was awarded in 1928 the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters by the Illinois Memorial University. Hodgenville is the birthplace of Lincoln.

It commissions awarding 3,000 traffic students at Abraham Lincoln high school, Chicago, and made from his diploma as Doctor of Law conferred by the University of Kentucky, as evidence of his extensive study of Lincoln's formative years. It is through these years that Doctor Warren has found the key to the personality of Lincoln, which has enabled him to write authoritatively of the Lincoln family, and to correct many errors in the biographies of Lincoln.

Doctor Warren began his studies of Lincoln fifteen years ago, while editor of the Logan County Herald at Hodgenville, Kentucky, the home of Abraham Lincoln. His love, Lincoln's fellowmen and childhood, based on a questionable search of Kentucky court records, is the recognized authority on this phase of Lincoln life. For this research he was awarded in 1928 the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters by the Illinois Memorial University. Hodgenville is the birthplace of Lincoln.

It commissions awarding 3,000 traffic students at Abraham Lincoln high school, Chicago, and made from his diploma as Doctor of Law conferred by the University of Kentucky, as evidence of his extensive study of Lincoln's formative years. It is through these years that Doctor Warren has found the key to the personality of Lincoln, which has enabled him to write authoritatively of the Lincoln family, and to correct many errors in the biographies of Lincoln.

LINCOLN'S HUMANITY SAVED HONOR OF GIRL

FORT WAYNE, IND.—A new example of Abraham Lincoln's humanity and sympathy, for people in trouble has been discovered here in the archives of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

It was discovered in a letter to the Reverend Jonathan Young Scott, of Springfield, Illinois, dated April 10, 1841, in which the president-elect said that Mary Owens, of Kentucky, had been engaged to a young man, and in 1837 visited the home of Lincoln's friend, Speed, in Louisville. She returned to Kentucky in the fall of 1837, and the following spring the young man broke the engagement. Lincoln, who had known Miss Owens in New Salem, Illinois, was requested by friends to go to Kentucky and renew the courtship. He refused, but wrote the letter mentioned, in which he said:

"In October, 1837, I was at the house of Speed, the Kentuckian, and on the 15th of May, A. D. 1838, at the request of the Kentuckian, I set out from Springfield to visit Miss Owens. I staid at Speed's from Saturday till Monday, and then went to Miss Owens' house, where I staid a week. During the week I was fully convinced that I would be the merest driveler in existence if I were to make her my wife. Our acquaintance had been so pleasant that I could not fail to be aware that she was in every way worthy of any man's love. But I was conscious I had no charms for her, and so I supposed there was no probability of success. I therefore decided not to make the proposition, and I did not. I returned to Springfield, and she went to Kentucky. That you have been mistaken in the object of my visit to Kentucky I infer from what you say Speed told you. I did not deceive him. I did tell him I was going to see Miss Owens, but I did not tell him why. I probably thought it was nobody's business but my own."

Dr. Warren also found in the Lincoln papers a letter written by Lincoln to Miss Owens, in which he said: "I shall not deny that I was rejected by you. I was mortified and provoked enough at the time, but I am now glad it happened. Your point of objection was that you were too good for me. There is perfect truth in this. I was conscious of it myself, and hence my mortification."

Lincoln's letter to Miss Owens was found among the papers of Reverend Scott, and was presented to the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Appointment of Administrator
State of Michigan
Court for the County of Charlevoix
At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 23rd day of March, A. D. 1932.
Present, Hon. Edson A. Bosworth, Judge of Probate.
In the Matter of the Estate of Samuel Dodge, deceased.
Ernest Kidder, a creditor, having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to himself or some other suitable person.
It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932, at the office of the Township, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition;
And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested in said estate by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix County Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix.
Edson A. Bosworth,
Judge of Probate.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.
State of Michigan
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.
At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932.
Present, Hon. Edson A. Bosworth, Judge of Probate.
In the Matter of the Estate of Mary A. Dodge, deceased.
It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;
And it is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix County Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix.
Edson A. Bosworth,
Judge of Probate.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale of Mortgaged Real Estate.
State of Michigan
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.
At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932.
Present, Hon. Edson A. Bosworth, Judge of Probate.
In the Matter of the Estate of Marabelle M. Bennett, Deceased.
Notice is hereby given that Executor of said Estate, having filed in said court his petition, praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate mortgaged by the said deceased in her lifetime, at the May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.
State of Michigan
The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.
At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932.
Present, Hon. Edson A. Bosworth, Judge of Probate.
In the Matter of the Estate of Mary A. Dodge, deceased.
It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition;
And it is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix County Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County of Charlevoix.
Edson A. Bosworth,
Judge of Probate.

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 112 Bridge Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

QUALITY MERCHANDISE
—AT—
REASONABLE PRICES
STALEY HARDWARE CO.
PHONE 86 323 BRIDGE STREET

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Urge your out-of-state Relatives and Friends to VACATION IN MICHIGAN
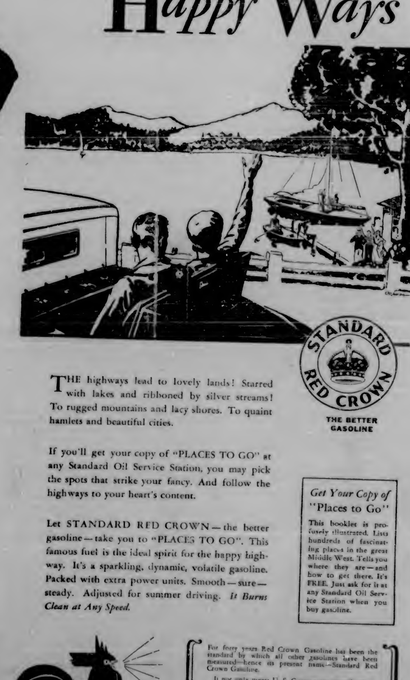
Tell them of the splendid vacation advantages offered by our state . . . the Great Lakes and their miles of beaches . . . 5000 inland lakes and streams . . . progressive towns with modern stores, hotels, theaters and newspapers . . . unexcelled highways . . . ideal camping spots.
The millions of dollars spent each year by Michigan's thousands of visitors add to the prosperity of the state. Let us also spend our own vacations in Michigan this year, thereby contributing still further to its prosperity.
And wherever you go, dispel worry by telephoning home and office frequently. Call friends to tell them when you will arrive. Telephone ahead for hotel accommodations. Long Distance rates are low.



Highways are Happy Ways

THE highways lead to lovely lands! Starred with lakes and ribboned by silver streams! To rugged mountains and lacy shores. To quaint hamlets and beautiful cities.

If you'll get your copy of "PLACES TO GO" at any Standard Oil Service Station, you may pick the spots that strike your fancy. And follow the highways to your heart's content.

Let STANDARD RED CROWN—the better gasoline—take you to "PLACES TO GO". This famous fuel is the ideal spirit for the happy highway. It's a sparkling, dynamic, volatile gasoline. Packed with extra power units. Smooth—sure—steady. Adjusted for summer driving. It Burns Clean at Any Speed.

Get Your Copy of "Places to Go"

This booklet is profusely illustrated. Lists hundreds of fascinating places in the great Middle West. Tells you where they are—and how to get there. It's FREE. Just ask for it at any Standard Oil Service Station when you buy gasoline.

For forty years Red Crown Gasoline has been the standard by which all other gasolines have been measured—hence its present name—Standard Red Crown Gasoline.

It not only meets U. S. Government specifications, it covers them—hence its descriptive title—a better gasoline—for any and all automotive engines, motor cars or otherwise.

Standard Red Crown Gasoline has a higher anti-knock rating and is adjusted to the seasons and the pocketbook.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

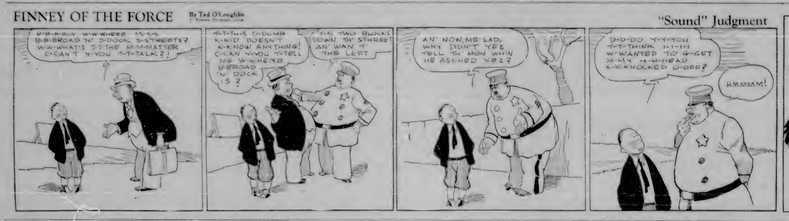
DISTRIBUTORS OF ATLAS TIRES

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

THE FEATHERHEADS By Osborne

FINNEY OF THE FORCE By Ted O'Loughlin



Along the Concrete

Spring Aria

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL By Charles Sughroe © Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"Say it With Flowers"

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS By James W. Brooks

FACING bitter cold, Washington bade farewell to Fort Le Boeuf On December 16 he set out with his aide on lonely trails on return to their horses at Venango, where they arrived shortly, encased in ice Remounting, they were soon forced by deep snow to proceed on foot. Once they lost their way and an Indian pressed into service as guide, fired on Washington. For that the Indian was seized, disarmed and sent on his way

WHEN the treacherous Indian had disappeared, Washington pressed on in great fatigue through heavy snow and across ice-filled streams At one place he fell from a hastily improvised raft, but was quickly rescued by his companion, Gist At another - now the site of Pittsburgh - a sergeant - he won the favor of Aliquippa, an Indian queen, by presenting her with a jug of rum. He reached Williamsburg on January 16, 1754 with "no more appetite for adventure."

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Dull, Muddy Complexion Troubles Fade Away as Fine Particles of Aged Skin are Gently Removed

Directions: Use as cold cream. Rub on at night, wash off in morning. Full directions in each package. For blackheads, enlarged pores, wrinkles, freckles, pimples, sallowness or tan and oily skin, Mercolized Wax is unexcelled. At any drug store.

Biggest Concrete Bridge

The Donguind bridge in Scotland is said to be the largest concrete structure of its kind in the world. In the foundations, low piers and the arch springings above the concrete is in contact with sea water almost twenty seconds a week, but the continuous action which are out of reach of sea water attack portland cement is used. As subjects are frequently in rail with in the ground continuous concrete portions the use of concrete for foundations with safety.

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and moans, unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say, Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated sour waste which causes restlessness and discomfort, give a stimulating dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made especially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant in perfect safety. Yet it is as effective for older children. Constipation's regulative help will bring relief comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name

Chas. H. Fletcher

CASTORIA

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Radio Guides Sailors

Now radio beacons for the guidance of those who go down to the sea in ships are being installed on the lighthouse service to completed radio system along the coastal waters. Latest to go into service was that on Sombrero Lighthouse in the Old Bahama channel, still small for heavy commercial use but promising and leaving New York Harbor.

Bottle Had Traveled

After bobbing and tossing about the Atlantic ocean for almost six years, a sealed bottle containing a slip of paper bearing the name of Gustav J. Beck of Baltimore, Md., several weeks ago turned up at the southwest tip of Ireland, not far from Crookhaven harbor.

CONSTIPATED?

Take MI-NATURE REMEDY tonight. Your eliminative organs will function normally by morning and your annoying constipation will end. Relief is sure and easy as nature set her feet positively to go going. Try it.

Mild, safe, positive—at druggists 25c. FEEL LIKE A MILLION TAKE

Nature's Remedy

MI-TABLETS

TUMS For the tummy! Quick relief for gas, sour stomach, indigestion and heartburn. Tums are candied, they like candy. 10c.

We're always whooping about our rights and saying very little about our duties.

A genius is a man with his hands in the clouds and his nose more than the rest of us.

Being a good sport is like being a good golfer. It's a gift.

A skeptic is a man who has lost faith in himself.

If love is blind how can there be love at first sight.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray, Faded and Lifeless Hair. Promotes Growth. Keeps Hair Soft and Pliable. 60 cents & $1.00 at druggists. Send 10c for sample. Chemists, Parker Co., Dept. 19, Patchogue, N. Y.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 20-1932.

UNKNOWN SOLDIERS

A NATION'S SHRINE

Note: The following article was written for Memorial Day in 1929. Because of the number of requests for copies of it which the author has received, it is herewith reprinted.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE UNLISTED is one of the relics of the days of "Mad Anthony Wayne" which the Continental Congress raised in the backwoods of Pennsylvania and put into service in June, 1775. Indeed, Congress had only voted to help "Brave Tommy Gage and his Schoolbrooks out of Boston town." He finished Montgomery and Arnold in Quebec and he starved and froze amid the snows of Canada that dreadful winter. He was one of the talented remnants of that tragic expedition which finally scrapped back homeward from its bootless offensive.

Then, wearing the Continental buff and blue, he fought under Washington at Trenton and at Princeton and in the summer of 1777 he was one of the picked men who went with Daniel Morgan, "the Old Wagoner," to help repel Burgoyne's invasion of New York. At Saratoga the Bayonet Corps of a Hessian grenadier struck him double.

What if the historians of the future were to call this conflict Alpine dub war since something falsely in his eyes, one of "the fifteen decisive battles of the world?" What comfort was it to him to know—if he could have known—that he had been one of the guests in the life-and-death game of nation-making? For he was one among many of the heroes of Bunker Hill who walked merrily away until debts came at last to call his gambling cry of "Liberty! Water!"

A great monument now stands on this spot which once witnessed the "bloody sixth glorious season of war"—the surrender of a British army. This tumble, red assembly, grass and given the sign that this was just forward, being the story of a young Pennsylvania backwoodsman who had risen to the rank of successful leader.

Who was he?

Just an Unknown Soldier of the American Revolution!

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

BECAUSE the task was supreme day on the entitlement papers which made him a pensioner on the long roll of the United States register named, another host who had never before taken cognizance of the numbers of the unknown army of his New England birthplace, was on his way to the Seventh Province, there to serve as a lonely sergeant called Fort Dearborn.

Both, it was as though he were on another planet, so far as communication with the world he had known was concerned. For somehow he managed to survive through the cold, desolate winters and the hot, fever-breeding summers until the passage over the Oregon Trail.

The pioneer of 1872 came and with it the media that we must halt the England which. More alarming still, there was the threat of an Indian outbreak, for the mastery of Tecumseh, the great Shawnee, had been found among the white redmanded throughout the Mississippi valley. When a courier, speeding along the wilderness trail from Detroit, brought orders to abandon Fort Dearborn.

One last August day the garrison began, southward along the lake shores of Lake Michigan, their Nathan Heald but his three army, all told five in numbers for its precarious task of safe-escorting for the wagons, the white women and children of the garrison. From out of the southern covered the fever forest-shades, a desperate force—and the Fort Dearborn massacre was begun.

That night there was a hellish fury in the Indian camp and the prisoners were locked down upon a writhing figure at the stake. What if this was one of the acts in the mighty drama called "the Winning of the West"? That the future was to see one of the world's greatest strife was at those fateful hours.

Could that knowledge have been recompense for the fury agony of the New England kid whose whose unclothed arms the horrific fuel of Chicago's millions hint an endless requiem today?

Who was he?

An Unknown Soldier of the War of 1812!

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THOUGHT some of his neighbors denounced it as "an unholy war" into which President James K. Polk was leading his nation, a boy on a middle western farm was one of the first to respond when on May 13, 1846, the President called for 50,000 volunteers to drive the Mexican forces back across the Rio Grande.

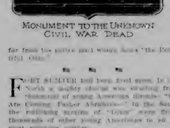
So he was among those who flocked with "Old Fuss and Feathers" Scott at Vera Cruz and started toward the City of Mexico. To his parents back in Ohio came cheerful letters from the fact, telling of the rapid succession of victories won by the American army, assuring them that the war was almost over and that he would soon be home.

He never saw it. Long before Scott's men stormed Chapultepec. After that his mother watched anxiously for the return of his father from the dusty trip to the village store where he went to get the mail. But every time the father shook his head sadly.

Today in the environs of the City of Mexico there is a little cemetery in which stands a small granite shaft bearing these words: "To the memory of the American soldiers who perished in this valley in 1847, whose bones, collected by the country's orders, are here buried—Pro."

And so this Unknown Soldier of the Mexican war sleeps among the seven hundred and fifty.

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER'S TOMB



MONUMENT TO THE UNKNOWN CIVIL WAR DEAD

for from the native man whose name "the Dominion Ohio."

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FORT SUMTER and long dead now. In the North a mighty throng was streaming from the recruiting stations and the call "Boys Are Coming Father Abraham—" in the South the rallying cry of "Dixie" every thing thousands of other young Americans to an almost religious ecstasy.

In the Upper Shenandoah valley of Virginia, a father was bidding goodby to his two sons. "Pray God, you may return in safety," he said.

For one side north to wear the Federal blue under General Patterson and the other south to become a member of Gen. Thomas J. Jackson's "Stonewall Brigade." Whether or not his prayer was answered, the father never knew from Adam.

Perhaps in some Valhalla two gnarled relics reminiscent of Chancellorsville and Antietam of Manassas and of Malvern Hill. But there is no assurance now in their years or any hill such other "Yank" and "Johnny Reb."

The crumbling dust which now heaped these spirits rests under a great monument of rough-hewn granite and polished marble in Arlington cemetery near Washington. Its the monument is an inscription which reads:

"Beneath this stone rest the bones of 2,111 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the ravine by the Rappahannock. Their record could not be identified but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country and the grateful nations honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace."

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS the spring of 1898. A Colorado miner, leading off the night shift, joined a group of his fellows gathered about one who held in his hands a Denver newspaper. One back in the screaming headlines told the story: "War With Spain!"

A month later he was on an army transport that steamed through the Golden Gate into the broad Pacific. The next year he was one of a detachment which was lost from a little guerrilla village in pursuit of a party of Moro outlaws.

There was a desirable birth as their position cut through the steaming heat of the jungle. A moment later his sinewy arm shattered for the seconds of men engaged in furious hand-to-hand combat—bronze asiatic bolos—a storm of thirty brown men clashing at a group of sweating, desperately-struggling blackskin figures and at

The Dead

Blow out you bugles, over the rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But dying, has made us richer gifts than gold.
These laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy; and that unbroken sleep
That none shall ever break, or dream to mock,
Their eyes, they grave, their mouldering dust.

Blow, bugles, blow! They brought us, for our dearth,
Holiness, lacked so long, and Love, and Pain.
Honor has come back, as a king, to earth,
And paid us scornful with a royal wage;
And Nobleness walks in our ways again;
And we have come into our heritage.

—Rupert Brooke

NOTWITHSTANDING all, time in Arlington cemetery a great throng stood with bared heads as a bugler blew "Taps" over a row white marble tomb in which the body placed the body of a dead warrior.

Who was he? No one knew, nor was for six in the eternal mystery.

No one knows where he was born. It may have been among the rocky coves of Vermont or mountains in sunny California. During his boyhood his may have played in the pine woods of Michigan or watched a dog-sled mush Lonely sea birds. But the scene of the years which gone into him doesn't matter after all, for he was an American.

No one knows what strike impulse he was over there. He may have been a carpenter, an engineer. Or he may have been a shopkeeper, smoking through the weed of France or one of those "dreamers" who have "never seen." And then again, he may have been the silent wraps of the native. But the name of his entity cannot matter. For he was a soldier was fighting men.

No one knows where or how he died. It may have been in that frozen Argonne fight in October. Or it may have been in the gloomy forestness of Belleau Wood or somewhere on the pinetree Marne that death found him in a hail of shrapnel, a spray of machine gun fire or a bayonet thrust. But that doesn't matter, either. The thing that does matter is that he died fighting.

No one knows his name in one grave been but again South; or it may have been Murphy, or MacDonald, or Chrysanski, or Mulvik, or Ivanov. And then again it's possible that somewhere on a western Indian reservation the stoic-featured mother looked intently upon her tiny first-born and said: "His name shall be Big Thunder." But his name and the necessity of his parents are not so important now. His fellow-Americans call him by the greatest name that any man can bear.

He is "The Unknown Soldier" of the World war.

Since that day ten years ago when they entombed his dust in marble at Arlington and his spirit in the heart of America, men and women of every station in life have bowed their heads reverently in the presence of his last resting place. To it have come the great of other countries—the queen of a European royal house, four presidents, four admirals, sixteen generals. None has been too great to pay his homage.

Citizens and aliens have come in all conceivable guises which to our fancy pertains to his memory. But the only real tribute to him is one, that he was one of us. That he died fighting for his country. That he has given Memorial day a new meaning. For on that day their thoughts turn to his grave as the visiting men watch to attend America's tribute to her soldier dead, and more especially to the Unknown Soldiers of all her wars.

We cannot decorate their graves in accordance with the Memorial day custom, for they are scattered far and wide over the face of the globe. Some of them fell before Indian bullet and have no tombstone-pictures of the great West. Some of them died in France, in Cuba, in the Philippines, in Mexico. Some of them "went west" on the battlefields of France and Belgium.

So we adopt with their every lonely "dream-as of the dead" and while we cannot put them the silent flowers we Memorial day that we do for the others who have their lives for their country, we can offer up to them our tribute of gratitude by remembering on that day what they did even things not do not know who they were.

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

BULGARIANS LIVE CLOSE TO NATURE

Primitive Simplicity in the Mountain Ranges.

In the midst of Bulgaria's famous mountainous district a small element of villagers are primitive-minded tucked away in their holes and forget how and there on their mountainous slopes. There is a striking difference between the character and customs of the peasants living in the more cultivated regions and those who herds on the plains and fields. Until quite of late in an complete existence the soil is usually of a severe nature, their holdings are smaller, and their country is of a rougher nature.

Through centuries of hard toil on the most adverse conditions, their pastoral views are most modest. In many ways they are almost half-starving. Their daily food consists largely of bread, cheese, milk and plenty of tasty ripe vegetables, since the mild fruits of the mountains such as watermelons, nuts, berries, etc., help to relieve this monotonous menu.

Their clothing is most simple. It is made of coarse but most durable material, both wool being used for their best attire and worked up quite by the women into handsome and artistic designs. Both men and women go barefoot in the cool season of the year, as they possess but leather sandals of festive occasions when the women-folk wear shoes of the most fantastic designs of the region. The men both wear the small fezes that are so popular throughout the Balkans, but the women prefer a variety of head coverings, ranging from the ornamental silver coin-studded headdress to the simple kerchief of everyday wear.

Their standard of living is very low, and the people are content to live in the most primitive fashion. Their houses are built of logs with earth floors, and their furniture consists of a few rough benches and tables. Their food is of the simplest description, consisting largely of bread, cheese, milk and vegetables. Meat is rarely eaten, as the people are too poor to afford it.

Their clothing is most simple. It is made of coarse but most durable material, both wool being used for their best attire and worked up quite by the women into handsome and artistic designs. Both men and women go barefoot in the cool season of the year, as they possess but leather sandals of festive occasions when the women-folk wear shoes of the most fantastic designs of the region. The men both wear the small fezes that are so popular throughout the Balkans, but the women prefer a variety of head coverings, ranging from the ornamental silver coin-studded headdress to the simple kerchief of everyday wear.

Old Medical Idea

The famous Swiss physician, Hippocrates, who died 3,500 years ago, advised the use of smoke to disinfect and ventilate, in the case of contagious diseases.

Writer Would Combine Harmony and Business

Washington, the Home town of Hamilton found men still to their town another by hauling the people of Today to and from their work. The town of Hamilton is a suburb of Washington, and Senator Bone, of Washington, has a plan to relieve congestion in Washington by building homes for government employees in Hamilton and providing transportation for them to and from their work.

It was suggested by Senator Bone that the Hamilton suburban line be electrified and that the government build a number of apartment houses in Hamilton to accommodate its employees.

Senator Bone also suggested that the Hamilton suburban line be electrified and that the government build a number of apartment houses in Hamilton to accommodate its employees.

It was suggested by Senator Bone that the Hamilton suburban line be electrified and that the government build a number of apartment houses in Hamilton to accommodate its employees.

EVADE INCOME TAX IN DEVIOUS WAYS

Income and estate taxes are very heavy, economists in Great Britain point out, as do all the rest of very aristocratic European countries. Consequently many efforts are made to evade these taxes. It is stated in the British government, as an annual figure, that the people of England, Scotland and Ireland manage to evade about $100,000,000 in the year by many devious methods, and recently became the income taxation.

An effort of the Independent, for example, is a sort of land distribution. There are to-day in Germany, particularly in the province of the Rhineland, many large estates, principally of the nobility, and the government, in order to relieve unemployment, has decided to purchase a number of these estates and divide them into small farms. The land is to be sold to the farmers on long time payments, and supervision is to be exercised by agricultural experts.

Here, also, the government has framed a number of laws to relieve the burden of the income taxes. Under the new laws, for example, a man who has a wife and children is allowed a certain amount for each child. Other allowances are made for insurance premiums, for the support of dependent relatives, and for the payment of interest on mortgages.

Here, also, the government has framed a number of laws to relieve the burden of the income taxes. Under the new laws, for example, a man who has a wife and children is allowed a certain amount for each child. Other allowances are made for insurance premiums, for the support of dependent relatives, and for the payment of interest on mortgages.

Old Medical Idea

The famous Swiss physician, Hippocrates, who died 3,500 years ago, advised the use of smoke to disinfect and ventilate, in the case of contagious diseases.

Writer Would Combine Harmony and Business

Washington, the Home town of Hamilton found men still to their town another by hauling the people of Today to and from their work. The town of Hamilton is a suburb of Washington, and Senator Bone, of Washington, has a plan to relieve congestion in Washington by building homes for government employees in Hamilton and providing transportation for them to and from their work.

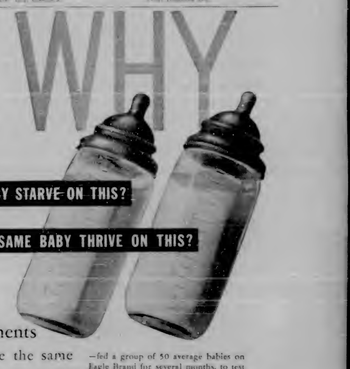
It was suggested by Senator Bone that the Hamilton suburban line be electrified and that the government build a number of apartment houses in Hamilton to accommodate its employees.

EVADE INCOME TAX IN DEVIOUS WAYS

Income and estate taxes are very heavy, economists in Great Britain point out, as do all the rest of very aristocratic European countries. Consequently many efforts are made to evade these taxes. It is stated in the British government, as an annual figure, that the people of England, Scotland and Ireland manage to evade about $100,000,000 in the year by many devious methods, and recently became the income taxation.

An effort of the Independent, for example, is a sort of land distribution. There are to-day in Germany, particularly in the province of the Rhineland, many large estates, principally of the nobility, and the government, in order to relieve unemployment, has decided to purchase a number of these estates and divide them into small farms. The land is to be sold to the farmers on long time payments, and supervision is to be exercised by agricultural experts.

Here, also, the government has framed a number of laws to relieve the burden of the income taxes. Under the new laws, for example, a man who has a wife and children is allowed a certain amount for each child. Other allowances are made for insurance premiums, for the support of dependent relatives, and for the payment of interest on mortgages.



Food elements in both were the same

CHEMICALLY, two baby foods can be exactly alike. The same percentage of carbohydrate, fat, protein, mineral salts. The same vitamins.

Yet on one, a baby may lose weight, grow thin and weak. And on the other, that same baby can flourish and gain and take on new life. What's the reason? . . .

Digestibility.

Digestibility of prime importance!

Doctors know that a baby can starve on what is apparently the most perfectly "balanced" formula if his body cannot use the food elements it contains. Only a food which is easily and completely digested and assimilated can give to your baby the full amount of building material his little body needs.

Countless doctors and mothers have found this out through actual experience. And that is why Eagle Brand, over a period of 75 years, has won a marvelous reputation as an infant food. For Eagle Brand, next to mother's milk, is the easiest form of milk in all the world to digest. In baby's stomach, Eagle Brand forms soft, fine curds, like those formed by mother's milk. Every drop of Eagle Brand is quickly assimilated, goes quickly into the making of bones and teeth, muscle and tissue, energy and strength.

This milk can build 100% babies!

And what a builder Eagle Brand is! Recently, in a world-famous baby clinic, two physicians—specialists in their field—fed a group of 50 average babies on Eagle Brand for several months, to test its exact value in baby building. Bone structure was studied with the X-ray. Tooth development was watched. Weight and height were periodically recorded. Blood tests were made . . . and those 50 Eagle Brand babies, judged by every known test, proved themselves splendidly nourished.

This simple diet—Eagle Brand with the usual supplementary foods!—had proved equal in every way to the building of 100% babies.

What overwhelming proof that the mother whose own milk fails can give her baby on Eagle Brand with perfect confidence!

Try Eagle Brand. See the simple instructions on the label. And send for the new booklet "Baby's Welfare." It gives feeding schedules, full directions for baby's care, together with pictures and life stories of Eagle Brand babies.

The usual supplementary foods, of course, are orange or tomato juice, and cod-liver oil or other source of the antirachitic vitamin D.

FREE! COMPLETE BOOKLET ON BABY CARE

The Borden Company
Dept. W-611, Borden Building
350 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y.

Please send me—free—a new edition of "Baby's Welfare."

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

(Please print name and address plainly)

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

Mar. 27—"How Can We Blind-Fold God?"

The programme promised for the an thirty meeting is especially good this week.

The Aid society meets next week Thursday with Mrs. W. E. Byers and on the 47th this week Thursday with Mrs. Henry Block on U. S. 31.

The District Superintendent holds the Third Quarterly Conference this week Friday, at parlor dinner, in the church. Reports from treasurer, the Sunday School, the women's societies the Second Mile and of several programs.

The Indian Mission Quarterly Conference will be held next Sunday afternoon.

The Hilltop Study class will meet Monday evening at 7:30 to learn about "The Age and It's Apostasy."

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30
Bible School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U. 6:30.
Evening Worship, 7 p. m.

The Hilltop Study class will meet Monday evening at 7:30 to learn about "The Age and It's Apostasy."

Those interested in Bible discourse are cordially invited to attend this interesting class.

Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 the Ladies Aide will meet with Mrs. Albert Cook, 602 Park Avenue, to sew for the hospital; ladies please remember to bring thimbles and needles.

Business meeting following prayer meeting Thursday evening, 7:30.

Wednesday and Thursday, May 25 and 26 the Grand Traverse Baptist Association will meet at the Park Memorial Baptist church of Petoskey. There will be several interesting speakers at the sessions. A Banquet for the B. Y. P. U. will be given Thursday at 7:00 followed by their annual puppy service. Come and be inspired by these meetings.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15.
Junior Church, 6:00.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Midweek Service, Thurs. 7:30.

Boulder—
Morning Worship, 10:15.
Sunday School, 11:09
Young People's Service, 6:00.

The subject for the Sunday morning address will be the first of the series on "The Teachings of Jesus." The subject of that sermon will be, "The Teachings of Jesus Concerning God."

The Pastor is in Traverse City this week attending the Annual Meeting of the State Conference of Congregational Churches.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Sunday School, 10 a. m.
Preaching Service, 11 a. m.
Young People's meeting, 6:30.
Preaching Service, 7:30 p. m.
Prayer Service, Wednesday, 7:30.

The ladies of the Church of God will serve a chicken supper Friday, May 20, at Mrs. Myers, 315 Antrim street from 5:30 until all are served. Price 35c.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject: "Soul and Body."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

WE'VE MOVED!

IN ORDER TO SERVE OUR PATRONS IN A LARGER, LIGHTER STORE, IN A BETTER ATMOSPHERE, AND TO ENABLE US TO OFFER A LARGER AND MORE COMPLETE LINE OF MERCHANDISE, WE HAVE MOVED TO THE NORTH PORTION OF OUR PRESENT BUILDING. WE WISH TO THANK THE PEOPLE OF CHARLEVOIX AND THE ENTIRE COMMUNITY FOR THE PATRONAGE DURING THE PAST YEAR, WHICH HAS MADE IT POSSIBLE TO ENLARGE AND SERVE YOU BIGGER AND BETTER.

Re-Opening Day Specials
Saturday, May 21st

Men's Cotton Work HOSE, per pair	05c	LADIES' COTTON HOSE All Mercerized, per pair	10c
WINDOW SHADES, 3 ft. by 6 ft., tan and green, each	29c	EARTHEN WATER PITCHERS, 2-quart, each	15c
BRROMS, regular 49c value, Each	25c	BATH TOWELS, 20x40, Heavy Weight, Each	10c
TEA or COFFEE CUPS, Plain White, each	05c	CURTAIN MATERIAL, Ruffled, per yard	10c
CRETONNE, new patterns, Per Yard	10c	FAST COLOR VOILE, 2 Yards for	25c
LADIES' CHIFFON HOSE, Full Fashioned, per pair	69c	TOILET PAPER, 4 large 10c rolls for	25c
STICK-ON SOLES for Shoes, per pair	10c	GALVANIZED PAILS, 10-qt. 2 for	25c
CHILDREN'S LEATHER OXFORDS, per pair, 89c and	98c	MEN'S GENUINE BROAD-CLOTH SHIRTS, Each	69c

DAHLQUIST'S
5c to $1.00

CHEVROLET
AUTHORIZED
SALES & SERVICE
AUTHORIZED BY THE CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY

New and Used Cars For Sale By PERRY SMITH - R. F. SLOAN, Jr.

Repair Department In Charge Of ALBERT REHFUS

GENUINE CHEVROLET PARTS

Charlevoix Garage
CORNER STATE AND ANTRIM — TELEPHONE 171

Local News

Mr. John Hall of Sunnyside, Wisconsin, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brady, 501 Sheridan Street for an indefinite length of time. Mr. Hall spent the major part of the 1931 season with Mr. and Mrs. Brady.

Mrs. J. W. Harris, daughter Edith, son-in-law Mr. Arthur Aerpic and Mrs. Aerpic of Oak Park, Ill., are at the Harris cottage near Ironton on Lake Charlevoix.

Saturday and Monday — Ladies' and Misses' Dresses — 59c 2 for $1. June and Bobby Shop

Mrs. Andy McCall, Mrs. Emma Bogart, daughter Marguerite, son James and Joseph Williams spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Shabbo at Algena.

The steamtugs Fred W. Green after remaining in the inner harbor during the closed season of navigation cleaned their port Sunday afternoon to commence operations for the summer.

Mr. Ed. Bedford motored up from Frankfort to visit his brother Harrison Bedford. He returned to Frankfort Saturday.

S. T. Gilbert and son Julius Gilbert motored up from Detroit Friday and spent the week end here on business.

Mrs. Julius Moses and son Paul of Chicago, arrived here Tuesday for the summer and as in past seasons, will occupy the Bonthron Cottage, 204 S. Dixon avenue during the vacation months.

Saturday and Monday — Ladies' and Misses' Dresses — 59c 2 for $1. June and Bobby Shop

Mr and Mrs. S. M. Rose motored to Lansing Tuesday, where Mr. Rose will attend the annual meeting of the Grand Chapter, R. A. M., as representative of Charlevoix Chapter, No. 141, Royal Arch Masons. Their itinerary before returning to Charlevoix includes a visit to Detroit and other places in southern Michigan, where they will visit old time friends.

Leonard Anthony who in recent past seasons has worked in the barber shop of S. M. Rose, resumed his position Monday and will be found "on duty" with Mr. Rose for the next few months.

Word has been received that another son arrived May 11th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Carey at Washington, D. C. Mother and son are doing nicely.

The Minjon cottage is open for the season and will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Koch who spent the winter at their home at Miami Beach, Florida. Mrs. Koch accompanied by her niece, Mrs. T. J. Harry and son "Tommy" of Toronto, arrived here Tuesday and Mr. Koch Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hampton of Ann Arbor have been here some days. Mr. Hampton will soon be on his way, while Mrs. Hampton will make an extended visit.

Saturday and Monday — Ladies' and Misses' Dresses — 59c 2 for $1 June and Bobby Shop

Rummage sale on at the Fountain City Hotel 411

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams, daughters Nellie and Mary arrived here Tuesday night from Miami, Florida, where they spent the winter months at their Miami home.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steiner arrived here Thursday last from Florida and at once assumed their duties at the Belvedere Hotel. Mrs. Steiner as manager and Mr. Steiner as steward.

WALTER VOSBURG TAKEN BY DEATH SUNDAY

Walter Vosburg 37 years old and a lifelong resident of this region, passed away at the family home, 311 Antrim Street Sunday afternoon, his death following an illness covering a period of some months.

He was born in Marion township in April 1895 to Ransford L. and Mary Vosburg and has resided in this city in recent years has resided in this 12th enough ran until his health failed he was an employee of the Argo Milling Co. and through his long residence here had many friends in this region.

He is survived by Mrs. Vosburg and five children, one sister, Mrs. Milton Agar of Norwood, three brothers Guy and Frank of Detroit, and William of Charlevoix.

Funeral services was from the family home, 311 Antrim Street, Tuesday afternoon, with Rev. W. W. Hurd officiating.

Wednesday June first is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. 412

FOR SALE—1 farmer oil stove with oven, also small wood range. Call 209. 411

FOR RENT—Six room furnished cottage, all conveniences. Reasonable. Inquire 102 E. Upright. 412

If troubled with headache, dizziness, nervousness or any other symptom of eye strain, consult Dr. Leahy the Optometrist here Wednesday June first. 412

LOST—Spotted Blue Tick female dog "Queen". Notify Ted Gravelin, 105 Green St.

PLANTS FOR SALE—Superior tomato, cauliflower, peppers, cabbage, and other varieties at my residence John M. Ackert, 933 State St. 313

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples. Carloads only. Pay highest market price. The Hamilton Co., New Castle, Pa. 5166

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description: W½ of SW¼ Section 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house. Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 11f

PETOSKEY RUG CO.

We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. In fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.
8tf S. T. Gokey, Prop.

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing
104 W. Garfield

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD LAST FRIDAY

Miss Jessie Simons had charge of the program at the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held last Friday afternoon at the Community Room and substituted a very interesting round table discussion on prohibition in place of the assigned topic and leader. Many of the arguments in favor of modification and repeal were presented and conveniningly refuted.

Mrs. R. H. Armstrong gave an account of the district Republican convention recently held at the Soo. She urged that women attend caucuses and conventions in larger numbers, interest themselves generally in politics and help find a way to get rid of the professional, grafting politicians.

Mrs. Lois Campbell had charge of the devotions, using the story of Jacob and Esau for the scripture lesson, applying it to present-day conditions and the danger that many are willing to sell their birthright-prohibition for a mess of pottage.

Mrs. Ellis reported on the monthly prayer meetings and announced that the next one will be held at Mrs. Hamm's. Ida Peabody assume on May 27th with Mrs. E. E. Cross as leader.

Miss Metcalf read a sketch of the life of Lucy Webb Hayes, wife of the nineteenth president of the United States, who was a strong advocate of total abstinence and lavished all alcoholic beverages from the White House during her regime.

Mrs. Simmons of Ann Arbor was introduced and spoke for a short time on the influences at work at the present time against the eighteenth amendment and the need for the temperance organizations to be on the alert.

Miss Metcalf and Mrs. Rinehart acted as hostesses and during the social hour put on a program of temperance songs, responses, etc., by a class of girls from the Methodist Sunday School which was very much enjoyed.

A resolution recommending repeal of the eighteenth amendment was voted down at the Republican State Convention. The delegates from Charlevoix county in voting thus clearly voted solidly dry on this proposition. The resolution finally adopted recommended that the question be submitted to a constitutional convention. This method is constitutional but has never been tried.

W. C. T. U. Press Director.

Saturday and Monday — Ladies' and Misses' Dresses — 59c 2 for $1. June and Bobby Shop

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED

That the thrifty home is the happy home.

Everything that gives life charm and interest is possible of attainment through the Art of Thrift Account.

Start Today—Deposit Regularly

The following stockholders are interested in and back of this financial institution: John Burns, Mary A. Cassidy, Mrs. H. H. Campbell, L. D. Seese, A. B. Crimmins, Archie Livingston, Edward C. Walker, Martin Block, Mrs. Martha Swinton, W. C. Richardson, Carrie E. Livingston, H. A. Craig, A. I. Creamer, G. W. Richardson, M. A. Levinson.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HIGHER BANK — Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

THIS BANK
was established in 1884 and has served the community continuously since that date.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. See John J. Reen
Ernest J. Hiller Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre

This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.

ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MAY 21, 22
EXTRA SPECIAL
Maurice Chevalier in
"One Hour With You"
With Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Charles Ruggles, Roland Young.

Here it is folks! And here is "It!" An entirely new idea in intimate screen amusement! Intimately put over by that prince of charmland, Maurice Chevalier.

Added Attraction—Two Cartoons.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, MAY 25, 26
"Gay Caballero"
With George O'Brien, Victor McLaglen, Conchita Montenegro.

He puts the "It" in Bandit! A romance Romeo who is the fiercest outlaw on the Rio Grande. He dotes the sheriff's while he chases the girls!

Added Attraction—Comedy.

NOTE:—There will be a show every Wednesday and Thursday starting April 6, 7.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" — "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." — "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MAY 26, 1932 — Number 5

WORK ON US31 PROGRESSING

SATISFACTORILY ACCORDING TO ORIGINAL SCHEDULE

A recent letter from M. M. Bauman, superintendent for the Remus Construction Company, carries the information that work on U. S. 31 is progressing according to original program and that the new work will be completed at an early date and this too, with little if any inconvenience to vacationists traveling by motor.

Within the next few days the laying of concrete will be under way, commencing at Belvedere avenue, when a twenty foot strip will be laid south to Carpenter street, with this finished the company will then proceed to finish the remainder of this part of Bridge street by laying the side strips along the twenty foot strip first laid.

After this is completed the company will move south of Carpenter Street where they will continue activities until their contract is finished.

Mr Bauman's letter also carried the information that he had been disposed for ten days during which time he had been confined to his room, but that his condition was such that he would soon be back on the job making a strenuous effort to complete the work with but slight annoyance to the public.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

Father F. L. McLaughlin returned home Saturday, accompanied by his mother and sister-in-law, who spent the week end here, returning to their home, in Flint, Monday.

Hubert, Constant, Anthony and Miss Mamie McCauley returned to their homes, in Detroit, after attending the funeral of their father, Frank C. McCauley.

Mrs. A. C. Pinkney is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. McCann.

Mr. J. P. Mahoney returned to his home in Chicago after spending several days here, visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Katherine McCann is in Bay City visiting her brother Dr. Charles McCann and family.

Mrs Mary Briggs went to Charlevoix Monday, where she will spend several months.

Mrs M. J. McCann is a Charlevoix visitor this week.

Mrs. Archie Livingston was a business caller here this week.

Giles McCann returned home from Charlevoix Thursday.

Charles Pischner and Norbert Gallagher went to Charlevoix Friday to attend the Jollop of the Charlevoix High School.

C. P. Cone of Green Bay, Wis., Division Supervisor of U. S. Coast Guards telephones and cables, spent a few days here on business.

The ladies of Holy Cross Parish held their first card party of the season at the new hall, Sunday. The party was well attended and all reported a good time.

John Grill was in Charlevoix this week, as a juryman for the May term of court.

Mrs. Patrick Bonner was a business caller in Charlevoix Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Leonard of Chicago, are here on their annual spring visit to the island.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Floyd and family have moved to Charlevoix for the summer.

Father E. Neubecker, of Charlevoix, was here the first of the week to attend the banquet of the St. James High School.

Captain and Mrs. Harry Vanderburg returned home Tuesday from Grand Haven and Holland, where they were visiting relatives and friends.

Edwin McCann met with a serious accident Monday. He severed an artery in his foot while adding timber for platform scales. He was rushed to Dr. Palmer's office where the bleeding was stopped and the injury taken care of.

Dr. Simmons and Dr. Young of Lansing with the Michigan Department of Health, were here Tuesday studying the situation relative to medical service for the islands.

Floyd Brothers made a trip to Charlevoix Tuesday with their power boat Tabel.

Gus Mielke was a business caller in Charlevoix this week.

Miss F. A. Franklin motored from Lake Forest, Ill., Saturday to take up her duties as manager of the Chicago Club, a position held by her in several recent years.

POPPY DAY

Why speak alone of Flanders Fields
Where stout youth life in peace,
Who threw grenade—
Heard shrapnel scream—
Felt blinding death's surcease?
For
Larks still winging through the air,
And radiant poppy bloom
Prove theirs a finished sacrifice:
Theirs—inviolate sleep in guarded room.
But
Pray for those who on their cots
Relive the war from dawn to dawn,
Who labor now sore o'er poppies red,
For them, the war goes on—
—Author Unknown

Saturday, May 28, will be "Poppy Day" in Charlevoix. On that day every person in the city will be asked to wear a bright red poppy in honor of the men who gave their lives in the World War.

The poppies will be sold throughout the city by Legion Auxiliary women and the entire proceeds will go to the relief and rehabilitation funds of the Auxiliary and Legion.

NEED WE SAY MORE?

ANTRIM COUNTY SCHOOL CHILDREN VISIT CHARLEVOIX

Charlevoix was visited by the students of what is known as the Lazell school, District No. 4 in Mancelona township, Antrim County, last Friday. The students were accompanied by their teacher, Miss Tekla Wasman, Mrs. L. Bailey and Mr. Frank H. Loshet, the latter moderator of the school, and who was the chief promoter of the student excursion to Charlevoix for the outing.

The day was enjoyably and profitably spent by visiting places of interest, the government fish hatchery, Coast Guard Station, etc.

The students were entertained with a dinner served at the Auto Park by their teacher, Miss Wasman, her sister, Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Myrtle Marshall in which they were assisted by "Dad" Brady who gave them a royal welcome which the entire party wish to acknowledge and extend their thanks for courtesies shown.

A drive through the downtown district, resident streets and recreation grounds was an added feature enjoyed by the school before they returned home in the evening, all making for a splendid outing for the entire party sponsored by Mr. Loshet as an appreciation to the teacher, Miss Wasman, and students for their excellent standings and deportment during the school year.

TROY LAUNDRY TO OPEN FOR SEASON WEDNESDAY

The Troy Laundry will open for the season Wednesday, June 1st, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Emory D. Gimble. Mr. Gimble has been with the institution for the past fourteen years. He is familiar with the laundry industry and understands the requirements desired by patrons both local and transient, a large number of whom have been consistent customers over a long period of years.

Mr. Gimble assures a reduction in prices from those charged in the past and that the service rendered will be only such as is required by patrons who desire and appreciate meritorious work.

NOTICE

Resolved that interest on savings book accounts and Certificates of Deposit will be paid at the rate of 3 per cent compounded every six months, beginning June 1, 1932.

(Signed) Boards of Directors of The Charlevoix State Savings Bank, The Charlevoix County Bank.

The above action has been taken by Charlevoix banks in view of existing conditions and in the best interest of the banks and their depositors.

5t2

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Beginning Monday, May 23, 1932, a charge of (25c) Twenty-five cents for notary fee will be made for all documents notarized at the office of the Department of State in the Information Bureau at Charlevoix other than those papers having to do with the transfer of automobile certificates of title, applications for new title and the sale of automobile license plates. The charge will be made on all operator and chauffeur license applications, gasoline tax rebate affidavits and any document not connected with the sale of plates.

F. V. Tyler, Branch Mgr.

INFORMATION ON THE RED CROSS FLOUR

It is reported to me there is a misunderstanding about distribution of this flour, hence this statement.

Congress, by resolution, authorized the distribution of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat by the Federal Farm Board, through the American National Red Cross, or other organizations authorized by the Red Cross.

This wheat is assigned to County Red Cross Chapters and pro rated on the basis of a barrel of flour for family of five persons, for three months.

Charlevoix County Red Cross Chapter, through its Chairman, applied for its ratable amount. This can be had in wheat or flour and our assignment is in flour. A car load of 30,000 pounds was received May 19th.

The County Chapter, designated the Tri-post Association of the American Legion to receive and distribute the flour to those qualified by need to receive it.

A survey of needy families in the County was made through and with the aid of the supervisors of the several townships and in cities by the Welfare Committee of the several posts.

The flour was consigned to the County Chairman at Boyne City, and the Legion Tri-post Association notified. The committee of the three posts consisting of Clarence Meggison of Charlevoix; Dr. B. J. Bueker of East Jordan, and Howard Middleton of Boyne City, accepted and receipted for the flour to the Red Cross County Chapter.

Based on the survey made, the flour was then apportioned among the three cities and several townships.

Each supervisor receiving his allotment, receipts to the Legion Post, and each person receiving flour receipts to the supervisor; and in the cities, to the several Legion Posts distributing to the individuals as determined by the survey made.

The direction to the local Chapter by the Midwestern Branch of the Red Cross, is that no assignment of this flour is to be made to any organization supported by appropriation of public funds.

Mrs. J. M. Harris,
Acting Chairman, Charlevoix County Chapter, A. R. C.

ON GRADUATING LIST AT MICHIGAN STATE

Students at M. S. C. from this region that are on the June 17 graduating list as now arranged by the faculty of the several departments, are as follows:

Agriculture and Forestry—Glenn D. Bedell, Bellaire.

Engineering—Sam Malone, Central Lake; Robert Durkee, East Jordan.

Home Economics—Alice D. Bloomer, Kalkaska; Mildred H. Crow, Petoskey; Loraine W. Newman, Petoskey.

Liberal Arts—Barry J. Skornia, East Jordan; Opal A. Harper, Charlevoix; George H. Alsonman, Petoskey; Simeon J. Leroy, Petoskey; Lester R. Pagel, Petoskey.

Henry Partridge is spending part of this week attending a meeting of the Grand Lodge F. & A. M. is now at Saginaw. Mr. Partridge represents Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 at the Saginaw meeting.

GRAND MASTER OF MASONS

LOUIS EDWIN ANDERSON HONORED WITH HIGH OFFICE

The eighty-eighth annual communication of Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Michigan was held at Saginaw May 23, 24 and 25th.

and Louis E. Anderson of Detroit, Michigan, was elected Grand Master for the coming year.

Mr. Anderson has spent his entire life in his home town, being the owner of a modern Mercantile Establishment and is a member of the Board of representatives at Lansing.

He is married and has four children, is a graduate of Alma College and the University of Wisconsin, a charter member of his Kiwanis Club, Northport Blue Lodge No. 265, Manistique Chapter R. A. M. No. 127, Traverse City Commandery K. T., the With Clinton Consistory and Saladin Temple Mystic Shrine of Grand Rapids.

Mr. Anderson was elected to Grand Lodge office in 1926, and for two years served his home lodge as Northport, Michigan, as its Worshipful Master, and also served the same Lodge as its Secretary for six years. He is particularly fitted for the duties and honor of his high office in Masonry, and will apply himself to the many requirements that will be made of him throughout the state.

He succeeds Albert J. Young of Escanaba as Grand Master of Michigan.

—Masonic Press Ass'n Bulletin.

SERVICES SUNDAY AT M. E. CHURCH

APPROPRIATE PROGRAM TO BE AT TEN THIRTY A. M.

The Memorial Sunday services will be observed this year as usual. The various patriotic orders are to attend the Methodist Church where the pastor delivers the memorial sermon.

There will be special music appropriate to the occasion. The service will commence at 10:30 o'clock.

All members of the American Legion are requested to meet at the corner of State and Clinton at 10:15 o'clock wearing Legion caps.

The members of the W. R. C. and Legion Auxiliary are to meet at the Odd Fellows hall at the same time and march in a body from there.

CHESTER MORRIS PLAYS PART MEIGHAN ENACTED

Chester Morris, one of the first actors to leave the stage for the talkies and one of the biggest favorites among the younger stars, will have the role played 13 years ago by Thomas Meighan in "The Miracle Man," which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

In this modernized talkie version of the famous classic, Morris is co-featured with Sylvia Sidney, John Wray, Robert Coogan and Hobart Bosworth.

Morris rose to overnight screen fame in the early stages of talking pictures through his work in "Alibi". Since that time, he has worked steadily in a long series of pictures at nearly every studio in Hollywood.

Before signing with Paramount, he completed leading parts in "Corsair" and "Cock of the Air," Caddo air production. Among his other roles have been those in "The Big House," "The Divorcee" and "The Last Whistler".

Before entering motion pictures, Morris was stardom on the stage.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Emory D. Gimble returned early this week from a vacation camping and fishing trip, spent in the Pigeon river district. Members of the party report having had a most enjoyable outing that brook trout were plentiful and the trip a complete success.

MONTH OF MEMORY

May comes again, with its breath of summer, and its reminder of death. Just as sweet as its flowers should be our thought of those who should not be forgotten, for the service they have rendered.

To the veterans of 1861 and 1865, there here been added the veterans of 1898, and lastly those of 1917 and 1918. Truly a vanguard of men deserving of perpetual remembrance.

In history we may read the words of our national heroes. It records the words of Admiral Perry—"don't give up the ship, boys"—or the words of John Paul Jones—"I have not yet begun to fight." But it does not record the last words of so many thousands, who wispered to their God—"O God, I don't want to die.

To each of them, known and unknown, to the men who fell at Gettysburg, in the wilderness, or who died in Andersonville; to the victims of Santiago, Chapultepec or San Juan; to the dead of Chateau Thierry, Santilloe or Castigny; to those who came back to find a powerful end among friends, all homage is due and given in this month of memory and flowers.

—The Almost News, Legion Publication.

FINDING OF SKELETON CAUSES COMMENT

Finding of the skeleton of a female near Fisherman's Island last week has been the source of much comment during the past few days, with some looking to one, some to another opinion as to why the party was and why found some distance inland from the shore line of Lake Michigan.

There is a consistency of opinion that the body or rather remains found were not deposited in recent years, some say five years, some ten years, while yet others place the period at a more remote time.

In view of the fact that some of the bones are missing, possibly through total disintegration, it is probable that a long term of years have elapsed since the body, whether in life or death found its resting place where found in the sand.

The residents recall the Champlain disaster of June 17th, 1887 in the vicinity where the body was found and that twenty-two lives were lost. All of the bodies were supposedly recovered. Rumor says some were not. In the latter class were two women, passengers on the ship, of whom no trace was found according to recent rumors, although diligent search that continued for days during which bodies were found thirty and thirty-five miles from the scene of the disaster. Therefore if the present day rumors are correct it is possible that the skeleton found was one of the two missing women.

The Sentinel of June 22 carries several columns covering the disaster, as also does the issue of June 29. A careful reading of each issue fails to produce evidence substantiating the claim that the bodies of two women who lost their lives were not recovered. The record relates that 57 persons were on board the ill-fated Champlain on her last trip, including members of the crew. Of these 35 were rescued and that 22 bodies were recovered, and fully identified by relatives and friends as passengers or members of the crew on the Champlain when she made her last trip.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE SUNDAY EVENING IN GYM

This service will be in the gymnasium next Sunday evening at eight o'clock. Sermon by Rev. W. W. Hurd, topic, "The Wisest Fool In History."

The Reverend W. H. Rauch will give the invocation, Rev. I. T. Mark the lesson, and the Rev. G. E. Parker, the closing prayer and benediction.

Tenor solos—"Love Never Faileth" (Rosse), by Mr. Lawrence Foley, of Petoskey, anthem—"Savior, when Night Involves the Skies" (Shelley), by choir; and solo parts by Mr. Claud Greenaway, of Petoskey, and violin solo, By Miss Lucile Townsend—always a favorite with a Charlevoix audience, also of Petoskey. This talent from our neighbor city will be much enjoyed through the courtesy of Mrs. Ray O'Brien.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mrs. Marguerite Cram went to Detroit Saturday to be with her 12-year old daughter, Peggy, who, after being in the Ford hospital for three weeks underwent a surgical operation yesterday which was considered successful. Mrs. Cram expects to return Saturday.

FIRE DAMAGES MILLER RESIDENCE ON CLINTON ST.

Members of the fire department were called to the Emil Miller residence, 307 Clinton Street, Tuesday, when they found a fire of considerable proportions upon their arrival. After some efforts were they succeeded in subduing the blaze, but not until the fire had caused a heavy financial loss to the owner of the property.

CAREY - WELLER

Miss Erma Carey, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Chas. Carey and Guy M. Weller of Oakwood, Ohio, were quietly united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage Friday, May 20th, at 5 p. m. Rev Rauch performing the service. Miss Marjorie Jean Carey and Mr. Lee Carey, twins and brother of the bride, were their only attendants.

The bride was attractively attired in gray crepe and wore a wrist corsage of roses, sweet peas and baby breath. Marjorie Jean was equally dressed in figured chiffon. Directly after the service the bride's mother served ice cream and cake to fifteen guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Weller left Sunday for Flint and Oakwood, Ohio, where they will visit relatives and friends, after which they will be at home to their friends in Mendon, Ohio, where Mr. Weller is in business.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Robert and daughter Ellen of Oakwood, Ohio, were guests at the Charles Carey home. They were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Weller.

Miss Alice Partridge has completed the summer work for the year at Mt. Pleasant and is expected to return home tomorrow. She will be accompanied by a student friend, Miss Elizabeth Keys of Marysville, Mich., who will be a guest at the Partridge home for a short time.

CHARLEVOIX INDIANS LOSE TO ALBA 7 TO 1

The Charlevoix Indians lost to Alba by a score of 7 to 1 last Sunday, the defeat of the locals being due to several errors in which Alba was favored, otherwise the finals would have shown 1 to 0 in favor of Charlevoix in the baseball game played on the Alba grounds.

Only three of the regular lineup appeared with the Indians however the substitute players were not wholly at fault in making the long error list, which for the Indians exceeded in striking out 16 batsmen and Miller of Alba fanned 8 Charlevoix players.

Saturday the Indians are scheduled to meet East Jordan on the Charlevoix field and the following day they go to Ellsworth, where they are matched with the Farmers.

Tuesday night plans were completed for a minor league organization made up of Charlevoix and Antrim County teams, four from Antrim County being Alden, Bellaire, Central Lake and Ellsworth and the two Charlevoix county teams are East Jordan and Charlevoix, all signing for places in the nomination.

The first of these games on the home ground will be played Sunday, June 5, when Charlevoix and Ellsworth will struggle for supremacy. Following this a game is scheduled for every other Sunday on the local grounds.

Since the Indians are scheduled to meet East Jordan on the Charlevoix field and the following day they go to Ellsworth, where they are matched with the Farmers.

Tuesday night plans were completed for a minor league organization made up of Charlevoix and Antrim County teams, four from Antrim County being Alden, Bellaire, Central Lake and Ellsworth and the two Charlevoix county teams are East Jordan and Charlevoix, all signing for places in the nomination.

The first of these games on the home ground will be played Sunday, June 5, when Charlevoix and Ellsworth will struggle for supremacy. Following this a game is scheduled for every other Sunday on the local grounds.

The Indians are scheduled to meet East Jordan on the Charlevoix field and the following day they go to Ellsworth, where they are matched with the Farmers.

PROGRAM FOR MEMORIAL DAY

PARADE TO FORM ON PARK AVENUE AT NINE-THIRTY

The Memorial Day program this year will parallel very closely that of other years which were carried out so successfully.

The parade will form on Park avenue at 9:30 a. m. and will be joined by the school children, who will be assigned to their places in the trucks on which they are to ride at the school building.

The line of march will be south on Bridge street to the city park where the beautiful memorial honoring the memories of those who died at sea is to be performed. From the park, the parade will proceed west on State street to State street and south to Evergreen cemetery where the services will be held.

The order in which the various divisions of units of the parade will march is to be as follows: Colors, Purple, firing squad, American Legion, color representations, A. J. Rehfus, Sergeant-at-Arms of Leslie T. Shapton Post, will be marshal of the day. At the cemetery the services will be as follows: Invocation, Rev. W. H. Rauch, vocal, Legion quartet, Memorial Address, Rev. G. Russell Parker; "The Star Spangled Banner," assembly; floral tribute, American Legion Post; salute to the dead, taps, benediction, G. P. North, chaplain Leslie T. Shapton Post.

BURGESS NEWS

The young people of the Burgess Sunday School held their party this month at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond May. Games and a potluck supper were enjoyed by all.

Claire Chew and Mary Barber attended the banquet given by the Ladies of the Church of God at the home of Mrs. Mary Wiers in Charlevoix Friday night.

Claire Chew has gone to the Arthur Gould's place near Charlevoix to work this summer.

MARION CENTER NEWS

Mr. John Penak, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Pokorny drove to Detroit Friday evening where Mr Tony Pokorny purchased a new Chevrolet truck.

A young son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Falling one day last week. Congratulations.

Mrs. Grant Mudge who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meggison, the past week, returned to Detroit Sunday. She will return on Tuesday with Mr. Mudge, for a summer's visit. Mr. Mudge will spend the summer at Birch Lee on Torch Lake.

A large delegation from Marion Center attended Pomona Grange Saturday evening with Maple Grove Grange.

Mr. Handy and family are occupying the tenant house of Floyd Black. Mr. Handy has hired out to Mr. Black for the summer.

Mr. Charlie Herrington, son John and wife and grand daughter Mae visited friends in Ellsworth Sunday, thereabouts.—Mr. Countou

NOTICE OF HEARING

In the matter of rescinding that part of Ordinance No. 167 "An Ordinance to amend Article One, Ordinance 160 known as District No. 6" relative to gas stations and garages. A meeting open to the public for discussion, will be held at the council chambers June 6, 1932 at 7:30 p. m.

Ray B. Hamilton, City Clerk
By Wilma Novotny, Dep. City Clerk
3t2

Mr. E. P. Harris of Detroit, an early and long time resident of this region was a Charlevoix visitor Thursday and Friday. For some years past Mr. Harris has been connected with the Auditor General's Department in which inheritance taxes due the state come under his observation for adjustment and settlement.

Rev. Thoeh and family were at Pickerel Lake Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Wenzer and wife of Petoskey were visitors at the Burgess Sunday School Sunday.

Crowd and interest at Sunday School are increasing. Every body welcome to attend.

Claire Chew has gone to the Arthur Gould's place near Charlevoix to work this summer.

That Is What I Would Do

By FANNIE HURST

WHEN Thomas Arden brought home the notorious Minnie Dupont as bride to the ornate stone house he had occupied as a bachelor, he could have done so with his spirit fairly quiet in its consciousness.

The consequences were of course that nobody called. Within three months after the marriage, the state of silence and isolation around the Thomas Ardens was like a soft pelt affording them more privacy than they knew what to do with.

Minnie was not accepted in the Circles to which Tom had moved as a popular bachelor, partly because in this air so stiff as the former metropolitan he there was considered not that they had married beneath them. The prominence town in which Tom had prospered simply because a man shoulders upon the retreat of Minnie into Tom's life and remained what was regarded as carriage.

Minnie had what is known as an unsteady reputation.

Eligible Tom Arden's marriage to her none at the proverbial coin of humbler. The customarily gauged, perhaps, turned in his favor. He had fair good business, good manners, an unlovely dauntless quality which had first attracted Tom to Minnie, now about their test. Minnie now is 37 [illegible] one. Way in which Minnie was a source of constant delight to him. Her laughter was of the girl-trustworth reinforcement. It left wistful-country laugh in the valley of Tom arena's delight, and her bold effort got heavily thinned in it.

If, in the long window of the dining downward upon Minnie, whose middle loved to coat, long lies of trig comfortable expression, Tom was not to know it. The woman whose life had been filled with anticipation and appetites from one day to the other answered him with courage not to look reference to it, without whimper, with no complaint.

Second item unlisted thing happened that Minnie came to her first Christmas as mistress of never-been. The flareouts, also to and most a Tuesday of social importance, Minnie assembly had ever since the arrival of her bride, concerned itself to the last of all the occasions which faced the Arden house given to the [illegible] place-cards and placed them with her.

"You," she said, "mustn't you grow up to the category of the [illegible] Tom, and you're going to be the [illegible] Children were what she missed most. In her own city, there had always been youngsters absent. Spoiled, undisciplined darlings, who looked naturally around her. The pleasures and beautiful children of the theater. The girl, luminous children of women who were gay and far from immigrant.

Their absence in her life made the house seem silly in a way that was terrifying. The voice of a youngster would have lulled. When, as time went on, it seemed decreasingly right-ness that Minnie was to have none of her own, Minnie felt a longing a child. Tom was all for it, eager to introduce into the house of the woman he adored one possible streak of light and sweetness. Secretly, after each consultation, it was like she who decided against it. Tom understood, she did not learn a child into the shades of a shawl.

It was the desire to control the trifling and something that was to take away for him to the idea of [illegible] Tom Minnie, knowing from a mother's soul more keen, should have been lulled, unlike to his responsibility, to she should to them or it to adopting some [illegible] and bring in [illegible] of a little a proper [illegible].

Look a middle daughter into timely, as it were, in a flash, dividing Tom into two [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible].

What a finesse! For years it was one of the [illegible] of the [illegible] town. His carriages taken with flowers followed Minnie's hearse. Crowds stood upon the lawns and along the sidewalks as the military bearer [illegible] of Tom Arden's widowhood to the [illegible] to his grave.

Tom Arden knew which he was later to regret, he gave orders that no one, also changed and rose servants, should be told for two or three months after. The record leaned and quite such a stature, although the [illegible] Tom Arden's Middleton, here in Lancashire to the reign of James I, was one foot three inches tall. An Austrian, Joseph Winkelmeyer, who was exhibited in Europe in the 1880s, was eight feet nine inches tall, and there have been quite a few others who have approached this height.

Making for Common Good

As life is made up, for the most part, not of great occasions, but of small everyday moments, it is the giving in these moments their greatest amount of peace, pleasantness and sincerity that contributes most to the sum of human good.—Ralph Hunt.

This model is in gray flannel. The amusing scarf is in red and white plaid striped silk. The jacket has a little shaped peplum with slit pockets.

Chic Military Model

Buffalo Herds in East in Eighteenth Century

The American bison or buffalo was at one time nearly as abundant east of the Mississippi river as on the western plains.

Remains of bisons have been found in southern Michigan, more adapted to their grazing habits than the pine-covered areas of the north, and in Wisconsin. In the latter state a pair of these animals, killed by Stoux in 1832, are believed to have been the last of the eastern sun of the great river.

In the early history of New York, bisons made so many trails to the salt springs about Onondaga that settlers used them for roads. The city of Buffalo was named after them. Bisons several times and a mountain in Pennsylvania. The last Pennsylvania bison was killed in 1799 near Lewisburg.

Early in the Eighteenth century, according to writings of Jesuits and explorers, bison were plentiful along the Kaskaskia river and in the territory south of Lake Erie. In 1718 they were reported in abundance near Dellaire, Ohio, in the latter part of the century, before the western settlements were being made, they had dwindled to a handful.

A few of these animals were found in Indiana as late as 1830. The Indiana geological survey, as quoted by Edwin Linwood Moseley in "The Wild Animals" tells of a migration from the prairies of the West across the state to salt licks and blue grass meadows of Kentucky, buffalo were seen near Vincennes in 1808.

Had the bison been more intelligent and better able to cope with the settlers, they might have survived the Middle West. They were very slow in comprehending danger, and often witnessed the slaughter of their companions with wonder and curiosity. While they were at first thin side of the Mississippi, herds 25 miles across were being hunted in the West.—Detroit News.

Victory too often ends unanimity.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

SECRET OF BRIAND'S LOVE NOW REVEALED

Paris.—The secret of ally Aristide Briand, several times premier of France, a lover of children resulted in a confession uncalled until his death a few days ago was been solved by the story of an unhappy love affair now being told for the first time.

The attitude of the great orator and statesman toward marriage dates to the early days when he was a struggling law student.

In his native Nantes was a Breton maiden who received the homage of all the young men of the best families, but little girl, Jeanne Kermadec, by name, was ambitious and had declared that she would only listen to the wooing of a man with a brilliant future.

She refused to entertain the impecunious Briand of humble origin and cast a ray hat with a young man of his own age, one of his friends, a member of a well-known family and a brilliant star of social debuting society for whom great future was predicted.

Twenty years later the man of brilliance had emerged from prison after serving a sentence for fraud, and he and his acolytes were ordered out of the house where they were made able site in the most squalid section of Paris.

At the time Aristide Briand who had left the then devoted himself to the law and journalism, was lost among into his own as a politician, and his dazzling eloquence was the delight admiration of women of wealth and position who would gladly have taken their fortunes with the coming man, but Briand remained faithful to his first love, and cherished the hope that one day they would be requited.

When he became premier, though to no means rich M. Briand arranged to give his former friend a new start for the sake of the woman they had both loved, but his efforts were unavailing, and after a brief career as an official in the colonial office in France and Africa, the man fell again, dragging his wife down with him.

Both disappeared, and when they were traced again the man was at the point of death and the woman was a wreck of her former self.

When the husband had been in the grave a year Briand offered marriage (pretending to forget that he had made the mistake she had made in refusing him in the first instance, she stoutly refused his offer, and she declined even no right to harbor him with a woman of ill fame, but she was an iron shadow of her former self and was represents five of caught but a wasted life.

In any case, she said her own death could not be far off, and in fact she died about two years afterwards.

She was buried in an unmarked grave in the Montparnasse cemetery, where the remains of Briand now rest.

Each year, on the anniversary of the woman's death, M. Briand made a point of journeying to Chetenay to lay flowers on the unknown grave, and not even the most important political engagements could induce him to omit this tribute to the dead woman he had loved with such obstinacy for nearly a half century.

Now, through death, they are at rest, not far from each other.

All Around the House

Use a slit spoon to remove cooked vegetables from the boiling liquid.

Hand some soap with brown sugar is excellent with warm cherry cobbler.

When making hooked rugs do not thread the rows too closely together. You almost be able to see the burlap between the rows as you work.

A curved grapefruit knife is convenient to use in removing soft-cooked eggs from the shells, and cannot be from their cups.

A strawberry huller is a good idea all to use to pull out the quills of food.

The two sections of an omelet pan should be used when making omelets over one burner.

If tough meat is grazier, try beating them out with a flat egg whip. It is better than a spoon.

Heating a food chopper in boiling water before using it to cut raisins, prevents the fruit from sticking.

FRIENDS AND REPUTATION

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Pratt, who is a young fellow just out of college, claims that he has never had a drink in his life and yet practically no one believes him, and the reason is that the anecdotes are drunken. He is constantly telling about the bibulous exploits of his acquaintances. Not that it ever happens to be coming home late at night and stumbling upon some one sending a half dozen companions to safety. It is sure to be Pratt. When a group of young fellows take no too much pride or appreciation in the jubilee as has been known to happen, and Bad Companion with disastrous financial resources to adjoin matters additably, it is Pratt who is telephoned and who from the early hours of the morning is on the good Samaritan's generosity. There seems to be no one else in town who has intimate acquaintance with so many people who are on the black list as far as drinking and gambling and general irregularity are concerned.

And yet Pratt either resents it a bit or is fortunate that his character is not quite above reproach.

"I don't see why people criticise me," he says. "I don't understand why people think I drink and carouse around. I never touch a drop. I'm a teetotaler. I've told them so time and time again, but they don't believe me. It's trouble."

The thing which Pratt has never been able to understand is that any reputation are determined very completely by the general bent the reputation of the character of the people with whom we associate, and like in true whether these people are our relatives or just our friends or acquaintances.

"I don't know why it is the things the people do with whom I associate" a long girl and to me, not long ago, "and I can't see why people think I drink."

She had been in an automobile even in which a drunken driver had been killed, of the car and turned it over in the ditch. The account of the affair got into the newspapers, as such things will, and her own name was being bandied about in an unpleasant or complimentary way. She could not see the justice of it, neither could she explain to the world in any satisfactory way that she was not in the affair.

POTPOURRI

Coffee Drinkers

Medical science now agrees that coffee, unless taken excessively, does not injure. Moderation is beneficial to the human body. The average American drinks about two and one-half pounds yearly, while in Netherlands the average person consumes fifteen pounds, in Sweden, twelve and one-half pounds, Denmark, twelve pounds, Norway, eleven pounds, Belgium, ten pounds, Finland, nine and one-half pounds, and Cuba nine pounds.

© 1932 Western Newspaper Union.

Colorado Peak Named for Lindbergh

This towering mountain in the lofty Isle region near Boulder, Colo., has been officially named Lindbergh Peak as a tribute to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, America's great flyer. It is 12,500 feet high and is located in one of the most beautiful sections of Colorado.

MEDIC SOLVES MELANCHOLY STATE

Berlin, Germany.—Melancholy, that mental state which so far has baffled psychiatrists, is going to have its troubles in the blood according to an astounding statement which the noted specialist for mental diseases, Prof. Hermann Zondek, recently made before a group of his colleagues.

Professor Zondek, who was Strauss branch physician, lately has studied the chemical composition of the blood of mentally diseased patients. In every instance he found that there is the bromine percentage in the blood fell far below average, and that the iodine efficiency was greatly increased.

Upon this bitter forms of insanity are mostly incurable and enable remedial treatment by institutions understanding study and treatment after [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by William A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.

IRA A. ADAMS, Editor

Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS

One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

THAT CRUCIAL TEN PER CENT

The people of the United States consume about 90 per cent of what they produce. Ten per cent normally goes abroad.

That may seem a small drop in the bucket. But, as David Lawrence recently pointed out, the 10 per cent may mean the difference between prosperity and depression in this country. A 10 per cent profit on an investment is a very good one. A 10 per cent drop in the business done in a concern usually makes drastic retrenchment essential.

In 1931 the United States sold abroad $2,300,000,000 less in goods than in 1925. Yet, even in 1931, more than $1,500,000,000 was paid to 1,400,000 people directly involved in manufacturing products for export. According to Mr. Lawrence if we could get back the two-and-a-half billions of foreign trade we have lost, we could put more than 1,500,000 men to work, earning about $1,500,000,000 in wages, all of which would serve to swell our purchasing power as a nation. Another 1,400,000 persons would be put to work supplying the goods these re-employed people wanted to buy. The net gain, therefore, would be employment for close to 3,000,000 workers—more than a third of those now out of work.

This is not a state or a town in the country which is not adversely affected by the decline in foreign trade. In these days commerce between nations grows steadily more important to the stability and prosperity of the world. It is an international problem—for it is a problem which narrows down until it reaches the smallest hamlet in the land.

SPECIAL TAXES UNRAIR

"The insurance business appreciates that taxes must be levied—that government must be supported and insurance supervisory departments maintained," said W. E. Mallalieu, General Manager, National Board of Fire Underwriters, in a recent radio address. "But one of the fundamental principles upon which the American government was founded is equality of taxation—that taxes should be imposed equally—without causing injury to any one class of citizenship. Yet, under the present system of insurance taxation, we have drifted far from this sound principle."

The special insurance tax, in the beginning, was levied to furnish funds for the maintenance of state insurance departments. This was fair enough. The policyholders, who paid the tax, were given the benefits. But nowadays an overwhelming percentage of the revenue derived from special insurance taxes goes into the states' general funds. Only one dollar out of each $22.50 collected is used for insurance departments.

The insurance companies are forced to raise this revenue to meet their obligations, through increased insurance premiums. Thus, the special insurance tax is an item in the insurance bill each of us pays.

The whole trend of special taxation is toward exorbitance. It happens that the insurance business has been hit harder than most. But all others or businesses will suffer eventually unless we take steps to prevent increasing tax buildups by the special taxation route.

CONSERVATIVE LABOR

It is an old belief that prolonged economic distress will express itself in social unrest. Yet in this third year of a severe depression, the chief industrial nations have been scarcely troubled by threats against established institutions.

The Labor masses today, in their trade unions or acting politically in the Socialist parties, are predominantly aligned with the forces of moderation and stability . . . Though present conditions are frequently described as marking the "breakdown" of the modern industrial system, it will be noted that today, popular discontent is in the main agrarian.—New York Times.

$500 FOR GASOLINE TAX EVADERS

The state of Tennessee is offering a reward of $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons or firms evading gasoline tax payments of $500 or more. Many sleuths are said to be on the trail of evaders.

There is good reason for this. Gasoline tax evasion has cost state governments millions of dollars, and should be relentlessly prosecuted. But it might be a still better idea to keep that and all other special and "class" taxes down to levels where there would not be enough profit in evasion to tempt the dishonest.

AN EASY DECISION

The principal cause of the farmer's troubles is surpluses.

It is obvious that in any line of business, production beyond the point of maximum consumption inevitably leads to profitless prices. There is but one way to make a profit—to sell part of what one has for an amount equaling the total production cost. When the balance is sold, the profit is made. Farmers, in many instances, have been selling part of what they have for less than it cost to produce it, and have been unable to find any market at all for the balance.

A way out is through organization and mass action. In other words, through the farm cooperative. It is said that the citrus growers of California are in the best position of any farmers—simply because they are 90 per cent organized. Other cooperatives have greatly improved the condition of their members, and still better results will be obtained as the number of organized farmers grows.

Intelligent cooperation means eventual farm prosperity. Refusal to cooperate can mean ruin for millions of farmers.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

Now that the entire country including Congress and the various state and local administrations seems to be getting around to the point where economy is freely admitted to be a good thing, it might not be out of place to remind ourselves that one of the best ways to reduce public expenditures would be to cut down the number of boards and commissions which seem to make it their business to pry into everybody's business.

For example: in speaking recently of the Kelly-Davis bill for the purpose of setting up a federal coal commission, Senator Moses of New Hampshire said:

"I think of it only as adding a new bureau to that furniture shop which we have already set up in which weird devices thrust the government into doing for the community what the community should do for itself. It is another of the measures to regulate the private life of the citizen. What an individual used to do for himself and took much satisfaction in doing now has passed on to a paid public officer.

"Once a mother saw to it that her offspring brushed his teeth and washed behind the ears. Now a school nurse is paid to do it. The individual looks to the community, the community to the legislature, and the legislature to the Congress, with the result that no one here present, no matter how law abiding, can lay his head on his pillow at night without having violated some law, even in his most circumspect day. If a law had been passed as sponsored by a legislator of my state, the individual would have been compelled to sleep eight hours a day."

During our days of prosperity the people seemed to pay little attention to mounting taxes, increased public expenditures and the growth of boards and commissions. But now that the depression is upon us they are beginning to awaken, and if the ball can be started rolling in the opposite direction, to the ultimate elimination of ninety per cent of the nuisances, the depression may yet be worth what it is costing us.

TAXPAYER'S PROTECTION

Taxpayer organizations are springing up in all states of the Union. We in Chicago have the benefit of several. Wisconsin has one. Minnesota has one. Other states have them. And now the president of the Minnesota taxpayers' association has suggested an all-inclusive association, a "northwest taxpayers' alliance" whose members will be drawn from the states of this section of the country.

The purpose which such alliances and organizations can serve, if their intention is to bring about lower taxes, can be achieved by the property owners themselves without the need for dues-collecting units. The means are within the grasp of the people. All it requires is the desire and the attentiveness to accomplish the fact. The associations merely provide a paid secretary or executive of some sort to do the work for the taxpayer who will not give intelligent interest voluntarily.

Taxes grow in direct proportion to the cost of government, and that, in a measure, depends on the demands of the citizens of a given community, and in greater measure on the type of public servant who is put in office. No taxpayer would ever hire someone to work in his home or business and not take time to check up on what is being done, and at what cost. Yet that is what the people do right along with government.

If the voters would watch the course of government, not only at primary or election time, but all year around, as they do their own affairs and thus have a better knowledge of the men and women whom they permit to run the vast affairs of the city or county, state or nation, only responsible, economical and practical citizens would be intrusted with these duties. And then there would be little or no need for taxpayers' associations such as are now thriving.—Chicago Post.

LIVING BEYOND OUR MEANS

The United States is afflicted with more than 500,000 tax-spending bodies. A single county in Illinois has exactly 419 governmental taxing organizations. Many other counties, in many states, show a similar condition.

It is no wonder that the American taxpayer is being driven to distraction. At a time when incomes have fallen and when many millions of men are unemployed, the politicians demand more and more revenue. Increasing taxation menaces America's future.

If you ever get to feeling too much satisfied with yourself just stop for a moment and remember where United States Steel was three years ago.

Some European financiers are talking about the "flight from the dollar" but we never saw a European yet who was fleeing from a dollar.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

THE BEGINNING POINT OF A GREAT JOURNALIST

In this old house, still standing at East Dodtney, Vt and reached via a side run from Rutland, Horace Greeley learned the printers trade. Wut he did after he had mastered the art of movable types is written large in the annals of American political history.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Long and painful hearings before the Senate committee in its efforts to construct an equitable tax law, and especially the protests against some of the special sales and nuisance taxes, indicate that perhaps the House leaders who favored a small and inclusive sales tax were not so far wrong after all. For example: Protests were against the so-called nuisance tax on low price admissions to theatres are serving to call attention once more to the rapid growth of the motion picture industry in the United States, and the undisputed public interest in it. From a small beginning the industry has now become one of the big leaders and the period of development has been considerably less than one generation.

To show how difficult is the task of fixing equitable taxes, the representatives of the motion picture theatres and the producers declare that a tax on low priced admissions would cause a great many of the small theaters in the United States. Evidence was to the effect that more than five thousand had already been closed due principally to the depression, by January, 1932, this being about twenty per cent of the total number in the United States.

Argument for the theater nuisance tax is that the people can get along without theatres. Leaving aside the question of further crippling a great industry, giving employment to thousands all over the country, it may be true that we could get along in a fashion without amusements. As a matter of fact we could get along without everything except food or shelter, but if everything else were taxed out of existence would life, on a purely animal plane, really be worth living? And would there not soon be revolutions of all sorts?

The change which has been made in the amusement and culture of the small town by the development of the motion picture is not always realized. In the old days ninety per cent of the people knew nothing first hand about opera, about the great dramatic stars, the plays and musical productions of the day. The other ten per cent, more fortunate in worldly means, was able to journey to New York or Chicago, once or twice a year to acquire culture direct. But the modern talking picture has changed everything. The greatest operatic and musical stars, and the latest dramatic and musical productions and scenes of travel and current interest are available nightly in the small theatre of the average town and village and the price is no longer prohibitive to anyone.

This accounts for the widespread objection to the nuisance tax, which objection is not coming alone from those who are directly interested in the businesses which are produced. Of course the taxes must be raised in some manner, but there will be far less complaint finally if these are spread over a broader area and not confined to a few industries, and especially those in which the great mass of the people are interested. For in the long run, let it be remembered, the consumer has to pay the tax, and when he pays it directly through the box office and not extra pennies for a low-priced amusement ticket, or by affixing a special stamp to something which he is compelled to purchase, he is immediately reminded of the impression and the way he is helping to pay for it. Indirect taxes or taxes spread over a broad base are easier to pay and cause a minimum of complaint in the long run. Nobody likes to pay taxes but if one does it without knowing it, at least his morale is better and his hope for the future greater.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Our Eyes Must Be On The Pacific

The request of the State Department that the whole American fleet remain in the Pacific ought to bring us up to a sharp realization that the Asiatic situation is more serious than the general public realizes. As with so many things we forget about the Far East as soon as the spectacular struggle at Shanghai ended. Yet as has been said except for personal peril the Asiatic struggle is no different from what it was when the cannons were roaring and the machine guns were rattling along the Whangpoo River. In fact, behind the scenes it is worse, for Japan and Russia are more nearly in conflict. The withdrawal of Russian locomotives to within wholly Russian territory and the concentration of Russian locomotives to within wholly Russian territory and the concentration of Russian troops at Vladivostok is an ill omen for the future.

Most of the American fleet has been in the Pacific for a number of years. That is nothing new. This year, however, we sent through the Panama Canal the scouting fleet, which had for some time been based in the Atlantic, to participate in the Hawaiian maneuvers that had been planned two years ago. Now that fleet, apparently is not returned to the eastern coast.

The reason is not hard to understand. Due to our failure over a course of years to build a balanced naval organization, the Atlantic scouting fleet constitutes most of the available vessels which would be useful if the Far Eastern conflict flared again. We have not enough of these secondary ships for the two oceans. So we must strip the Atlantic in order to be able to carry on at all in the Pacific.

The incident shows that we had better be doing more serious thinking about the twin problem of the Far East and our fleet than we have yet done.—Milwaukee Journal.

What A Great Liberal Said

It is a rather noteworthy fact that practically all of those alleged statesmen who believe that the way to cure the depression is not to balance the budget and cut unnecessary expenditure, but to spend the government's money in all sorts of extravagant schemes—those statesmen are of the school that likes to call itself "liberal." This is not to say that all of the so-called liberal statesmen for extravagant financing of this kind, because many of them do not and stand for sound priciples of budget balancing; but it is true that those in congress and out, who believe in spending more money rather than practicing sound economy, like to call themselves "liberals." We could think of a term which would be much more appropriate.

But at any rate it might not be a bad idea to glance through the pages of history to see what that great liberal Thomas Jefferson thought and wrote in a crisis not unlike the present one, when extravagance ran us into difficulties. In 1820 Thomas Jefferson wrote:

"If there be anything amiss in the present state of our affairs, as formidable deficit lately unfolded to us indicates, I ascribe it to the inattention of congress to their duties, to the unwise dissipation and waste

(Continued on 8th page.)

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Old Settlers' Meeting at Elk Rapids next Wednesday.

It has been ascertained by the township board that the bridge smashup was due to the spelling on the bridge signs.

The roosters of the Belvedere side will not know Newman street when they get there. The four foot cut level, the street and sidewalks, but the new walks now going in are cement, and the abuting lots are being improved to correspond.

The weather promises to be favorable for Memorial Day observance tomorrow. There are fewer old veterans to participate than there were a year ago; there will probably be fewer still next year. The boys in blue of 61 are rapidly being mustered out, and but a few years will elapse before the sons of veterans or the soldiers of the Spanish-American war will only be left to fire the soldiers' salute over the graves of the dead ex-lives They richly earned the lasting gratitude of the republic.

In this issue is published an ordinance that means a sewer on Bridge Street, and that means, in turn, only means a preliminary to paving Bridge street. The Sentinel is an old settler but it is not an old fogy. It believes in progress only up to the limit of our ability. We believe that the paving of Bridge street within the next three years is premature and unnecessary. Traverse City of a population of 12,000, has not yet paved its business street. Petoskey, of 10,000, has not. It is easy for members of the council to impose a tax that comes from the pockets of others than themselves. Better hold back a little gentlemen.

Six mowing machines and several other articles of agricultural machinery went in Beaver Island yesterday which indicates progress on the Beautiful Island.

High School commencement events are near at hand and the class of '02, with its motto "Not who, but what" will soon close its high school career and start out in life. The commencement exercises will occur Thursday evening June 5th at the McKinley High School building. The class roster is as follows: Calla E. Wilbur, Gertrude D. Shapton, Dora B. Paukett, James B. Wilkinson, Wm. M. Washburn, Howard L. Franco, Grace E. Swarts, Bessie B. Smith, Ethel L. Smith, Herbert N. Heath, Arba Cameron, Galo E. Hines, Jeanette E. Reed, Lottie M. Cook, E. Maude Mayne, Karl F. Hines, Byron G. Smith, Clarence E. Ripley, Clara B. Blodgette, Clara B. Bellinger, Gail Cruickshank, Wm. C. Gagnon, Karl E. Miller. This is the largest class ever graduated from the Charlevoix High School. The commencement program will be of the usual order, endorsed by special musical numbers. Excellent listings, of the school board will present the diplomas. The banquet to be given by the Charlevoix High School Alumni Association to the class will occur at the Hotel Bartlett on Friday evening, June 6th, for which a most interesting post prandial program is in prospect.

Traverse City Record: The Traverse City High School Baseball team will be interested in the tidings from Charlevoix that the High School team of that city won a game of ball. Perhaps it would not have been so creditable if it had been a game with a school aggregation, but the fact that the Charlevoix boys defeated the big city team of Petoskey, the Dreadnaughts, affords cause for congratulation. At the same time it shows Traverse City something of what we are to run against. There is nothing in the official records to indicate the strength of the Petoskey team but it is said that they are a strong assortment of players. The Charlevoix players walloped them to the tune of 9 to 5, which is cause for congratulation by the Traverse City High School team, because they want the real thing when they meet Charlevoix.

Forty Years Ago

Thank heaven there will be one more railroad pay-day on this job.

Capt. Neil Gallagher's schooner Eveline Bates, loaded with cedar for Parker got ashore in Sturgeon Bay last week, and was taken to Milwaukee in a leaking condition.

O. S. Washburn and Harry Nicholls left Sunday on a tour among various waterworks plants to inspect pipe, pumps, etc., in the interest of the Charlevoix waterworks.

H. S. Harsha's new residence is nearly enclosed; W. E. Hampton's is nearing completion; O. D. Woods is assuming shape and the Masons are laying the foundation for Mr. Faulkner's.

A letter from President Moore, of the Chicago Resort Association, states that the Club House will be open July 1st. A special train with the Association party will leave Chicago on the afternoon of June 30th, arriving in Charlevoix on the morning of the 1st, in time for breakfast. Mr. Patty and wife will again have charge of the Club House.

The bell of the locomotive south of here was heard in the village this morning.

Memorial Day next Monday, should be observed by every citizen and his household. There is no more eloquent tribute of affectionate remembrance than the flowers of spring. Bring them to the graves of the nation's defenders, and testify your gratitude for their heroic deeds in the hour of our country's peril. In honoring the soldier, alive or dead, we honor ourselves. Bring flowers.

Monday evening S. M. See, wife and daughter Mamie, left on the steamer Puritan for Oregon. They will remain away this summer and possibly a year but that they will return and build another home is generally believed. A large number of our citizens were at the dock to give the parting hand-shake to their respected neighbors and friends. Every citizen of Charlevoix hopes to see them back again. Charlevoix cannot afford to lose Mr. See.

Fifty Years Ago

Jordan River is full of ties.

South Arm is to have a new bridge at once.

Mr. Nicholls is placing the boilers for his new mill engine.

J. A. Carlstein, M. D., of Chicago, will locate at Ironton.

Charlevoix is sorely in need of a flouring mill and soda fountain.

The propellers Grand Rapids and Paxton come and go with the regularity of a clock.

J. P. Woodbury and S. S. Cobb caught 780 trout during their visit here last week.

Mr. Cruickshank, our new lawyer, has arrived and will occupy quarters in the Lewis building.

F. W. Wilcox of Kalamazoo, has arrived at his resort cottage for the summer and fall.

M. W. Roberts has the contract for the erection of O. M. Allen's $1,100 cottage, and is here to begin the work.

The Common Council Committee have effected the purchase of the park property at the foot of Main street for the considering of $840. The President states that he will prosecute any person caught cutting evergreens or shrubery on the grounds.

Charlevoix is getting well supplied with telephone lines. The following persons now have lines between their residences and places of business: John Nicholls, T. D. Smith, W. A. Smith, M. J. Stockman and J. Milo Eaton, the latter gentleman having one also between his office and the livery stable.

Mr. Wheeler took possession of the Fountain City House last week, and Mr. Cooper Tuesday moved to Ingleside, recently purchased from Crone and Dorman while Mr. Dorman and family have taken up temporary domicile at the old Morgan place on State street. Messrs. Crone and Dorman will build again as soon as a site can be secured.

Things are booming on the Upright and Hurlbut's addition. The following parties have bought lots and will all build: J. M. Clark, J. A. Jordan, Lorenzo Cook (three lots) Mrs. Stephen Miller, James Skinner, Hiram Wood, Mrs. Martilo Ayres, H. C. Cooper, Peter McFarland, Gen. Maddox, Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Linn, Wm. Evans, Chas. Larow and others. Many of these have homes commenced and some of them are already residing in completed residences. On the corner of Antrim and Grant streets a lot has been donated to the Baptists, who are to erect a $3,000 church building thereon within 18 months. The Congregationalists are to select a site for a building soon.

Sixty Years Ago

A pigeon-hunter with his nets, arrived here by propeller Empire State.

Every boat landing here brings a number of emigrants to the Pine Lake region. A number of good teams have been brought in lately.

On Monday the postoffice was removed to the premises of the publisher of this paper. A commodious addition to our office for its accommodation is just completed. We enter upon our new official duties as postmaster hoping to please the public and prove ourself worthy of the confidence of the government. While we shall aim to discharge our official duties faithfully, such duties will not in any way conflict with our other official or editorial duties—as it is our intention to employ the necessary assistance to promptly and to the best of our ability discharge our duties in the several relations to the public.

GOLF ALMOST LURES SCREEN ACTOR AWAY

Most of the leading names in the rosters of stage and screen today are those of one-time youngsters who early decided to become players, and stuck with the notion instead of abandoning it for some other occupation. And Thomas Meighan himself was one of these. Born and educated in Pittsburgh, where his father owned a foundry supply company, the boy was parentally destined for a medical career, but had much more curiously over the anatomy and diseases of perfect strangers.

During his college days at St. Mary's he found an outlet for his innate dramatic yearnings in student plays, and this confirmed his own belief in his theatrical future, but his father was dubious. Finally and with much apprehension the older man allowed him to become a "super" in a stock company then playing in the city—hoping, probably, that a taste of the real thing would discourage the youngster.

Far from discouraging him, however, Meighan decided that this was the life, and when the company broke up, accompanied the rest of the cast to New York. There his unusual talents soon brought him to the front and in a surprisingly short time he was a leading man for some of the foremost stars of the time. Three years with David Warfield preceded a personal triumph in "The Miracle Man."

His performance in this and subsequent films made him the greatest drawing personality of the screen, and his services were in constant demand. This, however, had one bad effect — it interfered seriously with his golf, which ran a close second to pictures in the actor's affections. Accordingly, in 1929 he finished the final scene in "The Racket," picked up his hat and strolled off the set, waving good bye to all concerned and announced that he was through with pictures forever and would thenceforth devote his life to pursuing Old Man Par over hill and dale.

For two years Meighan stuck to his resolution; the atmosphere around almost any country club you could mention was filled with little white balls, each soaring sweetly from the Meighan wrists and irons, and the ex-actor actually lived in golf attire. But just as a small boy, given the opportunity, can become fed up with mince pie, so Meighan began to entertain an insidious wondering as to how it would feel to face a camera again, especially now that the screen had learned to speak.

His latest vehicle is "Cheaters At Play," which comes to the screen of the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. The story is one of adventure and romance aboard an ocean liner, and with a cast that includes Charlotte Greenwood, Barbara Weeks, William Bakewell and other celebrities, is said to be one of the most exciting pictures of the season.

Editorial Comment

(Continued from fourth page.)

of the public contributions. They seemed, some little while ago, to be at loss for objects whereupon to throw away the apparently fathomless funds of the treasury."

This ought to make it plain even to the densest student of history that the father of socialism in America did not approve of extravagant throwing away of the government's money after the method now being talked of in some of our congressional circles.

The way to cure a deficit is not to waste money on new and untried schemes for curing the depression, but by practicing governmental economy, in balancing the budget through taxes made as little burdensome as possible to the individual and the business interests of the country. Uncle Sam's credit is good but it is not limitless, and talk of borrowing great sums to meet deficits and proposed wild expenditures will not do the aforementioned credit any good. The best way to help America is to restore business confidence and this can be done by a wise and sane balancing of the budget.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Appointment of Administrator.

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix on said County, on the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Roegner, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of James Divis, Deceased.

Ernest Kibbe, a creditor, having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to himself or to some other suitable person,

It is Ordered, That the 27th day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition,

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Roegner,
Judge of Probate

213

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale or Mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11 day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Roegner, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Maybelle M. Russell, Deceased.

Rollie L. Lewis, Administrator of said Estate, having filed in said court his petition, praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described, Seven (7) in Block A of Blackmand's Addition to the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, Michigan.

It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of June A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted.

It is Further Ordered, That publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Roegner,
Judge of Probate

213

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Erwan A. Roegner, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William John Birns, Deceased.

James H. Gallagher, administrator of said estate having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Erwan A. Roegner,
Judge of Probate

213

GLENN S. SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day & Phone Night 724
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Rothchimer Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
316 Bridge Street
Hours—9:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00 Evenings by Appointment

LISLE SHANAHAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

QUALITY MERCHANDISE
—AT—
REASONABLE PRICES
STALEY HARDWARE CO.
PHONE 66 323 BRIDGE STREET

The SENTINEL For PRINTING

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Tell them of the
GREAT FISHING IN MICHIGAN

TELL out-of-state relatives and friends that Michigan affords them unequalled facilities for the enjoyment of their favorite sports, whatever they may be . . . camping, fishing, boating, golf, summer play of any kind.

The millions of dollars spent each year by Michigan's thousand of visitors add to the prosperity of the state. Let us also spend our vacations in Michigan this year, thereby contributing still further to its prosperity.

And wherever you go, dispel worry by telephoning home and office frequently. Call friends to tell them when you will arrive. Telephone ahead for hotel accommodations. Long Distance rates are low.

PAGE of WORLD'S BEST COMICS

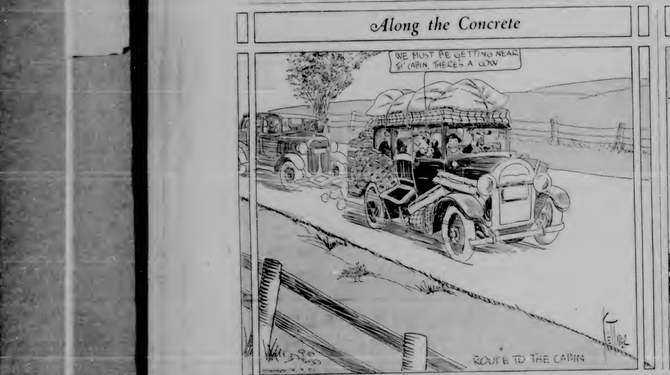
Lighter Side of Life as Depicted by Famous Cartoonists and Humorists

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By Ted O'Loughlin

Wasted Effort

Along the Concrete



Trapped

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

Do They Have Phones in Both Places

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks

WASHINGTON'S startlest report on French designs covered about ten thousand words. It was written by him in two days, speedily printed and sent across the waters to cause the King and members of the British Parliament. With modest pride in the success of his first important mission, and meditating upon the full import of his hazardous journey, the young man, now approaching the age of twenty-two, mounted his horse and rode away to Mount Vernon. So,

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get an ounce of pure powdered Mercolized Wax at any drug store, bathe your face with it as directed, and in a few days the aged, faded skin disappears entirely. Then your fresh, young complexion will be beautiful indeed. Full directions in every package.

Fine Your Present Work with Added Training, Prepare with Us for a Better Future. A Better Position and Increased Salary. Send for Free Booklet and Full Information. Mail Coupon Today.

PREPARE FOR A BETTER FUTURE

A Better Position and Increased Salary Is Waiting for Those Who Are Prepared. Send for Free Booklet and Full Information. Mail Coupon Today.

MILLER SYSTEM
215 E. 3rd St., Los Angeles, Calif.
MAIL FOR COUPON

Name .....
Address .....
Town ..... State .....

No Need for an Efficiency Expert

Candle-Blowing Test

A cynic-chewing test for tuberculosis is filling Turkish school children and their parents with a flurry of fear. Health inspectors line up all the children in a class at an equal distance from a lighted candle which they in turn try to blow out. Those whose puffs are successful are considered safe as to tuberculosis; those who fail to extinguish the flames are catalogued as tuberculous suspects, and their parents are warned.

Substitute

Brown—They have even speeded up speed these days.

Blank—I know a fellow who was considered pretty fast a few years ago, and wouldn't be asked inside a good wine establishment.

CHILD need REGULATING?

CASTORIA WILL DO IT!

When your child needs regulating, remember this: the organs of babies and children are delicate. Little bowels must be gently aided—never forced. That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's delicate, sensitive systems. Sweet, tasteless drugs, so harmless you can safely give it to your infants for every ailment. Yet it is so equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's own remedy. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Chas. H. Fletcher
CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Tablet for the Tardy

A novel first aid to social chilliness is reported from the city of Hannover, Germany, where a tablet has been set up at the junction of eight streets as the German phrase goes. The tablet is divided into segments, for walking. If one of two parties to an appointment is late the two may settle themselves in one of the wrongful directions for finding each other in the segment of the compass. The innovation is said to have sought out to such an extent that the tablet is covered with a full quota of messages every day.

Relieve a Cough In One Day—

Any cough may cause serious trouble if neglected—get relief today. Prompt use of

B. & M.
PENETRATING GERMICIDE

Usually gives relief immediately

Ask your druggist for the $1.25 size or order direct, giving his name.

F. E. ROLLINS CO. 32 Kenney St. Dover, N. H.

Wasted Effort

Brown—Have you ever noticed how much time you waste in a day?

Blank—Yes, I've noticed it. Why?

Brown—Because I'm going to sell you a watch.

Dizzy/NR
Start through bowel action when you feel dizzy, headachy, bilious. Take NATURE'S REMEDY—NR Tablets. Mild, safe, purely vegetable, and far better than ordinary laxatives. Keep you feeling fine.
The All-Vegetable Laxative.
TUMS
For acid indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach. The candy mint-coated antacid.

A Word for Himself

Butts—Jack don't take "No" for an answer. What shall I do?

Hutt—Put "Yes" to some other fellow.

Thanks will you gratefully say in a forty word girl to the cemetery sexton, too.

People may live longer in this era, partially because they have a greater variety of food.

Peterman's Ant Powder is sure death to ants. Sprinkle it where the food, window sills, shelves, etc. Effective 24 hours a day. Cheap. Safe. Guaranteed. More than 1,000,000 users and best year. At your druggist's.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD

KILLS ANTS

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 21-1932.

"Men on Horseback"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE other day Charles (Pathfinder Charles) Miller rolled his brown mare down the streets of Los Angeles, having completed a modern "pony express" ride from New York City. To Los Angeles to carry messages of greeting from residents on the Atlantic coast to those on the Pacific.

2. Leo Glanmarrie upon his return to Los Angeles, after riding clear across the United States and back again, a trip which with many "detours" brought his total mileage up to 9,150 miles.

3. "The Pony Expressed," a statue by Mahonri Young.

4. Boyd Jones, fifteen-year-old boy from Amarillo, Texas, on his horse "Molly" which he rode from Texas to call on President Hoover at the White House. His trip to the National Capital took 76 days.

5. Maj. James Unger of Oshkosh, Wis., shown upon his arrival in Atlanta, Ga., during a long journey on horseback which began on Thanksgiving day last year. He plans to visit every state capital in the United States and return to Oshkosh by Thanksgiving day, this year. The purpose of the trip is to test the endurance of his mount and if he is successful in completing the 20,000-mile journey he will receive a prize of $25,000 offered by W. J. Umstead of Kewaunee, Wis., a noted Eastern race horse owner and breeder.

6. Senor Alma Falls Tachiffely, an Argentine school teacher, shown at Washington, D. C., after completing his 10,000 mile ride from Buenos Aires.

Miller started from the Pathfinder statue in the Bronx-Ocean ride, the distance was 2,906 miles; actual mileage, 3,000. Miller started in 1924 with only 7 relays.

On July 27, 1860, officers of the Naval Army Corps of the Germans were made a rule of 100 miles, 1867 miles in 11 hours.

The Austrian Lieutenant Maximilian, with two comrades, made a ride from Agram to Vienna, 405 km. (240-6 miles) in 30½ hours. This was an honor that fast back to stand up. It announced that they had been sold at auction as entirely disabled. By paying grit training and finally feeding them up the end they brought the horses through in good condition. Time average including stops, was 10.13 km. (6 miles) per hour.

Major Henry Rossett is an active in finding 1,000 miles on end periods of long distance riding in the American army.

Leon N. Asbury in 1901 rode his 5 days in 14 hours from Santa Fe to Independence, Mo. He rode 850 miles and used 7 horses.

Thomas Hill in 1902, carrying dispatches for General Kearney, rode from Santa Fe to Fort Leavenworth 857 miles. In a little less than 11 days, using 9 horses. Most of his fresh horses were caught from bands of horses belonging to the Indians.

John Keeler in 1867 rode from Fort Dodge to Fort Leavenworth 309 degrees, more than 1,000 miles, in 17 days, using only 4 horses.

In 1847 Col. John Fremont with two companions rode from Los Angeles to Monterey. Each man had three horses and changed every two hours. The first day they rode 125 miles between daybreak and nightfall; on the second day 135 miles between daybreak and nine at night; on the third day 50 miles between eleven o'clock and sunset; and on the fourth day they completed the journey, riding 35 miles, at three in the afternoon.

In June 1848, a man named Morris rode from Sapello to Fort Garland, Colo., a little less than 100 miles, between 3 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Two days later the same horse, a coal-black bronco, was ridden more than 80 miles.

After the establishment of the "Pony Express" line before the Civil war many notable rides were made. One, 200 miles and 200 men were engaged in the work, 40 of them being riders. The letter were scanned mainly on account of its remoteness to the saddle, because they had been tested and were able to stand the fatigue of a gallop extending over 100 miles.

At that time news was carried from ocean to ocean in less than 10 days. The last message of President Buchanan in 1860 was brought into San Francisco in 5 days and 5 hours, while President Lincoln's first address reached there in 7 days and 14 hours. Of course, these long distance runs were with changes of both horses and riders.

Probably the most notable ride of any single rider was that of Buffalo Bill (Col. W. F. Cody) who on one occasion, finding that the rider who was to relieve him had been killed by the Indians, rode 384 miles in 24 hours, changing horses 26 times. This was an average of 16 miles an hour, day and night. Bob Haslam made one ride of 204 miles.

James Moore, a frontiersman, in the 60s rode 290 miles in 22 hours.

In 1923 the Pony Express celebration committee undertook to reproduce the old pony express run, riding from St. Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco. The total distance was 2,466 miles, which was covered in 10½ hours nearly two days better than the best old express record. Actual California there were 36 relays, a distance of 299 miles, which was covered in 13 hours and 45 minutes, an average speed of 18.85 miles per hour.

(C by Western Newspaper Union.)

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lelia Hutterstein

No. 1.

The Approach-Forcing Principle

THE first rule of the Approach principle is:

"Whenever a hand contains a long, strong suit (as it even a four-card honor) no opening bid in that suit and not at no trumps should be preferred."

It is on this rule that the whole principle of the approach method rests. For by these bid necessary suits, a partnership has room for the full exchange of information as often necessary before they can attempt the best bid for their 26 cards. This bid, indeed, preference which is given on original and bids including minor suits, four-card suits, and weak five-card suits, provides another starting these out with opening no trump bids.

The approach principle of opening a suit bid instead of a no trump applies even though the hand contains no singleton or unguarded ace.

Most hands with sufficient strength for an original bid offer a choice between a suit and a no trump. In many cases if a no trump is opened the bidding runs so high that it is useless for partners to suggest a possible major suit which might have resulted in game where the no trump would fail.

The following hand illustrates one of the thousands where a point which could have been missed with modern scientific bidding is thrown away by the old fashioned no trump bidder who has never been accused of the naive of approach methods.

	NORTH
	♠ A 10
	♥ K J 9 7
	♦ A J 3 2
	♣ 6 5 3
WEST		EAST
♠ K 8 6		♠ 7 4 3
♥ 5 4 3 2		♥ Q 10 6
♦ K J 10 9 2		♦ 8 6 5
♣ K 2		♣ 10 9 8
	SOUTH
	♠ K Q 9 5
	♥ K 8
	♦ Q 7 4
	♣ A Q J 5 7

If South, the dealer, opens with a no trump, he will end with that contract for game, as North, having to take out with normally either a no trump. In this case West will lead his fourth best diamond and before South can gain the lead he will be set.

But what a difference if the approach principle is followed with an opening bid of one spade.

The approach method has simply removed the no trump from its former dominant position in opening bids where it was, so to speak, "feeling the traffic." But all the same time the system has greatly enlarged the range of no trump takeouts, even providing them to include hands containing strong support for partner's major and still better information for no trumps.

The success of the approach principle is predicated on the fact that the partner of the original bidder if the best player presses is forced to keep the bidding open unless his hand is positively a "dud." Leading a pass or a suit takeout for the original declarations, the partner makes a negative no trump bid. The negative no trump is clearly understood to be a sort of confirmed response, not a strength showing bid.

In the approach-forcing system, all opening suit bids of one are unlimited in their bids. That is, as we have said, after an original suit bid of one is opened, if the next player passes, the partner is compelled to bid unless the hand is practically penniless. But the system also includes three elements forcing bids which compel the partner to keep the contract open until a game is reached even though he holds a poor hand.

The three absolute forcing bids are: FIRST—THE FORCING TWO-BID. Any opening two-bid in a suit. (Not to be confused.)

Second—THE FORCING TAKE OUT. Any jump bid to a new suit by either partner, providing one of them previously opened the bidding.

Third—THE FORCING INVITATIONAL CALL. A bid of an opponent's suit.

(C, 1931, by Lelia Hutterstein.)

Harvest Moon

During the months of March its moon rises one hour and twenty minutes later each succeeding evening but during the autumnal equinox it rises by the east at nearly the same time after sunset for four or five successive evenings, and this phenomenon has been known for many decades as the Harvest moon.

In northern Europe and Canada it is much more noticeable than in the United States where for centuries it has been regarded as a lantern built in the sky to aid the thrifty husband men to harvest his crops.

Doggerel Verses Are Ancient

The idea of inventing doggerel verses to sing with tunes is said to have had its beginning in Germany. Some of these rhymes are said to be very ancient. The verses were put combined to their own airs but were sometimes adapted to those of their traditional enemies, the French. In England similar rhymes, some of them nonsensical, are invented for some of the rails. This practice has also been adopted in the United States army.

New Nut

The latest thing in the nut line is the hican—a cross between a pecan and hickory nut. It is shaped like a hickory nut but has a thin shell. The surveyman who developed it had been engaged in developing hardy varieties of nuts for 15 years.

Spots Before the Eyes

There was a time when, if a man saw spots before his eyes, he blamed his liver. Nowadays he knows they're just tentacles floating past.—Columbus (Ohio) State Journal.

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it unsues your comfort. Five minutes after you take that aid to stress and work, and down goes tablet and block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many unpleasantnesses unpredictable. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the safe and sane of uses performed in the proper direction. Prove a granulating tooth to those throats of pain which seem almost to bend the bones. Bayer Aspirin deserves with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any lingering, insidious pain.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

"Ad" Got Results

A Newport (Kentucky) woman found life dreary after he had been vigorously acquainted from his wife. He meant no more advertisement in a paper. "Young man wishes to meet widow with no objections to a child." He got only one reply. He wrote several letters to his matrimonial correspondent.

Then had to quit for a lot of things and depended on the last of an ad to get results.

A Nurse's Secret

Nurses say that many people would never see the inside of a hospital if they took care of their "nerves."

When they feel wiggly-jiggly, nurses take Fellows' Syrup because they have seen doctors all over the world prescribe this wonderful tonic for "nervous" patients. They have seen the Science-results in increased pep, improved vitality and "interest in life."

Try it yourself. Ask your druggist for genuine Fellows' Syrup today.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

PAPERS KNOWN AS X Y Z DISPATCHES

In 1776 strained relations existed between the French Crown and the young French republic. This found its counterpart in the change of diplomatic envoys to France, in effect an understanding. The government of France—the Directory—was composed of five heads, and the communications were given to understand that the United States could have the friendship of France only upon terms which assumed as an international privilege the right to make war upon its citizens as the result of affronts the French government saw fit to offer the citizens of the United States.

The American commissioners sent to France to negotiate a treaty found that their overtures were rejected and that their despatches were intercepted. Finally, the French Foreign Minister, Talleyrand, sent three agents to Adams after making these conditions: A loan of $10,000,000 and a personal sum were to be paid to the French government. Adams refused, and the commissioners were ordered to leave France. Some unofficial, indeed, dis-

Get a Soft, Clear Skin

Stop your blotches, pimples, blackheads by your complexion. Use this famous sulphur soap and see what a clear skin it will help you have.

GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP

Contains 25% sulphur

SORES AND ULCERS. My Treatment Works for Pain Old Sores Heal. Write for Free Booklet.

EPILEPTICS

Maybe Mislaid

Farmer—Some of my cows are missing. Have you seen them?

Policeman—What do they look like?

Farmer—Why, they look like cows.

Policeman—I'll keep my eyes open for them.

Rinso

THE GRANULATED HARD-WATER SOAP

for thick, lively, creamy, long-lasting suds

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

The advertisements you find in your newspaper bring you important news. News in regard to quality and prices. Just as the "ads" bring you news on how to buy advantageously . . . so do the "ads" offer the merchant the opportunity of increasing his sales at small expense.

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15.
Junior Church, 6:00.
Young People's Service, 7:00.
Mid-week Service, Thurs. 7:00.

Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:45
Sunday School, 11:30
Young People's Service, 5:00.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30
Bible School, 11:30
B. Y. P. U. 6:00.
Evening Worship, 7 p. m.

There will be no evening service the week on account of the High School Baccalaureate Service at the gymnasium.

The Grand Traverse Baptist Association meets with the Petoskey church next Wednesday and Thursday. Our Mens' class here are planning to attend.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hord, Pastor.

May 29—Morning Memorial Service. The various patriotic orders have announced their attention to be present, and a special musical program is being formulated for the occasion, under the direction of Mrs. Lemmon.

Evening—The pastor preaches the Baccalaureate sermon for the High School, at eight o'clock, in the gymnasium. Several topic: "The Wisest Fool in History."

The Missionary Society is to meet next Wednesday with Mrs. Winder at Hotel Charlevoix.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Subject: "Soul and Body."
Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

FOR RENT—Nice room furnished modern, all conveniences. Reasonable. Inquire 102 E. Lenglen. 41f

If troubled with headache dizziness, nervousness or any other symptom of eye strain, consult Dr. Leahy the optometrist here Wednesday, June first. 41f

PROPER RESPECT DUE TO OUR FLAG, "OLD GLORY"

Decoration Day will soon be along and with it the usual display of the flag and playing of our national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner," and—and to think—that the usual apathy of a certain per centage of the public towards the display of the flag and the singing of these words, what the flag means to them, but there are still quite a considerable number of men and women to whom the flag of our country is nothing more than a bit of colored clothing. Perhaps these same people sometimes think of their own American citizens.

In the majority of cases it is a matter of habit that prohibits paying the flag etiquette. A few years ago a story in Iowa was found washing his car with the flag. When questioned about his fine piece of gross carelessness he said—"Why, it is nothing but an old rag." After he had spent six months in jail for the offense, he decided that the flag was much more than an old dirty rag. At the most, he met any something about cleaning of old, worn or discolored flag. They should be stripped as in a ritual and privately burned. A flag is loaned to get worn and soiled as the flag flies above the flag to display it when it is obviously unsightly, unless it has some particular significance. It is a matter of local loyal patriotic America as citizens to show proper respect for the flag at all times, and teach others who may not through ignorance, to do the same. When the flag is carried by in a parade, a man should remove his hat and if he is smoking, his cigar, cigar or pipe, and turn facing the flag. He should refrain from conversation until the flag has passed or how. A foreign soldier may stand at salute or remove his hat, but a man in uniform would of course stand at salute. Ladies are only asked to stand at attention. They may, if they wish, place the right hand over the left breast. The same rule should prevail during the playing or singing of the national anthem. If seated, all should rise and stand at attention until the music ceases. This should apply to the playing or singing of the anthem over the radio or phonograph. Do not be afraid to stand up and show that you are a loyal American citizen.

Yes, if you can, in visualize the conditions under which Francis Scott Key wrote the song during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, during the war of 1812. We remember what a friend of emotion swept over us when we saw in a glass case in Washington, this same old flag that was inspired Key to write his immortal song. We like to visualize in our small way, the scene when Washington and some of his staff were going

Betsy Ross directions for making the first Star Spangled Banner. Washington's plan was to have the top and bottom stripes white, but Betsy Ross, with her quick women's intuition, showed that the top and bottom stripes should be red, because they would not stain so readily. The old Betsy Ross cottage still stands in the heart of the business district of Philadelphia, surrounded by towering office buildings, a shrine for all loyal Americans to visit. We like to visit the flag section in the capitol building at Lansing and see the old flags which have inspired and led Michigan soldiers through the Civil War, the Spanish American War, and the World War. These flags are all there, hermetically sealed in glass cases, for future generations to revere. Perhaps the writer has a bit more regard for the flag than the average person because, during the Spanish American War, he acted as color sergeant for a number of months in a Michigan regiment.

The flag is more than a colored bit of bunting mounted on a staff. It is the symbol of a great country. It is the personification of that country. Think of the thousands of men who have given their lives that our flag might not trail in the dust in dishonor, and may each one of us make a solemn vow never to treat it with anything but the respect and honor due it. It is the most beautiful combination of color and design of any national emblem. It is a tradition in the army never to let the flag touch the ground let us do the same with our individual flags. It is a beautiful and inspiring sight at any army post to watch the ceremony of lowering the flag at sundown. The garrison is drawn up in formation, the men standing at "parade rest." The three inch gun near the base of the flagpole is fired. As its reverberations die away, the band starts to play "The Star Spangled Banner." The flag is slowly lowered from the mast, being timed to reach the arms of the soldier at the bottom just as the music ceases. It is carefully folded, never touching the ground, and the ceremony is over. Soldiers who are not in formation stand at salute until the last strain of the music is over. It is a fitting ceremony and one that will leave an impression on every beholder.

F. H. WILKINSON,
American Legion Officer, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion.

School News

When School is Out

Mrs. Bush will remain in Charlevoix while Mr. Bush attends the University of Michigan.

Miss French will attend the Western State Teachers College at Kalamazoo this summer.

Mrs. Dirk is thinking of attending the Western State Teachers College, at Kalamazoo, this summer.

Miss Manson is expecting to spend her vacation in the West, California, Yellowstone National Park and many other interesting places throughout that section of the country.

Miss Atkinson had been asked to act as counsellor at Eastern Music Camp in Maine but it is not known as yet whether she will accept or not. This camp is similar to Interlochen, but has bigger plans on working for a company in southern Michigan.

Miss Bodfish is going to her home in Breckenridge for a short time.

Miss Dittmer is going home for a while then she is going to summer school at Mt. Pleasant.

Miss Little is going to remain at her home in Frankfort for the summer.

Miss Fitch will remain in Charlevoix at her home on Michigan avenue.

Miss Fargo is going to resort here this summer in the cool atmosphere of Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Miss Belding will remain in Charlevoix with her parents.

Miss Danef is undecided.

Two of the Junior High Teaching Staff will remain in the vicinity of Charlevoix to spend their summer vacations for 1932. Mr. Bingham will be Head Councillor at Camp Charlevoix, a position which he has held previous summers. Mr. Rider, the Band Director will have the position of Head Clerk at the Belvedere Hotel and will keep up his band work. Miss Milner will go to Chicago to continue her studies at the University of Chicago.

In the Senior High School we find that Mr. North, Mr. Ripke, and Mr. Coleman will remain in Charlevoix and Mrs. Logan expects to spend part of her summer here.

Miss Hutton was very hard to interview! No information could be obtained.

Mrs. Dowd will be in Chicago at Northwestern University.

Miss Anderson, after spending a short time at her home in Negaunee will attend summer school at White Water, Wisconsin.

Miss Ferreira is uncertain where she will be.

J-Hop

The J-Hop has come and gone! For weeks before everyone was eagerly anticipating this crowning event of the school year and for weeks to come all will be dreaming of it.

A scene of great beauty greeted the eyes of the guests. The Casino had been transformed into an old fashioned garden, with a rustic well at one end. Gayly colored flowers bloomed everywhere, under shaded lights, and the dainty gowns which the girls had taken such care in selecting made the picture complete.

Miss Anderson and the committees from the Junior Class should be congratulated for the great success of the '32 Hop.

Eighth Grade Commencement

The County eighth grade commencement is to be held at Charlevoix in the gymnasium, on the evening of Friday, June 3rd. The Charlevoix Girl's Glee Club and the Band will furnish the music. The speech will be given by Supt. Superintendent Bush. This is the first 8th grade county commencement which has ever been held in this county.

Thursday, May 26, Superintendent Bush will deliver the commencement address at Boyne Falls.

This week two speakers are to address the Charlevoix High School and Junior High. One, on Tuesday, May 24, at 3:15 o'clock, R. W. Clark of Alma College. This had been arranged by Miss Engel, acting for Dr. Harvey Y. M. C. A. Secretary. The other is Corporal Sullivan of the Michigan State Police, Grand Haven, Michigan, who will speak in the schools on Thursday, May 26. His subject is "Traffic."

On the evening of Monday, May 30 the combined bands of Charlevoix, Petoskey and Boyne City will give a concert of the year in the gymnasium.

The program for Decoration Day this year is under the auspices of the Legion. The parade is to start at 9:00 o'clock at the corner of Bridge and Park and proceed directly to the cemetery where the band will play and the school children will sing.

Examinations (semester) begin Tuesday, May 31. The schedule is the same for both Senior and Junior High.

Junior High Achievement Day

The Junior High Achievement Day held on the afternoon of May 18th, attracted a very appreciative audience. The program presented displayed not only splendid talent but also showed that our educational system is successfully endeavoring to develop qualities of leadership and individual responsibility in our growing citizens.

Eighth Grade Party

In the final event of the Junior High School social season, the eighth grade met in the gymnasium for an evening of games and fun.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cakes and lemonade served by Western State Teachers College, although most summers she goes to

Local News

The Hotel Bartlett, closed during the winter months, reopened early this week under the same management as in previous years.

Mr. Eli Weston, for many years in charge of the docks at Traverse City, is a Charlevoix business visitor today.

Miss A. F. Young of Boyne City is spending a few days here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfeifer.

Mr. Henry O'Brien, a lifelong resident of Mackinac Island is spending a few days with Charlevoix friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Wentz of Alpena were guests of the latter's brother, Phils Campbell, last Monday.

Vincent S. Madison for the past eight months a student at Columbia University, New York City, returned home Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McSachs were more or less out about the face and head last Monday when a car in which they were riding blew out a tire and swung causing the driver to lose control of the machine which was finally brought to a halt. Other occupants of the car escaped injury.

Recreation Place, owned and operated by Dana E. Nelson, has a mounted buck, a nice specimen, on display in the show window, which attracts the attention of passersby and of unusual interest to those frequenting the big game hunting grounds in the hunting source.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wilson of Chicago arrived here Monday and are at their summer home on the grounds of the Belvedere Club for the season.

Mr. F. J. Fessenden and son William Bakewell are recently camping and fishing in the country beyond the Straits. They returned home Sunday with their trip, outing and fishing excursion.

Nashan Barrie returned to Flint well Wednesday following a visit here of four or five days. Mrs. Barrie remained here for the summer and will occupy the Burns residence on Dixon avenue.

Mr. Leonard Bailey, a member of the firm of Bailey Brothers, of Bellmore, accompanied by Reed Genair, are a business visitor here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Peters, residents of St. Petersburg, Florida, during the winter season, returned to their Clinton Street home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin C. Sears who have control and manage the Rogous Park hotel, returned from Ann Arbor last week and immediately thereafter left for Ramona Park to arrange for opening the hotel with the beginning of the vacation period, which by the way is a job of no small proportions and will require a maximum amount of work in a minimum of time to adequately accomplish, however, Mr. and Mrs. Sears will be equal to the emergency demanded and the hotel will be ready and opened as early as occasion requires.

The Missionary Society of the M. E. Church will meet with Mrs. G. J. Woodin Wednesday, June 1 at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. Lawrence Angeman of Bay City was a visitor in Charlevoix Tuesday.

Mr. Don Ramsdell of Bay City made one of his frequent visits to Charlevoix early this week.

Supervisor W. J. Pearson of Boyne Falls was transacting business at the court house Wednesday.

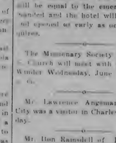
Mr. and Mrs. George W. Weaver, after an absence of two months returned home a few days ago.

Mason Rose Jr., of Sarasota, Florida, arrived here a few days ago and will spend the summer months with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rose.

Four Charlevoix students, Buscher Straw, Doris Trimble, Margery Bugge and Frances Rost went to Big Rapids early this week where they will attend summer school for the ensuing term.

Hallett's Hotel opens Friday (tomorrow) for the 1932 vacation season and as in past years, the first of Charlevoix summer hotels to receive guests. Hallets Inn opens a little later in the season, as early as occasion requires, announcement of which will be made in the near future.

Attorney J. R. Harris of Boyne City was here on professional business Monday.



Through its helpfulness to the people, the Charlevoix State Savings Bank occupies a unique position in the development of the community.

We endeavor to maintain at all times a high standard of efficiency and since real service is one way of making friends, you will find here the kind we will please you.

The following stockholders are interested in and back of the financial institution: John Burns, Mary A. Campbell, Mrs. P. E. Dow, A. D. Crimmins, Archie Livingston, Est. of Edward C. Waller, Martin Mills, Mrs. Martha Swinton, W. S. Richardson, Carrie E. Livingston, H. A. Craig, A. I. Cramer, G. W. Richardson, M. A. Levinson.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank
Capital $25,000.00 1905—1932 Surplus $25,000.00
ROLL OF HONOR BANK
Under State Supervision
OFFICERS—W. S. Richardson, Pres.; A. D. Crimmins, Vice Pres.; H. A. Craig, Vice Pres.; A. L. Livingston, Cashier; G. W. Richardson, Asst. Cashier.

THIS BANK
was established in 1884 and has served this community continuously since that date.

1884 — The Oldest Bank in Charlevoix County — 1932

Charlevoix County Bank
"MICHIGAN'S LARGEST UNINCORPORATED BANK"
AFFILIATED WITH THIS INSTITUTION
Albert F. Bridge Robert Bridge L. S. Ree John J. Boen
Ernest J. Hilber Joseph M. Foster Meyer A. Levinson

New Palace Theatre
This theatre now equipped with latest RCA Photophone. Best sound in Northern Michigan.
ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK
Show Begins 7:15. Continuous to 11 p. m.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MAY 28, 29
"MIRACLE MAN"
With Sylvia Sidney, Chester Morris, Irving Pichel, John Wray, Robert Coogan, Hobart Bosworth.

She was his—body and soul, when all she knew of love was what he taught her! But a new kind of love dawns for her—and he's still the man she wants to share it! Can he, will he make good?

Added Attractions—Two Cartoons.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 2
"Cheaters At Play"
With Thomas Meighan, Charlotte Greenwood, William Bakewell, Barbara Weeks, Linda Watkins, James Kirkwood.

Their million dollar robbery became a million dollar romance!

It starts with thrills! It Builds to thrills! It ends in Thrills!

Added Attractions—Two Educational Shorts.

COMING — "MOUTHPIECE."

EZ THINGS GO—

QUICK CUKE'S FER SICH THINGS EZ TAKIFF AN' NATIONAL BANKRUPSY REMINDS ME UV WILL TUCKER'S CUPE FER BALDNESS. WILL SEZ, IT'S ALL RIGHT MOST UV THE TIME BUT IT'S MIGHTY APT TO SLIPE OVER ONE EAR.

CAPT. BILL, ONE UV THE STANDING BOYS

WANTED—Hay, Grain, Potatoes, Apples. Carloads only. Pay highest market prices. The Hamilton Co., New Castle, Pa. 51tfc

PLANTS FOR SALE—Superior tomato, cauliflower, peppers, cabbage, and other varieties at my residence John M. Ackert, 933 State St. 38tfc

FOR SALE—Modern residence, 201 Allen, with new bathroom, 3 bedrooms, excellent condition, partly furnished. Large trees, porches and grounds. Close to Belvedere. Box 262, Olivet, Mich. 2, 41t

For Sale—
Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

PETOSKEY RUG CO.
We manufacture new rugs and make a specialty of cleaning, sewing, and sizing old rugs. in fact all type of rug work is our business. Phone 170 Petoskey Exchange.
Petoskey Rug Co.,
S. T. Gokey, Prop.

Troy Laundry
PHONE 84
OPENS WEDNESDAY JUNE 1ST
PROMPT SERVICE
BEST QUALITY OF WORK
PRICES REDUCED
EMORY GIMBLE, MANAGER

"The Valley Of Ghosts"
A MYSTERY PLAY IN THREE ACTS
GIVEN AT THE SAINT JAMES HALL
ST. JAMES, MICH.
JUNE 5TH, 1932
BOAT LEAVES CHARLEVOIX AT 12 NOON
JUNE 5TH, 1932

EZ THINGS GO—

WHILE I AIN'T NEVER BEEN ONE TO COMPLAIN UV THE ON'ARD MARCH UV PROGRESS IT DOES LOOK LIKE THESE HIDERNISTIC THICK BOTTLES FER PAPERS IS GOING A STEP TOO FER.

CAPT. BILL, ONE UV THE STANDING BOYS

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1932 Number 6

LEGION SPONSORS GLORIOUS 4TH

WITH COOPERATION FROM CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

Preparations for the Fourth of July celebration in Charlevoix claim ed the attention of Legionnaires of Leslie T. Shapton Post at their meeting on Tuesday evening.

According to the agreement between the three cities of the county, it is Charlevoix's turn to celebrate this year and the affair will be sponsored by the Legion, with the City of Charlevoix assisting. For this purpose, a committee of the post membership, consisting of William Taylor, chairman, W. R. Goss and Neal Kemp, was appointed. Commander Lee Allard to act jointly with the city council committee. Several different entertainment features were also discussed at this meeting.

The Legion committee on the 1933 state convention in Charlevoix and letters will go out this week to district committeemen all over the state urging Charlevoix as the place of the convention and bespeaking the assistance of the committeemen to this end in their respective districts.

As regards the post's popular boxing bouts, it is likely that in the near future the ring will be moved out doors and bleachers erected to take care of many more people than the hall has heretofore accommodated.

The local post has received an invitation to attend the convention of the Ninth District American Legion at Traverse City on Sunday, June 12, 1932. This is an excellent opportunity for Charlevoix to present her claims to the 1933 state convention to the delegates from that district. The post bugle and drum corps has been invited to participate in the parade, which is to occur at 1 p. m. Sunday. The business meeting is at 11:00 a. m., with a banquet at 2:30 p. m. at the Park Place Hotel. Following the parade. There will be other activities there on the evening of June 11th.

The local Ladies Auxiliary of the legion conducted the annual poppy sale very successfully and a net amount of thirty-eight dollars was realized. This is an increase on last year's receipts, despite the prevailing hard times. Considering the amount paid for the poppies by the post, which goes to the veterans direct, about fifty-three dollars was realized in all for welfare work.

The chairman of the Auxiliary Mrs. Leila Gose, wishes to thank the public for their commendable attitude and hearty response for this cause and also those members of the Auxiliary who so generously gave of their time and helped make the occasion a success.

The Legion joins with the Auxiliary in thanks to the public for their cooperation and is proud of the assistance from the Auxiliary which made the sale such a success.

MARION CENTER NEWS

Mrs. Charlie Withers and Mr. Rowley Withers, 4-H Club leaders gave a party last week Wednesday evening at the Grange Hall for the two Clubs. They also entertained the Clubs first at Nita Shearer's school in Hayes. Ice cream and cake was served to over forty boys and girls and all report a very enjoyable time. The boys and girls of Marion Center Clubs presented Mrs. Withers and Mr. Williams with very nice presents to show their appreciation of the work done by the leaders during the past school year.

Rev. W. W. Hurd, Mrs. Hurd, Mrs. Maggie Poole, Miss Anna Metcalf and Miss Jennie Black called on Mrs. Geo. Meggison one day last week.

Mrs. Will Withers, Mrs. Rowley Williams and daughter Darlene called on Mrs. Geo. Meggison last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Black and baby of Chicago who arrived on the home of Mrs. Bilek's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peask last Friday evening returned to their home Monday.

NOTICE OF HEARING

In the matter of reclnding that part of Ordinance No. 167 "An Ordinance to amend Article One, Ordinance 160 known as District No. 4" relative to gas stations and garages. A meeting open to the public for discussion, will be held at the council chambers June 6, 1932 at 7:30 p. m.

Ray S. Hamilton, City Clerk
By Wilma Novotny, Dep. City Clerk
942

WHOLE STREET BUILT TO MAKE PARIS PICTURE

When the art directors recreated large portions of the French capital at Movietone City for the filming of "While Paris Sleeps," For melodrama of the Paris underworld, opening Tuesday and Wednesday at the Palace Theatre, they seemed to fall low the adage, "See Paris and die!" They almost literally gave their hearts that the completed film might transport the audience to the very banks of the Seine.

Under the skillful guidance of William Darling, workmen created one whole city block carefully modelled after an original in Montmartre. It contained a busy street, lined with shops, restaurants, stores, an open air market and a Bal or dance hall.

It is around the Bal that much of the tender romance which motivates the picture is centered. Victor McLaglen, featured as the father who escapes from prison to come to the aid of his motherless daughter, Helen Mack, as the daughter, working for an apache gang in the evil environment of the Bal.

Her youthful sweetheart, played by William Bakewell, is also employed at the Bal as a waiter. Through his vigilance for the girl's safety, he discovers a plot whereby the Apaches will drug the bride and groom as entertained by Lee Allard, and Mary Gordon, at the reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford at their home.

NEW BASEBALL TEAM FORMED

CHARLEVOIX JUNIOR BUSINESS ORGANIZE INDEPENDENTS

The Charlevoix Junior Business Men recently organized a new baseball team which they have named the Charlevoix Independents.

Immediately following their organization the members engaged in some preliminary practice and then arranged for two games, one with Ironton and one with Ironton players, taking on Advance Sunday, playing the game and Ironton Memorial Day with like results. Both games were played on the Independents field located at the East End of Green Street.

Sunday, June 5, the Independents play a return game at Ironton.

The Independent team was made possible through the efforts of Joe Williams and Clarence Arnold, two energetic baseball fans.

Included in the Independents are: Hap Cunningham, J. C. Marshall, Harold Towsley, R. C. Sterritt, Ted Gravelin, Stan Smith, Ira Helms, Morris Dixon, Harold Newman, Stewart Sarasin and Al. Swink.

The two games played early this week drew a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weil of Chicago opened their fine summer home on Michigan Avenue last week and over the week end entertained several houseguests as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Irving N. Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Gottschall and Mr. Wally Brother Joseph Weil. The entire party returned to Chicago Tuesday and with other family members expect to return to Charlevoix about June 15th to occupy their several residences for the summer vacation-time.

Richard C. Hammett, Jr., spent a short time here the first of the week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hammett, 109 Park avenue. "Dick" drove up from Kalamazoo Sunday, returning Monday afternoon.

Miss Clara Walker, student at the government school at Mt. Pleasant, returned home Friday having completed the school year. The trip from Mt. Pleasant was with one of the larger buses provided by the government. The bus carried a number of students on its trip north going as far as Mackinaw City with stopovers homeward bound.

Mrs. Flora Goodman of Detroit arrived here Wednesday and is occupying the Gilbert cottage, 216 Park Avenue. Her daughter Mrs. S. T. Gilbert and family members are expected to join Mrs. Goodman before this week end.

SUPERNAW - COLEMAN

A wedding ceremony performed Saturday evening, May 28th, by Rev. G. Russell Parker, united in marriage Mr. Stewart E. Coleman and Miss Arelyne Supernaw, members of Charlevoix's young set.

The ceremony was witnessed by immediate family members at the Mrs. William Supernaw, 310 West home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Hurlbut Avenue.

Congratulations are being extended by a host of friends to the newly wedded pair.

GLEASON - TAYLOR

Mr. Howard Taylor of Harbor Springs and Miss Doris Gleason of Charlevoix, were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage in this city, Tuesday, May 31—Rev. W. H. Rauch officiating at the ceremony.

The young couple will make their future home near Harbor Springs.

LARGE LAKE TROUT ON EXHIBITION LAST WEEK

A lake trout measuring 36 inches in length and weighing 19 2-4 pounds was landed at the Staley Hardware Store last Thursday. The mammoth trout was taken on a trolling tackle off the high bluffs at Ironton and captured by Leonard Johnson and James Genia, when on a fishing excursion, making for the largest fish of this specie, taken in local waters in recent years with hook and line.

Mr. Albert Staley secured the jumbo trout and turned it over to a taxidermist for mounting. When the mount is finished it will be returned to Mr. Staley who will place the mount in the store, with other exhibition mounts as an added attraction, where it can be seen by local townspeople and vacation visitors.

EXCURSION TO ST. JAMES SUNDAY, JUNE FIFTH

The S. S. Bedell will carry excursionists to St. James Sunday, June 5. Fare for the round trip $1.50 including admission to the mystery play "The Valley of Ghosts", put on by St. James students by special permission of the copyright owners. The sailing time of the Bedell, heretofore given as 12 o'clock noon, has been changed to 2:00 o'clock fast time. Those contemplating taking the trip are requested to note the time change.

Mr. and Mrs. Nyle Jessup of Detroit accompanied by the former's brother, Mr. Claude Jessup of Cuba, are occupying the W. E. Parmeles cottage at Pine Point. Mrs. Jessup is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. MacDonald, and with her husband is a frequent Charlevoix visitor.

Betsy Ann Broderick is the name given to a daughter born Saturday at Detroit. The young home is a grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Myers of Charlevoix. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Margery G. Broderick are well known in Charlevoix. Friends are extending congratulations.

Misses Marguerite Bugge, Frances Rost, Doris Trimble and Rosebay Straw, summer students at Big Rapids spent the week end and Memorial Day with Charlevoix relatives.

VERCIL SEYMOUR IN ACCIDENT

CAR HITS BLVD. LIGHT POLE, TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Vercil Seymour was taken to the local hospital for treatment for injuries received late Wednesday afternoon, when the automobile he was driving along Belvedere Avenue, left the pavement and crashed into a boulevard light pole.

His injuries consist of cuts and bruises about the head and a wrenched back, and at the present his condition is not considered as serious.

Just how the accident happened is at this time a matter of conjecture, as the young man, though conscious is not in condition to make a report as to how it came about.

The machine was considerably wrecked and the light pole completely demolished.

Young Seymour is an experienced driver, hence until he is able to give his version of the accident it will remain a mystery.

LIBRARY NOTES

Beginning June 6th, library hours will return to summer schedule as follows:

Forenoons, 10 to 12. Afternoons 2 to 6:00. Saturday evening, 7:00 to 9:00.

New books recently placed in circulation:

"Behemoth, The Story of Power", by Hodgins and Magoun. The story of the world's great feats of engineering Authenticated by engineering experts.

"As I See Religion, by Harry Emerson Fosdick.

"Unly Yesterdays," by Frederick Lewis Allen. A retrospect of the years from May, 1919, to the present.

"Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing", by Warden Lewis E. Lawes.

"New Worlds to Conquer," by Richard Halliburton. Travel through South America.

Contract Bridge Blue Book, by Ely Culbertson.

"Old Wine and New," by Warwick Deeping.

"Stars Fair" by Phil Strong. A story of the Middle West.

"Mary's Neck", by Booth Tarkington. A story of this exclusive little summer resort in Maine.

"Spawn of The North," by Barrett Willoughby. Story of Alaska and the salmon-packing industry.

"Captain Archer's Daughter," by Margaret Ireland.

"The Greek Coffin Mystery," by Ellery Queen.

Neil J. Lafreniere left for Chicago Friday, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd McDonough. Mrs. Mike Cull and Harry Mercher.

John Drew of Milwaukee, represenating the Fish, Net and Twine Co., was a business caller here this week.

H. L. Conant and F. L. Conant, returned to Lansing Saturday, after spending a week here building over state lands.

Jim Webb shipped as engineer on the freighter "Rambler."

Miss Phoebe and Herman Allers were visitors at Menominee and Garden the first of the week.

Gerald Isett and Lester Cunningham left for Chicago the first of the week.

Michigan Patrol No. 1, Capt. C. J. Allers, was in port the first of the week.

The freighter "Rambler" left Saturday night for South Haven with a load of cedar posts. Will continue trip to Chicago before returning.

Leroy Allers of Charlevoix was a business caller here this week.

Arthie Lafreniere is visiting in Chicago this week.

Mrs. Paul Somerville who is a teacher in the Grand Haven Public Schools returned home for the summer.

The construction of the U. S. Coast Guard telephone line from the Beaver Head lighthouse to St. James is progressing favorably.

Peter Block of the National Net and Twine Co., Milwaukee, Wis. was a business caller here this week.

Dan McCann of Charlevoix was a visitor here Monday.

The dance Monday night in the big Hall was well attended. The music was furnished by the Melody Mohawk Orchestra, of Harbor Springs.

William Wackner and family of Naubinaway were visitors here Monday.

Robert Gordon and Fred Floyd of Charlevoix were passengers on the Bedell Monday.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

MRS. IDA WIRE DIES HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. Ida Wire, wife of George Wire, passed away Sunday forenoon at the home of her brother Amos O'Neil, where for some time past she has been confined with an ailment of long standing.

Her maiden name was Ida O'Neil. She was born March 2, 1870 at Mt. Forest, Ontario, and came to Michigan when about 6 years old, with her parents, since which time until about 15 years ago, when she went to Flint, she was a resident of this city.

Mrs. Wire is survived by her husband George Wire, above mentioned. A son Raymond Bzak of Flint, a sister, Mrs. Jennie Morris, also of Flint, and four brothers, Edd, John and Amos of Charlevoix and James O'Neil of Gladstone.

Funeral services was held Wednesday afternoon at the Church of God, with the pastor, Rev. L. T. Mark officiating.

ROCKLIFF M. SUTTON DIES HERE MONDAY

After a very serious sickness of about a month, the death of Rockliff M. Sutton occurred last Monday, at his residence on Ferry Ave. He was born in Shasta Creek, Genesee Co., Michigan, Aug. 29, 1882. He came to northern Michigan at the age of five. After living many years at Manistique, he came to Charlevoix six years ago.

He was in the employ of the Pere Marquette railroad for nineteen years. He leaves a wife, nine children three grand children; also one sister, Mrs. Edna Brownell, of Belmont.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. W. Hurd Thursday afternoon, and burial in Brookside Cemetery.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

The freighter "Rambler" made a trip to Charlevoix and Petoskey, last Thursday.

John Hoffman of Petoskey was a business caller here Friday.

Nels J. Lafreniere left for Chicago Friday, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd McDonough. Mrs. Mike Cull and Harry Mercher.

John Drew of Milwaukee, representing the Fish, Net and Twine Co., was a business caller here this week.

H. L. Conant and F. L. Conant, returned to Lansing Saturday, after spending a week here building over state lands.

Jim Webb shipped as engineer on the freighter "Rambler."

Miss Phoebe and Herman Allers were visitors at Menominee and Garden the first of the week.

Gerald Isett and Lester Cunningham left for Chicago the first of the week.

Michigan Patrol No. 1, Capt. C. J. Allers, was in port the first of the week.

The freighter "Rambler" left Saturday night for South Haven with a load of cedar posts. Will continue trip to Chicago before returning.

Leroy Allers of Charlevoix was a business caller here this week.

Arthie Lafreniere is visiting in Chicago this week.

Mrs. Paul Somerville who is a teacher in the Grand Haven Public Schools returned home for the summer.

The construction of the U. S. Coast Guard telephone line from the Beaver Head lighthouse to St. James is progressing favorably.

Peter Block of the National Net and Twine Co., Milwaukee, Wis. was a business caller here this week.

Dan McCann of Charlevoix was a visitor here Monday.

The dance Monday night in the big Hall was well attended. The music was furnished by the Melody Mohawk Orchestra, of Harbor Springs.

William Wackner and family of Naubinaway were visitors here Monday.

Robert Gordon and Fred Floyd of Charlevoix were passengers on the Bedell Monday.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

"MAY FESTIVAL" PROGRAM ENJOYED LAST THURSDAY

Our community was treated first-rate in all departments to the "May Festival" given at the Congregational Church last Thursday evening Mrs. A. J. Stelter was the musical director and the success of the entertainment was largely due to her untiring energy and her artistic ability in assembling and directing so large a group of talented musicians.

The program consisted of a pageant by the entire membership of the Junior Choir, with Mrs. Stelter at the piano and Mrs. Lemmon at the organ. Dressing in an array of flowing bridal veils and carrying garlands of flowers, they made the footprints their captions. But a counter-attack by loyal knights with the sword and Damsels with shield of his may, became prisoners. With Maurice Hopkins, a prominent actor in the group, who has been living a life of luxury with the aristocrats, the transformation was taken aboard the ship for transportation to a city that is still loyal to the government. In a new outbreak aboard ship, Damsel and his men take over the vessel and steer it on a course to Tennessee, a town in the hands of the loyal supporters.

The soloists were Bancroft's capable contralto Marion to exercise the feminine charms of Hancroft, so that while she plays Delilah, they can curb the power of this revolutionary weapon. But the plan does not work out as they scheme it, Bancroft falls in love with Miriam—and she finds herself warming up to him, considerably. When Miriam is threatened with execution by the town's tribunal, Bancroft, by a ruse, effects her release. By an irony, he is captured himself, and doomed to hang. But a last minute turn of events frees him—and he joins Miriam for a happy conclusion.

Over five hundred Russian extras were used in the big atmosphere scenes of the production.

NOTICE

Remember that interest on savings bank accounts and Certificates of Deposit will be paid at the rate of 3 per cent compounded every six months, beginning June 1, 1932.

(Signed) Boards of Directors of The Charlevoix State Savings Bank, The Charlevoix County Bank.

The above action has been taken by Charlevoix's banks in view of existing conditions and in the best interest of the banks and their depositors.

FINE PROGRAM MEMORIAL DAY

EVENT CONSIDERED UNUSUAL SUCCESS

Decoration Day 1932, will go down in history as one of the most fittingly observed in the annals of Charlevoix.

The program started with a parade led by the colors and members of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, and including Fire Unit and High School band, Legion Bugle and Drum corps, Women's Relief Corps and Legion Auxiliary, Legionnaires and school children.

The line of march proceeded down Bridge street to the City Park where an appropriate ceremony was conducted by the Women's Relief Corps, after the veterans who died in the service.

The parade then continued out Park Street to the cemetery where the memorial program was completed.

The exercises of the day consisted of a solemn and impressive ceremony, the beautiful ritualistic service of the Women's Relief Corps, and the address by Rev. L. T. Mark of Ironton.

ROCKLIFF M. SUTTON DIES HERE MONDAY

After a very serious sickness of about a month, the death of Rockliff M. Sutton occurred last Monday, at his residence on Ferry Ave. He was born in Shasta Creek, Genesee Co., Michigan, Aug. 29, 1882. He came to northern Michigan at the age of five. After living many years at Manistique, he came to Charlevoix six years ago.

He was in the employ of the Pere Marquette railroad for nineteen years. He leaves a wife, nine children three grand children; also one sister, Mrs. Edna Brownell, of Belmont.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. W. Hurd Thursday afternoon, and burial in Brookside Cemetery.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

The freighter "Rambler" made a trip to Charlevoix and Petoskey, last Thursday.

John Hoffman of Petoskey was a business caller here Friday.

Nels J. Lafreniere left for Chicago Friday, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd McDonough. Mrs. Mike Cull and Harry Mercher.

John Drew of Milwaukee, representing the Fish, Net and Twine Co., was a business caller here this week.

H. L. Conant and F. L. Conant, returned to Lansing Saturday, after spending a week here building over state lands.

Jim Webb shipped as engineer on the freighter "Rambler."

Miss Phoebe and Herman Allers were visitors at Menominee and Garden the first of the week.

Gerald Isett and Lester Cunningham left for Chicago the first of the week.

Michigan Patrol No. 1, Capt. C. J. Allers, was in port the first of the week.

The freighter "Rambler" left Saturday night for South Haven with a load of cedar posts. Will continue trip to Chicago before returning.

Leroy Allers of Charlevoix was a business caller here this week.

Arthie Lafreniere is visiting in Chicago this week.

Mrs. Paul Somerville who is a teacher in the Grand Haven Public Schools

BACK-TRACKING an OLD TRAIL

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

JUMO time this summer a gay-haired New Yorker will be setting out upon a romantic journey. For William H. Jackson, eighty-nine-year-old "pioneer photographer" gets another notable, Daniel Carter Beard (right), veteran Boy Scout leader, when they met at the National Pioneer dinner given by the Oregon Trail Memorial association in tribute to the western pioneers on December 29, 1930, the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ezra Meeker, founder of the association.

4. West from Devil's Gate on the Sweetwater. From a photograph made by W. H. Jackson in 1870.

left the business in the hands of his brother and started out to record what was happening.

"In those days," he says, "the photography was different than it is today. The pioneer photographer of that time had to be something of a chemist, artist and mechanic all rolled into one. When he wanted to take pictures on the road he had to carry a tent, a portable chemical outfit, a camera, for each plate had to be prepared on the spot, and developed at once. The outfit I took out from Omaha in 1868 I was equipped with a complete portable outfit for developing pictures en route."

Dr. F. V. Hayden, head of the United States geological survey, had employed Jackson to obtain definite information about those vast regions about to be settled by the new railroad. It was the pictures which Mr. Jackson took on that trip. His chief task was to record the scenery that now Jackson along on his own surveying trip which he was stated to take along the old Oregon trail, from Omaha to Fort Hall, in the Idaho country, and then to Salt Lake City, and thence to the city to which they lived.

William H. Jackson was born in the log cabin of the parents of the old Oregon Trail country.

Although he was appointed official photographer of the Hayden survey, he received no salary, but his equipment was furnished and he was permitted to keep all negatives he made. For his own use. He was also allowed to have copies he carried in the subsistence which accompanied the party. So he was successful in getting a little donkey which he named "Hippo." "Hippo" carried his working kit.

The survey of Dr. Hayden's started in August, 1870, and from Independence Rock followed the old Oregon Trail almost along the Sweetwater river. Becoming, it followed the old Overland Stage route across southern Wyoming and to Fort Saunders, disbanded for the season. By the present day Washington officials with the pictures taken on the first survey Mr. Jackson pointed Jackson to accompany future surveys as photographer and he made four more trips with Dr. Hayden in this capacity. In 1871, he took pictures of Yellowstone. This was the first to make photographs of the marvels of this country and his pictures, with the official descriptions of, and questions collected, by Doctor Hayden and his party, played an important part in the creation of the Yellowstone National park in 1872. The last expedition of the Hayden Geological survey to the Rocky mountain region was made in 1878, the present United States geological survey has excellent fire for making purposes when entirely dry, but when wet it is the meanest stuff imaginable to get along with, trying the patience of the cooks to the utmost.

"My heavy supports with the great quantities of strong coffee that I drink just before going to bed, frequently result in dreams that verge on nightmares. At first, when the novelty of my adventure was new, I used to awaken early and work my art training was added to the months work in the studio of a portrait painter, which improved my technique somewhat. My ambition was to study art for the sake of art, but I was always forced to make it subservient to the coloring photographs for a more dependable income. At night I found steady work with a photographer named Mowry in Rutland, Vt. My pay was ten dollars a week.

"Mowry had recently advanced from making daguerreotypes to making tintypes and the paper carte de visite which were the principal photographs somewhat larger than a stamp card. Now, as I say assistance, in addition to the tinting of all painting enlargements and I also helped him in the regular work of the gallery."

But the opening of the Civil war put an end to this work and when Lincoln issued his call for "500,000 more" Jackson joined the Rutland 11th Guards, later entering Company E, Twenty-Veteran Infantry which with other troops became the Second Vermont Brigade. As soon as Jackson's commander discovered his talent for drawing he was detailed to sketch maps of picket lines along muddy Run so at the age of nineteen he held an important and dangerous post to the Union army. After the war was over, Jackson returned to his home in the Adirondacks where for some time he was busy making photographs of the lonely heroes home from the war. At that time he owned what was considered a magnificent span, $25 a week. But soon the wonderful Jackson found himself again and he decided to go west. He decided for Detroit but got only as far as Chicago and then worked his way on to Detroit, by painting signs, passing the art of ordering photographs and picking up other odd jobs. Eventually he got as far west as St. Joseph, Mo., which was then the western terminus of the railroad.

Here he secured a job of driving six teams from Nebraska to Montana, "bull whacking" as it was called, for wages of $30 a month. For a year, 1866 to 1867, he was engaged in this work, freighting from Nebraska fifty on the Missouri to a point where Helena, Bozeman, Lamoine and South Pass and to the valley of the Green and Salt. One of the illustrations above is a recent painting of Mr. Jackson's made from a sketch in 1866 showing the wagon trains feeded the South Pinette near Jamestown.)

The following quotation from a letter which Young Jackson wrote to his parents dated "Great Salt Lake City, October 30, 1866," is a graphic picture of the life of a bullwhacker in those days. "The program of a day's work will give you some idea of the kind of a life we have been leading. In the morning, just as day is breaking and when sleep lies heaviest upon us, the night watch makes the rounds, pounding on the wagons and shouting 'Roll out! Roll out!' The first six are rounded out of the turbulent herd records into the corral I mentally and sometimes aloud damn the bulls, but there they are and I must get up.

"Slouching one of the lazy yokes I begin hacking for my old off-wheeler. It is hardly light enough yet to distinguish objects clearly and I have some difficulty at first in telling one ox from another. But I finally get my last yoke-up yoked and lazing contentedly put the wheelers onto the tongue. I drove around the other yoke, connected with chains and hitch them on ahead. I am ready to pull out, usually just as the sun is supporting above the horizon.

"About ten o'clock the train is corralled, unyoking cattle—those not to be herded out to graze in charge of herders, and we proceed to cook our breakfast. The train is divided into four messes, the men taking turns at the various duties. This is frequently accumulated by a good deal of contentious wrangling because there are always stickers that always fail to do their part. Then comes the details bring the wood and water. The cooks for the time being have charge of the camp kettles. The messes over. Washington officials with the pictures taken on the first survey Mr. Jackson pointed Jackson to accompany future surveys as photographer and he made four more trips with Doctor Hayden in this capacity. In 1871, he took pictures of Yellowstone. This was the first to make photographs of the marvels of this country and his pictures, with the official descriptions of, and questions collected, by Doctor Hayden and his party, played an important part in the creation of the Yellowstone National park in 1872. The last expedition of the Hayden Geological survey to the Rocky mountain region was made in 1878, the present United States geological survey has excellent fire for making purposes when entirely dry, but when wet it is the meanest stuff imaginable to get along with, trying the patience of the cooks to the utmost.

"My heavy supports with the great quantities of strong coffee that I drink just before going to bed, frequently result in dreams that verge on nightmares. At first, when the novelty of my adventure was new, I used to awaken early and work my art training was added to the months work in the studio of a portrait painter, which improved my technique somewhat. My ambition was to study art for the sake of art, but I was always forced to make it subservient to the coloring photographs for a more dependable income. At night I found steady work with a photographer named Mowry in Rutland, Vt. My pay was ten dollars a week.

"Mowry had recently advanced from making daguerreotypes to making tintypes and the paper carte de visite which were the principal photographs somewhat larger than a stamp card. Now, as I say assistance, in addition to the tinting of all painting enlargements and I also helped him in the regular work of the gallery."

But the opening of the Civil war put an end to this work and when Lincoln issued his call for "500,000 more" Jackson joined the Rutland 11th Guards, later entering Company E, Twenty-Veteran Infantry which with other troops became the Second Vermont Brigade. As soon as Jackson's commander discovered his talent for drawing he was detailed to sketch maps of picket lines along muddy Run so at the age of nineteen he held an important and dangerous post to the Union army. After the war was over, Jackson

1. Crossing the South Fork of the Platte river near Julesburg, Colo. From a sketch made by W. H. Jackson in 1866.

2. W. H. Jackson in the days of his youth.

3. W. H. Jackson (left), eighty-nine years old, "the pioneer photographer," greets another notable, Daniel Carter Beard (right), veteran Boy Scout leader, when they met at the National Pioneer dinner given by the Oregon Trail Memorial association in tribute to the western pioneers on December 29, 1930, the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ezra Meeker, founder of the association.

4. West from Devil's Gate on the Sweetwater. From a photograph made by W. H. Jackson in 1870.

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

For the Children's Sake

By FANNIE HURST

(© by Matthew Bender & Company, Incorporated.) WNU Service.

ANN MEREDITH'S marriage was one of those romantic affairs.

She met Donald Morris on a Sunday and married him that day week.

Her friends and sense of life, said Ann was too good for him. Meaning that up to the time of her marriage Donald had been what might be called a prodigious mover of wild oats.

Ann knew this, after a fashion, and her secret eyes were alight with the determination to reform Donald. She married him for love. She could remove him with that love.

In whatever fashion Ann was to be the loser in this marriage, she let Donald herself unemotionally. Donald was a born moneymaker. As to Francis said of him, almost everything he touched turned to gold. Donald even a little the worse for drink could turn a better bargain than most men in the power of their full faculties.

Ann up to the time of her marriage had been a sort of forewoman in a fairly large episode department store of Union City. One of those great shops of convenience that occasionally one the residential districts of large towns. The kind of shop that caters to the housewife who does not have time for the long trip to the down-town theaters.

After her marriage, Ann lived in a lonely second-floor walk-in flat-house in a residential district where heavy traffic was forbidden.

But almost from the first, the reformation did not pan out as Ann had dreamed it would. Donald was at sea in his ways as he was wild in his ways. From the very first he began to come home reeking drunk two and three times a week. The early morning Ann had taken such pride in creating become a stern center of the kitchen and dining-room scenes from the very first. It was almost with horror that Ann regarded the coming of their first child. But for a while, since a year after its arrival a change came about in Donald. He seemed humble, chastised, deeply contrite and in love with the mother of his lovely little daughter, and for a brief twelve-month the reformation became accomplished fact.

The coming of her second child was a period of happiness and thankfulness for Ann. Like everything else in her quality and a beauty. Donald, who could be very generous when he was in the mood, was not only the prouder man, but for three months after the birth of Ann's second child he was a devoted husband and father.

Then the old story began all over again. Donald was different than it is today. The pioneer photographer of that time had to be something of a chemist, artist and mechanic all rolled into one. When he wanted to take pictures on the road he had to carry a tent, a portable chemical outfit, a camera, for each plate had to be prepared on the spot, and developed at once. The outfit I took out from Omaha in 1868 I was equipped with a complete portable outfit for developing pictures en route."

Dr. F. V. Hayden, head of the United States geological survey, had employed Jackson to obtain definite information about those vast regions about to be settled by the new railroad. It was the pictures which Mr. Jackson took on that trip. His chief task was to record the scenery that now Jackson along on his own surveying trip which he was stated to take along the old Oregon trail, from Omaha to Fort Hall, in the Idaho country, and then to Salt Lake City, and thence to the city to which they lived.

William H. Jackson was born in the log cabin of the parents of the old Oregon Trail country.

Although he was appointed official photographer of the Hayden survey, he received no salary, but his equipment was furnished and he was permitted to keep all negatives he made. For his own use. He was also allowed to have copies he carried in the subsistence which accompanied the party. So he was successful in getting a little donkey which he named "Hippo." "Hippo" carried his working kit.

The survey of Dr. Hayden's started in August, 1870, and from Independence Rock followed the old Oregon Trail almost along the Sweetwater river. Becoming, it followed the old Overland Stage route across southern Wyoming and to Fort Saunders, disbanded for the season. By the present day Washington officials with the pictures taken on the first survey Mr. Jackson pointed Jackson to accompany future surveys as photographer and he made four more trips with Doctor Hayden in this capacity. In 1871, he took pictures of Yellowstone. This was the first to make photographs of the marvels of this country and his pictures, with the official descriptions of, and questions collected, by Doctor Hayden and his party, played an important part in the creation of the Yellowstone National park in 1872. The last expedition of the Hayden Geological survey to the Rocky mountain region was made in 1878, the present United States geological survey has excellent fire for making purposes when entirely dry, but when wet it is the meanest stuff imaginable to get along with, trying the patience of the cooks to the utmost.

"My heavy supports with the great quantities of strong coffee that I drink just before going to bed, frequently result in dreams that verge on nightmares. At first, when the novelty of my adventure was new, I used to awaken early and work my art training was added to the months work in the studio of a portrait painter, which improved my technique somewhat. My ambition was to study art for the sake of art, but I was always forced to make it subservient to the coloring photographs for a more dependable income. At night I found steady work with a photographer named Mowry in Rutland, Vt. My pay was ten dollars a week.

"Mowry had recently advanced from making daguerreotypes to making tintypes and the paper carte de visite which were the principal photographs somewhat larger than a stamp card. Now, as I say assistance, in addition to the tinting of all painting enlargements and I also helped him in the regular work of the gallery."

But the opening of the Civil war put an end to this work and when Lincoln issued his call for "500,000 more" Jackson joined the Rutland 11th Guards, later entering Company E, Twenty-Veteran Infantry which with other troops became the Second Vermont Brigade. As soon as Jackson's commander discovered his talent for drawing he was detailed to sketch maps of picket lines along muddy Run so at the age of nineteen he held an important and dangerous post to the Union army. After the war was over, Jackson

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lulu Hattersley

No. 2

Opening Bids of One

THERE can be but one opening or original bid on each deal. All bids which follow this first bid are designated by different terms and influenced by different factors. The opening bid may be made by the dealer, by the second hand after dealer has passed, by the third hand if both dealer and second hand have passed, or by the fourth hand if all the others have passed. Third or fourth hand original or opening bid is the most important of all the bids in the game. It is the one bid which sets the material things of life. Prisoners in a home may dissolve into tears or were hourly subjected to the withering environment of disbelieving and disapproving.

Ann's children no longer hear words of bitter and anger. Ann's children no longer run terrified at the sound of a step upon the stair. Beauty thrives in those boarding house rooms. The beauty of peace and contentment. It vanished with the big house. The lawyer ties to the dock. It would not come. It was the love of Ann that formed the key on its farther side.

The key that was to help us to find united it and that were helpless. The colored woman who came to help called the sheriff. With two minutes the latter with his deputies was out on the streets.

Colonel Blake returned from the telephone.

"The Ewell and Tom Walker" he exclaimed.

"This kind of thing is well enough in its place, but when it comes to the sanctity of a family row. Because that we all have our family rows and with Donald half crazed with drink and Ann in a state of terror and desperation and too little sleep.

"Why doesn't she leave him?" said Mrs. Blake, who was sitting on the other hand, those of her more conservative friends who belong to religious sects and four of public opinion, advised her to stick it out for the children's sake.

"For the children's sake" was a phrase that lay constantly on poor Ann's tongue. In the days of her wooing, she would never have endured it as she had. But now that she looked upon those innocent little products of her unfortunate alliance in the light of the puzzle separation of their parents, Ann would have gone back to the very gates of hell.

She did not crave divorce. She, too, had certain religious scruples, and, be-

Survived Despite Lack of Hygienic Knowledge

Considering how little scientific was known about hygiene, he managed to keep fairly well. He was a man of phenomenal fact that fortifies our belief in the supremacy and omnipotence Providence. Something must have protected him from the effects of his ignorance and comparative helplessness. He died of his disease, but somehow managed to live to carry on the race and increase it.

One has only to read Doctor Clendinning's eye-opening and well-nigh-appalling (for the doctor is a humorist) article in the Journal to learn that in certain eras, from the beginning, was full of physical badness. His diet lacked essential

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

DEFLATE GOVERNMENT COSTS

One of the most frequently used terms of the day is "deflation." We are told that the stock and bond markets have been pretty thoroughly liquidated, that the prices of commodities have been deflated, that banks are in a liquid condition and that values and prices of real estate everywhere have been well deflated.

All of which would seem to be true. But there is one thing which still needs deflating and that is the cost of government, national, state and local. Taxes have not been deflated, in fact so far as national taxes are concerned, the downward trend is to be reversed because of the deficit following in the wake of the depression.

From the decade embracing 1919 to 1929 the federal debt was reduced ten billions of dollars. By the end of the last fiscal year there had been an increase of six hundred millions but the total is still nine billions less than at the time of the signing of the armistice.

But the state and local indebtedness have not gone down since the war. In spite of the steady increase in state and local taxation. On the other hand the debts in our states, counties and municipalities have been increasing, until the total state and local bonded indebtedness is said now to stand around fifteen billions of dollars. This is in addition to the nearly ten billions in the way of the national debt.

The total is one which almost staggers the imagination. And if commodity prices continue to remain as low as they are today, the paying of this great debt is going to be much more burdensome than could have been thought possible at the time the debt was contracted.

So far as state and local indebtedness is concerned the local debt is increasing much more rapidly than the state debt. This means that the small units of government are fastening these staggering debt totals on themselves. All of which, of course, bring the responsibility for this debt increase close to the people themselves.

One of the things, therefore, which must be done if we are to have a return to anything like normalcy is to deflate the cost of local government. This must be done, and the people must see that it is done. The only other road leads to repudiation and economic chaos.

The encouraging thing at the time is that the people seem to be becoming conscious of this great burden which they have brought on themselves. The demand for economy in government is growing. And it ought to start at home, for it is in local or state taxes that the average home owner is hardest hit.

WE MAKE OUR OWN HARD TIMES

In his book, "Men, Money and Mergers," published recently, Dr. George L. Hoxie examines the depression, the various solutions offered for it, and shows conclusively that most of the paternalistic and socialistic remedies proposed are hollow as drums.

The public brings hard times on itself. "Unless the average person pays as he goes," Dr. Hoxie writes, "unless business is conducted upon a genuine barter basis with each paying for what he gets . . . giving what he has currently produced . . . a real crash is inevitable . . . The end comes when customers on the outer fringe have used up their saved capital and have mortgaged their earnings to the limit. Almost in a day, a considerable fraction of their buying stops . . . Hard times are on."

As for the way out of the depression, Dr. Hoxie shows that the "assistance" of politicians and radical planners can only hinder a normal recovery. He says: "Individualism may be looked to with confidence for concrete advice respecting the best paths to pursue to more rapid and more equitable distribution of newly created wealth."

Dr. Hoxie's book is refreshing, coming as it does on the heels of a multitude of other works which, for the most part, attempt to show the need for a radical change in our system of government, and in government's relation to industry, to workers and to investors, without offering any practical substitute plan. The depression will pass—and if we are wise, it will leave us with knowledge that will enable us to prevent wild ups-and-downs in the business cycle in the future. Those interested in economic sanity rather than political radicalism, will profit by Dr. Hoxie's book.

WORRY — THE DRIVER'S BANE

Mental lapses are a far more important cause of automobile accidents than is commonly believed. While the reports of accidents may give physical causes, such as reckless driving, wrong side of the road, cutting in, etc., those may only be symptoms of a disturbed mental state, asserts Dr. H. J. Stack of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, who says:

"Extreme hurry or worry causing intense preoccupation, fatigue, elation, or excitement, or slowed down reaction as a result of the indulgence in alcohol or other narcotics may be behind an accident. Many of these mental conditions are within our control." He suggests the following precautions as preventatives:

Take a short rest or let someone else drive the car when you have been driving for a long period at night.

Be especially alert when hurrying to work so that you can keep your mind on your driving.

The best place for the confirmed back-seat driver is at home.

Don't day dream driving a car or crossing the street.

Don't become a speed maniac. This mental disorder is serious and contagious. A serious accident seems to be the only cure for its victims.

THE JAPANESE - RUSSIAN SITUATION

It is steadily becoming more apparent that sooner or later there will be a clash of interests in the Orient between Japan and Russia which will lead to actual warfare. The Japanese seem to be consolidating their occupancy of Manchuria and to be gradually approaching the Siberian border. The Russians, according to reports are feverishly working on the great railway and sending more troops to the Orient to reinforce their army on that part of the globe. The military party in Japan seems to be gradually closing in on the government. While there are reports that Russia is not seeking a fight, this is not because the Slavs do not dislike the Japs but for the reason that the Reds feel that they are not ready to risk combat, but will be better prepared a little later on. But it is the very fact that the Japs must realize that time is working against them, which may force the clash at any time.

The trouble between Russia and Japan in the Manchurian region is age old and goes back to the time of the czars. And the change of governments in Russia has not changed human nature, so that the Reds despite their communistic internationalist doctrine, do not like the Japs any better than they did under the czars.

There are some Americans who sympathize with the Japanese attitude to the extent that they feel that the Japs must expand in some direction, and they would much rather that this expansion would be in Manchuria than toward Hawaii and the Philippines. On the other hand, there is some sympathy in America for the Russian end of the argument, for two reasons: first, because it is believed that the Japs are too offensively militaristic, and second, because some of our leaders have a more or less open sympathy with the present Russian government. Yet general sympathy with Russia would be more pronounced if the Russians were under something different from a communist government.

When the trouble comes, and it may come in a year, five years or ten years there will doubtless be attempts here and abroad to involve the United States in the conflict, either in a diplomatic or a military way, on the theory that we have big interests there but they are not nearly so important as our interests at home. For this reason any attempt to have the United States take a hand in a disagreement of this kind, except to use conciliatory measures of arbitration, should these be called for, will be stoutly resisted by the great mass of the American people. Unless our people have very short memories, any administration which involved us seriously in a fight in the Orient would be short lived. Fortunately, however, there is no evidence that either of our parties would countenance an adventure of the kind. But let us remember that it is much easier to stay out of trouble than to get out, once we have entered into it.

TAKE LESSONS FROM THE RAILROADS

It is estimated that on June 30th there will be a shortage of $2,500,000,000 in the Federal budget due to expenditures having outrun receipts.

When it comes to balancing budgets, the politicians should take lessons from the railroads. In 1930 railroad operating expenses were 12.8 per cent less than in 1929, in 1931 they were 17.9 per cent below 1930 and during first four months of this year they dropped to 22.2 per cent under the corresponding months of 1931. Standards of efficiency and service have not been sacrificed.

On the other hand, the political managers of our government have incurred a gigantic deficit for the taxpayers. Every revenue-raising, economy-engendering program proposed by one party or faction in Congress has been cut to shreds by another. The Senate and the House seem to be hopelessly at odds. This has weakened the American dollar, unbalanced the budget, and shaken national credit.

The governmental budget must be balanced in a large measure by lowering expenses. The government is the people's industry—and its position is fundamentally no different from that of a private industry when hard times follow in the wake of inflation and extravagance—expenses must be brought down to income.

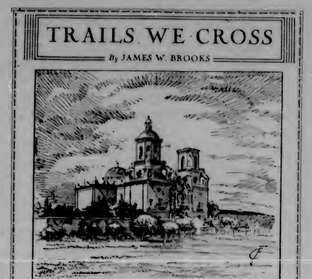
IS PROPERTY CONFISCATION NEAR?

Throughout the land there is growing talk of "tax strikes." Many property owners are simply unable to pay the exorbitant levies demanded.

We are gradually approaching a time when it will be cheaper to tear down many buildings, thus creating unimproved properties, or allow the property to be taken over by the state, than to pay taxes.

Is it any wonder that the best minds of the country are regarding the tax problem as the most serious, most far-reaching and most menacing issue the people now face?

Well, the little red school house may be all out of date now, but anyhow, it wasn't all covered with bond issues.



NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Whether rightfully or wrongfully, it is an undisputed fact that Congress of the United States at this time is being blamed for having a large part in the continuance of the depression. People from all parts of the country who come to Washington say that in their community the people are hoping for an early adjournment of Congress in the belief that this alone will have a steadying effect on business. Bankers and leaders of industry, so they say are afraid to go ahead with any constructive programs until they are sure that Congress is going to balance the budget, and until they see just what kind of tax bill is going to come out of the national legislative body.

The fact that the latest dip in the stock market started about the time that the House of Representatives defeated the sales tax proposal and then threw its leadership overboard has strengthened the convictions of a great many people that the uncertainty in Congress is helping to extend the depression at the present low stratum of business. Most of the senators and congressmen themselves, when one talks to them privately, will admit that they are anxious to get through and go home to prepare for the national campaign this fall. Nearly everyone of them that one meets is sincerely hoping that Congress can get through with its legislative program within a reasonably short time and adjourn. It would seem that when this sentiment is so nearly universal in the country and around the Capitol itself, that a legislative program fixing the taxes and balancing the budget would be put through in short order. But enacting legislation is a long and tedious process at best, and at a time like the present, when neither party has a firm hold on the throttle, it is very difficult to maintain effective leadership.

Most of us year in and year out repeat the old phrase that ours is a government by parties and that party organization should be maintained. But it takes a condition like the present one in Congress to emphasize the importance and truth of this old assertion. When the Democrats or the Republicans have a clean-cut majority in both houses of Congress, we get legislation of the kind outlined in the party platforms and on which the people have passed in the preceding election. But when the balance of power is almost even, so that decisions may rest with a little group of independents in one house or the other, there is apt to be a legislative confusion bordering on chaos. The present situation around the Capitol at Washington gives abundant proof of the truth of this assertion.

Just how much the present muddled situation in Congress is to blame for the continuance of the acute stage of the depression nobody, of course, can tell. But it is undoubtedly desirable, even essential, that we get a reasonably satisfactory tax law and a sane balancing of the budget in the near future, followed by an adjournment of Congress. Nothing would so relieve the uncertainty in the business world as this. That the country realizes it is evidenced by the almost universal opinion everywhere that Congress ought to finish its program and adjourn. President Hoover undoubtedly is of this opinion and so are the leaders of both parties in Congress. Backed up, as they are, by the great majority of the people in all parts of the Union it would seem that the log jam would break sooner or later. And the sooner the better, in the opinion of ninety-eight per cent of the people of the United States.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Our Necessary Navy

Although there is an urgent need for economy and a retrenchment in federal expenditures, there is much to be said in support of Senator Hale's bill, authorizing the building of the United States Navy up to the limits of the London treaty.

First, be it noted that while this bill authorizes a building program which eventually will involve an expenditure of a sum of $750,000,000, it does not add a dollar to the appropriations for next year, and it would interfere in no way with the present efforts to balance the budget for that year. Construction would be begun under the 1934 appropriations, and by 1936 the American the navy would equal the treaty strength now existing only on paper.

The advantage of the bill lies in the fact that it would make an end to our present policy of inactivity and indifference, and mark out a definite program for bringing our navy up to treaty requirements. It is an anomalous condition that altogether the United States insisted at the London Conference on a navy equal to that of Great Britain, almost half of the period allotted by the conference for achieving that end has passed and nothing has been done. Not only has our naval building program to provide for most of the added construction necessary for that purpose, but no provision has been made to care for the volume of replacements that daily increases. As a result, we have been steadily dropping in our position among the naval powers, until as Senator Hale says, by the expiration of the London treaty on December 31, 1936, we will be outranked by not only Great Britain, but by Japan, France and Italy.

No thoughtful American can view this situation with composure. Two facts must not be forgotten. That any war in which the United States might be engaged with any of the major powers must be fought on the sea. And that although efforts have been made to lessen the possibilities of war, conditions in the world have seldom been more threatening than they are today. Nations like Japan have not hesitated, as it suited their purpose, to ignore the treaties that were designed to hold them in check.

One unfortunate factor in the formulation of our naval policy is the influence that has been exercised by the congressional representatives of inland states, who are not sea-minded and who seem to miss the significance of adequate naval protection. This attitude is too shortsighted, and if allowed to predominate, sooner or later the course we are taking will be regretted. Other nations can take no alarm or objection to the United States adopting a program of naval construction which they themselves have agreed in the London treaty is our legitimate right—Manchester Union.

One of the most encouraging signs of the recent German election was that in two years of distressingly hard times the Communists were able to make no appreciable gain in their voting strength.

What some of the professional pacifists seem determined to do is not to end war but to render Uncle Sam helpless before the next one starts.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Resort arrival today: Mrs. L. A. Small, of Chicago, and Mrs. J. W. Teasdale, of St. Louis, Mo.

Bury the crooker out in the woods in a beautiful hole in the ground, where the bumble bee buns and the woodpecker pecks and the straddle-bug straddles around. He is no good to the city to trust, too practical, stingy and dead, and he wants the whole world and part of the crust, and the stars that shine over head. Then hustle him off to the place of the dead, and bury him deep in the ground; for to me to as here, get him out of the way, and make room for the man that is sound.

There have been and are still, those who regard the Charlevoix life saving station as a summer "show" outfit. Up to date this season, Capt. Fountaine has had his crew out eight times when there was a possible hazzard of life, and one case last fall, the Nellie Johnson case—there is no doubt the lives were saved by the prompt action of Captain Fountain. Had the recent four strandings been followed by high winds, there is no question but that there would have been work here for two crews. It is not only the probabilities, but the possibilities that enter into the invaluability of the service to save life. The record already justifies the establishment of this station.

Forty Years Ago

THE STEEL ALL DOWN
The Iron Horse Creeps In
From The South Saturday

A continuous line of steel now connects Charlevoix with the rest of the world! Charlevoix is in touch with the "outside" and has felt the pulse-throbs conveyed to us through the "iron sinews of commerce."

At about nine o'clock Saturday morning the construction train, pulled by C. & W. M. engine No. 144, with J. T. Cunningham at the throttle, S. Murphy as fireman, W. Hartford, conductor and Dan Kennedy in charge of the track-layers, slowly crept across the Stover bridge and toward the lake-front. At 4 o'clock the last rail was laid on the eastern approaching that required on the bridge and its approaches. The interesting event was witnessed by a crowd from downtown, and was announced by the shrill and long continued blasts of the locomotive's whistle, and the joyful response of a passing steamer. Why should not the welkin ring? Was not our deliverance wrought? The sight of a locomotive standing upon the grade in front of the Belvedere Hotel meant more than the landing of No. 105 upon the disjointed north side section.

At eleven a. m. the engine returned to Ellsworth for a car load of steel, and by invitation of Engineer Cunningham, the Sentinel scribe accepted a seat in the cab. Southward we whirled at a fourteen mile gait. Through Marion we sped, the whistle conjuring the houses, likewise the pigpens; the occupants of the former to joyfully salute the welcome monster, the latter from astonishment or terror. On past familiar landmarks; amid scenes old to our eyes, yet now viewed as in a dream. Through Marion by rail! Shades of Bernard Burns and Anthony D. Brady! Out past "26 lake" and Johnny O'Neills in sight of the farms of John Ward, Wm. Black and Wm. Stevens, we are soon in Banks, surrounded by no less familiar scenes; down through the valley of the Orr Creek; along the well remembered hillsides, and across highways and by-ways we trod, a quarter of a century ago. At Asoh we pulled into picturesque little Ellsworth, nestled upon a beautiful curve of the beautiful Intermediate, but a short time ago a forest-bound lake. Ellsworth will be heard from. With a location of surpassing beauty, its grand timber and fertile soil, it has without doubt, fair prospects for the future.

With Mr. Ed. Fox we dined in the boarding car and at 1 o'clock were on our way back and in less than an hour were at "the front" again.

There is inspiration in the thought that, practically the last spike is driven that gives an unbroken connection by rail with Grand Rapids, Detroit and Chicago.

Now friends and brethren, watch our smoke.

Fifty Years Ago

The band is making good progress.

The Charlevoix livery stable has three fine new buggies.

J. Reed Emery has his new residence on Clinton street well along.

W. C. Newman has his new feed barn on Antrim Street nearly done.

The $18,000 Little Traverse lighthouse appropriation has passed the Senate.

The Banks church building was raised Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Prof. Olney of Ann Arbor, is to erect a cottage on the Charlevoix summer Resort.

Two deer and two fawns were seen on the Charlevoix Summer Resort grounds Tuesday.

Rev. Mr. Daniels attended the Inter-Denominational Ministerial Association at Petoskey this week.

The Charlevoix Sentinel, a staunch stalwart ReRepublican paper, Willard A. Smith, editor and proprietor, has just entered upon its fourteenth volume, and shows evidence of prosperity and thrift. It is a neatly printed six column quarto sheet, the same size as the Allegan Journal. May its shadow never grow less.—Allegan Journal.

Wm. C. Grandy, an experienced millwright, has arrived and taken charge of the enlargement of John Nicholl's saw mill! The old building will be raised and thirty feet, added to the east end. The mill will, besides receiving new engines and boilers, be thoroughly overhauled and improved.

Don Henderson, editor of the Allegan Journal, after passing through the tribulations which comes from having a dishonest and disreputable partner, comes out as bright as ever, amid the sincere congratulations of scores of his fraters of Michigan journalism. The Allegan Journal is too old, too well known, and has fought too many hard battles for Republicanism, to be injured by any dish-washer half-breed of the calibre of E. C. Keid. A truer Republican never lived than Don Henderson, and Michigan has no abler political writer. We count Don among our personal friends, and we are proud of his friendship.

In our opinion the people of Charlevoix will one of these fine days, wake up to the necessity of providing some means for the extinguishment of fires. During the recent fires in the woods about the village, all that was wanting was a gale of wind to burn our town. The time to prepare for war is in time of peace. Three or four hundred dollars will purchase one of the Traverse City fire engines and we are of the opinion that it should be done now. Such neglect of this important matter is not business-like, and will be the cause of sore regret one of these days. Let us be up and doing.

GOWN DESIGNER DESCRIBES CREATION OF COSTUMES

There are ten steps in the creation of every costume that appears on the screen, it was revealed recently in an interview granted by Travis Banton, studio gown designer.

Take as an example, the satin and sequin evening ensemble in which Carole Lombard appears in one of the scenes of Paramount's "Sinners in the Sun", which is being shown at the Palace Theatre Thursday and Friday.

This gown was created by Banton especially for the scene in which it is worn by Miss Lombard and the interviewer induced Designer Bevan to outline the elaborate and circumstantial details in the creation of this particular gown as an illustration of the care taken by Paramount to have the gowns worn by their stars correct in every detail. The ten steps are as follows:

1 Banton receives the final script on "Sinners in the Sun". He reads carefully and compiles a list of the number and type of costumes required by the script.

2 He holds a conference with Miss Lombard, the director, and the cameraman as to the type of costumes they prefer. Special attention is given to the outfit to be worn in the climactic scenes of the picture.

3 A sketch in water colors of the most important costume is made by Banton. Complete details of colors, lines and accents are shown in this sketch.

4 The sketch is submitted to the director and Miss Lombard for a final okah.

5 After the sketch is received, Banton instructs the studio shopper to purchase ten yards of pearl-white satin, six yards of black satin, and twenty yards of massed silver sequins.

When material is delivered, Banton holds a conference with the head fitter, who supervises all the seamstresses and the cutting.

Next day, Miss Lombard arrives for the first fitting. The gown of white satin and marf of sequins is basted and pinned carefully to the lines of her figure. The wrap of sequins, lined with black satin, is fitted for length and drapery. Banton closely supervises all fittings.

8 Another conference is held with the fitter if any small changes have been decided upon during the first fitting.

9 The second and final fitting is held the following day.

10 The gown is worn by Miss Lombard on the set, where the cameraman takes a careful look at it under the various lights to ascertain the best illumination and angles.

Napoleon No Scholar

Napoleon did not distinguish himself in school. As one writer puts it: Napoleon's scholastic career was not brilliant and he received his commission in the artillery in 1785 without having given evidence of any marked ability, except, perhaps, that of holding his own command and arranging pyramids to the end any attitude pleased. These traits, which after went made him feared equally in the council chamber and on the battle field, were apparently conspicuously among the dependable six-footers. "Heroes" are given worst nicknames to torture how well they stand up under the test. Some of the materials are so fragile that they win a score of fifty or less while peach is rated all the school examples submitted for test score a count of three or a knee.

Those wearing tests help explain why automobiles upholstered in genuine leather frequently bring from 25% to 50% higher resale value than similar ones upholstered in other fabrics at the time of resale or trade-in. The upholstery is in good condition after years of service. It is clean and bright, the colors have not faded and the leather and many hours ensure the prospective purchaser that the car is good for many more miles of driving.

Material is made from the hair of the Angora Mohair goat, which is unique in a pile fabric that in it is composed of thousands of small cones so woven that they stand out and thereby prevent as a soft resilient but luxurious surface that will withstand years of hard service. In case the pile flattens down after severe and prolonged use it be quickly and easily refresh ened by placing a damp cloth over it and allowing the cloth to dry or by sponging.

For years, velour has been the favorite pile fabric in automobiles and in railroad cars. It is especially suitable to summer use in vehicles and on furniture as well for its fine appearance, its cool feel, its ease with which it can be cleaned by perspiration as and its resistance to fading. Improvements are now claimed in velour mohair. An added reason for its summer popularity is the fact that it is cooler than other materials. The spaces between its many fibers permit a certain amount of air to circulate between the person and the seat, thereby reducing excessive body temperatures.

Of all the upholstery fabrics entered for these strange "marathons," mohair velvet or velour has been consistently among the dependable six tests. "Heroes" are given worst nicknames to torture how well they stand up under the test. Some of the materials are so fragile that they win a score of fifty or less while peach is rated all the school examples submitted for test score a count of three or a knee.

Those wearing tests help explain why automobiles upholstered in genuine leather frequently bring from 25% to 50% higher resale value than similar ones upholstered in other fabrics at the time of resale or trade-in. The upholstery is in good condition after years of service. It is clean and bright, the colors have not faded and the leather and many hours ensure the prospective purchaser that the car is good for many more miles of driving.

Mohair is made from the hair of the Angora Mohair goat, which is unique in a pile fabric that in it is composed of thousands of small cones so woven that they stand out and thereby prevent as a soft resilient but luxurious surface that will withstand years of hard service. In case the pile flattens down after severe and prolonged use it be quickly and easily refreshed by placing a damp cloth over it and allowing the cloth to dry or by sponging.

For years, velour has been the favorite pile fabric in automobiles and in railroad cars. It is especially suitable to summer use in vehicles and on furniture as well for its fine appearance, its cool feel, its ease with which it can be cleaned by perspiration as and its resistance to fading. Improvements are now claimed in velour mohair. An added reason for its summer popularity is the fact that it is cooler than other materials. The spaces between its many fibers permit a certain amount of air to circulate between the person and the seat, thereby reducing excessive body temperatures.

Science Tests Fabrics for Durability

This is a "wear testing machine" used in a recent rubbing marathon to find out how long different kinds of motor car upholsteries and other fabrics would last. Mohair velvets and velour were consistent winners

MOHAIR WINNER IN RUBBINGMARATHON

Scientific Tests Show Durability of Different Kinds of Fabrics.

In the laboratory of a large seat manufacturing company a bar that slips back and forth back and forth across a square of testing material which has been securely attached to a soft base. A strenuous endurance contest is under way, a scientific and accurate test to show how long the sample of fabric will resist the constant wear of the sliding piece. Count by laps of the number of "rubs" the sample receives and when the piece begins to wear out, the machine is stopped and another "mark" is entered in the interesting endurance "marathon."

This, briefly, is one of the tests applied to mohair velvet or velour as well as to other materials before the motor car designers select the kind of upholstery they wish to place on the units they are making. Previous experience has already told these men much about the durability of the materials considered but the chief object of the test is to do in a brief time what would otherwise require months and years so that selections can be made more readily and inferior materials quickly eliminated.

Of all the upholstery fabrics entered for these strange "marathons," mohair velvet or velour has been consistently among the dependable six tests. "Heroes" are given worst nicknames to torture how well they stand up under the test. Some of the materials are so fragile that they win a score of fifty or less while peach is rated all the school examples submitted for test score a count of three or a knee.

Those wearing tests help explain why automobiles upholstered in genuine leather frequently bring from 25% to 50% higher resale value than similar ones upholstered in other fabrics at the time of resale or trade-in. The upholstery is in good condition after years of service. It is clean and bright, the colors have not faded and the leather and many hours ensure the prospective purchaser that the car is good for many more miles of driving.

Mohair is made from the hair of the Angora Mohair goat, which is unique in a pile fabric that in it is composed of thousands of small cones so woven that they stand out and thereby prevent as a soft resilient but luxurious surface that will withstand years of hard service. In case the pile flattens down after severe and prolonged use it be quickly and easily refreshed by placing a damp cloth over it and allowing the cloth to dry or by sponging.

For years, velour has been the favorite pile fabric in automobiles and in railroad cars. It is especially suitable to summer use in vehicles and on furniture as well for its fine appearance, its cool feel, its ease with which it can be cleaned by perspiration as and its resistance to fading. Improvements are now claimed in velour mohair. An added reason for its summer popularity is the fact that it is cooler than other materials. The spaces between its many fibers permit a certain amount of air to circulate between the person and the seat, thereby reducing excessive body temperatures.

Reilie L. Lewis, Administrator of said Estate, having filed in said court his petition praying that he be licensed to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described, to the North half of Lots Nos 167 and Seven (7) in Block 4 of plat known as Addition to the Village (now city) of Charlevoix, Michigan.

It is Ordered, That the 1st day of June A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court at said time and place, to show cause why a license to sell the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Rosgwegger,
Judge of Probate

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Final Administration Account.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Rosgwegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of William John Burns, Deceased.

Jessie H. Gallagher, administratrix de bonis non, having filed in said court her final administration account and her petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is Ordered, That the 23rd day of June, A. D. 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Ervan A. Rosgwegger,
Judge of Probate

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION—Sale of Mortgage of Real Estate.

State of Michigan.

The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1932.

Present: Hon. Ervan A. Rosgwegger, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Maybelle M. Russell, Deceased.

GLENN S SEE
Funeral Director
AMBULANCE SERVICE
Day 1 Phone Night 734
Charlevoix, Michigan

R. L. LEWIS
ATTORNEY at LAW
Office—Court House
Phone 180 Charlevoix, Mich.

J. NELSON NORDRUM
CHIROPRACTOR
Bechtelowne Block
Phone 240-J Charlevoix, Mich.
Special Winter Rates—Investigate

DR. C. J. WINDER
DENTIST
318 Bridge Street
Hours—8:00 to 12:00; 1:00 to 5:00
Evenings by Appointment

LISLE CHANAHAN
ATTORNEY at LAW
Office 108 Clinton Street
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

WM. J. BOGART
GENERAL CONTRACTOR
No Job Too Large
No Job Too Small
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

INSURANCE
Gerald W. Richardson
CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

QUALITY MERCHANDISE
—AT—
REASONABLE PRICES
STALEY HARDWARE CO.
PHONE 86 323 BRIDGE STREET

The SENTINEL For PRINTING

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

"Thanks to my telephone, I found a new job in 3 days"

I INTENDED to have my telephone taken out. But when I was told of many actual cases in which others had found jobs by means of their telephones, I decided to keep mine for a month or so.

"JUST 3 DAYS LATER, one of the employers with whom I had left my name and telephone number called me."

The telephone in your home is one of your most important business and social assets. And it is PRICELESS PROTECTION in emergencies, such as fire, accident or sudden sickness.

A true testimonial, chosen from among many similar cases reported by our business offices.

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

CLEAN COMICS THAT WILL AMUSE BOTH OLD AND YOUNG

FINNEY OF THE FORCE — By Ted O'Loughlin

THE FEATHERHEADS — By Osborne

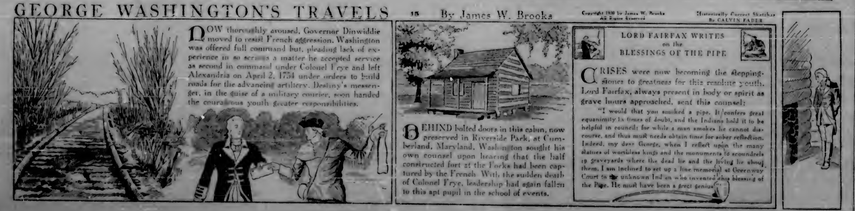
Along the Concrete

Our Pet Peeve

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL — By Charles Sughroe

Print Shop Talk

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — 15 — By James W. Brooks



NOW thoroughly aroused, Governor Dinwiddie moved to resist French aggression. Washington was offered full command but, pleading lack of experience in so serious a matter he accepted service as second in command under Colonel Frye and left Alexandria on April 2, 1754 under orders to build roads for the advancing artillery. Beating's messenger, in the guise of a military courier, soon handed the courageous youth greater responsibilities.

BEHIND bolted doors in this cabin, now preserved in Riverside Park, at Cumberland, Maryland, Washington sought his own counsel upon hearing that the half constructed fort at the Forks had been captured by the French. With the sudden death of Colonel Frye, leadership had again fallen to this apt pupil in the school of events.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get amazing new pore-purified Tan-satin—a full skin coat in minutes with no muddy mess. Just spread on Mercolized Wax at night, wash off in the morning. Your complexion is then beautifully clear, velvety, radiant, and you can remove freckles, pimples, etc., one to two days. Get Mercolized Wax and full directions at drug stores.

Washington's Will 100 Years Old. Hamilton's Will 100 Years Old. Jefferson's Will 100 Years Old. Purchases 3 thousand-in. Ill. Ill. Ill

Churches

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
G. Russell Parker, Pastor

Charlevoix—
Sunday School, 10:00
Morning Worship, 11:15.
Mid-week Service, Thurs. 7:00.

Boyne—
Morning Worship, 10:15.
Sunday School, 11:00

All young people's activities, except the primary School, have been discontinued until after the summer season.

Dr. F. E. Dillbeck will remain the pastor in the absence of the pastor and family who spend the week end with a daughter, Hollis who graduates this week from Olivet College. Dr. Dillbeck's subject will be "The Personal Christ."

The patterpoint Children's Day program will be given during Worship Program period of the Sunday School session morning June 12th.

BAPTIST CHURCH
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

Morning Worship, 10:30.
Sunday School, 11:45.
B. Y. P. U., 6:30.
Evening Service, 7:30.
Women's Meeting, Wednes., 2:30.
Mid-week Service, Thurs., 8:00.
Bible Study, Monday, 7:30.
Daily Vacation Bible School.
Is busy with happy, great Monday morning and assurance for the week.

This is an opportunity for all boys and girls to receive many lessons in the twelve interesting Bible Study. We small, appreciate having all present the first day with eagerness to attend.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor.

June has "To Heaven via Ladder, or Elevator."

The Club meets this week Thursday, with Mrs. Walter Taylor, on Sunset Bridge street.

The Aid Society has an important meeting next week Tuesday. Watch for notice Sunday as to place.

Baptism of Junior Church will be provided on Children's Day, and other appropriate services. This probably will be held the second Sunday in June.

Important meeting of the Official Board next Monday evening at the parsonage. Special business.

CHURCH OF GOD
I. T. Mark, Pastor

Subject, June 11: "God the Only Cause and Creator."

Service First Wednesday of month at 7:45 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Demonized" was the subject of the Lenten Sermon in all Christian Sciences churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 29.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Deut. 4:5): "And cover not their images, and let not your son be distinct nor from before them: for they have provoked thee to anger before the children."

Corroborative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 447): "The heavenly law is broken by trespassing upon man's individual right of self-government. We have no authority in Christian Science and no moral right to attempt to influence the thoughts of others, except it be to exalt them."

Local News

The Stockman block until recently occupied by George W. Lask, takes on a new appearance by the application of white paint on the entire front and modern signs on both the north and south sides indicating the products handled by the new lessees, Freeman Ice Cream Co.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kerrhod of Chicago arrived here last week and are occupying their summer home, 219 Park Avenue.

LaVerne Hrabe has taken a position with L. P. Adams and son, where he is now employed.

Dr. E. B. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. James Gaskin and L. P. Adams drove to Traverse City the morning, where they will spend the major part of the day on business.

Mr. E. V. Madison of Grand Rapids is here for a few days attending the banquet Thursday evening of the Lions and at last Junior.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hester and daughter Charlotte, of Traverse City were Charlevoix visitors Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenfield of Bellaire were guests of Charlevoix friends Sunday.

Mr. J. W. Harris of Oak Park, Ill., arrived here Friday and is at the Harris cottage near Ironton for the summer. His daughter, Miss Edith Harris, with host and other family members will soon join them.

Dr. A. L. Swinton of Marquette spent the week end here with his brother, Mrs. G. B. Swinton, other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones and children were guests of Charlevoix relatives and friends.

Mrs. Mildred MacArthur, daughter Mildred and son Bruce, returned to Flint Monday, following a visit of several days with Mrs. MacArthur's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Eckinger.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sands, Mrs. Thomas Shapton and Mrs. Ed. Shapton spent three or four days here recently, returning to Flint Monday.

Miss Koskella, who recently spent a few days at Marquette, returned Monday and has resumed his duties as superintendent at the local hospital.

A BARGAIN IN GOOD FARM

$1,000 subject to balance on Federal Farm loan of $1,600 will buy one of the best 79 acre farms in Charlevoix County.

Eight room house, bank barn, fruit trees, on good county road 6 miles South of Charlevoix, Marion Township. Legal description Sec. 4 SW¼ Sec. 26, Marion Township, less 1 acre occupied as school house.

Address for further information, E. L. J. Mills, Mancelona, Mich. 1tf

For Sale—

Choice frontage on Lake Charlevoix. Splendid location, magnificent view of lake and fine perspective. Will sell in large size lots. Plenty of good timber on property. Fine bathing beach. Easy dockage. Inquire at Sentinel office. 12tf

"The Valley Of Ghosts"

A MYSTERY PLAY IN THREE ACTS
(Produced by arrangement with the Copyright owners.)

GIVEN AT THE SAINT JAMES HALL,

ST. JAMES, MICH.

JUNE 5TH, 1932

BOAT LEAVES CHARLEVOIX AT 2
JUNE 5TH, 1932

ABRAHAM LINCOLN ENTERED POLITICS A CENTURY AGO

Defeated in Race for Legislature When 23 Years of Age.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—Political issues troubling American voters today are much the same as those which Abraham Lincoln discussed 100 years ago today, in his maiden political speech, it was revealed here by Dr. Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

"This year marks the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's first political speech in the storm of Sangamon county, Illinois," Doctor Warren explained. "He was then 23 years of age and was a candidate for the state legislature.

"A study of that document, which is on file in the Foundation's library here, reveals that Lincoln devoted his ire ab to a discussion of many issues which are still being kept alive today by local politicians in all parts of the country. For example—road building, public education, usury and the activities of "loan sharks," railroads versus waterways, and revision of existing laws."

Doctor Warren who has devoted his life to a study of Lincoln lore and the memorialization of interest to the Emancipator's life, was appointed director of the research foundation when that organization was endowed four years ago by the Lincoln National Life Insurance company. He quoted as follows from Lincoln's speech, delivered in Springfield March 9 1832:

This profile of Abraham Lincoln, executed by Pickett, is considered one of the best ever executes by any sculptor. So well is it regarded that it was selected as the model to be used on U. S. postcards.

Attacks "Loan Sharks"

ON USURY LEGISLATION—"That the wisest and most timely investment of public wealth for immediate good, is in the opening of good roads is what no person will deny. Yet it is folly to undertake works of this or any other kind without first knowing that we are able to finish them, as half finished work generally proves to be infinite loss."

ON PUBLIC EDUCATION—"That every man may receive at least a moderate education and thereby be enabled to read the histories of his own and other countries by which he may justly appreciate the value of our free institutions, appears to be an object of vital importance. For my part, I desire to see the time when education, and by its means, morality, sobriety, enterprise, and industry—shall become much more general than at present."

ON USURY—"It seems that we are now fast approaching the point when the old prohibitory statute limiting money to a certain rate of interest, unless where by a law made fixing the limits of usury."

"Regarding the railroads versus waterways controversy, Lincoln favored improvements on the Sangamon river so that it would be available for transportation rather than the project of building a railroad," Doctor Warren said. "But his argument was solely because the former project was less expensive.

"His first address of the man who was destined in less than 30 years to become President of the United States was brief and almost excessively modest for a man seeking office. It closed with these words:

Favored Waterways.

"Every man is said to have his own peculiar ambition. Whether it be true or not, I can say, for one, that I have no other so great as that of being truly esteemed of my fellow men, by rendering myself worthy of their esteem. How far I shall succeed in gratifying this ambition is yet to be developed. I am young and unknown to many of you. I was born and have ever remained in the most humble walks of life. I have no wealthy or popular relations or friends to recommend me. My case is thrown entirely upon the independent voters of the country; and, if elected they will have conferred a favor upon me for which I shall be unremitting in my labors to compensate. But if the good people in their wisdom shall see fit to keep me in the background, I have been too familiar with disappointments to be very much chagrined."

Lincoln was defeated and did not become an assemblyman till 1834.

DRESSMAKING
Fur Repairing

104 W. Garfield

DO YOU KEEP SUFFICIENT WATER IN "YOUR AQUARIUM"?

ALL ANIMALS, EVEN FISH, REQUIRE A PROPER MIXTURE OF AIR AND WATER IN WHICH TO LIVE

AIR 4% —WATER 96%

Fish cannot live in water that does not contain the proper air supply

AIR 68.4% —WATER 16%

Man cannot live in air that does not contain the proper water supply

HOME AIR IS UNHEALTHFUL IN WINTER WHEN IT DOES NOT CONTAIN SUFFICIENT MOISTURE

Holland Institute of Therapeutics

MAN LIVES IN AIR AS FISH IN WATER

Holland Institute of Therapeutics Traces Respiratory Diseases to Dry, Dusty Stagnant Air in Homes.

FOUR cubic feet in water that does not contain moisture and man can live in air that is entirely free from water. In fact, all actual discomforts for existence a proper mixture of both air and water, declares the Holland Institute of Therapeutics of Holland, Mich., whose research engineers have found that even slight changes in the composition of life environments are often detrimental to health and existence.

The most desirable mixture of these elements for full life is 1 part water and 96 part water. When the mixture of air is less than 4 per cent, fish are likely to suffocate.

In the home, every pound of air heated to a temperature of 70 degrees should contain thirty grains of water to be most comfortable and healthful. This means a proportion of 68.4 per cent air and 1.6 per cent water. Yet in many homes during the winter season the amount of air moisture drops to one-third and even less of this amount. Such air is the result of old style methods of heating which provide no means for injecting warm vapor into the air to maintain a healthful and comfortable humidity. Consequently colds, influenza, and other respiratory infections are generally the result of insufficient moisture in home air.

The dry air of winter has only a fraction, of the capacity of summer air for moisture. The great outdoors is the only source of our indoor air supply, and when winter air is tainted in proportions of 70 degrees or more, its moisture capacity is correspondingly increased. Hence, there is a shortage of water vapor in the air. To overcome artificial means of overcoming moisture deficiency is by means of heating systems of the vapor air type. These are combined with humidifiers which evaporate and announce water into the home, so that the air vapor from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily, as required. In modern homes of 5 or 6 rooms, from 6 to 8 gallons of water should be evaporated daily to maintain humidity in the home.

The moisture thus supplied is not enough to preserve any great amount. Furthermore, moderate temperatures of 68 to 72 degrees will be found to be far more comfortable than the high temperatures and super-dry air that characterize homes heated with old style heating systems.

Betsy Ross directions for making the first Star Spangled Banner. Washington's plan was to have the top and bottom stripes white, but Betsy Ross, with her needle element in mind, showed that the top and bottom stripes should be red, because they would not show so readily. So all Betsy Ross cottage still stands in the heart of the business district of Philadelphia, surrounded by towering office buildings, a shrine for all loyal Americans to visit. We like to visit the flag section in the capitol building at Lansing and see the old flags, which have inspired and led Michigan soldiers through the Civil War, the Spanish American War, and the World War. These flags are all there, hermetically sealed in glass cases, for future generations to revere. Perhaps the writer has a bit more regard for the flag than the average person because, during the Spanish American War, he acted as color sergeant for a number of months in a Michigan regiment.

The flag is more than a colored bit of bunting mounted on a staff. It is the symbol of a great country. It is the personification of that country. Think of the thousands of men who have given their lives that our flag might not trail in the dust in dishonor, and may each one of us make up with his life, if need be, to see that it is not trailed

GOLD RUSH ON IN NORTHERN CANADA

Use Planes to Take Prospectors Into Field.

Calgary.—A radium "rush"—led by airplane—is on in northern Canada. It is something new in mineral adventure. The old-time gold "rush" has passed into history for the time being, at least. However, of $100,000,000 worth of radium-bas produced a month ago, is now prospecting.

But there is a gold "rush" also on on in British Columbia, hundreds of men going in, over the port districts. It has been published that leases will go out from Vancouver shortly.

Two hundred planes of the premises exclusive—united now at EDMAY a plane—are already in prospect at Great Bear lake, judging from subscriptions made during preliminary surveys, according to the A. G. Cameron, professor of mining at University of Alberta. This is one-third of that already produced in the whole world.

Stockmining operations have excited all the investors in which the people blonde is supposed to be—as then have the known goldfields—so that a "rush" of prospectors generally would not suit them anything. However, there has been just as much prospecting activity among a smaller number of persons in the Far North as among the fearless '49ers.

There is a possibility in view of the extreme importance of radium to the world, that the government may take over the deposits. But just now the chief problem is how to get it out—today being so refining and the real thing for this and the near future, perhaps, otherwise than by airplane. And the capacity of aircraft for such heavy cores is very limited.

The deposits are at the Echo River, Great Bear lake. Hugh A. Keenleyside, technologist of the Dominion department of mines at Ottawa, has examined the deposits and pronounced them very valuable. Discovery was made in the spring of 1930 by Gilbert La Rue and considerable work has been done in opening.

At present various one-round exists the cost of shipment to rail, which is $500 a ton. Improved transportation facilities, however, will have to be provided if serious production is to be obtained. A small gasoline boat drawing a ten-foot mark is the best available method of transportation across Great Bear lake until the ice breaks in spring, when the Mackenzie River waterway and rail are used to an limited several times. Hill head is at Waterways, Alberta.

An estimate of radium in prospect, which was based on calculations of Simons, takes it for granted that 2,500 tons of pitchblend are obtainable, containing 50 per cent uranium oxide, which gives 100 milligrams of radium to a ton.

In the vicinity of Fort Norman, the discovery wells, considerable attention takes for exploration. This area is a large one over which discovers and sent forest in which structure, cinerea and petroliferous strata may reasonably be expected.

Plane making frequent trips have taken in prospectors to stake ground, and the two commercial plane services have reserved themselves sits in Ranche city a small part of the traffic offered to them. Ground santé and cial at la Bine Point has already been staked for sixties. The mere recent staking has been promptly in the hope of finding silver.

The silver ounces in leases and mine throughout the mineral pitchblende also are a strong vein are to 40 inches wide of carbonate and wire silver in contact with the pitchblende rather constituting 40 to 50 per cent of the vein matter and an inches and from one-inch-of ounce is a in 10 to 15 feet assayed based on the footwall sides of the vein. Surface ore to open is very rich—almost pure metal. More than 1,500 flying have been staked, according to latest advices.

Solve the Present

Fish taste it is over the filling time; with acid oil combination complete; to never be undertaking will cover as forest in which structure, cinerea and

Sees Chance for Another Deluge

Should the average temperature of the entire world rise only a few degrees, another deluge, like that described in the Scriptures, would sweep the earth, submerging the great cities and causing a rise of more than 100 feet in the level of the oceans, according to a statement made before the American Meteorological society by Dr. William Humphreys of the United States weather bureau. This great flood of water would result from the melting of the ice caps, more than a mile thick, which surround the poles and contain more than 4,000,000 cubic miles of water. The photograph shows Doctor Humphreys indicating the area of the polar ice caps on a globe at his office in Washington.

Cotton replied, "It belonged to one of the Confederate soldiers."

Now what can one say in such a situation except that it calls to the fact that the trouble in question cer tainly is a mess?

"What are you going to write to Cairns and Frank?" Peters asked the next time they met. "I'll send you a few lines soon," Lee replied, as I had, the announcement of the marriage of two of our earlier intimate acquaintances, each of whom had previously been married and whose partners we had known well. This was exactly what I said upon considering it my friend, and for being glad to think of anything such that's functions I had written nothing to him.

Well, what should one say in such a situation? Should he let the poor fellow care of itself and make no reference at all to it, or should he tell him sentiment and that is why several marriages are announced simultaneously? Or, to put it another way—

SMOKY MOUNTAINS PLAN PASSION PLAY

Would Preserve Ancient Music and Folklore.

Boone, N. C.—Ballads, native traditions, culture and folklore of the great Smoky mountains may form the basis upon which a great "Passion Play" performed annually after that of Oberammergau, will be built.

The idea, conceived by Prof. I. G. Greer of the Appalachian State Teachers' college here, is as yet only an idea, but its enthusiastic supporters look the production to take first rank among the outdoor pageants of the country and will be presented fully within the next decade.

Coming of eastern dude to the mountains with good roads accredited schools and radios has brought fear that the old ballads handed down for generations by mountaineers might be forgotten. Professor Greer's idea is to preserve these songs by having them included in the Passion play.

The ballads go back to early English times, for our knows how far generations have not only preserved, but have embellished and heightened them. The greater part of them are sorrowful, pitiable, mournful echoes of the struggles of the mountaineer's life, as it was that of medieval peoples.

Singers taking part would be na-

CHOCOLATE JELLY

1 square sweet- ½ cup sugar chocolate ½ teaspoon salt cup cold milk ½ teaspoon vatablespoon gela- nilla
tine

And chocolate in three-quarters cup full milk in double boiler and heat. Soak gelatin in remaining cold milk five minutes. When chocolate is melted, blend with creamy egg beaten until blended. Add gelatin, sugar, and salt, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool. Add cream and vanilla. Chill until cold and stringy. Pile in bowl or crushed ice or ice water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and triple the whipped cream. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with whipped cream. Serves six.

HOUSEHOLD SQUIBS

A teaspoonful of mixed pickled spices tied in a small bag and added to the water in which fish, ham or tongue is boiled will add a very pleasing flavor.

* * *

To remove rust stains while from the cloth pour hot water on the guns and let them remain overnight. You can crack them easily and remove the rusts in the morning.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

Jack Armstrong—Auburn, N.Y.: HAS THE FIRST BISCUIT BAKED BY his WIFE — 35 YEARS AGO...

DOLLY MADISON HAD THE FIRST BATHTUB INSTALLED IN THE WHITE HOUSE — BUT ANDREW JACKSON THREW THEM OUT...

THE SMALLEST IN THE WORLD—CONSISTING BUT ONE TREE AND A DRINKING FOUNTAIN

THE GUINEA PIG DOES NOT COME FROM GUINEA— AND IS NOT A PIG...

(WNU Service)

Roy Henshaw

Big leaguer scouts have had their eyes on Roy Henshaw, ace of the University of Chicago's pitchers, who has been doing excellent work. Roy, who is in his junior year, is twenty years old, 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds.

Fertilizers Show Nitrogen Content

Change in Labeling Regulations Affects Northeastern States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture—WNU Service.)

An important change in regulations for labeling fertilizers which will affect farmers of entire northeastern states is the transfer from ammonia content to nitrogen as the basis for labeling. This change became effective January 1 in the New England states and in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, area Inc. Oswald Schwenker, chief of the division of soil fertility, bureau of chemistry and soils, United States Department of Agriculture.

Doctor Schreiber believes the change is desirable from most points of view. He points out that nitrogen in the amounts form is present is only a few of the fertilizer materials which are commonly used, although nitrogen is present in several different forms in such fertilizer materials as sulphate of ammonia, nitrate of soda, calcium cyanamid, tankage, dried blood, and other animal and plant by-products. It is this designation that the name of the element nitrogen, and not the equivalent in one of the particular forms in which it occurs, should appear on fertilizer labels. The fact that 1 per cent of nitrogen is the equivalent of 1.22 per cent of ammonia has also led to much confusion because of the indiscriminate use of the two terms as applied to fertilizer content, says Doctor Schreiber.

The new regulations require that the percentage of plant food be stated in whole numbers and not in fractions for all mixed fertilizers. These will be printed on the bag a simplified statement of the guarantees showing only the one wanted and in most cases facilitating the analysis, guaranteed percentages of nitrogen, of available phosphoric acid, and of potash, and the name and address of the manufacturer.

Measures of Determining Value of Corn Silage

An Iowa reader writes as follows: "What is a fair price per ton for corn silage, and should it be worth for $10 to $15 and alfalfa for $22 per ton?"

There are several methods for arriving at a satisfactory price. A ton of average corn and silage usually is worth six bushels of corn and 800 to 1,000 pounds of clover hay. The effect depend that silage from a mature crop is worth more than the price of good quality legume hay per ton, even though this places a slight to higher value on the silage than its actual amount of feed nutrients warrants.

This latter measurement is good as far as it goes, but is not complete. Where the corn was rather bad yielding some silo-corn will have to be fed to get the silage, although a man be remembered that stalks usually have a higher feeding value than the ears are, but fully developed—Wallace's Farmer.

Oats and Peas

The following varieties of Canada field peas are said to do well with: Chancy, Cleverhead, Golden Vine and Liberty Hills. The method in vogue of seeding is one bushels of oats and one bushel of peas to the acre. Also said that will grow good oats will give good results, to land having a fertile soil and a fair amount of seed considered for the peas. Sometimes the seed is drilled in rather deep during the summer of years I sometimes plant the seed rather deep and other years not half covered. Both methods seem to do well.

Salt on Asparagus

Asparagus will stand salt bushes of salt to the acre, or 200 pounds per week, enough to make the ground salty as an ocean. Some salt should be needed to have much permanent effect on weeds. The better plan is to put on from that in the spring and on that it is possible to get around early with a hoe, or plow and cut the weeds in the rinsing.

There has been a little difference of opinion about the use of salt on asparagus. At one time salting it was common practice, the idea being that it was good for the asparagus. Now few do this, while some use salt on plenty of plant food good asparagus can be grown with or without salt.—Rural New Yorker.

Good Feed for Sheep

The place of soybeans on the farm as a feed crop has been demonstrated. Feeding trials with breeding ewes in which molasses and alfalfa hay in various quantities with soybean meal were compared indicates that either of these hays alone or any combination of them makes a good feed for sheep. In no place during the feeding trial did any of the animals show any evidence of poisoning or ill effects. Ewes in the experiment produced strong lambs, according to the Rural New Yorker.

Millets as Fodder Crops

Millets are used for fodder crops. There are several varieties, such as the Japanese, Hungarian, Siberian, Hog, Common, etc. Sometimes moisture will be limited and extra fodder is needed for hay. Millets are used to supply this need and may be sown as late as the middle of June when they mature the same season. About one peck of seed per acre is used. Sow the seed alone on well-prepared rich soil in get satisfactory results.—Montreal Family Herald.

POULTRY FACTS

HOW TO MAKE CUT IN RATION COSTS

Use Home-Grown Grains, Is Advice of Expert.

Substantial savings in the poultry ration may be made at present in almost all sections of the country, according to poultry husbandry at the state college here. In several sections of the country, however, it is not yet safe to feed all the corn that is produced, because of the danger of spoilage.

Grains and milk, they believe, constitute the simplest rations known for satisfactory results. It is best to keep two or more grains in feeders all the time and to give the birds only milk to drink. The choice of grains and the proportions that may be used can be varied according to their price and availability. If sufficient liquid milk is not available, allow the birds free access to fresh scraps alone, or with dried milk in hoppers and give water to drink.

Any change in this system of feeding, the specialists say, should be made gradually. If the birds obtain water from the range or elsewhere when they are receiving liquid milk, the greatest caution of the ration will be too low unless most scrap or dried milk or skim milk is available in hoppers.

Legumes hay such as alfalfa, soy bean, or clover, is best available at all times if the flock does not have access to green grass or if yellow corn does not constitute 50 per cent or more of the grains fed. Birds kept in confinements are fed simplest scrap and grain rations. They are fed in hoppers, using one-half part of cod liver oil per 100 birds over the scratch grain in the hoppers every other day.

Easy to Minimize Loss From Hens Eating Eggs

Complaints of hens eating eggs dropped on the floor or in the nests of the pens are quite common. The habit usually starts from hens finding a cracked egg. Curiosity and appetite are the principles that lead the hens to taste the contents of the egg. Being very palatable they take advantage of every such opportunity and soon look for eggs, whether broken or not. If the nests are kept dark there will be little trouble from hens eating. If the eggs are gathered regularly from the floor, that will eliminate the loss at that point. If the contents of the cracked eggs are removed through the hole and the shell put out of easy reach, the habit will not start. If they taste the contents, the habit usually stops

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Founded by Willard A. Smith, April, 1869, who was continuous publisher until December 24, 1917.

Published every Thursday at Charlevoix, Michigan.
IRA A. ADAMS, Editor
Office 112 Bridge Street — Phone 479

SUBSCRIPTIONS
One Year, $2.00; Six Months, $1.00; Three Months, 50c

Entered at the Charlevoix, Michigan, Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

HOW TO BRING BACK GOOD TIMES

Nothing could do more to bring back good times than assurance of a decrease in taxes during the next few years.

Every effort should be made to increase governmental efficiency, eliminate waste and duplication of effort and do away with the bureaus and commissions that milk the taxpayer dry. Doing this would not damage the functions of government—it would greatly improve them.

High taxes have throttled industrial development in England. They have done the same thing in Germany, in Austria, in Australia and elsewhere. They are doing the same thing here. High taxes make and prolong unemployment, cause hoarding of capital and frighten investors. In short, their whole influence is toward the prolongation of depression.

FARM ELECTRIFICATION ADVANCES

Hard times do not deter the farm electrification movement.

Figures for 1931 show that a gain of 7.5 per cent in number of farms served was made over 1930. At the end of the year, some 700,000 farms were receiving service. In many parts of the country, 1932 will see continued advances.

What universal electrification will mean to the American farmer almost staggers the imagination. It will be comparable to the industrial revolution that took place in Europe with the introduction of steam power; comparable to the establishment of the electrical age in American urban localities. On the average farm the bulk of duties are still accomplished much in the manner of fifty years ago—by inefficient, expensive, arduous physical labor. Electricity, with its efficiency, economy and elasticity of application, will revolutionize the farm and the farm home exactly as it has revolutionized manufacturing industries and city homes in the last quarter-century.

In short, farm electrification and improved living and earning standards for the farmer go forward together.

THE GREAT PROTECTOR

In certain states, oil fields are a common sight with mile upon mile of derricks rising against the horizon. The fire hazard in these is obviously great, in spite of all that human ingenuity and science can do to circumvent it. And between the investor and ruin stands stock fire insurance, unseen but ever present—the basis of credit for the industry.

Oil wells and refineries represent millions of dollars—money which in many cases has been invested by thousands of people. In the space of a few hours their entire property may literally go up in smoke. All that makes rebuilding possible and permits a low price for oil products, is a fire insurance policy.

So far, no disaster, not even the San Francisco conflagration, has been able to shake the stability of the stock fire insurance companies. Their rates provide for the building up of necessary assets to guard against the unlooked-for catastrophe that happens at regular intervals. Their rates are scientifically based upon the risk involved. They are democratic in that they offer protection to all.

Without such universal coverage the industrial age could never have come into being. Without it, every human endeavor would represent a financial risk of the most drastic nature. Credit and new developments, employment and progress—stock fire insurance is the ally of them all.

DRYING UP SPRINGS OF EMPLOYMENT

In discussing the question of how taxes bear down on the business man, the San Francisco Chronicle recently conducted an investigation which showed that while the average person does not know what relation his taxes bear to his net income, carefully managed business concerns know to a penny what tax load they are carrying.

A San Francisco merchandising house in 1931 paid 63 per cent of its net income in taxes. A large farmer paid 50 per cent, and on some of his land which produced an income of $5 an acre, he paid $25 an acre in taxes. Another nationally known farming concern in the state paid 84 1-2 per cent of its net income in taxes, with an outlook for no net income this year but with taxes just as high.

The Chronicle says these are not extreme cases and then cites an insurance company that paid between 35 and 40 per cent, one of the big oil companies paid 30 per cent and a big butter and egg man dug up 32 per cent of his net earnings.

Anyone who imagines that soaking an industry from 30 to 80 per cent of its net income in taxes, doesn't soak the laboring man, should think again. Such taxation simply means fewer jobs, for it dries up the sources of revenue which create employment.

WHAT SHALL WE USE FOR MONEY

An increasing volume of expert opinion holds that it is possible to stabilize silver and still avoid inflation.

As the commercial machinery of the world grows more complicated and higher-geared, gold is less and less able to keep it going. Under present conditions, whole nations, with tremendous populations, are unable to buy in this and other countries, simply because their money metal, silver, has lost most of its purchasing power.

What the ratio should be between gold and silver can be decided by investigation. But this much is becoming apparent to the average citizen—when the bulk of gold is held by two countries, France and the United States, and when silver is selling at unprecedentedly low levels, we are headed for international chaos. Bringing silver "back" would be a long step toward the permanent solution of the difficulties now perplexing all the great nations.

The fact that the situation is serious is the outstanding reason for it having the unbiased and unselfish consideration of the best minds in the leading countries of the world.

ASK THIS QUESTION

In the compulsory annual inspection just being completed by the police of Pennsylvania of more than 1,400,000 cars owned in the State, 85 per cent of the vehicles have been found in need of adjustment or repairs in order to make them safe for modern traffic.

W. T. Palmer, who for two years has been studying the why's and wherefore's of our huge annual toll of motorized mishaps, in commenting on the Pennsylvania study, says: "Already since the adjustment and repairing of these cars have been made under way, a material reduction has taken place in the Pennsylvania accident rate. Many lives have been saved and much misery and expense avoided.

"There you have an emphatic and convincing answer to part of the accident problem. Why can't the idea be copied nationally?

"The dangerous condition of the million and more cars in Pennsylvania is similar to that existing in every State in the Union and it is largely the result of carelessness and thoughtlessness.

CONTRAST IN MANAGEMENT

The Insurance Field recently pointed out the difference between political management of government as contrasted with private management of life insurance for a period of 14 years, from 1917 to 1930. In that time the government collected about $63,000,000,000 in taxes and borrowed $12,000,000,000 from private citizens. Yet so widely were its functions extended and so wastefully did political management force it to operate, that it faced a deficit of over a billion in 1932, with increased taxes as the inevitable consequence.

In that time, the life insurance companies received about $30,000,000,000 from their policyholders in payment for a service comparable in importance to the service of government. Of this, $25,000,000,000 was paid back to the policyholders. Two billion eight hundred million dollars more was loaned to them. Where the companies had $5,000,000,000 in assets in 1917, they now have $19,000,000,000 invested in the best securities the world market offers. The sole reason for the existence of these great assets is to assure safety for the policyholder—to guarantee that the contract his policy represents will be paid when the time comes.

The business of government, of course, is very different from the business of life insurance. But these contrasts give a pretty good idea of the wastefulness of politics as compared to the efficiency of private industry.

"ISOLATION" GONE MAD

"During the past twelve months voices have been heard . . . to the effect that foreign trade is a negligible factor in the restoration of our domestic prosperity . . . Ninety-five per cent of our existing business is domestic, they say, why not face the fact and center upon the home market? And so they advocate a closer drawing of the curtains about the great expanse of the United States, they contend for yet higher barriers to exclude the goods of other lands. This is the philosophy of economic 'defeatism.' It is 'isolation' gone mad. It has no more justification economically than the advocacy of a return to the era of the kerosene lamp and the four-wheel buggy . . . Despite the attractiveness of our domestic market, it must be remembered that 92 per cent of the world's population lives outside the United States and is poorly supplied with the things we best produce. Our international position today demands more analysis, more careful consideration and greater dependence upon facts than ever before in the history of our commerce."

This is the opinion of an author on international trade. And it is an opinion that is gradually finding its echo in the minds of the general public. People are starving when we have wheat to burn; people are cold when wood and cotton are a drag on the American market. Only by an intelligent interchange of goods between nations can commercial stability and prosperity be attained. If we shut out foreign goods for which our people offer a market, we will be shut out of their markets—either by foreign retaliatory tariffs, or because their people have no money with which to buy. The demise of our international trade would mean the loss of livelihood, directly, of several million American families, and work a great hardship on many millions more. Stimulated foreign trade is, to a greater degree than most of us yet realize, a vital factor in the solution of our domestic difficulties.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Mrs. H. Bedford went to Kalamazoo Tuesday to be present at the graduating exercises of the seminary from which Miss Mattie graduates.

A new cement walk is being put in along the front of the E. H. Green premises, on Bridge Street. A significant fact in connection with this item is that Major Green was the first "postmaster" in Charlevoix, and it was he who caused the benches always to be dug out of Bridge street.

Hollie Lewis had his ankle sprained quite badly at the Petoskey-Charlevoix ball day contests.

Michael McCann of St. James was here several days the past week, and while here closed up the deal whereby the McCann's secure an interest in the Str. Beaver.

Supt. Morton and Inspector Reynolds, of the U. S. life Saving Service, were here last week and inspected our station. Both gentlemen were enthusiastic in talking about the start being made by Capt. Fountain in landscape improvements. They are anxious that the village shall cooperate with them in this work and say that the stretch of ground fronting the waterworks on the north will be included in the work to the beach if the village will put in a water pipe and furnish the water for lawn purposes—all of which the council should promptly provide for. Capt. Fountain has already done much to improve the dreary stretch of sand down at the mouth, and has exhibited artistic taste. We hope the council will back him up in the proposed extension of the work. When the plans are carried out, the entire stretch of ground from the bluff to the beach will be a beautiful park.

Gen. John C. New of Indianapolis, arrived at his beautiful north side summer home today.

The Charlevoix Modern Woodmen of America went to Petoskey by steamer Reaver Tuesday night, on a visit to their fraters there.

The big car ferry at St. Ignace turned turtle while loading cars at St. Ignace early Tuesday and went to the bottom of the slip in 14 feet of water. The entire crew escaped without injury. The disaster was caused by loading one side of the ferry with heavy laden cars of iron ore, with nothing on the other side to counterbalance the weight. The sinking of the St. Ignace leaves the railroads between the two Michigan peninsulas without means of transferring their trains across the Straits of Mackinac. The car ferry St. Marie is now in dry dock at Detroit but if here the steamer could not get in to the loading slip as long as the St. Ignace is sunk there. The steamer Algonah was at once put on the route, carrying passengers, but the Algonah cannot carry much freight and none at all in cars. With the passage across the Sus at Sault Ste. Marie blocked by a broken bridge and the car ferry at the Straits out of service, the upper peninsula is just now wholly cut off from the east in railroad transportation.

Forty Years Ago

THEY RISE TO THE OCCASION

Lewis Grand Opera House was crowded last Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the Fourth of July mass meeting. Unbounded enthusiasm prevailed. Fred W. Mayne was called to the chair and ringing speeches were made by several citizens, advocating an extraordinary effort, in view of the culmination of events so fraught with importance to Charlevoix.

George Bates, W. E. Hampton and B. Lee Iddings were appointed a soliciting committee, and at once began their work. The sum of $450 was raised on the spot. Monday the amount reached $1,000, and the end is not yet.

An executive committee was appointed consisting of F. J. Meech, C. E. Wilbur, W. A. Smith, J. M. Ackert, and Lou See. Two meetings of the committee have been held, with F. W. Mayne as secretary and a programme for the day has been blocked out. Hon. S. M. Moore has been elected President of the Day and Wm. Alden Smith has accepted the invitation to deliver the address. The Third Regiment K. P. band has been employed to furnish the music.

The program aside from the usual morning exercises, are as follows: Band tournament, Firemen's tournament, trotting, running, baseball, Charlevoix vs. Petoskey. Bicycle race, double scull, footrace.

The order of the day will close with the most expensive and beautiful display of fireworks ever seen in Northern Michigan.

The executive committee announce the following sub-committees:

Decorations—A. T. Washburn, W. H. Vaughn, F. G. Hines.

Band Tournament—A. W. Nelson, E. Carpenter, Robert A. Miller.

Firemen's tournament—Chief, Assistant Chief and Foreman of Charlevoix Company.

Baseball—F. W. Mayne, D. F. Meech, and Manager of Petoskey team.

Bicycle Race—W. E. Hampton, Harrison Bedford, Gard Brown.

Horse Races—A. J. McLeod, J. H. Parsons, Joseph Stevens.

Scull Race—Jas. Beauvais, A. Cook, S. Campbell

Foot Race—H. A. Emrey, Frank E. Wood.

Charlevoix was honored yesterday by a novel and interesting parade. The steamer Friant gave the Harbor Springs Indian Mission school a free excursion to East Jordan, and on their return they marched from Emrey's to Wilbur's dock. The procession consisted of two priests, two lay brothers, six sisters of charity, and 106 Indian children of both sexes, the latter very neatly and uniformly clad. They presented a very fine appearance.

Mrs. Winans and the children of Mr. Stewart of Chicago are in the Den Bicker cottage for the summer.

Charlevoix is as happy as a blushing maiden on the eve of her wedding day. The bridal wreath is ready and the fruit-cake is on the pantry shelf.

Fifty Years Ago

A bear was seen on the Charlevoix Summer Resort grounds today.

Cottage buildings and other improvements are going rapidly forward on both Resorts.

O. B. Weed and Co., druggists, and C. R. Bellinger, jeweler, will be occupying their new quarters in the Hathaborne building next week.

The new schooner Jennie Weaver, of South Haven, which came into the harbor Thursday, is the finest modeled vessel that ever entered Charlevoix harbor. She loads with lumber.

Ex-congressman Potter of Kalamazoo is up the Jordan fishing. He has rented the Sebring cottage on the Charlevoix Summer Resort, and will occupy it with his family during the warm months.

Rev. Father Gallagher of St. James was in town last week on his way to Philadelphia. He will be absent from his parish until the middle of July, and will visit Washington and Baltimore before he returns.

Capt. Robert O'Neill, mate of the steamer City of Grand Rapids, has been appointed to the command of the steamer Morley, and took her Thursday. Both the owners and Capt. O'Neill are to be congratulated on this appointment. The Morley will continue on the route between Boyne City and Petoskey.

The band is making a rapid headway, and will celebrate the Fourth whether anyone else does or not.

Charlevoix will have at least fifty feet front on Bridge Street, adjoining Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store on the south Mr. Buttars intends taking steps at once for the erection of a brick store on the site, and will as soon as possible enter into business here, at his home. The location is one of the best on the street.

F. W. Mayne and Harry Hamlin have formed a co-partnership in Charlevoix for the transaction of a real estate, collection and insurance business.

L. W. Skinner of Marion, on Tuesday, leased Dr. Lewis' store, and will fill up with a full line of furniture at once. Mr. Skinner is negotiating for the purchase of a residence in town and will move here. The business will be under the management of E. S. Hawkins, who is an experienced cabinet maker, and Jas. Skinner.

Sixty Years Ago

Six more "pigeoners" arrived by a late propeller.

The tug Commodore Nutt has done a good lot of dredging in the river this week.

Valuable—A friend hands us the following receipt for a bath to repel mosquitoes: Oil of Pennyroyal, one drachm, sweet oil, one ounce. Cut this out.

The Board of Health have taken the necessary steps to secure the immediate platting and laying out of our burying ground.

SCHOOL MEETING—The school meeting came off on Thursday evening pursuant to call. The vote of the previous meeting to confiscate a site on the Mason estate was considered and six lots on Block 10 purchased of J. S. Dixon for $200. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Aldrich, Dougherty and Mosgrove, were appointed to select the site in and block. The meeting adjourned to the 19th at which time the committee will report, and the question of the immediate erection of a school building be considered.

Beaver Harbor, Mich., May 31, '32
Editor Sentinel:

Dear Sir: Your mid-late occasional, after hibernating for the past six months, has finally "come out" and ventures to send you an item or two from the island.

The winter has been terribly long—probably the longest and severest known for past twenty years—and, yet, I venture to say, our position is cold-hot, has excelled the extreme cold and made it much more bearable than it has been to you of the mainland.

In every respect it has been quite favorable, particularly for sailing and "getting out" wood winds—nearly double the quantity of that article being on our harbor shores to that seen in years past. The quality is excellent, and quite good enough for any market.

Our stock suffered somewhat, but to no serious extent. Probably a dozen cows died from want of feed. With Pratt and the necessities of life, the islands were fortunately amply supplied last fall and hence suffered to the contrary—our people know nothing of want.

